PREFATORY NOTES

The work which we are presenting to our patrons has two sources of value. One of these is its historic utility as a memorial of the progress and development of the community, from the earliest period with which we could become acquainted through family records and traditions to the present day. The preservation of these data affords the means of illustrating and confirming or correcting and amending extant histories, and supplies material for the compilation of future ones. The second source of value is the personal interest attaching to the biographical and genealogical records comprising our portion of this work, either as studies of life and character, or as memoirs of individuals connected with the reader as relatives or fellow citizens.

On both these accounts, a collection of biographical records is a useful contribution to current literature and a legacy to succeeding generations. Colonies of various nationalities and creeds peopled the territory now comprising Frederick County ; their descendants have taken an active part in national affairs, in war and in peace ; and it will be strange indeed if their annals have not brought to view many scenes and revealed many facts well worthy of being noted and remembered.

In the execution of this work no pains were spared to insure the absolute truth upon which its value depends. The material comprising the History of Frederick County was compiled by T. J. C. Williams and Folger McKinsey, and their production must prove to be a valuable addition to the library of every one who is fortunate enough to secure a copy and will be a lasting tribute to their memory.

The biographical sketches were gathered from the most trustworthy sources by careful note takers. After being arranged by competent writers, and neatly typewritten, these biographies were submitted for correction and revision, which we hope was so thorough that few if any errors in facts, names or dates will be found in the complete work. Those who furnished the data are, therefore, responsible for its genuineness and authenticity. Great care was taken to have the sketches as free from error as possible, but we do not hold ourselves responsible for mistakes, as no charge was made for the insertion of any reading matter contained in the work.

The worth of the posterity of the early pioneers and settlers, who, driven from their foreign homes by persecution, braved the sorrows of expatriation and the perils of the wilderness through single-hearted devotion to principle, has been proven by the religious, educational and benevolent institutions that have sprung up within the borders of Frederick County ; by the public works in which many have taken a distinguished part ; by their record of military service, and their no less valuable services as civilians ; in brief by the whole social fabric which they have reared, and which makes the land rescued by their forefathers from the wilderness a region of homes, cultured, peaceful and inviting.

In conclusion the publishers acknowledge their indebtedness to the ministers and other writers for their valuable contributions ; and to those enterprising citizens who lent their support and encouragement to the enterprise, without which we could not have carried it to a final completion. Doubtless there will be disappointment among those who may have expected us to perpetuate their memories at our own expense, but no one is to blame but themselves, for they had ample opportunity. We take pride in the belief that we have more than fulfilled the promises made in our prospectus, and feel that we will receive the approbation of every reasonably disposed patron.

CHAPTER XXX

JAMES McSHERRY, Chief Justice of the Maryland Court of Appeals and Chief Judge of the Sixth Judicial District of Maryland, comprising Frederick and Montgomery counties, distinguished as a lawyer and eminent as a jurist, whose reputation extended far beyond the bounds of his own State, was a native of Frederick City, Md., where he was born December 30, 1842, and died October 23, 1907. He was a son of James and Eliza (Spurrier) McSherry.

The McSherry family is an old and respected one of Irish origin. The American ancestor of the family was Patrick McSherry, a native of Ireland, where he was born in 1725. He emigrated from his native land to Pennsylvania, and settled in York County, where he died in 1795. He became one of the most prominent men of his neighborhood, and served as a justice of the peace. Upon the inauguration of the war for independence, he became an enthusiastic patriot, and served as chairman of a committee of safety or observation for his county. The name of his wife was Catharine Gartland. They were the parents of twelve children, of whom the eldest, Edward McSherry served as an officer in a Pennsylvania regiment in the Revolutionary War. The eleventh child in this family was James McSherry, the grandfather of Justice James McSherry.

James McSherry, son of Patrick and Catharine (Gartland) McSherry, was born in Adams County, Pa., July 28, 1776, and died in February, 1849. He was a well known and prominent citizen of Pennsylvania. In 1807, he was elected to the State Legislature from Adams County, and so ably discharged the duties of his position that he was re-electeed for five years, serving until 1813. He was then chosen as State Senator from the district comprising York and Adams counties, and served in this capacity until 1817. During that time, although as a Senator he was exempt from military duty, he nevertheless enlisted as a private in a company raised in Gettysburg, under the command of Captain McClevis, at the time when Baltimore was menaced by the British. He remained in the service until the company disbanded. In 1821, he was elected to Congress, and three years later he was again elected to the Pennsylvania Legislature, serving six successive years. He was again chosen to represent his district in the council chambers of the State in the sessions of 1834-1835 and 1836. He also served as a member of the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention of 1837. He was a prominent figure of the convention, and he took an important part in framing the organic laws of his State in the first half of the nineteenth century. Mr. McSherry was married to Ann Ridgely Sappington, daughter of Dr. Francis Brown Sappington, who in his day was one of the best known and ablest physicians of Frederick County, Md., where he enjoyed an extended practice.

James McSherry, son of James and Ann Ridgley (Sappington) McSherry, and the father of Judge James McSherry, was born in the village of Libertytown, Frederick County, Md., July 29, 1819, and died in Frederick City, July 13, 1869. He was the well known author and historian of Maryland. After receiving his elementary education, he entered Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md., from which institution he was graduated in 1838. He then began the study of the law, with Gen. James M. Coale, of Frederick City, as his preceptor. Upon the completion of his legal studies, he was admitted to the Bar in 1840. He immediately entered upon the practice of his profession in Gettysburg, Pa., in partnership with Hon. Thaddeus Stevens. Here he remained until the end of 1841, when he returned to Frederick, and there passed the remainder of his life. He won distinction at the Bar, but had a marked preference for literary pursuits, and devoted much of his time to such work. He became one of the most noted authors of his day, his most important production being a History of Maryland. Among his first contributions to literature were articles published in the "United States Catholic Magazine." In 1846 he published "Pere Jean; or, the Jesuit Missionary," which in 1860 was again published under the name of "Father Leval." He also contributed to the "Metropolitan Magazine," published in Baltimore. However, he is best known by his "History of Maryland," published in 1848, in which the principal events of Maryland history were compressed into a popular form. The work gives an account of the settlement of the colony, its rise and progress, its troubles and revelations, and its periods of peace and prosperity, all of which are recounted in simple narrative style, at once attractive and instructive. Only those battles of the Revolution participated in by the men of Maryland are dwelt upon. He avoided strife and politics and the contentions of the parties during that period of the history of the county embracing the adoption of the Constitution of the United States, when the foundation of political parties was laid; such things found no place in his work. This being the third history of the State and treating its subjects with fairness and fullness, has always held a prominent place in history. In 1851, Mr. McSherry published "Willitoft; or, Days of James I," which was re-published in 1858 at Frankfort-on-the-Main. In 1850-51 he frequently lectured in New York and Philadelphia for the benefit of the Roman Catholic Church, and in 1858 he delivered an address at the semi-centennial celebration of Mount St. Mary's College, his alma mater. Mr. McSherry was a man of scholarly impulses, keen insight and powerful command of language. He was admirably adapted for the field of literature, and deservedly gained a reputation for breadth of historic intelligence and ability to embody the important truths in an attractive and enduring form.

Mr. McSherry was married September 30, 1841, to Eliza Spurrier. They were the parents of five children, namely: James; William S., a prominent physician who died in 1876; Edward C., a prominent dentist of Frederick City; Mary Alice, who became the wife of Colonel John A. Haydon; and Anna Gertrude, who married Charles M. Peck.

James McSherry, son of James and Eliza (Spurrier) McSherry, acquired his early education at St. John's Literary Institute in Frederick, which school he attended from 1850 until 1856. From there he went to Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md., which institution he attended until 1861. At the time the war began he had completed the regular course, but had not received the degree. His sympathies were with the South, and in consequence of his spiritual manifestations of his principles he was placed under arrest and confined at Fort McHenry, though for a short time only. In September, 1861, he began to read law in the office of his father in Frederick. Having acquired his legal knowledge, he was admitted to the bar in Frederick by Judge Madison Nelson, on February 8, 1864. He immediately entered upon the active practice of his profession in his father's office, displaying marked ability from the very outset. He soon acquired a large and influential clientele, and won wide recognition as an able lawyer. His talents were quickly recognized and he was sought as counsel in many important cases, being noted in every instance for the skillful manner in which he safeguarded the interests of his clients. As a lawyer, Mr. McSherry was entitled to high regard. His legal ability soon became unquestioned and he early made his mark in the profession that he had chosen so aptly as his work in life. As a criminal lawyer he figured in the most prominent cases that came before the Court until the time he was called to the Bench. He rose to an eminent standard of ability, his grasp of the law and convincing force and eloquence of language meeting with the unequivocal admiration of those who watched his efforts in behalf of a doomed man. A large number of corporations elected him as their counsel, anl here, as elsewhere, his services were of the utmost value.

In 1887, Mr. McSherry was appointed by Governor Lloyd to fill the place on the Bench of the Sixth Judicial Circuit of Maryland, comprising the counties of Frederick and Montgomery, made vacant by the death of Judge John Ritchie. Without opposition, Judge McSherry was elected to the Bench on November 8, 1887. Judicial honor could not have been conferred upon a more worthy or capable person. He was pre-eminently fitted to perform the duties of this office. A man of undoubted integrity, independent in his beliefs and fearless in his opinions, his elevation to this office insured justice to all without fear or favoritism. The laborer and the scholar were equally respected and appreciated by him, whose warm heart and fearless manhood made him outspoken in his hatred of wrong and hypocrisy wherever found. On February 19, 1892, the Baltimore "Sun" said: "Judge James McSherry is distinguished for his broad and vigorous intellect, quickness of apprehension, the clearness and cogency of his reasoning, and his wonderful capacity for work and application to duty. He possesses the confidence of his associates in a high degree." At the time of Judge McSherry's election to the Bench, he was known to the profession as an able and successful advocate, but the earliest opinions he wrote as a member of the court clearly indicated that he was destined to achieve even greater distinction as a judge than as a practitioner.

On January 25, 1896, Governor Lowndes appointed Judge McSherry Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals of Maryland, to succeed Judge Robinson. The appointment was confirmed the same day by the State Senate without the formality of a reference of the nomination to the Committee on Executive Appointments. The members of the appellate Bench unanimously recommended to Governor Lowndes that Judge McSherry be appointed Judge Robinson's successor. The Governor, himself a Republican and the head of the Republican administration, designated Judge McSherry, a Democrat, as chief judge. Judge McSherry soon proved himself one of the most efficient and capable men who had ever presided over the Court of Appeals. An indefatigable worker, he kept the work of the court up-to-date, and in many ways facilitated the disposition of cases. Few Maryland jurists have had the grasp and knowledge of the law of the State which he possessed. Fearless and courteous at once, he made an ideal presiding judge, and he combined consideration and determination so well with his deep knowledge of the law that he deservedly had the confidence of the public as well as that of the legal fraternity. After his elevation to the Bench of the Court of Appeals, Judge McSherry still served as Chief Judge of the Sixth Judicial Circuit, and continued to sit in cases in that circuit when the Court of Appeals was not in session. His colleagues on the circuit bench were Judges Henderson and Motter. He presided in the Circuit Court for Montgomery county during one term each year, and in the Circuit Court for Frederick County during the August term and a portion of the other two terms. During nearly twenty years service on the Bench, up to the time of the long illness which preceded his death, Judge McSherry was absent from the Court of Appeals only fifteen days, and filed more opinions than any one judge in the same period. His decisions indicate strong mentality, careful analysis, a thorough knowledge of the law and an unbiased judgment.

Judge McSherry's native vigor of intellect and power of logical analysis were extraordinary, as were also his exact memory, his prodigious industry and his rare lucidity of expression. Those qualities make the many hundreds of opinions he delivered in the course of his long judicial service invaluable additions to jurisprudence and also very interesting reading to those who take pleasure in seeing how a strong and acute mind, fortified with ample knowledge, deals with the difficult and important questions which arise in the course of administration of public and private affairs. His opinion in the Casualty Insurance Company's case, relating to contracts against public policy; in the Broadbelt case and the sweatshop case, as to the limits of the police power; in the Hyattsville case as to the single-tax law; in Hopper vs. Creager, as to the powers of the City Council to deprive the Mayor of his right to nominate officers, and in the case relating to the taxation of the easement in the streets of the gas company, are especially admirable and convincing examples of judicial reasoning. It is safe to say that he will be remembered in the judicial history of Maryland as one of the greatest chief justices who ever adorned that high office since the court was first established, in 1778.

Chief Justice McSherry's business interests outside his profession were few. He was a director in the Citizens National Bank of Frederick, and in the Mutual Insurance Company of that city. He was always a Democrat in politics, but never consented to be a candidate for office except on the occasion when given the nomination for the judgeship. Party prejudice or bias never influenced his action in the discharge of his duties. In religious belief he was a Roman Catholic. Throughout his life he was possessed of a broad sympathy and great benevolence.

Judge McSherry was married January 21, 1866, to Clara Louise McAleer, daughter of Hugh McAleer, who was at one time the leading merchant of Frederick City. James and Clara L. McSherry were the parents of six children, two sons and four daughters, namely: James Roger, a well known lawyer, of Chicago, Ill.; Clara Louisa, became the wife of John M. Alvarez, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Ann Ridgeley, married T. Frederick Alvey, deceased; Caroline Spurrier, of Frederick; Bertha Stuart, the wife of William Kurtz Wimsatt; and William Clinton, of Frederick, a student of the law school of the University of Maryland.

Chief Justice McSherry died after a protracted illness at his home in Frederick, October 23, 1907. The Baltimore "Sun," in an editorial expressing profound sorrow at his demise, said: "For twenty years this great lawyer and just Judge adorned the bench of his native State, and for half that time he was the presiding member of the highest court of Maryland—a court which has had an existence under the State Government of about 130 years, and now has the distinction of being the oldest common law court in the world. In the high judicial office which he held for about a decade Judge McSherry had a long line of illustrious predecessors * * * * * * *

William T. Brantley, the Reporter of the Court of Appeals, and an accomplished lawyer, says that Judge McSherry 'will be remembered in the judicial history of the State as one of the greatest Chief Justices who ever adorned that high office since the court was reorganized in 1778; certainly, the equal—in the opinion of many, the superior—of any of his distinguished predecessors.' Judge McSherry possessed rare powers of analysis, and in his reasoning indulged in fine distinctions. He was a man of intense feeling and pronounced convictions. But all these were cast aside when he was on the bench, where he sat as the personification of justice, which he administered, in the terms of the Constitution, 'fully without any denial, and speedily without delay, according to the law of the land.' Judge McSherry had a prodigious capacity for work, and he was never content to leave any task uncompleted, nor was he ever too busy to respond to demands of a public nature not belonging to his office. He was consulted constantly by State officials and by members of the General Assembly, and his aid was never withheld when the public good required it. He was a man of liberal education and a wide range of reading. His memory was extraordinary. As a companion he was cheerful, jovial and always entertaining. His conversation was instructive. He had a great heart and acute sympathies and possessed in an eminent degree the power to draw men to him. Few enjoyed the friendship of a wider circle. In every part of Maryland his friends could be found, and everywhere he was held in high regard. He was as witty as he was profound. During the terms of the court the judges live together at Annapolis in their own rented house almost as a family. Judge McSherry at meals occupied the head of the table, and to sit among the judges at that table was an intellectual delight. 'His relations with his brother judges,' says Mr. Brantley, 'were always of an intimate, and even affectionate, nature.' He was a man. Everything about him was manly and strong. In his death the State has sustained a loss which will not be easily repaired and a host of friends will be filled with sincere grief by the news of his decease."

LOUIS VICTOR BAUGHMAN, one of the most widely known and prominent citizens of Maryland, and for many years an influential leader of the Democracy, was a native of Frederick City, Md., where he was born, April 11, 1845, and died November 30, 1906. He was a son of John W. and Mary Jane (Jamison) Baughman.

John W. Baughman was a native of Frederick County, Md. As a young man, he held a foremost position in the commercial life of the city of Baltimore. Later, however, he took up the study of the law, and became the partner of the Hon. Louis E. Lowe, who through the advocacy of his young partner and other friends in Maryland was made Governor of the State. He achieved much success in his profession, and became known as an able lawyer. However, Mr. Baughman decided to retire from the active practice of law, and purchased the Frederick "Citizen," the organ of the Democracy in Frederick County, which was known all over the country for its vigorous editorial policy. From 1844, when he purchased it, until his death in 1872, Mr. Baughman continued to edit the "Citizen."

The "Citizen" is one of the oldest established journals of the State. Its career was quite noted during the war. Owing to its vigorous advocacy of the Southern cause the veteran editor, Mr. Baughman, was under constant surveillance by the Federal government. Early in the war he was arrested and imprisoned in the old capitol at Washington, and from his prison window saw the Federal soldiers retreating over the long bridge from the battle of Bull Run. Later the paper was suppressed from the United States mails by order of Hon. Montgomery Blair, postmaster-general under President Lincoln. After the battle of the Monocacy Mr. Baughman was arrested by order of General Hunter and banished from his home. His paper was suppressed and his property confiscated. Later his wife and children were arrested and sent beyond the Federal lines, finding a home in Clarke County, Va., with the family of Colonel Dearmont. Mr. Baughman, with his son William, repaired to Richmond. His wife and children were allowed to come back to Maryland before the termination of the war, but he and his son remained until hostilities had ceased. Finally his property and newspaper were restored and he remained at his home until, from ill health contracted in the south, he died, in 1872.

Under the administration of President Buchanan, Mr. Baughman was appointed appraiser of the port of Baltimore, through the influence of his personal friend, John C. Breckenridge, then vice-president. Until his death no man was more universally respected or had a more devoted following of friends. He was a gentleman of the old school, high principled, upright, a man of his word and wonderfully devoted to his family and friends. Mentally he was exceptionally brilliant and polished, and the columns of the "Citizen" teemed with his able editorials and political ideas. Mr. Baughman was married to Mary Jane Jamison, daughter of Baker Jamison, who was descended from one of the oldest Catholic families of Maryland, which was prominent in the early settlement of the State—Leonard Calvert, Governor of Maryland, the Digges, Neals, Brooke and Mudd. Mr. and Mrs. Baughman were the parents of three sons: J. William, who served as reading clerk of the Maryland Senate and House of Delegates, and for a number of years was tax collector of his county; Louis Victor; and Charles H. who was married and had one son, Frank C., a member of the editorial staff of the "Citizen."

Louis Victor Baughman, son of J. William and Mary Jane (Jamison) Baughman, received his elementary education in the public and private schools of Frederick City. He afterwards attended Mount St. Mary's College, located at Emmitsburg, Md. At the outbreak of the Civil War, he was in college, but, imbued with the same spirit of southern rights that had made his father a leader of that line of thought in that part of the State, he abruptly left his studies and joined Company D, First Regiment of Maryland Confederate Cavalry, and fought with bravery and gallantry in a number of engagements. He was captured at Moorefield and was sent to the Federal headquarters at Camp Chase, in Ohio. When he was exchanged he returned to Richmond, March 12, 1865, where he remained until the surrender at Appomattox. Having decided to take up the profession of law, he accordingly went to New York City in 1870, and there pursued his legal studies. His father's death, however, in 1872, brought him back to Frederick, and he resolved to remain there. He, in partnership with his two brothers, conducted the "Citizen" until his death. He achieved a brilliant success in the field of journalism, his literary efforts being devoted to the furtherance of the policies of the Democracy.

Soon after his return to his native county, Mr. Baughman found himself in the front ranks of the Democratic party in Frederick County, and ere long an important member of the State organization. The best years of his life were given to the service of that party. He was a regular of the regulars. He fought for the cause of the Democracy in season and out of season, and never wavered or hesitated when his party needed him. Although no man had done more for his party, Mr. Baughman's rewards were few and he died with the political ambitions of his life unrealized. His natural gifts and talents, his genial nature, warm heart and engaging manners were such as to make the friends he had, absolutely devoted to him. There were many in Maryland who would like to have seen him chosen either as Governor or United States Senator. Many men of less ability than Mr. Baughman, and whose party service was immeasurably less, have received high political honors and held the best offices in the State. Time and time again it seemed as if the hour for the gratifying of his aspirations was at hand, but circumstances were unfavorable to him at the critical moment and Mr. Baughman had more than once laid aside his personality and plunged into the fight in behalf of the other candidates.

Mr. Baughman and Senator Gorman were friends for over thirty years and in nearly every fight Mr. Gorman made General Baughman was his ally and adherent. The death of Mr. Baughman left the Democratic party without a leader in Frederick County, and removed from the State leaders a man whose influence was always cast for the honorable and open course and the straightforward method. He believed in taking the public into his confidence, and time and again he raised his voice in protest in the party councils against underhand policies. Upon more than one occasion he had taken issue with Mr. Gorman along this line and was the advocate of a more liberal and broader party policy. He was the advocate of harmony in the party and it was through him that many party quarrels were patched up and strife averted.

General Baughman it was who was usually called upon to act as intermediary in bringing together conflicting elements and factions at State conventions and State Central Committee meetings, and in these missions he was remarkably successful because of the personal liking which the men of both sides always entertained towards him.

From 1872, when he became prominent in politics, no campaign passed in which General Baughman did not take an active and vigorous part. His voice was heard in every county of the State, including the Eastern Shore, where he was especially popular, and in every Legislative district of Baltimore City. He was first a candidate for office in 1886, when he ran for Congress in the Sixth Congressional District against Louis E. McComas. He made a whirlwind campaign, and was only defeated by the small majority of 413 votes in a district normally Republican by from 3000 to 4000. The following year he was nominated on the Democratic ticket as the candidate for State Comptroller and was elected by a majority of 8892. Two years later he was re-elected, and this was the last time he ever ran for office, although upon a number of occasions he had been asked to again make the fight for Congress, it being claimed that through him alone could the Sixth District be wrested from the Republicans. About eighteen months before his death, General Baughman announced his determination to become a candidate for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination in the fall of 1907. He said to his friends that he proposed to remain in the fight until the last and that the man who got the nomination would have him to beat and he would know he had had a fight if he succeeded. No one, he said, could get him out of the field this time, as he was tired of stepping aside for other people. His candidacy was well received, and his friends were hopeful that he would succeed. It was not long after this, however, that his health broke down and he was forced to give up all hope of making a campaign.

Aside from the Comptrollership, General Baughman held two semi-public positions of importance in Maryland. One of these was president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, which he held for two terms. While in this office he labored hard for the upbuilding of the canal in order that it might protect itself against the railroads. His official record was a good one and he made a strong fight for the rights of the canal.

On September 18, 1901, Governor John W. Smith appointed Mr. Baughman a director in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, with Senator Gorman, to represent the State's holdings in the Washington Branch of that corporation. The work was not particularly arduous, though General Baughman frequently attended the board meetings, which were always held in New York City. Mr. Baughman's most noteworthy act in his railroad connections was the report signed jointly by himself and Senator Gorman in which the policy of the company towards the Washington Branch was severely criticised. The report of the State Directors dealt with the fact that this policy was unfair to the State and other holders of the Washington Branch stock. The report caused much excitement at the time that it was published, and was the cause, it is said, that primarily led to the sale of the State's holdings in the Washington Branch. With the sale of this stock, the State had no further interest in the Baltimore and Ohio and no authority vested in it to name directors. Senator Gorman and General Baughman, therefore, naturally dropped out of the board.

The last service which General Baughman performed for his State was as chairman of the Maryland Commission to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis. He was named as the head of the Commission by Governor Smith, and it was mainly through his influence that the Legislature made the necessary appropriation which made it possible for Maryland to be represented. General Baughman took the greatest interest in this work, and those who visited the exposition will bear witness to the success of his efforts. The Maryland Building and the Maryland exhibits at that fair were of a kind of which no Marylander could feel ashamed.

At nearly every Democratic National Convention, for a quarter of a century, General Baughman was a prominent figure, and it was at these gatherings that he made the acquaintance of hundreds of distinguished Democrats from all sections of the country. For a number of years previous to his death, he was the Maryland member of the Democratic National Committee and was close to the National party leaders. At all the party gatherings of a National character his was a conspicuous figure, and his geniality and lovable nature gained for him many friends. Nowhere was his wide acquaintance and personal popularity better illustrated than in New York at the time of the reception given to William Jennings Bryan upon his return from abroad in the summer of 1905. The General's room at the Hoffman House was besieged with friends, and at the headquarters of the committee there was constant demands for "Baughman," or "Vic," as he was familiarly called by his friends. He was personally known to every member of the National committee and there were few movements of a political nature in the Democratic party with which he was not thoroughly cognizant.

General Baughman was proud of his State, but particularly proud of his own county of Frederick. So strong was his love for that part of Maryland that he scarcely ever made a speech in which he did not refer to its beauty and fertility, the worth of its people, and the sterling quality of its Democrats. The beautiful country home, in which Mr. Baughman resided, is located near Frederick, and is called "Poplar Terrace." The residence is a handsome one, built in the Colonial style of architecture. Here General Baughman lived the ideal life of a country gentleman. His hospitality was renowned throughout the State, and many distinguished guests have been entertained at "Poplar Terrace." In the role of a host he was at his best, and his graciousness and courtesy to his guests were without limit. It was his custom in every State campaign to entertain at his home the Democratic candidates when they came into Frederick County upon their tours, and there were few who could leave after enjoying his hospitality without a deep seated feeling of friendship and admiration for him.

Among the many things that claimed the attention of co-operation of General Baughman was the improvement of the country roads, and the introduction of an electric light plant and other machinery into the county almshouse. In various ways he advocated public works, partly in order that multitudes of unemployed men might have an opportunity to earn their daily bread, and at the same time the community at large was benefited and industrial activity promoted. He was president of the Frederick, Northern and Gettysburg Electric Railway Company, a charter for which was granted by the Maryland Legislature in 1898.

General Baughman was a lover of thoroughbred horses, and upon his homestead had a fine half-mile track. As a sportsman he was well known, being quite a noted four-in-hand driver and fearless cross-country rider. At one time his pack of black and tan fox hounds was known all over the State. His coach was known as the "Rambler," and some merry drives were taken. He was a member of a number of clubs, including the Metropolitan, of Washington; the Maryland and Merchants, of Baltimore, and the Elk Ridge Fox Hunting Club. Kindly in manner and sympathetic in disposition, Mr. Baughman gave with a generous hand to every worthy purpose that appealed to his ever ready sympathies, and his charities, unostentatiously bestowed, were without number.

General Baughman was married in 1881 to Helen Abell, daughter of the distinguished Arunah S. Abell, founder of the Baltimore "Sun." They were the parents of two children: E. Austin, and Helen Abell, who became the wife of Dr. C. H. Conley. After an illness of about two months, General Baughman died at his beautiful home, "Poplar Terrace," on November 30, 1906, mourned by all with whom he had come into contact.

The Baltimore "News" in an editorial said: "By the death of Louis Victor Baughman Maryland loses one of the warmest-hearted, truest and bravest men within her borders. No man had more friends, and to all of these the death of Mr. Baughman will bring keen personal grief. But his loss means a great deal more than a personal bereavement to an unusually large circle. Maryland is distinctly poorer for the quenching of such a fine spirit as that which burned in the breast of "Vic" Baughman. He was a man who idealized and elevated the good things and beautiful things of life. With him friendship, loyalty, and courtesy and hospitality were no mere formalities. These very characteristics of a generous and wholesouled man made him loyal to political attachments that kept him from playing the part in the public affairs of the State for which he was fitted by his public spirit and his intellectual abilities. His ambitions would doubtless have been gratified if he had been spared with the health and strength for political activity in the new era of freedom that has dawned in Maryland."

The Baltimore "Sun" also editorially said of him: "Few men in Maryland were better known socially, both within and outside of the State, and few men of this generation of Marylanders have been so cordially liked by so great a circle of political friends. His appearance and personality were extremely pleasing; his manners were engaging, and two of the most prominent features of his character were his generosity and his hospitality. He was devoted to the pursuits of country life, and it was his pride to produce upon his own farm the delicious food which was served upon his hospitable table, around which have been gathered some of the leading men and women of this country. He traveled a great deal with the members of his family * * * * * * * * * * * From a party standpoint, his political enthusiasm and unswerving party loyalty justified him in expecting a greater recognition from the party managers than he ever received. His was a generous, confiding and unselfish disposition, and he submitted more than once to deceptions and unfulfilled promises from party managers which would have caused more self-seeking men to revolt. Not only in State politics did General Baughman figure prominently. His death causes a distinct loss to Frederick, where he was interested and influential in many public enterprises for the improvement and advancement of the city and county."

In 1882, under Colonel Baughman's leadership, the Republican majority was reduced to 604.

In 1883, the Republican majority was reduced to 203, electing a Democratic State Senator by 259 votes, thereby enabling the State Senate to remain Democratic.

In 1884, the county gave a small Republican majority at the Presidential election.

In 1885, the Democrats carried the State ticket by 210 votes, electing County Clerk, Register of Wills, Sheriff, County Commissioners, Surveyor, and four out of the five members of the House of Delegates.

In 1886, Colonel Baughman carried the county for Congress, the first time since 1870.

In 1887, ten out of the eighteen County officers were elected, the remaining successful Republicans having very small majorities.

In 1888, the County went Republican at the Presidential election.

In 1889, a Democratic Sheriff, three County Commissioners and two members of the House of Delegates, thereby enabling the House of Delegates to remain Democratic.

In 1890, the first election under the Australian ballot, the County went Democratic for Congress, and the whole County ticket was elected, with the exception of one officer, with an average majority of 300.

In 1892, the County went Democratic for the first time at a Presidential election since the enfranchisement of the negro.

WINFIELD SCOTT SCHLEY was born at Richfields, near the town of Frederick, Maryland, on October 9, 1839. His grandfather, John Thomas Schley, had emigrated to America from Germany in 1739. The Admiral's father, also John Thomas Schley, was successively lawyer, merchant, and farmer. He was possessed of sufficient means to give his son a thorough education, and the boy was never confronted with the necessity of performing manual labor for a livelihood. The most marked characteristics of the father, high morality, respect for the law, and an enthusiastic love of country, were inherited by the son. Nature had endowed the youth with a good constitution, and his devotion to all out-of-door sports resulted in his taking such exercise as gave him a finely developed physique.

After passing through the primary schools at Harmony Grove and Frederick, to which latter town Admiral Schley's father removed in 1848, the youth attended Frederick Academy and St. John's Academy, both in Frederick. He then entered the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, September 20, 1856, from which he was graduated four years later. His first active duty in his profession as naval officer was on board the frigate Niagara, which cruised to India, China, and Japan in 1860-'61, primarily for the purpose of carrying back to their native land the ambassadors who had been sent to the United States from Japan in 1859.

With this brief experience in practical navy work, Admiral Schley entered upon very active duty in the conflict which began shortly thereafter between the United States and the section which was comprised in the so-called Confederacy. He was advanced to the grade of master on August 31, 1861, and served on the frigate Potomac. Less than a year later, July 16, 1862, Schley was commissioned Lieutenant, and in that position he saw duty on the Winona, Monongahela, and Richmond in the Mississippi river campaign and the engagements in the vicinity of Port Hudson, from March 16 to July 9, 1863. During this time, in common with many minor officials who have since attained prominence in the navy, he was under Admiral Farragut, from whom he gained much by force of example. During the years 1864-'66, Schley served as executive officer on the gunboat Wateree in the Pacific. In 1865 he put down an insurrection of Chinese coolies in the Chincha Islands. Upon the occasion of a revolution at La Union, San Salvador, he landed one hundred men and protected the interests of citizens of the United States.

After having seen active sea service for more than six years, Schley was given a land assignment. On July 25, 1866, he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant commander; and he served as instructor at the United States Naval Academy from 1866 to 1869. The period from 1869 to 1872 found him on duty as executive officer of the U. S. S. Benicia, on the Asiatic station; and in this period during the trouble between the United States and the Hermit Kingdom, he took an active part as adjutant of the land forces in the capture of the forts on Kang Hoa Island on the Salee River in Korea.

Schley was then assigned to the Naval Academy, and for the four years from 1872 to 1876, he was head of the department of modern languages in the Naval Academy. On June 10, 1874, he was promoted to the rank of commander. The conclusion of his stay at the Naval Academy in 1876 was followed by another three-years period of sea service; and while on the Essex, on the Brazil station, Commander Schley rescued from the Island of Tristan d'Acunah an American crew which had been shipwrecked there. From 1880 to 1883, he served as lighthouse inspector with headquarters in Boston.

One of the most notable achievements of the Admiral's career occurred in 1884, when he commanded an expedition which sailed to the Arctic Ocean and rescued from certain death Lieut. Adolphus W. Greeley and six companions, at Cape Sabine, Grinnell Land. The undertaking was from the outset a most hazardous and difficult one. Two previous expeditions, well equipped in every way, had been turned back by the ice pack, impelled to abandon the quest. Schley's entire conduct of the enterprise was thoroughly characteristic of the man. His preparations were in themselves such as to insure success, for they were marked by great thoroughness and minute attention to detail. To perfection of system, essential in its way, Schley added tenacity of purpose. When the ice pack began to close in and threatened to become as formidable an obstacle as it had proved in the case of the two previous expeditions, Schley held on, announcing that this obstruction only afforded additional reason why the search should be prosecuted with vigor. And this proved to be the case for when Lieutenant Greeley and his companions were found, their condition as the result of starvation, was such that they could not possibly have lived more than two days longer.

W. S. Schley

For his work of rescue Commander Schley received from the Maryland Legislature a vote of thanks and a gold chronometer watch, and from the Massachusetts Humane Society a gold medal. On his return from the Arctic regions he prepared a report of the expedition, which was published in 1887 by the Federal government as a quarto volume of 75 pages. A more popular account, entitled "The Rescue of Greeley," was written by Schley in collaboration with Prof. J. R. Soley, and published by Charles Scribner's Sons.

Schley was made chief of the Bureau of Equipment and Recruiting of the Navy Department at Washington in 1885; and on March 31, 1888, he was promoted to the rank of captain. When the cruiser Baltimore was placed in commission, Captain Schley took command of her, and held that position from 1889 to 1892. From May 8 to 14, 1890, the Baltimore lay in the harbor of the city from which it took its name and a most cordial reception was given Schley and all his men. During the period of Schley's command of the Baltimore occurred another incident which tried his mettle. The Baltimore was cruising in South American waters at the time of a revolution in Chile when much ill feeling was shown by the natives toward the United States. While the vessel was in the harbor of Valparaiso, a number of the crew who had gone ashore were attacked by a mob which killed several of their number and seriously wounded many others. After this affront, feeling ran high on both sides; and, had it not been for Captain Schley's firmness and cool-headed judgment, the consequences might have been seriously detrimental to the relations between the two nations. The American officer, however, handled the difficulty so skilfully that within a few months the Chilean Government apologized for the insult and paid an indemnity of $75,000.

In August, 1891, Captain Schley carried the body of John Ericson, the inventor, to Sweden, and was presented with a gold medal by the king of that country. On his return to the United States, he served as lighthouse inspector, 1893-'95; as commander of the cruiser New York, 1895-'97; and as chairman of the lighthouse board at Washington, 1897-'98. On February 6, 1898, Schley was promoted to the rank of commodore; and with the call to arms for the conflict with Spain, he was selected to command the flying squadron, formed to protect the Atlantic seaboard, with the armored cruiser Brooklyn detailed as his flagship.

With the vessels of this fleet he was present during the blockade of Santiago and at the battle which destroyed Cevera's squadron off that port on July 3, 1898.

In his report of this engagement Schley said: "The Brooklyn was exposed for some twenty minutes to the fire of the four Spanish ships until the other vessels of the squadron could get up into good range. I cannot speak with too much praise of the conduct of the officers and crews of the vessels engaged; their spirit and enthusiasm were such as I have rarely seen in action."

On August 10, 1898, he was promoted by the President to the rank of rear admiral, "for eminent and conspicuous conduct in battle," and on August 19, of the same year, he was selected as one of the commissioners to direct the evacuation of Porto Rico. Honors were showered upon Admiral Schley as a result of the part he played in the battle of Santiago. Receptions and banquets were held in his honor in most of the principal cities, and he received numerous handsome tokens of esteem, including a jeweled medal from the Maryland Legislature, a gold and jeweled sword from the people of Pennsylvania, and a silver loving cup from the people of Atlanta, Georgia.

Admiral Schley was, on April 14, 1899, assigned to duty on the naval examining board, and on April 27, of the same year he was transferred to the naval retiring board as senior member. He rounded out his forty-seven years of service under the flag in all parts of the world, in war and in peace, by a final interval of duty as commander of the South Atlantic Squadron, to which he was assigned on November 18, 1899, continuing in this capacity until his retirement, on October 9, 1901, upon attaining the age-limit fixed by law.

On September 10, 1863, Winfield Scott Schley was married to Anne Rebecca Franklin, daughter of George E. and Maria C. Franklin, of Annapolis, Md. To them three children have been born, two sons and a daughter.

On June 22, 1899, Admiral Schley received the honorary degree of LL. D. from Georgetown University. He is a member of the Royal Arcanum of the United States; the Masonic fraternity; the United Service Club of New York; the New York Yacht Club; the Seawanaka Corinthian Yacht Club, of New York; and the Metropolitan Club of Washington. He is not identified with any political party, and has not held public office outside of his profession. In 1904, he wrote his memoirs, which were published under the title of "Forty-five years Under the Flag."

WILLIAM C. BIRELY, one of the most prominent and best known citizens of Frederick City, was born in Frederick, August 9, 1850. He is a son of J. William and Mary Rosanna (Cramer) Birely.

William Birely, grandfather of William C. Birely, was a native of Germany, and emigrated to America prior to the Revolution. He was one of the earliest paper manufacturers in Frederick County, and resided near Myersville. The name of his wife was Charlotte. They were married in Germany, and were the parents of five daughters and one son: Margaret, Rebecca, Charlotte, Mary Elizabeth and John William.

John William Birely, the father of William C. Birely, was a native of Frederick County, Md., where he was born in 1816, and died in Frederick City, April 18, 1896. He was for many years engaged in mercantile pursuits, and later acted as secretary of the Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Frederick County. He afterwards became cashier of the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank of Frederick. During his incumbency of this office, the bank paid its largest dividends. He discharged his duties with an ability that stamped him as a successful financier. In his time, he was one of the most prominent men of the county, and all his business dealings were characterized by the highest principles. He commanded the respect of business and financial circles generally. In early life, he was an old-line Whig, but upon the organization of the Republican party, he joined its ranks and remained one of its most active and enthusiastic workers until his death. He was an active and consistent member of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick, in which he served as a deacon, elder and treasurer. Mr. Birely was married to Mary Rosanna Cramer. They were the parents of four children, two of whom survive: Philip, Henry Clay and William C.

William C. Birely was reared in Frederick City. He received his education in the public schools and the Frederick City Academy. At the age of eighteen, he entered the employ of the general merchandizing firm of P. H. C. Birely and G. W. B. Shriner, trading as Birely & Shriner. At the end of one year, he bought out the interest of Mr. Shriner, the firm then becoming known as Birely Brothers. At this time they conducted a retail business, but after a period of several years, they converted it into a wholesale grocery house. This partnership continued, meeting with much success, until 1897, when they sold their grocery business. Mr. W. C. Birely was largely responsible for the prosperity and prestige attained by his firm, and he became widely known in mercantile circles as one of the ablest and most representative men identified with that branch of industry. Honorable in all his dealings and a merchant of the old school whose business methods were characterized by the highest principles, he commanded the respect and confidence of business and financial circles generally.

In 1897, Mr. Birely became deputy clerk of the Circuit Court, where he remained for six years. In 1903, he became manager of the G. F. S. Zimmerman & Company, manufacturers of shutter fasteners. He still retains this position, and is one of Frederick's most active and prominent business men. He is one of the stockholders of the Union Knitting Mills; a trustee of the Frederick Academy, and at this time a trustee of the Frederick Female Seminary, and treasurer of the board. He is president of the Key Monument Association, which erected the monument to the memory of Francis Scott Key.

Politically, Mr. Birely has always been a stanch supporter of Republican principles. He was appointed postmaster February 14, 1911, confirmed February 16, by Senate, commissioned March 12, and entered upon his duties March 21. Fraternally, he is a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., and at present Worshipful Master of said lodge; of Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar, and is Past High Priest of Enoch Royal Arch Chapter, No. 23. Mr. Birely is an active member of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick, in which he served as an elder. He was for many years president of the Young Men's Christian Association of Frederick, and is one of the present directors who were active in the erection of the new and handsome $60,000 Association building.

Mr. Birely was married October 21, 1873, to Laura V. Sinn, daughter of Edward and Evaline (Elkins) Sinn. The Sinn family is an old Frederick County family, and Edward Sinn was one of the early stage drivers on the old national pike. William C. and Laura V. Birely are the parents of three children: Charles William; Mary Rosanna and Jane Zacharias, of Frederick. Charles William Birely was graduated from the Yale Law School, and is a member of the New Haven, Conn., Bar, where he is at present clerk of the Court of Common Pleas. He is married to Charlotte Bushnell; they have two daughters, Barbara and Charlotte.

WILLIAM G. ZIMMERMAN, cashier of the Citizens National Bank, and one of the prominent citizens of Frederick City, Md., was born on a farm in Woodsboro District, Frederick County, Md., December 12, 1859. He is a son of Henry O. and Martha E. (Albaugh) Zimmerman.

Henry O. Zimmerman is a son of Solomon Zimmerman, who was a well-known farmer of Frederick County, Md., and who was descended of an old German family. Mr. Zimmerman was born in 1836, and lives retired in Walkersville, Frederick County, Md. During his active life he followed the occupation of a farmer. He is a leading and well-known citizen of Walkersville District, and held in high esteem by all who know him. In politics he has always been an adherent of the Republican party. He is affiliated in a religious way with the Lutheran Church, of which he is an active and consistent member. He was married to Martha E. Albaugh. She was born in 1840. They were the parents of nine children: William G., of whom presently; Susan Alice, the wife of Edward T. Dorcus, of Port Deposit, Md.; Florence, the wife of Harry E. Saylor, of York, Pa.; Annie E.. the wife of C. Frank Burrier, of Walkersville, Md.; Bettie V., the wife of D. Edward Stauffer, of Frederick County, Md.; Charles H., a farmer of near Walkersville, Md.; Hallie V., the wife of F. C. Rossman, of York, Pa.; Robert E., in the employ of the United States Express Company, at Frederick City; and Sarah Ada, the wife of Lesley F. Kefauver, of Walkersville, Md.

William G. Zimmerman, son of Henry O. and Martha E. (Albaugh) Zimmerman, was reared on the farm on which he was born in Woodsboro District, Frederick County, Md. He received his education in the public schools of his native district, and followed farming until he became twenty-one years of age. At that time, he became clerk in the mercantile establishment of S. W. Stauffer, at Walkersville, Md. In February, 1881, he accepted a clerkship in the First National Bank of Frederick, which position he retained until January 1, 1886, when he was elected teller of the Citizen's National Bank of Frederick. He continued to discharge the duties of this position until the death of Daniel T. Lakin created a vacancy for the position of cashier, and on August 8, 1890, Mr. Zimmerman was elected to the office. He has since continued to direct the affairs of this financial institution with foresight and sagacity that stamp him as a man of rare executive and financial ability. He commands the respect and confidence of business and financial circles generally. He entered the Citizens' National Bank upon its organization, and during the eighteen years that he has served as its cashier, this institution has made the largest growth of any bank in the state of Maryland outside of Baltimore. It is now recognized as one of the most solid and best managed banks in the state. Its capital stock is $100,000, and the surplus amounts to $300,000. The total aggregate of its deposits reaches the sum of over $2,500,000.

In politics, Mr. Zimmerman is an adherent of the Republican party, but he has never aspired to public office, preferring to devote all his time and attention to the duties of his position with the Citizens' National Bank. Fraternally, Mr. Zimmerman is a member of Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, and of the Royal Arcanum. He is allied in a religious way with the Lutheran Church of Frederick, in which he is an active member.

Mr. Zimmerman was married March 13, 1889, to Georgie F. Whaley, of Frederick. By this marriage there were three children: Isabella E., Helen F., and Mehrl Henry, who died aged four years.

GEORGE WILLIAM SMITH, one of the well-known and leading citizens of Frederick County, Md., whose business interests are both diversified and important, is a native of that county, and was born about three miles west of Frederick City, along the old national pike, April 3, 1832. He was the son of George and Lydia (Baugher) Smith.

The Smith family is an old and respected German family. The American projenitor was John Schmid, which is the original spelling. He was a native of Germany. In 1730, he emigrated from his native land to America, and settled upon a large plantation in Maryland, becoming the owner of land that was situated in the southwestern part of the Monocacy Valley. He obtained grants for this land from Charles Calvert, Lord Baltimore. In 1761, his naturalization papers were granted him, and are signed by Reverdy Chislin, clerk of the court. Mr. Smith served as a member of the Colonial army during the War of the Revolution. His death occurred in 1785.

George Smith, son of John Schmid, or Smith, the emigrant, was the great-grandfather of George William Smith. He was born June 12, 1776, and died October 26, 1832. He succeeded to the management of his father's large estate, and was for many years actively and prominently connected with the agricultural interests of Frederick County. He was a prominent and consistent member of the Lutheran Church. He was one of the well known and progressive citizens of the community in his day.

George Smith, son of George Smith, was the father of George William Smith. He was born in Frederick County, January 31, 1807, and died September 14, 1871. After receiving a thorough education in the public schools, he engaged in agricultural pursuits, following that calling during the earlier years of his life, and meeting with much success. Later he dealt in farm property and other real estate. His great executive ability, high integrity and many lovable traits of character, caused him to attain a most prominent position as a citizen of his county and State. For many years he served as Judge of the Orphans' Court, his administration of its affairs giving unbounded satisfaction to all concerned. He was also chosen by his fellow-citizens as referee in many disputes affecting their interests, and in many instances was instrumental in bringing about an amicable adjustment of their difficulties without recourse to the law. He was also called upon to settle many estates, and secured the disposition of more interests of this nature than any man before or since in Frederick County. His charities were many and varied, though always given in an unostentatious manner. He was one of the directors of the Frederick County Bank, and served that institution in this relation until his death. In Masonic circles he was prominent, being a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., and a past master of the same. Politically he was a Democrat. He was an active and progressive citizen, prominently identified with the business, social and religious life of his county. Mr. Smith was twice married. He was married first to Lydia Baugher, by whom he had two children: George William, whose name heads this sketch; and Evaline C., who was married to John Luther Nicodemus, of Boonsboro, Md. He was married secondly to Mary Nixdorff, daughter of Henry Nixdorff, by whom he had the following children: Charles C., who is deceased; Emma; Franklin Buchanan, a prominent and well known physician of Frederick City (see sketch); and Clara, who is deceased.

George William Smith, son of George and Lydia (Baugher) Smith, removed to Frederick with his parents in 1839. Here he grew to manhood, spending considerable time, however, of his boyhood days on his father's farm.

While a lad he attended private schools, and the Frederick City College. He later attended for two years Pennsylvania College, located at Gettysburg, Pa. Upon the completion of his education, he returned home, and resumed the agricultural pursuits with which he had been familiar since his childhood. From that time, for a period of about fifty years, he gave his chief attention to the management of the various farms that came into his possession. During this time, he had purchased and sold a great number of farms throughout Frederick County, and he became the most active and most successful farmer of Western Maryland. Upon the death of Lewis McMurray, the largest corn canning establishment in the world, with its lands, containing 1950 acres, was purchased by Mr. Smith in partnership with Baker Brothers. Mr. Smith became the active manager of these large farms, and these, with his own farms, which contained 800 acres, comprised a tract of about 2800 acres of fine limestone land which was cultivated under his supervision for some years. The management of this large area made him the largest farmer in the State. The place on which Mr. Smith made his home for the longest period is a beautiful country estate, situated about two and a-half miles from Frederick. As an agriculturist he has been a distinct success, and by his well-directed efforts accumulated a fortune.

Mr. Smith, however, has not devoted all of his time to the management of his farms, but on the contrary, his business interests are both many and important. In 1855, he introduced into Frederick County lime stacks to burn lime with coal for agricultural purposes. He also was the first man to operate a steam saw mill in the county. Of his many investments, Mr. Smith has the most reason to feel proud of the success which the Frederick and Middletown Street Railway has attained, of which he was the organizer, and under whose supervision and management it was built. This road has the distinction of being the first electric railway in the world to haul heavy freight. It is now recognized as one of the greatest boons to the farmers of the fertile Middletown Valley and outlying districts on the west side of Braddock Heights, and the equally lovely Monocacy Valley on the east side of the range of interlying Blue Ridge Mountains. The idea of constructing the road seemed impracticable to most of the people of this region, as the great expense of building and equipping the line over the mountains was an immense undertaking, and the results, from a financial point of view, very uncertain. But Mr. Smith was confident of the feasibility of the plan from the start, and in 1896, while the state legislature was in session, they obtained a charter for the railroad, of which he was one of the incorporators, and served as its president and manager until it changed hands in 1906. The line crosses the Heights at an elevation of over one thousand feet. From the summit a most charming view is to be obtained of hills, valleys, mountains, towns, rivers and plains. From some points can be had glimpses into four states and South Mountain, where one of the great battles of the Civil War was fought, and Antietam, also a celebrated battlefield. Employment is furnished to many men and in every way the road has resulted to the benefit of that section. Mr. Smith also was the president and manager of the Frederick City Suburban Road, a short line extending from the F. & M. to the Fair Grounds later merged into the F. & M., which was commenced and within twelve days in running order.

Mr. Smith is a prime mover and largely interested in many other of Frederick County's leading and flourishing enterprises. In 1886, he was one of the original organizers of the Citizens' National Bank of Frederick, of which he is at present a stockholder and director. He was also one of the leaders in the organization of the Hygeia Ice Company, of which firm he is president. For many years Mr. Smith was the head of the Maryland Hedge and Wire Fence Company. For a quarter of a century, he has been connected with the Frederick and Ballinger Creek Turnpike Company, of which he was one of the organizers. For many years he was a stockholder and a member of the board of directors of the Frederick County Agricultural Society. He is the president of the Braddock Heights Improvement Company and is one of the original promoters of that beautiful summer resort, where he erected many of the present buildings. He is also vice-president of the Braddock Heights Realty Company. All of these enterprises are well known and leaders in their respective lines of endeavor. By his able management of many of them, Mr. Smith has shown himself to be a man of great executive capacity and rare business attainments. He started life in moderate circumstances, and is now one of the best known and most highly esteemed citizens of the county. He attributes his success to hard work, sober and temperate habits and good management.

In politics, Mr. Smith is a stanch adherent and active supporter of the Democratic principles as laid down by Jefferson and Jackson. For fifty-five years he has been a Democrat, but has never aspired to public office, preferring to devote his time and attention to his numerous business interests. However, he has served as a delegate to numerous State and County Democratic conventions.

Mr. Smith was married in November, 1853, to Susan Virginia Howard, daughter of Edward Howard, a well known and prosperous farmer of Frederick County, who was a descendant of one of the county's earliest settled and most respected families. Mrs. Smith died in February, 1892, aged sixty-one years. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. George William and Susan Virginia Smith were the parents of the following children: Ida, who became the wife of Dr. Hunichen, a well known and able dentist of Frederick City; George Edward, a leading and well-to-do farmer of the county; Estelle, unmarried, of Frederick; Mary K., the widow of Lewis Markell; William Lee, manager of the Hygeia Ice Company, of Frederick; Virginia, the wife of Capt. W. P. Johnson, of Norfolk, Va.; Charles Arthur, died in 1898; Howard L., who is engaged in agricultural pursuits in Frederick County; and Eliza Ann, who is unmarried.

NEWTON M. ZENTZ, one of the best known and most prominent citizens of Frederick county, and proprietor of the old Fredericktown Mills on Carroll's Creek, was born in Carroll County, Md., near Mason and Dixon's Line, July 26, 1852. He is a son of Daniel and Louisa (Yeagaline) Zentz.

Abraham Zentz, the grandfather of Newton M. Zentz, was born of German parents. By occupation he was a weaver. He was the father of five children: Daniel, of whom presently; Anna, married to Reuben Stonesifer; David; Abraham and Jesse.

Daniel Zentz, the father of Newton M. Zentz, was a native of Taneytown, Carroll county, Md., where he was born in 1824. He spent his whole life as a farmer. In politics he was a Democrat and was a consistent member of the Lutheran Church. He was married to Louisa Yeagaline. They were the parents of eight children, seven of whom survive: Jane; Newton M., of whom presently; Franklin, of Baltimore, Md.; William, resides in Nebraska; Levi, of Lewistown, Frederick county, Md.; Susan, wife of Michael Wachter; and Alice, the wife of Joseph Yenglin.

Newton M. Zentz was reared on a farm in Carroll county, Md., and while a lad attended the public schools. At the age of twenty-one, he left the farm and went to Lewistown, Frederick county, to learn the trade of a miller under John C. Derr. Here he remained for five years, at the end of which time he returned to Taneytown, where he conducted a mill in his own name for three years. He then followed farming for four years, and conducted a mill at Lewistown for two years, at the end of which time he returned to Taneytown, where he again followed milling for seven years. Mr. Zentz on November 28, 1895, purchased the old Frederick City Mill, known in the early days as the Fredericktown Mill. This mill is located on Carroll Creek, and was built between 1787 and 1790. It is now the oldest mill in operation by water power in Western Maryland. After purchasing the old mill, Mr. Zentz remodeled its interior and equipped it with modern rollers and machinery. Through dint of industry and thoroughly honest business methods, he has managed to accumulate a competency. He is the owner of two fine farms, one of 145 acres in Lewistown district, and the other of 198 acres in Tuscarora district, both under a good state of cultivation. He is a stockholder in the Central National Bank of Frederick, and is interested in various other enterprises.

Politically, Mr. Zentz is an independent Democrat. He is a member of the order of Heptasophs. In religion he is a member of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick.

Mr. Zentz was married in 1879, to Jennie M. C. Michael, of Lewistown, Frederick county, Md. They are the parents of four children: Bessie D., the wife of Reno S. Harp, a well-known attorney of Frederick City, (see sketch); Pauline; Ezra Monroe, and Myrtle May, wife of Ralph Radcliff, of Frederick, now resident in Baltimore.

DANIEL W. ZENTZ, who is engaged in the milling and lumber business and is one of the well-known citizens of Mechanicstown district, is a native of Union Bridge, Carroll county, Md., where he was born September 12, 1862. He is a son of Abraham and Sarah (Biggs) Zentz.

Abraham S. Zentz was born in Carroll County, Md., April 15, 1827, and died at his home farm, April 14, 1898. He was one of a family of five children, namely: David, Daniel, Abraham, Jessie and Annie. He was reared on a farm, and learned the trade of a shoemaker. After reaching manhood, he went west for a short time. Returning east, he began business for himself, on Double Pipe Creek, in Carroll county, Md., where he conducted a mercantile establishment. At the same time he manufactured shoes. He then removed to Keysville, Carroll county, and thence to Union Bridge, where he engaged in the milling business and brick making. Some time later, he became a contractor and builder. Having previously sold the Union Bridge Mill, he purchased the old Sheets Mill on Piney Creek, in Carroll county. He then disposed of the latter, and came to Frederick county, where in 1868, he bought the old Stewart farm. Here he built a mill that stood for many years. It was afterward destroyed by fire, and he erected a new one which is now conducted by Daniel W. Zentz. At the time of his death, he was the owner of 350 acres of fine farm land and 150 acres of good timber land. Politically, Mr. Zentz was a Democrat in early life, but afterwards allied himself with the Republican party. In 1897, he was elected a county commissioner of Frederick county, in which capacity he served with much credit until his death. In religion, he was a member of St. John's Lutheran church, of Thurmont, in which he was very active, serving for many years as an elder. He was married to Sarah Biggs. They were the parents of the following children: Sophronia, the wife of James Keilholtz, of Mechanicstown district; Robert F., a farmer of Carroll county, Md.; Annie R., deceased, the wife of Frank Keiser; Daniel W.; David G., a farmer (see his sketch); Missouri, deceased; Benjamin, deceased; Adam R., a farmer in Mechanicstown district (see his sketch); Herbert L. H., a farmer, living near Thurmont, Md.; Doctor W., a practical engineer at Waynesboro, Pa.; Laura V., deceased, was the wife of Washington Jacobs; and George C., a farmer on the old home, (see his sketch).

Daniel W. Zentz, son of Abraham S., and Sarah (Biggs) Zentz, was only six years old when his parents located in Frederick county. He was reared on the home place and received his education in the public schools. He learned the trade of a miller under his father. In 1878, he assumed the management of his father's mill, which he conducted until the latters' death in 1898. In 1900, he purchased the property from his father's estate. He has a first-class roller mill, corn burrs, saw mill, cider mill, shingle mill, and a syrup mill. He is also engaged in the manufacture of brick. He is one of Mechanicstown district's best known business men, and he has met with much success in his enterprises.

In politics, Mr. Zentz is a Republican, but has never had a desire for any public office. In religion, he is a member of St. John's Lutheran Church, of Thurmont, in which he has served in an official capacity, having acted as an elder.

Mr. Zentz was married November 19, 1889, to Effie G. Lohr, daughter of Abraham and Georgianna (Stull) Lohr. They have three children: Estee Blaine, Dorothy and Carrie Beatrice.

DAVID G. ZENTZ, a prominent farmer and propagator of gold fish, residing on the Emmitsburg pike, three miles west of Thurmont, Md., was born at Union Bridge, Carroll county, Md., April 4, 1864. He is a son of Abraham S. and Sarah (Biggs) Zentz.

David G. Zentz son of Abraham S. and Sarah (Biggs) Zentz, was only four years old when his parents located in Frederick county. He was reared on his father's farm, and attended the public schools. He chose as his occupation in life, farming, which he has since followed. He is the owner of a fine farm of 120 acres, upon which are first class buildings. In agricultural pursuits, he has met with much success, and is one of the well-known farmers of Mechanicstown district. He has recently engaged in the propagation of gold fish.

In politics, Mr. Zentz is an active supporter of the Republican party. In 1903 he was elected a county commissioner of Frederick county, and served four years, discharging the duties devolving upon him with marked ability. Fraternally, he is a member of Good Samaritan Lodge, No. 46, I. O. O. F., Thurmont, and Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, Frederick City. In religion, he is a member of St. John's Lutheran church of Thurmont, and has served as a member of the church council.

Mr. Zentz was married July 26, 1887, to Annie B. Martin, daughter of William H. and Elizabeth (Stansbury) Martin. They are the parents of twelve children: William R., Mabel L., Martin S., Lillian, Elma L., Fannie O., Harry A., Howard G., died aged five years; Leo Paul, Evelyn J., Lula May and David H.

Mrs. Zentz's parents, William H. and Elizabeth (Stansbury) Martin, had seven children, namely: Annie B., married Mr. Zentz; Nettie B., the wife of William Eckard; Emma Rebecca, the wife of William Ebbert; Charles T., a farmer of Union Bridge, Carroll county, Md.; Joshua A.; Ellen, unmarried, and Gertrude C. Elizabeth (Stansbury) Martin was descended from Nicholas Stansbury, who was one of the settlers of Mechanicstown district, Frederick county.

ADAM R. ZENTZ, who is numbered among the well-known citizens of Mechanicstown district, Frederick county, is an active agriculturist. He was born on the old Stewart farm in the above district, October 28, 1868. He is a son of Abraham S. and Sarah (Biggs) Zentz.

Adam R. Zentz was reared on the farm on which he was born, three miles north of Thurmont, in Mechanicstown district, on the Emmitsburg pike. While a boy, he attended the public schools of the neighborhood, and became acquainted with the various duties of farm life. Having arrived at man's estate, he chose farming as his occupation and has since followed that line of endeavor. He worked on his father's farm until the latter's death, and in 1900 purchased the place from the estate. In 1906 he sold it to his brother, George C. Zentz, and bought the Samuel Wilhide farm. After owning and renting it one year he disposed of this tract to Washington Ridenour, and removed to the old Grove farm, which he bought from William Buhrman. Here he has since remained. This farm contains 100 acres of good farm land, with a fine two-story brick dwelling house, and adjoins the village of Graceham. In the spring of 1908, Mr. Zentz purchased seven acres from John Joy fronting his farm. He has recently constructed seven large ponds and has engaged in the propagation of gold fish.

In politics, Mr. Zentz is allied with the Republican party, but has never aspired to public office. In religion he is a member of St. John's Lutheran church of Thurmont.

Mr. Zentz was married in April, 1895, to Laura M. Colliflower, daughter of John T. and Belle (Hesser) Colliflower, of Graceham (see J. T. Colliflower's sketch). They had three children: Lula, died in childhood; Hazel M. and Lottie D.

EX-JUDGE WILLIAM RANDOLPH YOUNG, of the Orphans' Court, one of the best-known, and most prominent citizens of Frederick county, son of Jacob Young of D. and Mary Ann (Rhoades) Young, both deceased, was born on his father's farm, two miles northwest of Myersville, Md., April 25, 1836.

Devault Young, grandfather of William R. Young, was born and grew up in Germany. In early manhood he and his friend, Jacob Rhoades, came to America and landed at Baltimore, Md. Mr. Young went from Baltimore to Ellicott City, Md., where he found employment in a flouring mill. He learned milling and, some time later, leaving his friend at Ellicott City engaged in milling for himself in Virginia, where he carried on his business successfully for some time. Returning to Maryland, Mr. Devault Young began milling near Myersville, Frederick county. In the meantime his friend, Mr. Rhoades, had bought a farm near Myersville, and the two old friends met and renewed their old ties. Devault Young married, after he came to America, and had three children: 1, Elizabeth, born May 13, 1796; deceased; 2, Barnett, born May 25, 1798; 3, Jacob. Mr. D. Young and his wife died at their home in Frederick county.

Judge Young's father, Jacob Young, was born in Virginia, July 6, 1799. He grew up on the home place, and remained with his father until he had reached manhood. Mr. J. Young began farming for himself on rented land, and afterwards purchased a farm lying northwest of Myersville, which he cultivated and improved until he retired from farming and removed to Myersville. He was a successful farmer and an intelligent, reliable citizen. Mr. J. Young was an active Republican, and held the office of county constable for many years. Jacob Young was married to Mary A. Rhoades, a daughter of his friend, Jacob Rhoades, who had come with him to America. They had two children: 1, William Randolph; 2. Sarah A. E., deceased. Mr. J. Young and his wife were members of the United Brethren Church. Mr. J. Young died January 28, 1876, his widow, who was born February 16, 1796, died February 23, 1881. Both are buried in the cemetery of the United Brethren church in Myersville.

William R. Young grew up on his father's farm near Myersville, Md. He attended the Middletown High School for some time, completing his education in 1857, in the same class with the late C. V. S. Levy. Immediately after leaving the high school, Mr. Young secured an appointment as a high grade teacher in the public schools, and for twenty years, taught acceptably in Jackson District, Frederick county. Prior to the county campaign in 1895, Mr. Young's friends insisted that he should accept the nomination for judge of the Orphans' Court. He was nominated by the convention, and was elected by a flattering majority. Judge Young was duly appointed chief judge of the Orphans' Court by Governor Frank Brown, and filled that office in a dignified, [illegible] satisfactory manner. Judge Young is a prominent citizen, a successful farmer, an energetic, far-seeing business man and has identified himself with many interests. He has always manifested a great desire for the growth and development of Myersville, and at every opportunity lends his wise counsel to the business interests of that town. He is a charter member and a director in the Valley Savings Bank, of Middletown, and a director of the Grangers' Mutual Insurance Company. Besides the work which his public offices demand, he finds time to pay strict attention to the cultivation of his two fine farms. When the savings bank was established in Myersville, he was tendered its presidency, but owing to his connection with other business enterprises, he was unable to accept the honor. He was an earnest advocate of the building of the Myersville and Catoctin electric road, and was the first farmer of the district to transport a load of wheat over the new road. In 1904, his integrity being well known, Judge Young was appointed school commissioner of Frederick county, for a term of six years by Governor Edwin Warfield.

William Randolph Young was married, December 31, 1861, to Cornelia A. Brown, of Foxville, the wedding ceremony being performed by the Rev. I. Z. Baltzell. He has two sons: Elmer A., a well-known farmer, and Charles B., who resides at home.

D. CHARLES WINEBRENER, one of the most prominent merchants of Frederick county, Md., was born in Frederick City, Md., July 31, 1871. He is a son of Colonel David C. and Rebecca B. (Markey) Winebrener.

The American ancestor of the Winebrener family of Frederick county, Md., was Johann Christian Winebrener, a native of the Palatinate, a Rhenish province of Germany. He emgirated to Pennsylvania, landing at Philadelphia in 1753, and soon afterward settled at Mercersburg, Franklin county, Pa. He later removed to Hagerstown, Washington county, Md., where he died. The Winebrener family is the possessor of a coat of arms. Johann Christian Winebrener was the father of Philip Winebrener.

Philip Winebrener, the great-grandfather of D. Charles Winebrener, and a son of Johann C. Winebrener, the emigrant, was born at Mercersburg, Franklin county, Pa., before the Revolutionary War. He settled in Walkersville, Md., where he purchased a farm that is still in the possession of his descendants. He was the father of Christian Winebrener, Christian Winebrener, the grandfather of D. Charles Winebrener, was born on the old Winebrener homestead in Walkersville district, Frederick county, Md. He spent his entire active life following the occupation of a farmer. When advanced in years, he removed to Walkersville where he died in 1891. He was married to Phoebe Cramer. They were the parents of David C. Winebrener.

David C. Winebrener, the father of D. Charles Winebrener, was born October 12, 1834, and died in Frederick City, in October, 1903. He received his elementary education in the public schools of his native county, subsequently attending the Landon Military Academy, at Urbana, Md., from which institution he was graduated in 1855. He returned home, and in April, 1856, entered into a partnership with Daniel Getzendanner, to engage in general merchandizing in Frederick City. This firm was a continuance of the business established by Christian Steiner in 1824, and is now conducted at the same stand by D. Charles Winebrener. The business was a paying one under the management of this firm, and continued to prosper in the trying days of the Civil War. In 1865, Mr. Winebrener bought the interest of his partner, and changed the firm name to D. C. Winebrener & Co. The present store property was purchased in 1859, and since then many improvements have been made to meet the increasing demands of the business. Today the store and its equipment ranks as one of the best in Frederick county. In 1891, the retail department of the firm was discontinued, and all the attention has been centered upon the wholesale branch. Mr. Winbrener remained at the head of the business until his death, directing the affairs of the establishment with an ability and foresight that stamped him as a man of executive capacity and rare mercantile acquirements. To him was due most of the prosperity and prestige attained by the firm, and he became widely known in mercantile circles as one of the representative men identified with that branch of industry. Honorable in all his dealings and a merchant of the old school, whose business methods were characterized by the highest principles, he commanded the respect and confidence of business and financial circles generally.

Mr. Winebrener, however, did not confine his energies to the mercantile trade alone. On the contrary, his business interests were both diversified and important. For years he was president of the Frederick County Agricultural Society, and at the time of his death was a director of the Parkersburg Branch of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He also served as president of the Frederick City Brick Works, and the Frederick Land Improvement and Building Association. He was a stockholder in the Frederick and Middletown Electric Railway, a director in the extension of the Myersville and Catoctin Electric Railroad, and also one of the organizers and incorporators of the Frederick, Thurmont and Northern line. Mr. Winebrener was also well known in financial circles, having served from 1893 until the time of his death as president of the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank, of Frederick. In all of these positions of trust, he discharged his duties with an ability and fidelity that won for him high commendation. He was for many years a trustee of the Frederick Female Seminary.

In politics, Mr. Winebrener was always a stanch adherent to the Republican party, but his many and important business interests prevented him from ever aspiring to office. Fraternally, he was a member of the Masonic Order for over forty years. Mr. Winebrener was married October 12, 1864, to Rebecca B. Markey, daughter of the late David J. Markey, of Frederick City. They were the parents of three children: Susan May, the wife of James H. Gambrill, Jr., a sketch of whom appears in this work; Grace, the wife of Charles B. Trail, president of the Farmers' and Mechanics National Bank, of Frederick, a sketch of whom also appears in this volume; and D. Charles.

D. Charles Winebrener, son of David C. and Rebecca B. Winebrener, was reared in Frederick City, where he received his education. He learned the wholesale grocery business under his father, and is now the head of the firm of D. C. Winebrener & Co., one of the leading firms of its kind in Western Maryland. In politics, Mr. Winebrener is a Republican, and in religion, is a member of All Saints' Episcopal church of Frederick. Fraternally, he is a member of Frederick City Lodge, B. P. O. E., No. 684. He is one of the best known and most active business men of Frederick. He was married to Eleanor Ritchie, daughter of John Ritchie. They have two sons, David C., 3rd, and Philip Ritchie.

JAMES EDWARD WALKER, deceased, one of the best known and most prominent citizens of Frederick county, Md., was born on a farm in that county, January 17, 1849, and died at his home in Frederick City, May 13, 1905. He was a son of William W. and Elizabeth (Smith) Walker.

The Walker family is of Scotch-Irish origin and was among the early settled families of Frederick county, Md. William W. Walker, the father of James Edward Walker, was a native of Frederick county, and spent his life in agricultural pursuits. He was a man of the highest principles, and was greatly respected by all who knew him. In politics he was a lifelong and ardent supporter of the Democratic party, and in religion he was an active and devoted member of the Methodist Protestant church. The name of his wife was Elizabeth Smith. They were the parents of three children: James Edward; Willie Anna, the wife of D. V. Stauffer, of Frederick City; and Charles D., a well known and prominent farmer of Frederick county.

James Edward Walker was raised to manhood on the Drummind farm, New Market district, Frederick county. He received his education in the public and private schools, and at the Glenwood Academy, under Professor Matthews. After leaving school, he came to Frederick City, and entered the store of his brother-in-law, D. V. Stauffer, as a clerk. In 1875, he engaged in the dry goods business in partnership with George L. Cramer, which was dissolved the next year. He then went into the dry goods business for himself, under the firm name of J. E. Walker & Co. He continued in this line of merchandising until his death in 1905, a period of about thirty years. The first store room was located at Nos. 4 and 6 West Patrick street, but the increased business compelled its removal to No. 26 North Market street. This latter place is now occupied by the bank building of the Fredericktown Savings Institution. Mr. Walker, during the time that he directed the affairs of his business, showed that he was a man of superior executive capacity and rare mercantile acumen. Honorable in all his dealings and a man whose business methods were characterized by the highest principles, he commanded the respect and confidence of the community in which he passed his active life. He was widely known throughout the county as one of the ablest and most representative men identified with mercantile circles. Mr. Walker, however, did not confine his energies to his dry goods business alone, but on the other hand was interested in a number of enterprises. He was president and one of the organizers of the Frederick County Telephone Company, and a director in the Citizens National Bank of Frederick, and the Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Frederick County. He was also a director and one of the predominating spirits in the Frederick County Agricultural Society.

In politics, Mr. Walker was always an ardent and active adherent of the Democratic party, but never aspired to public office, preferring to concentrate all his time and energies upon his extensive business. Fraternally, he was a member of the Frederick City Lodge, No. 684, B. P. O. E. In religion, he was a member of the Evangelical Reformed church of Frederick.

Mr. Walker was married November 3, 1874, to Annie Markell, a daughter of George and Sophia (Markell) Markell. They were the parents of one daughter, Hallie, the wife of Charles C. Carty, of Frederick City, and they have one son, James Walker. Mrs. Walker is a great-grandmother of John Thomas Schley, who built the first log cabin in Frederick City. Her father, George Markell, was a native of Frederick City, where he was born in 1817, and died in 1900. For many years he was a prominent merchant of Frederick. His wife was Sophia Markell. She was born in 1817, and died in 1905. George Markell was a son of John Markell, who was a merchant in Frederick a century ago, and whose parents were among the early settlers of the county. Since the death of her husband, Mrs. Walker resides at the old home in West Patrick street, where her daughter, Mrs. Charles C. Carty, lives with her.

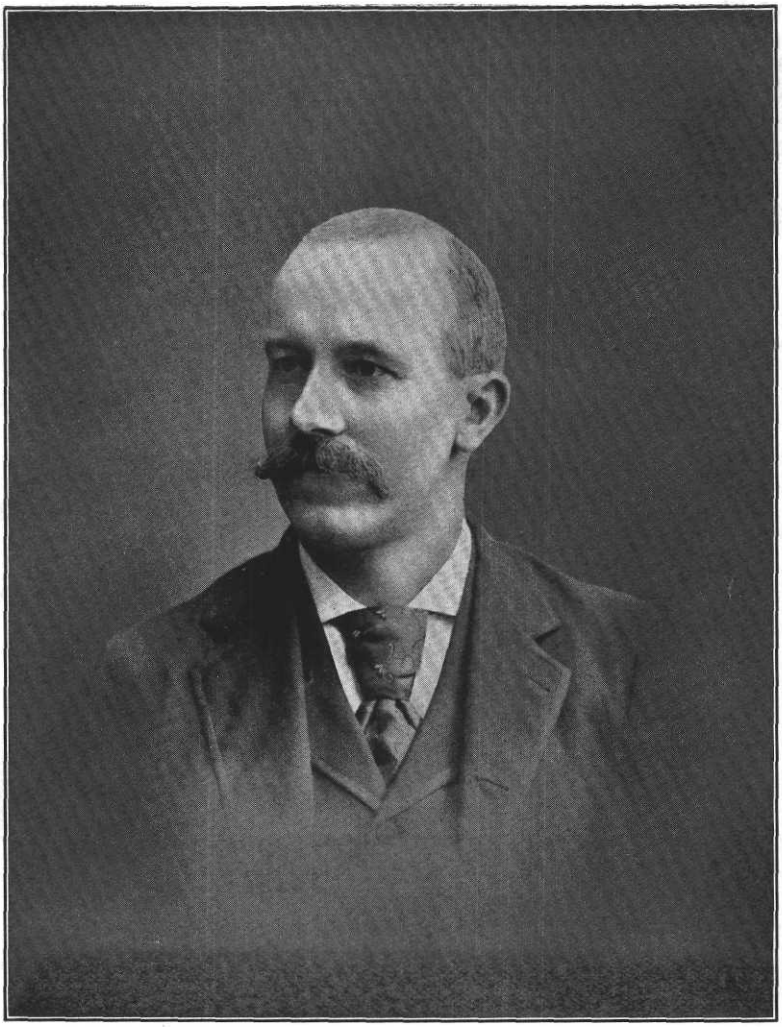
HENRY WILLIAMS, one of the best known and most influential citizens of Frederick county, and formerly president of the Central National Bank of Frederick City, Md., was born in that city, October 26, 1837. He is a son of John H. and Eleanor (Shriver) Williams.

Henry Williams, the grandfather of Henry Williams, was a native of Pennsylvania, where he was born in 1742, and died in Frederick, Md., in 1820. He was of Scotch-Irish antecedents, and emigrated from Pennsylvania to Frederick county, Md., among the early settlers. At the outbreak of the Revolutionary War he was living near Emmitsburg, and organized and became Captain of a company from Frederick county that served throughout the struggle. He was one of the leading and most prominent citizens of the county in his day, and was held in high esteem. In politics, he was a stanch adherent and active supporter of the Federalist party. In a religious way he was connected with the Presbyterian church, in which he was an active and consistent member. Mr. Williams was married to Jeannette Witherow, who was also of Scotch-Irish origin. They were the parents of only one son, John H.

John H. Williams, son of Henry and Jeannette Williams, was born near Emmitsburg,



James E. Walker

Frederick county, Md., in 1814, and died November 11, 1896. He was reared in the neighborhood of Emmitsburg, where he received his elementary education. He attended Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Pa., from which institution he was graduated in 1834. He then began the study of the law in Frederick City under William Schley, Esq., and was admitted to the Frederick County Bar. As a lawyer Mr. Williams was entitled to high regard. He enjoyed a large and influential clientele, and represented many of the most important interests of the county. His legal ability was unquestioned, and he made his mark in the profession that he had so aptly chosen as his work in life, winning for himself the regard and admiration of all who knew him. In every instance he was noted for the skillful manner in which he safeguarded the interests of clients. Mr. Williams was also for many years editor of the "Frederick Examiner," and won high rank in the journalistic field. For over forty years he was connected with the Frederick County National Bank, and at the time of his death, was serving as its president. While in this position he directed the affairs of the institution with a foresight and financial ability that stamped him as a man of high executive capacity. In politics, Mr. Williams was at first identified with the old-line Whig party, but upon the organization of the Know-Nothing party, he became an adherent and active supporter of the Democratic party, with which he remained until his death. In religion, he was for many years an active and devoted member of the Presbyterian church. Mr. Williams was married to Eleanor Shriver, daughter of Judge Abraham Shriver, who was judge of the Circuit Court of Frederick county for forty years. John H. and Eleanor Williams were the parents of two children: Henry and Margaret Jeannette, who reside in Frederick.

Henry Williams received his elementary education in private schools. He then attended the University of Virginia and later Yale College, New Haven, Conn. After completing his studies, he became a clerk for Alexander Murdock & Company, commission merchants, with which firm he remained for five years. In 1863, Mr. Williams enlisted in Company A, 33rd Texas Cavalry, Confederate, and served in the Valley of the Mississippi until the close of the war.

In 1865, Mr. Williams returned to Frederick, and entered the employ of the Central National Bank as a book-keeper. In 1871, he was promoted to discount clerk, and in 1876 was made assistant cashier. Two years later, he was chosen cashier, and served in that capacity until 1897, when he was elected president of the institution. He retained the latter position until 1905, when he resigned, and has since lived in retirement. As the head of this flourishing financial institution, he won high repute for the able manner in which he directed its affairs, and became one of the best known financiers of this part of the State. His methods were always characterized by the highest principles, and he commanded the respect and confidence of business and financial circles generally. Mr. Williams is one of the best known citizens of the county, and is held in high esteem by all who know him. He is a director of the Maryland School for the Deaf and Dumb, and a member and treasurer of the executive committee.

In politics, Mr. Williams has for the last fifty years been a staunch adherent and supporter of the Jeffersonian Democracy, but has never aspired to public office. Fraternally, he is a member of Frederick Lodge, No. 684, Order of Elks. He is affiliated in a religious way with the Presbyterian church.

Mr. Williams was married in 1871, to Henrietta Marian Stokes, daughter of Robert Y. and Henrietta D. (Tyler) Stokes, of Frederick City. Robert Y. Stokes, who died in 1874, was for many years president of the Central National Bank. (See sketch of Stokes and Tyler families in this work).

JOSEPH DILL BAKER, one of Maryland's best-known financiers is one of the foremost citizens of Frederick County, of which he is a native, having been born at Buckeystown, on April 2, 1854. Since 1877, Mr. Baker has been a resident of the city of Frederick.

Mr. Baker is a son of the late Daniel and Ann Catherine Baker (nee Finger), who were the parents of four children: William G. Baker, of Buckeystown, a sketch of whose life is published elsewhere in this volume; Daniel Baker, of Baltimore, president of the Standard Lime and Stone Company, a director of the Citizens' National Bank, of Frederick, and prominent as a business man and public-spirited citizen; Sarah C., who became the wife of C. F. Thomas, of Buckeystown, and Joseph D. Baker.

The elder Daniel Baker was widely known as a business man, and highly respected for his integrity and his ability. He was the head of the mercantile firm of Daniel Baker & Sons, in which all of his sons were at one time associated with him, and which was very successful in business. Mr. Baker died in April, 1886.

Mr. Joseph D. Baker, after being educated in the public schools of the county, and at Calvert College, and having served for a time as salesman for Daniel Baker & Sons, was admitted to the firm in 1876. The following year he purchased the large tannery in Frederick which was formerly conducted by the late John Loats, and which was conducted by Mr. Baker for some years with success.

In 1883, Mr. Baker entered the banking business as president of the Montgomery County National Bank of Rockville, Md., in the organization of which he took a leading part. In the management of this institution, Mr. Baker quickly gave evidence of the executive ability and the skill as a financier which brought him in the course of a few years to a position in the foremost rank among the bankers of Maryland. The Montgomery County National Bank prospered from the start, and though Mr. Baker, after some years of service as its president, was obliged, by the pressure of other business interests, to resign that position, the continued success of the bank is attributed in a large measure to the excellent foundation of its business established during his administration.

In 1886, Mr. Baker, with others, organized the Citizens' National Bank of Frederick, of which he was made president, and to the upbuilding of whose interests he has since devoted chiefly his attention and his business talents. Supported by a board of directors composed of prominent residents of Frederick City and County, Mr. Baker, as president of this institution, quickly brought it to the foremost place among local banking institutions, as respects amount of deposits and volume of business, and in the course of some years to a position at the head, in Maryland, of the so-called "Honor Roll" of National Banks having surplus and undivided profits in excess of their capital stock, the Citizens', with a capital of $100,000, having accumulated a surplus of $300,000. In 1907, this bank, which had erected, prior to beginning business in 1886, a handsome four-story building of red pressed brick and brownstone on the southeast corner of Market and Patrick streets, finding the enlargement of its banking-room to be necessary, purchased the four-story building which adjoined the bank building on Market street. In the spring of 1908, both of these buildings were torn down, and the erection of a new building on the ground which they had covered was begun. The new building—a beauitful and perfectly fireproof structure, without a particle of wood used in its construction, with facades of white Concord granite, and its interior richly finished—was occupied on July 22, 1909.

Mr. Baker was also instrumental in the founding, in 1888, of the People's National Bank, of Leesburg, Va., and was its first president. After seeing this institution safely started on a successful career, Mr. Baker resigned the presidency, and was succeeded by Col. Elijah White.

While devoting himself energetically to the upbuilding of the interests of the banking institutions with which he has been connected, and to caring for his private business interests, Mr. Baker has always found time to give to public matters when called upon, as a citizen, to take a hand in the furtherance of movements for the public good. As an adviser in business matters, Mr. Baker has been called upon often to give to the city and the county the benefit of his experience and his judgment, and he has never failed to help in all such cases to the best of his ability. In the year 1888, Mr. Baker's ability as a financier proved of great advantage to the city of Frederick in the refunding of its bonded indebtedness. Desiring to reduce the rate of interest upon its indebtedness, which was then 5 per cent., the city advertised for sale an issue of 4 per cent. bonds. For these bonds the city failed to receive offers covering the issue, and the undertaking seemed likely to result in failure, when Mr. Baker, at the solicitation of the municipal authorities, undertook to float the loan. Purchasing the entire issue from the city at par, Mr. Baker succeeded in placing the bonds with banks and individual investors in Baltimore and elsewhere, the deal effecting a substantial saving for the city in its subsequent annual payments of interest upon its indebtedness.

Always a liberal supporter of causes and institutions of a charitable or philanthropic nature, Mr. Baker has given large sums of money in aid of causes of this character, his most noteworthy acts in this line being, perhaps, the establishment, in 1898, in conjunction with his brothers, of the Buckingham Industrial School, an institution for the education and training of poor boys, near Buckeystown, Md., and the part he took in providing for the city of Frederick the splendid Young Men's Christian Association buildings which was opened on January 1, 1908. To the Y. M. C. A., which prior to the organization of the movement to erect this building had a rather struggling existence in Frederick, Mr. Baker had always been a friend, and when the building movement was started he was one of the first subscribers. Becoming more interested in it as the movement developed, Mr. Baker increased his comparatively modest original subscription from time to time, until finally it amounted to a large proportion of the total cost of the building and site. But while it was owing principally to Mr. Baker's large contribution, and to the liberal contributions of members of his immediate family and other relatives, that so large and fine a building was erected, the great success of this movement, in enlisting the support of practically the entire community, was due in a large measure to the inspiration of Mr. Baker's own enthusiasm, and to his skill as an organizer and leader of men.

Because of his reputation as a business man of sound judgment, Mr. Baker was appointed, on March 3, 1890, by the late Judge Richard H. Alvey, the Chief Judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit of Maryland, as one of three receivers for the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal (the operation of which was at that time suspended, owing to the damage done to the canal by the great freshet of the spring of 1889) who were appointed to make an examination of the canal property and report to the court their opinion as to whether the continued operation of the canal, after the making of the necessary repairs, was a practical business proposition. The other receivers were the late Col. Richard Johnson, of Cumberland, Md., and the late Mr. Robert Bridges, of Hancock, Md. The receivers made a trip of the entire length of the canal on horseback, and after a thorough investigation of its condition, and a careful compilation of the probable cost of its rehabilitation, and the probable receipts from its operation, reported to the court the condition of the property in detail, and submitted the opinion that the profitable operation of the canal was out of the question. The court accepted this opinion, and was about to issue a decree for the sale of the canal property, when the trustees of the bondholders under the Act of 1884 stepped in with a petition that they be allowed to take charge of the property and operate the canal. An order granting this privilege was issued by the court on October 2, 1890, and subsequently the leave for the operation of the canal under this arrangement was extended; but, though the canal has since been in operation, practically without interruption, the results as regards both the cost of repairing it, in the first place, and the subsequent receipts from its operation, have been such as to prove the estimates and conclusions of the receivers to have been conservative and wise. The report of the receivers was referred to in complimentary terms by the Court of Appeals of Maryland in an opinion written by the late Chief Justice James McSherry, deciding an appeal from the Circuit Court for Washington County in the matter of the extension of the leave for the operation of the canal by the trustees of the so-called bondholders of 1844.

A belief in the fitness of Mr. Baker for the office of Governor of Maryland, which had long been a subject of comment among men acquainted with him, gave rise to a movement, in 1907, for his nomination as the Democratic candidate for Governor. At first refusing to take the movement seriously, and reluctant to be drawn into politics, Mr. Baker was prevailed upon to permit his friends to endeavor to bring about his nomination. In his first public statement in regard to this movement, made some months before the convention, he said:

"I have no idea whatever of entering politics, and I think those who know me best know that such a course would in no sense appeal to me; and certainly, I have no idea of making a fight to secure the nomination referred to, or any other position in the gift of the people. The only reason that I would consider this, or any other nomination, would be that the people of the State decide the position to be one that I could, and should, occupy."

Repeatedly during the ante-convention campaign which followed, Mr. Baker impressed upon those who were working for his nomination his positive determination to enter into no deals, and to make no bargains or promises, to bring about his nomination, or, if he were nominated, to secure his election.

The movement for Mr. Baker's nomination was quickly taken up and indorsed by many of the leading citizens of Maryland. Men prominent in professional and business lines, in public interviews spoke enthusiastically of his fitness for the office, and warmly urged his nomination. The movement was taken up by the Baltimore News, which at that time, with Charles H. Grasty as publisher and Dr. Fabian Franklin as editor, was the most ably conducted newspaper in Maryland, and which vigorously fought for Mr. Baker's nomination. Especially in Frederick County was the movement received with great favor, and it was universally conceded that Mr. Baker, if nominated, would carry the county by a large majority. When the time came for holding the party primaries in the county, the delegates from every district were instructed in favor of Mr. Baker's nomination, and when the county convention met on July 20 it adopted by acclamation the following resolution:

"Resolved, That this convention, being aware of the eminent fitness for the office of Governor of Maryland of Mr. Joseph D. Baker, of Frederick County, and believing that, in putting forward as a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination a man of such high character, splendid business ability, and perfect trustworthiness, the Democracy of Frederick County gives the party in Maryland an opportunity to make a nomination which would reflect credit upon the organization, would lead to certain victory at the polls, and result in an administration which would be of great benefit to the State, hereby instructs the delegates who will represent this county in the State convention which will meet in Baltimore City on August 8 to cast the six votes to which this county will be entitled in that convention for the nomination of Mr. Baker as the party's candidate for Governor, and to use every honorable endeavor to have him nominated by the convention."

In the meantime, however, opposition to Mr. Baker's nomination had been aroused in certain quarters by publicity given to the fact that Mr. Baker was an advocate of the Local Option method of dealing with the liquor question, and was not only himself a total abstainer from the use of liquor, but an advocate of total abstinence, and opposed to the liquor traffic. Mr. Baker's views upon these matters first came into prominence through a letter written by him in reply to an invitation from the Democratic Club of Baltimore to become a member of that organization. In this letter, after thanking the club for the invitation, Mr. Baker said that his action in regard to it would depend upon whether liquor was sold by the club; that he had made it a rule to join no club or other organization which made a practice of selling intoxicating drinks. The publication of this letter in Baltimore arrayed the so-called liquor element against Mr. Baker's nomination. He explained in an interview that, while he did not intend his own attitude in this matter to be understood as a criticism of the conduct of men who belonged to clubs by which liquor was sold, or who themselves drank liquor, he was resolved personally never to be a party to the sale of liquor in any way. Subsequently, in a signed statement published in a number of newspapers, he set forth his views upon the liquor question and Local Option, saying, in part:

"The people have a right to know the attitude upon all questions of public policy of every man who is mentioned for public office, and I would not secure any office under false colors or by false pretenses. Anyhow, the time has come when the saloon question should be put out of commission as a political bugaboo, and be dealt with on its merits by approaching it in a manner that will make it possible for every man to vote his political sentiments and express his views on the liquor question at the same time.

I stand for the fundamental principles of majority rule and self-government, and believe that the liquor question, the same as other matters, should be left with the people of the various communities for decision by a majority of the voters of the several localities interested."

As the convention approached, it became evident that the strong liquor interests of Baltimore City were firmly opposed to the nomination of Mr. Baker, regarding him as a foe to the liquor business, and the Baltimore Sun, in an editorial, frankly expressed the opinion that Mr. Baker, having antagonized these interests, was not acceptable as a candidate, the Sun holding that the party, with the opposition of those interests, could not hope to win at the polls.

The Montgomery County Democratic convention declared in favor of the nomination of Mr. Baker, and instructed the county's delegates to the State convention to vote for him. It became apparent, however, when the delegates to the convention and the party leaders gathered in Baltimore, that, owing apparently in a large measure to fear of the liquor interests' opposition, Mr. Baker would not be nominated. After numerous conferences among the leaders, it developed that a sufficient number of votes could be delivered to nominated Judge Austin L. Crothers, of Cecil County, and when the convention met in the Maryland Theatre on the evening of August 8 the votes of nearly all of the counties were cast for his nomination. Frederick and Montgomery counties, however, stood firm for the nomination of Mr. Baker, and three votes from Anne Arundel county were also cast for him, Hon. Edwin Warfield, then Governor of the State, who was one of the delegates from Anne Arundel, taking the stage to announce the county's vote, which he did in a speech eulogistic of Mr. Baker, whose name had been presented to the convention by Mr. George Wm. Smith, of Frederick County. Fourteen votes were cast for Mr. Baker's nomination, and after the calling of the roll had been completed, the nomination of Judge Crothers was, on motion of Mr. George Wm. Smith, made unanimous.

In an interview immediately after the convention, Governor Warfield said: "No candidate ever went into the convention, and was defeated, who came out in better shape than does Mr. Baker;" and the Frederick Daily News, reporting Mr. Baker's return to Frederick after the convention said:

"Mr. Baker has no feeling of soreness over the result of the Democratic State convention, in which he was defeated for the nomination for Governor. Publicly and privately, he has expressed his satisfaction with the result, and his appreciation of the support given him. Among his friends, it is well known that he consented to stand as a candidate only in deference to their wishes, and that the fact that those who controlled the convention preferred to take another candidate occasions for him no feeling of regret. The campaign at least served to win universal recognition of the fact that Mr. Baker is a man of splendid character and ability, and of the truth of the claim made by his supporters, that he is eminently qualified for the office of Governor."

Among enterprises of importance with which Mr. Baker has been identified was the erection of a bridge across the Potomac River, between Point of Rocks, Md., and the Virginia side of the river, prior to the erection of which there had been no bridge spanning the Potomac between Harper's Ferry, W. Va., and Georgetown, D. C., since the destruction of a former bridge at Point of Rocks during the Civil War. The erection of this bridge, which provided the people of Loudoun county, Va., with a means of reaching the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, proved a successful enterprise. Some years later, Mr. Baker became a member of a company organized to build another bridge across the Potomac between Brunswick, Md., and Lovettsville, Va. Of this company, as well as of the earlier one, Mr. Baker was made president, and the second one, like the first one, proved to be a successful enterprise.

Notable among Mr. Baker's business enterprises was his organization of a syndicate to take over, after the death of the late Louis McMurray, of Frederick, the farms which the latter had owned. Mr. McMurray was, at the time of his death, the largest land-owner in Western Maryland, his holdings consisting mostly of farms in the fertile section of Frederick County known as Carroll's Manor and comprising over two thousand acres of land, all of which was purchased by the syndicate which Mr. Baker organized. Associated with him in this deal were his brothers and Mr. George Wm. Smith.

Mr. Baker was leader in the movement for the substitution of smooth paving for the cobblestones with which the streets of Frederick had for generations been paved, and it was owing largely to his efforts that the change from the cobblestones to smooth paving was finally begun.

With his brothers, Mr. Baker takes an active part in the direction of the affairs of the Standard Lime and Stone Company, which is controlled by them, and which has large works at various points in Maryland and Virginia, with its main office in Baltimore. He also served for a number of years as a member of the board of directors of the Chicago Division of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Mr. Baker is a member of the Methodist Protestant Church, and has been a liberal supporter of its institutions and works.

At the annual meeting of the Maryland Bankers' Association, held at the Blue Mountain House in June, 1909, Mr. Baker was elected president of the Association.

Mr. Baker has been twice married, his first wife, who was Miss Emma N. Cunningham, having left a son, Holmes D. Baker, who is one of the vice-presidents of the Citizens' National Bank. After her death, Mr. Baker married Miss Virginia Markell, daughter of the late Charles Markell, who was a prominent merchant of Baltimore City. They have one daughter, Charlotte.

THE LATE GEORGE W. WERTENBAKER, a prominent farmer of Hauvers District, Frederick county, Md., son of Lewis and Catherine (Dutrow) Wertenbaker, was born on his father's farm one mile east of Sabillasville, Md., May 20, 1842.

Mr. Wertenbaker's great grandfather, who was a native of Germany, emigrated to America and settled in the Middletown Valley, near Myersville, where he spent the rest of his life. He and his wife are buried in the Lutheran cemetery at Church Hill. Among their children was a son named John.

John Wertenbaker, grandfather of George W. Wertenbaker, was born on his father's farm, near Myersville, where his childhood and early manhood were spent. He afterwards bought from Yost Harbaugh, the farm of 165 acres of farm and timber land now owned by the widow of his grandson, George W. Wertenbaker. This farm, which lies one mile east of Sabillasville, Md., has been in the Wertenbaker family for seventy years. He was highly esteemed among the men of his generation. John Wertenbaker was married to Betsy Derr. They had one child, Lewis.

Lewis Wertenbaker, only child of John and Betsy (Derr) Wertenbaker was born on his father's farm near Sabillasville, where his whole life was spent. At his father's death he inherited the homestead, and devoted all his time to cultivating and improving his patrimony. He was a prosperous farmer, and an honored citizen. Lewis Wertenbaker was married to Catherine Dutrow. Their children are: 1, Elizabeth, deceased, married to the late John McClain. a farmer of Hauvers Distrct; 2, George W.; 3 Manzella (Mrs. Jerome Tressler), of Kansas, deceased; 4, Ella (Mrs. Kinney Miller); 5, John H., of Ohio; 6, Laura, married to James Harbaugh, a farmer of Emmitsburg, Md. Mr. Wertenbaker was a consistent member of the United Brethren Church. Many years ago, during his father's lifetime, the congregation worshipped in the barn on the homestead. Mr. Wertenbaker took an active part in the building of the church at Otterbein, where many of the family are buried. He died at his home near Sabillasville, in 1868 His wife died in 1898.

George W. Wertenbaker grew up on his father's farm, and was educated in the public schools of Sabillasville. After spending two years in the West, Mr. Wertenbaker returned to Frederick County, and at his father's death, took charge of the farm for his mother. He afterwards married but continued to farm the homestead successfully for eight years. He then bought the adjoining farm which he cultivated for eight years. Mr. Wertenbaker then returned to the homestead which he purchased in 1901. On this place of 165 acres of fine farm and timber land, he spent the remainder of his life. After the death of her husband, Mrs. Wertenbaker continued to cultivate the land, assisted by her children. Mr. Wertenbaker was a prosperous farmer, and was highly respected among the men of his generation.

George W. Wertenbaker was married to Virginia, daughter of William and Caroline (Spohn) Cartzendafner, a descendant of one of the prominent families of Union Bridge, Carroll county, Md. Of their nine children, six reached adult age. 1, William O.; 2, Margie G., at home; 3, Alta V., married to Emory Stoner, a farmer of Carroll county; 4, Katie G., of Baltimore, Md.; 5, Fleet V., at home; 6, Laura T., married to John Gephart, telegraph operator at Dodson, Montgomery county, Ohio. Mr. Wertenbaker and his wife were members of the United Brethren Church at Otterbein, Md., to which he was a liberal contributor. Mr. Wertenbaker died at his home near Sabillasville, May 17, 1904, and was buried in the cemetery at Otterbein.

William O. Wertenbaker, son of George W. and Virginia (Cartzendafner) Wertenbaker, was born on the old homestead in Hauvers District, June 21, 1873. He attended the public schools of his native district, and completed his education at the Buckeys Normal School. Soon after his graduation he held various positions in the hotel at Buena Vista, with Walter Raymer, where he remained for four years. He then began teaching at Eyler's Valley, and from there he removed to Franklinville, where he held the position of principal of the graded school for eight years. Mr. Wertenbaker is a very successful teacher, a profession he still follows in connection with the management of the farm for his mather, since the death of his father. Mr. Wertenbaker is one of the leading Republicans of Hauvers District. In the autumn of 1909, he was nominated and elected by a large majority to the Maryland Legislature. He therefore took his seat in the Legislature of 1910, in which body he served with credit. Fraternally, he is a member of the A. F. and A. M., and of the I. O. O. F., of Thurmont, Md.

CHARLES WOOD, one of the oldest citizens of his section of Frederick County, is a retired farmer, residing in the town of New Market. He is a son of the Rev. John and Ruth (Burgess) Wood, and was born, January 27, 1826, on his father's estate, the "Brick House farm," near New Market, known as "Rosedale".

Henry Wood, Charles Wood's grandfather, came to this country from England at an early date. He and his brother John, who accompanied him, settled in the New Market district. Caleb, their elder brother, remained in England, where he died, leaving a large fortune, which his heirs are now seeking. Henry Wood married Miss Sarah Maclefresh; they died on their farm in New Market District, leaving two sons, John and Basil; the latter died unmarried.

The Rev. John Wood was born near Johnsville, Frederick Co., Md. He was a local preacher of the Methodist Protestant Church. He owned many slaves, but freed them one by one, as they reached thirty-five years of age. He was considered the wealthiest man of his vicinity. He died on his farm in 1839, aged forty-six years. He married Ruth, daughter of John Burgess and Elinor Griffith; both are buried on the home farm. Their children were: John Burgess, who married Elinor, daughter of Col. Philemon Griffith, of Revolutionary fame; Mrs. Nick Hammond; Mrs. Philemon Howard Griffith, and Charles, the three latter the only surviving members of the family.

When Charles Wood was an infant of but four weeks, the family removed to his grandfather's farm, two miles south of New Market, and there he grew to manhood, attending the country schools of the neighborhood until he attained his majority. His youthful experiences were those of farmers' boys in general; but he served for two years at the carpenter's trade, and in 1849, sailed with a company from Baltimore for the gold fields of California. Their ship, the Jane Parker, doubled Cape Horn, and was six months in making the trip. After reaching California, Mr. Wood took up a ranch at Stockton. There he worked at his trade; the lowest compensation he ever received was $6.00 per day; on some days, he made $350.00.

Mr. Wood's return trip was made on a steam vessel, via Panama, New York and Baltimore. For several years after, he was engaged in store keeping, first at Monrovia, and then at New Market. After his marriage, he resided on a farm three miles east of New Market, near Bartholows' Station; here he had 300 acres, which he cultivated until a short time before the war; he then returned to New Market, and again kept a store. Not long after, he bought a farm one mile from the town, and continued farming until about 1906, when he again returned to New Market.

In 1858, Charles Wood married Kate, daughter of Thomas and Jane (Jamison) Worthington. Mrs. Wood was reared in the Roman Catholic faith. She is a descendant of Capt. John Worthington, who died at Annapolis, Md., in 1701 (see sketch of Glenn H. Worthington). She is a native of Urbana District, Frederick Co., born Sept. 18, 1839.

In his earlier life, Mr. Wood was active in the Democratic party. He became a Freemason fifty years ago, and joined the I. O. O. F. more than sixty years ago.

DAVID A. WAGAMAN, a retired farmer of Sabillasville, Frederick County, Md., son of Richard and Ann M. (Miller) Wagaman, both deceased, was born on his father's farm, one mile south-east of Sabillasville, February 15, 1851.

The ancestors of the Wagaman family, emigrants from Germany, were among the early settlers of Frederick County. Mr. Wagaman's grandfather, David Wagaman, who was one of the early settlers of Hauvers District, was well known among the older citizens of Sabillasville, where he owned a comfortable home. He was a worker in timber, and was honored by the men of his generation. David Wagaman was married to Nancy Beck. Their children are: 1, William, a distiller; 2, Richard; 3, Mary (Mrs. William Mort), of Rouzerville, Franklin county, Pa.; 4, David, deceased, a farmer of Hauvers District, Frederick county, Md.; 5, Amelia, deceased, married to the late August M. Conrad, of Sabillasville, Md.; 6, John, deceased, of Hagerstown, Md.; 7, Rachael, died unmarried.

Richard Wagaman, father of David A. Wagaman, was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained at home until he married. After his marriage, Mr. Wagaman purchased a tract of timber land, and after clearing a part of it, built on it a two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn, and convenient out-buildings. He afterwards added 30 acres making his farm 75 acres of arable land. Mr. Wagaman spent the remainder of his life in cultivating and improving this property. He was a good farmer, and a worker in timber, and ascribed his success in business to honest labor and constant attention to his work. He was a Democrat, and was highly esteemed in the district which he served for many years as chief supervisor of roads. Richard Wagaman was married to Ann M., daughter of John and Mary (McClaine) Miller, both deceased. Mrs. Wagaman's father was well known among the older residents of Hauvers district. Their children are: 1, Lycurgus T., a farmer of Hauvers District; 2, Fanny (Mrs. Henry Stem), of Sabillasville; 3, David A.; 4, Laura E., married to William McClaine, a farmer of Hauvers District; 5, Edith A., married to William Naylor, a retired farmer of Sabillasville; 6, William G., of Hauvers District; and five who died in youth. Mr. Wagaman was a member of the Baptist church. He and his wife are buried in the cemetery of the Reformed church in Sabillasville.

David A. Wagaman received his education in the public schools of Hauvers District, and remained with his father until after his marriage when he began business for himself, working in timber. Two years later, he purchased his present home, a farm of 130 acres of arable land, then owned by L. C. Harbaugh, situated half a mile northeast of Sabillasville on the road to Fountain Dale. Mr. Wagaman is a progressive farmer, and besides improving the quality of the land, he put up a two-story dwelling, a bank barn, and all the necessary outbuildings, making his place which is a beautiful location, one of the finest farm properties in the Harbaugh Valley. His unceasing industry and attention brought him well-deserved success. In 1908, Mr. Wagaman retired from farming and removed to Sabillasville, where he built for himself a comfortable two-story frame dwelling, one of the prettiest homes in the town. Mr. Wagaman is a Democrat. He is highly esteemed as a successful business man and as a citizen. He is a stockholder in the Citizens' Saving Bank, of Thurmont, which he assisted in organizing.

David A. Wagaman was married to Susan C., daughter of Leonard and Mary (Miller) Harbaugh, both deceased, whose father was a retired farmer of the Harbaugh Valley. Their children are: 1, Mary A., married to the Rev. Samuel Pittinger, a minister of the Methodist church, stationed at Burnt Cabins, Pa.; 2, Morris R., a farmer of Hauvers District, Frederick County, Md.; 3, Flora E., at home; 4, Howard R., at home; 5, Thomas E. at home. Mr. Wagaman and his wife are members of St. John's Reformed church in Sabillasville, Mr.

Wagaman is a liberal contributor, and serves the congregation as elder.

JOHN M. WATSON, a well-known farmer of Sabillasville, Hauvers District, Frederick County, Md., son of the late Dr. Robert and Hannah (Mentzer) Watson, both deceased, was born in Funkstown, now Mont Alto, Franklin County, Pa., November 23, 1854.

Mr. Watson's grandfather, James Watson, was born in Londonderry, Ireland. Mr. Watson was fifty when he emigrated to America, and settled in Adams County, Pa., where he was employed in getting materials for barrels, etc. He afterwards bought a large tract of timber land, part of which he cleared, and built a comfortable stone dwelling and a large barn. He added acre to acre and soon became prominent as a successful farmer. At the time of his death he owned 700 acres of well improved land divided into three desirable farms, and about 1,000 acres of fine timber land, in Adams County, Pa. James Watson was married to Mary, daughter of Mr. Bond, and widow of Wm. Hineman. Their children are: 1, Robert; 2, James, deceased, a farmer of Adams County, Pa.; 3, Eliza, deceased twin sister of James, married to Dr. William Stem, deceased; 4, John, deceased, a farmer of Adams County, Pa.; 5, George, deceased, a farmer of Adams County, Pa. Mr. Watson was a member of the Presbyterian church at Fairfield, Adams County, Pa. James Watson was born August 1, 1768; died at his home in Adams County, March 19, 1870, aged 101 years, 7 months and 23 days, and is buried in the Presbyterian cemetery at Marsh Creek, Adams County.

The late Dr. Robert Watson, father of John M. Watson, a prominent dentist of Fairfield, Adams County, Pa., was born on the old Watson homestead in Adams County, March 11, 1820. Dr. Watson was educated in private schools in Chambersburg, Pa., and at eighteen began his dental studies in the same town. After his marriage, Dr. Watson settled in Fairfield, Adams County, where he remained until he retired from business. He was regarded as an excellent dentist and when he retired he left an extensive practice to his son. Dr. Watson ascribed his success to kind and courteous treatment of his patrons. Besides his lucrative practice, Dr. Watson owned a valuable farm near Fairfield; this he sold and purchased a beautiful residence in Fairfield, where he spent the remainder of his life. Dr. Watson was highly esteemed as a skilful dentist and as an honorable citizen. In the late '60's he served as U. S. Internal revenue assessor. He was one of the leading Democrats of Adams County, interested in advancing the interests of the community. Dr. Robert Watson was married to Hannah, daughter of David and Mary (Bonebrake) Mentzer, whose father was prominent among the older farmers of Franklin County, Pa. Of their five children, four reached adult age. 1, James G., M. D., a physician of Altoona, Pa.; 2, John M.; 3, Annie E., (Mrs. Aaron Musselman), of Fairfield, Pa.; 4, Dr. D. Steward, dentist, Detroit, Mich. Dr. Watson was a member of the Reformed Church in Fairfield. He was an active worker in the church, and served the congregation as deacon and as elder. He died at his home in Fairfield, February 22, 1899, aged 78 years, 11 months and 11 days, and is buried in the cemetery at Fairfield. His wife, Hannah Mary Watson, died December 31, 1907, aged 87 years, 7 months and 17 days rests by his side. She was born May 14, 1820.

John M. Watson was educated in the public schools of his native town, and remained with his father until after his marriage, when he removed to Sabillasville, and became an assistant in the store of his father-in-law, David Crawford, general merchant. Mr. Watson next engaged in farming, near Sabillasville, on land belonging to his father-in-law, which he cultivated successfully for sixteen years. He then bought a farm near Gettysburg, Pa., where he remained for five years. This farm he afterwards sold, and removed to Hagerstown, Md. A short time after this, Mr. Watson purchased his present home, a farm of 140 acres of farm and timber land adjoining Sabillasville, on the east, the property of Levi Lichtenberger. Mr. Watson is a progressive farmer, and his improvements have made his homestead one of the most desirable properties in Hauvers District. He ascribes his success to industry and undivided attention to his business. He is a Democrat, interested in county affairs.

John M. Watson was married to Alice, daughter of the late David and Maria (Hess) Crawford, whose father was one of the most prominent men of the district as a successful farmer and merchant. They have two children: 1, Blanche C.; 2, Elizabeth M.; both at home. Mr. Watson and his wife are members of the Reformed Church in Sabillasville. He is an active worker in the church, and a liberal contributor to benevolent enterprises. Mrs. Watson's mother resides in Sabillasville.

CHARLES A. WARNER, a prominent farmer residing near Sabillasville, Frederick County, Md., son of C. Anderson and Margaret (Hansell) Warner, was born near Ardmore, Montgomery County, Pa., March 3, 1870.

Charles A. Warner is a descendant of one of the oldest and most distinguished families of colonial days. The founder of the American branch of the Warner family, Captain William Warner, was born in Draycot in the parish of Blockley, Worcestershire, England. He was a captain in the body guard of Oliver Cromwell, and left England in 1658, at the time of the Restoration. Captain Warner went first to New England, and thence to what became the Province of Pennsylvania, where he acquired a title to property in the province as early as April 3, 1678, more than four years before the landing of William Penn. Captain Warner was the possessor of many hundred acres which he purchased direct from the Indians. He called his estate, or plantation, Blockley, after his home in England. He was a member of Deputy Governor Markham's council in 1681, and was afterwards very active in the management of the colony under the grant of William Penn.

Two lineal descendants of Captain William Warner, Anthony and Isaac Warner, are mentioned in the Records as taking part in the colonial war for freedom. When the Revolutionary War broke out, Anthony Warner was living on a farm but a short distance east of the present station of Rosemont. He joined the Continental army, and was captain of a company of the Seventh Battalion, Philadelphia County Militia, of which his brother, Isaac, was Colonel. He was with his company at Valley Forge during that long and memorable encampment. Anthony Warner married, and among his children was a son named Isaac.

Isaac Warner, grandfather of Charles A. Warner, was born in 1784. He was a prominent man among the farmers of his generation, and was highly esteemed as a citizen. He owned a valuable farm of 200 acres situated near Haverford Station, two miles west of Ardmore, Montgomery County, Pa. He was a Republican, interested in all that concerned the progress of the county. Isaac Warner was married to Miss Jane Latch who was a descendant of Major Latch, of the Continental army. Major Latch was at Valley Forge with Captain Anthony and Colonel Isaac Warner. He served with distinction in the Continetal army, and received from General Washington's own hands, a handsome silver-hilted sword, as a reward for personal bravery, and valuable services to the patriot cause. This sword is still in the possession of one of his lineal descendants. The children of Isaac and Jane (Latch) Warner, both deceased, are: 1, Hamell, deceased, of Haverford, Pa.; 2, Levi, deceased; 3, Isaac, deceased; 4, Jacob, deceased; 5, Gardner, deceased; 6, Penrose, deceased; 7, Rebecca J., widow of Charles J. Arthur, died at Rosemont, aged eighty-two; 8, C. Anderson; 9, Eliza, died unmarried; and two who died in childhood. Mr. Warner and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church to which he was a liberal contributor.

C. Anderson Warner, father of Charles A. Warner, architect and contractor, of Ardmore, Montgomery County, Pa., was born March 10, 1832. He was educated in the public schools of his native county, and remained with his father until he was thirty, when he went to learn carpentry with Philip Govman. After he had completed his apprenticeship, Mr. Warner began business for himself. He was an excellent workman and was soon doing business as a contractor. He applied himself to the study of architecture, and was so successful that he made the plans and built more than two-thirds of the beautiful homes in Ardmore. He built the first house in Ardmore, and during his thirty years of active business life, became the most prominent contractor and builder in Ardmore. He also planned and built many of the handsome homes in and around Philadelphia, Pa. He ascribes his financial success to hard work and constant application to business. He is living retired in Ardmore, where he owns several valuable properties. Mr. Warner is highly esteemed in the community. He is one of the directors of the Merion Tiller Trust Company of Ardmore. C. Anderson Warner was married to Margaret, daughter of Morris and Margaret (Ott) Hansell, both deceased, whose father was prominent among the older farmers of Montgomery County, Pa. Of their five children, three reached adult age. 1, Emily S., at home; 2, Charles A.; 3, Robley A., civil engineer of Montgomery County, at home. Mr. Warner is a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Ardmore. He belongs to the church council.

Charles A. Warner attended the public schools of Ardmore, and learned carpentry. After four years of practical work in carpentry, he took a special course in architecture in the University of Pennsylvania, in Philadelphia, Pa. After leaving the university, Mr. Warner secured a position with T. R. Williamson, architect, with whom he remained one year, when he accepted the position of foreman with his father. This position he retained for fifteen years. His superior workmanship made his services very valuable and he had charge of the work on some of the finest buildings which his father erected. Owing to an injury which he received, Mr. Warner was obliged to abandon his business, and removed to Burkittsville, Md., where he took charge of a farm belonging to his mother-in-law. After cultivating this land successfully for four years, Mr. Warner purchased his homestead, a farm of fine farming and timber land containing 194 acres, adjoining Sabillasville, Md. This place, which is one of the old Harbaugh farms, is beautifully situated near the Western Maryland railroad, and is considered one of the fine farm properties of the district. It is in excellent condition and is equipped with a comfortable three-story brick dwelling, a bank barn, and all necessary buildings. Mr. Warner also owns valuable real estate in Ardmore. He ascribes his financial success to hard work and constant attention to his business. He is a Republican, interested in all that concerns the progress of the community, where he is highly esteemed as an able business man and as a good citizen. He is a member of Acacia Lodge, No. 155 A. F. and A. M. of Thurmont.

Charles A. Warner was married to Carrie M., daughter of Luther and Rebecca (Sheffer) Horine, who resided near Burkittsville, Md. Her mother is living at Fulderea Manor, the family homestead. Their children are: 1, C. Anderson; 2, Laurean H.; 3, Margaret H.; 4, Guilford T.; all at home. Mr. Warner and his wife are members of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Sabillasville, Md. He is an active worker in the church, and a liberal contributor to benevolent enterprises.

CHARLES EDWARD TRAIL, a public-spirited and prominent citizen of Frederick County, Md., was a native of Frederick City, where he was born January 28, 1825, and died May 8, 1909. He was the son of Edward and Lydia Christine (Ramsburg) Trail.

The Trail family is of old and respected Scotch lineage. The American ancestors of the family settled in Massachusetts, from whom the Lowells are descended. Mary Trail was the grandmother of Robert Trail Spence and James Russell Lowell. The Trails were prominent in the early days of the New England settlement and were held in high esteem.

Edward Trail, the father of Charles Edward Trail, was a native of Montgomery County, Md., where he was born in 1798. He died in the memorable centennial year, 1876. He was a prominent and influential citizen of his day, and was known as a public-spirited man. The name of his wife was Lydia Christine Ramsburg, whose ancestors were among the earliest and most prominent German settlers of Frederick County. She was born in Frederick City in 1802, and died from the effects of a fall in 1884.

Charles Edward Trail was reared in Frederick, his birthplace, and spent his entire life there. He received his eduaction in the public schools, and afterwards attended Frederick College. Leaving school, he began the study of the law in 1847 under the preceptorship of Joseph M. Palmer, and upon the completion of his legal studies, was admitted to the Frederick County Bar in 1849. After practicing for several years, Mr. Trail was forced to abandon the profession of his choice just when the future bore promise of a brilliant and extremely successful career as a lawyer, by illness. As a means for the restoration of his health, he made a tour of Europe. Upon his return from abroad, Mr. Trail devoted much of his time to the superintendence of his numerous farms throughout Frederick County, which comprise many acres of fine land. At the same time, he took an active interest in the affairs of the community, and became widely prominent as one of the best known and ablest business men and financiers of that section of the State. In 1860, he was elected president of the Isabella Gas Company, and afterwards became the sole owner of its property and interests. In 1870, he was one of the leading spirits and active promoters in the building of the Frederick and Pennsylvania Railroad Company, of which incorporation he was elected president in 1879. Mr. Trail was elected president of the board of trustees of the Frederick Female Seminary in 1876, and served in this official position for over thirty years. To his keen perception and cultivated taste can be attributed much of the established high reputation of that educational institution. In 1878, Mr. Trail was elected president of the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank of Frederick, and served until 1892. While at the head of this sound financial institution, he discharged his duties with a foresight and sagacity that stamped him as a man of high executive ability and keen financial acumen. For nearly fifty years, Mr. Trail was interested in this bank, as a director and otherwise contributing to its prosperity by his advice and counsel. This bank is one of the soundest in the State of Maryland. It was established and organized in 1817 as a branch of the Westminster Bank. The institution, successful from its very inception, was chartered in 1828 as the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank, and in July, 1865, became a National Bank. The bank suffered a loss of $17,000 by the Gen. Jubal A. Early raid, but has declared liberal dividends regularly since 1862. Up to the incumbency of Mr. Trail as president, the bank had but two presidents. Dr. William Tyler was its first president, serving until 1872. He was succeeded by Ezra Houck, Esq., whom Mr. Trail followed. Identified for many years with the Mutual Insurance Company of Frederick County as stockholder and director, Colonel Trail was in 1887 elected as its president to succeed George Markell. His active and enthusiastic efforts in the interests of whatever institution he had been connected with, officially or otherwise, stamped the seal of success indelibly upon them. He was identified with many other enterprises of his city and county. Public spirited, he was always ready to lend his influence and hearty co-operation towards anything that advanced the public welfare. For many years, he was president of the Manufacturers and Development Company, of Frederick, and in this capacity was instrumental in locating several factories in Frederick. One of the most important of these is the Ox Fiber Brush Company. This concern employs about three hundred men the year round, and is one of the most flourishing of Frederick's many prosperous industries.

In politics, Colonel Trail was originally an adherent of the Whig party, although he peremptorily declined public office at the hands of that party. However, he was a factor of no small importance in the Whig councils, and at the outbreak of the Civil War he came promptly forward as a leader of the Unionists in Maryland. In many ways he did much toward molding and influencing public sentiment thereabouts, and, after writing a masterly address to the people of the county on the subject then agitating every mind, he was elected president of the Union League of Frederick county, and served throughout the struggle that followed. Later he was appointed an aide on the staff of Governor Bradford with the rank of Colonel, and organized several companies for the field. Personally he suffered severely from the ravages of the war, as the hosts of Lee, McClellan and Hooker passed over several of his farms, laying them waste. The battle of Monocacy was mainly fought upon his homestead. At that time a costly barn, filled with grain and much other property, was destroyed by fire.

Upon the formation of the Republican party, Colonel Trail had allied himself with that organization, and became one of its most active and staunchest supporters. His great services were recognized when he was elected in 1863 to the Maryland House of Delegates, taking his seat in 1864. While a member of the House, he served as chairman of the Committee on Federal Relations and Military Affairs, and was voted the thanks of that body for the ability and fidelity with which he had discharged his important duties. In 1864, he was elected from his district to the State Senate, for a term of four years. Perhaps his most effective service in the Senate was as chairman of the Committee on Education, which gave to the State its present fine system of public schools. Colonel Trail served also on numerous other committees, including the Judiciary, his associates having been George Vickers, Governor Bowie, Jacob Tome and many other distinguished men, with whom he had been on terms of friendship. Colonel Trail always commanded the respect and attention of the Senate by the soundness of his ideas and the liberality of his opinions. His term having expired, Mr. Trail declined a renomination, and returned to private life. Throughout his legislative and senatorial career, he had manifested a warm interest in the affairs of the State and his own people, introducing, advocating and voting with unfaltering firmness upon many measures of vast importance to the public.

Colonel Trail's ability and enterprise were such, however, that his fellow citizens did not long permit him to remain in retirement. He became interested in the subject of reform in municipal affairs, and at length headed a movement to that end, which resulted in his being elected president of the board of aldermen of Frederick, in 1870. He filled this position most creditably for three years, during which time the present City Hall was erected. Colonel Trail was appointed chairman of the building committee, and to his energy was largely due the result of one of the most important city improvements ever undertaken. It was also due to the persistent efforts of Colonel Trail that the State was induced to locate in Frederick the present magnificent institute for the deaf and dumb. Of the building committee for this institute Colonel Trail was chairman, and in the result of that committee's work was largely seen the force of his counsel and artistic taste. At this time, he was also a member of the board of directors of the institute.

Being a man of literary tastes, a fine French and German scholar, and an untiring student, Colonel Trail devoted much of his leisure time to the pursuit of literature, not as a profession, but as a means of pleasure and culture. In earlier years he wrote many miscellaneous articles and poems for the newspaper and magazine publications of the day. He was for some time a contributor to Graham's Magazine, then the leading monthly, and to "The World," a literary paper of high standing, edited by Parke Benjamin. Colonel Trail's poetry is of the highest merit, giving indication of a fine musical ear and an aptness for rhyme. He possessed a fine sense of humor, which led to the production of many poems that rival in point of satirical keenness the work of many who have won enviable reputations as authors and poets. He was a devoted lover of art, and he was the possessor of a fine collection of paintings. He was a lover of music, too, in which all of his children excel. He possessed great love for books, and his library is one of the finest and most complete collections possessed by any individual in the State.

Colonel Trail possessed more than ordinary courtesy, and his sterling traits of moral worth gained for him the respect and confidence of everyone. An untiring student and a thinker of profound depth, he was unusually well versed on every topic. Kindly in manner and sympathetic in disposition, he gave with a generous hand to every worthy purpose that appealed to his ever ready sympathies, and his charities, unostentatiously bestowed, are without number. During his long and eventful life, Colonel Trail was in the forefront of everything to promote the material, religious and educational prosperity of his county. To him Frederick is largely indebted for its first lesson in advanced architecture. His handsome residence in East Church street, erected in 1855, is one of the most imposing and artistic structures in the city. Thoroughly refined and domestic in his personal tastes, Colonel Trail took a particular pride in his home and family, his residence exhibiting countless examples of his cultured taste and love of the beautiful. He was an active and consistent member of All Saints' Protestant Episcopal Church of Frederick, of which he had served as a vestryman for a number of years.

Colonel Trail was severely injured in 1877 in a collision between two trains on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, at Point of Rocks, Md., and was reported among the killed. With great care and nursing he recovered in a few months, without permanent disablement.

Colonel Trail was married in February, 1851, to Ariana McElfresh, youngest daughter of Colonel John H. McElfresh, and together they passed the following six months on a wedding tour in Europe. Mrs. Trail died in January, 1892, at Marseilles, France, whither she had gone to visit her oldest son, then consul for the United States at that port. Charles Edward and Ariana Trail were the parents of seven children, three sons and four daughters: Ariana Teresa, is the wife of Dr. Alfred M. Belt, a well known physician of Baltimore, Md.; Florence, has won well earned distinction as a clear and scholarly writer of thoughtful prose, and has published two books, "My Trip Abroad," and "Studies in Criticism," both of which received favorable notice at the hands of competent critics; Charles Bayard, was appointed secretary of the legation in Brazil by President Arthur, and subsequently was appointed consul to Marseilles, where he remained for four years, but he now resides in Frederick, and since his father's retirement from the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank has been its vice-president and president since 1905; Anna M., is the wife of the Rev. John B. Harding, a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church, a graduate of Harvard College in 1878, who was ordained priest in 1883, and served the Church of Our Savior, Baltimore, from 1884-93, in the latter year accepting the rectorship of St. Mark's Church, Frankford, Philadelphia, Pa., where he has since remained; Henry; Bertha; and Arthur.

THOMAS McCLEARY WILES, a prominent truck farmer and substantial citizen of Braddock district, was born in Middletown Valley, Frederick county, February 13, 1851. He is a son of Thomas and Barbara A. (Shibbetts) Wiles, the latter deceased.

Peter Wiles, the grandfather of Thomas McC. Wiles, was of Irish descent. He was born in Frederick County, Md., near Middletown, 1796. The name of his wife was Elizabeth McCleary. They were the parents of Thomas Wiles.

Thomas Wiles, son of Peter and Elizabeth (McCleary) Wiles, is a native of Maryland. He was born August 21, 1824. He was given a private school education in Middletown Valley, Frederick County, to which place his father had removed when he was quite young. He learned the trade of a shoemaker under his father and remained at home until he attained his majority. He then embarked in business for himself. He bought a house three miles north of Middletown and opened a shoemaker's shop. There he remained in business until four years ago, when he relinquished active work. He is now living in retirement. He holds membership in the Lutheran Church of Middletown. Politically, he is a Democrat, and was one of the trustees of the public school of Tyler's for a number of years. He served for fourteen years as justice of the peace in Middletown district. Mr. Wiles was married to Barbara A. Shibbetts, daughter of Henry Shibbetts, of Middletown Valley. She was born in Germany and was brought to this country by her parents when she was two years old. The voyage across took six months. They first settled in Pennsylvania and some time afterward located in the Middletown Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiles were the parents of eight children, of whom six grew up: William W., who is deceased; Thomas McCleary, our subject; Jane R., the wife of William Culler, of Middletown district; Barbara A., who is married to N. P. B. Baer, of Middletown district. John E., and George P., both residents of Middletown district. Mr. and Mrs. Wiles were members of the Lutheran Church at Middletown.

Thomas McCleary Wiles, son of Thomas and Barbara A. (Shibbetts) Wiles, was reared in Middletown Valley. His educational advantages were exceedingly meagre, for when he was but eight years old he began to work. He managed, however, to attend school for two months in the winter and in that way acquired his learning. He worked as a day laborer until he was twenty-eight years of age. By strict attention to business and economy he accumulated enough money to purchase a small truck farm from William Keller, situated on the National pike, near Braddock Heights. Here he engaged in trucking and farming, and was very successful. He improved the place by putting up new buildings and made it one of the prettiest small tracts in the locality. For a period of seventeen years he lived here, but when the Frederick and Middletown Electric Railroad was built he sold the property because the line ran through it. Mr. Wiles then purchased his present farm of 30 acres of well improved land from Mrs. Margaret Ramsburg, and situated about three and a half miles west of Frederick on the National pike. This is one of the best trucking properties in the district. Mr. Wiles is also the possessor of some timber land. He is a man who made a success of life by his own efforts. He is industrious and persevering, and these qualities contributed much to his success. In his political views, he is a Democrat. For thirteen years he has been a trustee of the public school at Braddock.

Mr. Wiles has been twice married. He was married first to Jennette L. Zimmerman, daughter of Jonathan Zimmerman, of Buckeystown district. Her death occurred in 1894. Of this union seven children were born, six of whom reached muturity: Thomas J. L., of Buckeystown district; John W. T., of Jefferson district; Cora J., who is the wife of Marshall Fulmer, of Braddock district; Jesse C., of Braddock district; Eva M. and Lee McC., both at home. Mr. Wiles was married secondly to Callie Renn. They are the parents of two children: Cleggett B. and Lela L. Mr. and Mrs. Wiles are connected with the Lutheran Church at Middletown.

VERNON T. WATKINS, who is a successful farmer in Urbana district, is the owner of 137 acres of land, which was originally part of the "William and Elizabeth" tract, situated on the road leading from Price's distillery to Ijamsville. He was born on the family farm near Price's distillery, in Urbana district, August 18, 1871. He is a son of William Thomas and Sarah E. (Williams) Watkins.

The grandfather of Vernon T. Watkins was Samuel Watkins. He was a native of Montgomery County, Md., and followed the vocation of a farmer. Among his children was William Thomas.

William Thomas Watkins was born near Browningsville, Montgomery County, Md., in 1840, and died in 1892 on his farm in Urbana district, Frederick County, Md. He received a common school education. He began life as a poor boy, but by his untiring work amassed a competency before his death. Mr. Watkins was married to Sarah E. Williams, of the neighborhood of Clarksburg, Montgomery County. She is a daughter of Samuel Williams, and is living at the age of sixty-five years. Mr. and Mrs. Watkins were the parents of five children: Olive, of Browningsville, Md.; Morris, who cultivates the old Watkins homestead in Montgomery County, married Mattie King; Bradley, engaged with his brother Morris in the management of the old place, married Rebecca Burdette; Vernon T., of Urbana district, and Ernest, owns the old home farm. He married Estella King, of Kemptown, Md.

Vernon T. Watkins, son of William Thomas and Sarah E. (Williams) Watkins, acquired his education in the schools of his native county. His instructors were Titus Day, Georgie England, Howard Barnes, William Walker and others. At the age of twenty years, he gave up school. In his young days, he became acquainted with all the details of a farmer's life. He was seventeen years old when his father died, and remained with his mother until after his marriage in 1898. He then managed the farm of his mother for four years. Mr. Watkins then purchased his present farm from R. H. Magruder. Since getting possession of this property, he has greatly enhanced its value by many improvements. He is a practical and progressive farmer, and has achieved much success at his chosen work.

Politically, Mr. Watkins is a stanch member of the Democratic party. Religiously, he was raised in the faith of the Methodists.

Mr. Watkins was married June 1, 1898, to Edith Mount, of Kemptown, Frederick County. She is a daughter of William and Alice (Duvall) Mount. They are the parents of five children: Mazie Noreen, William Thomas, Alice Olivia, Sally Virginia and Ray Mount.

JOHN H. WACHTER, who is one of the highly esteemed and prosperous agriculturists of Lewistown district, was born February 3, 1859. He is a son of Michael and Rebecca (Reese) Wachter, and is descended from one of the long settled families of the county.

The American ancestor of the Wachter family was Michael Wachter, a native of Germany. Accompanied by his wife Maria, he came to this country, and settled in Pennsylvania. He afterwards removed to Frederick County, Md., where he was among the early settlers. He was the father of Jacob Wachter, who was born December 27, 1782. The latter was the father of Michael Wachter.

Michael Wachter, son of Jacob Wachter and father of John H. Wachter, was born May 9, 1821, and is living at the age of eighty-eight years at Utica Mills, Frederick County. He learned the blacksmith's trade and this vocation he followed for fourteen years. He then purchased the farm of his father, and followed agricultural pursuits for half a century. Mr. Wachter was married to Rebecca Reese. She was born in 1823. They are the oldest couple in Lewistown district, and are members of St. Paul's Lutheran church of Utica Mills. They were the parents of ten children, seven of whom grew to maturity: Lycurgus M., carpenter of Walkersville district; Howard C., of Walkersville district; Luther H.; John H.; Amanda, unmarried, resides with her parents; Thomas J., of Johnsville district; and Stiner R., of Frederick City.

John H. Wachter, son of Michael and Rebecca (Reese) Wachter, secured his education in the public school at Utica Mills, in Lewistown district. When he was eighteen years old he began to learn the trade of a carpenter under William Cromwell. He was engaged in his trade for fourteen years, and during that time helped to build many fine edifices, among them the church at Utica and also the one at Charlesville, where the former building had been destroyed by lightning. In the spring of 1890, Mr. Wachter bought the small farm on which he now lives from Elijah E. Shaw. This place contains 34 acres of very fine agricultural land, and lies about nine miles north of Frederick, near Utica. It is improved with a fine two-story frame dwelling, a fine bank barn and all the necessary outbuildings. Mr. Wachter is one of the well-known and highly successful farmers of his district. He is a man who has won his own way in the world and his success is well deserved.

In politics, Mr. Wachter uses his right of franchise to support the candidates of the Republican party. In religion, he holds membership in St. Paul's Lutheran Church at Utica.

Mr. Wachter was married March 4, 1890, to Emma F. Zimmerman, daughter of John A. J. and Mary M. (Firestone) Zimmerman, both deceased. There are no children by this marriage. Mrs. Wachter is a most estimable lady and is also a Lutheran in religious belief.

John A. J. and Mary M. (Firestone) Zimmerman, Mrs. Wachter's parents, has issue of fifteen children, ten of whom reached mature years: Annie, the wife of D. Pearl, of Tuscarora district; Mary Jane, married to Fleet Staley, of Montgomery County, Md.; Alpha, the wife of Fleet Stull, deceased; Luther, lives in Carroll County, Md.; Cora, the wife of Augusta Clem, of Frederick; Lura, married to Richard Hawkins, of Montgomery County, Md.; Emma F. CHARLES L. WACHTER, M. D., a prominent physician and surgeon of Sabillasville, Frederick County, Md., son of Leander and Elizabeth (Anders) Wachter, both deceased, was born at Myersville, Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., May 6, 1854.

The Rev. Michael Wachter, grandfather of

Dr. Charles L. Wachter, was born on a farm near Frederick, Md., May 19, 1799. He grew up on the farm and received his education in the public schools of Frederick. He became a minister of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, and was pastor of the Lutheran Church at Woodsboro, Md. He was a member of the Synod of Maryland and Virginia which was organized at Winchester, Va., October 11, 1820. The synod of Maryland was separated from the Synod of Virginia in 1829. The Rev. Michael Wachter was president of the Maryland Synod for three years, 1833, '34, '35. During this time he was stationed at Martinsburg, Va., and his charge embraced Martinsburg, Va., Clearspring and Woodsboro, Md. From 1830 to 1833, he was treasurer of the Synod of Maryland. He was one of the oldest ministers in Frederick and was greatly loved and highly honored. The Rev. Michael Wachter was married to Maria Wiest. Their children are: 1, Ann Susan, died in 1874 at the home of her brother, Dr. Leander Wachter, 2, Jacob M., a merchant of Woodsboro, Md., deceased; 3, Leander; 4, George M., of Jackson District, Frederick County, still living at Harmony, Md.; 5, Maria, married to the late George E. Saltzgiver, a hatter of Fredericktown. The Rev. Michael Wachter died July 19, 1850, and is buried in the cemetery of the Lutheran church in Frederick.

The late Leander Wachter, M. D., a prominent physician of Myersville, Md., father of Dr. Charles L. Wachter, was born at Woodsboro, Frederick County, Md., July 19, 1826. His boyhood was spent at Woodsboro. He was educated at the Frederick Academy, in Frederick, and completed his preparatory medical studies with Dr. Hammond, at Woodsboro. After graduating from the Washington University of Medicine, Dr. Wachter began practicing in Myersville, where he remained until death. He was recognized as one of the leading physicians of Frederick County, and was greatly loved and honored by his fellow citizens. Dr. Wachter was a Republican. He was a member of Lynch Lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Frederick; and of the Odd Fellows, of Middletown, Md.

Dr. Leander Wachter was married to Elizabeth, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth Anders, whose parents were prominent residents of Woodsboro, Md. Of their ten children six reached adult age: 1, Henry M., superintendent of the experimental farm situated near Germantown, Ohio; 2, Dr. Charles L.; 3, Fannie P., of Sabillasville, Md.; 4, Victorine E., (Mrs. Charles Grossnickle), of North Manchester, Ind; 5, Effie E., Warsaw, Indiana; 6, Dona, G., married to E. E. Heeter, railway mail-clerk, of Warsaw, Indiana. Dr. Wachter and his wife belonged to the Lutheran Church in Myersville. He was, for many years, an active member of the church council. Dr. Charles L. Wachter received his preparatory education in public and private schools in Myersville, and graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, of Baltimore, Md., in the class of 1884. Immediately after his graduation, Dr. Wachter settled in Sabillasville, where he took up the practice of William F. Luckett, M. D., who had just retired from whom he purchased the beautiful home in which he now resides. Intelligence, thorough preparation, and close attention to his chosen profession, brought him success. He is one of the leading physicians of Western Maryland, and, as Sabillasville is near the Pennsylvania line, he has a large practice in four counties: Adams and Franklin, in Pennsylvania, and Washington and Frederick, in Maryland. Dr. Wachter is a member of the Frederick County Medical Society, of Frederick. In 1900 he built a fine cottage at Blue Ridge Summit, and in 1908, he purchased the business of the late Thomas Eyler, a general merchant of Sabillasville. The firm of C. L. Wachter & Sons, is doing a large and profitable business. Dr. Wachter is one of the leading Republicans of Frederick County, and is highly esteemed in political as well as in professional circles. He is a member of Acacia Lodge No. 155, A. F. and A. M., of Thurmont, Md., and of the Junior Order of American Mechanics, of Buena Vista, Md. He is also a director in the Thurmont National Bank, of Thurmont.

Charles L. Wachter was married to Albina C., daughter of George W. and Mary A. (Lazer) Koontz, a descendant of a prominent family of Burkittsville, Md. Of their seven children six are living: 1, Guy Roscoe, merchant, Sabillasville; 2, Charles Vaughan, with his brother in business at Sabillasville; 3, Bernice K., at home; 4, Edgar B., at school; 5, Edith M., deceased; 6, Mary E., at home; 7, Carroll D., at home. Dr. Wachter and his wife are members of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Sabillasville. He took an active part in the building of the church edifice, and has held office in the church ever since it was built. He is an elder, superintendent of the Sunday School, and one of the most active workers in the congregation.

N. J. WILSON & SON.—The present firm of N. J. Wilson & Son was founded by Mr. N. J. Wilson in 1856, under the name of N. J. Wilson, who as a boy left his home in Ireland, where he was born in 1836. He emigrated to this country when but 11 years of age, and cast his lot among strangers in a strange land.

After a varied experience in the different States throughout the South, he came to Baltimore, Md., where he learned his trade as a tin and sheet iron worker. In 1851 he came to Frederick, working as a journeyman, and in 1856 he established the enterprise on the same premises on which the business is now being conducted. As years rolled by, increasing trade in 1882 caused him to build a larger store, and in 1907 after being burned out, the store was rebuilt on more modern lines, making it the largest and most convenient store of its kind in Western Maryland. The establishment has a floor space of 1300 square feet besides several warehouses and a storage room in the rear, all fitted with modern appliances for the conducting of the Stove, Plumbing, Hot Water and Steam Heating and Tinning business.

Politically, Mr. Wilson was a Democrat, and served several terms as an Alderman of Frederick City. He was an active member of St. John's Catholic Church, a successful business man, a good citizen, and at the time of his death, which was in 1902, he had achieved success by his own efforts. He was highly respected in the community in which he lived. He was the owner of a fine farm of 150 acres in Urbana District, four and one-half miles from Frederick.

Mr. Wilson, at the time of his death, left a widow of eight children, one of whom, Mr. George I. Wilson, is the present manager of the well-known store, over half a century in existence. He was born in Frederick in 1866 and has been connected with this store over thirty-five years. He was educated at St. John's Literary Institute, and much of the success of the store has been due to his ability as its manager. He is a man of a family and very progressive in his methods. He is one of Frederick's most active and energetic business men. He is a Democrat, politically; an active member of Father McElroy Council C. B. L., St. John's Beneficial Society, and of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, and is always looking to the betterment of his native town.

In the management of the store Mr. George Wilson has as his assistant his brother, Mr. Charles Wilson, past president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, and a member of the Grand Aerie of that body. Mr. Charles Wilson has been with this store over twenty years, having been brought up in the business, and is a very able assistant to his brother.

JOHN G. WARRENFELTZ, a prominent farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., was born on the old Warrenfeltz homestead, on which he now resides, August 7, 1844. He is a son of the late Daniel and Susan (Ludy) Warrenfeltz.

John Warrenfeltz, grandfather of John G. Warrenfeltz, whose parents were of Switzerland, was one of the early settlers of the northern part of the Middletown Valley. He owned a valuable property consisting of 130 acres of farm and timber land, situated one mile west of Wolfsville, Md. Mr. Warrenfeltz worked in lumber. He cleared a part of his land, cultivated it, and put up a two-story stone dwelling and all necessary buildings. John Warrenfeltz was married to Mary Leatherman. Among their nine children was a son named Daniel.

The late Daniel Warrenfeltz, father of John G. Warrenfeltz, who was prominent among the older farmers of the district, was born on the homestead, November 19, 1813. He was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained at home working with his father. After his father's death, Mr. Warrenfeltz purchased from the heirs, the homestead 130 acres of farm and timber land, and spent the remainder of his life in cultivating and improving it. He was also engaged in sawing out timber for buildings of all kinds. He improved his farm in every respect, and was regarded as a successful business man, and a reliable citizen. He was a Democrat, interested in all that concerned the good of the community. Daniel Warrenfeltz was married to Susan, daughter of the late Nicholas and Erean (Smeltzer) Ludy, whose father was a prominent farmer and dealer in timber, in Jackson District, Frederick County. Of their thirteen children, eleven reached maturity. 1, John G.; 2, Eva Ann, widow of the late Lawson P. Harshman, of Catoctin District; 3, Daniel T., a farmer of Washington County, Md.; 4, Josiah J., a farmer of Catoctin District. 5, Mary A. E., deceased, married James O. Bussard, a retired farmer of Middletown, Md.; 6, Jacob W., a farmer of Catoctin District; 7, Philip F., deceased; 8, Sarah, married Columbus Dutrow, a farmer of Washington County, Md.; 9, Charles F. S., merchant, of Wolfsville, Md.; 10, Henry M., cashier of the Emmitsburg Savings Bank; 11, George M., M. D., of Baltimore, Md. Mr. Warrenfeltz was a member of the Reformed Church in Wolfsville. He was a liberal contributor, and was actively engaged in erecting the church edifice in Wolfsville. He died in October, 1901, and is buried in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Wolfsville, Md.

John G. Warrenfeltz was educated in the public schools of Catoctin district, and remained with his parents until their death, after which he took charge of the farm. He afterwards purchased a part of the homestead on which he now resides. He has made his farm one of the finest in the district, and has put up a large bank barn, and all the necessary buildings. Mr. Warrenfeltz ascribes his financial success to honest labor and strict attention to the business. He is unmarried.

URIAH WARRENFELTZ, a retired agriculturist, and one of the honored and esteemed citizens of the town of Thurmont, was born in Mechanicstown district, Frederick County, Md., December 3, 1825. He is a son of Peter and Sophia (Rouzer) Warrenfeltz.

Jacob Warrenfeltz, the grandfather of Uriah Warrenfeltz, was a native of Germany, where he was born in 1751, and died in 1815, in Frederick County Md. He was brought to this country by his parents, who settled among the early German settlers in Maryland. Jacob Warrenfeltz was possessed of a sturdy character and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. He was a manufacturer of buckskin breeches and gloves. In religion he was a member of the Reformed Church. He was married to Hannah Hartman. Thev were the parents of the following children: Jacob; John; Philip; Peter; Catharine, married Conrad Green; Susan, the wife of William Patton; Hannah, married Daniel Gernand; Mary, married Christian Weller; Christina, the wife of Daniel Leatherman; Magdalena, married John Firor, and Elizabeth, became the wife of Paul Marker.

Peter Warrenfeltz, son of Jacob and Hannah (Hartman) Warrenfeltz, was born on a farm in Jackson district, Frederick county, in 1793, and died in Mechanicstown district in 1864. He spent his life following the occupation of a farmer. In politics, he voted the Democratic ticket. All his life he was a member of the Reformed church. He was married to Sophia Rouzer. They had four children, three of whom grew to maturity: Caroline, deceased, was the wife of Perry Eyler; Uriah; and Julia, deceased. Uriah Warrenfeltz, son of Peter and Sophia (Rouzer) Warrenfeltz, was only three years old when in 1828 his father settled on a farm a mile and a half south of Thurmont. He was raised to manhood, and became acquainted with the various duties of farm life. His education was secured in the old fashioned country schools. Arriving at man's estate, he chose farming as his occupation in life. In 1852, he purchased the old Weller farm, known as "Sugar Camp Farm," south of Thurmont, containing 152 acres of land. Here he followed agricultural pursuits until 1872, when he retired and located in Thurmont. At this time he built his present substantial two-story brick home. Not being contented to live retired, however, he and his family in 1875 returned to the old farm, where they remained until 1896. In that year, Mr. Warrenfeltz again retired and returned to Thurmont, where he has since resided. While engaged in active farming, he was one of the very successful agriculturists of the county. He is a stockholder in the Thurmont National Bank.

In politics, Mr. Warrenfeltz is a stanch adherent of the Democratic party, having voted that organization's ticket for the last sixty-three years. He is a consistent member of the Trinity Reformed Church of Thurmont, of which he was one of the original members and where he has served in the church councils for half a century. While a young man, he was a member of the old Apples church in Mechanicstown district.

Mr. Warrenfeltz is very highly esteemed and held in high respect by all in the community wherein he lives. Although he is eighty-four years of age, he is well preserved, and is hale and hearty. He possesses a retentive memory and possesses the full use of all his faculties. He keeps thoroughly posted on topics of the day, and has a wonderful knowledge of events and happenings for the past sixty years.

Mr. Warrenfeltz was married October 19, 1848, to Susannah Firor, daughter of Daniel and Margaretta (Martin) Firor, members of a Maryland family that settled there in the days of Lord Baltimore (see sketch of Firor family in this volume). Mrs. Warrenfeltz was born in 1820 and died July 22, 1888. She was for many years a devout member of the Reformed Church. Mr. and Mrs. Warrenfeltz were the parents of the following children: Margaret S., died unmarried in 1900; Mary Jane, the wife of Charles M. Gall (see sketch); and Sarah, unmarried, at home with father. Two other children died young.

LEONARD RANDOLPH WAESCHE, a prominent citizen and business man of the town of Thurmont, was born on Double Pipe Creek, in Woodsboro district, Frederick county, March 31, 1846. He is a son of Henry and Catherine (Castle) Waesche.

Henry Waesche was for many years a prominent farmer and merchant on Double Pipe Creek, in Carroll county, Md. He was a native of Germany, where he was born in 1801, and was brought to this country by his uncle. He was raised in Baltimore City and after reaching manhood he located in Carroll county. He died in 1849 while on his way to the gold fields of California. While crossing the Isthmus of Panama, he contracted yellow fever and was buried on the Isthmus. In politics, he was a Democrat, and in religion he was a member of the Methodist Church. He was married to Catharine Castle, daughter of Leonard Castle, of Carroll county, Md. They were the parents of nine children: George, deceased; William, a farmer of Montgomery county, Md.; John, also a farmer in Montgomery county; Joseph, engaged in the mercantile business at Westminster, Md.; Rapold, deceased; Leonard Randolph; James Theodore, of Thurmont (see his sketch); Charles, of Baltimore; and Catharine, deceased.

Leonard Randolph Waesche, son of Henry and Catharine (Castle) Waesche, was reared on a farm, and received his education in the public schools. He also took a course at Eastman Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. In 1868, he embarked in the mercantile business at Thurmont, in which he remained for two years. In the summer of 1871, he entered the contracting and building business in Thurmont, in which he continued until 1882. In that year he became bookkeeper for J. B. Kunkle, at Catoctin Furnace, who was engaged in the manufacture of pig iron. This position he retained until 1887, when he became manager of the Catoctin Furnace. He continued in this place until 1892, when he was appointed postmaster of Thurmont by President Grover Cleveland. He held this office until 1897, at which time he became manager of the Monocacy Valley Railroad. In 1886, Mr. Waesche, in partnership with Stiner Schley, had built this line from Thurmont to Catoctin Furnace. Mr. Waesche is one of the well known business men and highly respected citizens of Thurmont. In politics, he is an adherent of the Democratic party.

Mr. Waesche was married in 1870, to Mary Martha Foreman, daughter of George W. and Phoebe (Wilhide) Foreman, of Thurmont. They are the parents of the following children: Daisy F., at home; George E., resides in New York, is a civil engineer and a graduate of Cornell University, and was for four years a professor in Purdue University, Ind.; Edna, the wife of Luther Zimmerman, of Emmitsburg, Md.; Mary A., a graduate of Purdue University, is a teacher at Tacoma, Wash.; Russell R., also a graduate of Purdue University, is a second lieutenant, in the United States Revenue Service; Phoebe Grace, a teacher at Tacoma, Wash.; and Donald and Clinton, both at home.

GLENN H. WORTHINGTON, Chief Judge of the Sixth Judicial District of Maryland, is a native of Urbana district, Frederick County, Md., where he was born April 22, 1858. He is a son of John T. and Mary R. (Simmons) Worthington.

The Worthington family is descended from Captain John Worthington, a native of England, who died at Annapolis, Md., in the year 1701. John H. Worthington, the grandfather of Glenn H. Worthington, was in his day a prominent farmer of Frederick County, Md.

John T. Worthington, the father of Glenn H. Worthington, was born March 31, 1826, and died in the village of Urbana, Frederick County, Md., March 28, 1905. He was one of the best known and leading agriculturists of Frederick County, and was highly respected by all who knew him. Politically, he was an adherent of the Democratic party, and he was affiliated in a religious way with the Protestant Episcopal Church. Mr. Worthington was married to Mary R. Simmons, also now deceased. They were the parents of three children that grew to maturity: John Henry, a merchant, of Staunton, Va.; Glenn H.; and Clark, associated with his brother in business in Staunton, Va.

Glenn H. Worthington, son of John T. and Mary R. (Simmons) Worthington, spent his boyhood days on the farm of his father near Frederick Junction. During the winter months he attended the public schools, and later spent several years at the Frederick City College. In August, 1881, Mr. Worthington went to Chicago, Ill., where he was engaged for some time in a wholesale house, subsequently being employed in the office of a large Insurance Company of that city. Having resolved to read law, he returned home, and began teaching school, that he might be self-sustaining while pursuing his legal studies. He taught in the Walkersville public school for a period of two years, and then desiring to have the benefit of a course of lectures at a law school, he sought and obtained a position as a teacher in one of the grammar schools of Baltimore City. Here he remained for two years, and with the income from his teaching defrayed his expenses while attending lectures at the School of Law of the University of Maryland, from which he graduated in May, 1887. The same year, Mr. Worthington returned to Frederick, and in January, 1888, he was appointed School Examiner for Frederick County, a position that he retained for nearly four years, resigning August 31, 1891, in order that he might devote his attention to the active practice of his profession. During his term as School Examiner, Mr. Worthington discharged his duties with ability, and did much for the cause of public education. Under his administration the schools were graded, the first high schools established in the county, and the whole course of public instruction reduced to a system.

After resigning his position as School Examiner, Mr. Worthington devoted himself assiduously to the practice of his chosen profession, in which he achieved much success and through his generally recognized ability soon built up a large and lucrative clientele. He is well grounded in the law, and until his elevation to the Bench was recognized as one of the ablest and most prominent members of the Frederick County Bar.

Politically, Mr. Worthington has always been a stanch adherent and active supporter of the Democratic party. In 1899, he was nominated by the Democratic party for State's Attorney of Frederick County, and was elected, receiving over six thousand votes, being the only Democrat to hold this office for over forty years. For several years, Mr. Worthington served as a member of the State Board of Education, having been appointed by Governor Warfield. Perhaps his most important service as a member of the board was his investigation of the question of industrial training for colored youth, upon which he recently made an exhaustive report. Mr. Worthington was the author of a proposed amendment to the Constitution of Maryland for the restriction of suffrage, which was favored by Governor Warfield, Attorney General Bryan and many others in preference to the Poe amendment, which was adopted by the Legislature but defeated at the polls. On November 16, 1907, Mr. Worthington was appointed by Governor Warfield as Chief Judge of the Sixth Judicial Circuit of Maryland, to fill the unexpired term caused by the death of the late Chief Judge James McSherry.

Fraternally, Judge Worthington is a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M.; Mountain City Lodge No. 29, Knights of Pythias; King David Lodge, I. O. O. F., No. 50; Palestine Encampment, No. 20; Chippewa Tribe, No. 19, I. O. R. M., of Frederick, Md. He is affiliated in a religious way with the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Judge Worthington was married April 30, 1890, to Julia Alvey, daughter of the late Hon. Richard H. Alvey, of Hagerstown, Md. Richard H. Alvey was Chief Judge of the Maryland Court of Appeals, and afterwards Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia. Judge and Mrs. Worthington are the parents of five living children: 1, Ruth; 2, Richard Alvey; 3, Julia; 4, Dorothy, and 5, John Clark.

CHARLES E. WILHIDE, farmer, residing two miles northwest of Thurmont, Mechanicstown District, Frederick County, Md., son of Arnold R. and Isabella (Wilhide) Wilhide, was born on a farm four miles west of Thurmont, August 16, 1862.

Mr. Wilhide's great-great-grandfather, Frederick Wilhide, a native of Germany, came to America with his two brothers and settled in Virginia. Mr. Wilhide afterwards removed to the northern part of Frederick County, Md., and is numbered among the first settlers of that county. He married, and among his children was a son named Frederick.

Frederick Wilhide, great-grandfather of Charles E. Wilhide, was born in the northern part of Frederick County where his childhood and youth were spent. He owned a valuable farm situated near Graceham, Md., adjoining the Moravian Church. After cultivating and improving this land for several years, Mr. Wilhide sold his property, and removed to Henry County, Ind., where he purchased a large tract of land on which he spent the remainder of his life. Frederick Wilhide was married to Catherine Peitzel. Their children are: 1, Benjamin; 2, Henry, deceased, a farmer, resided near Duffield, Pa.; 3, James, of Indiana; 4, Wilson, died in early manhood; 5, Mollie, deceased, married to the late John Boller, of Graceham, Md.; 6, Savilla, (Mrs. Gernand), of Graceham.

Mr. Wilhide's grandfather, Benjamin Wilhide, was born on his father's farm near Graceham, April 21, 1802. He grew up on the farm and remained with his father until after his marriage, when he began business for himself. For some years he engaged in hauling merchandise from point to point. He was successful in this business, and invested his gains in a large tract of timber land situated three and a-half miles from Thurmont, Md. Mr. Wilhide cleared a part of this land and made it his homestead. He was a worker in timber and owned the first saw-mill set up in that section of Maryland. The timber on his land was very valuable, especially the fine lots of poplar, and he hauled a great deal of popular lumber to Frederick, receiving a dollar for every hundred feet. He was an active business man and prospered in his undertakings. At the time of his death he owned 800 acres of excellent farm and timber land. Benjamin Wilhide was married to Mary B. Knouff. Of their nine children, eight reached adult age: 1, Josephine A., deceased; 2, Herbert, of Hagerstown, Md.; 3, Louisa, widow of Samuel Anders, of Thurmont, Md.; 4, Catherine, deceased; 5, Susan, deceased, married to Samuel Eyler; 6, Washington; 7, Arnold R; 8, Frederick M., a farmer of Mechanicstown District, Frederick County. Mr. Wilhide and his wife were active members of the Moravian Church. He died at his home near Thurmont, in 1871; his wife died in 1882.

Arnold R. Wilhide, father of Charles E. Wilhide, was born in Thurmont, Md., June 28, 1839. He was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained on the home farm until he was able to buy a small tract of land, and begin farming for himself. After cultivating this land for one year, Mr. Wilhide rented the Diffindall farm, four miles west of Thurmont, where he remained for five years. He then rented the Adam Brown farm in Emmitsburg District, Frederick County, and the next year removed to the William Brock farm. But, like his father, Mr. Wilhide loved the timber land, and after spending two years on the Brock farm, he sold his stock and bought 244 acres of excellent farm and timber land, a part of his father's estate. Here he remained for eighteen years engaged in getting out fine timber, and in burning charcoal for J. B. Kunkle, at Catoctin Furnace. Mr. Wilhide afterwards sold this land to a firm in New York, making a large profit, which he invested in his present home, a fine fruit farm and a tract of timber. This place of 186 acres, was a part of the old Eyler homestead, in the Eyler Valley, the property of J. O. Eyler. Mr. Wilhide now resides on the Eyler farm. He also owns a fertile farm of 40 acres on the line between Creagerstown and Mechanicstown Districts. He has made many improvements on his land and his farms are among the desirable properties of the district. Mr. Wilhide has had hard work and plenty of it, but is now able to enjoy the reward of all his toil. He is a Republican interested in all that concerns the progress of the district. At the breaking out of the Civil War, Mr. Wilhide hauled a load of merchandise to Winchester, Va., where he and his fine team barely escaped capture.

Arnold R. Wilhide was married to his cousin, Isabella, daughter of Henry and Catherine (Deppy) Wilhide, both deceased. Their children are: 1, Charles E., a farmer of Mechanicstown District, Frederick County; 2, David B., of Edgemont, Washington County, Md.; 3, John H., deceased; 4, Clara (Mrs. George Ridge), of Edgemont, Md.; 5, Jennie (Mrs. Alonza Williard), of Thurmont, Md.; 6, Florence (Mrs. John Mann), of Carroll County, Md.; 7, Emma (Mrs. Daniel Renner), deceased; 8, Addie, died unmarried; 9, Maggie (Mrs. Harry Buckenham), of Washington, D. C. Mrs. Wilhide died in 1890, and was buried in the cemetery of the United Brethren church at Thurmont. Seven years after the death of his wife, Mr. Wilhide was married to Julia, daughter of Samuel and Caroline (Briggs) Lidia, of Thurmont. Their children are: 1, Vivian V.; 2, Lewis M.; 3, Randolph; 4, Horras D.; 5, Oscar; 6, Raymond, all at home. Mr. Wilhide and his wife are members of the United Brethren church in Thurmont. He is a liberal contributor to all benevolent enterprises.

Charles E. Wilhide was educated in the public schools of Mechanicstown District, and remained on the home place with his father until after his marriage, when he purchased a small place adjoining the homestead, between Thurmont and Deerfield. Mr. Wilhide remained on this place for six years and, during this time, was engaged in various employments, in all of which he was successful. He next rented the Eyler farm in Eyler's Valley, which his father bought two years later. After cultivating this land for his father for five years, Mr. Wilhide rented a farm in Adams County, Pa. Two years after this he purchased his homestead, containing 113 acres of fine farm and timber land, the property of Josiah Flohr. His home is beautifully situated two miles north of Thurmont, on the road leading from the Emmitsburg pike to Eyler's Valley, only a short distance from the pike, and is furnished with a two-story dwelling, a bank barn, and convenient out-buildings. Mr. Wilhide has made many improvements and has greatly increased the value of his property. He owns some of the most valuable lots of timber in the district. His toil and care have made him a prosperous farmer and an influential man in the community where he is highly esteemed. He is a Republican, interested in all that concerns the best interests of the county.

Charles E. Wilhide was married to Martha A., daughter of John C. and Cecelia A. (Harbaugh) Eyler, whose father was a prominent farmer of Mechanicstown District. Of their thirteen children, eleven are living: 1, Clarence M.; 2, Ernest C.; 3, Bessie M.; 4, Mettie M.; 5, Martha A.; 6, Vada M.; 7, Leon; 8, Gelena R.; 9, Walter J.; 10, Binnie E.; 11, J. Lloyd; all at home. Mr. Wilhide and his family are members of the United Brethren church, to which he is a liberal contributor.

CHARLES MONROE UTZ, proprietor of a hotel and livery stable in New Market, Md., son of Bishop Samuel H. and Lucinda (Kelley) Utz, was born on a farm in New Market District, Frederick County, Md., September 29, 1869.

Daniel Utz, a minister of the German Baptist Church, great-great-grandfather of Charles M. Utz, was born in Amsterdam, Germany, October 22, 1728. He and his two brothers came to America at an early date. One of the brothers settled in Ohio, one in Virginia, and Daniel made his home near Hanover, York County, Pa. He died in York County, November 15, 1818, aged ninety years, and is buried at Hanover, Pa. His tombstone bears an inscription in German chiseled in English letters. His son, Daniel Utz, great-grandfather of Charles M. Utz, was born on a farm near Hanover, Pa., in 1769. He was married to Eve Bolinger. His life was spent in farming, first in York County and, afterwards in Cumberland Conuty, Pa. Mr. Utz died in 1851, in Cumberland County. He and his wife were members of the Dunkard Church.

John Utz, grandfather of Charles M. Utz, was born in York County, Pa., November 12, 1801. He was a deacon in the Church of the Brethren, and after his marriage settled near Gettysburg, Adams County, Pa., and some time afterwards removed to Maryland where he lived in Carroll and in Frederick Counties. John Utz was married to Elizabeth Hohf. Their children are: 1, Sarah; 2, Joseph H.; 3, Mary; 4, Isaac; 5, Elizabeth; 6, John; 7, Samuel H.; 8, Annie; 9, Eve. 10, Catherine. Mrs. Utz died in her forty-fifth year. The second wife of Mr. Utz was Mary Kuhn. They had no children. Mr. Utz died in 1870.

Samuel H. Utz father of Charles M. Utz, elder of the Pleasant Hill Church of the Brethren, near Monrovia, Md., was born on his father's farm, near Gettysburg, Pa., August 4, 1840. He attended the public schools of the county and continued his studies at home. He received excellent religious training, as his parents were devout Christians, members of the German Baptist Church. When he was five or six years of age, his parents removed to Carroll County, Md., and settled near Taneytown, and some years later, they again changed their home, this time to Frederick County, Md. The foundation for his ministerial studies was laid in early life. When he was only fourteen, he manifested an intense desire to read the New Testament. His father had warned him against overworking his horses, therefore he stopped frequently to rest them, and at such times he would pull his little testament from his pocket, and rest himself with the Word of God. When the little book was soiled with sweat, and worn or torn he would replace it with a new copy. Mr. Utz worked hard on his father's farm, and remained at home until he had reached his 25th year. The hard work and the reading he did in the intervals of rest, have proved to be of great value to him in his work in the ministry. He became a member of the church in 1858, when he was baptized at Bush Creek church. In 1871, he was made a deacon, and on September 6, 1875, was elected to the ministry by Elders Isaac Foutz and Solomon Stoner, of the Beaver Dam church. He was ordained to the Eldership, May 20, 1892. Besides his devoted work in his own charge, the Rev. Samuel Utz has preached in many parts of Virginia and Pennsylvania. He has officiated at numberless funerals, baptisms and marriages. During his ministerial career of thirty-three years, he has endeavored, earnestly and prayerfully, to lead the fallen into the path of righteousness. Mr. Utz has always been an independent voter. Samuel H. Utz was married, February 6, 1866, to Lucinda M. J., daughter of John and Catherine (Gillespie) Kelley. Their children are: 1, Charles Monroe; 2, Silas Kelley, a merchant in New Market, Md., born January 8, 1872, married Ida Etchison, has five children, Ruth, Harvey, Norman, Henry and Margie; 3, Cora Alice (Mrs. George A. McDaniel), of Denton, Md., born February 3, 1875, has three children, S. Alton, Mary Alice, and George A.; 4, Dora Edith, born November 27, 1877, married J. G. Thomas, M. D., of Adamstown, Md., has two children, Dorothy Edith and Virginia; 5, Addie Lucinda, (Mrs. Walter E. Burrall), of New-Market district, born February 25, 1879, has three children, Jesse M., Mary Lucinda, and Cora Edith; 6, John Samuel, a merchant of West Falls, Md., born January 10, 1882, married Helen Shank, have one child, Francis M.; 7, Mary Ellen, born September 25, 1884, at home. Mrs. Utz was born in Adams County, Pa., December 4, 1845. Both of her parents died in Frederick County.

Charles Monroe Utz began his education in the public schools of his native county under Miss Sally Norris, and continued his studies under William Davis, now a prominent minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and Mr. John Rudy and others. When he was eighteen, he entered the Virginia Normal School, now known as Bridgewater College, Bridgewater, Va., where he spent two years. In 1889, soon after his return to Maryland, Mr. Utz began business as a generl merchant at New Market, Md., where he had a large and increasing trade. After his marriage, in 1892, he sold his business to his brother, Silas K. Utz, and purchased a farm of 150 acres situated a mile and a half from New Market, Md., which he cultivated and improved until 1895. In the same year, he sold his personal property and, soon after, moved his family to New Market, and accepted the position of deputy warden at the Maryland House of Correction, at Jessups, Md. At the end of two years, Mr. Utz again engaged in business in New Market, until January, 1908, when he became the proprietor of Hotel Utz, with a livery attached. Mr. Utz has always been an ardent Democrat, giving his undivided support to the candidates of that party, and working indefatigably in their interest.

Charles Monroe Utz was married, November 24, 1891, to Rosa E., second child and daughter of Jasper and Susie (Engler) Shriner, of Linwood, Carroll County, Md., thus joining two of the best known families of Carroll County. Their children are: 1, Samuel Shriner, born May 31, 1893; 2, Susie Lucinda, born June 9, 1895; 3, Charles Monroe, Jr., born November 30, 1905. On February 6, 1890, Mr. Utz was baptized into the Church of the German Baptist Brethren, in which he has been a teacher and superintendent of the Sunday School for many years. He is also a trustee in the Pleasant Hill Church of the Brethren, and a member of the building committee that had charge of the erection of the new edifice and was one of the promoters and the first President of Pleasant Hill Cemetery Association. Mrs. Utz became a member of the Pipe Creek Church of the Brethren at thirteen. After her marriage her membership was transferred by letter, to the Pleasant Hill church, where she has been a teacher in the Sunday School for more than ten years.

HENRY UNVERZAGT, retired from business, a prominent merchant and farmer of Harmony, Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., son of John and Caroline (Pabst) Unverzagt, was born near Hesse Darmstadt, Germany, May 28, 1833.

The late John Unverzagt, father of Henry Unverzagt, was a German, a prominent officer in the army of that country. He was Land Inspector and discharged the duties of that office with credit. He was highly respected as an officer and as a citizen. John Unverzagt was married to Caroline Pabst, also a German. Their lives were spent in their native country where he died in January, 1852.

Henry Unverzagt was educated in private schools in Germany, and remained with his parents, and was employed for some time as his father's bookkeeper. After his father's death, Mr. Unverzagt spent two months settling his father's business for his mother. Then, as he greatly desired to see America, he sailed for that country on the last of March, 1852. He landed in New York, went to Philadelphia, Pa., thence to Baltimore, Md., and finally settled at his present home near Harmony, then Bellsville, Frederick County, Md. There he learned shoemaking with Mr. Conrad Smith, with whom he worked satisfactorily for six years. Mr. Unverzagt then bought from Mr. Smith the house and shop and began shoemaking for himself. He was very successful and built up a large trade employing as many as six journeymen at one time, and supplying footwear for that whole section of country. In 1866, Mr. Unverzagt opened a store for the sale of produce, still continuing shoemaking. In this undertaking he was equally successful and continued in the business for some years. He afterwards sold the produce business to his brother-in-law, Charles C. Coblentz. Mr. Unverzagt was also engaged in farming, and owns several valuable farm properties near Harmony. He is a Democrat, interested in county affairs, and is highly respected by his fellow citizens. He was appointed, by Governor Carroll, one of the assessors for the Third District. In 1885, he was made agent for the Grangers Fire Insurance Company, of Middletown, and is very successful in that business also.

Henry Unverzagt was married to Magdalene E., daughter of Ludwig and Magdalene E. (Bent) Ropp. Mrs. Unverzagt's parents were Germans who came to America in early life. Her father became prominent among the farmers of Indiana. The children of Henry and Magdalene (Ropp) Unverzagt are: 1, Charles H., of New York City, N. Y.; 2, John L., of Baltimore, Md.; 3, Daniel W., real estate agent, New York City; 4, James T., Insurance agent Washington, D. C. Mr. Unverzagt and his wife are members of the Evangelical Lutheran church in Middletown, Md. Mr. Unverzagt is an active worker in the church.

SAMUEL AMOS URNER, a member of the well known Insurance firm of Devilbiss & Urner, with offices at No. 111 North Market street, Frederick City, was born on a farm in Liberty district, Frederick county, October 4, 1855. He is a son of Jonas and Tabitha R. (Norris) Urner. (For history of the Urner family see the sketch of Hon. Milton G. Urner).

Jonas Urner was a son of Samuel Urner, and died in 1895, aged seventy-two years. He was a farmer on the homestead, which his father cultivated before him. He was a sincere Christian and a man of strict integrity. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. Mr. Urner was married to Tabitha R. Norris. She died in 1892, aged sixty-nine years. They were the parents of six children: Susan E., the widow of John Engler; Samuel Amos; Mollie T., deceased, was the wife of Dr. F. H. Sidwell, of Johnsville, Md.; Catherine, died in childhood; Olivia G., died unmarried; and Laura, the wife of Jesse E. Clary, a farmer of Linganore district.

Samuel Amos Urner, son of Jonas and Tabitha R. (Norris) Urner, passed his boyhood on the old Urner homestead in Liberty district. His education was secured in the public schools and Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md. Upon the completion of his education, Mr. Urner became a clerk in the store of C. E. Saylor at Johnsville, Frederick County, Md., where he remained for one year. He then returned to the old farm, and followed agricultural pursuits until 1899. In that year he came to Frederick, and embarked in the fire insurance business, forming a partnership with Edwin Devilbiss, who is the present cashier of the Walkersville Savings Bank. Mr. Urner is one of the leading insurance men in Frederick County, and is agent for many of the largest and most substantial companies in the world. He has been very successful in this business, but this is not surprising since it has always been his aim to insure his customers in the best and most reliable concerns in the country. Mr. Urner is one of Frederick's well known citizens and is highly respected. He is the owner of a fine farm, containing 105 acres of limestone land, which is kept in a condition of improvement that shows careful attention.

In politics, Mr. Urner, since attaining his majority, has voted the Republican ticket. He served as school commissioner of Frederick County from 1898 to 1902, discharging his duties very satisfactorily. In religion, he holds membership in the Methodist Episcopal church, being one of the trustees of the church.

Mr. Urner was married January 20, 1887, to Annie M. McKinstry, daughter of Joseph and Margaret McKinstry, of McKinstry, Carroll County, Md. There are no children by this marriage.

GEORGE THOMAS MARSHALL MARTIN, deceased, a well known farmer of Emmitsburg district, Frederick County, Md., son of Abiah and Sophia (Kerns) Martin, was born at the homestead in 1841.

Mr. Martin's grandfather, John Martin, owned and cultivated the farm now occupied by N. C. Stansbury. He was a blacksmith and had his smithy on the farm. He was married to Sophia Currens. Their children are: 1, Joseph; 2, Abiah; 3, George; 4, Barbara (Mrs. William Black); 5, Elizabeth (Mrs. Samuel Valentine).

It is supposed that Abiah Martin, Mr. Martin's father, was born at the homestead, where he spent his childhood and youth. He learned blacksmithing with his father at the homestead. After he married he moved to Adams County, Pa.; later he moved to a farm on Beaver Branch, and, for a time, worked at the trade just over the line, in Adams County, Pa. After his marriage, Mr. Martin purchased a farm lying along Beaver Branch, in Emmitsburg district, Frederick County, Md., which he cultivated until the time of his death. Abiah Martin was married to Sophia Currens, who lived near Taneytown, Md. Their children are: 1, George Thomas Marshall; 2, James P., married Margaret Bollinger, resides near Thurmont; 3, Mary (Mrs. William Smith), deceased; 4, Harvey, resides near Hagerstown, Md., married Annie Smith; 5, John, deceased, married Virginia Lohr. Abiah Martin died at his homestead in 1880, aged seventy-one; his widow died in 1889, aged sixty-nine.

George T. M. Martin grew up on the home farm on Beaver Creek, and attended the public school, the so-called "Mud College," of his native district. The son of a farmer, he devoted his life to the cultivation of the soil and, after his marriage, began farming for himself on what is now the N. C. Stansbury place. Three years later, he moved to a farm in Emmitsburg district, the property of Mr. Whitmore, which he cultivated until the time of his death. Mr. Martin was a stanch Democrat.

George Thomas Marshall Martin was married, November 3, 1863, to Mary Ellen, daughter of David and Rebecca (Johnson) Whitmore. Their children are: 1, Cora (Mrs. Grayson Welty), resides near Mount Morris, Ill., has five children, Mary M., deceased, Howard, deceased, V. Rebecca, Eva and Murray; 2, Adelia Bruce, (Mrs. Oliver Eyler), of Hagerstown, Md., has five children, George Allen, Murray E., Mary Veda Grace, Hazel Rebecca, and Luella Catherine; 3, Howard K., married Minnie Harbaugh, has five children, Morris, Joseph, Mary Rachel, David H., deceased, and ————, deceased; 4, Nevin, on the home farm, married Phoebe Eigenbrode; one son, George; 5, Grace R. (Mrs. John Baumgardner), of Emmitsburg district, has six children, Addie Ruth, Edith Grace, Raymond Earl, Marian, George M., and John Lester; 6, Russell, died, aged four, 7, Murray, is married to Mary McPentz, one little son, Joseph Pentz. Mr. Martin was a member of the Reformed church in Emmitsburg. He died on the home farm, October 14, 1884, and is buried in Mountain View cemetery in Emmitsburg, Md.

Benjamin Whitmore, the founder of the family in America, came, it is said from Germany, but, if the name is spelled correctly, the family is certainly of English descent. Mr. Whitmore was a poor man, and settled on the farm in Frederick County, on which Mrs. G. T. M.

Martin now resides. This place has been in the family ever since Benjamin Whitmore came to America. Each generation has improved and added to the land until it now contains 160 acres of fertle land in excellent condition. Abraham Whitmore succeeded his father in 18—. He was married to Elizabeth Yerty. Some of their children are: 1, Christian; 2, Benjamin; 3, David; 4, Mary (Mrs. Henry Martin), moved to Geneseo, N. Y. They visited their old home making the trip in their wagon. An amusing incident of this ride is frequently related. They said that in their country they had no flies while in Frederick County, the flies annoyed their horses to such an extent that they were obliged to buy nets. Christian Whitmore, grandfather of Mrs. Martin, spent his life on the home farm. He was married to Elizabeth Sheely. Their children are: 1, Abraham, died in youth; 2, Simon; 3, Joseph; 4, David; 5, Ephraim; 6, Levi; 7, Frederick; 8, Barbara.

Mrs. Martin's father, David Whitmore, also spent his whole life on the home farm. He was married to Rebecca Johnson. Their only child is Mary Ellen (Mrs. G. T. M. Martin). David Whitmore and his wife were members of the Reformed Church. He died at the homestead, May 3, 1889, aged 79 years. His widow died at the same place, February, 1906, in her ninetieth year.

JAMES W. TROXELL, (deceased), a gentleman of learning and experience, son of Joseph and Amy (Haff) Troxell, was born in Frederick County, Md., April 1, 1831.

Mr. Troxell's grandfather, Frederick Troxell, was a direct descendant of Frederick Troxell the first settler in this community. He was married to Susan Wilson. Their children are: Joseph; Frederick, married Sarah Rowe; Catherine, (Mrs. Jones); Thomas, married Naomi Hause, of Catonsville.

Joseph Troxell, father of James W. Troxell, a farmer of Frederick County, Md., was married to Amy Haff, a sister of the late Abraham Haff, pharmacist with Fairfax Schley, M. D. Their children are: James Wilson; Francis Katherine, married Benj. Poole; Anna Elizabeth, married John Miller. Susan Rebecca, married Joel Myers.

James W. Troxell, a prominent citizen of Emmitsburg, Frederick County, Md., was married to Miss Mary E. Zacharias, of Frederick County, Md. Their children are: 1, Mary (Mrs. Harry Stonesifer), of Emmitsburg, Md.; 2, Florida, at home; 3, Thomas Wilson, graduated from Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., in 1898, began teaching at Morven, N. C., spent seven years as principal of the High School, Brunswick, Md., was made principal of the high school in Front Royal, Va., in 1907, was married in 1901, to Miss Minnie F. Faber, of Carlisle, Pa., daughter of the late George Faber, has one child, William Barbour Russell, born August 24, 1902; 4, Irene (Mrs. J. W. Flemming), has one child, Walter Wolf; 5, Naomi (Mrs. C. C. Clemson), living near Frederick, has three children, Paul Hamilton, Frank C., and Frederick Wilson; 6, Marian, was married to Wilbur H. Otto, of Key Mar, Carroll County, Md., January 19, 1910; 7, Elizabeth, was married to Charles E. Abrahams, Jr., of Baltimore, on October 5, 1909. Mr. Troxell died suddenly, at Rocky Ridge, Md., February 2, 1904.

"A SUDDEN DEATH."

"Mr. James W. Troxell, a prominent resident of Frederick County, Md., and a member of the Board of Charities and Correction, died suddenly at Rocky Ridge, Frederick County, Md., February 2, 1904. Mr. Troxell, who resided near Emmitsburg, on the morning of February second, took a train from Emmitsburg for Rocky Ridge, where he intended to take a train on the Western Maryland Railroad. A short distance from its destination, the train encountered a snow-drift and stopped. Fearing that they might miss the Western Maryland train, if they stopped until the drift was opened, the passengers left the train, and started to walk to Rocky Ridge. They had gone but a short distance when Mr. Troxell, overcome by fatigue, fell in the snow. Members of the party, rushing to his assistance, found him unconscious. He was carried to a home near by, where he died in a short time. The physicians gave as the cause of death, paralysis of the heart. Mr. Troxell was born in Frederick County, Md., April 1, 1831, and was seventy-two years of age. In 1856, he graduated from Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., and four years later, received the degree of Master of Arts from that institution. Prior to the Civil War, Mr. Troxell taught school for some years in Augusta, Georgia. Later he returned to Frederick County, and for the last thirty-five years has been engaged in farming and surveying. In politics he was a Democrat, and during his career held several important positions under his party, all of which he filled with great credit to himself and to the people whom he represented. His wife and seven children, one son and six daughters, survive him. Mr. Troxell was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and until his death, he was connected with Tom's Creek Church, of Thurmont Circuit. The ground on which the new Tom's Creek Church stands, was donated by Brother Troxell, and we are certain that had he remained to see its completion, he would have contributed even more largely to this enterprise. In the death of this man the community loses a most worthy citizen; the church a friend and brother; and the home a good provider. Yet our loss is his eternal gain. To the bereaved ones we extend our heartfelt sympathies, and pray that under this deep affliction, they may trust in Him who has promised that all things shall work together for good to them that love Him. The funeral services were held at his late residence, the Rev. G. W. Harris, his pastor, officiating, assisted by the Rev. A. M. Gluck, of the Reformed Church. Interment was made in Mountain View Cemetery, Emmitsburg, Md."

WILLIAM HOWARD SMITH, deputy sheriff of Frederick county under G. Ed. Myers and William G. Grimes, and a prominent citizen, was born in Tuscarora district, about five miles north-west of Frederick, August 17, 1862. He is a son of Perry Green and Susannah Rebecca Smith.

Joseph Smith, the grandfather of William Howard Smith, emigrated to America from Germany with his parents when a young boy. His parents located in Pennsylvania, and he came from that State to Maryland, where he remained until he died at the age of eighty-four.

Perry Green Smith, the father of William H. Smith, was a native of Frederick county, Md., where he was born December 1, 1820, and died January 6, 1892. He worked on a farm in his early life and learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed for fifty years or more, in conjunction with the undertaking business. Many buildings in the county bear record of his excellent workmanship. He was a man of exemplary habits and was held in high esteem by the people of his community. Mr. Smith was married to Susannah Rebecca Geesey. She was born April 10, 1824, and died March 8, 1907. She was of English parentage, and was the mother of eleven children, all of whom she lived to see married. She was a very industrious, hard working woman, a kind and good mother, and very useful in the neighborhood in times of sickness and death.

William Howard Smith, son of Perry Green and Susannah Rebecca Smith, was reared on his father's small farm near what is now Charlesville, Frederick County, on which place he now lives and is its owner. In his early years he helped his father on the farm and at the carpenter and undertaking business, and attended the public schools during the winter months until he came of age. Not being satisfied with his limited education, he borrowed money from his mother and became a student at Frederick College, going back and forth each day, a distance of five miles, most of the time on horseback but often walking the entire journey. The first year he took the higher English course under Professor E. C. Sheppard, and the second year the classical course under Professor Thomas Gatch. He was a hard working student and held a prominent place in his class, winning the respect and esteem of his teachers and schoolmates. At the end of his classical year, he took the teachers' examination and passed with much credit. He procured a school and took up the profession of teaching. During the summer vacation, Mr. Smith attended the Millersville Normal School, Millersville, Pa., and on his return took the teachers' examination, receiving the highest average. At the expiration of the next year's teaching he took a commercial course at Palms Commercial School, Philadelphia, Pa., graduating from that institution, August 14, 1891. For nine consecutive years he continued to teach, after which he purchased the stock and fixtures of Hiram Z. Zimmerman, a merchant at Charlesville, Md., and conducted a general merchandise business at that place. Mr. Smith was appointed postmaster of the town, which position he held until rural free delivery was established. He had but very small capital to start his enterprise but by his sterling integrity and prompt attention to business, Mr. Smith soon built up a lucrative trade. He established a delivery system, taking orders and delivering goods for several miles around his place of business. He would be the first to start out with team and shovel and force through snow-bound roads and fields in order to get goods to keep his customers supplied. After having been in business for thirteen years, he sold out his establishment to his nephew, Hench E. M. Smith.

In politics, Mr. Smith is a Republican, as was his father and six brothers, this family having cast eight ballots for that party at one election. By his influence and political activity, he has transferred Tuscarora district from a strong Democratic to a Republican district. He has been a party worker for twenty-five years. He was appointed office deputy by Sheriff George Ed. Myers, December 1, 1907, and has filled the office with integrity, impartiality, and courtesy to all with whom he has had business transactions. He has won the esteem and confidence of the legal fraternity and the court officials. During his business career, no one was ever turned away empty, no matter how bad their reputation for credit was. By so doing, he of course lost quite a sum of money, but nevertheless made his undertaking a financial success.

In religion, Mr. Smith is a consistent and active member of the Reformed Church, having been almost continuously a deacon or elder and Sunday school superintendent in Zion's Reformed Church of Charlesville. He has represented his charge as delegate elder to classis. In the new edifice of the Reformed Church at Charlesville, after the previous building had been destroyed by fire, he had erected a memorial window in honor of his father and mother. He is a cheerful giver to religious causes and needy people. He is ever ready to lend a helping hand to anything that would tend to the betterment of his neighborhood and county.

JACOB ROHRBACK, a leading, actively energetic and representative citizen and prominent as one of the ablest and most successful members of the Frederick County Bar, was born in Frederick City, August 23, 1863, being a son of Martin N. and Ellen Catherine (Brunner) Rohrback, both deceased.

The Rohrback family is of ancient and respected German origin, the founder of the American branch coming to this country during the eighteenth century. Jacob Rohrback, the grandfather of the present Jacob Rohrback, was a native of Washington County, Md., born March 16, 1787, and died July 30, 1853. He served as a soldier in the War of 1812, and marched with his command to the defense of the city of Baltimore, when that place was threatened by the British invaders in 1814, his military services being of a creditable type. He was married to Mary Smith, a native of Pennsylvania, by whom he became the father of twelve children, now all deceased with the sole exception of Mrs. Jane Bowman, of Dallas, Texas. Jacob Rohrback was an old-line Whig in his political principles, and took an earnest interest in all the issues of his day. He was a consistent member of the Reformed Church in the matter of religious faith, and ranked high in the community in which he lived as a thoroughly reputable and worthy citizen.

Martin N. Rohrback, son of Jacob and Mary (Smith) Rohrback, was born in Sharpsburg, Washington County, Md., September 4, 1832, and died in Frederick City, July 11, 1900. He removed from Washington county to Frederick County while still a young man and shortly afterward, on November 3, 1859, was married to Ellen Catharine Brunner, a daughter of John Brunner, of Jacob, through whom she was allied to one of the oldest and most respected of Frederick County families. In politics Mr. Rohrback was a life long Democrat and an earnest upholder of his party's principles, although he never held public office, having no ambitions in that direction and preferring to be numbered among the rank and file of his organization. He was a member of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick City, in the work of which he took an active interest, and at the time of his death he was one of Frederick's best known citizens and esteemed by all with whom he had intercourse. Five children were born to Martin N. and Ellen Catharine (Brunner) Rohrback, three of whom attained maturity, namely, Jacob, the subject of this review; Charles, a leading and successful farmer of Buckeystown district, and Allen, who died at the age of thirty-two years.

Jacob Rohrback, son of Martin N. and Ellen Catharine (Brunner) Rohrback, was reared in his native city, where as a lad he attended the public schools, subsequently entering the Frederick City College, and still later becoming a student at Mount St. Mary's College at Emmitsburg, Md., from which latter institution he was graduated in 1882, with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Having a natural taste for the study of law, he determined to make that profession his work in life, and accordingly attended the law school of the University of Maryland, from which he was graduated in the spring of 1885, with the degree of Bachelor of Laws. Returning to his old home in Frederick, he at once established himself in the practice of his profession and has since actively been engaged in that line, attaining an eminence and success far above the common. As a lawyer, Mr. Rohrback enjoys a high and well deserved reputation. He possesses a broad legal knowledge and has been noted for the conscientious care with which he devotes himself to his clients' best interests. He has figured in much litigation of an exceedingly important character and has in every instance acquitted himself with an ability which has served to increase his wide repute as a skillful practitioner. His advice is sought by the most important interests, and it is significant in this connection that his opinions in matters of moment are generally upheld by the courts before whom they are urged or presented.

A Democrat in his political affiliations, Mr. Rohrback has long been prominent as a party leader, his opinions carrying weight in the councils of the organization, and his influence proving of a most extended type. In 1887 he was elected as a delegate to the Maryland Legislature, and his services in the House in the session of 1888 were of a character that gained for him the general approbation of his constituents, irrespective of partisan lines. In the fall of 1899, he was elected to the State Senate as a Democrat for a period of four years, and once more justified the faith of his party and the people at large, his record as a Senator being most creditable and of public value. In 1905, he was appointed by Governor Warfield as a member of the Jamestown Exposition Commission, in which capacity he served with notable ability, representing his State in that body in a manner that reflected honor upon himself as well as upon the Commonwealth. In 1908 he was appointed by Governor Crothers a member of the Maryland Commission on Uniform State Laws.

Mr. Rohrback possesses many important interests outside of his profession, and he has long been regarded as a public spirited citizen, who has contributed materially to the development of Frederick and proved a potential factor in the advancement of both his city and county. He is president of and attorney for the Frederick Gas and Electric Company, a director of and counsel for the Fredericktown Savings Institution of Frederick City, and a director in the Woman's College of Frederick.

Mr. Rohrback ranks high in Freemasonry, both in his county and State. He takes a keen interest in the welfare of the order and is a master of its mysteries. He is a Past Master of Lynch Lodge, No. 163, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons of Frederick, and is a Royal Arch Mason. He belongs to Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar, Enoch Royal Arch Chapter, No. 10, and Enoch Council No. 10 of Royal and Select Masters. He is a Past Junior Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge of Maryland, and no man in the order is more popular or more favorably known throughout the fraternity than he. Mr. Rohrback holds membership in the Evangelical Reformed church of Frederick City, in which he is an elder, his religious work being of a practical character that has done much in promoting the welfare of the congregation.

Mr. Rohrback was married March 1, 1892, to Ida Rebecca Ramsburg, a daughter of John S. and Drusilla (Beeson) Ramsburg, of Frederick City. Mrs. Rohrback is a most estimable and highly intelligent lady, popular in the social life of her city and well adapted to preside as the mistress of her husband's refined and hospitable home. Mr. and Mrs. Rohrback have no children.

THOMAS L. SMITH, one of the enterprising and successful agriculturists of Frederick County, lives on "Hopeland" farm in Urbana district. He is a native of Washington, D. C., in which city he was born September 8, 1864. He is a son of Thomas Henry and Emily (Watson) Smith.

Thomas Henry Smith was an Englishman by birth. He came to this country when a young man, and engaged in farming in Prince George's County, Md. He was married to Emily Watson, of Prince George's County. They were both Episcopalians in religion. They were the parents of three children: Thomas L., subject of this sketch; Johanna Rebecca, married George Curtis, and died three days after her marriage; and William Frances, of Prince George's county, Md., was married twice, to sisters of the name of Perry.

Thomas L. Smith, son of Thomas Henry and Emily (Watson) Smith, attended the public schools of his neighborhood part of each year until he was eighteen years old. He was reared to agricultural pursuits. After reaching maturity, he followed the butchering business in Washington, D. C., for ten years. He was then employed in the Pensnylvania car shops for a time. In April, 1903, he removed to Frederick County, Md., and turned his attention to farming. Politically, he is a Democrat, and holds membership in a Christian Church in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Smith was married in 1899, to Lenora Horman, daughter of William H. Horman, whose sketch see. They are the parents of three daughters, namely: Bertie Lenora, Mary Evelyn and Verona Irene.

JOSIAH F. SMITH, well-known among the older farmers of Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., son of the late John and Catherine (Garnand) Smith, was born on his father's farm in Catoctin District, October 5, 1840.

John Smith, Sr., grandfather of Josiah F. Smith, was a resident of Winchester, Va., and was married to Elizabeth Dussing. They had one son, John. John Smith, Sr., died in early manhood, and when her husband died, Mrs. Smith and her son removed to Frederick County, Md. She afterwards became the wife of Solomon Routzahn.

The late John Smith, farmer and dealer in lumber, father of Josiah F. Smith, was born in Winchester, Va., in March, 1804. He remained with his mother until he married and began business for himself. He was employed in getting out material for cooperage, and made shingles by hand. He was industrious and applied himself closely to his business in which he was so successful that he was able to purchase 170 acres of timber land. He worked hard to clear a part of this land, and at the age of sixty, was ready to begin farming. In this also, by industry and hard work, he was successful and spent the remainder of his life in cultivating and improving his land. Mr. Smith was a Democrat, and greatly esteemed by his fellow citizens. John Smith, Jr., was married to Catherine, daughter of Daniel and Hannah (Warrenfeltz) Garnand both deceased. Their children are: 1, Solomon U., deceased; 2, Daniel, removed to Kansas; 3, Jacob C., of Wolfsville, Md.; 4, Adam, of Zion City, Ill.; 5, Ezra E., deceased; 6, Josiah F.; 7, Caroline, married to the late C. Stottlemyer, of Zion City, Ill. Mr. Smith and his wife were members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Wolfsville, Md.

Josiah F. Smith was educated in the public schools of Catoctin District. He remained at home, assisting his father and learning practical farming until he married, when he began business for himself on his grandmother's farm, which he cultivated for fifteen years. He then purchased a farm of 80 acres to which he has added from time to time. He now has a valuable property of 187 acres. It consists of fertile land and valuable timber lots. On it he has erected a comfortable two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn, and other necessary buildings. He has also improved the quality of the land which is now very productive. He has a fine orchard of peach and apple trees which yield abundant crops, and amply repay him for his labor and attention. His place is considered one of the fine farms of the district. Mr. Smith afterwards bought another farm of 67 acres near Wolfsville. This poperty he sold to his son, George A. Smith. Mr. Smith ascribes his success to hard work and attention to business. He is a member of the Democratic party, and highly esteemed in the community. He is one of the trustees of the Woodland public school.

Josiah F. Smith was married to Ellen A., daughter of George P. and Sophia (Bussard) Fox, of Hauvers District, both deceased. Of their eleven children, ten reached adult age: 1, Alvey J., M. D., of Jefferson, Md.; 2, Ida M., (Mrs. Irving Morgan), of Catoctin District; 3, Teressa M., deceased, married Elmer Brandenburg, of Wolfsville, Md.; 4, George A., a farmer of Catoctin District; 5, J. Newton, building contractor, at home; 6, Frisby L., deceased; 7, Thomas K., at home; 8, Fairce E., a farmer of Catoctin District; 9, Raymond L., at home; 10, Luella I., at home. Mr. Smith and his wife are members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Wolfsville, Md., and is a liberal contributor to benevolent enterprises. He was one of the committee for remodeling the church edifice, and has served the congregation for years as deacon and as elder.

GEORGE EDWARD SMITH, one of the best known and most prominent citizens and present Mayor of the city of Frederick, Md., is a native of Washington County, Md., where he was born November 11, 1850. He is a son of George and Martha (Redgrave) Smith. George Smith followed agricultural pursuits.

George Edward Smith received the greater part of his education in the public schools, and at the age of thirteen years, he took up the study of music under General J. M. Deems, an art for which he displayed exceptional aptitude. He soon became exceedingly proficient, and became a professor in every sense of the word. He is a competent organist and pianist and is equally accomplished in playing many band and orchestral instruments. As a vocalist, Professor Smith is regarded as one of the finest baritones in the United States. Professor Smith for over thirty years has been the organist, choir director and soloist of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick, which is of the most fashionable in the city.

In politics, Mr. Smith has always been a stanch adherent and active supporter of the Democratic party. He served as a member of the Board of Supervisors of Election of Frederick county, and in that position discharged his duties with much ability. In 1901, he was nominated and elected Mayor of Frederick, and upon the completion of his term, he was again elected in 1904, and in 1907, reelected for his third successive term. Since his incumbency of the office, Mr. Smith has discharged its duties with an ability and sagacity that stamp him as a man of high executive capacity. During his terms of office many needed municipal improvements have been made. In political circles, he is of the strenuous class, and has always proved a popular candidate. He is one of Frederick's best known and most prominent citizens, and is held in the highest esteem by all. Public spirited, Mr. Smith always has the best interests of the public in mind. No better evidence of the high regard in which he is held by his fellow-townsmen is needed than his three successive elections to the mayoralty.

Mr. Smith is also exceedingly prominent in fraternal circles. He is a member of the Masonic order, in which he has attained the thirty-second degree. He is a member of Lynch Lodge, No. 163, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons; Enoch Chapter, Royal Arch Masons; Jacques de Molay Commandery, Knights Templar, Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, Frederick City Lodge No. 100, I. O. O. F., and of the Mystic Shrine of Boumi Temple, Baltimore, Md.

Mr. Smith was married in 1903, to Julia A. Mason, of Shepherdstown, West Va., a descendant of an old and highly respected Southern family.

JOSHUA SUMMERS, a well-known, retired farmer of Myersville, Frederick County, Md., son of the late George W. and Catherine R. (Michael) Summers, (both deceased,) was born on the old Summers homestead, near Harmony, Md., May 24, 1845.

The grand-father of Joshua Summers, a native of Germany, came to America in early manhood, and finally settled in the upper part of the Middletown Valley, where he spent the remainder of his life. His son, Jacob Summers, grandfather of Joshua Summers, passed his whole life in farming. He owned a valuable property in the northern part of the Middletown Valley, and was pominent among the farmers of his generation. Jacob Summers was married to Elizabeth Horine. He died in 1848; his wife died ————. Both are buried in the graveyard at Church Hill.

The late George W. Summers, father of Joshua Summers, a well-known farmer of the Middletown Valley, was born on the family homestead in the northern part of the valley, April 29, 1802. He received his education in the public schools of his native district, and remained on the home farm, working with his father until he reached his twenty-second year, when he began business for himself. He was, at first, engaged in hauling over the road to Baltimore, Md., and a few years later, engaged in farming with his brother-in-law, John Putman. At the end of five years, Mr. Summers purchased a farm from Mr. Hulsopple, and spent the remainder of his life cultivating and improving his property. He was very successful in farming, and some years later bought another fertile farm, of the Coblentz heirs, lying two miles and ahalf south of Middletown. Afterwards he bought the Kenney place, a farm of 182 acres, adjoining his first property about one mile south of Harmony. Mr. Summers also owned the Oakland Mill property; the Old Woollen Mills at Bellsville, which he purchased of Captain David Kailor; two houses in Bellsville, and 75 acres of valuable timber land. Mr. Summers was a Democrat, interested in local affairs, and highly esteemed by his fellow citizens. He ascribes his success to honest labor, and close application to business. George W. Summers was married, December 2, 1825, to Catherine, daughter of Henry and Catherine (Michael) Michael, who was born January 26, 1804. Her father was a well-known farmer of the Middletown Valley. The children of George W. and Catherine (Michael) Summers are: 1, the late Henry W., a farmer of Mount Philipp, Braddock District, Frederick County, Md.; 2, Jacob V., retired farmer, of Tuscarora District, Frederick county, Md.; 3, the late John B. Summers; 4, Samuel, a retired farmer, of Frederick City, Md.; 5, David W.; 6, Joshua, a retired farmer of Myesville, Jackson District, Frederick County; and three who died in childhod. Mrs. Summers was a member of the Reformed Church in Middletown, Md. She died February 27, 1875, and is buried in the cemetery adjoining the church in Middletown. Mr. Summers was a member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Middletown, and served the congregation as deacon and as elder for many years. He died April 11, 1884, and is buried in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Middletown, Md.

Joshua Summers received his eduaction in the public schools of Jackson District. He remained on the homestead, working with his father, until the time of his marirage. After his marriage, Mr. Summers rented the home farm for two years. At the end of that time, Mr. Summers assumed the management of the Old Woollen Mill, at Bellsville, at Harmony, the property of his father, and carried on the business successfully for four years. He then took charge of his father's flouring mill, known as the Oakland Mill, which he managed successfully for six years. Mr. Summers next engaged in farming, renting from his father, the Old Kenney place near Harmony, and two years later bought the property from his father. On this farm of 180 acres of fine land, situated three-quarters of a mile from Harmony, Mr. Summers remained for twenty-four years, when he retired from farming and removed to Myersville, where he owns a beautiful residence at the southern end of the village. Some time after he bought his first farm, Mr. Summers and his brother, David, purchased the Old Horine farm containing 300 acres of excellent land, but not long after, he sold his part to his brother, (David) and bought the G. L. Miller farm of 147 acres. This place he sold to his son, Milton V., and bought the Doub farm of 102 acres, situated in Middletown District. After making various improvements on this place, Mr. Summers sold it to his son-in-law, Sumner Keller. He next purchased the Moor Rout-Zahn farm of 119 acres, situated in Middletown District, two and a-half miles north of Middletown. Mr. Summers is an intelligent, progressive farmer and has improved the land that has passed through his hands His success is due to hard work and careful attention to business. He is well-known and highly respected by his fellow citizens, and is a stockholder in the Valley Savings Bank, at Middletown, Md.

Joshua Summers was married to Mary E., daughter of Elder George and Rebecca (Johnson) Leatherman, both deceased. Mrs. Summers' father, (who died at the age of 79 years, 10 months and 25 days) was for many years an elder in the German Baptist Church, and was highly respected in the community. His wife died at the age of 81 years. The children of Joshua and Mary E. (Leatherman) Summers are: 1, Catherine R., married Samuel D. Bussard, a retired farmer of Middletown, Md.; 2, Mary E., married Sumner Keller, a retired farmer of Middletown Distict, Frederick County; 3, Mallissa A., married Lewis H. Brandenburg, a retired farmer of Myersville; 4, John C. L., salesman in the employ of Hoffman Brothers, Hagerstown, Md.; 5, Milton V., farmer, of Jackson District, Frederick County; 6, Lottie L., died in her 20th year; 7, Bertha M., (Mrs. Emory M. Bittle), of Myersville, Md.; 8, Estella, at home; 9, Vada M., at home; 10, Walter S., farmer, of Middletown District; 11, Hattie B., at school; 12, Amy V., at school; and three who died in childhood. Mr. Summers and his wife are members of the German Baptist Church, and he was superintendent of the Sunday School for eight years. He is a liberal contributor to all benevolent enterprises. Mr. Summers is a Democrat, interested in public affairs. He is one of the incorporators of the Flook, Gaver, Leatherman, Summers and Grossnickle Bank of Myersville, of which he is a director. He is also a stockholder in the Farmers' Exchange of Myersville, Md.

HARRY F. SHIPLEY, one of the leading young business men of Frederick City, who is a member of the well known firm of Shipley & Bopst, dealers in all kinds of toys, phonographs, musical records, sewing machines and bicycles, was born in Frederick, October 23, 1874. He is a son of Frederick and Margaret (Bear) Shipley.

Frederick Shipley and his wife, Margaret Bear, are natives of Frederick county, Md. They were the parents of thirteen children, ten of whom reached maturity: Annie, the wife of George Lipps, of Frederick; Harry F.; Maggie, unmarried; George, of Frederick, married a Miss Fagan; Sallie, the wife of Frank Rhoderick; Blanche, is unmarried; Roy, a barber, of Frederick; Frederick; Robert, with the firm of Shipley & Bopst; Helen has never married.

Harry F. Shipley, son of Frederick and Margaret (Bear) Shipley, was reared in Frederick City and received his education in the public schools. At the age of eleven years, he entered the employ of D. H. Smith, of Frederick, who conducted a store. Here Mr. Shipley remained for a period of eleven years. In 1897, he entered into partnership with G. S. C. Bopst, under the firm name of Shipley & Bopst, and engaged in the present business. The enterprise was at first conducted in a small way but as the trade steadily increased, enlarged facilities were needed. The store room Nos. 103-107 North Market street, is well adapted to the business, and it is one of the largest establishments of its kind in Western Maryland. The amount of business done yearly amounts to a high figure and this house has an enviable prestige in its own particular branch of the trade. Much of the success attained is directly due to the efficient work of Mr. Shipley, who is a progressive and enterprising business man, with a thorough knowledge of his own line, and has displayed much executive ability in the management of his store.

January 1, 1909, Mr. Harry F. Shipley bought the interest of Mr. G. S. C. Bopst, his partner, and the business has since been conducted under the name of H. F. Shipley.

In politics, Mr. Shipley is an adherent of the Democratic party. Fraternally, he is a member of Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, of King David Lodge, No. 50, I. O. O. F., of Fredonia Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., and of the Order of Eagles. In religion, he is affiliated with the Episcopal Church.

Mr. Shipley was married February 13, 1894, to Fannie S. Easterday, daughter of Joseph Easterday, of Charlesville, Frederick County, Md. They are the parents of six children: Bertha, Grace, Harry F., Jr., Nellie, Charlotte and Dorsey.

GEORGE W. SHRYOCK, a retired farmer of Creagerstown District, Frederick County, Md., son of Henry and Catherine (Geisburt) Shryock, both deceased, was born on the farm which he now owns in Creagerstown District, January 19, 1836.

Mr. Shryock's ancestors were Germans. His grandparents, Christina and husband (Valentine) Shryock, were among the early settlers of Frederick County. His father, the late Henry Shryock, a prominent farmer of Creagerstown District, received his education in the public schools of the district. In early manhood, he owned and managed a fulling mill, now known as the "Myers Mill," situated on Hunting Creek, in Creagerstown district. Mr. Shryock was one of the first manufacturers of woolens in Frederick County, and carried on a large business for many years. He afterwards purchased 142 acres of arable land which he farmed successfully until he retired in 1878. His son assumed the management, but Mr. Shryock remained on the homestead until the time of his death. He was highly esteemed as a citizen, and ascribes his financial success to industry and business ability. Henry Shryock was married to Catherine, daughter of Jonathan Geisburt, a successful farmer of Creagerstown District. They had seven children, six of whom reached maturity: 1, Mary E., married John J. Valentine, a farmer of Creagerstown District, both deceased; 2, Rebecca, deceased; 3, Henry V., merchant, of Waynesboro, Pa.; 4, George W.; 5, Sarah A., of Creagerstown District; 6, John J., of Creagerstown District. Mr. Shryock and his wife were members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Utica, Md., and were active workers in the church. They are buried in the cemetery at Utica.

George W. Shryock received his education in the public schools of Creagerstown District, and devoted his life to the cultivation of the soil. He remained at home working for his father until his father retired, when he assumed the management of the home farm and cultivated it successfully for twelve years. After his marriage, Mr. Shryock rented the old Huffman farm, where he remained for eleven years. In the Spring of 1886, he purchased, from his father, the old homestead, a fine farm of 142 acres situated on the road leading from the Emmitsburg and the Frederick road about eleven miles north of Frederick. This land, which has been in the family for three generations, Mr. Shryock cultivated and improved in every way until he has made it one of the best cultivated places in the county. He built a comfortable and commodious frame house of two stories, and supplied all necessary outbuildings. Before he retired from active farm life, Mr. Shryock built for himself on part of the farm, a handsome residence with all the accompanying buildings to which he removed to enjoy his well-earned rest from toil. His financial success is the reward of his hard work and close application to business. Mr. Shryock is a stanch Republican, and is highly esteemed in the county.

George W. Shryock was married to Mary E., daughter of William and Mary (Derr) Bell, both deceased. Her father was a prominent farmer of Creagerstown District. He and his wife are buried in the cemetery at Utica. The children of George W. and Mary E. (Bell) Shryock are: 1, Bertha, married Theodore Stull, a retired farmer of Walkersville, deceased; 2, Florence T. R., at home; 3, Gracon E., farming homestead; 4, William H., also on the homestead; 5, Mary E. (Mrs. Harvey Whitmore), of Creagerstown District. Mr. Shryock and his family are members of the Lutheran Church.

NICHOLAS CRONON STANSBURY, owner of "Alta Vista," in Emmitsburg District, Frederick County, Md., son of Nicholas and Amelia (Phillips) Stansbury, was born on a farm in Middleburg District, Carroll County, Md., May 6, 1843.

The Stansbury family is of English descent. Four brothers of that name came from England and settled, it is supposed, in Frederick County, Md. Abraham Stansbury, grandfather of Nicholas C. Stansbury, lived in Carroll County, Md. He afterwards removed to Frederick County, and spent the remainder of his life in Emmitsburg district, on a farm now owned by George A. Oler.

Mr. Stansbury's father, Nicholas Stansbury, was born near Manchester, Carroll County, Md., in 1810. He received his education in the public schools of Carroll County. Soon after his marriage, Mr. Stansbury removed to Middleburg district where he farmed until 1851, when he returned to Emmitsburg district, and purchased a farm of 225 acres, now owned by John R. Stoner. After his wife's death, Mr. Stansbury moved to a place near Thurmont, Md. He was a Republican. Nicholas Stansbury was married to Amelia, daughter of John Phillips, who was born in 1814. Her parents died when she was a child, and she grew up in the home of Colonel Noah Phillips then living at Woodsboro, Md. Colonel Phillips was an officer in the War of 1812.

Nicholas C. Stansbury was a child when his parents removed to Emmitsburg district, Frederick County. He grew up on his father's farm and was educated in the public schools of the district. After teaching for a short while in the public schools of Frederick County, Mr. Stansbury returned to the home farm, and worked for his father until he was twenty-five, when he began farming for himself. He rented places in various parts of the county until 1888, when he bought his present farm, "Alta Vista," a place of 112 acres. Mr. Stansbury built the barn in the summer of 1889. He has put up all the buildings on the place except the house, which was erected by Abiah Martin in 1863. He is a stanch Republican, active in public affairs and was elected county commissioner of Frederick County, in 1881.

Mr. Stansbury is one of the founders of Tom's Creek M. E. Church. He is a member of the board of trustees, and has been recording steward for many years. He is also a member of the board of trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Emmitsburg.

NOAH PHILLIPS STANSBURY, of Emmitsburg District, Frederick County, Md., wheelwright and blacksmith, son of Nicholas and Amelia (Phillips) Stansbury, was born on a farm in Middleburg District, Carroll County, Md., June 4, 1845.

Noah P. Stansbury was seven years old when his parents removed to what is now the John R. Stoner farm, in Emmitsburg district, Frederick County, Md. He attended the public school at Stony Branch, near his home beginning his school-days under Samuel Davis. When he was seventeen, Mr. Stansbury left school and learned blacksmithing with Thomas Barton in the smithy which he now owns. After serving an apprenticeship of two years, he worked as a journeyman with Mr. Barton from whom he afterwards purchased the business. He became a wheelwright and, for a long time, had an extensive trade in both branches of business; in recent years, his business has not been so large. He has a beautiful home and forty acres of land which he cultivates himself. Mr. Stansbury is a Republican, interested in all that concerns the prosperity of the county.

Noah Phillips Stansbury was married in 1868, to Sarah, daughter of Thomas Barton, deceased. Their children are: 1, Etta A. (Mrs. George Warren), resides near Fairfield, Pa.; 2, Bertha B., at home; 3, Edna B, at home. Mr. Stansbury and his wife are members of Tom's Creek Methodist Episcopal Church. He is one of the trustees of the church.

JOHN R. STONER, deceased, was probably the best known agriculturist of Mechanicstown district, Frederick county. He was born near Union Bridge, in Carroll County, Md., April 22, 1825, and died September 8, 1908. He was a son of Daniel and Nancy (Roop) Stoner.

The Stoner family is descended from five brothers bearing that surname, who left their native land, Germany, in the middle or forepart of the eighteenth century, and emigrated to this country, locating in the vicinity of Union Bridge and Antietam, Md.

David Stoner, the grandfather of John R. Stoner, was a native of Frederick County, Md. He was a life long farmer, and as a business man was very successful. He was the owner of one of the farms afterwards possessed by John R. Stoner. In religion, he was for forty-four years an active member of the German Baptist Church, serving as an elder much of this time.

Daniel Stoner, son of David Stoner, was born in Johnsville district, Frederick County, in 1787, and lived to be ninety-three years of age. He was mustered into the service in the War of 1812, but was not called into action. He spent his active life in farming. In politics, he was an old-time Whig. Like his father, he was influential in the German Baptist Church. Mr. Stoner was married to Nancy Roop, daughter of John Roop. She was born in 1797, and died at the age of fifty-five years. John Roop was a well-to-do farmer of Westminster, Carroll County, Md. Daniel and Nancy Stoner were the parents of ten children: William, deceased, was a farmer, conducted a tannery, and later was engaged in business at Westminster, Md.; David, unmarried, was commissioner of Carroll County for fourteen years and was very successful as an agriculturist; Abraham, deceased, was a wealthy farmer of Ohio and later of Missouri; Emanuel, deceased, was engaged in the nursery business at Westminster; Samuel, deceased, was a farmer in Carroll county; Daniel, a resident of Ohio; Jacob, lives at Union Bridge, Md.; John R.; Mary Ann, married Joseph Lerew, deceased, of Harrisburg, Pa.; and Lydia, the wife of Augustus Little, a farmer in Johnsville district, Frederick County.

John R. Stoner, son of Daniel and Nancy (Roop) Stoner, was a very ambitious student, made rapid progress in his school work, and was particularly proficient in mathematics. It was his intention to enter the legal profession, but his mother's influence and other considerations led to his abandoning the idea. Instead, he devoted his energies to agriculture and investments, and was very successful. Soon after attaining his majority, he located on a farm a mile and a-half from Thurmont, which he ever after made his home. On this home place there stands a substantial brick residence and two large barns, beside sheds and other farm buildings. From time to time he added to his original purchase, and at his death was probably the largest land owner in Frederick county. He was the possessor of a number of fine farms; four lying in one body, his homestead, containing 800 acres; one of 176 acres in Emmitsburg district; one of 145 acres at Rocky Ridge; one of 175 acres near Union Bridge, in Carroll County, Md.; and two mountain tracts. His farms were well stocked, and it was said he was the owner of the largest number of head of live stock in that section of the county.

Mr. Stoner was successful in the management of these various tracts, and was a hard worker all of his life. In his investments he was also very fortunate. He was one of the promoters and directors in the W. F. and G. Railroad Company. He was unassuming and modest in manner, and was very highly esteemed by all who knew him. As a citizen, he was public spirited, and he displayed much foresight in business dealings.

In politics, Mr. Stoner was a Democrat, but he was never induced to accept public office, though often urged to do so, persistently adhering to his frequently repeated resolution to live and die as a plain, loyal citizen. On November 28, 1876, Mr. Stoner was married to Martha R. Stansbury, daughter of Nicholas and Amelia (Phillips) Stansbury, and a granddaughter of Abraham Stansbury. They were the parents of two sons: John T., a farmer, residing in Carroll County, Md., who married Blanch Stoner, but has no children; and William J., who married Gertrude Rouzer, daughter of Daniel and Eugenia (Harmon) Rouzer, of Thurmont.

TRENTON C. SCHROYER, the leading merchant of Wolfsville, Frederick County, Md., son of the late Lawson and Willamina (Witmer) Schroyer, was born on his father's farm, near Wolfsville, November 21, 1864.

John Schroyer, grandfather of Trenton C. Schroyer, a prominent farmer, among the older men of the northern part of the Middletown Valley, was born May 26, 1801, and spent his life in farming in that section of the State, where he was highly respected as a good citizen.

John Schroyer was married to Sarah Wertenbaker who was born September 27, 1804. Of their eight children, seven reached maturity: 1, Lawson; 2, Daniel, deceased, a farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County; 3, Lewis, deceased, a farmer of Catoctin district; 4, Sarah, deceased, married the late Frederick Eccard, of Ohio; 5, Elizabeth (Mrs. Ephraim Moser), deceased; 6, Caroline, deceased; 7, Katie, widow of the late John Frey, a farmer of Catoctin District. Mrs. Schroyer died September 7, 1861; her husband died March 22, 1866. They lie side by side in the old cemetery in Jerusalem, Jackson District, Frederick County, Md.

The late Lawson Schroyer, father of Trenton C. Schroyer, a farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., was born at his father's home in Frederick County, April 9, 1831. He was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained with his father until he began business for himself. Mr. Schroyer bought a tract of land and set himself to improving it. He put up a two-story dwelling, a bank barn, and all necessary outbuildings, and here he spent his life cultivating his land. Mr. Schroyer also owned a large tract of timber land. He gave all of the credit of his financial success to hard work and patient attention to business. He was a Democrat, highly respected by his fellow citizens. Lawson Schroyer was married to Willamina, daughter of George and Ann M. (Gilpin) Witmer, both deceased, whose father was well-known among the older citizens of the district. Of their seven children four reached maturity. 1, Trenton C.; 2, Luther M., a farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County; 3, Minnie V., (Mrs. Lewis F. Gaver), of Jackson District; 4, Edmund K., at home. Mr. Schroyer and his wife were members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church at Wolfsville, where he served the congregation as deacon and as elder for many years. Mr. Schroyer died at his home in Frederick County, April 17, 1886, and is buried in the cemetery of the Lutheran Church at Wolfsville, Md.

Trenton C. Schroyer was educated in the public schools of Catoctin District, and remained on the farm with his father until his school days were ended. After teaching for one term, Mr. Schroyer accepted a clerkship with Phlegar and Johnson, general merchants, and took charge of a branch store at Pleasant Walk. One year later, the firm dissolved partnership, and Mr. Schroyer bought a half interest in the business, the new firm being Phleger & Schroyer. A year after this, he sold his interest to John T. Harshman, and bought the business of R. Elliott, merchant, at Bissell, Washington County, Md. After three years of good trade, he sold this stock and removed to Hagerstown, Md., where he opened a store on the corner of Church and Mulberry streets. Mr. Schroyer remained in Hagerstown for three years and built up a large trade which he sold to great advantage to O. V. Rowe. Returning to Wolfsville he engaged in business at the old stand, and also bought the dwelling which contained the store, of Samuel Holter. At the end of three successful years, Mr. Schroyer again sold his stock at a bargain to Jonathan D. English. He now returned to Hagerstown, and, one year later, bought a farm of 130 acres known as the Old Baker farm situated one mile west of Wolfsville, on the Boonsboro road. He spent four years in improving this property, and then sold it to advantage, and, returning to Wolfsville, once more bought back his old stand where he is doing a thriving business. He carries one of the largest and finest stock of goods that can be found in Frederick county, and ascribes his financial success to good business ability and hard work. Mr. Schroyer is a Democrat, interested in all that concerns the progress of Frederick County.

Trenton C. Schroyer was married to Lola E., daughter of John T. and Eliza J. (Spitler) Gaver, whose father is a retired farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County. They had nine children, seven of whom reached maturity: 1, Gordon O., school teacher; 2, Elma M.; 3, Mary G.; 4, Thomas L.; 5, William H.; 6, Edwin C.; 7, John F. All the children are at home. Mr. Schroyer and his wife are members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Wolfsville.

McCLINTOCK YOUNG, a prominent citizen of Frederick City, Md., and an inventor of excellent repute, is a native of Washington, D. C., where he was born June 25, 1836. He is a son of McClintock and Susan Bird (Newman) Young.

The American progenitor of this Young family was Hugh Young, the grandfather of McClintock Young. He was of Scotch-Irish extraction, and a resident of Londonderry, Ireland. He was implicated in the rebellion of 1798, and to escape persecution, fled to this country in that year, and settled in Baltimore, Md., where he spent the rest of his life. He was a great admirer of Andrew Jackson, and entertained him at his home in Baltimore while he was President of the United States.

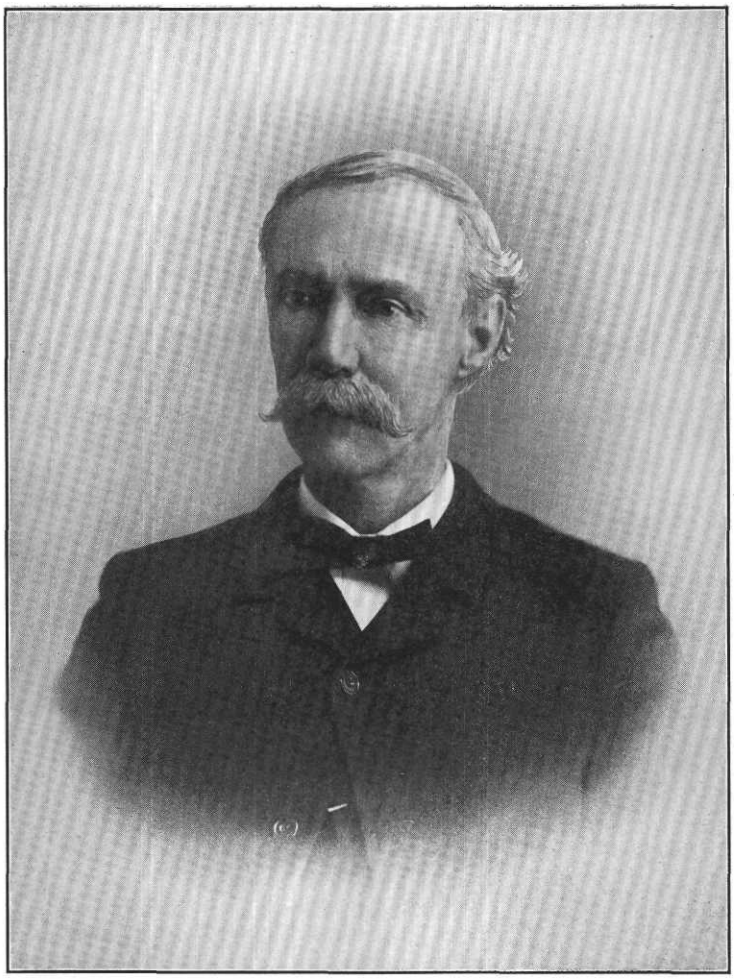
McClintock Young, son of Hugh Young, the emigrant, and father of McClintock Young, was born in 1801, and died in 1863. He was appointed chief clerk of the United States treasury by Andrew Jackson, which position he retained for a number of years, acting as secretary of the treasury on several occasions. When he was first appointed, Roger Brooke Taney was the Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Young was twice married, his first wife being Susan Bird Newman, daughter of Col. Francis Newman. They were the parents of two sons: McClintock, of whom presently; and Alexander, served in the Confederate Army, and lost his life at the battle of Hanover Court House, Va., in 1863. Mrs. Young's father, Col. Francis Newman, gave up a baronetcy for American citizenship about 1800, settling at Port Tobacco, Md. He served as a colonel in the War of 1812, after which he became revenue collector for his district. Mr. Young was married secondly to Josephine Causten, of Washington, D. C. They were the parents of three daughters and one son: Josephine, Elizabeth, Eliza, and James.

McClintock Young, son of McClintock and Susan Bird (Newman) Young, was reared in Washington, D. C. He acquired his education in the schools of his native city, at St. John's College, Annapolis, Md., and with Benjamin Hallowell, at Alexandria, Va. At the age of twelve, without having received technical or mechanical instruction, he constructed a fire-engine that would throw a stream from thirty to forty feet. That was followed by a number of complete working miniature engines, saw-mills, sewing machines, etc. Among his first patents was a self-rake for reapers, which was sold to the McCormick Harvester Company, and used on thousands of their machines.

As a young man, Mr. Young removed to Frederick City, Md., where he engaged in the foundry and machinery business from 1856 to 1870. During 1870, he invented a match-making machine, which cut the splints from a block of wood, spaced for dipping without shifting the block or cutters, and stuck them into the holes of a perforated plate, in which condition they were dipped in the composition, and, when sufficiently dry, pushed out by small punches, corresponding to the holes in the plates. The patents were sold to the Diamond Match Company, and the leading points are still used by them. He also invented machines to manufacture hinges, and previous to 1870 obtained several patents, which cover the principles of the modern bicycle. In 1899, he completed a machine for the manufacture of brushes, formerly largely made by hand, which spaces, bores, inclines and tufts the holes automatically, securing each tuft by a wire staple. The capacity of two machines, run by one operator, is 70,000 tufts in ten hours. These brushes are manufactured by the Ox Fibre Brush Company, of Frederick City, of which Mr. Young is vice-president.

Mr. Young is one of the best known and most prominent citizens of Frederick City. As a manufacturer, he has always directed the affairs of his various establishments with an ability, foresight and sagacity that stamp him as a man of superior executive ability and rare business qualifications. To his forceful personality is due much of the prosperity and prestige attained by the Ox Fibre Brush Company, and he commands the respect and confidence of business and financial circles generally. As an inventor, he takes high rank, and is known throughout the country. He has been a resident of Frederick for over half a century, and is held in high esteem by all who know him.

In politics, Mr. Young is an adherent of the Democratic party, but has never aspired to public office. Fraternally, he is an active member and leading spirit of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M.; Enoch Royal Arch Chapter, No. 23, Royal Arch Masons, and Jacques de



McClintock Young

Molay Commandery, Knights Templar. He is affiliated in a religious way with the Protestant Episcopal church.

Mr. Young was married June 19, 1862, to Louisa Moberly, the second daughter of Dr. E. W. Moberly, of New Market, Md. She died in 1886. They are the parents of three daughters who survive: Mrs. Baker Johnson, Mrs. Dr. Arthur Williams, and Eloise Newman, the wife of Arthur English.

THOMAS SCHLEY, vice-president of the Great Southern Printing Company, of Frederick City, publishers of the Daily and Weekly News, was born in Frederick City, in Frederick district, February 1, 1851. His parents were Col. Edward and Margaret Eve (Brengle) Schley.

The Schley family has long been prominent in the annals of Maryland. Admiral Winfield S. Schley is of this family. The first of the name in Frederick county was John Thomas Schley, who built the first house on the site of Frederick City.

John Schley, a descendant of John Thomas Schley, was one of the prominent and well known citizens of Frederick County. He served as clerk of the Frederick County Court for many years. He was the father of Edward Schley.

Edward Schley, son of John Schley, was born in Frederick City in 1804 and died in 1857. He was colonel of the famous Frederick Hussars for many years. He was one of the leading citizens of the community in his day. Politicaliy, he was an old line Whig, and in religion was affiliated with the Episcopal Church. Colonel Schley was married to Margaret Eve Brengle. They were the parents of twelve children: Annie, deceased, was the wife of George K. Birely, of Frederick City; Margaret, married George Morgan, deceased; B. H., deceased, served as a major in Maryland Volunteer Infantry during the Civil war; Ellen E., the widow of Horace G. Gambrill, of Frederick City; Alice, the widow of John Cassin, of Washington, D. C.; Franklin, deceased, was engaged in business in Frederick for many years; Laura, the widow of Thomas Chapline, of Frederick City; Edward, died aged eighteen years; Rose, widow of Dr. Charles J. Bear, of Frederick City; Fannie, the widow of Edward Hughes, of Baltimore, Md.; Thomas; and Gilmer, whose sketch see.

Thomas Schley, son of Col. Edward and Margaret Eve (Brengle) Schley, was reared in Frederick City, and studied in the public schools and the old Frederick College. While a young man, he became bookkeeper for the late P. H. Pieffer, who was a large coal dealer of Frederick. He later engaged in the manufacture of all kinds of lime, at the old Brengle kilns, situated one mile east of Frederick on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. After three years, he sold this business to M. J. Grove & Company, and lived in retirement in the country for five years. In 1880, Mr. Schley formed a partnership with William T. Delaplane and Victor M. Markin, and engaged in the printing business under the firm name of Schley, Markin & Delaplane. This firm engaged in all kinds of job printing and the manufacture of paper sacks. In 1883 they founded the Frederick Daily and Weekly News, and after some time the firm changed to W. T. Delaplane & Company. It was later merged into the Great Southern Printing and Manufacturing Company, with William T. Delaplane president; Thomas Schley as vice president; George Birely, as treasurer; and C. S. Howard, secretary and general manager. The News is one of Frederick county's leading journals and enjoys a wide circulation. Mr. Schley has contributed by his ability to the success achieved by this concern.

Mr. Schley votes the Republican ticket, and in religion, he is a member of All Saints' Episcopal church of Frederick. He served one term as tax commissioner of Frederick County.

Mr. Schley was married in 1885 to Mary Martin Claggett, daughter of the late Thomas J. and Ann Perry (Hillary) Claggett. They are the parents of one daughter, Anne Perry. (Since the above sketch was written Mr. Schley died.)

DANIEL J. SNOOK, deceased, was for many years one of the prominent citizens of Lewistown district, where he was engaged in farming and breeding thoroughbred stock. He was born on a farm in that district, March 8, 1826, and died August 12, 1900. His parents were Daniel and Anna Margaret (Hill) Snook.

Simon Snook, the grandfather of Daniel J. Snook, was a farmer. His father was a native of Germany and had come to Frederick county before the Revolutionary War. He was the father of Daniel Snook.

Daniel Snook, son of Simon Snook, spent his entire life following the occupation of a farmer. He was an active and consistent member of Utica Reformed church. Mr. Snook was married to Anna Margaret Hill. They were the parents of seven children: Julia, married Andrew Gernard; Margaret M., married Henry Johnson; Daniel J.; Jacob, deceased; John A., deceased; Susan M., married Gustavus W. Shaffer; and Lewis A., a retired farmer of Lewistown district (see sketch).

Daniel J. Snook, son of Daniel and Anna Margaret (Hill) Snook, was reared on the farm of his father and received his education in the public schools. He followed agricultural pursuits all his life. Upon his father's death, Mr. Snook purchased the old homestead, which has been in the possession of the family for nearly a hundred years. This tract is one of the largest farms in Lewistown district, containing nearly 300 acres, improved with all the necessary buildings, including a large brick house. Mr. Snook was a highly respected citizen and his death caused regret among all who had known him.

In politics, Mr. Snook was a supporter of the Republican party, but never cared for public office. Like his father, he was a prominent member of Utica Reformed church, where he was connected for more than sixty years. From the time he was eighteen years old until his death, he had filled official positions in the congregation.

Mr. Snook was married November 27, 1851, to Mary Ann Harmon, daughter of William and Ann (Elautt) Harmon, of an old Frederick County family. There were three children by this marriage: William G., died in Pennsylvania in 1907; Daniel F., agent for the W. F. and G. R. R. at Lewistown, Md.; and Charles S.

Chas. S. Snook, son of Daniel J. and Mary Ann (Harmon) Snook, was born on the homestead, December 4, 1857. On this place he was raised and received his elementary education in a private school. He was later a student at Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md. He then returned home and has since been interested in farming and stock breeding. He was officially connected with the Maryland Senate, during the session of 1898, and subsequently with the Internal Revenue Service for about four years. During the war with Spain he was offered a commission in the army. He now resides on and manages the old Snook estate, and is interested in banking, being a director in one National, and one Savings Bank. In politics Mr. Snook is a stanch Republican. He was married to Alva B. Cramer, daughter of the late Andrew N. Cramer, December 24, 1895. There are no children by this union.

GEORGE C. SHAFER, who is numbered among the leading and prominent farmers of Tuscarora district, was born on a farm in the Middletown Valley in Jefferson district, Frederick County, October 12, 1848. He is a son of Joseph and Elizabeth Ellen (Abrecht) Shafer.

The Shafer family is of German lineage and settled in Middletown Valley, Frederick County, among the early inhabitants. George Shafer, the grandfather of George C. Shafer, was the father of nine children: Peter, Hanson, Joseph, Samuel, Rebecca, Mary Ann, Ann Elizabeth, Catharine and Daniel.

Joseph Shafer, son of George Shafer, was a farmer by occupation. In politics, he was a life long adherent of the Republican party, and in religion, he was affiliated with the Reformed church. Mr. Shafer was married to Elizabeth Ellen Abrecht. They were the parents of seven children, of whom four reached maturity: George C.; Lauretta, married Joshua D. Ahalt; Annie Mary, married J. L. Huffer; and Ida E., the wife of Charles Adkins.

George C. Shafer, son of Joseph and Elizabeth Ellen (Abrecht) Shafer, was reared on the homestead in Jefferson district, and received his education in the public schools of the neighborhood. Like his forebears, he took up farming. Mr. Shafer's present farm consists of 131 3-4 acres of fertile land, one of the best tracts in the district, and is situated three miles north of Frederick City on the Montevue pike. Since this farm has come in his possession, Mr. Shafer has erected a fine bank barn and a splendid mansion, one of the beautiful homes in Tuscarora district. Mr. Shafer is a progressive and practical agriculturist, and has met with much success in the management of his farm. He is recognized as one of the substantial citizens of the community in which he resides.

Politically, Mr. Shafer is a supporter of the Republican party. In religion, he is an active and consistent member of the Pleasant Hill Reformed church.

Mr. Shafer was married December 4, 1875, to Laura V. Toms, daughter of Ezra and Sophia (Doub) Toms, of an old Middletown Valley family. There are twelve children by this marriage: Addie E., the wife of Augustus Wachter, by whom she has four children, Allen, Maynard S., Grayson P. and Edgar L.; Mollie May, the wife of Charles A. Stahley, of Tuscarora district, a farmer; Carrie Sophia, unmarried; Alta F., the wife of Clayton E. Kemp, and have two children, Mildred V. and ————; Charles E., Salie B., unmarried; Oda Anzonetta, the wife of Harry Orrison, of Hagerstown, Md., and have one son, Lester E.; Fannie V.; Lester E.; Elmmert L.; Vada Frances; Edna Grace; and Glenn C.

Mrs. Shafer is of the following family of children: Nettie, the wife of Charles C. Sanner; Laura V. (Mrs. Shafer); Otho J., a farmer of Jackson district; George D., Ella E., the wife of Charles Young, a farmer of Jackson district; Lemuel V., a farmer of Washington County, Md.; Elizabeth, deceased, was the wife of Upton Grossnickle; Fannie M., the wife of Edward Bittle, of Jackson district; and Millard F., lives in Jackson district, where he is engaged in farming. The Toms family is one of the early settled ones of Middletown Valley. (For further history of the Toms family see sketch of Edward A. Toms, of Middletown).

NICHOLAS G. SCHAFFER, who is one of the most prosperous and highly respected residents of Braddock district, was born on the farm which he now owns, January 21, 1857. He is a son of Jonathan A. and Ann Rebecca (Whitmore) Schaffer.

The American ancestors of the Schaffer family came to this country in 1776 from Berlin, Germany. They were of distinguished lineage, of which Peter von Schaffer was the founder.

Jacob Schaffer, the great-grandfather of Nicholas G. Schaffer, was a son of the emigrant ancestors, who belonged to the Evangelical Reformed church. He received from his minister the usual catechetical teaching and secured such instruction as the schools of his time afforded. In 1785, he being then about twenty-five years of age, Mr. Schaffer was married to Ann Catherine Uttz. Soon afterward they took up farming on what was known as Carroll's Manor. Of this union five children are known to have been born: John, Jacob, Peter, Sophia, married to Peter Brunner, and Elizabeth.

Peter Schaffer, son of Jacob and Ann Catharine (Uttz) Schaffer, was born on the home of his father, "The Manor," August 11, 1798, and died in 1884. He was a leading and prominent farmer of his section of the county. He was a good citizen and was held in high esteem by all with whom he came into contact. He was a public-spirited man, and anything tending to promote the general welfare invariably found in him a true friend. Politically, he was an ardent and zealous Whig. He was connected with the Reformed church of Frederick City for many years. Mr. Schaffer was twice married. He was first married June 14, 1814, to Julia Trueman. They were the parents of one child, a daughter, Anna, who married Frederick Oland. Mr. Schaffer was married secondly, September 23, 1826, to Elizabeth Brunner, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth Brunner. There were nine children by this latter marriage, seven of whom grew to maturity: Rebecca, married George Late, deceased, of California; Susan, the wife of James C. Clarke, deceased, of Mobile, Ala.; Simon, of Martinsburg, West Va.; David, lives at Amboy, Ill.; Daniel, of Martinsburg, West Va.; Charles Edward, was born May 15, 1844, and lives in Braddock district; Jonathan A.; and Frederick C. and ————, who died young.

The Brunner family, to which Mrs. Peter Schaffer belonged, was one of the first families in Fredericktown. Her great-grandfather was Joseph Brunner, who came to this country from Manheim, Gemany, on the ship "Alien," landing at Philadelphia, September 11. 1726. He came direct to Maryland and took up a wide tract of land, "Shiverstadt." He erected a house and named it after the place in the fatherland. He also fortified the house against the attacks of Indians that roamed the country in those days. The old place is still in a good state of preservation and is located on the Montevue turnpike. Joseph Brunner was present and assisted several years later in laying out the town of Frederick.

Jonathan A. Schaffer, son of Peter and Elizabeth (Brunner) Schaffer, was born in Frederick district, September 29, 1828, and died April 1, 1898. In the public schools he procured an education. He was raised on the home farm, where he remained until he was twenty-eight years old. He then began farming on the farm in the present Tuscarora district owned by Charles V. Sanner. Here he was located for some time, when he removed to the old Mantz place, five miles east of Frederick on the Georgetown turnpike. During the battle of the Monocacy in the Civil War, he and his family were in imminent danger. Part of family were in imemdiate danger. Part of their residence was torn away by a shell and many small shot were imbedded within the walls. A few years later, Mr. Schaffer went to the farm of General James C. Clark. Here he was occupied in agriculture until death occurred. He is buried in the Mount Olivet Cemetery. Politically, he was a Republican, and in religious matters, he was connected with the Reformed church. Mr. Schaffer was twice married. He was married first Febuary 12, 1856, to Anna Rebecca Whitmore, daughter of Nicholas Whitmore. She was born September 15, 1830. Her father was a prominent farmer, owning a very large tract of land on the Hamburg turnpike, which is now divided into three farms, and was the possessor of a large number of slaves. Jonathan A. and Anna Rebecca Schaffer were the parents of five children, four of whom reached mature years. Nicholas G., our subject; Charles P., of Braddock district; Annie, the wife of Jesse D. Kauffman, of Frederick City; and James Clark, of Emmitsburg district. Mr. Schaffer was married secondly to Martha E. Garrott, of Frederick City, who is still living. There was one daughter by this marriage: Martha O. M., who married Oscar C. Kefauver, of Frederick City.

Nicholas G. Schaffer, son of Jonathan A. and Anna Rebecca (Whitmore) Schaffer, received a public school education. He decided, like his forebears, to take up farming, and he has always followed that vocation. He first cultivated the C. M. Gilpin farm, three miles west of Frederick, along the National turnpike, where he was four years. He then removed to Washington county, Md., and rented his father-in-law's farm, remaining there for seven years. He then returned to Frederick county, and the following year leased the place his father had farmed for forty years, from his uncle, General James C. Clark. About the time the five year lease expired, General Clark died, and in 1904 Mr. Schaffer purchased the farm from the heirs. The place contains 133 acres of excellent agricultural land, and lies two miles west of Frederick on the Hagerstown turnpike. The farm is known as "Willow Dale" and is numbered among the fine estates of the country. Mr. Schaffer takes a pride in the care of the farm, and has improved it very much. On this tract is a large spring of fine water, which supplies more than half of the stream which flows through Frederick City.

In politics, Mr. Schaffer votes for the candidates of the Republican party. He is affiliated with the Reformed Church of Braddock, in which he filled the office of deacon for a number of years.

Mr. Schaffer was married to Ella M. Grove, daughter of Daniel R. and Julia (Huffer) Grove, of Washington County, Md. They are the parents of one son, Roy C. W., living at home. Mrs. Schaffer and son are members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Braddock.

THE LATE CLARENCE B. STOTTLEMYER, husband of Lydia A. Stottlemyer, a prominent farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., son of the late William Hamilton and Susan (Hoover) Stottlemyer, was born on his father's farm in Catoctin District, April 1, 1856.

The late William Hamilton Stottlemyer, father of Clarence B. Stottlemyer, was prominent among the older farmers of Catoctin District. He was a successful business man and was highly esteemed by the men of his generation, and owned the valuable farm on which his widow now resides.

Clarence B. Stottlemyer spent his childhood and youth in Catoctin District, and received his education in the public schools. He remained with his father until after his marriage, when he began working for himself, hiring by the day or the month for three years. Mr. Stottlemeyer and his father then bought a small farm which he cultivated for six years and on which they made many improvements. He then bought, from Lawrence Easterday, the farm of 112 acres on which his widow now resides. This property, situated two miles south of Wolfsville, on the Pleasant Walk road, he improved in every way, remodeling the house, and putting up a bank barn, and all necessary buildings. Hard work and close attention made him a successful business man. He was a Democrat, interested in county affairs, and was well-known and highly esteemed in the district.

Clarence B. Stottlemyer was married to Lydia A., daughter of Ezra and Lydia A. (Biser) Warrenfeltz, both deceased. The children of Clarence B. and Lydia A. (Warrenfeltz) Stottlemyer are: 1, Welty M., a farmer of Catoctin District; 2, Levi E., a farmer of Catoctin District; 3, Ida L., at home; 4, Alice V., married David W. Stollemyer, who was not a relative; 5, Lester A., at home; 6, Clarence B., at home. Mr. Stottlemyer died July 10, 1906, and was laid to rest in the cemetery of the German Baptist Church.

Mrs. Stottlemyer, widow of the late Clarence B. Stottlemyer, is a daughter of Ezra and Lydia A. (Biser) Warrenfeltz. She was born on her father's farm in Lewistown District, Frederick County, November 29, 1859. Mr. Warrenfeltz owned three fine farms in Frederick County, and one in Montgomery County, Md. He was a successful business man and was highly esteemed among the older citizens of Frederick County. He was an active member of the Reformed Church in Utica, Md. He and his wife rest in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Utica.

HENRY F. C. STOTTLEMYER, a retired farmer risiding in Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., one mile northeast of Wolfsville, son of Daniel and Johanna (Recher) Stottlemyer, both deceased, was born on that part of the old Stottlemyer homestead on which he now resides, April 22, 1842.

David Stottlemyer, great-grandfather of Henry F. C. Stottlemyer, who was born and educated in Munich, Germany, came to America in early manhood and settled in the southwestern part of the Middletown Valley. He was one of the early settlers of that section of Maryland where the remainder of his life was spent. He married and had five children among whom was a son named David.

David Stottlemyer, Jr., son of David and Margaret Stottlemyer, grandfather of Henry F. C. Stotlemyer, was born and grew up on a farm near Middletown, Md. He was a farmer and miller, and owned the property now known as the Keller Mill farm, near Middletown. Mr. Stottlemyer afterwards sold this place and bought a large tract of farm and timber land near Wolfsville, Md., where he spent the rest of his life. He was successful both as a farmer and as a miller, and was highly respected as a citizen. David Stottlemyer, Jr., was married to Margaret Maugruter. Of their eight children six reached adult age: 1 and 2, Jacon and John twins, both deceased; 3, David, deceased; 4, Daniel; 5, Joseph, deceased; 6, Margaret, deceased, married to the late George Lizer. Mr. Stottlemyer and his wife were members of the Reformed Church.

The late Daniel Stottlemyer, father of Henry F. C. Stottlemyer, was born in September, 1796, on a farm in the Middletown Valley, northwest of Middletown. He grew up on his father's farm, and remained on the home place until his father died when he inherited the part of the homestead now owned by his son, Henry. Mr. Stottlemyer made many improvements on the property and afterwards bought a farm of 60 acres, now the property of Daniel Harshman. This place also he improved, putting up a dwelling, a barn, and all other necessary buildings. Some time later, he purchased 56 acres of farm and timber land, making his holding to consist of 300 acres. He was a skillful farmer and improved all the land that came under his care. His toil and patient care were richly rewarded. Mr. Stottlemyer was a Democrat, highly esteemd as a business man and as a citizen. Daniel Stottlemyer was married to Johanna, daughter of John and ———— (————) Recher. Of their thirteen children, ten reached maturity: 1, Jonathan, a farmer of Washington County, Md.; 2, Joseph, deceased, a farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md.; 3, Rosanna, widow of Daniel Biser; 4, Elias R., a retired farmer of Cavetown, Washington County, Md.; 5, Frederick, a retired farmer of Wolfsville, Md.; 6, Leah, deceased, married to the late Silas Buh————; 7, Mary E., deceased, married to William Troxell, of Illinois; 8, Margaret A. R., widow of Lawson Palmer of Easton, Pa.; 9, Lydia, deceased, married to the late William Hauver; 10, Henry F. C. Mr. Stottlemyer was a member of the German Baptist Church. His wife held her membership in the Reformed Church. Mr. Stottlemyer died on April 21, 1874; his wife on July 5, 1895.

Henry F. C. Stottlemyer was educated in the public schools of Catoctin District. He remained on the home place, and after his father's death inherited the farm he now owns as his share of the estate. This farm, the old Stottlemyer homestead, is a valuable property. It is beautifully situated on the Foxville road, one mile northeast of Wolfsville. Mr. Stottlemyer has greatly improved the place. He remodeled the dwelling, added a second story; built a fine bank barn, and put up all the necessary farm buildings. His well-merited success is due to his faithful labor, and constant care. He is a Democrat, interested in county affairs, and is well-known and highly esteemed in the district.

Henry F. C. Stottlemyer was married to Martha E., daughter of William B. and Elizabeth (Fox) Brown, whose father was a prominent farmer residing near Foxville. They have four children: 1, Worth B., teller in the Bank of Waynesboro, Waynesboro, Pa., and Treasurer of the Chambersburg, Greencastle and Waynesboro Street Railway Company, Waynesboro, Pa.; 2, Claud U., General Manager for the Geiser Manufacturing Company at Louisville, Ky.; 3, Olga D., at home; 4, Irma M., at home. Mr. Stottlemyer is a member of the Reformed church in Wolfsville, and is a liberal contributor to both church and Sunday School. He has served the congregation as deacon, and is now an elder and the Superintendent of the Sunday School.

WILLIAM I. RENNER, agent for the Western Maryland Railroad at Rocky Ridge, Creagerstown district, and a well known citizen, was born at New Midway, Woodsboro district, Frederick County, April 6, 1874. He is a son of the late George I. and Margaret E. (Derr) Renner.

The Renner family came originally from Germany. The family can trace back to the year 1315, at which time there was one Francis Renner, a printer, who was in the king's service. Early in the eighteenth century, William Renner, with others of the family, came to America. William Renner was married to a Miss Hafer. They were the parents of three sons and two daughters: John, married Polly Kuch, and had nine children; William, died without marrying; Abraham; Kate, and Annie.

Abraham Renner, son of William Renner, the immigrant, was married to Elizabeth Overhultz. They were the parents of nine children: William, Annie, Noah, Joseph, John, Sophia, Susan, Eliza, and Isaac.

Isaac Renner, youngest child of Abraham and Elizabeth (Overhultz) Renner, was but six years old when his father died. In 1835, he removed from the old home place in the vicinity of Haugh's Church, Frederick County, to Smithsburg, Washington County, Md., where he resided for ten years. He then bought a farm, located two miles north of Smithsburg, known as the old Stoner farm. Here he lived until the spring of 1853, when he made sale and traveled to Ohio with his family, making the trip by wagon. There he prospered for four years. Having made sale again, he returned to Washington County, Md., staying there for one year. In March, 1858, Mr. Renner removed to Frederick County, settling at what is now New Midway, having peviously purchased the old Stimmel farm. Here he made his home until his death, which took place June 13, 1880. This old estate is still in the possession of the family. For many years the house on the place was used as a tavern; it was erected in 1717. Washington stopped here on his way to Virginia, and Francis Key made it his boarding place in the summer. Mr. Renner was married to Sophia Wolf, by whom he had five children: Francis C., Wilford A., Milton O., George Isaac, and Laura N.

George Isaac Renner, son of Isaac and Sophia (Wolf) Renner, was born in Washington County, Md., January 30, 1850. He died June 14, 1907, and was laid to rest in the old Dunkard graveyard at Rocky Ridge, Creagerstown district. He was given a common school education and remained with his parents until he was twenty-two years old. He was then married and started out for himself as a day laborer. Thus he was engaged for four years. He then rented what was known as the old Renner homestead, in Woodsboro district, and farmed successfully here. In 1880, he fell heir to the main part of the old home, where he lived until April, 1907. He retired from active labor in 1896. Mr. Renner was also interested in the merchandising business for a number of years. He was the first merchant to engage in business at New Midway. In 1884 he erected a fine store building there and soon acquired a large and extensive trade. He had the misfortune, however, to be burned out, after which he went into retirement. In all his business ventures, Mr. Renner made money, he possessing much natural ability along those lines. He was a stockholder in the Woodsboro and Double Pipe Creek Turnpike Company and was one of the largest stockholders in the Citizens' Savings Bank of Thurmont. He was also the owner of some valuable real estate in Baltimore City. Mr. Renner always aided the Republican party in politics. He was identified with the German Baptist Church at Rocky Ridge. Mr. Renner was married to Margaret E. Derr, by whom he had two children, one of whom reached maturity, namely, William I.

William I. Renner, son of George I. and Margaret E. (Derr) Renner, acquired his learning in the public schools. He made his home with his parents until he reached the age of thirty-three. When he was twenty-four years old he began to learn telegraphy with James S. Biggs, at Rocky Ridge. At this time, he also had charge of his father's farm. Thus he continued until he had mastered telegraphy, when he accepted a position with the Western Maryland Railroad Company at Thurmont as night operator. There he remained for five years. During this time he still attended to the management of his father's farm. He was then made relief agent over the system and during the summer was stationed at Pen Mar. While here, through his strict attention to business, he averted what would have been a very serious wreck, and for this he was appointed on October 6, 1906, general agent at Rocky Ridge. This position he has since creditably filled. He is well thought of by his employers and is highly esteemed in the community in which he lives. Mr. Renner is one of the substantial citizens of his locality. At his father's death, he became the possessor of the home farm, which he has greatly improved and added a large variety of stock.

Mr. Renner is one of the leading Republicans of Creagerstown district and takes an active part in local politics. He is a member of the German Baptist Church at Rocky Ridge.

Mr. Renner was married to Minnie E. Long, daughter of Abraham and Amanda (Mengis) Long. She holds membership in the Reformed Church, and is the mother of one child, Beryl K., at home.

JOHN ROUZER, deceased, for half a century one of Thurmont's leading citizens and most prominent business men, was born in Thurmont, Frederick County, Md., November 25, 1815, and died at his home on the old Rouzer farm, January 1, 1894. He was a son of Daniel and Julia (Matthews) Rouzer.

Daniel Rouzer was the first of the family to settle in Maryland. He was a native of New Jersey, where he was born in 1776, and died in Maryland, August 18, 1850. While a young man, he came to Maryland, and learned the tanner's trade at Hagerstown. In 1793, he moved upon the present Rouzer homestead, near Thurmont, Md., now owned and occupied by Mrs. Emma K. Rouzer, widow of John Rouzer. In that year he established the first tannery in that part of the State. At first the enterprise was conducted on a very small scale, but by degrees it grew in importance. Mr. Rouzer was in his time one of the most prominent citizens of Frederick County, and he was actively identified with church work. The business which he established held a high place in its own branch of trade for about a century, his son, John Rouzer, succeeding to the management of it. Mr. Rouzer was twice married. His first wife was Sophia Schover, daughter of Peter Schover, by whom he had ten children. He was married secondly to Julia Matthews, daughter of John Matthews, of Frederick County. They were the parents of two children, John; and Sarah, (born 1819).

John Rouzer, son of Daniel and Julia (Matthews) Rouzer, purchased the tannery property of his father and continued the business on his own account until his death. Under his able supervision it became one of the most important industries of the county. He was also widely known as a real estate dealer and builder, and was one of the most prominent business men of that section. He also succeeded to the ownership of the farm upon which his father had located. This tract contains 125 acres of good farm land. The mansion was built in 1812 by Daniel Rouzer, and is a three-story brick building, containing sixteen rooms, being one of the finest homes in Frederick County.

In politics, John Rouzer was a stanch Republican, and during the Civil War a Union sympathizer. He was often asked to allow his name to appear as a candidate of his party, but always declined, preferring to devote his time and energy to his large business interests. For more than half a century he was one of the most active and leading members of St. John's Lutheran Church of Thurmont. It was largely through his efforts that the present church edifice was erected, and he was a member of the building committee. For forty years, he had filled the office of deacon and elder. He was charitable and his benefactions unostentatiously bestowed were without number. He was one of Thurmont's most highly esteemed and respected citizens.

Mr. Rouzer was twice married. He was first married in 1846 to Phoebe Landers, daughter of John Landers. She died within a year after marriage, without issue. Mr. Rouzer was married secondly to Emma K. Parrish on March 20, 1862, a daughter of Nicholas M. Parrish. They were the parents of ten sons: Harry H., deceased; Morris L., of Thurmont; Howard C., deceased; William H., of Pittsburg, Pa.; Charles W., at home; Arthur Lee, managing the old homestead; Martin Luther, is auditor for the Davis Coke and Coal Company, of Elkins, West Va.; Ernest Russell, head clerk to the superintendent of the car service of the Western Maryland Railroad, of Baltimore, Md.; Frank Key; John M., died in infancy and ————.

THE REV. CHARLES REINEWALD, D. D., pastor of the Lutheran Church in Emmitsburg, Frederick County, Md., son of Joseph Lewis and Catherine (Sommer) Reinewald, was born in Duncansville, Pa., October 20, 1860.

The name Reinewald, Pure Forest, seems to indicate that the family was interested in forestry in the home land, Darmstadt, Germany. Dr. Reinewald's grandfather, who died when his son, Joseph Lewis, father of Charles Reinewald, was quite young, lived and died in Darmstadt.

Joseph Lewis Reinewald was born in Darmstadt, Germany, October 24, 1834. He received the education usually given to German youths, and learned tanning. In 1852, at the age of eighteen, Mr. Reinewald set out for the new world, taking the ship at Havre, France, for New York, U. S. A., and making the passage in thirty-four days. His means being limited he was obliged to rely entirely upon his own resources. He went at once to Pittsburg, Pa., and arrived at the end of a week, traveling by rail and canal, and crossing the Alleghany Mountains on the old Portage railroad. He found work at his trade across the river in Alleghany City, where he remained one year. He then went to Hollidaysburg, Pa., and soon after settled at his present home in Duncansville, Blair County, Pa. In 1884 Mr. Reinewald gave up tanning and became an employee in the rolling-mill where he worked until 1904 when he retired from active life. He is a Democrat, interested in public affairs. Joseph Lewis Reinewald was married in 1855, in Hollidaysburg, Pa., to Catherine Sommer, of Hollidaysburg. She was born in Stuttgart, Germany, in 1833, and sailed from Havre, France, for New York, U. S. A., to the home of her uncle, Frederick Weidler. The voyage lasted eight weeks. Her father had died before she left her home; her mother died, some time after, in Stuttgart, Germany. The children of Joseph Lewis and Catherine (Sommer) Reinewald are: 1, Mary M.; 2, Charles; 3, Matilda (Mrs. William J. Elliott), of Norristown, Pa.; 4, Henry J., of Philadelphia, Pa.; 5, Emma (Mrs. Joseph Kirkham), of Struthers, Ohio; 6. ————. Mr. Reinewald and his wife reside in Duncansville, Pa.

The Reverend Charles Reinewald attended the public schools of his native place and an academy at Hollidaysburg, Pa. After teaching for three terms at Bennington furnace and at Plain No. 10, he entered the academy at Gettysburg, Pa., in 1880. In 1881 he entered Gettysburg College, was graduated in 1885 and, in 1888, was graduated from the Lutheran Theological Seminary, at Gettysburg. Dr. Reinewald was ordained to the ministry of the Lutheran Church, September 9, 1888. His first charge was at Braddock, Pa., where he remained for four years and three months. During his pastorate the church edifice was built; he also served a congregation at Turtle Creek, Pa. Mr. John Berry and his family who were friends of Dr. Reinewald, and had entertained him when he was ordained, were living in Johnstown, Pa., at the time of the Johnstown flood. When Dr. Reinewald heard of the disaster of May 31, 1889, he started immediately to offer his help in the work of succoring the afflicted, and arrived in time to assist in distributing the first supplies that reached the city. He spent five days in this work. He found in the city among the sufferers a college friend, Reuben M. Linton, afterwards editor of the Somerset Democrat, now deceased. During the troubles at Homestead, Dr. Reinwald was at Braddock and from there witnessed the burning of the barges containing the Pinkerton men. The Rev. Mr. Reinewald assumed the pastorate of the church in Emmitsburg, Md., October 13, 1892. In 1897 this church celebrated its centennial, the services lasting four days. The congregation then made many improvements in the building, and had put in new memorial windows, new pews and new carpets. The Rev. Charles Reinewald has been, for the last two years, president of the Synod of Maryland. He is interested in all that concerns the good of the community.

The Rev. Charles Reinewald was married, in Gettysburg, September 17, 1890, to Irene, youngest daughter of the Hon. Joel B. Danner, of Gettysburg, Congressman from that district. In respect to service, the Rev. Dr. Reinewald is the senior pastor of Emmitsburg —all the churches having changed pastors since his arrival in the city. In 1909 Susquehanna University conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity.

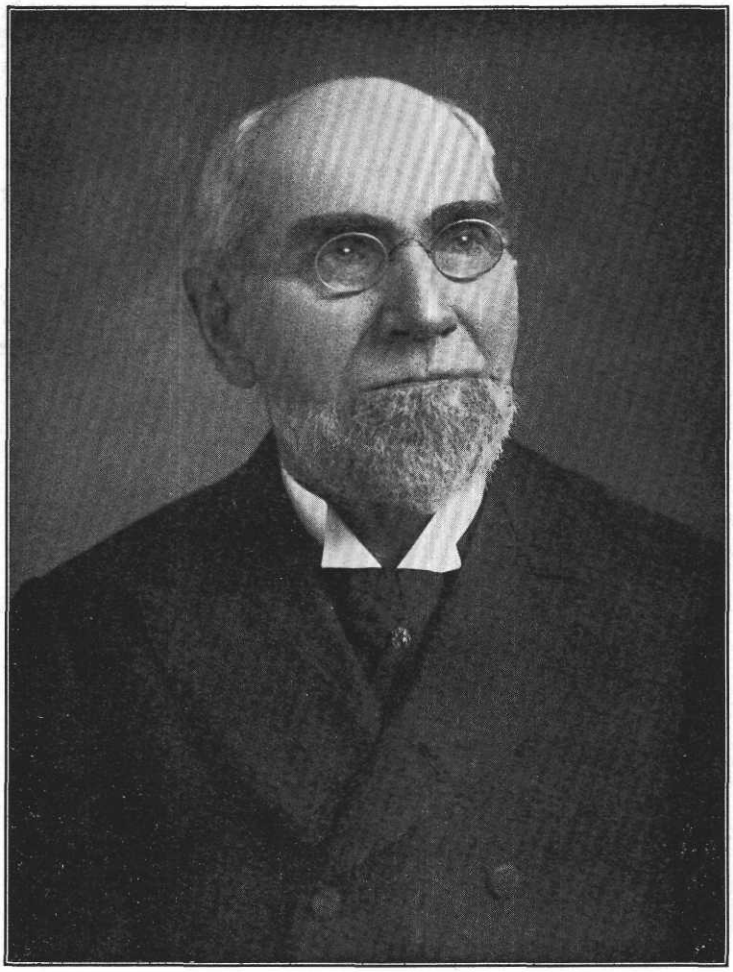
JOHN STEPHEN RAMSBURG, one of the most prominent and representative citizens of Frederick City, Maryland, was born near that place, on the old Ramsburg homestead, March 6, 1836. He is the only surviving son of Elias and Catharine Houck Ramsburg. His honored ancestors were among the few pioneer settlers of this county whose substantial names have been closely associated with its history.

John, the great-grandfather of John S. Ramsburg, came to the vicinity of Frederick City, from Pennsylvania, in 1740. He married Anna Mary Brunner. He owned large grants of land, known as "Tasker's Chance," situated just outside of Frederick. Some of this land is still in the possession of some of his descendants. He was the son of Captain Stephen Ramsburgh, an early Pennsylvania pioneer who came to this country from Lorraine, Germany, where the name is to be found at the present day in church documents and codicils as far back as 800 A. D., during the time of Charlemagne the great Reformer.

John Ramsburgh, the grandfather of John S. Ramsburg, was a native of Frederick County, Maryland. He followed the occupation of farmer all his life on the land on which his father settled bordering on Frederick and now known as the John Ramsburgh farm. In politics he was an adherent of the Whig party and in religion was a constant member of the German Reformed Church from his youth. The name of his wife was Ann Rebecca Stilley, daughter of Peter Stilley, 1st Lieutenant, Middle District, 1st Battalion of Frederick County in the Revolutionary War. They were parents of the following children: Elias, father of the subject of this sketch; John, a carpenter; Peter, a farmer; Jacob, a glove manufacturer of Georgetown, D. C.; William, a farmer and afterwards a merchant in Frederick City; Elizabeth; Mary; Anna and Catharine.

Elias Ramsburg, the father of John S. Ramsburg, was born on the old homestead in 1804 and died July 14, 1869. He received his education in the schools of his native county, and was graduated from the old Frederick Academy. After leaving school he followed agricultural pursuits until the time of his death. He resided on the old homestead, "Tasker's Chance," until 1844, when he purchased another farm "Lapland," in New Market district, on which he resided for ten years. In 1854 he removed to Frederick City and lived there the remainder of his life, retired. He was a successful farmer having accumulated considerable wealth. In politics he was an old line Whig, and during the Civil War he was a loyal and earnest supporter of the Union. He was an active and consistent member of the Evangelical Reformed Church, holding the office of Elder at the time of his death. He was upright and honorable in all his dealings, and was highly respected in the community in which he lived. He married Catharine, daughter of John Houck, a very successful farmer. They were the parents of three children: John S., of whom we give this sketch; Elias Zacharias, and Mary Catharine, who died in childhod.



John S. Ramsburg

Mrs. Ramsburg's father, John Houck, was a native of Pennsylvania and followed the occupation of farmer all his life. He was the owner of a fine farm, located two miles from Frederick on which he spent his mature life. He served in the War of 1812. He was a consistent member of the Reformed Church.

John S. Ramsburg, son of Elias and Catharine (Houck) Ramsburg, was born on the old family homestead, within sight of Frederick City. He received his elementary education in the Frederick schools and afterwards attended the New Market Academy. He resided in that locality on "Lapland" for ten years, 1844-54, and then in the latter year removed to Frederick with his parents. When he had almost attained his majority he embarked in farming, on his own account, and during a portion of 1856 and 1857, he was employed as a clerk by Joel Hall, the County Surveyor, acquiring a practical knowledge of the business. For several years he followed the pursuits of farming and surveying until in 1861, he was elected County Surveyor and served as his own successor for a number of terms. At the present day he is frequently consulted by young surveyors to correctly adjust matters of surveying. Politically, Mr. Ramsburg was first a Whig and afterwards a Republican. He was first elected by the so-called Union party and later by the Republican party.

In 1868 Mr. Ramsburg began the manufacture of fertilizer, in which he has since continued, meeting with much success. His plant is located on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, about three-quarters of a mile from Frederick, and contains two acres of ground. The warehouse and offices are located near the B. & O. depot in Frederick. The force always consists of from thirty to forty men and the whole establishment is in a flourishing condition. From the very outset the business assumed large proportions, and is now one of the most remunerative plants of its kind in that part of the State. For forty-two years Mr. Ramsburg has remained at the head of the enterprise. Being an anylitical chemist, he directs its affairs with an ability, foresight and sagacity that stamps him as a man of high executive capacity. He is proprietor and owner of the firm trading under the name of "The Ramsburg Fertilizer Co." Honorable in all his dealings, he commands the greatest respect and confidence in business and financial circles generally. Besides his Fertilizer business, Mr. Ramsburg is interested in the Citizens National Bank, of Frederick, of which he has been a director since its organization, 1886. He is an active member of the Evangelical Reformed Church, in which he has served as elder for a number of years. He drives his own automobile and at the age of seventy-four is the possessor of good health.

In 1860 Mr. Ramsburg removed to "Lapland," near New Market, Frederick County, where he resided until the spring of 1870, when he again removed to the family residence on Church Street, where he now resides.

Mr. Ramsburg was married in 1859, to Drusilla Hellen Beeson, daughter of Jesse Beeson, of Uniontown, Pa., and a granddaughter of Henry Beeson, a Quaker of distinguished English ancestry and the founder of Uniontown, Pa. She was born May 22, 1836, and died in Frederick City, January 18, 1908. She was a woman of strong and beautiful character, possessing many charming and noble qualities of both heart and mind. Although having joined the Methodist Church when quite young, she was for nearly fifty years a consistent member of the Evangelical Reformed Church, always finding great delight in its services. Her parents were Presbyterians. Mrs. Ramsburg was a descendant of the Johnsons, of Maryland; the Martins, of Martinsburg, W. Va.; the Grubbs, an old English family of Danish origin and of Lord Fairfax, of Virginia.

John S. and Drusilla H. Ramsburg were the parents of nine children: Mary C.; Elias B.; Henry B.; Ida R.; Jesse H.; and Drusilla H. Anna, Marian and Jane died in infancy.

Elias B. Ramsburg is engaged with his father in the manufacture of fertilizer. He has excellent business qualities and is prominent in Church and Masonic circles. He married Miss Lillian O'Riley, of Utica, New York. Their children are Elias and J. Richard Ramsburg.

Henry B. Ramsburg died September 11, 1899, aged thirty-six years. A superior man, being prominent in business, Masonic and Church circles, he was one of the founders of Grace Reformed Church, of Frederick, Md. He married Miss S. Laura Maynard, the only child of Dr. James H. Maynard and Clara Hobbs Maynard, of Montgomery County, Md. Their children are Henry B., Jr.; Mary I.; Hellen and Harriette M.

Ida R. Ramsburg married the Honorable Jacob Rohrback, a prominent attorney of Frederick City, Md.

Jesse H. Ramsburg is a prominent physician of Washington, D. C. He stands high in Church and Masonic circles. He married Miss Edith M. Roberts, daughter of Dr. William E. Roberts and Rebecca Naylor Roberts, of Washington, D. C. Their children are Elizabeth R. and J. Stephen Ramsburg.

Mary C. and Drusilla H. Ramsburg, single.

COLONEL JOHN R. ROUZER, formerly a member of the Maryland Legislature, and one of Frederick County's best known and leading citizens, was born near Apple's Church, about one mile from Thurmont, May 7, 1839. He is a son of Peter and Rachel Hope (Martin) Rouzer.

Daniel Rouzer was the first of the family to settle in Maryland. He was a native of New Jersey, where he was born in 1776, and died in Maryland, August 18, 1850. While a young man, he came to Maryland, and learned the tanner's trade at Hagerstown. In 1793, he moved upon the present Rouzer homestead, near Thurmont, Md., now owned and occupied by Mrs. Emma K. Rouzer, widow of John Rouzer. In that year he established the first tannery in this part of the State. At first the enterprise was conducted on a very small scale, but by degrees it grew in importance. Mr. Rouzer was in his time one of the most prominent citizens of Frederick County, and he was actively identified with church work. The business which he established held a high place in its own branch of trade for about a century, his son, John Rouzer, succeeding to the management of it. Mr. Rouzer was twice married. His first wife was Sophia Schover, daughter of Peter Schover, by whom he had ten children. He was married secondly to Julia Matthews, daughter of John Matthews, of Frederick County. They were the parents of two children: John, (see sketch); and Sarah, born in 1819.

Peter Rouzer, son of Daniel and Sophia (Schover) Rouzer, was a native of Hagerstown, Md., in which place he was born November 1, 1792, and he died in Thurmont, Md., May 17, 1877. During much of his life, he engaged in school teaching. He also spent much time following agricultural pursuits. He was a highly respected citizen of the community in which he made his home. He was married May 29, 1817, in Mechanicstown, Md., to Rachel Hope Martin, daughter of John and Elizabeth Martin. She was born in Albemarle County, Va., July 10, 1799, and died near Apple's Church, near Thurmont, August 16, 1840. They were the parents of the following children: 1, Sophia Margaret, was born July 18, 1818, and died in infancy; 2, Mary Elizabeth, was born March 22, 1820, married Joseph Freeze, of Thurmont, Md.; 3, James Madison, was born June 21, 1822, and died July 26, 1895, was by trade a cabinet maker, served in the First Pennsylvania Reserves for four years during the Civil War; 4, Daniel Riley, born October 20, 1824, died December 15, 1860, was a miller and farmer; 5, Catharine Jane, born April 1, 1827, died May 2, 1898, married Joel Weller, of Washington, D. C.; 6, Simon Henry, died in infancy; 7, Barbara Ann, born December 19, 1830, died in Shepherdstown, West Va., May 11, 1890, married Washington A. Bennett; 8, Uriah A., born July 20, 1833, died at Knoxville, Tenn., December 14, 1886, mill-wright by occupation, and ranked high in the Masonic Order; 9, Eliza Adeline, born January 22, 1836, married Joshua Smith, who is now deceased; 10, John R.

Colonel John R. Rouzer, son of Peter and Rachel Hope (Martin) Rouzer, spent his early life with his sister, Mrs. Joseph Freeze, his mother having died when he was but a year old. He attended the public and private schools, and the Mechanicstown Academy. At the age of eighteen he began life for himself. He learned the trade of a saddler and harness-maker with his brother-in-law, Joseph Freeze, whose shop he later bought and continued to operate for some years.

As a soldier, Colonel Rouzer has a most enviable record. At the outbreak of the war he espoused the cause of the Union, and on August 19, 1862, enlisted in Company D, Sixth Maryland Infantry, as first lieutenant of his company; later he was made captain and twice was brevetted for meritorious service. The Sixth was one of the regiments that became noted for their valor during the struggle. Mr. Rouzer was made first lieutenant August 23, 1862; was promoted May 1, 1863, to be captain of Company B, same regiment, and later was brevetted major, the promotion being made for gallant conduct at the battle of Mine Run, Va. He was wounded in the battle of the Wilderness, May 5, 1864. He was brevetted lieutenant-colonel for gallant service, and took part in many of the most important engagements of the war. He was once captured, at Winchester, Va., September 19, 1864, and four months he remained in Libbey, Danville and Salisbury prisons, after which he was exchanged. At the close of the war he was honorably discharged, June 20, 1865, and returned to his old home.

On returning to Thurmont, Colonel Rouzer resumed the business he had left at the time of his enlistment. He is one of the county's best known citizens and business men. He was a charter member of the Mechanicstown Water Company, of which he has been vice-president for many years. He was elected February, 1910, president of the Thurmont National Bank, one of the county's stable financial institutions. Colonel Rouzer is now living in Thurmont, which has been his residence through practically his entire life, somewhat out of active business life.

Politically, Colonel Rouzer was first a Whig and later a Republican. In 1867, he was elected a member of the Maryland Legislature. On March 19, 1869, he was appointed postmaster of Thurmont, by the postmaster-general, Hon. John A. J. Creswell. He continued in that capacity until he was elected register of wills of Frederick County, in November, 1873. After a term of six years, during which he discharged his duties with much ability, he retired from that office and turned his attention to farming and private business. In 1883, he was appointed county school commissioner, but declined the position. For a number of years he was commissioner and treasurer of the town board of Thurmont, and for forty-five years was one of the trustees of the Public Schools of Thurmont. In 1894, he was again elected as a member of the Maryland House of Delegates, and re-elected in 1896 and 1898. During each term he was a leading member of the House and assisted in the work of various committees. He was one of Senator Wellington's strongest supporters for the Senatorial nomination. He is a fearless advocate of whatever he believes to be just and right. He served as a member of the committee on organization, and as chairman of the committee on militia, on manufactures, on corporations. His record as a member of the legislature is a good one, always having the best interests of his constituents at heart. In 1900, he was appointed by President McKinley as deputy register of wills for the District of Columbia, at Washington, D. C., and served in this capacity for four years. He was a stanch friend and supporter of the late Senator Lewis E. McComas.

Colonel Rouzer is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the present Commander of Jason Demuth Post No. 80, G. A. R., Thurmont, Md. He is a consistent member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Thurmont, in which he has served for many years as a member of the council and as superintendent of the Sunday School.

Colonel Rouzer was first married May 7, 1866, to Harriet E. Willhide, daughter of Captain Joseph Willhide. She died twenty-two months after their marriage, and her only child died when four months old. In 1871, Colonel Rouzer was married to Mrs. E. Willman, a widow, (Julia), a sister of his first wife. They were the parents of five children, three of whom are living, namely: Mary Catharine, the wife of Harry N. Brown, of Norfolk, Va.; Margaret C., the wife of Lester W. Armocost, a merchant of Thurmont, Md.; and Horace C., of Washington, D. C.

JONAS A. RAMSBURG, one of the progressive and successful agriculturists of Lewistown district, was born January 25, 1849. He is a son of David J. and Catharine (Geasy) Ramsburg.

David J. Ramsburg was born May 13, 1823, and was a son of John Ramsburg. He received a common school education. He chose farming as his life work. He bought a farm of 100 acres of land in Creagerstown district, now in the possession of Mrs. Danner. He lived here for several years, when ill fortune compelled him to dispose of this tract. He followed different occupations up to the time of his death. In politics, he voted for the candidates of the Democratic party. He was connected with the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Ramsburg was married to Catharine Geasy. They were the parents of five children, four of whom reached maturity: Sarah, the wife of E. Eyler; Jonas A.; Alice, the wife of Nathan Barrick, of Frederick City; and Howard, of Lewistown district.

Jonas A. Ramsburg, son of David J. and Catharine (Geasy) Ramsburg, was the recipient of a public school eduaction. When he was twenty-eight years old, he began to farm on his own account, having previously helped on the home place. He began life by cultivating the farm which he now owns, but then in the possession of John C. Derr. Here he remained for three years, and then removed to the farm of Henry Boller, his father-in-law. He remained here for a few years, and then returned to the Derr farm. He continued to make his home here, and in 1895 purchased this place. The farm contains 108 1-2 acres of good land, and lies about ten miles north of Frederick on the Emmitsburg turnpike.

This tract he improved by building a new house and out-buildings. This is one of the finest farms in Lewistown district. Mr. Ramsburg also bought a small farm in 1902, about a half mile west of his former purchase. He afterwards disposed of this place to his son, Charles S. Mr. Ramsburg is a self-made man and has risen to his present comfortable circumstances through hard work and temperate habits.

Mr. Ramsburg is an adherent of the Republican principles. He has served as one of the trustees of the public school at Center in Mechanicstown district. He is a member of the United Brethren Church at Thurmont.

Mr. Ramsburg was married to America V. Boller, daughter of Henry and Matilda Boller, of Mechanicstown district. There were four children by this marriage: Charles S., of Lewistown district; Clarence L., lives in the West; Mary B. and Mattie B., reside at Home. Mrs. Ramsburg is also connected with the United Brethren Church at Thurmont.

ELIAS S. ROUTZAHN, farmer, residing near Ellerton, Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., son of Elias and Melinda (Bittle) Routzahn, was born on the old Routzahn homestead, in Catoctin District, August 10, 1859.

Mr. Routzahn's great-great-grandfather, Frederick Routzahn, a native of Germany, the founder of the American branch of the family, came to America in ——, and settled in Littlestown, Pa., where his son, Ludwick, great-grandfather of Elias E. Routzahn, was born, August 13, 1767. Ludwick Routzahn, Sr., afterwards removed to Maryland, where he purchased a farm of 500 acres, situated in the Middletown Valley, two miles and a-half northeast of Myersville. Ludwick Routzahn, Sr., was married to Esther Sheffer, of Middletown, Md., who was born in Middletown, January 1, 1767. They had several children among whom was a son, Adam. Mrs. Routzahn died March 8, 1815; her husband died August 15, 1856, and was buried in the cemetery at Church Hill.

Adam Routzahn, grandfather of Elias S. Routzahn, was born at the old homestead in Catoctin District, November 10, 1796. He grew up on the home place, now divided into two farms, and remained at home until he married, when he took charge of one of his father's farms. After the death of his father, Mr. Routzahn bought the part of the homestead on which his grandson resides, and spent the remainder of his life in cultivating and improving it. He was well-known as a successful farmer among the older men of the district. Adam Routzahn was married to Elizabeth, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Bowlus) Floyd. The Floyd family was one of the first to settle in Frederick County. Mrs. Routzahn's father was born March 6, 1766, and died April 11, 1826; her mother was born August 31, 1779, and died December 19, 1846. The children of Adam and Elizabeth (Floyd) Routzahn are: 1, Caroline, deceased, born August 20, 1819, married first to the late Ezra Keller, a minister of the Lutheran Church, and after his death to the late Peter A. Schingler; 2, Elizabeth A. B., deceased, born December 5, 1821, married to the late Peter Young, a miller of Middletown District, Frederick County; 3, Elias; 4, Elmira, born January 5, 1830, widow of the late Luther Routzahn (no relative), of Springfield, Ohio; 5, Amanda E., deceased, born September 20, 1834, married to the Rev. Lewis H. Kefauver, of Middletown, deceased. Mr. Routzahn and his wife were members of St. John's Lutheran Church at Church Hill. Mr. Routzahn was an office-bearer in the church for many years, and was one of the most active members in the erection of the new church edifice. He died April 13, 1840, and is buried in the cemetery at Church Hill; his wife died in Tiffin, O., March 10, 1888, and was buried at Springfield, O.

Mr. Routzahn's father, Elias Routzahn, a prominent farmer of Catoctin District, was born on the homestead, December 3, 1825. He was educated in the public schools of the District, and remained on the home place assisting his parents. When he was fifteen, his father died and he remained with his mother, and when he was old enough, took charge of the farm for her. This land was a gift to him from his grandfather. He spent his whole life in cultivating and improving it, and made it one of the best and most productive farms in the district. Mr. Routzahn was a Republican, highly esteemed as a succesful farmer and as a good citizen. Elias Routzahn was married to Malinda, daughter of Jonathan and Rachel (Bogner) Bittle, by the Rev. D. F. Bittle, March 13, 1848. Of their four children, three reached maturity: 1, Elias S.; 2, Elizabeth R., married to Elmer Raymor, a wheelwright, of Myersville, Md.; 3, Minnie B., married to Franklin Routzahn, a farmer of Catoctin District. Mr. Routzahn and his wife were members of St. John's Lutheran Church at Church Hill, where he held office for many years. Mr. Routzahn died February 12, 1900, and is buried in the cemetery at Church Hill. His wife died November 23, 1902.

Elias S. Routzahn received his education in the public schools of his native district, and remained on the home farm. After his father's death, he rented the place from his mother and, after her death, bought it from the heirs of the estate. His property is numbered among the fine farms of the section. It consists of 157 acres of arable land, well improved, furnished with a two-story brick dwelling, a bank barn and all the necessary outbuildings, adjoining Ellerton, two miles and a half northeast of Myersville. His intelligent cultivation has greatly increased the value of the land, which gives ample returns for his labor and patient care. Mr. Routzahn is a Republican, highly esteemed as a successful business man and as a citizen. He is one of the trustees of the public school at Ellerton.

Elias S. Routzahn was married to Sarah E., daughter of the late Daniel and Susan (Leopold) Grossnickle. Their children are: 1, Annie B. (Mrs. Ora Stranp), born March 13, 1886, at home; 2, Edna M., born May 19, 1892, at home; 3, Addie S., born February 4, 1896, at home; 4, Naomi E., born July 3, 1905. Mr. Routzahn is a member of Saint John's Lutheran Church, at Church Hill, and has served the congregation for many years as deacon and as elder. His wife holds her membership in the German Baptist Church, at Grossnickle Meetinghouse.

JACOB L. ROUTZAHN, farmer, residing on a part of the old Routzahn homestead in Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., son of Ludwick, Jr., and Mary (Marker) Routzahn, both deceased, was born on the farm which he now cultivates, November 10, 1864.

Mr. Routzahn's great-great-grandfather, the founder of the American branch of the family, was a native of Germany who came to America in ——, and settled in Littlestown, Pa., where his son, Ludwick, great-grandfather of Jacob L. Routzahn, was born and spent his youth. Ludwick Routzahn, Sr., great-grandfather of Jacob L. Routzahn, was born on his father's farm, in Littlestown, Pa., August 13, 1767. He afterwards removed to Maryland where he purchased a farm of 500 acres, situated in the Middletown Valley, two miles and a-half northeast of Myersville, and spent the remainder of his life in clearing and cultivating this land. He built a beautiful two-story brick dwelling, a bank barn and all necessary buildings. Ludwick Routzahn, Sr., was married to Esther Sheffer, of Middletown. They had several children among whom was a son, Jacob, grandfather of Jacob L. Routzahn. Ludwick Routzahn died at his home in Frederick County, August 15, 1856. His wife, who was born January 1, 1767, died March 8, 1815. Both are buried in the cemetery at Church Hill.

Jacob Routzahn, grandfather of Jacob L. Routzahn, was born on the old homestead in Catoctin District, in 1792. He remained with his parents on the home place and, after the death of his father, took charge of a part of the farm. This large farm was divided, and Mr. Routzahn finally purchased the part which he was cultivating. It is now owned by his grandson, Jacob L. Routzahn. He spent his life on this place which he greatly improved. He was highly esteemed as a man and as a citizen. Jacob Routzahn was married to Catherine, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Bowlus) Floyd, both deceased. The Floyd family was one of the first to settle in Frederick County. Mrs. Routzahn's father was born March 6, 1766, and died April 11, 1826. Her mother was born August 31, 1779, and died December 19, 1846. The children of Jacob and Catherine (Floyd) Routzahn are: 1, Hezekiah, deceased, a farmer of the Middletown Valley; 2, Margaret, deceased, married Samuel Young, a miller of Middletown District, Frederick County; 3, Ludwick, Jr.; 4, Elizabeth, widow of the late Upton Burhman; 5, Lawson, deceased; 6, Isaiah, of Jackson District, Frederick County; 7, Charlotte, deceased, married to the late Samson Kinney, Miller, 8, Caroline, widow of the late John Johnson, a farmer of Catoctin District; 9, Catherine, married to William M. Bittle, a retired farmer of Myersville, Md. Mr. Routzahn and his wife were members of St. John's Lutheran Church at Church Hill. He died July 21, 1876; his wife died February 9, 1873.

The late Ludwick Routzahn, Jr., father of Jacob L. Routzahn, was born October 21, 1824, on the old homestead, three miles northeast of Myersville, on the Harp Hill road. He was educated in the public schools of the district, and remained with his father on the homestead. After the death of his father, Mr. Routzahn bought from the estate, 235 acres of the home place, which he cultivated successfully until his death. He greatly improved his property and made it one of the best farms in the district. He was a Republican highly respected by his fellow citizens. Ludwick Routzahn, Jr., was married to Mary, daughter of Michael and Sarah (Shiner) Marker, both deceased. Of their eight children, seven reached maturity: 1, Charlotte C., married to the late T. L. Hauver, of Jackson District; 2, Mellia F.; 3, Jacob L.; 4, Mollie M. (Mrs. Charles W. Harp), of Catoctin District; 5, Annie, deceased, married to Elmer Raymor, of Myersville; 6, Martha M., married to Thomas W. Bittle, a farmer of Catoctin District; 7, Elizabeth E. (Mrs. George W. Poffenberger), of Hauvers District, Frederick County. Mr. Routzahn and his wife were members of St. John's Lutheran Church at Church Hill. He died December 28, 1900; his wife died November 12, 1890. Both rest in the cemetery at Church Hill. Mr. Routzahn held office in the church for many years.

Jacob L. Routzahn was educated in the public schools of Catoctin District, and remained on the homestead, assisting his father. After his father's death, Mr. Routzahn purchased the farm of 207 acres of arable land and immediately began making improvements. This farm situated on the road from Ellerton to Wolfsville, is watered by five fine springs, and is considered one of the most valuable farm properties in that section of Maryland. Mr. Routzahn ascribes his financial success to hard work and careful attention to business. He is a Republican, highly esteemed in the district, and is a stockholder in the Farmers' Exchange, of Myersville.

Jacob L. Routzahn was married to Mary E., daughter of Samuel and Julia A. (Kesslering) Brandenburg, whose father is a prominent farmer of Catoctin District. Of their seven children, six are living: 1, Mary C.; 2, Samuel L.; 3, Martha G.; 4, William F.; 5, Annie E.; 6, Ruth J.; all at home. The family belongs to the Lutheran Church.

HOWARD P. RAMSBURG, one of the well known and leading farmers of Lewistown district, was born March 27, 1855. His parents were Lewis P. and Julia Catharine (Putnam) Ramsburg.

The Ramsburg family is of German lineage and is found to be located in Virginia at an early day. Henry Ramsburg, the great-grandfather of Howard P. Ramsburg, was a native of Virginia. He was the owner of a large and valuable plantation in Berkeley County, that State. He was accidentally killed by cutting himself while butchering.

Jacob Ramsburg, son of Henry Ramsburg, was but an infant at the time of his father's death and he was brought to Lewistown district, Frederick County, where he was raised by relatives. He died at the age of sixty-five years. He was one of the wealthy and influential farmers of the county. In politics, he was a Democrat, and very aggressive in his support, but the only public position ever held by him was that of judge of elections. Mr. Ramsburg was married to Elizabeth Snook, daughter of Henry Snook, a farmer and miller of Frederick County. She lived to be ninety-one years old. They were the parents of these children: Lewis P.; Eliza, deceased, was the wife of J. Ezra Michael; Henry, died aged eighteen years; Nelson A. (see his sketch); Alexander (see his sketch); and Thomas C., of Creagerstown district.

Lewis P. Ramsburg, son of Jacob and Elizabeth (Snook) Ramsburg, was born on a farm in Lewistown district, July 5, 1830, and died in Walkersville in December, 1908. He was a farmer by occupation, and was an honorable and highly respected citizen. His political beliefs were Democratic. He held membership in the Reformed Church, serving as deacon and elder for many years in the Glade Reformed Church. Mr. Ramsburg was married to Julia Catharine Putnam. They were the parents of the following children: Marshall Orlando, a business man of Walkersville, Md.; Howard P.; Clara H., the wife of Emanuel Rebert, of New Windsor, Carroll county, Md.; Annie E., unmarried, of Walkersville; John J., a physician of Walkersville; and Minnie, unmarried, lives at Walkersville.

Howard P. Ramsburg, son of Lewis P. and Julia Catharine (Putnam) Ramsburg, passed the early years of his life upon the farm of his father. In the public schools of his native district he secured his education. Having while a boy become familiar with the duties of a farmer's life, he chose agriculture as a vocation. In 1882, Mr. Ramsburg purchased his present farm from Isaac Michaels. This place is known as the old Hill in the middle farm, and contains 85 acres of excellent agricultural land. It is situated on the Emmitsburg pike, five miles north of Frederick City, in Lewistown district. Mr. Ramsburg has just completed a handsome eight-room two-story frame dwelling, fitted with all modern conveniences. Mr. Ramsburg is one of the prosperous and successful farmers of the district.

In politics, Mr. Ramsburg supports the candidates of the Democratic party. For the past twenty years he has served as school trustee of the Hansonville school district. Religiously, he is connected with the Reformed Church.

Mr. Ramsburg was married February 5, 1878, to Mary E. Leatherman, daughter of Daniel and Caroline (Michael) Leatherman. They were the parents of ten chidren, nine of whom survive: Elsie F., the wife of William H. Bussard, of Middletown, by whom she has one daughter; Mary Lottie, the wife of Harry C. Stull (see sketch), by whom she had three children, Ethel, Glenn and Paul; Mamie, the wife of Orange C. Stull, and they have a daughter, Lola; Oscar C., a farmer, resides with his father; Tina F., the wife of Guy McDevitt, of Tuscarora district, and they have one son, Melvin; Grace, Myrtle, Earl Howard and Viola, all at home.

BENJAMIN CISSEL PERRY, M. D., of Urbana, Urbana district, Frederick County, is a native of Kensington, Montgomery County, Md., where he was born January 7, 1881. He is the sixth child and fourth son of a family of eight children born to Richard Humphrey and Margaret (Waters) Perry.

The late Richard Humphrey Perry was one of the leading farmers of Montgomery County, Md., and was a man of excellent attributes. Margaret Waters, his widow, still resides at the old homestead at Kensington, at the age of sixty-four years.

Benjamin C. Perry received his elementary education in the public schools of Montgomery County and was graduated from the Washington High School in 1898. In the autumn of that year he entered Columbian University, at Washington, D. C., now George Washington University, and was graduated from the Medical Department of that institution in 1906. He then took post-graduate work for one year in the Maryland General Hospital at Baltimore. For the next eighteen months he was at the Casualty Hospital at Washington. While connected with that hospital, he had six months practice on the U. S. N. monitor "Puritan," and made trips in that boat to Bermuda and northern points, taking part in the naval parade at the time of Prince Henry's visit to the United States. Dr. Perry then located in Urbana and succeeded the late Dr. E. E. Mullinix. He does a general practice and has built up a large and lucrative clientele. His skill is well known and he has already made a success in the exacting field to which he intends devoting his life. He has made many friends since locating in Urbana and possesses the esteem of the whole community. He is progressive and keeps abreast with the latest discoveries in the medical world.

Dr. Perry is a stanch adherent of the principles of the Democratic party. He is a member of the Montgomery and Frederick County Medical Societies, and the Phi Sigma Kappa and Alpha Kappa Kappa fraternities, and of the medical staff of the Frederick City Hospital. Religiously, he was raised in the Presbyterian faith.

Dr. Perry married Miss Minnie Lucile Nash, of Frederick County, formerly of St. Louis, Mo., on January 26, 1910.

GEORGE F. POFFENBERGER, a well-known farmer of Hauvers District, whose farm lies on the Pennsylvania and Maryland line, son of Hezekiah and Ann Rebecca (Gaver) Poffenberger, was born near Myersville, Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., December 15, 1869.

The founders of the American branch of the Poffenberger family, (original spelling was Pfaffenberger), came from Germany on the ship "Pink Mary," of Dublin, and landed at Philadelphia, Pa., September 29, 1733. It is supposed that they settled near Tulpehocken, Pa. It is supposed that the party consisted of George Pfaffenberger, his wife, and their children: 1, George, Jr.; 2, Elizabeth, aged eleven; 3, Christianna, aged six; 4, Adam, aged four. Adam Pfaffenberger married and became the father of three children: 1, Daniel I., died July 29, 1845, aged ninety-five; 2, Jacob, born October 24, 1760, died May 10, 1846; 3, Christopher, died February 5, 1857, aged eighty-three. There is no record of the birth of Daniel or Christopher.

Daniel Poffenberger, great-grandfather of George F. Poffenberger, son of Adam Poffenberger, was married to a lady whose name is unknown, the records giving only the date of her death, September 28, 1831. He and his wife are buried in the churchyard of St. John's Lutheran Church in Myersville, Md. Their children are: 1, William, born July 22, 1783, married to Catherine Noll, February 28, 1804, died February 22, 1842; 2, Jacob, born October 31, 1784, went to the west and was never heard from; 3, Catherine, born February 11, 1786; 4, John, born September 20, 1788; 5, ———, born April 21, 1791; 6, Elizabeth, born October 13, 1793; 7, Rachel, born November 20, 1798.

John Poffenberger, grandfather of George F. Poffenberger, lived and died in the Middletown Valley. He was married to Mary Ann, daughter of Jacob Bogner, born August 14, 1786. Her father, who was born June 30, 1754, was a soldier in the Colonial army. He died, December 29, 1854, and is buried in the cemetery on Red Hill, near Dauphin, Pa. The children of John and Mary Ann (Bogner) Poffenberger are: 1, Catherine, born February 14, 1712, married to J. W. Bussard, died October 30, 1889; 2, Isaac, born April 12, 1814, married Mary Ann Bittle, died April 9, 1889; 3, Rowanna (Mrs. Paul Kline), deceased; 4, Enoch, born July 28, 1816, married to Elizabeth Gladhill, died July 27, 1884; 5, Mary, deceased, married to the late Daniel Michaels; 6, Elizabeth, deceased, married to the late Samuel Dutrow; 7, John, went to the west; 8, Hezekiah. Mr. Poffenberger died July 9, 1830; his widow died August 15, 1873. Both are buried in the cemetery of St. John's Lutheran Church, near Myersville, Md.

Hezekiah Poffenberger, father of George F. Poffenberger, was born June 20, 1828. He was educated in the public schools of his native district, and learned blacksmithing. He was a fine mechanic and had a smithy near Myersville, and afterwards removed to Ellerton, Catoctin District, Frederick County, where he owned a smithy in which he did a profitable business for many years. Mr. Poffenberger also owned a comfortable home in Ellerton, and was so successful financially that he was able to retire some years before his death. He was highly esteemed in Ellerton as a business man and as a citizen. Hezekiah Peffenberger was married to Rebecca Ann Gaver. Their children are: 1, Mary Susan, born December 14, 1850, married to Charles Smith, farmer, Myersville, Md.; 2, John Henry, born October 14, 1852, blacksmith, of Arcanum, Ohio, married to Jennie Raymer; 3, Rebecca Alice, born November 2, 1853, married to Henry Shoemaker, day laborer, Frederick, Md.; 4, Amanda Ellen, born July 29, deceased, married to Carlton Palmer, a carpenter who resides near Myersville, Md.; 5, Elizabeth, born January 7, 1857, married John Baker, farmer, Sharpsburg, Md.; 6, Annie Cordelia, deceased, born October 27, 1853, married to John F. Summers, merchant, who resides at Myersville, Md.;

7, Lillie Catherine, born May 29, 1861, married George W. Slifer, miller and farmer, of Middletown, Md.; 8, Lloyd, born December 20, 1863, died September 2, 1864; 9, Laura Geneta, born September 12, 1865, married to John F. Summers, merchant, resides near Myersville; 10, Emma Cora, born October 31, 1867, married to John W. D. Koogle, day laborer, Middletown, Md.; 11, George Franklin; 12, Jacob Reno, blacksmith, deceased, born April 6, 1872, married to Jennie Dusing. Mr. Poffenberger was a Democrat. He and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church at Church Hill, to which he was a liberal contributor. He died November 27, 1908, and is buried in the cemetery at Church Hill, Jackson District, Frederick County. His wife rests by his side.

George F. Poffenberger was educated in the public schools of the district, and learned blacksmithing with his father at Ellerton until his father retired from business when he purchased the smithy and continued the business successfully for five years. Mr. Poffenberger then sold his smithy to Raymer & Son, and purchased his present home, known as the Hiram Harbaugh farm. This place containing 173 acres of farm and timber land, is well-watered and beautifully situated two and a-half miles north-east of Sabillassville, on the Maryland and Pennsylvania line on the road from Sabillasville to Fountain Dale, Pa. It is equipped with a comfortable two-story brick dwelling, a bank barn, and all the necessary buildings. The land is in excellent condition, and under Mr. Poffenberger's skilful management bears some of the heaviest crops harvested in this section of the State. He is known as one of the most prosperous farmers of Hauvers District, and is highly respected as a citizen. He attributes his financial success to honest toil and careful management. He is a Democrat, interested in local affairs. Mr. Poffenberger is a member of South Mountain Lodge, No. 125, of the Odd Fellows, in Wolfsville, Md.

George F. Poffenberger was married to Elizabeth, daughter of Ludwig and Mary (Marker) Routzahn, whose father was prominent among the older farmers of Catoctin District, Frederick County. Of their five children, four are living: 1, Nellie E.; 2, Mary C.; 3, Roger F.; 4, Annie F.; all at home. The Poffenberger family belongs to the Lutheran Church.

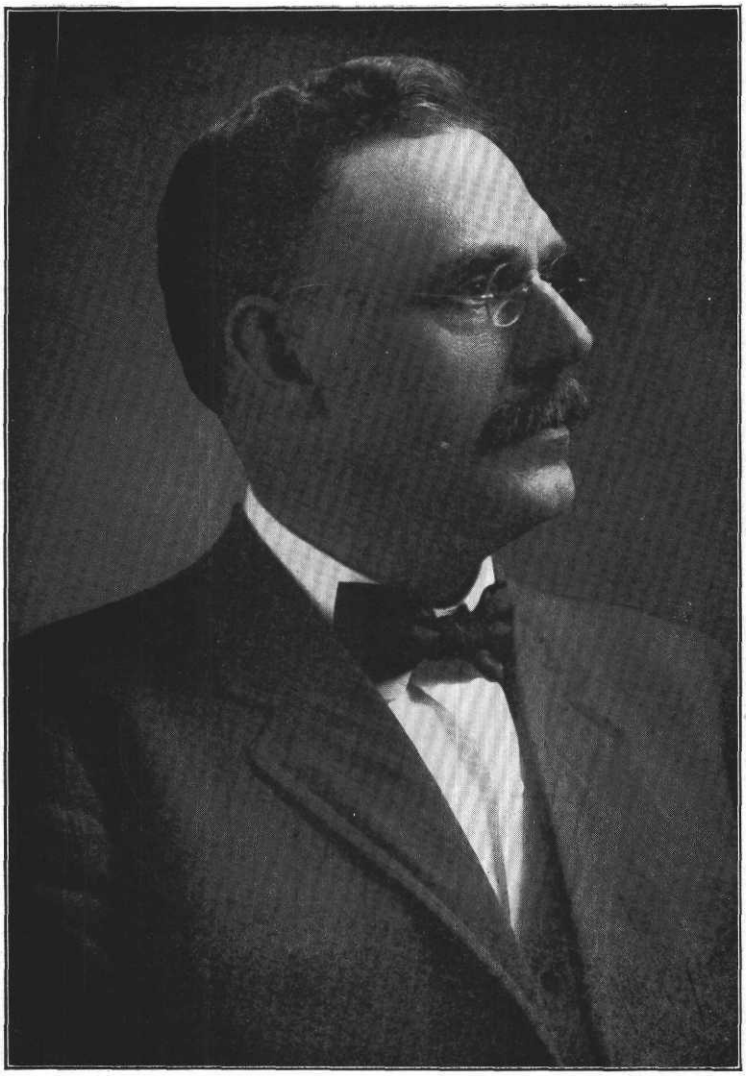
CHARLES FREMONT GOODELL, M. D., one of the most prominent and active physicians of Frederick City, is a native of Southbridge, Mass., where he was born August 30, 1856. He is a son of Hosea B. and Harriet C. (Fiske) Goodell.

Asa Goodell, the grandfather of Dr. Charles F. Goodell, was born in 1791, and died in 1876. His paternal ancestor emigrated from England to America in 1699. He was a thrifty agriculturist and owned a large farm in Connecticut, on which for many years he cultivated a large apple orchard, of which he was especially proud. He served from Massachusetts in the War of 1812, and a brother served under General Putnam in the Revolution. Asa Goodell was a prominent man in the community in which he lived. He was a magistrate, and a member of the State Legislature. In religion he was a member of the Baptist Church, in which he was an active worker.

Hosea B. Goodell, the father of Dr. Charles F. Goodell, was a native of Connecticut. He died in 1877. He was a manufacturer of boots and shoes, and operated a large and prosperous establishment during the greater part of his mature life. In politics he was a life long Republican, but never aspired to office. In religion he was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was an active worker and supporter of it. He was married to Harriet C. Fiske, daughter of Moses Fiske. Moses Fiske was a merchant and native of Massachusetts, and came of an old and influential family of that State. One of his relatives, Rev. Wilbur Fiske, was the first advocate of Methodism in that part of the country. A cousin of Mrs. Goodell was Samuel F. B. Morse, the inventor of our present telegraphic system. Hosea B. and Harriet C. Goodell were the parents of the following children: William F., who died in Lowell, Mass., in 1883; John H., a provision dealer of near Boston, Mass.; died in 1902; Raymond D., who died in 1884, was employed in the Pension Department in Washington, D. C.; Mary died in childhood; Harriet E., died in 1870, aged 17; and Charles F.

Charles F. Goodell received his eduaction in the public schools, and was graduated from the North Brookfield High School, Mass., in 1878, after which he attended Tufts College. He then took a responsible position in the Census Bureau, at Washington, D. C. Here he remained for two years. He then took up the study of medicine, and was graduated with the degree of M. D. from the Medical Department of Howard University, Washington, D. C., in 1882. He subsequently took a post graduate course at the Hahnemann Medical College, at Philadelphia, Pa. He began the practice of his profession in Washington, D. C., where he remained until 1889, when failing health of his wife caused him to remove to Lincoln, Neb.



Chas. F. Goodell. M.D.

After a lapse of sixteen months, he returned east, and located in Frederick City, Md., in 1891, where he has ever since remained in active practice. He has built up a large and lucrative practice, and is recognized as one of the ablest and most prominent physicians of Frederick.

Dr. Goodell was elected a member of the State Board of Medical Examiners by the Homeopathic State Medical Society in 1892, and four years later was elected president of the Maryland State Homeopathic Medical Society. In 1898, he was appointed Health Officer of Frederick City, and is at present County Health Officer. He is a member of the Frederick County Medical Society, the Medico-Chirurgical Society of Maryland, the American Medical Association, the American Institute of Homeopathy and the State Homeopathic Medical Society.

In politics, Dr. Goodell has always taken an active part in the Republican party. Fraternally he is a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M.; Enoch Chapter, No. 23, Royal Arch Masons; Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar; Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knight of Pythias, and Frederick City Lodge, I. O. O. F., No. 100, of which he is a Past Grand and Grand Representive. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Frederick, of which he is a member of the official board.

Dr. Goodell was married May 15, 1883, to Ada V. Graham, daughter of Robert H. Graham, a leading carriage manufacturer of Washington, D. C. They are the parents of three children: Jessie R. Jessie R. was married on June 9th, 1908, to George R. Cooledge, of South Framingham, Mass. She died on April 19, 1909, born in 1884; Robert F., born in 1886; and Charles Graham, born in Frederick City in 1898.

CALVIN L. PUTMAN, who devotes his energies and time to agriculture, is one of the leading of the younger farmers of Creagerstown district. He was born on his father's farm near Harmony, Frederick County, June 10, 1873. He is a son of John J., Jr., and Rebecca (Shriver) Putman.

John J. Putman, Sr., the grandfather of our subject, was among the well known and prominent farmers of the Middletown Valley, Frederick County. He lived near what is now Harmony. His parents were of German birth and came to America, going to live in Middletown Valley, where he was reared and became a highly respected citizen. His wife was Annie E. Summers, by whom he had six children that grew to mature years: Malinda, the wife of Henry Coblentz, a farmer of Middletown district; Samuel, followed farming in Woodsboro district and is now deceased; John J., Jr.; Annie E., the deceased wife of the late Leander Stull, of Creagerstown district; Julia, married Lewis P. Ramsburg, of Walkersville, both deceased; and Hezekiah, deceased, of Frederick City. In religion, the family were members of the Lutheran Church.

John J. Putman, Jr., son of John J. and Annie E. (Summers) Putman, received a common school education and was engaged in rural pursuits all his life. He began for himself by cultivating one of his father's farms in Creagerstown district, now owned by A. J. Hankey. This place he successfully managed for some time, and then purchased it. It contained 145 acres of good farm land, and was located about one mile south of Creagerstown. He later disposed of this tract and bought a fine farm near Utica, whither he removed. This property he also sold, and returned to the home farm in Middletown Valley, where he stayed until his parents died. Mr. Putman then bought the old McDaniel farm, on the Utica road in Creagerstown district. This farm he later sold to his son, J. Frederick, and it is now owned by H. L. Gaver. Mr. Putman then went to live on the M. J. Grove farm in Buckeystown district, and remained there six years. He then made sale and later secured by purchase a small tract in Lewistown district, which is now owned by his daughter. The remainder of his days was spent here. His death occurred in October, 1907, and he was buried in the Lutheran cemetery at Utica. In politics, Mr. Putman was stanch in his support of the Democracy. He was a member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Utica, where he held office for a number of years. Mr. Putman was married to Rebecca Shriver. By this marriage, there were twelve children, eleven of whom grew up: John J., of Tuscarora district; Greenberry H., a farmer of Fredeick distict; Annie E., widow of John Warner, and now the wife of Cornelius Derr, of Lewistown district; Elmer E., a resident of Cripple Creek, Cal.; J. Frederick; Laura C., married Henry Black, deceased, of Buckeystown district; Julia M., married to George O'Neil, a farmer of Middletown district; Minnie, deceased; Lewis W., engaged in agriculture in Frederick district; Calvin L.; and Dessie G., the wife of William E. Miller, a merchant of Frederick.

Calvin L. Putman, son of John J. and Rebecca (Shriver) Putman, acquired his learning in the public schools. His life has been passed in rural pursuits. He was reared on a farm, and began farming for himself on the place where he now resides, in Creagerstown district. He bought his farm of 135 acres of fine land from James Null, and began to make his own way in the world. This property lies two miles east of Lewistown and is beautifully situated. It is watered by a small stream known as Sand Run. For six years, Mr. Putman remained on this farm, at the end of which time he rented it and removed to a farm in Buckeystown district. Here he spent two years and then returned to his own property in Creagerstown district. Here he has since remained. He put up a fine two-story brick house and an excellent bank barn. He later bought 60 acres of land, which he added to his former purchase. His tract is one of the best producing farms in the district. Mr. Putman is a progressive farmer and has received large returns from his labors. He is a stockholder in the Washington, Frederick and Gettysburg Railroad.

In his political views, Mr. Putman is a Democrat. He takes much interest in religious affairs, and is a member of St. John's Evangelical Church of Creagerstown, with which his wife is also connected.

Mr. Putman was married to Effie M. Fisher, daughter of John M. and Mary E. (Valentine) Fisher, the former a prominent retired farmer of Creagerstown district and the latter deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Putman are the parents of four children: Glenn L., Arthur F., Margaret L., and Earl C., all at home.

GEORGE W. PETERS, owner of the Bloomsboro Mill farm, located three miles from Urbana on the road from that place to Park Mills, is one of the representative citizens of Urbana district. His farm contains 250 acres, of which half is under cultivation. It was originally part of the old Major Johnson "Bloomsboro tract." The old mill that stood on the place was destroyed by fire for the third time in August, 1904, and was never rebuilt. It was first built by Major Johnson, brother of Governor Thomas Johnson, over a hundred and fifty years ago. It was burned about eighty years ago for the second time. The old walls, however, stood through the fires. The mill site is on Bennett's Creek. Mr. Peters was born at the old mansion home, where he has spent all of his life, January 22, 1858, and is a son of Thomas and Olivia (Burnside) Peters.

The Peters family is of English descent. Major John Peters was an officer in the Revolutionary War. He died at the village of Thurston, aged ninety-six years. He followed the occupation of a farmer throughout his life.

Thomas Peters, the father of George W. Peters, was born in Montgomery County, Md., August 6, 1819. He secured his learning in such schools as were in existence in his day. He was a miller by trade. He bought the old Bloomsboro Mill property from the Johnson heirs nearly sixty years ago. He erected here a new brick house about 1864. He conducted this mill up to the time of his death, August 1, 1881. He was also engaged in the undertaking business. He is buried in Mount Olivet cemetery, at Frederick. He was a stanch Democrat. He was a Methodist in his religious beliefs. Mr. Peters was married to Olivia Burnside, who was born near Clarksburg, Montgomery County, Md., September 2, 1820. She was a cousin of General Burnside, of Civil War fame. Her death occurred in 1903. Mr. and Mrs. Peters were the parents of these children: Travella E., who was born June 15, 1850, studied theology, entered the Methodist Episcopal ministry, being now located at Waverly, Md., and is married to Flora Windser, by whom he had three children, Thomas, Lavinia and Walter; William T., who was born January 28, 1854, married Sally Bell, who is deceased, by whom he had three children, Olive, Lillian and Helen; Mary E., who was born December 16, 1855, is the wife of Grafton Allen Duvall, of Boyds, Md., by whom she has one daughter, Pearl M.; and one son, Trovilla A.

George W. Peters, son of Thomas and Olivia (Burnside) Peters, was educated in the public schools and a seminary at Urbana. He worked on his father's farm while a lad. He learned the milling business and also undertaking. He followed milling until the old mill was burnt, and since that time he has been engaged in undertaking and farming. At the death of his father he came into possession of the old home place. Mr. Peters is one of the substantial and leading citizens of Urbana district.

Mr. Peters was married March 31, 1906, to L. Minnie Dixon, of Urbana. She is a daughter of Thomas Dixon.

Thomas Dixon was born near Frederick, July 23, 1818. He grew to manhood in Frederick County and followed farming. He died at Urbana, February 12, 1906. He was married to Lucy A. Rine, daughter of John and Mary (Rine) Rine, at Urbana. They were the parents of the following children: Mary M., married George W. Dudderar; James E., of Baltimore County, Md., married Orrae Brown; John T., also of Baltimore county, married Fanny L. Warfield; Jessse W., a professor in Eaton & Burnett Business College, of Baltimore City, married Mary A. Dronenberg;

Alice S., deceased, was the wife of James H. Smith; Samuel F., of Cumberland, married Laura C. Ferrell; L. Minnie (Mrs. Peters); Edwin T., of Cumberland, married Margaret Matthews; Miriam, the wife of Edward G. Yaste, of Breatheds, Md. Thomas Dixon's father was John Hatton Dixon, who came from Prince George's County and settled near Frederick. His wife was Mary Tobrey. The grandfather of Thomas Dixon was George Dixon, who accompanied by two brothers came from England and located in Prince George's county, Md. They were tillers of the soil.

GRAYSON E. PALMER, a successful educator of Frederick County and principal of the Thurmont, Md., public schools, was born on a farm near Hansonville, Lewistown district, June 20, 1876. He is a son of Jacob E. and Matilda (Miller) Palmer.

George Palmer, grandfather of Grayson E. Palmer, was a native of Frederick County, Md. He was the father of five children: Jacob E., Franklin, Amanda, unmarried, and two that died young.

Jacob E. Palmer, son of George Palmer, was born in Frederick County in 1832, and died in November, 1905. He spent his life following the occupation of a teacher in Lewistown district, in which line he was engaged for over fifty years. He was an honorable and highly respected citizen in the community in which he resided. In politics he was a stanch Republican. In religion, he was a consistent and leading member of Utica Reformed Church, in which he served in an official capacity, being an elder for over twenty years. Mr. Palmer was married to Matilda Miller. They were the parents of the following children: John C., chief clerk at City Hall, Philadelphia; Millard J., a teacher in the Lewistown schools; G. Lloyd, principal of the Emmitsburg High School (see sketch); Grayson E.; Anna, unmarried; Florence, the wife of Charles Storr, bookkeeper at League Island Navy Yard, Philadelphia; Virgie A., married Grayson Snook, a farmer of Lewistown district; and Mamie E., the wife of Charles Harper, a teacher in the public schools of Lewistown district.

Grayson E. Palmer, son of Jacob E. and Matilda (Miller) Palmer, was reared on the farm near Hansonville, in Frederick County. While a boy he attended the public schools and worked on the farm. He later attended the Walkersville High School. He began teaching in the Lewistown district schools at the age of nineteen. He has since followed that profession continuously except one year—1902—which he spent in a business college in Philadelphia, from which he was graduated. In 1905, Mr. Palmer was appointed principal of the Thurmont schools, which position he has since filled. In 1906 he passed Frederick County examination for first grade certificate, making the highest average among a class of sixty-five teachers. He has also a teacher's Life Certificate. The duties devolving upon him as head of the schools he has always discharged with great ability, and his services have given entire satisfaction to the community at large. Professor Palmer is a self-made man, and is a close student, who keeps thoroughly abreast of the times.

Politically, Professor Palmer is a stanch supporter of the principles of the Republican party. In religion, he is a member of the Utica Reformed Church. Fraternally, he is a member of Acacia Lodge, No. 155, A. F. and A. M., Thurmont; Good Samaritan Lodge, I. O. O. F., Thurmont; Knights of Pythias, Thurmont. Also a member of Modern Woodman, which he instituted in Thurmont.

Professor Palmer was married June 12, 1907, to Bessie C. Birely, of Thurmont. She is a daughter of Samuel M. and Belva A. (Cramer) Birely (see sketch of Lester C. Birely). They have one son, Edgar Birely Palmer.

LEWIS M. NIXDORFF, deceased, was a retired merchant, and one of the most prominent citizens of Frederick, Md., where he was born in June, 1827, and died March 8, 1908. He was a son of Henry and Susan (Medtart) Nixdorff.

John George Nixdorff, grandfather of Lewis M. Nixdorff, was the ancestor of the Nixdorff family in America. He was born at Schiefer, in Silesia, Province of Bohemia, Germany. About 1740, he emigrated to America, and settled in Frederick County, being then a young man. He was among the early settlers of the county, followed the occupation of a blacksmith, and was the father of a large family.

Henry Nixdorff, the father of Lewis M. Nixdorff, was a native of Frederick County, Md., where he was born in 1789, and died in 1859. He was a soldier of the War of 1812, and served in the artillery in the defense of the city of Baltimore against the English. For many years he was a merchant in Frederick County, and in his day was one of the leading and most prominent citizens of the county. In politics, he was affiliated with the Democratic party. In religion, he was a consistent and active member of the Lutheran Church, in which he served as an elder. Mr. Nixdorff was married to Susan Medtart. They were the parents of six children: Mary E., who married George Smith; Susan, who was the wife of Samuel Hinks; Julia M., who was the wife of Charles M. Miller; George A., died in 1907, aged eighty-four years; Lewis M.; and Henry M., a merchant of Frederick City, all of whom are deceased.

Lewis M. Nixdorff, son of Henry and Susan (Medtart) Nixdorff, was born and reared in Frederick, and there received his education. While a young man, he began to clerk in his father's store. He afterwards became a merchant, in which he was engaged for many years, meeting with susbtantial success. He later entered the Farmers' and Mechanics Bank as a bookkeeper, which position he retained for six years. Some time afterward, he bought a half interest in a tannery, which enterprise was conducted under the firm name of Nixdorff & Brookey. This firm continued in business until 1903, when Mr. Nixdorff retired from the cares of an active business life. Nixdorff & Brookey met with much success in the management of the tannery, which won a foremost place in its own special branch of trade. Mr. Nixdorff in his business career showed himself to be a man of executive ability and rare mercantile sagacity. Honorable in all his dealings, and a merchant of the old school, whose business methods were characterized by the highest principles, he commanded the respect of business and financial circles generally. For years he was active in the business life of the community, and he was one of the best known and most prominent citizens of the county. He was public spirited and progressive and always ready to do his share towards promoting the welfare of the community. Mr. Nixdorff was a director of the Catoctin Mountain Road Company since its organization; a director in the Farmers' and Mechanics National Bank, and also of the Mount Olivet Cemetery. He was one of the trustees of the Women's College of Frederick, and of the Loats Female Orphan Asylum, also of Frederick. He possessed qualities that attracted others and won him general esteem. He was widely known for his honesty and integrity.

Politically, Mr. Nixdorff was an adherent of the Democratic party, and served as City register, tax collector and alderman of Frederick. In a religious way he was affiliated with the Lutheran Church, in which he was an active and consistent member, having held various church offices for fifty years.

Mr. Nixdorff was married to Eliza P. Miller, a native of Virginia, whose ancestors were among the early settlers of the State. Mrs. Nixdorff died November 29, 1908. By this union, there were two sons: Lewis M., a prominent and well known citizen of Frederick, where he is engaged in the real estate business, and Henry V., who died January 16, 1908.

WILLIAM S. McPHERSON, M. D., the oldest living physician of Frederick County, Md., and widely known as one of the most prominent citizens of the county, was born December 28, 1824. He is a son of Dr. William S. and Catharine (Davis) McPherson.

The McPherson family is descended from Robert McPherson, a native of the north of Ireland, where he was born in 1687. He died in Adams County, Pa., September 23, 1767. He emigrated to this country settling on Marsh Creek, in Adams County, Pa. The name of his wife was Janet. She was born in Ireland in 1689, and died in Adams County, December 25, 1749.

John McPherson, grandfather of Dr. William S. McPherson, Jr., was the son of Robert and Janet McPherson, the emigrants. He was born in Adams County, Pa. He was an officer in the Revolutionary War, and was on the recruiting force when he made his first trip into Frederick County. He was of great assistance to the government during the struggle, giving material aid and helping to raise funds and men for the army. At the termination of the war, he located in Frederick City, his beautiful country home being known then as Bel Air. He bought many desirable pieces of property and built good homes here and there, disposing of them to ready purchasers. Among those he thus owned are the homes of Dr. F. B. Smith, near the Court House in the county seat, and that of Col. D. C. Winebrenner. In the outlying districts he owned a great number of farms. For many years he was a Judge of the Orphans' Court, discharging his duties with much ability. He was one of the most prominent citizens of Frederick County in his day. On December 28, 1824, he entertained General Lafayette, during the latter's visit to the United States, at his country home, that being the date of the birth of Dr. W. S. McPherson, Jr. Col. John McPherson was married to Sarah Smith, of Frederick County.

They were the parents of eight children: John; Robert; James; Horatio; William S.; Edward; Harriet, who married John Brien, owner of the Catoctin Furnace; and Alexander.

William Smith McPherson, son of Colonel John and Sarah (Smith) McPherson, was born in Frederick County, Md., in 1802, and died at the age of eighty-one years. He received his higher education at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa. Having studied medicine, he engaged in practice during the period from 1818 to 1835. His home at this time was upon the large and valuable estates which he owned near Frederick. Not only as a physician was he noted, but he stood equally well as a financier, and was identified with numerous enterprises of Frederick. He was practicaly the founder of the Frederick Savings Bank, and was its president as long as he lived in the county. When the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad was built through the county, he sold to the company the land upon which the depot at Frederick is located. He was a stockholder in this and was for years one of its directors. He was also a director in the Central National Bank of Frederick, and after his removal, where his last years were spent, he became connected with various banking institutions of that city. During the War of 1812, he was in the service and participated in the battle of North Point under Captain Stiner. At one time he was colonel of a militia regiment. In religion, he was a member of the Episcopal Church. Dr. McPherson was married to Catharine C. Davis, daughter of John N. Davis, of Philadelphia, Pa. They were the parents of eleven children, of whom John spent his whole life in Frederick County, being engaged in farming and the commission business; Edward was killed in the Mexican War, while serving as a first lieutenant; Maynard, is a physician, and resides in California; Elizabeth, was the wife of John Kennedy, of Washington County, Md.; and William Smith.

William Smith McPherson, son of Dr. William Smith and Catharine C. (Davis) McPherson, was born on the old homestead, called Prospect Hall, now one mile west of Frederick City. After completing the course of Frederick College, he went to St. Mary's County, and in 1843 was graduated from Charlotte Hall. Having decided to study medicine, he entered the Medical Department of the University of Maryland, from which institution he was graduated with the degree of Doctor of Medicine. Having completed his studies, he located in Hagerstown, Md., where he began the practice of his profession. Here he remained for two years. In 1849, he came to his present home, where he was actively engaged for many years. He met with success from the start, and soon acquired a large clientele. He won high rank in the exacting field to which he devoted himself, and he became widely known as a skillful practitioner. He is now the oldest physician in the county, and is highly esteemed by all who have met him.

Dr. McPherson is now living retired on the fine old estate at Catoctin Furnace, at the foot of the Catoctin Mountain. For over half a century, he has had his abode in the fine old mansion upon this estate. This dwelling was erected in 1808 by Baker Johnson, a brother of the first governor of Maryland, and is a type of the homes of the wealthy class of the period to which it belongs. It contains thirty large rooms and immense halls with painted and wainscoated walls. The house, which is three stories in height, is very imposing in appearance, and standing upon an elevation somewhat back from the dusty highway commands a grand view of the valley, and parts of adjoining Carroll county may even be seen upon a clear day. Beautiful grounds, with luxuriant shade trees, surround the mansion, and on one side, a short distance away, is a lovely little lake, fed by mountain springs. At the rear of the house the picturesque mountains rise in solemn grandeur, and lend to the scene the finishing touch of beauty rarely surpassed.

Politically, Dr. McPherson was in early manhood an adherent of the Whig party, but he later gave his support to the Democracy. His sympathies were strongly with the South during the Civil War, and he was commissioned surgeon by Stonewall Jackson, but did not accept owing to poor health. In 1868, he was elected by the people of Maryland to the responsible position of superintendent of labor and agriculture, in which capacity he served for four years, discharging his duties with zeal and fidelity. He was chosen as a member of the last constitutional convention of Maryland, and for twelve years he held the office of magistrate. In religion, he is a member of the Episcopal Church.

Dr. McPherson was married in 1848 to a Miss McPherson, a first cousin and granddaughter of Judge Thomas Buchanan, of Washington County, Md. She died in 1896. There are three living children of this marriage: 1, Thomas Buchanan, a wealthy business man and banker in Omaha, Neb., and financially interested with P. D. Armour, of Chicago, married a Miss Niven, of New York, and has four children; 2, Mary, widow of Rev. Ernest McGill, who was a minister in the Episcopal Church, resides with her father, and is the mother of six children; and 3, Libbie K., died in 1910.

The late William Metzger, father of Mosheim M. Metzger, a prominent business man of Myersville, Md., was born at Manchester, York County, Pa., July 17, 1809. He attended the public schools of Manchester, Pa., and completed his education in Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Pa. After leaving college, Mr. Metzgar removed to Myersville, Md., where he was a successful teacher of Public Schools for sixteen years. Failing health obliged him to give up teaching, and he purchased a small farm near Myersville, the property of Mr. Samuel Toms. Mr. Metzger passed the rest of his life on this place engaged in cultivating and improving it. In 1860, he was nominated, on the Democratic ticket, for county commissioner of Frederick County, and was the only Democratic commissioner elected. This position he filled with credit. During his term of office, the new court house was built in Frederick City. He was a land surveyor. Also Postmaster of Myersville for many years, which position he filled until his death. A short time before his death, Mr. Metzger was appointed one of the school commissioners of Frederick County, and discharged the duties of his office to the entire satisfaction of his fellow-citizens, whose respect and confidence he always enjoyed.

William Metzger was married to Lydia, daughter of Samuel of W. and Mary (Hoover) Toms, both deceased, whose father was a prominent farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County. Of their six children five reached maturity: 1, Mosheim M.; 2, Louisa C. (Mrs. George W. Wachtel), of Myersville, Md.; 3, the Rev. William S. T., of Glen Gardner, N. J.; 4, Mary E., deceased, married Cornelius Derr, a retired farmer of Lewistown District, Frederick County, Md.; 5, the Rev. John L., of Penbrook, Pa. Mr. Metzger and his wife were members of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Myersville, Md. He was active in building the church at Myersville, contributed liberally to the building fund, and served the congregation as deacon and as elder for many years. He died at his home near Myersville, December 22, 1868, and was buried in the Lutheran cemetery in Myersville. His widow, who died in 1899, rests by his side.

Mosheim M. Metzger received his education in the public schools of Myersville, Md., and remained at home with his parents until the time of their death. Mr. Metzger then purchased, from the other heirs of the estate, the Metzger home place, a farm of 35 acres, situated at the western end of Myersville, on which he now resides. At the age of sixteen years, he was made assistant Postmaster, a position he filled for seven years, until the death of his father, the late William Metzger. He is a reliable citizen, greatly esteemd in the district. He is a stockholder in the Myersville Savings Bank.

farm the Dietrich place in New Market district, where he remained for a period of sixteen years. In 1893, he bought "Sunnyside," a farm of 290 acres. Since coming into his possession, the value of the property has been greatly enhanced by numerous improvements. He built a forty-five foot addition to the barn and a porch around the dwelling, besides erecting other buildings. His home was built over a hundred years ago, and is one of the best in Frederick county. He has just installed a new hot water system for heating his house. Mr. Molesworth is one of the prosperous and successful agriculturists of Urbana district. He is the owner of another farm in that district, on the Georgetown pike, containing 207 3-4 acres of cleared land, and having on it a sixteen room house, good barn and other buildings. For many years he has been engaged in the dairy business, and his place is sanitary in every respect. He has a fine herd of Holstein cattle, and for twenty-five years has not missed taking cream to the train. He is also a director in the First National Bank of Monrovia.

In politics, Mr. Molesworth has always supported the candidates of the Democratic party. He is connected with the Methodist Episcopal Church in Ijamsville. The Molesworths are noted for their large stature. Samuel, the grandfather, weighed 210 pounds. Mr. Molesworth is six feet five inches in height and weighs 275 pounds. His brothers are also large men. Thomas weighed 290 pounds; Samuel was six feet, three-and-a-half inches and weighed 235 pounds. Mr. Molesworth has five daughters, whose aggregate weight is 800 pounds. One of his sons is fifteen years old, stands six feet, three inches and weighs 193 1-2 pounds.

Mr. Molesworth was married January 20, 1875, to Margaret Reinhart, daughter of Andrew and Maria (Plain) Reinhart, of New Market district, the former living at the age of eighty-nine years and the latter deceased. Mrs. Molesworth is a Methodist. She bore the following named children: Florida Virginia, the wife of H. L. Davis, of Urbana district; Margaret Earl, married to Morgan Cecil, of Frederick; Minnie R., the wife of Harry Andrew, of Middleburg, Md.; Mary Thomas, is unmarried; John; and Roger Wright.

WILLIAM H. McCLAINE, a prominent farmer of Hauvers district, Frederick County, Md., son of Peter and Catherine (Rowe) McClaine, was born on the old McClaine homestead, in the northern part of Hauvers District, June 7, 1849.

Joseph McClaine, grandfather of William H. McClaine, who was Irish by descent, was one of the early settlers of Hauvers District. He married and among his children was a son named Peter.

Peter McClaine, second son of Joseph Mcclaine, and father of William H. McClaine, well known among the older farmers of Hauvers District, attended the public schools of the district, and learned shoemaking. Mr. McClaine worked at his trade until after his marriage when he bought a tract of 175 acres of farm and timber land situated in the northern part of Hauvers District, the property of Mr. McDonald. He remodeled the house, built a fine bank barn and all necesssary outbuildings, and greatly increased the value of the property. Hard work and care won him success. He was a Republican, and was greatly respected as a citizen.

Peter McClaine was married to Elizabeth Harbaugh. Their children are: 1, Susan, deceased, married to the late William Stem, of Hauvers District; 2, John, deceased, a farmer of Hauvers District; 3, Elizabeth, married to John Eyler, a retired farmer of Franklin County, Pa.; 4, Isabella, married to John Bell, a retired farmer of Emmitsburg, Md.; 5, Catherine, deceased, married to the late Sanford Harbaugh, a farmer of Hauvers District; 6, Jane, widow of the late Simon McClaine, a distant relative; 7, Margaret, widow of Adam H. Eyler, of Hauvers District. Mrs. McClaine died ————. Five years after the death of his first wife, Mr. McClain was married to Catherine Rowe. Their children are: 1, Ann, deceased, married to the late John Kipe, of Hauvers District; 2, Lewis B., deceased; 3, William H.; 4, Ellen S. deceased, married to Calvin Harbaugh, a farmer of Franklin County, Pa.; 5, Peter, deceased. The family belong to the Methodist Church. Mr. McClaine died at his home in Hauvers District in April, 1873, and is buried in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Sabillasville, Md.

William H. McClaine grew up on his father's farm, and was educated in the public schools of Hauvers District. He remained with his father until he attained his majority when he began business for himself. After working for three years for Sanford Harbaugh, Mr. McClaine secured a position as trackman on the Western Maryland Railroad. He proved a competent employe and remained with the company for seven years. He then purchased a small truck farm near the Pennsylvania line. After cultivating this place successfully for three years, he rented the Wagaman homestead a mile and a half south-east of Sabillasville, which he cultivated for six years. Mr. McClaine next rented the Gamble farm of 160 acres, situated near Emmitsburg, where he remained for six years. On account of the failing health of his father-in-law, Mr. Wagaman, Mr. McClaine then returned to the Wagaman farm on which he now resides. After Mr. Wagaman's death he purchased the property which consisted of 75 acres of fertile farm and timber land. His home is beautifully situated on the road from Sabillasville to Eyler's Valley. By hard work and constant application to business, Mr. McClaine has become prosperous and has made his home much more valuable. Besides improving the quality of the land, he has built upon it a comfortable two-story frame dwelling, a large bank barn, and convenient out-buildings. Mr. McClaine is a Republican interested in the progress of the district, and honored by his fellow citizens.

William H. McClaine was married to Laura E., daughter of Richard and Ann A. (Miller) Wagaman, both deceased. Mrs. McClaine's father was a prominent farmer of Hauvers District. The children of William H. and Laura E. (Wagaman) McClaine are: 1, Da—— N., chief cook at Mt. Saint Mary's College, born September 21, 1870; 2, John R., born June 25, 1873; 3, Letha N.. born August 26, 1876, died April 26, 1878; 4, William F., born March 5, 1879, a farmer of Woodsboro District, Frederick County, Md. Mr. McClaine and his wife are members of the United Brethren Church in Sabillasville. He is a liberal contributor, and an active worker in the church.

FRANCIS H. MARKELL, one of the leading citizens of Urbana District, is the owner of "Boxwood" farm, where he is engaged in the breeding of Holstein cattle. He is a native of Frederick City, in which place he was born March 11, 1860. He is the eldest son of the late Francis and Caroline (Delaplane) Markell.

Mr. Markell was educated at Frederick Academy under Professor Deaver. After leaving school he became associated with his father in the drygoods business in Frederick. In 1886, he went to Charleston, West Va., and for eighteen years was engaged in the wholesale hardware business. In 1904, he returned to Frederick county, and has since been occupied in the breeding of pure-bred Holstein cattle on his "Boxwood" farm in Urbana district.

Mr. Markell has never been active in the field of politics. He has always been affiliated with the Episcopal Church.

On September 19, 1883, Mr. Markell was married to Mary Louise Keller, daughter of De Witt Clinton and Marcia (Carpenter) Keller, of Frederick. To them were born two children: Francis Willard, who was born September 15, 1884, and died January 16, 1908, had been educated at the Charleston, West Va. high school and Frederick Academy, and at the time of his death was associated with his father, and Marcia Carpenter, who was born October 28, 1895. Mrs. Markell was educated at the Convent of the Visitation, Frederick, and at the Hellmuth Ladies' College, Ontario, Canada. She has been active in the circles of the Colonial Dames, and is one of the charter members of the West Virginia Society, formed in 1900. She is eligible through her Massachusetts ancestors. She is regent of the Frederick Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, being elected in 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1909, and is interested in all patriotic work. Mrs. Markell is also actively identified with church work. She is a member of All Saints' Episcopal Church of Frederick.

William Markell, the great-grandfather of Francis H. Markell, was a resident of Frederick City, settling there when it was little more than a hamlet. He had a son, John.

John Markell, son of William Markell, was born in the vicinity of Frederick, and was a life long resident there. In the War of 1812 he enlisted for the service and was quartermaster of a Maryland regiment. He was one of the early merchants of Frederick, and was a pillar in the Lutheran Church. He died in 1860, and was buried at Mount Olivet cemetery. Mr. Markell was married to Catharine Mantz, daughter of Major Peter Mantz. There were five childen by this marriage.

George, who was born in 1816, was a merchant at Frederick, and was married in 1840 to Sophia Markell.

Louis, the second son, was a lifelong resident of Frederick, and was engaged in business in that place until a few years before his death. His wife was Mary Brunner.

Francis, the third son, was a resident of Frederick, and at the time of his death was engaged in the business founded by his father.

Charles, the fourth son, moved to Baltimore in early life, and was a successsful merchant in that city. He was married to Charlotte Trail.

Mary, the only daughter, became the wife of Robert Johnston.

JACOB L. MOSER, a retired farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., son of the late Elias and Lydan (Harp) Moser, was born near Mechanicstown, Md., January 16, 1837.

Leonard Moser, grandfather of Jacob L.

Moser, a highly respected farmer of Mechanicstown District, Frederick County, Md., was one of the early settlers of the district. He married and had a number of children, among them a son named Elias.

Elias Moser, father of Jacob L. Moser, was educated in the public schools of Mechanicstown District, and in early manhood was employed as day laborer. After his marriage, Mr. Moser began farming for himself. For some years, he cultivated rented land, but hard work and diligence brought their reward, and he was able to buy a farm of 150 acres of arable land which he cultivated until his death. Mr. Moser was a Democrat, a good citizen interested in all that concerned the improvement of the district. Elias Moser was married to Lydan Harp. Their children are: 1, Jacob L.; 2, Elizabeth, widow of the late John Murdock, a farmer of Washington County, Md.; 3, Mary, widow of the late William J. Sanogle, a miller of Washington County. Md.; 4, Mirah, deceased; 5, Daniel, of Hagerstown, Md.; 6, Joseph, a farmer of Mechanicstown District, Frederick County. Mr. Moser and his wife were members of the German Baptist Church in Mechanicstown, Md., to which he contributed liberally. Mr. Moser died in 1863; his wife July 25, 1909. Both are buried in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Mechanicstown.

Jacob L. Moser was educated in the common schools of his native district, and remained at home, working for his parents until he married, when he rented his father-in-law's farm in Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md. After the death of his father-in-law, John Harshman, Mr. Moser bought 80 acres, part of the Harshman homestead, on which he now resides. Mr. Moser owes his success in business to honest toil and patient care. He is a progressive farmer and has improved all the land that has come under his care. Soon after he bought his first land he purchased, of Jacob Summers, 50 acres more, adjoining his home, and afterwards bought another small farm near Middle Point, Catoctin District, Frederick County. Mr. Moser is a Democrat, interested in the affairs of the district where he is highly respected. He has now retired from active business to enjoy his well-earned rest.

Jacob L. Moser was married to Catherine, daughter of the late John and Elizabeth (Grossnickle) Harshman, both deceased. Mrs. Moser's father was one of the most prominent men among the older farmers of Catoctin District. The children of Jacob L. and Catherine (Harshman) Moser are: 1, John E., farmer of Catoctin District; 2, George E., a farmer of Catoctin District; 3, Ezra E., farmer of Catoctin District; 4, ————, died in youth. Mr. Moser and his wife are members of the German Baptist Church. Mrs. Moser died in August, 1909, in the seventy-fifth year of her life and is buried in the cemetery of the German Baptist Church. Mr. Moser is an active worker, and a liberal contributor to all benevolent enterprises. Mrs. Moser, who died July 25, 1909, was aged 74 years, 4 months and 1 day.

THOMAS J. MOHLER, deceased, was a carpenter by trade and a highly respected citizen. He was born in Fairfield, O., March 4, 1837, and died September 23, 1891. He was a son of Jacob and Phoebe (Swinard) Mohler.

Mr. Mohler was engaged in his trade until his death. He was a man who possessed good traits of character and was a hard worker. On January 4, 1870 he was married to Laura V. Tucker, daughter of Daniel and Mary A. (Webster) Tucker, now living near Dickerson Station, Montgomery County, Md. She was born near Fairview, in Frederick District, March 11, 1847. They lived about three miles west of Frederick City. Mr. Mohler left eight children at his death, namely: Dolly V., the wife of Charles Speak, of Frederick City; Franklin A., a school teacher and truck farmer of New Market district; Ruthford H., superintendent for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company at Waynesboro, Pa.; Harry E., a real estate agent of Frederick City; Homer S., and John L., engaged in farming at home; Gertrude M. and Annie M., living at home. After the death of her husband, Mrs. Mohler determined to keep her family together and shortly after started to farm on the Kolb farm, about a mile and a half east of Frederick City. Here with the aid of her children she successfully farmed for three years, after which she removed to the old Worman place, about one and a-half miles north of Frederick. For two years she cultivated this place, and then purchased her present farm of 84 1-2 acres of fine land from George Fout. This place was acquired in the spring of 1908 and she has greatly improved it, making it one of the most desirable farms in the neighborhood. This property is situated about three miles northwest of Frederick on the road leading from the Appomattox turnpike to the Charlesville road and is nicely located. Mrs. Mohler is a most estimable woman and is deserving of much credit for the manner in which she reared her children. She is a member of the Methodist Church of Frederick and is an ardent church worker.

JOSIAH G. MESSNER, retired, of Thurmont, Md., who served as a member of the Union Army during the Civil War, was born near Devilbiss Bridge, on the banks of the Monocacy, April 3, 1841. He is a son of David and Elizabeth (Wilhide) Messner.

Jacob Messner, the ancestor of the Messner family in America, was a native of Switzerland, and emigrated to this country before the Revolutionary War. He was the father of David Messner.

David Messner, father of Josiah G. Messner, died in Lewistown, Md., about 1854. By trade he was a blacksmith. He was married to Elizabeth Wilhide, daughter of Henry Wilhide. They were the parents of four children that grew to maturity: Josiah G.; Ann Rebecca, the wife of Abraham Hahn, a farmer; Jacob H., a farmer near Mountain Dale, Frederick county; and Sophia, who married Tobias Weddle, a farmer of Mountain Dale, Frederick county.

Josiah G. Messner, son of David and Elizabeth (Wilhide) Messner, was reared on a farm in Woodsboro district, Frederick County, Md. He received his education in the public schools. While a young man, he learned the trade of a carpenter, which he followed until June 24, 1864. At that time he entlisted in Company I, Fifth Maryland Volunteer Infantry, and served in the Army of the James, until July, 1865, when he was mustered out of service with an honorable discharge, being at that time in the Frederick Hospital. He served on the Peninsula under General Benjamin Butler, and took part in the hard fought battles of Chaffin's Farm at Fort Harrison, Va. At the battle of Fair Oaks, Va., October 12, 1864, he was severely wounded, it being necessary to amputate his right arm the day following the engagement. A few days after being wounded, he was transferred to the army hospital at Old Point Comfort, Va., where he remained until January, 1865, when he was taken to the Frederick Hospital. Here he was when he was mustered out.

After the war, Mr. Messner returned home and engaged in hauling and teaming. He afterwards became a dealer in real estate. For some years he has lived retired from active business life. In 1895, he located in Thurmont, Md., where he has since resided, and commands the respect of every one.

In politics, Mr. Messner is a Republican, but has never sought public office. He was married to Elizabeth Domer, daughter of David Domer, of Frederick County. They were the parents of three children: Charles E., George and Effie M.

Mr. Messner is a self-made man and what success he has achieved has been by his own efforts. He is descended on the maternal side from Henry Wilhide, the father of Mrs. David Messner, who was a soldier in the War of 1812, and the son of Frederick Wilhide, was in service during the Revolutionary struggle. The family is thus rperesented in three great wars in which the country has been engaged.

D. JOHN MARKEY, one of the well-known and successful merchants of Frederick City, where he deals in shoes and hats at No. 9 North Market street, was born October 7, 1882. He is a son of J. H. and Ida M. (Willard) Markey.

The Markey family is of Scotch-Irish origin and was early settled in Frederick County. David J. Markey, the grandfather of D. John Markey, was one of the leading citizens of Frederick City for many years. He was the founder of the old lumber yards and mills which are now owned and operated by Wilcoxon & Brown.

John H. Markey, son of Daniel J. Markey, was born in Frederick City in 1834. For a long period he was a shoe merchant in his native city. For forty years he was one of the highly esteemed and prominent men of the community in which he lived. In religion, he held membership in the Episcopal Church. Politically, he was all his life a supporter of the Democratic party. Mr. Markey was married to Ida M. Willard, of Frederick City. They were the parents of four children: Susan M., principal of the College for Women at Columbia, S. C.; Willard, a shoe merchant of Washington, D. C.; D. John; and Eleanor, a student at the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, Mass.

D. John Markey, son of John H. and Ida M. (Willard) Markey, was born in Frederick City and there was reared. His education he secured in the public schools and the Frederick City High School. In 1898, Mr. Markey was a volunteer in Company A from Frederick City, and served in the Spanish American War. In 1900, he acted as assistant football coach for the Western Maryland College, and in 1901 and 1902, was head coach for the Maryland Agricultural College. In 1903, Mr. Markey returned to Frederick, and engaged in the shoe and hat business at his present location. This establishment has prospered under Mr. Markey's able management. He is one of the best known and leading of the younger business men of Frederick. He is progressive and energetic, and has a large trade. In the conduct of his store he has displayed discernment and executive capacity. In 1905, Mr. Markey organized Company A of Frederick, of the Maryland National Guard, of which he is captain. This company is one of the most efficient in the State.

In politics, Captain Markey is independent. In religion, he is affiliated with the Reformed Church, holding membership in Grace Church of Frederick. He is a director of the Frederick Young Men's Christian Association and a member of the Junior Fire Company.

Mr. Markey was married June 13, 1907, to M. Edna Mullinix, daughter of L. E. Mullinix, of Frederick City, whose sketch see.

HENRY F. MAXELL, a well-known miller of Emmitsburg District No. 5, son of Samuel and Jane (Furgueson) Maxell, was born at the Maxell Mill property, Emmitsburg District, Frederick County, Md., January 5, 1850.

Samuel Maxell, father of Henry F. Maxell, was born near Waynesboro, Pa., December 17, 1809. He was a miller and spent his life in that business. This mill, which was over one hundred years old, was in the Maxell family for sixty-one years. It was built by Mr. Crabbs, and passed through many different hands. The executors of Samuel Maxell sold it to his son, Samuel, who sold it in 1895, to the Charlotte Milling Company, which was succeeded by the firm of Stonecipher and Stunsbury. The property next passed into the hands of George C. Naylor, from whom it was purchased by Howard K. Martin, the present owner. The change from the old burr process to modern machinery was made nineteen years ago. Samuel Maxell left Pennsylvania in 1837, and removed to Frederick County, Md., where he bought Crabbs Mill which has since borne his name. He was the third Republican in Emmitsburg District; his two comrades were Richard Gilsin and David Gamble. Mr. Maxell was a stanch Abolitionist, and these three men were very influential in changing the sentiments of the people with regard to slavery. Samuel Maxell was a strong man physically and mentally, and was highly esteemed in the county. He was married, in or near Waynesboro, Pa., to Jane M. Fergueson, who was born, November 27, 1811. Their children are: 1, Henry, died in youth; 2, William, died in youth; 3, Ann Eliza (Mrs. Charles Rowe), of Emmitsburg; 4, Samuel J., a member of Cole's Cavalry during the Civil War, married Miss Fleming, of West Virginia, died in West Virginia; 4, Jane Maria (Mrs. John Duckwall), removed to Ohio, where she died; 5, Francis A., married Miss White, of Greencastle, Pa., died in York, Pa.; 6, Thaddeus Augustus, a member of Cole's Cavalry and was considered the bravest boy in the command; killed by a sharpshooter at Piedmont, Va.; 7, Margaret (Mrs. Ezra Zimmerman), died in Emmitsburg, Md.; 8, Albert H., of Charlestown, W. Va., married Columbia Hockensmith; 9, Henry F.; 10, Mary A., married first to John Sumwalt, and afterwards to Cronon Stausbury, of Emmitsburg, Md.; 11, Julia M. (Mrs. Robert Hockensmith), died in Emmitsburg. Mr. Maxell was a member of the Lutheran Church in Emmitsburg, and had served the congregation several times as deacon and as elder. He died at Maxell Mill, November 4, 1882; his widow died December 1, 1886.

Henry F. Maxell entered the Krise, now the Ridge school, under Henry Six, when he was six years of age. He continued his studies until he was twenty under the guidance of Mr. Eby and his brother, James W. Troxell, Joseph Davidson, Joseph Golding, now Congressman from the State of New York, Mr. Zimmerman, and Mr. Damuth. During vacations he took his share of farm work, and remained on the home farm, caring for his parents until the time of their death. He learned milling, as did all of his brothers, except the one, who was killed in the Civil War. Mr. Maxell is a Republican, active in public affairs, and highly esteemed in the community. In 1887 he was elected county commissioner, and served for the full term. He has served as judge of elections, and was registrar of Emmitsburg for ten years.

Henry F. Maxell was married, May 27, 1875, to Jemima, daughter of Nicholas and Amelia (————) Stausbury, who was born August 22, 1850. Their children are: 1, Thaddeus Augustus, born June 14, 1876, resides in Emmitsburg, married Miss Grace Baker; 2, Maud Amelia (Mrs. George Macbeth Neely), of Fairfield, Pa., has one child, George Macbeth, Jr.; 3, Roy F., at home, born September 30, 1883; 4, Frank Phillip, born September 17, 1898, died in infancy. Mr. Maxell is a member of the Lutheran Church in Emmitsburg, in which he is an elder.

THE RT. REV. JOHN GARDNER MURRAY, D. D., Bishop Coadjutor of the Diocese of Maryland, who owns a farm adjoining Emmitsburg and makes it his country home, was born in Lonaconing, Allegany County, Md., August 31, 1857. His parents, (now deceased) were James Murray, who was born in Glasgow, Scotland, and Ann Kirkwood Murray, a native of Larkhall, Scotland.

Bishop Murray was educated in the public schools at Lonaconing, the Wyoming Seminary, Kingston, Pa., and Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J. His theological course was interrupted by the death of his father and he engaged in the business of mining and manufacturing in Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico and Alabama from 1879 to 1892. During his entire business career, he was active in Sunday School and other religious work, being in touch with Church matters generally as communicant, vestryman, Sunday School superintendent and Lay Reader. On January 1, 1893, he broke off from personal participation in all business affairs and began the active work of the Ministry in the Protestant Episcopal Church. He was ordained deacon in St. Paul's Church, Selma, Ala., by the Rt. Rev. H. M. Jackson, Bishop Coadjutor of Alabama, on April 3, 1893; and was ordained priest in the same church by the Rt. Rev. R. H. Wilmer, Bishop of Alabama, on April 16, 1894. He organized and for four years had charge of eight different mission churches, known as the Alabama River Missions, between Montgomery and Mobile. In November, 1896, he became rector of the Church of the Advent, Birmingham, Ala., and continued there until March, 1903, when he went to Baltimore as rector of the Church of St. Michael and All Angels, the largest and one of the most active congregations in the Diocese of Maryland. At the time of his departure from Alabama, Bishop Murray was president of the Standing Committee of that diocese and deputy to the General Convention. When he left Birmingham his departure caused general regret and he received testimonials of high esteem from citizens of all religious denominations. When he reached Maryland he at once took the high position to which his ability and attainments entitled him. He was soon elected to the Standing Committee of the diocese and was made Archdeacon of Baltimore. In 1903, he was elected Bishop of Mississsippi and in 1905 Bishop of Kentucky, but he declined the high honor of these elections, believing it to be his duty to continue at the head of the great congregation which was accomplishing most splendid work. For more than six years he remained at the Church of St. Michael and All Angels where he was most successful and earned the love, and commanded the esteem and admiration of his people by his broad minded liberality, his wide svmpathies, his untiring industry and his loyalty to his Church.

At the annual Diocesan Convention held in Emmanuel Church, Baltimore, in May 1909, Bishop Murray was elected Bishop Coadjutor of the Diocese of Maryland on the first regular ballot, by a vote of both clergy and laity virtually unanimous. On the 29th of September, 1909, in the Church of St. Michael and All Angels, Baltimore, he was consecrated a Bishop in the Church of God, with the right of succession to Bishop Paret, in the Diocese of Maryland. His work in this highest office of the Church is proving supremely successful and universally satisfactory. The Bishop interests himself in all matters pertaining to public morals and welfare, and his co-operation is sought and his counsel heeded by those in authority in the affairs of city, county, and State.

In 1881 Bishop Murray wedded Miss Harriet M. Sprague, of Osage City, Kansas, and shortly afterward the young couple took up residence in Brierfield, Alabama. Here there was born to them a daughter whom they named Emeline, but in 1884, mother and child, returning from a visit to relatives in Kansas, were drowned, by the capsizing in a cyclone of the ill-fated steamer Belmont, in the Ohio River between Evansville, Indiana and Henderson, Kentucky, while the husband and father was awaiting their arrival in Nashville, Tennessee, whither he had journeyed from Alabama to meet them.

In 1889, Bishop Murray was married to his present excellent wife and Godly helpmeet, Miss Clara A. Hunsicker, also of Osage City, Kansas. Of this union there has been born six children, namely: John Gardner, Jr., Clara H., Barbara F., Ann K., Ruth and Esther all of whom are living except Barbara, who was born January 12, 1894, and died May 21, 1895.

The family residence is Baltimore during the winter and Frederick County in the summer. The summer home is a farm adjoining Emmitsburg, known as "Stonehurst," which is a most beautiful and desirable place both because of its rare natural location in the way of scenery and surroundings, and also its judicious artistic adornment. The Bishop is unostentatious in manner, and simple in habits and taste, and here he gratifies his love for outdoro life and environment and finds pleasure and profit in the rest and recreations his country home affords. He identifies himself thoroughly with the interests of the community and county and is active in every move for the furtherance of the same. The Bishop's life has been to this time one of incessant labor not free from difficulties and care, and while he himself declares he looks forward to an old age of quiet and ease (God willing) in his Frederick County residence, his friends predict that when the call comes to him from the eternal home, it will find him at work with both hands on the plough, doing his best to run a straight and continuous furrow to the end.

WILLIAM E. MERCER, deceased, was engaged in the mercantile business and agricultural pursuits, in Braddock district. He was born May 19, 1840, and died January 10, 1905. He was a son of William and Susan (Smith) Mercer.

William Mercer was a native of Lisbon, Howard county, Md., where he was born about 1793. In early life he came to Frederick County, Md., and located about one mile west of Fairview, now called Braddock, where he bought a small farm. This place had a fine large dwelling on it, and here Mr. Mercer spent the rest of his days. Taking advantage of his commodious quarters, he opened a hotel calling it the "Running Fountain." He did a large business and many travelers found a rest in his inn, for those were the days of stage coach from Baltimore to Wheeling. Mr. Mercer was possessed of much business ability and was well known in his day. He was among the early residents of what is now called Braddock district. Mr. Mercer was married to Susan Smith. They were the parents of William E. Mercer.

William E. Mercer, son of William and Susan (Smith) Mercer, received his education in the public schools. After the death of his father, he conducted the hotel bought for his mother until she also died. Mr. Mercer then bought the farm and hotel. The latter he managed for but a short time. He then embarked in the general mercantile business, opening a store in Braddock district. In this venture he met with much success. He was also interested in agriculture and was a large land owner. He bought a farm of 45 acres from David Baugher, near Braddock. On this farm is a beautiful grove where the Braddock picnic has been held for the past twenty years.

Mr. Mercer also bought several other farms, which he afterwards disposed of. He dealt extensively in real estate and was very successful in his operations. He was the possessor of an excellent farm of 70 acres, about one mile from Westminster, in Carroll County, Md., now owned by his brother-in-law, Charles Webster. Mr. Mercer in his business career displayed marked talent in that direction. He secured a competency and was a man of the strictest integrity. His successful life was due to the energy and industry that always characterized his operations and his strong belief in honest dealings. In politics, Mr. Mercer was a supporter of the Democracy, and was a trustee of the Braddock public school for a number of years. He was a consistent member of the Lutheran Church of Braddock.

Mr. Mercer was married to Ada S. Webster, daughter of Thomas and Leah A. Webster, of Braddock district. They were the parents of ten children, eight of whom grew up: Clara S. V., the wife of William Rhoderick, of Urbana district; Alice, married to Andrew J. Summers, of Tuscarora district; Florence L., the wife of Morry Summers of Tuscarora district; Howard D., lives in Dallas, Tex.; Ida M., married to George Thomas, of Liberty district; William C.; Albert M., cultivating the homestead; and Grayson H. Mrs. Mercer is living in retirement since the death of her husband, and has rented the farm to her son, Albert. In religious belief she is also a Lutheran.

SAMUEL B. MARTZ, who has achieved much success at agriculture, his chosen vocation, is a highly respected resident of Lewistown district. He was born September 6, 1866, and is a son of the late Lewis J. and Margaret C. (Staley) Martz. (For a history of Mr. Martz's antecedents see the sketch of his father, L. J. Martz, in this volume).

Mr. Martz was the recipient of a public school education. He spent his early years on a farm, assisting in the work of the place. When he was twenty-six years of age, he commenced farming near Charlesville, in Frederick County. Here he lived for two years, after which he removed to a place of 150 acres, situated near Doub's, Buckeystown district, known as the McDeviett farm. This he managed for about five years. Mr. Martz then purchased his present farm, containing 158 1-2 acres of fertile land, from Thomas Geesey's estate. This desirable estate lies about eight miles north of the city of Frederick, on the line of the Washington, Frederick & Gettysburg Railroad, near Lake View, in Lewistown district. The improvements on the farm consist of a fine two-story frame dwelling and all necessary outbuildings. Mr. Martz is also engaged extensively in the propagation of gold fish, in which industry he has had much success. He now has about five acres in fish ponds and breeds large numbers annually. He is an adherent of the Democratic party.

Mr. Martz was married to Rosie Stottlemyer, daughter of Franklin and Marie J. (Jackson) Stottlemyer, of Lewistown district. They are the parents of four children: Lola Jane, Lewis F., Clarence H., and Allen B. Mr. and Mrs. Martz both hold membership in Saint Paul's Reformed Church at Utica, in Lewistown district. Mr. Martz is one of those men who possess the high regard of all with whom they come in contact. He is an authority on matters of agriculture and his work has been marked by industry, perseverence and close application.

EMORY L. COBLENTZ, an able lawyer, and an influential citizen of Frederick County, Md., son of Edward L. and Lucinda F. (Bechtol) Coblentz, was born on a farm in Middletown District, Frederick County, Md., November 5, 1869.

(For family history see biographical sketch of Charles H. Coblentz, published in this volume.)

John Philip Coblentz, great-grandfather of Emory L. Coblentz, was a son of Harmon Coblentz whose ancestors, Germans by birth, were among the early settlers of Pennsylvania. John Philip Coblentz was born in Lancaster County, Pa., and, while yet a youth, went with his parents to the Middletown Valley, Frederick County, Md.

Philip Coblentz, son of John Philip Coblentz, and grandfather of Emory L. Coblentz, was born in the Middletown Valley, Frederick County in 1812, and died in 1899. He followed the occupation of a farmer, in which pursuit he was very successful. In his day, he was one of the most prominent citizens of Frederick County. He was a man of upright character and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. Like his forebears, he was a zealous member of the Reformed Church. He was the father of a large family, 1, Edward L.; 2, Cleantha R., was married to John J. Ifert; 3, Mahalia F., became the wife of the late Peter Holter; 4, Mary Ellen, deceased, was the wife of S. L. H. Lighter, also deceased; 5, Ava A., who married the late C. H. Dean, of Middletown, Frederick County; 6, George G., a well known farmer who resides in Middletown; 7, Oliver Z.; 8, Calvin R.

Edward L. Coblentz, oldest son of Philip Coblentz, and father of Emory L. Coblentz, was born in the Middletown Valley, in August, 1840, and died in February, 1902. He spent his entire life in agricultural pursuits, was highly esteemed in the community in which he lived, and was an influential citizen. A man of high character, he was possessed of a moral worth far above the average. Intelligent and progressive, he was always ready to lend a hearty co-operation to anything that tended to increase the general good. Like his forefathers, he was a leading member of the Reformed Church, in whose work he was always intensely interested. Mr. Coblentz was married, in 1868, to Lucinda Bechtol, a descendant of one of the oldest and most respected families of Frederick County. She was born in 1847, and resides in Middletown, Md. They had four children: 1, Emory L.; 2, Oscar B., whose biographical sketch appears in this volume; 3, Bertha F., the wife of Grayson H. Stahley, formerly bookkeeper in the Citizens National Bank, of Frederick City, and now of the real estate firm of Young & Stahley; 4, Jennie M., unmarried, resides with her mother.

Emory L. Coblentz, son of Edward L. and Lucinda (Bechtol) Coblentz, grew up on his father's farm in Middletown District, Frederick County, Md. He attended the public schools of the vicinity, and finished his studies in the Middletown High School. Shortly after completing his education, he became assistant treasurer of the Valley Savings Bank of Middletown upon its organization in 1887. This position he retained until 1898, discharging his duties with credit. While in the service of the bank, he had pursued the study of the law under the preceptorship of the late Charles W. Ross, Esq. Having completed his legal training, Mr. Coblentz was admitted to the Frederick County Bar in the fall of 1898. He immediately entered upon the practice of his profession in which he is still actively engaged. His legal ability which is unquestioned was soon recognized, and in a short time he was the possessor of a large and influential clientele. He has been identified with much litigation of an important character. Noted for the careful attention he gives to the interests of his clients, he is ranked as one of the most able attorneys at the Frederick County Bar. Mr. Coblentz is not known only as an able attorney, but also as a successful and progressive business man, actively associated with many of the county's most flourishing and thriving industries. He is the president and one of the directors of the Frederick Railroad Company, a recently organized and highly successful electric railway, to whose success he has contributed much by his sound business knowledge. Mr. Coblentz is also president of the Central National Bank, a position he has filled with an ability and foresight that stamp him as a man of high executive capacity. He is widely known throughout financial circles as one of the most representative men identified with that branch of the commercial world. He is president of the People's Fire Insurance Company of Frederick County; one of the directors of the Maryland Brick and Supply Company, another of Frederick's sound business establishments; and vice-president and counsel for the Valley Savings Bank, of Middletown; and for the Economy Silo and Tank Company, of Frederick. Mr. Coblentz is also interested in the industries of Braddock Heights. He is secretary, and one of the directors of the Braddock Heights Water Company, and a director of the Braddock Heights Building and Development Company, which he organized.

Mr. Coblentz is strictly a self-made man, and has risen to his present enviable position through his own efforts. He is public-spirited, and his influence and co-operation can be depended upon to advance anything that promises benefit to the general public. Although just forty years of age, he is recognized as one of the leading citizens of Frederick County, where he is held in high esteem. Mr. Coblentz is a stanch supporter of the Democratic party, but has never aspired to office, preferring to devote all of his time and attention to his many business interests. He is an active and influential member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M.; of Enoch Royal Arch Chapter, No. 23; of Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar; of Boumi Temple of the Mystic Shrine; and of the Order of Elks.

Emory L. Coblentz was married to Amy A. Doub, of Middletown, Md., who died February 5, 1904. She was a lady of much refinement, and was held in high esteem by all who knew her. The children of Emory L. and Amy A. (Doub) Coblentz are: 1, Mary Ruth; 2, Naomi F.; 3, Esther Doub; 4, Miriam Amy. Mr. Coblentz' second wife was Mary V. Kefauver, of Middletown, Md. They have one daughter, Mary Virginia. Mr. Coblentz is an active member of the Reformed Church, in which he is a leader. He is an elder in the congregation of Christ Reformed Church in Middletown, and for the last five years, has been superintendent of the Sunday School connected with the church.

WILLIAM WILLSON MINES, a well known citizen of Frederick County, residing in Braddock district, was born at Linden, near Frederick City. He is a son of John Louis and Martha Rebecca (Willson) Mines.

Rev. John Mines, the grandfather of William Willson Mines, studied for the ministry and was a well known clergyman. He was principal of the Academy at Rockville, Montgomery County, Md. Rev. John Mines was married to Eliza Wootton, daughter of Richard Wootton, of Prince George's County, Md. They were the parents of John Louis Mines.

The Woottons are a noteworthy Maryland family and were distinguished in Revolutionary times. It has been said in referring to the Wootton family that "few names in Maryland have claims to greater or more sustained honor." This family was related by marriage with the Magruders, Spriggs and Bowies, of lower Maryland. From the earliest records down to the present time these families have been affiliated with the Episcopal Church. Coming direct from England, they brought with them the established faith of the Mother Country.

John Louis Mines, son of the Rev. John and Eliza (Wootton) Mines, was born at Rockville, Montgomery County, Md. He received his education in the Academy there, of which his father was the head. Early in life, he went to Wisconsin and engaged in business. He did not remain there long, however, and in a few years returned to Maryland. Soon after his return, he married and then settled at Linden. Mr. Mines' wife was Martha Rebecca Willson, daughter of Dr. William Murdock Beall and Martha (Wootton) Wilson, of Frederick. Her mother, Martha Wootton, was a daughter of Richard Wootton, of Prince George's County, Md., and she was consequently his cousin. The estate "Linden," is situated one mile west of Frederick, and was inherited by Mrs. John Louis Mines from her father, Dr. William Willson, who had received it from his grandfather, William Murdock Beall. This place has been in the family from colonial times, the grant of land being given by Lord Baltimore.

William Willson Mines, son of John Louis and Martha Rebecca (Willson) Mines, is a prominent citizen of Frederick County. Mr. Mines resides at "Wootton," a place about two miles from Frederick City, on the old National pike. Here is a fine old house built in colonial style, which is beautifully situated on an elevation and commands a fine view of the Blue Ridge and the surrounding country. It is one of the finest country seats in that part of the State. It was at one time the residence of the late Governor Thomas of Maryland.

LEWIS W. MEHRLING, dealer in general merchandise at Nos. 323-325 East Patrick street, Frederick, in which line he has been very successful, was born in Frederick City, March 1, 1861. He is a son of John Lewis and Elizabeth Mehrling, both deceased.

John Lewis Mehrling was born at Ostheim, Germany in 1815. He emigrated to America, and settled in Frederick City about 1839. Here he died in 1893. He was for some time engaged in the trucking business one mile north-east of Frederick, and for over thirty years he was employed at Mount Olivet Cemetery. He possessed the esteem of the many who knew him and was well known at the time of his death. Mr. Mehrling was married and had the following children: Henry, who was born in Germany, now resides in Baltimore, Md.; August, of Frederick City, also born in Germany, who with his elder brother, Henry, served in the Union Army during the Civil War and were both prisoners for some time in the notorious Andersonville prison; George W.; Margaret Elizabeth. is unmarried; Philipina, the wife of John T. Crouse, of Frederick; Anna Mary, never married; and Lewis William.

Lewis William Mehrling, son of John Lewis and Elizabeth Mehrling, was reared and educated in Frederick City. While a lad he also worked on his father's truck farm near Frederick. In 1883, Mr. Mehrling located in Fredeick and embarked in the general merchandising business at the stand which he still occupies. In 1891, he purchased the old property from his father, and in 1898, he erected his present fine three-story brick building, its dimensions being thirty by sixty feet. Mr. Mehrling has had success in his undertaking. He carries a large stock and does a large business. He is one of the active and prosperous merchants of the city, and is highly respected by all who know him.

Mr. Mehrling is a Republican in his political convictions. Religiously, he has been for the past thirty-seven years a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mr. Mehrling was married November 26, 1896, to Estella Whitmore, daughter of William J. Whitmore of Frederick County. There are no children by this union.

IRVING R. MORGAN residing half a mile north of Wolfsville, Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., son of James W. and Delilah (Recher) Morgan, both deceased, was born near Myersville. Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., March 14, 1860.

David Morgan, grandfather of Irving R. Morgan, was born in Baltimore, Md., June 27, 1803. He was a prosperous citizen of Frederick County, and resided near Myersville, where he owned and operated a paper mill, one of the first mills of the kind in that section of Maryland. David Morgan was married to Susan Morrison, and among their children was a son named James W. Morgan.

The late James W. Morgan, son of David and Susan (Morrison) Morgan, and father of Irving R. Morgan, was born on the old Morgan homestead, near Myersville, Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., March 24, 1833. He was educated in the public schools of Jackson District, and remained with his father on the homestead until after his marriage. After teaching for a few years in Jackson District, Mr. Morgan removed with his family to Montgomery County, Ohio, where he taught and farmed successfully for four years. Failing health compelled him to return to his father's home near Myersville, Frederick County. Here he was employed for fourteen years, teaching in winter and making furniture during his vacations. Mr. Morgan now purchased 60 acres of excellent land half a mile north of Wolfsville, Md. He cultivated the land and improved it, and built on it a building for the manufacture of furniture, in which he was doing a profitable business. His hard work and application brought him prosperity. He was for a number of years, a magistrate of Jackson District, where he was highly esteemed. James W. Morgan was married to Delilah, daughter of John and Annie (Marken) Recher, a descendant of one of the old families of Wolfsville. Their children are: 1, Irving R.; 2, Rufus R., of Hagerstown, Md.; 3 and 4, twins, Jefferson E., of Catoctin District, Frederick County, and Margaret E. (Mrs. Charles Harrison), of Washington County, Md.; 5, Annie S., widow of the late Victor M. Smith, of Wolfsville; 6, Edward L., deceased. Mr. Morgan was a consistent member of the Lutheran Church at Wolfsville. He died at his home near Wolfsville, in November, 1902, and was buried in the Lutheran cemetery in the town. Mrs. Morgan died November 15, 1885, and is buried in the cemetery adjoining the Reformed Church.

Irving R. Morgan was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained with his father until he was twenty-one. On attaining his majority, Mr. Morgan obtained a position in the employ of the New Jersey Central Railroad, but two years later, he returned to his home to assist his father on the farm and in the manufacture of furniture. His father soon after formed a partnership with him, and when his father died, the firm of J. W. Morgan and Son was doing a thriving business. Mr. Morgan then formed a partnership with Elmer C. Brandenburg, but after doing a good business for two years, the firm of Morgan and Brandenberg was dissolved by mutual consent. In 1905, Mr. Morgan opened a planing-mill at the old stand, half a mile north of Wolfsville, Md. He has one of the best equipped mills in Frederick County, outside of Frederick City and has furnished the lumber for some of the finest buildings in that section of the State. He has a large trade in Washington County, also, and his business is constantly increasing. He also owns a valuable home, one of the best improved in the district, about a quarter of a mile from his factory. Years of toil and constant endeavor have brought him success. Mr. Morgan is a Democrat, interested in all that concerns the progress of the community.

Irving R. Morgan was married to Ida M., daughter of Josiah F. and Ellen S. (Fox)

Smith. Seven of their children are living, all at home: 1, Leslie I.; 2, Ralph E.; 3, Ruth E., deceased; 4, J. Page; 5, Ida R.; 6, Clair N; 7, Vernon S.; 8, Mary A. Mr. Morgan and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church in Wolfsville. He contributes liberally to the finances of the congregation in which he holds the office of elder. He is also superintendent of the Sunday School.

CHARLES E. MILLER, prominent among the young farmers of Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., residing near Mt. Tabor, Md., son of the late George M. and Emma C. (Kitzmiller) Miller, both deceased, was born on the old Miller homestead, near Boonsboro, Washington County, Md., October 19, 1881.

William Miller, grandfather of Charles E. Miller, was born in Germany, where he spent his childhood and youth. He learned butchering and after carrying on that business for some years, purchased a farm of 100 acres situated near Boonsboro, Washington County, and engaged in farming in connection with butchering. He was very successful in both businesses and, in 1887, was able to retire from active farm labor. He bought a comfortable home in Boonsboro, to which he removed to enjoy the fruit of his toil. Mr. Miller owned two other valuable farms in Jackson District. He first purchased the old Routzahn farm near Mt. Tabor, and afterwards the Jones Brandenburg farm of 172 acres adjoining the fruit farm. This land is now owned by his grandson. Mr. Miller has improved all the land that has come under his care, and his places are among the best farms of the district. He worked hard and gave close attention to his business, and has earned a rich reward. William Miller was married to Louisa Hagenhouzer. Among their children was a son named George M. Mr. Miller died at his home in Boonsboro, in July, 1889.

The late George M. Miller, father of Charles E. Miller, a farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., was born on the old homestead near Boonsboro, Washington County, Md., July 4, 1859. He grew up on his father's farm in Washington County, and remained at home until he married when he began farming for himself on one of his father's farms in Jackson District, Frederick County, Md. At his father's death, he inherited the farm which he cultivated successfully until he died. Mr. Miller was a Democrat, interested in county affairs. He was a member of Lodge No. 36, Boonsboro. George M. Miller was married to Emma C., daughter of Frisby and Elizabeth (Willet) Kitzmiller, both deceased, whose father was a blacksmith, of Keedysville, Md. Their children are: 1, Charles E.; 2, Olive M. Castle, of Harmony, Md.; 3, William H. C., of Hagerstown, Md. Mr. Miller and his wife were members of the Reformed Church in Middletown, Md. He died at his home in Jackson District, December 5, 1901; his widow died January 15, 1903. Both are buried in the cemetery in Boonsboro, Md.

Charles E. Miller was educated in the public schools of Jackson District, and remained at home, assisting his father on the homestead. When his father died, Mr. Miller took charge of the place for his mother, and, in 1904, after her death, he purchased, from the heirs of the estate, the home farm on which he now resides. The place consists of 172 acres of farm and timber land. It is well improved and everything about it is in good repair making it rank among the best farms of the district. Mr. Miller is also engaged in threshing and owns a fine engine. Besides these employments he owns a saw-mill in which he does a thriving business. He has earned success by close attention to business. Mr. Miller is a Democrat, interested in the well-being of the community.

Charles E. Miller was married to Edna B., daughter of Joshua D. and Alice R. (Schildknecht) Horine, whose father is a prominent farmer of Jackson District. Her mother died October 4, 1908. They have four children, three of whom are living: 1, George M. D.; 2, Claude L.; 3, John H.; all at home. Mr. Miller is a member of the Reformed Church in Middletown, Md. His wife holds her membership in the United Brethren Church at Myersville, Md.

WILLIAM S. MILLER, one of the most prominent and best known merchants of Frederick City, now retired, was born in Frederick City, Frederick County, Md., March 13, 1825. He is a son of George and Miriah (Spangler) Miller.

George Miller was a native of Lancaster County, Pa., and located in Frederick City nearly a hundred years ago. He was of German antecedants and was a descendant of an early settled Pennsylvania family. He was engaged for many years in the livery business in Frederick, and in the early days conducted a hack-line on the old pike between Baltimore and Frederick. In politics he was a Democrat of the Jacksonian principles, and in religion he was a member of the Lutheran Church. The name of his wife was Miriah Spangler. They were the parents of four children: William S., of whom presently; ————, the wife of Lewis Kemp, and two deceased.

William S. Miller received his education in the public schools of his native county. After attaining manhood, he followed farming in Buckeystown district, Frederick County, until 1860, when he returned to Frederick City. He then engaged in the coal business, in which he continued until 1903, when he was forced through ill health to sell out, and retire. As a merchant, he met with success, and became recognized as one of the ablest and most representative men identified with that branch of industry. He was honorable in all his dealings and his business methods were always characterized by the highest principles. His business was a success from the start, and won a foremost position in its own special branch of trade. For forty years, Mr. Miller has been a stockholder and director of the Central National Bank, has been a director of the Loats Orphan Home since its organization, and also a director of the Mount Olivet Cemetery for many years.

In early manhood, Mr. Miller was an adherent of the Whig party, but after that organization ceased to exist, he affiliated himself with the Democratic party, of which he has since continued a stanch supporter. For the past sixty years, he has been an active and consistent member of the Lutheran Church of Frederick, in which he has filled a number of official positions, including those of elder, deacon and treasurer.

Mr. Miller has been twice married. He was married first to Mary Buckey, of Frederick County, by whom he had the following children: Evaline V., the wife of Dr. A. W. Ford, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and they have one son, William, a physician; Mary, married William P. Denegre, of Philadelphia, Pa., and died in 1907; George William, a merchant of Quincy, Ill.; Daniel B., engaged in the coal business in Washington, D. C.; and Isabella, the wife of William N. Martin, of Kingston, N. Y. After the death of his first wife, Mr. Miller was married secondly, March 10, 1890, to Virginia Brengle, a daughter of Daniel and Caroline (Thomas) Brengle, of Frederick County. There is no issue by this marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Miller reside in their handsome home at No. 120 East Patrick street.

Mrs. Miller's father, Daniel Brengle, spent his entire life in agricultural pursuits. He died young, leaving four children: Virginia, (Mrs. Miller), Robert, Fanny, deceased, and John W., deceased.

Mrs. Miller's grandfather, John Brengle, was also a native of Frederick County. He followed the occupation of a farmer, and was a member of the Lutheran Church. He was a son of Lawrence Brengle, who was among the early German settlers of Frederick County.

GEORGE WASHINGTON MILLER, a successful farmer of Emmitsburg District, Frederick County, Md., son of John A. and Amelia Ann (Eyler) Miller, was born on a farm on the Sabillasville road, near Emmitsburg, Md., September 12, 1847.

Colonel John A. Miller, grandfather of G. W. Miller, spent his whole life in Hauvers district. He was an officer in the War of 1812. He was married to Miss McLane. Their children are: William, Hiram, John, Washington, Annie, Susan, Elizabeth.

Mr. Miller's father, John A. Miller, of Frederick County, was a plasterer and contractor. He was a Democat, and was actively interested in the affairs of the county. John A. Miller was married to Amelia Ann Eyler, a native of Frederick County. Their children are: 1, George Washington; 2, Christopher Columbus, of Emmitsburg district, married Miss Eyler; 3, William A., of Emmitsburg district, married Miss Kipe; 4, Sarah Ann (Mrs. John Furney), of Thurmont district, Frederick County. Mr. Miller died in 1878, aged sixty-one. His wife was a member of the Reformel Church; she died in 1885, aged fifty-one.

George W. Miller grew up on his father's farm and devoted his life to the cultivation of the soil. He attended the public school at Friends Creek during the winter months, until he was nineteen. When he was twenty-six, Mr. Miller left home and began farming on the shares, on the Andrew Annan farm, where he remained for twenty-eight years. He was honest, frugal and industrious and by 1905, he had saved enough to purchase his present home. When Mr. Miller bought the place, from Lewis Motter, it was in poor condition. In a few years he had changed the whole aspect of the place, amply justifying the adoption of its new name, "Fair View" farm. The buildings have been repaired and painted, and the fences remade. He has 163 acres of very productive land, and everything is in prime order. He is a successful business man and has earned the name of one of the best farmers in the district. Mr. Miller is a Democrat, interested in public affairs.

George W. Miller was married, September 9, 1875, to Emma J., daughter of Harry and Martha (Young) Harbaugh, of Emmitsburg district. Their children are: 1, Helen Gertrude, born June 12, 1876, at home; 2, Anna Belle, born August 4, 1878, widow of Stewart Sites, who died, January 27, 1907, has twin children, Roanna Grace, and Stewart Freder-

JOSEPH A. LUDY, farmer, of Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., son of William and Susan (Dutrow) Ludy, both deceased, was born on the old Ludy homestead in Jackson District, October 18, 1868.

Mr. Ludy's great-grandfather, Nicholas Ludy, was a native of Germany, who came to America among the early settlers of the country. His son, Nicholas Ludy, grandfather of Joseph A. Ludy, was well-known among the old farmers of Jackson District, where he owned a valuable farm, and was highly esteemed as a citizen. Nicholas Ludy was married to Eve Ann Smeltzer a native of Middletown; born November 8, 1779; died March 22, 1847. Nicholas Ludy, Sr., born January 1, 1776; died August 25, 1863. Of their twelve children, William was next to the youngest. Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Ludy rest in the Lutheran Cemetery, Myersville district.

The late William Ludy, father of Joseph A. Ludy, was born on the old Ludy homestead in Jackson District, Frederick County, May 28, 1840. He received his education in the common schools of Jackson District, and remained at home, working with his father until 1863, when his father died. Mr. Ludy then purchased the homestead, a farm of 110 acres, part of which he afterwards sold. He improved this property, building a comfortable two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn and other necessary buildings, and spent the remainder of his life in caring for his land. Mr. Ludy also owned a saw mill where he did a large business. His success was the result of hard work and close economy. Mr. Ludy was a Democrat, interested in local affairs. William Ludy was married to Susan, daughter of George and Susan (Miller) Dutrow, both deceased. They had five children: 1, Manzella M., married Joshua M. Schildnecht, a retired farmer of Washington County, Md.; 2, Emma C. (Mrs. David T. Garnand) of Sumner County, Kan.; 3, Cyrus M., farmer, Washington County, Md.; 4, Charles W. Mr. Ludy died at his home in Jackson District, January 25, 1898; his widow died June 20, 1908. Both rest in the United Brethren Cemetery in Myersville, Md.

Susan Miller Dutrow, wife of George Dutrow, died September 29, 1839, aged 52 years. George Dutrow died May 29, 1866, aged 83 years, 1 month and 21 days.

Joseph A. Ludy was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained at home, working with his father. After his father's death, in 1898, Mr. Ludy inherited the home place of 70 acres, on which he now resides. This farm to which Mr. Ludy has added 10 acres, now comprises 80 acres of arable land, well improved, lies two miles west of Myersville, near the Monument school house. He also owns and operates the oldest and only upright saw mill in Frederick County. His hard work and close application have brought him financial success. Mr. Ludy is a Democrat, interested in all that concerns the good of the county in which he is highly esteemed.

Joseph A. Ludy was married to Lillie, daughter of Josiah and Sarah A. (Snyder) Leatherman, whose father was prominent among the older farmers of Jackson District. They have one daughter, Grace E., at home. Mr. Ludy and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church.

FRANK NATHAN MAYNARD, owner of a farm of 200 acres near the village of New London, New Market District, Frederick County, Md., son of Nathan and Jemima Eleanor (Chiswell) Maynard, was born on the farm on which he now resides.

Thomas Maynard, grandfather of Frank N. Maynard, a farmer of New Market district, Frederick County, Md., was married to Ruth Griffith. Their lives were spent on their farm in Frederick County. Mr. Maynard's father, Nathan Maynard, was born on a farm adjoining the Maynard homestead, April 29, 1824. He received his education in the academy in Frederick City, Md. For some time after his graduation, Mr. Maynard taught in the public schools of Frederick County, but he finally devoted all his time and energy to the cultivation of the soil. Mr. Maynard was a successful farmer, highly esteemed and honored by his fellow citizens. He was a lifelong Democrat. Nathan Maynard was married to Jemima Eleanor, daughter of John A. and Eleanor (Griffith) Chiswell. Their children are: 1, Fanny (Mrs.. B. T. Noland), of Virginia; 2, Frank Nathan; 3, John Newton, of Virginia, married Miss Jennie Bennett; 4, Rachel; 5, Eleanor; 6, Benjamin T., of Virginia. Mr. Maynard and his wife were members of Baptist Church. Mr. Maynard died at his home in ————————; his widow who was born October 16, 1833, is living and is in her seventy-fifth year.

Frank Nathan Maynard began his education in a local school under Ruth Maynard, his cousin, and afterwards attended the public schools of the district under Miss Lucy Poole. He grew up on his father's farm, working for his father and attending school a part of each year until he was nineteen. In 1889, Mr. Maynard began farming for himself on land adjoining the homestead. At the death of his father, in 1901, he purchased his present home. Mr. Maynard's grandmother, Ruth Maynard, owned 1,000 acres in that section, and, in 1850 it was divided among her children. The portion which fell to the share of Mr. Maynard's father now became his own. The old part of the house was built at least one hundred and fifty years ago. The addition to the southern end was made in 1900. The barn, a substantial structure of stone, 75x45, 16 feet to the square, was erected in 1855. Mr. Maynard is a stanch Democrat.

Frank Nathan Maynard was married, October 16, 1895, to Miss Eliza, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Johnson) Downey. Mr. Maynard is a member of the Baptist Church.

The name of Mainard or Maignard appears in the list of those who went into England with William the Conqueror in 1066, since which time the name has been distinguished for knightly services and great landed possessions. For loyalty to their sovereign none have surpassed the Maynards. The family was seated first in Devonshire, the younger branches establishing the great Hertfordshire and Essex county houses. John Mainard, of Axminster, in County Devon, served under the Black Prince in France, and was by Edward Prince of Wales made Governor of Brest Castle, Brittany, in the year 1352.

The first of the name in the State of Maryland of whom we have any record is Henry Maynard, "merchant, of the Kingdom of England," settled in Anne Arundel county, prior to 1702, in which year we find him possessed of Proctor's Park and other estates in that county. Tradition says that three brothers came together, and this may be true, as we find Henry, Thomas and James contemporary. Henry Maynard was evidently a man of large means, as he went to London when his interests demanded his attention, which probably accounts for the fact that he left it to his descendants to serve the Provincial Government. Henry Maynard spelled his name after the first Maignard. The original coat of arms, which descended from Henry Maynard, of Proctor's Park, Anne Arundel county, is of the line of the Lords Maynard, of St. Albans, in Herefordshire, and Little Easton, in Essex. In Maryland, as in England, the various members of this family intermarried with the leading families, including the Hammonds, of Anne Arundel; the Smiths, of Calvert; the Nelsons, of Howard; Beatty and others, of Frederick county.

Soon after the formation of Frederick county, when many were attracted to the beautiful hill country, Thomas Maynard, son of Henry and Sarah Maynard, and others left Anne Arundel county and had patented to him a charming estate among the Linganore Hills, which still bears its original name, "The Land of Valleys," which contained 1,000 acres, entitling its proprietor to manorial rights. In a later resurvey for Thomas Maynard it was designated as held of Comgaehiegue Manor, which belonged to Lord Baltimore. The original patent for "The Land of Valleys" is still in the possession of a lineal descendant of the first Thomas Maynard, of Frederick County. A great stone mansion house still marks the site of Thomas Maynard's first home at "The Land of Valleys." The walls, which are over a foot in thickness, were built with an idea of protection against the Indians. Every detail of this stanchly built mansion gives evidence of the taste and wealth of the proprietor. The name of Thomas Maynard's wife was Ann. They had a number of sons and daughters, among whom were Nathan, who married Susanna Beatty, and Benjamin. Another son emigrated to Kentucky.

Benjamin Maynard, son of Thomas and Ann Maynard, married Rachel Richards, the daughter of Daniel Richards, member of the Committee of Observation for Frederick County in the Revolutionary War. They were the parents of five children, four daughters and one son, Thomas, being the youngest. Sarah Maynard, the eldest daughter, married Basil Nelson in 1787 and removed to New York State; their descendants went West and are among the well known people of their several sections. A few years later, Catharine, another daughter, married her first cousin, Ephraim Maynard, and she also went to the State of New York. Some of her descendants, who bear the name of Maynard, are to be found in Chicago, Colorado and elsewhere throughout the West. Susan married and died without children. The other daughters died without marrying.

Thomas Maynard, only son of Benjamin and Rachel (Richards) Maynard, was born in 1775. He was married to Ruth Griffith, daughter of Howard and Jemima (Jacob) Griffith. Their children were as follows: Rachel, who married her cousin, John McElfresh, but the line is extinct; Benjamin, married Eliza M. R. Claggett, by whom he had six children, (see Charles C. Ridgely, sketch); Howard Griffith, married his cousin, Sarah Newton Chiswell, and had nine children, Lewis S., deceased; Nathan, married Elizabeth Hartow; Joseph Thomas, married Elsie Barnes; Ruth Eleanor, John A. Maynard, Sarah Howard, Augusta C., deceased; Florence E., married Edward Power; Richard M., married Martha C. Pendleton; William Jay, married Nina Henry, and George Edwin, Nathan, married his cousin, Jemima Eleanor Chiswell, by whom he had six children; Frank N., married Eliza Johnson Downey; Fanny, married B. T. Noland; John Newton, married Eliza Eugenia Bennett; Rachel A., Eleanor, and Benjamin Thomas; Jemima, became the wife of Lewis V. Scholl, and died without issue; Thomas, was married twice, first to Henrietta Stevenson, and secondly to her sister, Susanna, by whom he had two children, Jemima and Dawson Stevenson; and Leah Eleanor, married John Alexander Fleet, of King and Queen County, Va., by whom she had six children, Thomas Maynard, Charles, Bennett, Lucy Broddus, Howard McKim, and Nellie, and their descendants are found in Virginia and Missouri.

The Maynards of Frederick County in the early generations were married with the Gaithers, Hobbs, Brices, Chesleys, and Griffiths, who claim descent from the old Welsh kings, and others. Their men took their places in the Revolution as officers and privates and are classed with those who did faithful service for their country.

JOSEPH THOMAS MAYNARD, a prominent citizen of New Market District, Frederick County, Md., owner of the old Maynard estate near New London, Md., son of the late Judge Howard Griffith and Sarah Newton (Chiswell) Maynard, was born at the Maynard homestead, December 13, 1860.

The Maynard homestead, a farm of 186 acres situated in Frederick County, Md., has been in the possession of the family for generations. Here Mr. Maynard's paternal grandparents, Thomas and Ruth (Griffith) Maynard, lived and died. They lie buried in Frederick City, Md.

Judge Howard Griffith Maynard, father of Joseph Thomas Maynard, was born on the Maynard estate, February 3, 1817. He was educated in the public schools of the county, and in an academy in Frederick City, and was highly esteemed by his fellow citizens. He was a Whig, a Republican and a Prohibitionist. He was prominent in county affairs, giving active aid to all measures which would tend to the improvement of the community. He was judge of the Orphans' Court, and, after marriage, held the office of revenue collector. Howard Griffith Maynard was married, in 1856, to Sarah Newton, daughter of John Augustus and Eleanor (Griffith) Chiswell. Their children are: 1, Lewis Shull, died at the age of 22 years; 2, Nathan, a Baptist missionary to Japan, married Miss Harlowe, of Salem, Va.; 3, Joseph Thomas; 4, Ruth Eleanor; 5, John Augustus, of Portsmouth, Va., an officer in the United States Navy during the late war with Spain, now chief clerk in the department of supplies and accounts, in the navy yard at Norfolk, Va., married Mrs. Jones, widow of ——————; 6, Sarah Howard; 7, Augusta, died in infancy; 8, Florence Elizabeth (Mrs. Edward Power), of Finksburg, Md.; 9, Richard M., of St. Louis, Mo., married Martha Pendleton; 10, William J., of Idaho Falls, Idaho, married Miss Henry; 11, George Edwin, of Stevensville, Montana. Mr. Maynard was a Baptist, a pillar in the church at Linganore, in which he was an office bearer for many years. He died March 28, 1899; his wife died in 1892, aged fifty-five.

Joseph Thomas Maynard attended the public schools of New Market district, Frederick County, Md., under Miss Lucy Poole, Miss Biser, Mr. Hickman, Timothy Noland, Mrs. Hoffman, and Miss Nelson. He had grown up on the farm, and at seventeen, left school, and began working the farm for his father which he continued to cultivate for some years. After his father's death, Mr. Maynard rented the farm from his aunt, Mrs. L. V. Shull, who had bought the place when Judge Maynard died. In 1904, at the death of Mrs. Shull, Mr. Maynard purchased the property. The old mansion, a substantial stone house, two and a-half stories in height, was built in 1809. Mr. Maynard is a stanch Democrat, actively interested in public affairs. In 1895, he was nominated on the Democratic ticket for the State Legislature, but lost the election by a very narrow margin.

Joseph Thomas Maynard was married, November 15, 1899, to Elsie, daughter of Noah and Louisa (Franklin) Barnes, of New London, Md. Mr. Barnes is a general merchant in New London.

THOMAS H. HALLER, one of the prominent citizens of Frederick County, Md., who has achieved much success in business, is a native of Frederick City, where he was born December 8, 1855. He is a son of Thomas and Caroline Rebecca (Fessler) Haller.

The Haller family is an ancient and respected one, of German and Swiss origin. Tobias Haller, grandfather of Thomas H. Haller, was one of the early settlers of Frederick County. His son, Thomas Haller, was a native of Frederick City, where he was born in 1816, and died in 1882. Mr. Haller passed the greater part of his life in his birthplace, and was one of the widely known and highly respected citizens of the community. In partnership with John T. Williams, he published the newspaper known as the "Examiner." In 1848, he and Frederick Schley purchased the interest of Mr. Williams, and continued to publish the journal together until 1861. In that year, Mr. Haller sustained a stroke of paralysis, which necessitated his giving up an active business life. Nevertheless, he lived for many years afterward. Mr. Haller achieved quite a success in the journalistic field. He was a man of rare gifts and intelligence and in his day was recognized as one of the leading newspaper men of the county. In politics, he was a stanch adherent and an active supporter of the Republican party after its organization, and did whatever he could to promote its interests and general welfare. In religion, he was an active and consistent member of the Lutheran Church, in which he served in various official capacities. Mr. Haller was married twice. He was married first to Lydia Shearer, by whom he had one son, Eugene. Mr. Haller was married secondly to Caroline Rebecca Fessler, daughter of John Fessler, who with his father, the elder John Fessler were the makers of the celebrated "John Fessler Clock," regarded as almost priceless heirlooms in many families throughout the country. The elder John Fessler gave his services to his country during the Revolutionary struggle, and served with credit during that war. The children of Thomas and Caroline Rebecca (Fessler) Haller are: Thomas H., the subject of this sketch; John M. and Edward F., who are associated in the drygoods business with their eldest brother; Hemma H., a merchant of Frederick, Md.; Lucy, who became the wife of William Kemp, and resides in Williamsport, Md.; Nettie; Clara; Elizabeth; and Mrs. J. K. P. Wolfe.

Thomas H. Haller was reared in his native city. He received his education in a private school and afterwards attended the old Frederick Academy. While quite young, Mr. Haller determined to study law, but owing to unavoidable circumstances he was compelled to abandon it. For a short period, he worked as a clerk in the store of Henry M. Nixdorff, which was located on West Patrick street. He then entered the store of G. J. Doll & Brother, in a similar capacity, whose business was located in North Market street. He remained with this firm for six years, from 1873 to 1879. In the latter year he determined to embark in business on his own account, and accordingly formed a partnership with L. E. Mullinix. They opened their drygoods store in the Etchison Building, and met with much substantial success. This partnership continued until 1883, when it was dissolved. Mr. Haller then opened his present establishment located at No. 19 North Market Street. This location is one of the best in the city, and the business done by Mr. Haller has increased yearly, until his store is everywhere recognized as one of the leading and most substantial business houses of Frederick County. As business increased, Mr. Haller enlarged his stock, and he now carries a most splendid line of drygoods, suits, notions, men's furnishings, etc., which is not surpassed by any in the county. The venture met with much success from its very inception and has won a foremost position in its own special branch of trade, Dry Goods and Ladies' Ready to Wear Garments, ranking for almost twenty years as one of the leading establishments of its kind in the county. From the beginning Mr. Haller directed the affairs of the business with an ability, foresight and sagacity that stamp him as a man of executive ability and rare mercantile attainments. To his forceful personality has been due much of the prosperity and prestige attained by his house, and he is widely prominent in drygoods circles as one of the ablest and most representative men identified with that branch of industry. Honorable in all his dealings, and a merchant of the old school whose business methods are characterized by the highest principles, he commands the respect and confidence of business and financial circles generally.

Mr. Haller, however, has not confined his energies to the drygoods trade alone. On the contrary his business interests are both diversified and important. He is a stockholder and interested in many of Frederick County's most flourishing industries, and is always willing to lend his influence and co-operation towards anything that tends to promote the general welfare of the community. He is now vice-president of the Union Manufacturing Company, of Frederick, and was one of its organizers, some twenty years ago. Mr. Haller is nothing if not practical, and, believing that in many ways the community would be benefited by a large factory, he broached the matter to several other public-spirited citizens, with the result that a charter was at once secured. At first eighteen stocking-knitting machines were purchased, and placed in a small storeroom in Patrick street. As soon as possible, however, a permanent structure was erected. This building is of large dimensions, and is equipped with every modern convenience. The scheme has been a success financially, and employment is given to several hundred people the year round.

Mr. Haller was also one of the prime movers and organizers of the Frederick and Middletown Electric Railway, of which he served as treasurer. This enterprise has been of incalculable benefit to both cities. A noteworthy feature of this road is that it was the first trolley road in the United States to haul heavy freight. The farmers of this section through which it passes are thus enabled to transport their grain and other products at less cost than before the erection of the line. Mr. Haller is at present treasurer of the newly organized Frederick Railroad Company. He is a director in the Citizens' National Bank of Frederick, as well as a director and treasurer of the Economy Silo and Tank Company. He is president of the Frederick Building Association, and treasurer of the Braddock Building and Development Company. Mr. Haller started life in poor circumstances and had many obstacles to surmount, but through his own energies he has become one of the most prominent and influential citizens of the county wherein he resides. He is one of the trustees of the Frederick Female Seminary.

Mr. Haller is also prominent in Masonic circles, being an active spirit and prominent member of Lynch Lodge, No. 63, A. F. and A. M., Enoch Chapter, No. 23, Royal Arch Masons, Jacques de Molay Commandery, Knights Templar and Boumi Temple of the Mystic Shrine. In politics he is a supporter of the Republican party, although he has never aspired to public office, preferring to devote his time to his varied business interests. In religion, he is a consistent member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Frederick.

Mr. Haller was married, in 1882, to Cora Elizabeth Bowers, daughter of William D. and Charlotte R. Bowers. They are the parents of four children, namely: W. Harry, of Haller & Newman, Insurance Brokers; Grace V., Ruth E., and Thomas Stewart. Mrs. Haller, like her husband, is allied with the Evangelical Lutheran Church. She is a descendant of a well known and highly respected family, which was early settled in Frederick County. Her father, William D. Bowers, was a member of the well known and prominent business house, "The Bowers Lumber Company." Her mother, whose maiden name was Charlotte Routzahn, was the daughter of Joseph Routzahn, one of the original settlers and among the landed proprietors of the far-famed Middletown Valley.

S. S. MAYNARD, M. D., one of the ablest and most prominent physicians of Frederick County, Md., now residing at No. 17 West Second Street, Frederick City, was born on a farm in Liberty District, November 15, 1835, and is the son of Thomas Greenberry and Arianna (Sollers) Maynard.

The Maynard family is of English origin. Thomas G. Maynard was a native of Liberty District, Frederick County, Md., where he was born in 1809, and died in 1893. He was a son of Brice Maynard, also a native of Maryland, who died while yet a young man. Thomas G. Maynard passed his life as a farmer. In politics he was a Democrat. He was married to Arianna Sollers; they were the parents of seven children who reached maturity; S. S.; Lavinia, was married to Henry Driver; Warren, a merchant, now deceased; Virginia, married to Dr. T. W. Simpson, of Maryland, both being deceased; Thomas B., a retired farmer of Liberty District, Frederick County; Albert, of Mount Airy; and Clinton, a physician, now deceased.

S. S. Maynard was reared on the old Sollers' homestead in Liberty district, and while a youth was employed on this farm. He was educated in private schools and was graduated from Calvert College, New Windsor, Carroll County, Md., in 1858. He then commenced the study of medicine in the office of Dr. Thomas Sim, at Liberty, Frederick County, later entering Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, Pa., from which he was graduated in March, 1860. He immediately returned to his native county, and commenced the practice of his profession at Walkersville, where he remained until 1875, in which year he removed to Frederick City, where he has since continued in active practice, attaining distinction as one of the best known and most successful practitioners in the State. His exceptional skill attracted to his support an extended and important parctice, which he has retained for the past thirty-five years.

Dr. Maynard was at one time president of the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank of Frederick City, and is vice-president of the Key Monument Association of Maryland. He is a member of the Frederick County Medical Society, the American Medical Association, and the Medico Chirurgical Society of Maryland. He is also a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., of Frederick City. In politics Dr. Maynard is an independent Democrat, and recently refused the nomination for State Senatorship at the hands of the Democratic party of Frederick County. In 1886 he was appointed physician and surgeon to the County Hospital and Insane Asylum, which position he filled with efficiency for four years. Again in 1902 he was appointed to the same position and served two years. He served as health officer of Frederick City for five years, discharging his duties with great ability. While in this capacity he prepared and read a special paper before the Board of Health of the State of Maryland, his subject being "The Slaughter-House and Sanitary Conditions of the Towns in the State of Maryland."

Dr. Maynard is a man of fine physique and commanding appearance, and is remarkably well preserved for his years. He is possessed of a vigorous mentality and is well read on diversified topics. He is known in the community, in which he has been an active and influential citizen for half a century, for his honesty and integrity. He has kept well abreast of the times in the practice of his profession, to which he has assiduously devoted the better part of his life. Although in his seventy-fifth year, Dr. Maynard has a retentive memory and is hale and hearty.

Dr. Maynard was married in 1872 to Clayonia Thomas, a daughter of Lewis M. Thomas, in his day a prominent Whig of Frederick County. There is no issue by this marriage.

Dr. Maynard is on both paternal and maternal sides of English extraction. Mrs. Maynard is a descendant of the Dorseys and Howards, early English families of Maryland.

CHARLES P. LEVY, one of the most prominent and active of the younger business men of Frederick City, and a leading member of the Frederick County Bar, is a native of Frederick City, where he was born April 21, 1873. He is a son of Charles V. S. Levy and Mary G. Strobel, his wife, and a grandson of Perry J. Levy.

Perry J. Levy was born in 1813, and died in 1897. For many years he was a prominent merchant of Middletown, Frederick County, Md.

Charles V. S. Levy, the father of Charles P. Levy, was born in Middletown, Frederick County, Md., in 1844, and died in December, 1895. After receiving his elementary education he entered Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Pa., from which institution he was graduated with honors at the age of eighteen years. He then began the study of the law, and three years later entered upon the practice of his profession in Frederick City, where his abilities soon attracted to him a large and lucrative clientele. For twenty years he served as city attorney of Frederick, and as attorney to the board of county commissioners for a long period, discharging his duties in a manner that elicited the highest praise and commendation. In addition to his legal business, he was interested in many of Frederick's leading enterprises. He was always called upon for assistance when any new industry or enterprise needed backing, and rarely failed to respond with the desired aid, whether a matter of finances or merely one of influence. Mr. Levy was a director and the attorney of the Frederick and Middletown Railroad; a director of and attorney for the First National Bank of Frederick, and was the attorney for the Frederick City Packing Company. For years he was president of the Hygeia Ice Compnay. A man of noble character, he was held in universal esteem. All his dealings were characterized by the highest principles, and he commanded the respect and confidence of business and financial circles generally. At the same time, however, he was endowed with a charming personality, which won to him many friends. He was prominent alike in business, social and church circles. Politically, Mr. Levy was a stanch Democrat and always an active worker for the success of his party. Fraternally, he was one of the most prominent Masons in Maryland, having been honored with the thirty-third degree. He was also a member of Boumi Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, Baltimore, and for ten years served as master of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., of Frederick. He was an active and consistent member of the Lutheran Church, and took an active part in the Sunday school, serving as its superintendent.

Charles V. S. Levy was married to Mary G.

Strobel, daughter of the Rev. William D. Strobel, a minister of the Lutheran Church, who resided in Frederick County during the Civil War on account of his sympathy with the Confederacy, later returning to New York State where he had previously lived. Charles V. S. and Mary G. (Strobel) Levy were the parents of seven children: Mary G., the wife of Ernest Helfenstein, whose sketch appears in another part of this work; Charles P., of whom presently; Elizabeth S., deceased, who was married to George B. McCleary; William S., an attorney of Baltimore, Md.; Walter V. S., a physician of Baltimore; Roger S., a druggist in Baltimore; and Arthur E., a student in the Medical School of the University of Maryland.

Charles P. Levy was reared in Frederick, and received his elementary education in the private schools in his native place. He subsequently entered Frederick City College, where he pursued the higher branches of learning. He then began the study of the law under his father, and was admitted to the Frederick County Bar in 1895. Since beginning the practice of his profession, Mr. Levy has built up a large clientele, and attained much success in his chosen field. He has served as city attorney for Frederick for six years, and discharges the duties of his position with much ability. In addition to his law practice, he is interested in many of Frederick's leading industries and enterprises. He is vice-president of the Frederick City Gas and Electric Light Company, secretary of the Hygeia Ice Company, a director of the First National Bank of Frederick, and a stockholder in the Braddock Heights Company. Through his activity in these various enterprises, he has done much toward advancing the prosperity of the city, and is one of the best known and prominent young business men of the county. Like his father, Mr. Levy is a stanch Democrat in politics, and has been a member of the Democratic Central Committee for ten years. Fraternally he is a member of the Knights of Pythias, of the Order of Heptasophs, of the Royal Arcanum, and of the Modern Woodmen of America.

Mr. Levy has in his possession an interesting souvenir of the visit of General Lafayette to this country in 1824, in the shape of an invitation to a ball given at Talbot's Hotel in honor of the General. It bears the date of December, 1824, and is addressed to Mrs. Van Swearingen, who was a great-grandmother of Mr. Levy. The managers of the ball were George Bear, Louis Green, J. McPhearson, Jr., William Schley, T. C. Worthington, Benjamin Price, Francis Thomas and James M. Shelman.

Mr. Levy was married August 21, 1896, to Roberta H. Dixon, a daughter of Charles F. Dixon, of Frederick City. They are the parents of two children: Charles P. and Roberta D.

JOHN S. LONG, well known in Creagerstown district, where he has been successfully engaged in farming, is a native of Carroll County, Md., where he was born May 20, 1858. His parents were Abraham and Amanda (Mengis) Long.

John Long, the grandfather of our subject, was a native of Germany, and came to the United States while a young man. He settled near what is now Littlestown, Adams County, Pa. He had learned the veterinary surgeon business under his father in the Fatherland, and followed that profession in this country successfully for a number of years. He then purchased a fine farm, located near Littlestown, and began farming in addition to his medical work. Mr. Long made a success of life from the time of his landing in America. He began life as a poor boy, but at the time of his death was in comfortable circumstances. Besides his farm, he also owned a small tract in Littlestown, on part of which now stands the Union Church of the Reformed and Lutheran congregations. He was an honored and respected citizen of his community. Mr. Long was married in this country to Sarah Keller, who like himself was of German birth and had come to America in early life. They were the parents of these children: Mary, became the wife of Jacob Hahn, who was a farmer of Adams County, Pa.; Edward, was a miller by trade; Philip, followed farming in Emmitsburg district, Frederick County, Md.; Barbara, married Henry Raughter; Sarah, died without marrying; and Abraham. In religion, the family was connected with the German Reformed Church.

Abraham Long, son of John and Sarah (Keller) Long, was a prominent farmer of Frederick county, Md. He was born in Adams county, Pa., and received a private school education. For five years he was successfully engaged in teaching school in his native county, but not having a liking for that profession, he bought a farm from William Black, which was situated in Carroll County, Md. Here he began to farm. This tract he cultivated with large returns for some time, and improved it in general. He later purchased another farm, containing 133 acres, from Joseph Black, located in Woodsboro district, Frederick County. To this property, he removed, living here for two years. Mr. Long leased this farm then to one of his brothers and rented the old Bussard farm in Creagerstown district. For a period of twenty-three years he was highly successful in his management of the latter place. At the end of that time, he returned to his Woodsboro district farm, on which he spent the rest of his days, dying there July 11, 1895. He was laid to rest in Mount Tabor Cemetery, at Rocky Ridge. Mr. Long was a prominent and highly regarded citizen of Frederick County. He was a stanch Republican and in his early life was appointed a magistrate of Carroll county. He was one of the leading spirits in the erection of Mount Tabor Reformed Church at Rocky Ridge, of which he was a devout and consistent member. He served as a member of the church council and also as an elder. Mr. Long was married to Amanda Mengis, daughter of Jacob and Alice (Deihl) Mengis, a member of a prominent and long settled German family of Adams County, Pa. She was also a member of the Mount Tabor Reformed Church. By this marriage, there were eleven children, ten of whom reached mature years: John S.; Arabella V., the wife of George N. Derr, a farmer of Creagerstown district; Emma J., married James Hankey, deceased, who was a mechanic of Waynesboro, Pa.; Abraham S., engaged in agriculture in Creagerstown district; William H.; Sarah A., the widow of George Seiss, of Emmitsburg district; Laura P., wife of John Barrick of Woodsboro; Theodore D.; Samuel, engaged in the mercantile business at Thurmont; and Minnie, the wife of William I. Renner, agent for the Western Maryland Railroad at Rocky Ridge.

John S. Long, son of Abraham and Amanda (Mengis) Long, was given a public school education and has followed farming and milling all his life. He remained with his father until he was twenty-six years old, when he was married and began farming on his own account on his father's farm in Woodsboro district. There he made his home for four years, after which he secured possession of his present farm of 124 acres, lying in Creagerstown district, two miles south of Rocky Ridge, on the bank of the Monocacy River, the location being a beautiful one. The former proprietors were the Bussard estate. Mr. Long has since added to his original purchase 94 acres, making a total of 218 acres of excellent land. This is one of the finest farms in the district and is under a high state of cultivation. In 1904, Mr. Long bought the old Jacob Eichelberger mill property in Creagerstown district, two miles northeast of Creagerstown, on the road from that place to Rocky Ridge. He received instruction in milling under Newton M. Zentz, of Frederick City, for one year. He then remodeled his mill and installed all new machinery of the latest and most improved type, making this one of the leading mills of the county. He manufactures a grade of flour, named the "Standard," for which there is a large demand. He is also a stockholder in the Woodsboro Canning Factory.

In politics, Mr. Long is one of the leading Republicans of Creagerstown district. Religiously, he is identified with the Mount Tabor German Reformed Church, in which he takes an active part. He has served in the capacity of a deacon and is now filling the office of an elder. He takes much interest in church work of all kinds. He holds membership in Acacia Lodge, 155, Masonic Order, of Thurmont.

Mr. Long was married to Emma I. Philips, daughter of Lycurgus N. and Eleanora (Biggs) Philips, well known residents of Woodsboro district. Mr. and Mrs. Long had issue of six children, four of whom grew up: Howard A., Wilmer L., Nettie E., and Emma I., all at home. Mrs. Long and the entire family is connected with the Mt. Tabor Reformed Church.

H. MELVIN KELLER, deceased, who was a farmer residing two miles west of Myersville, Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., son of Henry and Sarah (Biser) Keller, was born on the old Keller homestead, one mile south of Myersville, November 10, 1853, and died April 4, 1910.

Mr. Keller's great-grandfather, who was an emigrant from Germany, came to America in early manhood, and settled four miles north of Myersville, Md., but afterwards took up 165 acres of timber land one mile south of Myersville. He married and spent his life in clearing and improving his land. He is buried in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Middletown, Md. After his death, his son, Daniel, grandfather of H. Melvin Keller, inherited the estate which he in turn cultivated and improved, adding to the homestead 150 acres adjoining, which he also improved. Daniel Keller was married. Among his children was Henry Keller. Daniel Keller and his wife rest in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Middletown, Md.

Henry Keller, fourth son of Daniel and Hannah Keller, father of H. Melvin Keller, a prominent farmer of Jackson district, Frederick County, Md., was born on the old homestead, near Myersville, December 13, 1812. He grew up on the home farm, and received his education in the public schools of Jackson district. He remained with his father until he reached his thirtieth year, when he married and began farming for himself, renting his father's farm. After his father's death, Mr. Keller purchased the homestead, cultivated it successfully until 1897, when he retired from farming and removed to Middletown where he spent the remainder of his life. Mr. Keller was a prominent man, successful in business, and highly respected as a citizen. He attributes his success to hard work and careful attention to business. He was a Republican and, in 1881, was the party candidate for commissioner of Frederick County. He was elected by a large majority, and performed his official duties promptly and satisfactorily. Henry Keller was married to Sarah, daughter of Daniel and Elizabeth (Routzahn) Biser, both of Middletown Valley. Of their nine children, seven reached maturity: 1, H. Melvin; 2, Hannah V. E., (Mrs. S. Smith), of Myersville; 3, Lyda C., married Harlom Summers, a retired farmer of Walkersville, Md.; 4, D. Rupley, farming the homestead in Jackson distict; 5, Annie D., (Mrs. Charles M. Shank), of Middletown; 6, Sumner K., a farmer of Middletown District; 7, Edgar B., a farmer of Jackson district. Mr. Keller and his wife were members of Christ Reformed Church in Middletown. Mr. Keller contributed liberally to church benevolence, and served the congregation as deacon and as elder for many years. He died on the homestead, January 16, 1901; his widow died February 10, 1901. Both are buried in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Middletown.

H. Melvin Keller was educated in the public schools of Jackson District, and remained on the homestead, working with his father, until after his marriage, when he took charge of his mother-in-law's place, cultivating it for her. After her death, Mr. Keller bought the property consisting of 150 acres of fine farming land, well improved. He improved the property with a large brick dwelling house, a new bank barn, and all necessary buildings, making the place one of the finest farms in the district. It lies on the road from Myersville to Mount Tabor, two miles west of Myersville. His hard work and incessant care brought him a rich reward. Mr. Keller was a stanch Republican, interested in all that concerns the improvement of the district in which he is highly esteemed as a citizen.

H. Melvin Keller was married to Hellen, daughter of Henry and Susanna (Snyder) Schildknecht, both deceased. Her parents were the descendants of an old family, prominent among the early settlers of the Middletown Valley. They have four children: Josie S., Frank M., Charles M., and Naomi O., all at home. Mr. Keller was a member of the Reformed Church in Middletown. His wife belongs to the United Brethren Church in Myersville, Md. Mr. Keller died April 4, 1910, after one week's illness, of pneumonia, aged 56 years, 4 months and 24 days, and was laid to rest in the family lot in the United Brethren Cemetery, Myersville.

HENRY MILTON KEFAUVER, who is one of the esteemed citizens of Frederick county, was born on a farm in Middletown Valley, near Middle Creek, April 9, 1837. He is a son of Henry and Maria (Biser) Kefauver.

Nicholas Kefauver, the progenitor of the family in America, was a native of Germany, and emigrating to this country, became an early settler in Frederick County, Md. He was accompanied to America by a brother, who also settled in this State.

George Kefauver, son of Nicholas Kefauver, the emigrant, was the grandfather of Henry Milton Kefauver. He was a farmer by occupation, and spent his life in Middletown Valley. He was a member of the Reformed Church, and in all his dealings with his fellow men his course was marked by strict integrity. The name of his wife was Mary. They are both buried in the Reformed graveyard at Middletown, Frederick County. They were the parents of the following children: Daniel, was born in 1808, and died in 1876; Henry; John, for some time a flour inspector in Baltimore; Jonathan, a miller by trade, went to Ohio; Jacob, was a farmer; Elizabeth, who married Hanson Flook; Mary Ann, became the wife of Philip Coblentz (see sketch of George G. Coblentz); and Rebecca, married a Mr. Daniel Young, of Pennsylvania.

Henry Kefauver, father of Henry Milton Kefauver, was born in Middletown Valley in 1810, and died in 1865. He followed agricultural pursuits. He was married to Maria Biser. They were the parents of the following children: Daniel Carlton, lives in Baltimore, Md.; Henry Milton, Frederick City; George H., of Linganore district, Frederick County; M. Calvin, a farmer in Ballenger district; Sophia, the wife of Joseph Hedges, a farmer of Middletown district; Germanus, of Washington County, Md.; Theodore Clinton, deceased; William Emory, a milk dealer of Frederick City; Eugene, deceased; and Mary Elizabeth, of Middletown district, has never married.

Henry Milton Kefauver, son of Henry and Maria (Biser) Kefauver, grew to maturity on the old home in Middletown Valley and secured an education in the public schools. He chose farming for his vocation, and followed that occupation until 1901, in which year he removed to Frederick City, where he has since resided. He is one of the well-known and honorable citizens of the city. Through his own efforts he has acquired a competency sufficient for his future needs.

In politics, Mr. Kefauver is a stanch Republican. In 1905, he was nominated and elected by his party as one of the commissioners of Frederick county, and served four years. While filling that office he discharged his duties in a manner entirely satisfactory to every one.

Fraternally, Mr. Kefauver is a member of Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, Frederick. In religion, he had identified himself with the Reformed Chruch for the last fifty years.

Mr. Kefauver was married in 1861 to Elizabeth Young, of Middletown district. She was a daughter of Peter and Elizabeth Young, and died in 1898. Mr. and Mrs. Kefauver were the parents of four children: Carrie Bell, the wife of Harry Stokes, of Emmitsburg, Md.; Charles R., of New York City; George H., resides at Troy, N. Y.; and Mary Ellen, the wife of Edward Simm, of Frederick.

D. COLUMBUS KEMP, who is numbered among the leading citizens and prominent farmers and business men of Frederick County, Md., was born on the old Kemp homestead at Rocky Spring, on the W. F. and G. Railroad, February 2, 1841. He is a son of David and Ruth (Laken) Kemp.

The Kemp family is of ancient and honorable German lineage. The original spelling of the name was Kaimpff. The American progenitor of the family was John Conrad Kemp. He was a native of Germany, being born on the river Rhine. He came from the Palatinate to this country, sailing from Rotterdam in 1733 on the ship "Samuel," Hugh Percy, master. The date of his landing at Philadelphia was August 17, 1733. He immediately settled in Lancaster county, Pa., but soon afterwards located in New Market district, Frederick County, Md., being the founder of the present village of Kempstown. He settled upon a piece of land, which was part of the original Daniel Dulaney tract granted by one of the Lords Baltimore. Mr. Kemp had, probably among others, two sons: Frederick, from whom is descended Robert A. Kemp, assistant cashier of the Central National Bank of Frederick, whose sketch see; and Gilbert.

Gilbert Kemp, son of John Conrad Kemp the emigrant, was the great-grandfather of D. Columbus Kemp. He was an extensive land owner of Frederick County and was appointed by General Washington to lay off some building lots, now in the city of Washington. Mr. Kemp had a son Frederick.

Frederick Kemp, son of Gilbert Kemp, was born on the homestead, which he cultivated. He was a prominent man in the county and was a member of the Reformed Church, in the work of which he took a keen interest. Mr. Kemp was married to Dorothy Hershberger. They were the parents of four childen: Abraham, died in Frederick; Joseph, removed to Germantown, O.; Gilbert, went to Missouri and had sons in the Union army during the Civil War; and David.

David Kemp, son of Frederick and Dorothy (Hershberger) Kemp, was born on the old home in 1798, and died in 1867. He followed farming upon the paternal estate during his entire life. He was a director in the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank. Mr. Kemp presided at the meeting called to promote the plan for the building of the Monteview turnpike, which was to be a road built by the donation of labor and money obtained in the neighborhood. He was a man of broad and generous principles, and his charitable gifts, unostentatiously bestowed, were numerous. In politics, he was at first a Whig and later a Democrat, but would never accept public office. In religious affairs he was especially interested and active, and was a member of the Reformed Church of his neighborhood long before they had a church edifice in which to worship. Meetings were consequently held in his own house. He was influential in securing Dr. Zacharias as pastor of this church and was an official for years and organized the first Sunday school. Mr. Kemp also aided materially in the building of the United Brethren Church. During the Civil War he was a strong Union sympathizer and at all times he was relied upon to uphold good government, law and order. He is buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mr. Kemp was married to Ruth Laken, daughter of Daniel Laken, whose home was in the neighborhood of Jefferson, Frederick County. She was of English descent and was an Episcopalian in religious belief. She died in 1871. Mr. and Mrs. Kemp were the parents of four children: Sarah Ann, the widow of Abraham Adams; Henrietta, deceased, was the wife of E. L. Cramer; Ellen, married Joseph Noonan, both deceased; and D. Columbus.

D. Columbus Kemp, son of David and Ruth (Laken) Kemp, after leaving the schools of the county, entered the famous old Frederick College. When he was twenty-eight years of age, he started to make his own way in the world. At the death of his father, Mr. Kemp purchased the farm that has been in the family for so many years. This place contains 488 acres and is well improved. He is also the possessor of another tract of land called White Rock, situated on the Catoctin Mountains, which contains 100 acres. Mr. Kemp is thoroughly versed in all modern methods of agriculture, and his opinion on farm affairs is considered of much weight. He was for many years president of the Frederick County Agricultural Society.

Mr. Kemp has not confined himself to agricultural pursuits, but has won high rank in business circles. He has succeeded in business and is today a man of wealth. He has been identified from time to time with many industries of the county and has large investments in different enterprises. He is a director in the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank of Frederick. He was one of the most active promoters of the W. F. and G. Railroad, and has served as its president from its organization. As the executive head of this road Mr. Kemp has managed its affairs with great credit to himself and at the same time has made this line one of the leading railroad systems in the State. Mr. Kemp is also president of the Conrad Kemp Family Association at Springfield, Ohio.

In politics, Mr. Kemp is a supporter of the Democracy, but has never cared for office. In religion, he is a member of the Episcopal Church.

Mr. Kemp was married in 1879 to Annie S. Walcott, daughter of Harrison Walcott, of Columbus, O. There are three children by this marriage: Amy R., educated in the Woman's College in Frederick; D. Chester, proprietor of the D. Chester Kemp Carriage Works of Frederick; and Harrison M., married to Miss Marcella M. Kelly. They have one son, David M.

RHODES R. KEMP, one of the leading of the younger business men of Frederick, is proprietor of the well-known fancy and family grocery store at the southwest corner of North Market and Third streets in that place. He was born in Frederick, November 15, 1866, and is a son of Charles Wesley and Columbia A. (Rhodes) Kemp.

(For American progenitor of Kemp family, see a sketch of D. Columbus Kemp, in this volume.)

Frederick Kemp, son of John Conrad Kemp, was also a native of Germany, and came to America with his father. He had a son Peter.

Peter Kemp, son of Frederick Kemp, was born in Frederick County, June 28, 1749, and was baptized in the Lutheran Church at Frederick, July 29, 1749. He was occupied in farming. He was one of the founders and organizers of the United Brethren Church, this denomination being formed at his house at Rocky Spring, in Frederick district, about two miles northwest of Frederick City, on September 25, 1800. Mr. Kemp was the father of four children, one of whom was Peter.

Peter Kemp, son of Rev. Peter Kemp, was the grandfather of Rhodes R. Kemp. He was by trade a carriage builder, and followed that occupation at one time at Ceresville, Md. Later in life, he turned his attention to agriculture, living near Walkersville, Md. Mr. Kemp was the father of Charles Wesley Kemp.

Charles Wesley Kemp, son of Peter Kemp, was born near the village of Walkersville, Frederick County, Md., July 14, 1830, and died in 1877. He was a carpenter by trade. Mr. Kemp was married to Columbia A. Rhodes, who is deceased. They were the parents of these children: Charles Edwin, deceased; Anna, the wife of William Hauer, of Baltimore, Md.; Fanny Kate, the wife of Charles W. F. Cashour, of Frederick; Robert A., cashier of the Central National Bank of Frederick; and Rhodes R.

Rhodes R. Kemp, son of Charles Wesley and Columbia A. (Rhodes) Kemp, was reared in his native city and secured an education in the public schools. When he was fifteen years old, he entered the employ of George Shipley. After being with him a number of years he managed the store, in the capacity of a clerk. Here he remained for the period of twenty-one years. In 1903, Mr. Kemp began business for himself by opening a grocery store in North Market street. In 1904, he removed to his present stand. He now possesses a large trade and is one of the well known and successful business men of Frederick. Although he necessarily began in a small way, his business steadily grew and the annual sales now reach a high amount. Mr. Kemp is strictly a selfmade man and owes his success in life to industry and strict attention to business.

In politics, Mr. Kemp is an adherent of the principles of the Democratic party. Fraternally, he is a member of the Senior Order United American Mechanics, of the Patriotic Order Sons of America, and of the Knights of Maccabees, and Odd Fellows. He also holds membership in the Young Men's Christian Association. In religion, he is affiliated with the Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Kemp was married in 1905 to Charlotte V. Ely, of Frederick City. She is a daughter of Isaac Ely, and is descended from an old family of the county. There is one son by this marriage: Allen D.

REV. RICHARD GILSON KOONTZ, pastor of the Thurmont Methodist Episcopal Circuit, consisting of the congregations of Thurmont, Emmitsburg and Tom's Creek, Frederick County, Md., is a native of Govans, Baltimore County, Md., where he was born March 1, 1873. He is a son of Rev. William A. and Mary P. (Gilson) Koontz.

Rev. William A. Koontz was born near Park Mills, Frederick County, Md., January 11, 1841. He became a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1867, and is now retired. He resides in Baltimore, Md. He has been one of the leading ministers of the Baltimore Methodist Episcopal Conference for years. He married Mary P. Gilson, daughter of Richard and Martha (Haff-Biggs) Gilson. (For sketch see below.) They are the parents of two children, Richard Gilson, and Mary.

Rev. Richard Gilson Koontz, son of Rev. William A. and Mary P. (Gilson) Koontz, was reared in the home of an itinerant Methodist preacher, and in the different localities where his father resided he attended the public schools, graduating in 1891 at the Franklin High School (then known as the Reisterstown High School), at Reisterstown, Baltimore County, Md. He was employed for some time by the Standard Oil Company in Baltimore. In 1894 he entered the freshman class at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., where he remained but a short time, ill health compelling him to relinquish his studies. After his withdrawal from college, and when his health had been regained, he began private study in preparation for the Methodist Episcopal ministry. In April, 1900, he was admitted to the Baltimore Conference on trial at its annual session held in Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Church, Washington, D. C. From April, 1900, to April, 1902, he served the Monkton Circuit in Baltimore County, Md. In 1902 he was transferred to the Hereford Circuit in the same county, where he served for four years. In April, 1904, he was ordained an elder. In April, 1906, he was transferred to the Epworth Mission in Baltimore City. In April, 1907, he was changed to the Great Falls Circuit in Baltimore County. He served this charge only four weeks, at the end of which time, owing to the sudden death of a member of the Conference, and a resulting series of changes in pastoral assignments, he was transferred to the Thurmont Circuit, where he is now (1910) in his fourth year as pastor. Since assuming charge of the Thurmont Circuit the church edifice in the town of Thurmont has been remodeled completely, and rebuilt.

Mr. Koontz is a member of Charity Lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Parkton, Baltimore County, Md., and of Good Samaritan Lodge. I. O. O. F., of Thurmont. He was married June 19, 1907, to Miss Beulah Miller Benson, daughter of Dr. Benjamin R., Sr., and Mary E. A. (Armacost) Benson, of Cockeysville, Baltimore County, Md., members of old Maryland families. They have one child, Mary Benson Koontz, born at Thurmont, Frederick County, Md., October 10, 1908.

Richard Gilson, the father of Mrs. William A. Koontz, was a resident of Frederick County, Md., from early manhood. He was the son of Thomas and Nancy Boyd Gilson, of Mifflin County, Pa., where he was born November 12, 1795. After the death of his father he left his native state and settled in Frederick County, Md., and by industry and economy acquired a large farm near Emmitsburg, where he lived until his death, which occurred September 9, 1874. He was of English and Scotch-Irish descent, and his ancestors were among the earliest settlers of Pennsylvania, enduring the many hardships and privations of that period. Both his paternal and maternal grandfathers served in the Continental Army during the Revolutionary War, the latter (David Boyd) from the beginning to the close of the struggle, being present when Lord Cornwallis surrendered to General Washington at Yorktown. Richard Gilson in 1849 went with many others overland to California, and reached Sacramento, when it was but a city of tents, after a journey of six months. He spent two years there, and returned by way of the Pacific Ocean, crossing the Isthmus of Darien by way of Lake Nicaragua and the San Juan River to the Caribbean Sea, and thence to New York by steamer.

Mr. Gilson was twice married. His first wife was Mary Smith, who died in 1825 leaving three children. His second wife was Mrs. Martha Biggs, widow of William Biggs, and daughter of Abraham Haff, Jr., of Frederick County, Md. She was born August 9, 1799, and died June 19, 1873. Richard Gilson was the father of ten children. The children of the first marriage were Sarah, wife of Robert Gilson, who died in Westmoreland County, Pa., in 1854; Ann Rebecca (Mrs. Grimes), still living at the age of ninety years (1910) at Fairfield, Pa., and Thomas Smith, who died at his home at Marshalltown, Iowa, in 1892. Those of the second marriage were Richard Gibbons, a teacher, who served in the navy in the Civil War, and died near Cleveland, O., in 1900; James William, who was a prominent citizen of Emmitsburg District, and died in the old home in 1892; John Emory, a Union soldier, who died in the military prison at Andersonville, Ga., in 1864, Charles Abraham, who served in the Civil War as a Union soldier, and died in Frederick City in 1892; Robert Newton, a Union soldier, who died in Lynchburg, Va., in 1864, a prisoner of war; Mary Priscilla, wife of Rev. William A. Koontz, living in Baltimore, Md. (1910); and Amanda, who died in Baltimore in 1898.

Abraham Haff, Jr., father of Mrs. Richard Gilson, 2d, was a son of Major Abraham Haff. He died in 1814 leaving a large family. His only son was Abraham Haff, 3d, who died unmarried in Frederick City in 1864, having been for years a devout member of the Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Richard Gilson was, before marriage, Martha Haff, daughter of Abraham Haff, Jr., and granddaughter of Major Abraham Haff. She was twice married, her first husband being William Biggs.

Major Abraham Haff was of Dutch descent, his ancestors having come from Holland. His father, Lawrence Haff, was born in the Dutch settlement on Long Island, but removed to Kingwood, N. J., about the year 1727, where Abraham was born not long afterward. Major Haff is first found in Maryland in 1755, according to a deed which was executed in Ulster County, N. Y., April 16, 1755 and recorded in Frederick, Md., September 22, 1755. He settled on the Monocacy about six miles from Frederick, and came into possession of a large amount of land by inheritance and purchase. He remained a resident of Frederick County until his death, becoming one of the prominent citizens and patriots of Western Maryland.

During the Revolution he attained the rank of major, being commissioned May 12, 1779. Previous to this he had been commissioned captain and appointed quartermaster, 1776. As captain he served under Colonel Charles Beatty, and as major under Colonel William Beatty, both cousins of his wife. Throughout the Revolutionary period Major Haff was one of the conspicuous partiots of Frederick County. The Maryland Gazette, of Baltimore, in its issue of February 5, 1775, announced that "Abraham Haff was joined with Charles Beatty, Thomas Beatty and Henry Crall, as the committee for Frederick County to carry out the decrees of the Continental Congress." Other prominent positions were also filled by him. He was one of the founders and most ardent supporters of the Presbyterian Church of Fredericktown, and served as elder for several years. His death occurred May 19, 1812. Major Haff was married about 1755 to Jane Beatty, youngest daughter of Robert Beatty, of Ulster County, N. Y., and granddaughter of John Beatty, whose widow, Susannah Asfordby Beatty, moved to Maryland, and died in Frederick County in 1745. Major Haff and his wife were the parents of two sons and two daughters.

GEORGE F. KINDLEY, farmer, and local preacher of the Methodist Protestant Church, son of George F. and Hepsabah (Etchison) Kindley, was born on the Kindley homestead, adjoining his present home, February 1, 1830.

Frederick Kindley, great-grandfather of George F. Kindley, came from Germany to American when he was quite a young man. He at first settled on land near Ijamsville, Frederick County, Md., but finally removed to a place near Monrovia, Md., and purchased the land adjoining the farm now owned by his great-grandson, George F. Kindley. This land was covered with forest trees and undergrowth, and Frederick Kindley made the first clearing and built his log cabin in the thick woods. Here he spent his life, and died leaving the land which he had conquered to bless the lives of his children. His son, William, grandfather of George F. Kindley, was born on the family homestead, in 18.— He carried on the work which his father had begun, and cultivated and improved the land which well rewarded his patient toil. William Kindley was married to ————. They had two children: 1, George F.; 2, Charlotte (Mrs. Lemuel Brandenburg). William Kindley died in early manhood.

Mr. Kindley's father, George F. Kindley, was born at the family homestead, in Frederick County, November 22, 1806. He and his sister inherited the homestead, and he in his turn carried on the work of improvement. His industry and frugality were richly rewarded, and the land which had once been forest was now smiling fields and passed to his heirs still further increased in value. George F. Kindley was married to Hepsabah, daughter of Elisha and Elizabeth (Simpson) Etchison, of Montgomery County, who was born May 10, 1809. Their children are: 1, William Jacob, born November 25, 1823, married Mary Elizabeth Greentree, both deceased; 2, George F.; 3, Miranda (Mrs. Wesley Boyer), deceased, born June 3, 1831; 4, Sebastian, deceased, born July 13, 1833, married Ann Molinix; 5, Elvira W. (Mrs. Jacob Davis), died in Urbana, Frederick County, Md. Mr. Kindley was a Democrat, interested in all the affairs of the county. He and his wife were devout members of the Providence Methodist Protestant Church in Kemptown, Md., in which he held the office of trustee. Their whole married life was spent on the home farm where Mrs. Kindley died, May 6, 1875; Mr. Kindley passed to his rest February 20, 1886.

George F. Kindley received his education in the old-fashioned subscription schools of the county. He began his studies in the Fairview schoolhouse under Mr. Barnard, of Vermont, and Mr. Petticord. He began to work on the farm when he was very young, and remained at home working with his father until he reached his twenty-fourth year. After his marriage, Mr. Kindley began farming for himself on the farm on which he now resides, adjoining the homestead. In this home, he and his wife have spent fifty-seven years of happy married life, each assisting the other, and each considerate for the well-being of the other. After his father's death, Mr. Kindley purchased the homestead, and is now the owner of two valuable farms containing 400 acres of well-improved land. Mr. Kindley has himself made all the improvements on the farm on which he resides. When he took his bride to her home, the home was a log cabin in the woods. This house had been used as a school and stood on his father's land. It was moved to where it now stands, and forms a part of the south end of their home. The whole place has been remodeled and improved. It is situated about three miles from Monrovia, on the road towards Hyattstown, Montgomery County, Md. Mr. Kindley is an ardent Prohibitionist and an active worker for the success of the cause. He says: "I would die happy if I could see the liquor traffic wiped out before I go. The rum traffic is the curse of the world." He never neglects an opportunity to express his views on this subject, and does everything in his power to uphold and advance the interests of this cause which lies so near his heart. Mr. Kindley is endowed with a happy disposition and a kind heart. He is a good conversationalist, and enjoys a joke hugely. He is temperate in all things and has never used tobacco nor indulged in liquor of any kind. (Neither did any of his wife's six brothers ever use tobacco or intoxicants.)

George F. Kindley was married, October 6, 1853, to Elizabeth, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Day) Boyer. Their children are:

1, John Newton, born in July, 1854, married, December 21, 1882, to Nellie Norris. They had two children: Oscar Murray, of Carroll County, Md., married Miss Peddicord, and Nellie Norris (Mrs. George W. McComas), of Harford County, Md. Mrs. Kindley died in 1885. His second wife was Mary Callas, of Baltimore, Md. He died, March 26, 1906.

2. George Wesley, clerk in the First National Bank of Frederick City, Md., born May 17, 1856, married Julia Miller, has one child, Mabel Elizabeth.

3. Bradley Willson, born February 11, 1862, a graduate of the Theological School of the Methodist Protestant Church, Westminster, Md., now State Secretary of the Maryland Sunday School Association, married Fanny Robinson, of Harford County, Md. They have three children: George Frederick, born August 22, 1894; Charlotte R., born June 26, 1897; and William Jacob, born December 8, 1899.

4. William Ernest, born December 3, 1870, married Miss Mamie Nicodemus, resides in Buckeystown, Md., has one child, Wilbur Augustus, born August 29, 1903.

Mr. Kindley and his family are devout members of the Methodist Protestant Church at Pleasant Grove, Md. In 1867, when the church at Pleasant Grove was built, Mr. Kindley and his wife were among the first members. When he was a boy of seventeen, Mr. Kindley was enrolled among the members of the Providence Methodist Protestant Church at Kemptown, Md. He has been an office bearer in the church for many years, and he, and his family, are active workers in the Sunday School. Mr. Kindley is a Christian gentleman, interested in all charitable undertakings, and contributes liberally to every good cause. He is beloved and highly esteemed in the community in which he resides.

Mrs. Kindley was born in Montgomery County, near the boundary of Frederick County, April 11, 1837, and spent her childhood and girlhood on the old Boyer homestead in Montgomery County, Md. Her maternal grandfather, James Day, was married twice. His first wife was Cassandra Bell who died in ——. His second wife was Miss Warfield. Her paternal grandparents were Peter and ———— (————) Boyer, of Montgomery County, Md. Her father, John Boyer, was a successful farmer. He was married to Elizabeth Day. Their children are: James, deceased; Sarah, deceased; William, deceased; John, deceased; Wesley; Greenberry, deceased; Milton, Elizabeth (Mrs. Kindley).

WILLIAM H. KRANTZ, an honorable citizen and well known farmer of Braddock district, Frederick County, was born July 9, 1844. He is a son of Frederick J. and Catharine E. (Stupe) Krantz.

John D. Krantz, the grandfather of our subject, was a native of Germany and came to America when a youth. He settled in Frederick County, Md., where he worked at his trade, shoemaking. He was married to Catharine Arter. They were the parents of a son, Frederick J.

Frederick J. Krantz, son of John D. and Catharine (Arter) Krantz, was born May 3, 1820, in New Market district, Frederick County. He was but six years old when his father's death occurred, and he was consequently thrown on his own resources very early in life. What education he received was procured in the common schools. For several years he worked at various occupations, and later learned the trade of a miller. At the age of twenty-four years he engaged in this business at the old mill which stood on the Trail farm on Carroll Creek, the present owner of the place being Mrs. Baughman. This mill is now torn down. Mr. Krantz remained at this mill for a short time, and then entered the employ of Cornelius Shriner, at Ceresville, in the same line of business. Here he was located for six years, when he took charge of another mill for Mr. Shriner, known as the old Linganore Mill. Here he lived for four years, when he again took charge of the mill at Ceresville. Mr. Krantz then bought a grist mill and small farm on Linganore Creek, in New Market district, about six miles east of Frederick, from Joseph Trout. Here he was successfully engaged in the milling business for thirteen years. From time to time he added land to his original purchase until he was the possessor of 200 acres, which he cultivated in connection with his mill. In 1869, he purchased a fine farm of 142 acres, two and a half miles northwest of Frederick on the Shookstown pike. This place is now owned by his son, William H. In 1870 Mr. Krantz disposed of his farm in New Market district to John Bell, and at the same time he traded his mill for 72 acres of fine timber land. He then removed to his Frederick district property, which he improved and devoted his attention here until 1879. In that year he bought another elegant farm of 140 acres from the heirs of Richard Lamar, lying about two miles south of Frederick on the Buckeystown pike and now in the possession of his daughters. Here he continued in farming until 1882, when he relinquished work and located in Frederick City. He died in that place, September 16, 1890, and is interred in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mr. Krantz was a widely known and prominent resident of the county. He was a member of the board of directors of the Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Frederick City. He was a trustee of the Shookstown public school in Braddock district. He was a sincere Christian, and was a consistent member of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick.

Mr. Krantz was twice married. He was married first to Catharine E. Stupe, daughter of Daniel and Elizabeth (Wedrick) Stupe, of Frederick district. Of this union, four children were born: William H.; Laura V., of Braddock district; Edward C.; and Mary M., of Braddock district. Mrs. Krantz died November 11, 1879. Mr. Krantz's second wife, whom he married after his removal to Frederick, was Laura V. Mealey, daughter of Isaac Mealey, but there was no issue by this marriage.

William H. Krantz, son of Frederick J. and Catharine E. (Stupe) Krantz, was educated in the schools of New Market and Frederick districts. He lived with his father until the latter retired, when he, with his brother Edward, cultivated the home farm for a few years. He then rented the farm, and has been engaged in active farming there ever since. In 1897, when his father's estate was settled, he purchased the place. It contains 133 acres of fertile land, with a two-story house, a fine bank barn and all the necessary outbuildings. It is one of the best farms in the county. Mr. Krantz is also the possessor of a tract of 60 acres of timber land in Catoctin Mountain. He owes his successful career to industry, perseverance and strict integrity in business dealings.

In politics, Mr. Krantz casts his vote in favor of the Republican party. He was a trustee of the Shookstown public school in Frederick district. In church circles, he is affiliated with the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick City.

Mr. Krantz was married to Alice E. Boyer. She is a daughter of Peter and Catharine Boyer, of Mount Pleasant district. Of this marriage, four children were born: Mary C. E., the wife of Frank Smith, a farmer of Urbana district: Charles E., engaged in farming in Urbana district; Margaret A., at home; and Harry C. E., also living at home. Mrs. Krantz is also a member of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick, and is a most estimable woman.

CHARLES S. KLEIN, a highly respected and substantial citizen of Braddock district, is living in retirement. He is a native of Baltimore City, where he was born July 24, 1834, and is a son of E. Frederick and Anna R. (Lillich) Klein.

E. Frederick Klein was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, October 5, 1790, and died in Frederick County, Md., August 21, 1873. He secured his education in his native town in Germany, and while a young man he learned the trade of a baker. This occupation he followed until he came to this country. Early in the nineteenth century (1818), when the campaign against Russia was made, he, with four of his brothers, was drafted into the army, but on account of ill health was released. His four brothers were all killed in the battle of Moscow, in 1817. Mr. Klein, after his release, left Wurtemberg and went to Switzerland, where he became a baker in the army. After the downfall of Napoleon he returned to his native State. Mr. Klein, having decided to come to America, set sail, and was shipwrecked, being in imminent danger for seventeen weeks. The provisions gave out, and about thirty of the passengers died. However, a landing was finally effected at Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Klein then worked at his trade in various towns in Pennsylvania for about two years. He then went to Baltimore, Md., where he started in business on his own account. Two years later he bought a property in Pearl stret, and erected a bake shop. Here he successfully conducted a bakery until 1840, when ill health made his removal to the country compulsory. Mr. Klein therefore bought 280 acres of farm and timber land from Thomas E. Poole in Liberty district, Frederick County. Here he brought his family, and lived for nineteen years, the change being very beneficial to his health. Mr. Klein then sold this place to Col. Thomas Sappington, and purchased a fine small farm, containing 45 acres, from Jacob Culler. This was located three miles west of Frederick, on the old National pike. Here he removed and spent the rest of his days. He is buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Mr. Klein made a success of life. Hard work and close application to business were the chief elements in that success. In politics, Mr. Klein was an old line Whig. In religion, he was a Lutheran, and while living in Baltimore was very active in church work.

Mr. Klein was married to Anna R. Lillich, daughter of Frederick and Anna (Frizen) Lillich. There were ten children by this marriage, six of whom reached maturity: Elizabeth, is the wife of Adam Kahler; Louisa C., the wife of Thomas Sappington, of Frederick City; Henrietta, married to Rev. Enoch Frey, of Madison county, Ind.; Charles S., whose name heads this review; E. Frederick, deceased, of Woodville district; and George J., lives in Marshall county, Ia. Mrs. Klein was also connected with the Lutheran Church.

Charles S. Klein, son of E. Frederick and Annie R. (Lillich) Klein, received his education in private schools. He was engaged in agricultural pursuits until about ten years ago, when he gave up the arduous duties of active farming. Upon his retirement, he erected a fine home near Braddock, on a tract he purchased near the Klein farm of which he is the owner. He remained with is father until the latter's death, after which he cultivated the farm for his mother until she also passed away. Her death occurred September 2, 1882, she being eighty-four years old. Mr. Klein then purchased the homestead, containing 45 acres of good farm land. This is an elegant piece of land and is very fertile. Mr. Klein is also the possessor of some small tracts in Braddock district and of some houses in Frederick City. Mr. Klein is held in high regard in the community in which he makes his home and is a man of high character. He was very successful at farming, and is now enabled to enjoy the fruit of his labors.

In politics, Mr. Klein is independent. In religion, he is a member of the Dunkard Church of Frederick, where he is an active worker.

Mr. Klein was married to Elizabeth C. Smith, daughter of Andrew Derr and Mary (Weaver) Smith, of Braddock district. They are the parents of six children: Rosa E., the widow of the late Charles C. Blentlinger, living at home; Charles E., of Braddock district; Andrew J., deceased; Fannie L., married to William P. Holter, of Braddock district; Alexis R., of Braddock district; and Jesse R., of Johnsville district. Mrs. Klein is a member of the Middletown Lutheran Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Klein have 17 grand children.

GEORGE W. STOCKSDALE, the oldest active merchant of Thurmont, Frederick County, Md., is a native of Carroll County, Md., where he was born December 18, 1831. He is a son of Noah and Catherine (Haines) Stocksdale.

Edward Stocksdale, grandfather of George W. Stocksdale, followed the occupation of a miller. His father was a native of England, and emigrated with several brothers to the colonies, settling near Annapolis, among the early settlers of Maryland. Edward Stocksdale was a slave owner. He was the father of five children, namely: John, Solomon, Noah, Nellie and Mary.

Noah Stocksdale, father of George W. Stocksdale, was a farmer in Carroll County, Md. In politics, he was an old line Whig. In religion, he was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was married to Catharine Haines. They were the parents of fourteen children eight of whom grew to maturity: John Thomas, died in Carroll County, Md., at the age of eighty-two years; William Henry Harrison, deceased; George Washington; Letitia, deceased, was married to William H. Ward, also deceased; Caroline, deceased, was the wife of John T. Murray; Noah, Jr., deceased; Tobias C., is a farmer, and resides in Carroll County, Md.; and Ellen M., the wife of Joshua Brown, of Baltimore, Md.

George Washington Stocksdale, son of Noah and Catharine (Haines) Stocksdale, was reared on the old farm in Carrol County, Md. His education he secured in the public schools. In 1856, he engaged in the mercantile business at Finksburg, Carroll County, where he remained for eleven years, meeting with much success. He then came to Mechanicstown, now Thurmont, and established a general lumber business, in 1868. This he continued to manage with success for two years. In 1870, he engaged in the general merchandising business, in which he has remained to the present time. For the first eighteen months he had as a partner, John H. Chew. He then bought Mr. Chew's interest and conducted it in his own name until 1884, when he sold a half-interest to Martin T. Bussard. This partnership continued until 1889, when he purchased Mr. Bussard's share, and has since managed the store alone. In this business, which is one of the leading of its kind in Thurmont, Mr. Stocksdale has met with much success. He is one of Thurmont's most prominent merchants and leading citizens. He is highly respected and possesses the esteem of all who have come in contact with him.

Politically, Mr. Stocksdale is a Republican. Fraternally, he is a member of Salem Lodge, No. 160, I. O. O. F., of Westminster, Md., and Acacia Lodge, No. 155, A. F. and A. M., of Thurmont, of which latter he has been treasurer for the past thirty years. In religion, he is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Stocksdale is a director in The Thurmont National Bank, and a stockholder in the Mechanicstown Water Company.

Mr. Stocksdale has been thrice married. His first wife was Keziah Gardner, by whom he had one son: Talbert Claton, a clerk in his father's store at Thurmont, Md., who married Helen T. Stouffer, and has six children, Arthur Talbert, Bertha Gardner, George Frederick, Mazie Stokes, Helen T. and Murray F. Mr. Stocksdale was married secondly to Amanda Buckingham, of Carroll County, Md., and they were the parents of two children that grew to maturity: Agnes A., the wife of George W. Smith, of Waynesboro, Pa.; and Eliza Florence, the wife of Joseph A. Gernand, of Graceham, Md. Mr. Stocksdale was married thirdly to Mary C. Crooks, and they have three children: Charles R., in the general store of his father; Viola and Zula L., both unmarried.

WALKER N. JOLLIFFE, one of the leading merchants and honorable citizens of Frederick City, who conducts a mercantile establishment at No. 11 South Market Street, was born at Clearbrook, near Winchester, Frederick County, Va., July 17, 1876. He is a son of J. J. and Sarah (Lupton) Jolliffe.

Joseph Jolliffe, the grandfather of Walker N. Jolliffe, was born in Frederick County, Va. He was a farmer by occupation, and was a member of the Society of Friends in his religious beliefs.

J. J. Jolliffe, son of Joseph Jolliffe, is a native of Frederick County Va. and is of English descent. He is engaged in farming near Clearbrook in his native county. Mr. Jolliffe was married to Sarah Lupton. They were the parents of four children: Walker Neill; Joseph L. of Clearbrook Va.; Edith M. resides at home; and John W. also of Clearbrook Va.

Walker N. Jolliffe son of J. J. and Sarah (Lupton) Jolliffe was born and reared on the old homestead at Clearbrook Frederick County Va. He received his education in the public schools of his native county. When he was eighteen years old he began life for himself, his employment being with L. A. Franklin at Winchester, Va., in the capacity of a clerk, with whom he remained for one year. Mr. Jolliffe then went to clerk for S. J. Swamley at Clearbrook, Va., who conducted a general merchandise store, and here he was located until the winter of 1896. At that time he removed to Brunswick, Md., and became a clerk in the general store of Jones & Robinson. In 1900, Mr. Jolliffe entered into a partnership with H. M. Jones, of Brunswick, and in 1904 they established the Frederick store, which they still conduct. On March 4, 1908, they opened a second establishment at Winchester, Va. These stores carry a full line of dry goods, clothing, boots, shoes and furnishings. Mr. Jolliffe is an active and thorough business man, and has been very successful in the management of his stores. By his long period of employment in this line he became thoroughly acquainted with all phases of this branch of trade. He has succeeded in building up a large business and his success is well deserved, since it has come to him through his own efforts entirely. He is one of Frederick City's well known and substantial merchants.

In politics, Mr. Jolliffe is a stanch prohibitionist. Fraternally he is identified with the A. F. and A. M., of Brunswick; Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, Frederick; and the Independent Order of Red Men of Brunswick. In religion, he holds membership in the Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Frederick in the work of which he is very active. He is superintendent of the Sunday School and is a steward and trustee.

Mr. Jolliffe was married July 29, 1903, to Lulla Vinton Burkholder, daughter of William H. and Annie Burkholder, of Brunswick, Md. There were three children: 1, Mary Louise, deceased; 2, Walker Neill, Jr., and 3, Dorothy Elizabeth.

GEORGE M. ISANOGLE deceased was a prominent farmer of Lewistown district, and a man who possessed the esteem of all with whom he came into contact, was born February 14, 1839, and died on his farm in the above district, September 10, 1908. He was a son of Michael and Elizabeth (Jackson) Isanogle.

The Grandfather of George M. Isanogle was Michael Isanogle. He was married to a Miss Reed, and was the father of Michael Isanogle.

Michael Isanogle, son of Michael and Mary (Reed) Isanogle, was a leading agriculturist in his day. He was highly respected in the community in which he made his home. Mr. Isanogle was married to Elizabeth Jackson. They were the parents of eleven children, all of whom grew to mature years: William H., now deceased, lived at Hagerstown, Md.; John T., deceased, removed to Lincoln, Ill.; George M.; Ann E., the wife of Elias Renner, of York, Pa.; Joseph A., deceased; Jane E., deceased, was the wife of P. T. Waltman; Charles W., deceased, of Frederick City; James R., resides at Thurmont, Md.; Mary C., became the wife of Lewis Humrick, of Lewistown district; Samuel D., of Thurmont; and Jacob O., lives in Lewistown district.

George M. Isanogle, third son of Michael and Elizabeth (Jackson) Isanogle, was the recipient of a public school education. He spent his entire life in the cultivation of the soil. He assisted his father on the latter's place until in 1866, when he began farming on his own account. His first home was on a place called "Prospect," and owned at that time by William Cronise. Here Mr. Isanogle remained for four years, meeting with large returns from his labors. For the next two years he turned his attention to the hauling of timber. He then rented a farm and took up agriculture again, this place being owned by Dr. Henshew and being located near Thurmont, in Mechanicstown district. For five years he successfully farmed this tract, at the end of which time he purchased one hundred acres of land near Lewistown from Americus Wiles. On this place, he built a fine two-story frame dwelling and all necessary outbuildings. With these improvements this farm was one of the best in that section of the county. In 1884, Mr. Isanogle disposed of this farm to Jesse Gaugh, and bought the tract now in the possession of his widow, which contains 201 acres, of excellent agricultural land. The previous owners of this farm had been Martin and George Bussard. This farm is well improved, being noted for the fine limestone quarry on it, and is situated about eleven miles north of Frederick City on the Emmitsburg pike. Here Mr. Isanogle continued in agricultural pursuits until the time of his death. He was a man of excellent character and his success in life was due to industry and close application to business. He was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Utica, and was also a trustee of the Springfield public school.

Mr. Isanogle was married to Matilda Bowers, daughter of Jonathan and Catharine (Rice) Bowers, of Lewistown district. She survives her husband. After Mr. Isanogle's death, his widow managed the farm until the spring of 1909, when she removed to Thurmont, where she owns a fine residence and is living in retirement. The home place is now farmed by a son-in-law. Mrs. Isanogle is also a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Utica. George M. and Matilda (Bowers) Isanogle were the parents of six children, four of whom reached maturity: Clara, the wife of Walter Wiles, of Lewistown district; Alva M., of Lewistown district; Mamie G., resides at home; and Bessie V., the wife of Z. U. Firor, of Lewistown district.

THE LATE SAMUEL T. HAFFNER, M. D., one of the best and most prominent physician of Frederick County, Md., and Clerk of the Circuit Court, was a native of Frederick District, Frederick County, Md., where he was born November 20, 1848. He was a son of William F. and Catherine M. (Feaga) Haffner

Jacob Haffner, grandfather of the late Samuel T. Haffner, was a native of Frederick County, Md. His ancestors, who were Germans, were among the early settlers of Frederick County. He was a gunsmith by trade. In politics, he was a member of the Old-line Whig party; in religion he belonged to the Lutheran Church. He was the father of two sons: William W., and Samuel P.

In 1788, Philip Feaga, maternal great-grandfather of Samuel T. Haffner, purchased the old mill property now owned by Josiah Feaga, rebuilt the mill, and resided there until his death which occurred in 1827. His son, George Feaga, was born in May 1786 and died in 1865. William M. Feaga, son of George Feaga, was born June 4, 1820, and died in ——. Jacob Trout, maternal grandfather of William M. Feaga, was a captain in the Continental Army, and when his son, John, enlisted in the war of 1812, he joined in the campaign against the Indians. He was never heard from afterwards, and was doubtless among the killed. When war was declared against England in 1812, old Philip Feaga walked from Frederick to Baltimore determined to enlist, but was rejected on account of his extreme age.

William W. Haffner, the father of the late Dr. Samuel T. Haffner, was born in 1819, and died in 1890. In early life he followed the trade of tanner and currier, but in later life he became a farmer. He was married to Catherine M. Feaga. They were the parents of two sons and one daughter: Martha W., widow of Jacob M. Moore, of Bluff City, Va.; Samuel T.; and George W., of Frederick City.

Samuel T. Haffner, son of William W. and Catherine (Feaga) Haffner, was born and brought up on a farm. While a lad he followed farming, and attended the public schools in the winter. At the age of twenty-one, he entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Baltimore, Md., from which he was graduated with the degree of M. D., in 1874. He then returned to Charlesville, Frederick County, Md. and began the practice of his profession. Here he remained until 1885, when he removed to Frederick City, where he had since been actively engaged in the practice of his chosen profession. Dr. Haffner was strictly a self-made man, and attained to his enviable position through perseverance, honesty and integrity. Few men won higher repute in the exacting field to which he devoted himself, and his views on medical topics were the views of a man who made them a life study. Dr. Haffner ranked high in the medical profession. He was a member of the American Medical Association; the Medico-Chirurgical Society of Maryland; and of the Frederick County Medical Society, of which he served as president. He was recognized as one of the ablest and most prominent physicians of Frederick County, and his exceptional skill brought him an extended and important practice. He served as health officer of Frederick County, eight years, and eight years as physician to the Montevue Hospital, of Frederick County. In politics, Dr. Haffner was always a stanch adherent, and an active supporter of the Republican party. In 1903, he was nominated and elected by the Republicans as clerk of the Circuit Court of Frederick County, for a term of six years, and discharged his duties with much ability, and to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. He served as chairman of the Republican Central Committee for four years, and was chosen as delegate from the Sixth Congressional District of Maryland to the Republican National Convention of 1896, which met in St. Louis, Mo., and nominated William McKinley for President.

Samuel T. Haffner, M. D., was married, March 8, 1882, to Susan Whitmore, daughter of Nicholas Whitmore, of Frederick County. They were the parents of two sons: Ward C., deputy clerk of the Circuit Court of Frederick County, under his father, and a student in the Law Department of the University of Maryland; and Austin F., a student in the Medical Department of the University of Maryland.

Dr. Haffner was also prominent in fraternal circles. He was an active member and a leading spirit of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M.; of Enoch Royal Arch Chapter, No. 23, Royal Arch Masons; Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar; King David Lodge, No. 50, I. O. O. F.; and Frederick City Lodge, No. 684, Order of Elks.

CHARLES HENRY JOURDAN, Professor of Mathematics at Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Frederick County, Md., was born, February 24, 1830, in Forcalquier Province, France. His father was Antoine Jourdan, and his mother Francoise Bremond Jourdan. They raised a family of seven children, five girls and two boys. Charles Henry was the youngest of the family. One of his sisters, Francoise Jourdan, is still living at Forcalquier. In 1871 his elder brother, Jerome Jourdan, brought his wife and children to the United States and settled in New York, where he and his wife died, leaving one son, Henry J. Jourdan, who resides in New York.

Charles H. Jourdan was educated in the public schools and colleges of his native land. Mathematics and Physical sciences were his favorite studies. He taught in public schools in France until 1861, when he emigrated to America, and spent four years in Montreal, Canada, teaching French and mathematics in some of the best schools of that city. In 1865, Professor Jourdan was called to Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md., to take charge of the department of mathematics, physics and chemistry.

Professor Jourdan has been connected with Mount St. Mary's College since 1865. During that time he was absent from the college for five years, one year was spent in Parras, state of Coahuila, Mexico, and four years at Seton Hall College, South Orange, N. J. He returned to Mount St. Mary's in 1895. Professor Jourdan has won for himself an enviable position in educational circles. When he came to America, he enjoyed the friendship of Joseph Henry, the eminent scientist, whose statue stands in Washington, D. C. and, through him, Professor Jourdan formed the acquaintance of distinguished educators throughout the country. When Cornell University was founded, in 1868, President White, the first president of the new institution, invited Professor Jourdan to take the chair of mathematics, but the professor had become so much attached to Mount St. Mary's college, that he declined the honor. Under his care the department of mathematics has become very effective in this college.

On July 6, 1871, Professor Jourdan was married to Adelaide, youngest daughter of Dr. Henry Dielman, famous as a musical composer. Their children are: 1, Frances, died in Mexico during his father's residence in that country; 2, Flora (Mrs. Frank A. Roddy), of Thurmont, Md.; 3, Edith, at home. Professor Jourdan's home, Pleasant Level, is a fine farm of sixty acres, one mile from the college.

Biographical account of the father of Mrs. Adelaide (Dielman) Jourdan, wife of Professor Charles Henry Jourdan, of Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md.

The following sketch entitled "The Death of a Great Composer," is copied from the obituary of Dr. Dielman:

"As time ceaselessly wings its flight towards the seemingly unknown, it bears upon its noiseless chariot both great and small. Mutability makes up the sum of human existence, for it may truly be said that this world is a world of Change. After bloom, decay; after summer, winter; and after life's work well done, rest.

"Seldom are we called to record, with the pen of affection, the acts of a life so rich in merit, so full of true genius, so replete with all that makes manhood noble, as was the life of the respected and honored scholar, the subject of this tribute, who died at his residence near Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, on Thursday night, October 12, 1882.

"Dr. John Casper Henry Dielman was born at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, April 26, 1810. He was the son of John Casper Dielman, an accomplished musician of that city. In his boyhood he gave evidence of great musical talent, and, for the further development of this talent, at the age of eleven, his father placed him under the instruction of the renowned French violinist, Monsieur Femmey, then living in Frankfurt. Under his training,

Dr. Dielman laid the foundation for that thorough knowledge of music which crowned his after life with success. At the age of fifteen, he was sent to the city of Offenbach, near Frankfurt, to the celebrated Hofrath Anthony Andre, court musician to the Duke of Isenberg Hesse Darmstadt, to be instructed in thorough-bass and counterpoint. Here, as before, he excelled in every task set before him. Mr. Andre was also the proprietor of the famous publishing House of Jean Andre, his father, which has in its possession almost all of the originals of the music of Mozart, Haydn, and Beethoven. This house is still in existence.

"When he was about seventeen, Dr. Dielman received a call from an opera impresario, of Philadelphia, Pa., tendering him the position of first violinist in his orchestra. This offer having been accepted, he took charge of the orchestra early in the year 1827. This exacting position which, notwithstanding his youth, he filled for two years with marked ability, stamped him as a man of wonderful musical genius. The next fourteen years of his life were spent in Baltimore, Md., and Washington, D. C., twelve years of the time being passed in the former city. During his stay in Baltimore, he drew to himself many valuable friends who were attracted by his character, his accomplishments, and his skill as a teacher of music.

"In 1835 Dr. Dielman was the leader of a splendid orchestra attached to the Holiday Street Theatre, and in 1842, he was the director of the Baltimore Musical Association, an organization which included among its members some of the most distinguished ladies and gentlemen in the city. He was also choir-leader for several churches, among them were St. John's Cathedral, St. Vincent's, and Christ Protestant Episcopal Church. During this time, he so endeared himself to all who knew him, that in after years, whenever he returned to the city as a visitor, he was welcomed as an honored guest.

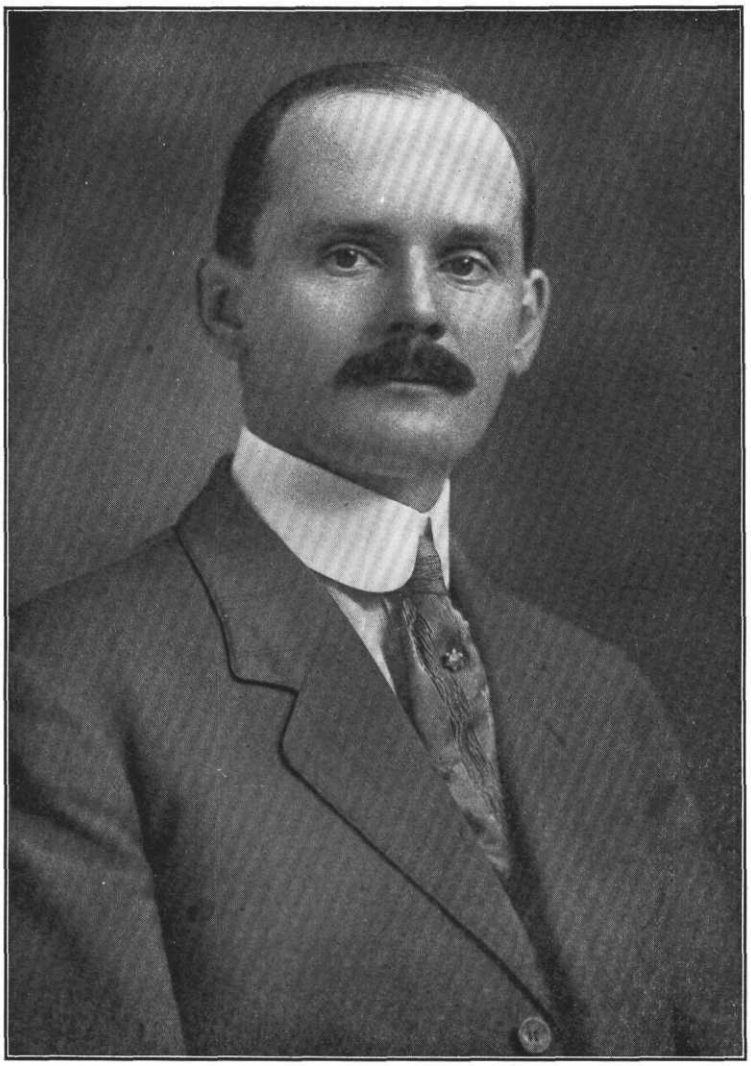
"In 1843, that celebrated institution of learning and the polite arts, Mount St. Mary's College, offered him, through Dr. McCaffrey, the chair of vocal and instrumental music. He abandoned what promised to be a most brilliant career to accept the position, influenced, it is thought by a love of retirement on the part of his wife, whom he had married in 1834. She was a most worthy lady of Baltimore, a daughter of Philemon Dawson, a captain of the British Merchant Marine. Her mother was of the family of Lownes of the English nobility.

"In 1880, Archbishop Gibbons proposed to Dr. Dielman to return to Baltimore, and take charge of the music of the Cathedral; but so firmly had he established his hold on the affections of all connected with Mount St. Mary's that he found it utterly impossible to leave the place.

"As a composer of music, Dr. Dielman occupied an enviable position; those whose knowledge of the divine art qualified them for judging, have always accorded to him the highest rank. One of his first efforts, a charming overture for an orchestra, composed when he was only nineteen, attracted special attention as a production of great merit. Among his later productions were the "Inauguration Marches," played by the Marine Band at the several inaugurations of President Jackson, Harrison and Taylor. These marches were afterwards produced by several prominent bands in Germany. He composed also several beautiful masses, hymns and songs. He was the first composer in the United States to receive the degree of Doctor of Music. This honor was conferred on him by the University of Georgetown, and presented to him by General Taylor, then president of the United States. He also received, in June 1874, from Pope Pius IX, a silver medal, an honor bestowed for meritorious composition; this was delivered by Bishop Chatard, of Indiana, who received it for delivery from the hand of the Pope.

"The name of Dielman is well known in Frankfurt on the Main, where Dr. Dielman had three cousins, all connected with prominent families and associated with the fine arts. Jacob Dielman, a noted landscape painter of the Dusseldorf School, whose works are well-known both in Europe and in America; Francis Dielman, a superior draftsman, inventor of colored lithography; and Jean Dielman, the celebrated sculptor, to whose genius we owe the magnificent bronze statue of the poet Schiller, set up in Frankfurt several years ago.

"Such a life as Dr. Dielman's deserves a fitting close, and its sunset is always calm and peaceful. His funeral took place from his home near the college, and his remains were laid away in the Mountain cemetery near the church. The honorary pall-bearers were: Professor Ernest Lagarde, James D. Hickey, Charles A. Leloup, and Andrew H. Baker. the active pall-bearers were: Dr. J. B. Brawner, James A. Elder, Dr. Bussey and Messrs. Charles Manning, Edward Taney and B. Tyson. The coffin was covered with floral wreaths and crosses, the gifts of St. Joseph's Academy, and a beautiful cushion with the words, To my Brother, artistically interwoven with violets, the gift of his sister, Mrs. Dieter, of Baltimore. The remains were borne up the aisle and placed before the altar of the church in which he had worshipped for nearly forty years.



J. O. Hendrix

The organ at which he had presided over a quarter of a century, heavily draped in mourning, stood silent as if unwilling that any other fingers than those now stiff in death should draw from it harmonies, such as those in which Dr. Dielman, in the prime of manhood, had so often breathed forth his devotion in the worship of God, a silent but eloquent mourner. The music was rendered in a beautiful and fitting manner by students selected from the seminary. A solemn High Mass of requiem for the repose of his soul was celebrated by the Reverend William Byrne, assisted by the Rev. Father White, and the Rev. Thomas Kelley, as deacon and subdeacon. The sermon was preached by the Rev. William Byrne and was a practical and touching tribute to the honesty, worth and genius of the honored dead. He said that Dr. Dielman had always labored for the best interests of the institution which he loved, and no sacrifice was too great where its welfare was concerned. He was always first and last at his post of duty, and, like a faithful pilot, never deserted the wheel. 'The head of the great genius is laid low resting on a pillow of dust, the lute is silent, the harp strings are broken, but around the sacred mound which hides him from our sight, will cluster tender memories and holy associations, the reward of a life crowned with beauty and grandeur, and the approval of all who knew him.' JOHN O. HENDRIX, M. D., one of the leading and most able physicians of Frederick County, Md., is a native of the city of Baltimore, where he was born January 26, 1869. He is a son of A. W. and Fanny A. (Dorsey) Hendrix.

Joshua Hendrix, the grandfather of Dr. John O. Hendrix, spent his life following the trade of a tanner, and later in the occupation of a farmer. He resided at Maryland Line, in Baltimore County, Md. The Hendrix family is of Dutch origin, and the first of the name were among the early settlers of Maryland.

Augustus W. Hendrix, the father of Dr. John O. Hendrix, was born in 1841, and died October 27, 1905. For many years before his death, he had been connected officially with the Baltimore & Ohio and the Pennsylvania Railroads. At the time of his demise he was treasurer of the Northern Central Railroad. Politically, he was independent in thought and action, and gave his support only to those men and measures that he deemed best calculated to serve the public interests. He was affiliated in a religious way with the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Hendrix was married to Fanny A. Dorsey, who survives her husband, and is residing in Baltimore County. They were the parents of eleven children, eight of whom are still living: Bertha; John O., of whom presently; Arthur D., in U. S. Custom House, Baltimore City; William L. and Elmer D., farmers of Baltimore County, Md.; C. W., in the employment of the Pennsylvania Railroad; Irvin N., also connected with the Pennsylvania Railroad, as a civil engineer; and Jessie, the wife of Dr. L. E. Brown, a prominent physician of Fort Wayne, Ind.

John O. Hendrix, son of Augustus W. and Fanny A. (Dorsey) Hendrix, was reared on the old Hendrix homestead near Parkton, in Baltimore County, Md. While a lad he worked on the farm during the summer and in the winter months attended the public schools. He later attended the Woodbury High School for three years, after which he accepted a position in the auditor's office of the Northern Central Railroad at Baltimore, where he remained for five years. At the age of twenty-two he began the study of medicine at the Southern Homeopathic Medical College of Baltimore City, from which he was graduated in 1894. For one year after his graduation, he remained as resident physician of the Maryland Homeopathic Hospital. During the time he was pursuing his medical studies at the Southern Homeopathic Medical College, Dr. Hendrix was interne at the National Homeopathic Hospital at Washington, D. C.

In 1895, Dr. Hendrix located in Jefferson, Frederick County, Md., where he practiced his profession for a period of two years. In 1897, he returned to Baltimore, and became general surgeon of the Maryland Homeopathic Hospital, which position he retained for one year. In the fall of 1898, Dr. Hendrix located in Frederick City, where he has since remained actively engaged in the practice of his chosen profession. He is regarded as one of the leading and most prominent physicians of the county, and his generally recognized skill soon attracted to his support a large and lucrative practice. He has won high repute in his chosen field, and as a surgeon has attained marked success. Dr. Hendrix is a member of the Frederick County Medical Society, the Medico-Chirurgical Society of Maryland, the American Medical Association, the American Institute of Homeopathy and the Maryland State Homeopathic Society. He served as a member of the medical staff of the Frederick City Hospital. He has recently been elected to the chair of Gynaecology in the Atlantic Medical College and St. Luke's Hospital of Baltimore City.

Politically, Dr. Hendrix is a supporter of the Republican party. Fraternally, he is an active member of Lynch Lodge, No. 163, A. F. and

A. M.; Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias; Frederick Lodge, No. 684, Order of Elks; the Royal Arcanum and King David Lodge, No. 50, I. O. O. F. He is affiliated in a religious way with the Lutheran Chruch.

Dr. Hendrix was united in marriage, March 19, 1903, to Cora May Whipp, a daughter of George T. Whipp, of Jefferson, Frederick County, Md. They are the parents of one son, George T. Whipp.

GENEALOGY OF THE DESCENDANTS OF JONATHAN HAYES.—Jonathan Hayes the first, of England, had a son Jonathan who was an officer in the British army stationed at Elizabethtown (now Philadelphia). Jonathan Hayes there met a Miss Elizabeth Elliott, whom he wished to marry. Her parents being Quakers and opposed to war, would not give their consent, but after a time Hayes sold his commission, left the army, and married Miss Elliott and lived a high life with the British officers. After spending all his money, his father-in-law refused to do more for him. He went over into Delaware, located a large tract of land and settled down to farming. He had twelve sons all living to manhood and all scattered to the four winds.

One son, Jonathan, together with Edward Dulaney and John Drummond, who were only about seventeen years old, concluded to explore the country further south. Coming to Baltimoretown they were advised to explore the country along the Monocacy River. They were told there were a great many Indians there, but that they were very friendly. Drummond, wishing to go farther south, left his partners, and located in Virginia and founded a small town now known as Drummondtown.

Jonathan Hayes and Edward Dulaney did as advised and found the Indians very friendly, but they would not allow Hayes and Dulaney to locate land bordering on the River, as that was their hunting ground. Hayes having gained the good will of the Indians was allowed to locate land within one-fourth mile of the Monocacy river. They required Dulaney to go back of Hayes to locate. Dulaney located about two thousand acres. Dulaney then made known that he would lease the land for the term of five years, the tenant to have all the crops and to clear five acres and as much more as he wished. Hence the name "lease land," which will be found in all deeds at the present day for all that land. Many have wondered why this land is called "lease land;" the above explains. The land is now owned by Dorseys, Martins, Eckenrodes, Rosensteels and many others. This land lies about four miles southwest of Emmitsburg. The land located by Jonathan Hayes borders on Tom's creek and about one-fourth mile above where Tom's Creek empties into the Monocacy. There Jonathan Hayes lived, died and was buried. That portion of land is now owned by Wallace Moser.

Jonathan Hayes married a Miss Henderson who came into the Colonies from Nova Scotia. His wife had a sister who lived with them, lived to be one hundred and six years old and is buried at the same place as Jonathan Hayes and wife. Jonathan Hayes had three sons and two daughters. The sons were Jahue, John and Joseph. Jahue went to Southern Virginia and never returned. John went to Tennessee and married a Miss Coffee; returned with his bride to his father's, remained a time and returned to Tennessee. His first son he called John Coffee Hayes, better known in after life as Gen. John C. Hayes. The Texas ranger Joseph Hayes, married Miss Deborah Weimer, an only child and daughter of Joseph Weimer who lived near Taneytown, Maryland.

One of the daughters of Jonathan Hayes married Thomas Wilson. Some of their descendants are living at Wheeling, West Virginia. One daughter married John Smith, who owned the farm now owned by Berry Fuss, about two and one-half miles south of Emmitsburg, and had eight children, four sons and four daughters. One of the sons, John, of Uniontown, Maryland, and James, of Kansas, were the only ones who married. Of the daughters of John Smith one married John Jones, one married John Nickum, one married Richard Gilson, one married John Gilland. John Gilland had one daughter who married Christian Carrel.

Joseph Weimer owned a farm containing three hundred acres which was inherited by Joseph Hayes, but like many others his life was blighted by the too free use of his name. A certain Mr. ———— was appointed a U. S. Government official and required to give bond. His bondsmen were Dr. Liggett Johnson Jamison and Joseph Hayes. Mr. ———— proved to be a defaulter and his bondsmen's property was seized by the Government. Joseph Hayes having been a soldier, and by the intercession of friends the government took no further action and allowed him in possession of the farm until his death. The family wishing to go West, after the death of Joseph Hayes, Darius Thomas, a relative, knowing this defaulter had a son a member of Congress, wrote to him to know what action the Government would be likely to take in the matter. Mr. ———— knowing all the facts in the case wrote to Thomas to come to Washington and he would do all in his power to straighten the matter out. After a full investigation with the proper heads, they could not see that the Government had any claim that could be enforced after the lapse of so many years and gave Thomas the assurance that the Government could not at that late date enforce its claim and that the heirs could sell the property and give clear title, in consideration of the good services of the son, Mr. ———— (the name is omitted). The above explains the apathy of Joseph Hayes, who let all go by default not knowing at what time he might be dispossessed of his farm.

Joseph Hayes, who married Deborah Weimer, had four sons and three daughters. The sons were Abram, Thomas, Joseph and John. Abram married a Miss Musgrave; Joseph married a Miss Fuss; John married a Miss Frame, and Thomas married a Miss Elizabeth Armstrong. Elizabeth Elliott Hayes married Phillip Hahn; Mary married John Pomeroy; Deborah Weimer never married.

We will now follow out the descendants of Thomas Hayes of Joseph, who married Elizabeth Armstrong: They had seven children, six sons and one daughter. The sons were John Thomas, William, John, Joseph, James T. and Samuel Elliott Hayes. John Thomas Hayes and John Hayes died in infancy. The daughter, Deborah Weimer Hayes married Darius Thomas and settled in Iowa. William married Sarah Nickum, Joseph married Elizabeth Curren, James T. married Sarah A. Witherow, Samuel Elliott married Miss Dennis of Texas.

Joseph Hayes, brother of James T. Hayes, learned the trade of millwright with Daniel Wierman of Mechanicstown, Maryland, a master mechanic. James T. Hayes later learned the trade of millwright with the same party, Daniel Wierman, who was called "The daddy of all millwrights," having had many apprentices. After the freedom of James T. Hayes he formed a partnership with Joseph Hayes under the firm name of J. & J. T. Hays, and conducted the business of millwrights altogether seven years. Samuel Elliott Hays was a lawyer.

In January 1856 J. & J. T. Hays bought the old Emmitsburg foundry, taking possession March 15, 1856, manufacturing threshing machines, ploughs, stoves and general castings. In 1867 the firm of J. & J. T. Hays was dissolved, Joseph Hays taking the foundry and James T. Hays the stove department, all on the same block. The stove department has been carried on continuously from 1856 to the present time (1910) by James T. Hays for fifty-four years, now under the firm name of J. T. Hays & Son.

James T. Hays married Sarah A. Witherow January 4, 1859, and had four children, two sons and two daughters. The sons are Thomas C. and John W. Hays. The daughters are Lizzie Ross and Sarah Weimer. John W. Hays died in infancy. Lizzie Ross Hays married E. D. Snively of Greencastle, Pennsylvania, and have two children, Mary and Isabelle Snively. Thomas C. Hays married Minnie Fox and has six children, five sons and one daughter. The sons are James T., William E., John Ross, Samuel C., Harry W., the daughter Sarah Margaret Hays.

John Armstrong, the first, the great grandfather of the children of Thomas Hayes, came from England and settled in the Cumberland Valley, Penna., and had a son, John, who was a gun and white smith, a master mechanic. He settled near Emmitsburg, Maryland; the property is now owned by Mrs. Lucy Beam, and married a Miss James, an only child, who lived near Emmitsburg. Her parents were of Welsh descent and her father was a manufacturer of woodenware. John Armstrong the second had seven children, four sons and three daughters. The sons were William, Robert, Samuel and James Armstrong, all gunsmiths. The daughters were Anna, Jane and Elizabeth. William was the only son that married. He was an inspector of guns at the government works at Harper's Ferry for many years. Anna married James Manson; Jane married Samuel Heard; Elizabeth Armstrong married Thomas Hayes. The first gunsmith shop built by John Armstrong is standing at the present time (1910) and is in a good state of preservation, over one hundred and twenty years. One of John Armstrong's apprentices still lives at the present time (1910), hale and hearty, about ninety years and bids fair to live many more. (Nathaniel Rowe).

John Witherow, great grandfather of Sarah A. Witherow who is the wife of James T. Hayes, came from Ireland, and married Miss Margaret Barber and settled near Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, about the year 1760. After some time he located on a farm about five miles south of Emmitsburg, Maryland, and there lived and died. He had three sons and four daughters. The sons were John, David and Samuel Witherow. Of the daughters one married James Harper; one married Henry Williams; one married Andrew Marshall; one never married. John Witherow, the second, married Miss Jane Ross and had two sons and four daughters. The sons were Thomas Scott and John Ross Lafayette Witherow. The daughters were Jane Eleanor Elizabeth, Margaret B., Sarah A., and Anna Isabelle Witherow; who died in infancy. Thomas Scott Witherow married Miss Lavinia Jett; John R. L. Witherow married Miss Mary Hoy; Margaret B. Witherow married Sheeler Stuart; Sarah A. Witherow married James T. Hays.

Jonathan Hayes settled on Tom's Creek, which is now Frederick County, Md., about 1739, as appears from letters patent from King George.

Jonathan Hayes had a brother Samuel for whom he had great affection and exacted a promise that he would pay him a visit when he located, which he did. When Samuel was about to return to his father's, Jonathan told him if he would remain he would give him one hundred acres of his land. Samuel accepted the offer. Jonathan had the land surveyed and called it "Brotherly Love," and it is known in deeds as "Brotherly Love." In making this survey the surveyor found a large strip of land between Benjamin ———— and Jonathan Hayes not taken up. Hayes had the land surveyed and platted, intending to have the land entered. The surveyor gave Benjamin ——— the information and for a consideration gave Benjamin ———— a plat of the land. Benjamin ———— without delay had the land entered in his own name and called it "Benjamin's Good Luck," by which name it is known. The Hayes' called it "Benjamin's Treachery" and predicted destruction for all their generations. Their prediction looks like it has been fulfilled.

John Hayes of Tennessee, was the first to drop the "e" in Hayes, as he said it was a dead letter. A large portion of the Hayes still use the "e."

The children of Thomas Hays and Elizabeth Armstrong Hays were all born and raised on the hill opposite St. Joseph's Church Emmitsburg, Md. This was the first dwelling house to burn in the great destruction of Emmitsburg by fire in 1863. The property is now owned by the heirs of Dr. James Eichelberger.

WILLIAM H. HOGARTH, who is one of the well known and substantial citizens of Frederick County, is at present the president of the board of County Commissioners, and was born in Baltimore City, Md., October 7, 1863. He is a son of William A. and Abrilla (Hanson) Hogarth.

William A. Hogarth died in 1868. He was in early life a teacher. During the Civil War he was a soldier in the Union army. Late in life, he was prominent in politics in Baltimore City. Mr. Hogarth was married to Abrilla Hanson. They were the parents of four children, three of whom are now living: Emory N., a merchant of Baltimore County, Md.; Alice A., the widow of Walter H. Thorne, and William H.

William H. Hogarth, son of William and Abrilla (Hanson) Hogarth, was brought to Frederick County after his father's death. He was reared on a farm in New Market district. While a boy he was engaged in farm work and received his education in the public schools. After reaching maturity, he was a superintendent on several railroads in Pennsylvania, including the Hempfield, Connellsville & Little Washington Railroad, and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He later became Superintendent of the Gettysburg Granite Company, which position he held for sixteen months. Mr. Hogarth was in 1894 foreman of the new improvement at Harper's Ferry for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company. He then came to Frederick County and rented the Lewis F. Detrich farm in New Market district. After following agricultural pursuits on this rented place for some years, he purchased the Daniel Swomley farm, which contains 161 acres and is situated near New Market. In 1908 Mr. Hogarth sold this tract. In 1907 he bought a farm of 84 acres, located near New Market, where he now resides. Mr. Hogarth has been very successful at agriculture and is one of Frederick County's well known and honorable citizens.

In politics, Mr. Hogarth is a stanch adherent and active supporter of the Republican party. He was nominated and elected in 1904 by his party to the office of Commissioner of Frederick County, and he discharged his duties with such a marked degree of ability and fidelity that he was re-elected in 1907 for a second term. For the past five years, he has acted as president of the board. Fraternally, Mr. Hogarth is a member of Fidelity Lodge, No. 54, I. O. O. F., of New Market, of Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Kemptown, Md., of Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, Palestine Encampment of I. O. O. F., of the Royal Arcanum, all of Frederick, and of the True Blues, of Philadelphia, Pa. In religion. Mr. Hogarth is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church of New Market, in which he takes an active part. He is treasurer of the board of trustees and is superintendent of the Sunday school.

Mr. Hogarth was married March 21, 1888, to Annie M. Shawbaker, of Frederick County. They are the parents of five children: William N., Percy S., Alice A., Annie B. and Donald Walter.

ABRAHAM HEMP, JR., a well-known citizen and an active business man of Frederick County, Md., son of Abraham and Hannah

W. H. Hogarth

(Slifer) Hemp, was born in Jefferson, Md., March 29, 1869.

Mr. Hemp's great-grandfather was a native of Amsterdam, Holland, who came to America and settled in Frederick County, near Lewistown, in the early days of Frederick County, Md. Frederick Hemp, a son to the first settler, grandfather of Abraham Hemp, Jr., was a miller and afterwards a farmer in Frederick County. All the early representatives of the family belonged to the Whig party and Reformed church. Frederick Hemp was married to Julia, daughter of John Keller, who was also one of the early settlers of Frederick County. Of their eight children seven reached maturity. 1, Rebecca (Mrs. Jacob Feaster); 2, John, a farmer; 3, David, a miller; 4, Abraham, Sr.; 5, Samuel, a farmer; 6, William A., a farmer; 7, Ellen (Mrs. William H. Lakin), of Jefferson. Frederick Hemp and his wife were members of the Reformed church.

Abraham Hemp, Sr., father of Abraham Hemp, Jr., was born at the old Lewis Mills in Jefferson District, Frederick County, Md., March 29, 1825, and died April 2, 1910. He grew up on his father's farm, and was educated in the schools of the county. In 1848 he went to Jefferson, where he opened a butcher shop, in which he did a thriving business for forty-three years. Mr. Hemp was a stanch Democrat, and was highly esteemed in the community. Abraham Hemp was married, May 21, 1850, to Hannah, daughter of Peter Slifer, of Burkittsville District, Frederick County, Md. She died February 2, 1910. They had eight children: 1, Laura G.; 2, Peter S., a farmer of Petersville District, Frederick County, Md.; 3, Julia C., died in childhood; 4, Bettie W., of Jefferson; 5, Robert D., a merchant of Brunswick, Md.; 6, Mollie V.; 7, Clara Lee, of Jefferson, and 8, Abraham, Jr. Abraham Hemp, Sr., and his wife, were members of the Reformed Church in Jefferson, Md., where he was a member for more than sixty years. He was a stanch Democrat all his life, and was active for his party.

Abraham Hemp, Jr., grew up in Jefferson and received his education in the schools of that village, and while still a boy, learned to be a good butcher in the shop with his father. When his father retired about twenty years ago, Mr. Hemp continued the business at the old stand that his father had started in 1848, over sixty years ago. Mr. Hemp is one of the leading Democrats in Frederick County. He has always taken an active interest in political affairs, and has represented his party in State and county conventions. Mr. Hemp was one of the directors of the Railroad company, and it was mainly through his personal efforts that the road was continued to Jefferson, January, 1910. This road was merged in the Frederick Railway Company and he was made one of its directors. He also belongs to the board of directors of the Peoples Fire Insurance Company of Frederick. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M., of Brunswick, Md., and of Frederick Lodge, No. 684, B. P. O. E. Mr. Hemp is an enterprising business man, and besides attending faithfully to his stand, deals largely in live stock. He is an upright, reliable citizen, esteemed and honored by his contemporaries.

Abraham Hemp, Jr., was married to Maud S., daughter of Abner Doty, of Jefferson. They have three children: Richard Lee; Robert Douglass, and Hilda Maud. Mr. Hemp is one of the active and influential members of the Reformed church in Jefferson, Md.

PHILIP M. HITESHEW, one of the successful and energetic farmers of Frederick district, Frederick County, was born on the old Hiteshew farm, one mile east of Frederick City on the Baltimore pike, July 7, 1860. He is a son of Philip and Matilda J. (Retgering) Hiteshew.

The Hiteshews were among the early settled families of Frederick County (see sketch of Philip Hiteshew in this volume).

Philip Hiteshew was born in 1800 and died in 1872. He was married to Matilda J. Retgering, who died at the age of sixty-two years. They were the parents of three children: Sophia E., married Charles Hobbs, both deceased; Julia A., married Thomas Dixon, both deceased; and Philip M.

Philip M. Hiteshew, son of Philip and Matilda J. (Retgering) Hiteshew, was reared on the old homestead. While a boy he attended the public schools and became acquainted with the various duties of a farmer's life. He also received part of his education at the Frederick City Academy. Mr. Hiteshew remained on the paternal home until he was twenty-three years old, when he began farming on his own account. He first cultivated the old Charles Keller place, where he remained for a period of ten years. He then relinquished farming for some time. Some years later, Mr. Hiteshew purchased the old Joseph Glaze farm, situated one mile west of Frederick City. This farm contains 184 acres of fine limestone agricultural land and is well improved with a large brick dwelling and a first class barn. It is one of the most beautiful estates of the county. In 1906, upon the death of his brother-in-law, Charles N. Hargett, Mr. Hiteshew removed to a farm of 211 acres, one mile east of Frederick. For the last thirty years, Mr. Hiteshew has been one of the prominent agriculturists of Frederick County. He has been very successful at farming, and is thoroughly versed in his vocation. He is progressive and up-to-date in his methods of agriculture and takes a pride in the care of his lands.

Politically, Mr. Hiteshew has always been active in Republican circles. He has never had any inclination to become an officeholder, although he has served as a member of the Board of Charities and Corrections for Montevue Hospital of Frederick County. Mr. Hiteshew has won his own way in the world. He is interested in the Colt Dixon Packing Company of Frederick City, and is a member of the board of managers of the Frederick County Agricultural Society.

Mr. Hiteshew was married in 1883 to Margaret Keller, daughter of Charles H. Keller, of Frederick County. They are the parents of two children: Charles P., a traveling salesman of Frederick City; and Floy May, resides with her parents.

COLONEL GEORGE R. DENNIS, deceased.—The Dennis family is of Irish and English extraction, and from the earliest settlement of the country has been prominent in public and political affairs. The first of the name in this country was Dannock Dennis, who settled in Somerset County, Md., 1665. He was a lawyer by profession and a man of influence in the early days of the colony. The name of his youngest son was John.

John Dennis, son of Dannock Dennis, the emigrant, was, like his father, a lawyer, and was for many years one of the judges of the Provincial Court, to which position he was appointed in 1710. Many of his descendants have been distinguished in public life, among whom may be mentioned Littleton Dennis and John Dennis, brothers. This John Dennis was elected a Representative in Congress in 1797, at the early age of twenty-six, and was the ancestor of the Hon. George Robertson Dennis, United States Senator from Maryland.

Littleton Dennis, the grandfather of George Robertson Dennis, late of Frederick County, was a lawyer by profession. His legal ability was unquestioned and he made his mark in the profession that he had chosen so aptly as his work in life. He was successfully identified with much litigation of an important character and in every instance was noted for the skillful manner in which he safeguarded the interests of his clients.

He won for himself the regard and admiration of all who knew him and no lawyer in that part of Maryland ranked higher as a leader in legal circles. For many years he was a judge of the Maryland Court of Appeals, in which position he discharged his duties with great ability.

Col. George R. Dennis, of Frederick County, was a son of Littleton U. Dennis and Sarah Robertson Dennis, both of whom died early in life. He was born March 15th, 1831, in Somerset County, Md., educated at the Garrettson school, Perth Amboy, New York, and at Dickinson College. In 1853 he located in Frederick County where he continued to reside until August 23rd, 1902, when he departed this life at his home, Hampton, near Urbana.

When the Civil War broke out he was commissioned a lieutenant-colonel of the First Regiment, Potomac Home Brigade. He was a stanch and loyal Union man and rendered valuable aid to the government during the war.

He was made a State director of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in 1863 from which time he was continuously a director of that railroad or some of its branches, at the time of his death being a member of the board of directors of the Baltimore and Ohio and Chicago Railroad.

For a number of years he was president of the Central National Bank of Frederick, a member of the board of visitors of the Maryland School for the Deaf and Dumb, a vestryman of All Saints' Episcopal Church, and a member of the board of managers of the Frederick County Agricultural Society. He was fond of agriculture and owned many farms and managed large landed estates.

He filled many positions of trust and honor, and was a representative citizen, who was at all times ready to unite in any movement that promised to promote the moral or material welfare of the community.

He was a man of high character, strict integrity and unsullied honor. His home life was ideal, and he numbered among his many friends some of the most notable men of the nation.

Generous to a high degree, he entertained with pleasing grace. Presidents, Generals, Judges and Statesmen partook of the cheer of his board and enjoyed a hospitality that was genuine.

Twenty-five years of his life were devoted to the active duties of a public and business career, after which he retired to his country home, Hampton, where he spent his remaining days.

His character is well portrayed by the following part of a letter from a Congressman to his family at the time of his death:

George R Dennis

"He was a gentleman of the old school and that type of man which has distinguished the State of Maryland in all the walks of life. We can poorly bear such losses. The gentleness and fine quality of his character was such as to endear him to all men, and to make him one of the pillars of society in the community in which he resided."

He was twice married, his first wife having been Alice, daughter of the late Colonel John McPherson, of this county, and his second her sister Fanny, who survived him. Colonel McPherson's father served as a colonel in the Continental Army during the Revolutionary War, and his grandfather was a general in the Pennsylvania Militia, during the French and Indian War. His wife was Fanny Johnson, a granddaughter of Thomas Johnson, first Governor of Maryland and a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. By his first marriage Colonel Dennis had four children and by his second, seven.

Of these children the following survive: Mrs. Henry W. Rogers, Baltimore; Mrs. J. Lynn Richardson, Charleston, W. Va.; Mrs. Franklin B. Smith, Frederick; Mrs. James Briscoe, Washington; John M. Dennis, Baltimore; George R. Dennis, Jr., Frederick; Archibald R. Dennis, Baltimore, and Sergeant Thomas J. Dennis, of Key West, Florida.

George Robertson Dennis, Jr., son of Col. George R. Dennis and Fanny McP. Dennis, was reared in Frederick County, Md., where he received his education in the public schools, subsequently attending the Baltimore City College. He entered business life as a clerk in the Auditor's office of the B. & O. S. W. Railroad Company, at Cincinnati, Ohio. Here he remained for some time, afterwards accepting the position of Claim Clerk in the General Manager's office of the Continental Fast Freight Line, in the same city. Being desirous of entering a professional career, he resigned this position and in 1894 returned to his native county. Here he began the study of law under the guidance of the late Charles W. Ross, Esq., and was admitted to the Frederick County Bar in 1896. As a lawyer Mr. Dennis is entitled to high regard and from the start has been successful in his chosen field. He enjoys a large and influential clientele, numbering among his clients some of the most important interests of Frederick County. Of the younger members of the Frederick Bar, he is one of the best known and most prominent, and is held in much esteem by all with whom he has come in contact.

Mr. Dennis is a stanch supporter and ardent adherent of the Republican party. He has been one of the party's most faithful and hardest workers, always striving for its success. He has served as county chairman of Frederick County since 1906, winning four decisive victories and discharging his duties with an ability that stamp him as a man of high executive capacity. Under his successful management Frederick County has become known as the Republican Gibraltar of Maryland.

In 1908 he married Miss Mary Worthington McGill, of Cumberland, Md., daughter of Dr. Wardlaw McGill and Georgia Pearre McGill and granddaughter of Judge George A. Pearre and Dr. Thomas McGill.

Mr. Dennis is a member of the executive committee of the board of visitors of the Maryland School for the Deaf and Dumb, a vestryman of Zion Protestant Episcopal Church, a Past Exalted Ruler of the Elks, a member of Lynch Lodge A. F. and A. M.; Enoch Chapter, Royal Arch Masons; Jacques de Molay Commandery, Knights Templar; Knights of Pythias, and the Red Men.

EPHRAIM D. HAUVER, a prominent farmer of Hauvers District, Frederick County, Md., son of Christian and Mary (Brown) Hauver, both deceased, was born on the old Hauver homestead, in Hauvers District, August 5, 1844.

Peter Hauver, grandfather of Ephraim D. Hauver, was born in Germany, March 1, 1754. In early manhood, he emigrated to America, and settled in what is now Hauvers District, Frederick County, where he took up a large tract of land. He was one of the early settlers in that part of Maryland and from him the district received its name. He cut the timber, cleared a part of the land on which he built a substantial dwelling, a barn, and all necessary outbuildings, and spent his life in the home which he had won from the forest. Peter Hauver was married to Hannah ————. Among their children was a son named Christian.

Christian Hauver, father of Ephraim D. Hauver, was born on the old Hauver homestead, November 12, 1801. He was educated in the public schools of his native district and remained on the home farm. After his father's death, Mr. Hauver purchased the homestead, and spent the rest of his life in cultivating and improving it. He cleared a large part of the original tract, built on it a two-story dwelling, all necessary buildings, and converted the wild land into a fertile farm. This land was situated one mile south of Foxville, on the road to the Catoctin Furnace. Christian Hauver was a Democrat, and was honored in the district as a successful farmer and as an honorable citizen. Christian Hauver was married to Mary, daughter of William Brown, who was well known among the older farmers of Hauvers District. Their children are: 1, Peter, deceased, a farmer of Hauvers District; 2, Elizabeth, deceased, married to the late George H. Fox, a farmer of Hauvers District; 3, Hannah, deceased, married to the late Joseph Stottlemyer, of Catoctin District, Frederick County; 4, William, deceased, a farmer of Catoctin District; 5, John C., a retired farmer of Shelby County, Ohio; 6, Melancthon, a farmer of Hauvers District; 7, Ephraim D. Mr. Hauver and his wife were members of Mount Moriah Lutheran Church at Foxville, Md. Mr. Hauver was a liberal contributor and was very active in the building of the church edifice in Foxville. He served the congregation as deacon, as elder, and as superintendent of the Sunday School for many years. He died June 17, 1869, and was buried in the cemetery of the Lutheran Church in Foxville, Md.

Ephraim D. Hauver was educated in the public schools of Hauvers District, and remained on the homestead assisting his father. After his father's death, Mr. Hauver took charge of the home farm for his mother, and remained with her until she died. After her death, he purchased 80 acres of the homestead, on which he now resides. He greatly improved the property, remodeling the house, and putting up a bank barn, and convenient outbuildings. His home is beautifully situated one mile south of Foxville, and his watchfulness and intelligent care have made it one of the desirable properties of the district. Mr. Hauver also owns 100 acres of valuable timber land on the Catoctin Mountain. His toil and attention to business have brought a rich reward. Mr. Hauver is a Democrat, interested in all that concerns the prosperity of the district. He has been a member of the board of trustees of the public schools of Foxville.

Ephraim D. Hauver was married to Martha Ellen, daughter of John and Margret Gordan, both deceased. They had six children, five of whom reached maturity. 1, Charles C., teaching in Mechanicstown District, Frederick County; 2, Jennie F., married to Daniel E. Bachtel, a farmer of Washington County, Md.; 3, Amy C., married to Walter Stottlemyer, a farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County; 4, Alvey W., at home; 1, May T. (Mrs. John W. Cline), of Hauvers District. The family belong to the Lutheran Church. Mrs. Hauver died January 4, 1903, and is buried in the cemetery of the Lutheran Church in Foxville, Md.

FREDERICK W. HANKEY, who spent his active years in agricultural occupations, is now living in retirement, enjoying the fruits of his labor, in Creagerstown District. He was born on the Hankey homestead, one mile south of Creagerstown, Frederick County, March 16, 1847. He is a son of Frederick and Mary A. (Gernand) Hankey both deceased.

John Hankey, the great-grandfather of our subject, was a native of Germany, where he was born May 23, 1736. While yet a young man, he came to the United States, accompanied by two brothers. He afterwards took up his residence in the northern part of Frederick County, Md. By trade he was a wheelwright, and followed that occupation all his life. His wife was Barbara Gall. She was born in Germany, in May, 1740, and came to this country early in life.

Isaac Hankey, son of John and Barbara (Gall) Hankey, was born April 15, 1769, and died July 19, 1840. He was a prominent farmer and large land owner of his time. He was the possesssor of two fine farms in the upper part of Frederick County and achieved much success at agriculture. Mr. Hankey was married to Susan M. Apple. She was born January 22, 1773, and died January 5, 1851. They are buried side by side in the graveyard at Apple's Church. By this marriage, there was issue as follows: Elizabeth, who was born April 15, 1793, was the wife of John Gesey; John, was born May 7, 1795; Jacob was born March 29, 1797; Isaac, was born April 15, 1799; Barbara, who was born June 27, 1801, married a Mr. Seiss; Susan, who died without marrying was born October 12, 1803; Peter, was born December 10, 1805; George, was born May 18, 1808; Frederick; and Mary A., was born January 21, 1814. Religiously, the family were Lutherans.

Frederick Hankey, son of Isaac and Susan M. (Apple) Hankey, was born February 3, 1811, and received such an education as the common schools of his day afforded. Early in life he followed the profession of a school teacher. He learned the trade of a saddler, which he followed for some time. He was then married and bought a fine farm of 175 acres, situated one mile south of Creagerstown, on the road from that place to Utica. Hither he removed, and turned his attention to farming, at which he met with success. He passed the rest of his life here, dying June 16, 1883, and is interred in the cemetery at Apple's Church. Mr.

Hankey voted the Republican ticket. He was a member of St. John's Lutheran Church of Creagerstown, in the affairs of which he took an active part. He served in the capacities of deacon and elder for a .number of years. Mr. Hankey was married to Mary A. Gernand, daughter of Jacob Gernand, a descendant of a well-known and highly respected family of Graceham, Frederick County. Mr. and Mrs. Hankey had issue: Mary A., died unmarried; Sarah E., married to C. W. Loy, a merchant of Loy's station; Jacob A., farmer, married Sarah E. Graham; Frederick W.; Amanda A., the wife of Edward E. Krise, a farmer of Creagerstown district; and Ida A., deceased, was the wife of Daniel L. Hull, a farmer of Creagerstown district. Mrs. Hankey is buried by the side of her husband and like him was connected with the Lutheran Church.

Frederick W. Hankey, son of Frederick and Mary A. (Gernand) Hankey, acquired his learning in the county schools. Until his father's death, he remained on the home place, where he early became acquainted with the various phases of farming. He then secured by purchase a small farm near Loy's Station, to which he removed with his mother. He remained there for two years and sold it. Mr. Hankey then purchased his present farm of 60 acres of fertile land. This tract is located one-half mile east of Creagerstown, on the road to Rocky Ridge, and was owned before Mr. Hankey bought it by Henry Favorite. This farm has a fine two-story stone house that was erected many years ago. Mr. Hankey made extensive improvements and brought this farm to a high state of cultivation. Here he farmed for a period of twenty years very successfully. Three years ago, he relinquished active work and has since that time been living retired. His farm he has rented. He is one of the substantial citizens of his district and is held in high esteem.

The influence and support of Mr. Hankey is given to the interests of the Republican party. He is affiliated with St. John's Lutheran Church of Creagerstown, in which he is active.

Mr. Hankey was married to Sarah E. Domer, but there is no issue. She is a daughter of George H. Domer, who was a prominent agriculturist of Creagerstown district. She, like her husband, holds membership in the Lutheran Church.

EDWIN S. HOUCK, the well-known proprietor of the Park Livery Stables, located on West Patrick Street, Frederick City, Md., was born in New Market District, Frederick County, Md., September 6, 1867. He is a son of Henry J. and Mary Eugenia (Stone) Houck.

Dr. Henry J. Houck, the father of Henry Stone Houck, was a son of Henry Houck, who followed agricultural pursuits in Frederick County, and was at one time High Sheriff of the county. He was a life-long Democrat. The Houck family settled in Maryland among the early comers. Dr. Henry J. Houck was for a number of years a practicing physician in Baltimore, Md. He had acquired a thorough knowledge of his chosen profession, a science for which he possessed rare natural aptitude. He attained distinction as one of the best known and most successful physicians of Baltimore. His exceptional skill attracted to his support an extended and important practice. His views on medical topics were those of one who had given his life to their study. He was admired and respected by all with whom he came in contact, and reflected honor upon the profession of which he was so useful a member. Politically, Dr. Houck was an ardent adherent of the Democratic party, and served as a member of the Baltimore City Council. In religion, he was a member of the Reformed Church. Dr. Houck was married to Mary Eugenia Stone, who died in October, 1867. They were the parents of twin children: Edwin Stone, and Mary Eugenia, deceased. Dr. Houck was married later to a Miss Burckhart, or Burkhead, who was the mother of Henry C., and another Mary Eugenia, also deceased.

Edwin Stone Houck, son of Dr. Henry J. and Mary Eugenia (Stone) Houck, resided in Frederick County, the place of his nativity, until he was eight years of age, when he went with his father to Baltimore. He received his education in the public schools of the latter place. At the age of eighteen, he returned to Frederick, where he engaged in the harness businesss. This he followed for one year, at the end of which time he embarked in the livery business at his present location on West Patrick Street. This enterprise he continued to conduct until the past year. He is now reconized as one of the leading wholesale dealers in cattle and horses. Mr. Houck conducts his present business at the same location. He has met with much success in his undertaking, and is known as one of Frederick's most active business men. Mr. Houck is strictly a self-made man, and has made his way through industry and perseverance, coupled with good business ability and executive capacity.

Politically, Mr. Houck is an adherent of the Democratic party, and is a member of the Board of Commissioners of Charities and Corrections for Frederick County. He is affiliated in a religious way with the Reformed Church. Mr. Houck was married in August, 1885, to Susan Brunner Hammitt, a daughter of Thomas P. and Matilda (Ogle) Hammitt. They are the parents of eight children: Mary Edna; Bertha Eugenia, the wife of Edward Huplett, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Matilda Ogle; Eva Hammitt; Margaret Earley; Elenor Hillman; Edwin Stone; and Henry.

JACOB M. HUFFER, a well-to-do retired agriculturist, who resides a mile and a-half north of Frederick City on the Hamburg pike, where he owns a fine well improved limestone farm of about 100 acres, was born near Boonsboro, Washington County, Md., October 27, 1846. He is a son of Jacob and Sarah (Beeler) Huffer.

Jacob Huffer was a descendant of one of the old families of Washinton County, Md. He lived to be seventy-two years old. He followed farming as a vocation. He voted the Republican ticket in politics, and in his religious beliefs was a member of the United Brethren Church. Mr. Huffer was married to Sarah Beeler. They were the parents of eight children, of whom seven grew to maturity: Elizabeth, deceased, married George Shifler, a farmer of Washington County, Md.; Silas M., deceased; Amanda S., deceased, the wife of Jacob Witter; Catharine, deceased the wife of John S. Miller; Josiah B., deceased; Jacob M.; and Mary Ellen, married Martin R. Nicodemus.

Jacob M. Huffer, son of Jacob and Sarah (Beeler) Huffer, grew up on his father's farm near Boonsboro, in Washinton County. He attended the public schools of the vicinity, and chose farming as a vocation. He has devoted all of his time and energy to agriculture, at which he has been very successsful. Mr. Huffer started life a poor boy, and has earned what he possesses by industry, honesty, and sober and temperate habits.

In politics, Mr. Huffer's sympathies are with the Republican party, and in religion, he is affiliated with the United Brethren Church.

Mr. Huffer was married in 1873 to Margaret Glaze, daughter of David Glaze, of Washington County, Md. There are two children by this marriage: Angie Venola, the wife of Edward Routzahn, died and left a son Roscoe, who is being reared by his grandparents. Mr. and Mrs. Huffer; and Harrie G., married Pearl Biser, now deceased, who left a daughter, Naomi Margaret, also with her grandparents.

The grandfather of Mrs. Huffer was Wendell Glaze. He was a native of England and while a young man was a soldier in the American army during the Revolutionary War, as were two of his brothers. He was the father of David Glaze. The latter married Elizabeth Furrey, who was like himself of Washington County, Md. They were the parents of twelve children: John H., deceased; Joseph (see sketch of Worthington O. Glaze, of Frederick City); Samuel, deceased; Catharine, married Daniel Snyder, both deceased; Mary, the wife of Alfred Flemming, deceased; Elizabeth, the widow of Henry Storr; Maria, deceased; Sarah, deceased, was unmarried; Margaret Ann, the wife of Mr. Huffer; and three others died in infancy.

WORTHINGTON O. GLAZE, one of the well-known and highly respected citizens of Frederick, is a retired farmer. He was born on the old Cramer homestead, four and a-half miles north of Frederick, February 13, 1859. His parents were Joseph and Margaret (Cramer) Glaze.

David Glaze, the grandfather of Worthington O. Glaze, was originally a resident of Washington County, Md., but located in Frederick County. He was the father of these children: Catharine, Elizabeth, Maggie, Sarah, Joseph, John and Samuel.

Joseph Glaze, son of David and Elizabeth Glaze was born in Washington County, Md., in 1823, and died May 10, 1906. While a young man he learned the trade of a millwright, under John Carr. He left his native county and came to Frederick in early life, where he was for several years engaged in the foundry business. In business he was very successful, and at his death left considerable property, both real and personal. He was one of the best known and highly esteemed men of the community in which he lived. Mr. Glaze was in early life a supporter of the Republican party but he afterwards became a Prohibitionist. Religiously, he was a member of Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick, until several years after the death of his wife, when he joined the St. John's Roman Catholic Church. He also held membership in the I. O. O. F. Mr. Glaze was married to Margaret A. Cramer, daughter of Amos and Barbara (Hill) Cramer. Her father—Hill—was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. Mr. and Mrs. Glaze had one child, Worthington O. Joseph Glaze, upon his marriage to Margaret A. Cramer, quit the foundry business and moved on the farm of his father-in-law, where he remained until after the death of both Amos and Anna Barbara Cramer, after which he purchased the old homestead.

Worthington O. Glaze, son of Joseph and Margaret (Cramer) Glaze, was reared on his grandfather's farm. He acquired his education in the public schools and at the Frederick City College. He followed the occupation of a farmer until 1891, when he retired from active labor. Mr. Glaze is the owner of the old homestead, which is known as Independence, and contains 225 acres of the finest limestone land in the county. Mr. Glaze resides at his beautiful home at No. 117 East Church street, Frederick City, which was originally built and owned by John McGill.

Mr. Glaze votes the Republican ticket. Religiously, he is a member of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick City.

Mr. Glaze was married in 1885 to Annie M. Myers, daughter of George W. Myers, a native of Frederick County. There was one child by this marriage, which died in childhood.

ROY I. HYNDMAN, a prominent young farmer and owner of Prospect Hill, situated one miles west of Frederick City on the Jefferson pike in Frederick district, was born in Connellsville, Pa., July 2, 1874. He is a son of Edward K. and Gulielma (Brown) Hyndman.

The grandfather of Roy I. Hyndman was Hugh Hyndman, a native of Ireland, where he was born in 1800. His death occurred in Pennsylvania in 1880. He came to this country and located in Carbon County, Pa. Mr. Hyndman was married to Catharine Huff, a native of Carbon County, Pa. She was born in 1806, and died in 1899. Her father was Capt. John Huff, who served under Washington at Valley Forge in 1777. They were the parents of Edward K. Hyndman.

Edward K. Hyndman, son of Hugh and Catharine (Huff) Hyndman, was born in Carbon County, Pa., July 25, 1844, and died June 27, 1884. He was raised in his native county and at the age of eighteen years became a civil engineer. When he was twenty-five years old, he became superintendent of the Lehigh & Susquehanna Railroad, a part of the Jersey Central Railroad System. This position he held until 1872, when he resigned that he might accept the post of superintendent of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad between Pittsburg, Pa., and Cumberland, Md. Mr. Hyndman filled this position until 1880, in which year he organized the Connellsville Coke and Iron Company, of Fayette County, Pa., with a capital of $12,500,000. Mr. Hyndman was chosen general superintendent of this enterprise and was engaged for some time in the duties of this position. He then became interested in railroading again, acting as general manager of the Pittsburg & Western Railroad and as president of the Pittsburg Junction Railroad Company. Mr. Hyndman was a thorough business man and was possessed of great executive ability, as was shown by the ability with which he discharged the duties of his various positions. He was the owner of valuable coal and iron lands in Virginia, and no doubt had he lived to develope them he would have made millions of dollars. In politics, he was a Republican. In religious belief, he was a Presbyterian, and played an active part in church work. Mr. Hyndman was married February 25, 1873, to Gulielma A. Brown, of Bethlehem, Northampton County, Pa. She is a daughter of William and Susan (Conard) Brown. There were two children by this marriage: Roy I., and Howard William, who died in childhood.

Roy I. Hyndman, son of Edward K. and Gulielma A. (Brown) Hyndman, was but ten years old when his father died, at which time he went with his mother to Philadelphia, Pa. In that city he grew to maturity. He received his education at the George T. Martin Academy of Philadelphia, and the Drexel Institute of the same city. At the age of nineteen years, Mr. Hyndman embarked in the hardware business in his adopted city, in which line he was occupied for three and a-half years. He then accepted a position in the freight department of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad at Philadelphia, being employed in the office. In 1900, Mr. Hyndman on account of ill health relinquished his position and removed to Frederick County, Md., where he purchased the Prospect Hill farm. This place contains 103 acres of fine limestone land and was owned by David T. Stouffer before Mr. Hyndman. In politics, Mr. Hyndman supports the Republican party, and in religion, he is a member of All Saints' Episcopal Church of Frederick. He is well known and highly respected by all who know him.

Mr. Hyndman was married April 20, 1904, to Laura J. Brown, of Frederick County. She is a daughter of Henry C. Brown, deceased, of this county.

BRADLEY H. HOKE, M. D., one of the leading practicing physicians of Middletown Valley, Frederick County, who resides at Myersville, was born at Ceresville, that county, December 8, 1871. He is a son of Samuel and Sarah E. (Hartman) Hoke.

The Hoke family is of German lineage and was among the early families of York County, Pa. Samuel Hoke, the grandfather of Dr. Bradley H. Hoke, was a native of Hanover, York County, Pa. About sixty years ago he located at Frederick County, where he introduced lime burning for agricultural purposes. He was a farmer by vocation, and was an industrious and persevering man. In politics, he was a Republican. Religiously, he was a member of the German Reformed Church. He was the father of the following children: John, lives in Ohio; Martin, a farmer of Mount Pleasant district, Frederick County; George, deceased; Samuel; David; Lena; Rebecca; Catharine and Nancy.

Samuel Hoke, son of Samuel Hoke, was born in York County, Pa., in 1849, and died in Frederick City, Md., in 1902. Like his father, he followed agricultural pursuits. He was independent in politics. Religiously he was affiliated with the United Brethren Church. Mr. Hoke was married to Sarah E. Hartman. They were the parents of five children: Martha Catharine, the wife of Dr. J. N. Dummick, of York County, Pa.; Bradley H.; Anna, the wife of Wilmer Plummer, of Relay, Md.; Ira L., deceased; Mary Estella, the wife of Dr. J. M. Goodman, of Frederick City (see his sketch). Mr. Hoke served in the U. S. army in the Civil War.

Bradley H. Hoke, son of Samuel and Sarah E. (Hartman) Hoke, was reared in Ceresville, Frederick County. While a boy he attended the public schools and worked on his father's farm. He later attended the Frederick City College and Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa. Having decided to study medicine, he entered the Hahnemann Medical College of Philadelphia, from which institution he was graduated in June, 1901. He immediately returned to Frederick County, and began the practice of his profession. In September, 1903, he located in Myersville, where he has since been actively engaged in practice. Dr. Hoke is one of the most prominent of the younger physicians of the county, and is the possessor of a large clientele. He has already won high rank in the exacting profession he has chosen. Dr. Hoke owes his present position entirely to his own efforts, as he started life a poor boy, and has by industry and temperate habits risen to the place he now holds.

In politics, Dr. Hoke is independent. In religion, he is a member of the United Brethren Church of Myersville. Dr. Hoke was married June 14, 1893, to Alice M. LaMar, daughter of Robert and Kate (Sinn) LaMar, of Frederick City. They are the parents of five children: Edward LaMar, Sarah Elizabeth, Bradley Hartman, Samuel Earl, and Robert LaMar.

Robert LaMar, Mrs. Hoke's father, now deceased, was a son of Richard and Caroline (Kemp) LaMar, and is descended from one of the county's old families, coming originally from France. Robert LaMar's wife, Kate Sinn, also deceased, was a daughter of Edward Sinn, who before the days of steam railroads, was a stage coach driver between Frederick and Hagerstown, and in later years was the proprietor of "Pioneer Livery Stables," located on Carroll Creek and Market street. Besides Mrs. Hoke, their other children are Mrs. M. E. Doll, Frederick; Rev. E. S. LaMar, Sharpsville, Pa.; Mrs. Clayton Cronise, Frederick; Robert G. LaMar, Baltimore, Md., and Mrs. Edmund Moberly, Johnsville, Pa.

Mrs. Hoke is a graduate of the Frederick Female Seminary, of Class of 1891, at time Dr. William H. Purnell was Principal.

JUDGE JOHN COLUMBUS MOTTER, Associate Justice of the Sixth Judicial Circuit of Maryland, is recognized as one of the leading and most prominent citizens of Frederick County, Md. He is a native of Emmitsburg, Frederick County, in which place he was born December 4, 1844. He is the second son of Jacob and Jemima (Troxell) Motter.

The Motter family were originally residents of Alsace, but during the religious persecutions in the reign of Louis XIV., of France, they crossed to the German side of the Rhine. The American ancestors of this old and respected family were George and Anna Maria Eber Motter, who emigrated in 1751 from the Palatinate to America, and settled in York County, Pa. George Motter was the father of six children, four sons and two daughters. The Motter family is one that was identified with the history of Pennsylvania during the early days of its settlement, later generations removing to Maryland.

Jacob Motter, a descendant of George and Anna Maria Eber Motter, was the great-grandfather of Justice John C. Motter, and he was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. Jacob Motter was married to Anna Marie Bene. They had a son, John Motter.

John Motter, son of Jacob and Anna Marie (Bene) Motter, and grandfather of Justice John C. Motter, served at the defense of the city of Baltimore in 1814, being a member of Captain Jacob Deitrich's company, 2nd Regiment, 1st Brigade, Pennsylvania State troops. He was the father of Jacob Motter.

Jacob Motter, son of John Motter, and father of Justice Motter, was born in 1812, and died in 1870. He passed the best part of his life in Emmitsburg, Frederick County, and was one of the leading and best known business men of that community. For many years he conducted a tannery in Emmitsburg and met with much success. In politics, he was an adherent of the Republican party, but never sought public office, preferring to devote all his energy and time to the management of his business. In a religious way, he was allied with the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he was a zealous member and an officer in the local church. In the days when churches were not as numerous as now, his home became the headquarters for ministers. He assisted in the erection of a number of edifices, and in other ways promoted the cause of Methodism in his community. He was an ideal type of the Christian gentleman, and was held in high esteem by all with whom he came in contact.

Mr. Motter was married to Jemima Troxell, daughter of George and Elizabeth (Crabbs) Troxell. Her grandfather was John Crabbs, who was a member of Captain Williams' Company from Emmitsburg in the Revolutionary War. They were the parents of four children: George T., deceased, served as an assistant surgeon in the Union Army during the Civil War, and afterwards practiced at Taneytown, Md., where he stood at the head of his profession; John Columbus, of whom presently; Anna, died a short time after her graduation from Dickinson Seminary, Williamsport, Pa.; and Emma, who became the wife of Ezra Zimmerman, a prominent citizen of Frederick County, still resides at Emmitsburg.

Peter Troxell, the great-grandfather of Mrs. Jacob Motter, was the American ancestor of the well-known Troxell family. Immediately upon his arrival in this country, he settled at the Huguenot colony in White Hall township, Lehigh County, Pa. It was in this locality that the old Egypta Church was built, of which Mr. Troxell was a prominent member. He was the father of a large family, of whom are known John, who served as a lieutenant during the Revolutionary War, and Peter. Peter Troxell, Jr., was married to Magdalena Schrieber, now spelled Shriver. About the beginning of the Revolution, he removed, with his wife, from Pennsylvania to Frederick County, Md., and settled in the Tom's Creek region, near Emmitsburg. He also was the father of a large family, among his sons being George. George Troxell, the father of Mrs. Jacob Motter, was a well-known farmer and large land owner of Frederick County, residing on Tom's Creek. He was a prominent and consistent member of the Reformed Church, and assisted in the erection of a house of worship for that denomination at Mechanicstown. He was married to Elizabeth Crabbs, a native of Pennsylvania. They became the parents of Jemima Troxell, who married Jacob Motter.

John Columbus Motter, son of Jacob and Jemima (Troxell) Motter, received his elementary education in the select schools of Emmitsburg, his native place. He afterwards attended Dickinson Seminary, Williamsport, Pa. On September 1, 1866, he commenced the study of the law in the office of Grayson Eichelberger, Esq., in Frederick City, Md., who at that time was one of the leading lawyers of Western Maryland. In the fall of 1868, he completed his legal studies, and on September 21 of that year, he was admitted to the Frederick County Bar. Mr. Motter immediately began the practice of his profession in Frederick, and within a short time built up a large and lucrative practice. From the very outset he met with success, and soon became recognized as one of the leading members of the bar. Possessing a mind admirably adapted to the law, he had not erred in the choice of a profession. Identified with much litigation of an important character, and in every instance noted for the skillful manner in which he safeguarded the interests of his clients, he won the regard and admiration of all, and established himself as one of the leading attorneys of Western Maryland.

In early manhood, Mr. Motter took an active part in politics, being a stanch adherent of the Republican party. Four years after his admittance to the Bar, he was appointed counsel to the Board of County Commissioners of Frederick County. In 1875, he was nominated by the Republican party for the office of State's Attorney of Frederick County, and was elected by a handsome majority. In this capacity, he discharged his duties with such ability and fidelity, that in 1879 he was renominated, and again elected by a greatly increased majority. In 1882, before the expiration of his term as State's Attorney, he was made the candidate of his party for Associate Judge of the Sixth Judicial Circuit. His opponent, however, was elected by a small margin, although Mr. Motter carried his own county by over six hundred majority. In the fall of 1897, he was a second time the choice of his party for the position of Associate Justice of the district. The contest was vigorously waged, and he had strong men to battle against, but he was elected by a large majority. Before his elevation to the bench, Judge Motter's advice was often sought in the local councils of his party—with which he has been active and identified for forty years—and he was also a prominent figure in County, State and National conventions.

As Associate Justice, Mr. Motter enjoys the confidence and esteem of the people of the Sixth Circuit. A man of strong and untiring energy and will power, he has worked his way to success by the force of a determined character and ambitious spirit. Since his election many important and intricate cases have come up, and in these he has rendered his decision to the satisfaction of the unprejudiced and impartial. Judicial honor could not have been conferred upon a more worthy or capable person. He is pre-eminently fitted to perform the duties of this high office. A man of undoubted integrity, independent in his beliefs and fearless in his opinions, his elevation to this position insured justice to all without fear or favoritism. His broad knowledge of the law and accurate judgment of human nature have enabled him to discharge the duties of this position creditably to himself and satisfactorily to others.

As a citizen of Frederick, Judge Motter has been prominently identified with its material interests. He is public spirited to a material degree, and every movement that tends to the advancement of the general interests and the development of the community has received his hearty and active co-operation. He is intimately identified with the business interests of his city and county, being president of the Emmitsburg Railroad Company, and a director of the Washington, Frederick and Gettysburg Railway Company, as well as a director of the Citizens' National Bank, and a trustee of the Masonic and Elks Building Associations. He is also interested in various other leading enterprises, both as stockholder and director.

It is noteworthy that some years ago, Judge Motter purchased a most attractive property on the outskirts of Frederick, along the Frederick and Opossumtown turnpike, where he has fitted up a charming home that is provided with every modern comfort, and which is typical of the fullest refinement.

In 1875, Judge Motter was married to Effie Buhrman Marken, daughter of Josiah and Ann Buhrman Marken, her father being a successful business man of Frederick. Judge and Mrs. Motter are the parents of nine children, of whom seven survive: Roger, Alan, Bessie, Lolo, Amie, Emily and Helen. A daughter, Jessie, died in her second year, and a son, George, shortly after attaining his majority.

Judge Motter is a member of Lynch Lodge, 163, A. F. and A. M.; Frederick City Lodge, No. 100, I. O. O. F.; Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, K. of P., and the Order of Elks No. 684, Frederick Lodge; Independent Order of Red Men. He is also president of the Junior Fire Company, which he has done much to promote.

WILLIAM H. HINKS, one of the prominent members of the Frederick County Bar, and former member of the Maryland House of Delegates, is a native of the city of Baltimore, Md., where he was born November 16, 1844. He is the eldest son of Samuel and Susan (Nixdorff) Hinks.

Samuel Hinks was a native of Frederick City, Frederick County, Md., where he was born May 1, 1815, and died in November, 1887. He was a son of William Hinks, a machinist, who at one time was superintendent of the Ellicott City (Md.) Mills. Early in life he removed to Baltimore, where he became one of the city's best known and most prominent citizens. He entered into a partnership with his brother, Charles Dent Hinks, under the firm name of C. D. Hinks & Company, dealers in flour and grain. The venture met with success and won a foremost place in its own special branch of trade, ranking for many years as one of the leading grain and flour houses of the State. To the forceful personality of Mr. Samuel Hinks was due much of the prosperity and prestige attained by his firm, and he became widely prominent in grain circles as one of the ablest and most representative men identified with that branch of industry. He directed the affairs of the establishment with an ability, foresight and sagacity that stamped him as a man of high executive and business capacity. Honorable in all his dealings, and a merchant of the old school whose business methods were characterized by the highest principles, he commanded the respect and confidence of business and financial circles generally. He was active in politics, and was mayor of Baltimore from 1852 to 1854, discharging the duties of that position with great ability and fidelity. He was also water registrar of the city, and was a director in the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. In 1863, his health having become impaired, Mr. Hinks removed to his farm in Frederick County, Md., where he regained his health and in which county he spent the rest of his days. For many years, he was a member of the Masonic Order, and was interested in the work of the Maryland Historical Society. He was affiliated in a religious way with the Lutheran Church, of which he was an active and consistent member. Mr. Hinks was married to Susan Nixdorff. She survived her husband, and after his death removed to Baltimore, where she died May 5, 1909, in the 93rd year of her age. The Nixdorffs were old residents of Frederick County, whither they had come from the Moravian settlement at Bethlehem, Pa. Samuel and Susan Hinks were the parents of the following children: William H., of whom presently; Samuel M. and George M., engaged in business in Baltimore; Louis Edgar, who died in 1904; Josephine, who married George A. T. Snouffer, of Carrollton, Frederick County, Md.; Marian, the widow of Charles C. Smith, of Frederick City; and Caroline, who resides with her sister, Josephine.

William H. Hinks, son of Samuel and Susan (Nixdorff) Hinks, was reared in Baltimore, and received his education in the public schools of the city and at the Baltimore City College, from which he was graduated in 1862. After leaving school he entered the employ of the firm of C. D. Hinks & Company, and kept the books of this large concern for a year, and then yielding to the wishes of his father, moved upon his farm in Frederick County, as he wished to have his son become familiar with the management of this property, to which the family later removed and William H. Hinks continued to live upon the old homestead until 1870. In that year he commenced the study of the law, for which he had been preparing under the guidance of Judge Neilson Poe, J. P. Poe and Milton G. Urner. He was graduated from the Law Department of the University of Maryland in 1872, and was soon afterward admitted to the Frederick County Bar. Since his admittance, he has continued in the active practice of his profession in Frederick City. He met with success from the start, and soon acquired a large and lucrative practice. He is recognized as one of the ablest and most prominent members of the Frederick Bar, and is one of the best known and most public spirited citizens of the county.

Politically, Mr. Hinks has always been a stanch adherent and active supporter of the Republican party. In 1875, he was a candidate of his party for the Maryland House of Delegates, and was elected, and was re-elected in 1877. While serving in the legislature, he made a brilliant record, not only for himself but for his party as well. He made a striking impression by his forcible and logical speeches on many of the important questions that came up for discussion, and he was honored by being the minority candidate for the Speakership of the House. Subsequently, he was urged to become a candidate for State Senator and other important positions, but always firmly declined. While Frederick County was under the control of the Republican party, he was counsel to the board of County Commissioners for several years. In the spring of 1895, against his earnest remonstrance he was nominated for mayor of Frederick, and although the Democrats had usually a majority of about three hundred votes, his opponent was elected by a majority of only eleven votes, the result of the election being but another illustration of his popularity. In the fall of 1895, he was nominated as State's Attorney for Frederick County, and was elected by a majority of nearly five hundred.

Mr. Hinks is also prominent in fraternal circles. He is an active member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., Enoch Chapter No. 23, Royal Arch Masons, Jacques de Molay Commandery, Knights Templar, the Royal Arcanum and other fraternal societies.

Mr. Hinks has been twice married. He was married first in 1882, to Ruth Griffith Welsh, daughter of Luther Welsh. She was born in Frederick county, and died in 1889. Mr. Hinks was married secondly, in 1892, to Alice Chase Auld, daughter of Robert E. and Janet (Chase) Auld, and a grand-niece of Salmon P. Chase, who was Governor of Ohio, member of Congress, United States Senator, secretary of the United States Treasury, and Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. William H. and Alice C. Hinks are the parents of one daughter, Janet Chase Dent Hinks.

HENRY A. HAHN, a dealer in leather and hides, and one of Frederick City's leading business men, was born in Hanover, Germany, October 26, 1852. He is a son of Adolph and Caroline Hahn.

Adolph Hahn is a native of Germany, where he was born about eighty years ago. He emigrated to the United States, landing at Baltimore, Md., in July 1855. He immediately located in Frederick City, where he followed the occupation of a tanner. He died March 20, 1910. He met with much success in his chosen field, and was a man highly respected in the community in which he resided. Soon after arriving in this country, Mr. Hahn affiliated himself politically with the Democratic party. In religion he was a member of the Lutheran Church. The name of his wife was Caroline, who is deceased. They were the parents of seven children, five of whom attained maturity: Henry A., of whom presently; Charles N., died aged 48 years, was a well known tinner of Frederick City; Annie C.; William A., who succeeded his brother, Charles N., in the tinning business; and Clara C., the widow of Harry Blackstone.

Henry A. Hahn was only three years of age when his parents located in Frederick City. Here he was reared, receiving his education in the public schools of the city. At the age of sixteen, in 1868, he began to learn the currier's trade or leather finisher in the tan yards of George K. Byerly. He remained employed in this tannery for a period of thirty-six years, remaining during several changes of management. In 1904, Mr. Hahn embarked in the leather and hide business on his own account, and during the four years that he has conducted his own establishment, he has met with substantial success. Mr. Hahn directs the affairs of his establishment with executive ability and rare business attainments. To his forceful personality is due much of the prosperity and prestige attained by his house, and he is widely known in leather circles as one of the most able and representative men identified with that branch of industry. His business methods are characterized by the highest principles, and he commands the respect and confidence of all who have dealings with him. He is thoroughly familiar with all the details connected with the management of a tannery, and has built up a large trade. Mr. Hahn is one of Frederick's best known and prominent business men.

Politically, Mr. Hahn is identified with the Democratic party, but he is a stanch supporter of the Anti-Saloon League, and is one of its most active adherents and workers. He is at present treasurer of the League in Frederick County. In 1907, he was chosen a member of the Board of Aldermen of Frederick City. In religion, Mr. Hahn is an active and consistent member of the Lutheran Church, in which he has served as a deacon and elder, and to which he is a liberal contributor.

Mr. Hahn was married January 13, 1875, to Anna Mary Zimmerman, a daughter of William H. Zimmerman, of Frederick City. She is a member of an old Frederick County family. Mr. and Mrs. Hahn are the parents of three children, two of which are living, Sadie C. and Bessie V.

JOHN E. HARSHMAN, a well-known young farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., son of Elias and Susan (Warner) Harshman, was born on the farm on which he now resides, in Catoctin District, near Ellerton, November 24, 1871.

Mr. Harshman's great-grandfather (Harshman), was one of the early settlers of the Middletown Valley. He was a minister of the German Baptist Church, a native of Germany who came to America in early manhood. He married and had four children, the eldest of whom was a son, John. John Harshman, grandfather of John E. Harshman, was born on the Harshman homestead, where his childhood and youth were spent. He was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained with his father until he began farming for himself in Catoctin District. He was an intelligent farmer and a successful business man, and became one of the largest land owners in that section of Maryland. He owned several valuable properties near Wolfsville, Md., and his farms were always well-improved and in excellent condition. Mr. Harshman was highly respected as a citizen, and his success was due to close attention to business. He was a Republican, interested in the improvement of the district. John Harshman was married to Elizabeth Grossnickle. Of their nine children, eight reached adult age: 1, Jonathan, a farmer of Delaware County, Ind.; 2, Elias; 3, Catherine deceased, married to the late Jacob Moser, a retired farmer; 4; Lauson P., deceased, of Catoctin District; 5, Daniel, deceased, a farmer of Washington County, Md.; 6, John T., deceased a retired farmer and merchant of Wolfsville Md.; 7, Cornelius, deceased, a farmer of Lewistown District, Frederick County; 8, Ezra, deceased, a farmer of Catoctin District. Mr. Harshman and his wife were members of the German Baptist Church, to which he contributed liberally.

The late Elias Harshman, father of John E. Harshman, was born on the old homestead, near Wolfsville, Md., April 11, 1831. He was educated in the public schools of Catoctin District, and remained at home, assisting his father until he married, when he began farming for himself on land belonging to his father, now owned by his son. After his father's death, Mr. Harshman purchased the farm of 104 acres, lying on the Harp Hill road from Ellerton to Wolfsville. He was a skilful farmer, and his hard work and intelligent supervision were richly rewarded by abundant harvests. He also remodeled the dwelling, repaired the outbuildings, and built a large bank barn. He was a successful business man and a reliable citizen. He was a Republican, interested in all that affected the well-being of the district. Elias Harshman was married to Susan, daughter of Joseph Warner, of Hauvers District, Frederick County. Their children are: 1, Missouri A., married to David H. Mail, a farmer of Middletown District; 2, Louisa C., of Catoctin District; 3, Amy A., at home; 4, Susan E., at home; 5, Mary E., at home; 6, Ida S. married to Elmer Poffenberger, a farmer of Jackson District; 7, Cordelia M., married to Jerome Gaver, a farmer of Jackson District; 8, John E. Mr. Harshman and his wife were members of the German Baptist Church. He was a liberal contributor, and was one of the trustees of the church. He died March 8, 1902; his wife died in 1887. Both are buried in the cemetery of the German Baptist Church at Grossnickle Meetinghouse.

John E. Harshman grew up on the homestead and attended the public schools of the district. He remained on the farm, assisting his father, and when his father retired from farming, took charge of the place. A short time before his father's death, Mr. Harshman purchased from his father, this farm of 104 acres, to which he added 16 acres, making 120 acres of excellent farming land, well improved. His intelligent care has made the farm one of the best in the district. It is situated a mile and a-half north of Ellerton, and is furnished with two complete sets of buildings. Everything about the place is in good repair, and shows good management. Mr. Harshman is a Republican, and is well-known in the district as a successful farmer, and an excellent citizen.

John E. Harshman was married to Vallie A., daughter of Levi and Sarah R. (Easterday) Hoover, of Chewsville, Washington County, Md. They have four children: 1, Emmerson E.; 2, Waldo L.; 3, Sarah O.; 4, Nina E.; all at home. Mr. Harshman and his wife are members of the German Baptist Church at Grossnickle Meetinghouse. He is a liberal contributor to all benevolent enterprises.

JOHN W. HUMM, a prominent farmer and active citizen of Frederick District, was born in Lewistown District, January 20, 1858, and is a son of Edward and Jane R. (Renner) Humm. He resides on the old Grabenhorst farm, located one mile and a-half north of Frederick City on the Emmitsburg turnpike.

Edward Humm was born in 1832 and died in 1879. He was a farmer by vocation. He was married to Jane R. Renner. She died in 1883, at the age of forty-six years. They were the parents of nine children, of whom eight grew to maturity; John W.; Samuel M., removed to Ohio; Benjamin F., also of Ohio; Susan A., has never married; Annie C., the wife of Benton Knodle, of Frederick City; Emma J., the wife of Herman Limbert, of Red Wing, Minn.; Mamie E., married to Zodoc Dove, of Baltimore, Md.; and Harry E., of Mount Airy, Md.

John W. Humm, son of Edward and Jane R. (Renner) Humm, was born and reared on a farm. He was a pupil in the public schools of his native county. He is engaged in cultivating a farm in Frederick District, north of Frederick City. He is a well-known citizen and is an authority on matters relating to agriculture. He has been a member of the board of managers of the Frederick County Agricultural Society for the past eight years, and during the latter four years has served as vice-president of the board; the past two years as President.

Politically, Mr. Humm is a stanch Democrat. Since 1901, he has been a member of the board of election supervisors of Frederick, and has been president of the board since 1904. Fraternally, he is identified with the Modern Woodmen of America, and Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, of Frederick City. Mr. Humm is one of those men who have made a success of life through their own efforts entirely.

On March 29, 1882, Mr. Humm was married to Clara V. Mainhart, daughter of Daniel and Catharine (Snook) Mainhart, natives of Frederick County. Mr. and Mrs. Humm are the parents of six children: William C., of Frederick City, is a civil engineer; Nannie, the wife of Russell Thomas, of Buckeystown district; Robert D., a farmer, lives at home; Claude F., also engaged in farming with his father; Grace M.; and Helen.

Mrs. Humm had the following brothers and sisters: C. C., a farmer of Montgomery County, Md.; Mary, the wife of John A. GEORGE M. HETT, a prominent young surveyor of Braddock district, was born July 2, 1877 in that district. He is a son of Henry and Mary E. (Fout) Hett, both of whom are living.

John Hett, the grandfather of George M. Hett, was a native of Hesse Cassel, state of Darmstadt, Germany, where he was born February 12, 1804. His death occurred in Frederick County, Md., in March, 1886. In his native country he learned the trade of a weaver, and followed that occupation there until he came to this country. In August, 1841, Mr. Hett emigrated to America, being accompanied by his wife, and landed at Baltimore City. He immediately removed to Harper's Ferry, and worked on the canal for some time. He then bought a small tract of land, containing ten acres, from Daniel Getzendanner, situated about one mile northwest of the Mount Zion Church in Frederick district. On this piece of land he built a two-story stone house and other outbuildings. He afterwards purchased 30 acres from Joseph Routzahn, thus having 45 acres of excellent trucking land. He kept this farm under extensive cultivation and was very successful. He remained at this location until his death. He is buried in Mount Zion Reformed Cemetery. He was a member of the German Reformed Church of Frederick, in which he was one of the pillars and very active. He filled the office of elder for a number of years. Mr. Hett was married before leaving his native land to Mary C. Schultz. They were the parents of five children, all of whom were born in this country, but only two reached maturity: Henry; and Margaret J., the wife of William H. Brengle, of Frederick City.

Henry Hett, son of John and Mary C. (Schultz) Hett, was born on the old Hett farm near Braddock Heights, Frederick County, September 30, 1846. He was educated in the public schools and was with his father until the latter's death. He then inherited the home place. Here he was engaged in farming and trucking until 1892, in which year he bought a farm of 61 acres, known as the old Stupp farm. This was well improved land, and was distant two miles west of Frederick. He lived here four years and then retired from the arduous duties of active agriculture.

Mr. Hett removed to Frederick City, and embarked in the grocery business with his son, under the firm name of H. Hett & Son, George M. Hett being the junior member of the concern. They conducted this business for about three years. In 1900, they bought the Ballinger Creek Mill property, known as the old Phleeger mill. This mill was erected about 1785 by two brothers and lies about three miles south of Frederick on the Ballinger Creek road. For two years they successfully engaged in the milling business, when they disposed of the place with great advantage to C. F. Zimmerman. They returned to Frederick City and then turned their attention to dealing in agricultural implements. One year later they sold this business to J. E. Phleeger, of Frederick City, and the firm of H. Hett & Son was dissolved. Henry Hett bought 22 acres of land, on the line of the Frederick & Middletown Railroad, and improved it with a fine two-story frame house and all necessary out buildings. He re-engaged in trucking for a space of four years. He sold this place to Jesse L. Hains. In 1901, Mr. Hett also disposed of the old home place, the purchaser being a Mr. Cramer. Mr. Hett owes his success in life to his ability in business affairs. He is a prominent citizen. In politics, he is a Democrat. He has served as trustee of the Mount Philip and of the Braddock public schools. In religion, he is a member of the Reformed Church. He was first affiliated with Mount Zion Church at Feagaville, where he filled the offices of deacon and elder and was superintendent of the Sunday school for a number of years. He is now connected with St. Matthew's Church of Corroll's Manor. Mr. Hett was married to Mary E. Fout, daughter of Charles and Mary (Beck) Fout. She is also connected with the Reformed Church. There are four children by this union: Charles E., who is deceased; John D., lives in Montgomery County, Md.; George M.; and Clarence H., a resident of Johnson City, Tenn.

George M. Hett, son of Henry and Mary E. (Fout) Hett, received a public school education. He was raised on the various farms of his father. He was in partnership with his father for a number of years, during which they engaged in various lines, the firm trading as H. Hett & Son. After the dissolution of the firm, Mr. Hett took a course in mapping and surveying. After completing his studies, he began to follow his profession and has since been engaged in that work. He has been very successful and his services are in demand. He has surveyed many large farms and has laid out plats of land for the erection of buildings and is a highly respected citizen of the community. In 1907, Mr. Hett secured eight acres of fine land from Samuel Summers, on the Interurban Electric Railroad, on which he erected an elegant two-story frame house, containing eight rooms. This is one of the finest residences of the district.

Politically, Mr. Hett supports the candidates of the Democratic party. Fraternally, he is a member of Lynch Lodge, No. 163, A. F. and A. M., of Frederick City. In religious affairs, he holds membership, as does his wife, in St.

Matthew's Reformed Church of Carroll's Manor.

Mr. Hett was married to Amy E. Gonso, daughter of Henry and Charlotte A. (Kolb) Gonso, of Shookstown, Frederick County. They are the parents of three children: Charlotte E., deceased; Melvin C.; and Ethel M.

HARVEY F. GETZENDANNER, M. D., one of the leading and most prominent physicians of Frederick City, Md., with offices at No. 303 South Market street, was born near the beautiful Braddock Heights, in Braddock district, Frederick County, Md., October 17, 1867. He is a son of Dr. J. W. and Isadora V. (Fout) Getzendanner.

The American ancestor of the well known and prominent Getzendanner family of Maryland was Christian Getzendanner, a native of Switzerland, who emigrated to this country and settled in what is now Frederick County, Md. That part of the State was at that time a wilderness and filled with hostile Indians. He was the father of John Getzandanner.

John Getzendanner, son of Christian Getzendanner, the emigrant, was a native of Frederick County, Md., and was the father of Jonathan Getzendanner, who followed the occupation of a farmer on the Jefferson turnpike, in Frederick County. Jonathan Getzendanner was the father of John D. Getzendanner, the grandfather of Dr. Harvey F. Getzendanner.

John D. Getzendanner, son of Jonathan Getzendanner, was also a native of Frederick County. He was engaged in the mercantile business in Frederick City nearly a century ago, and in his day was one of the leading and most prominent merchants of the city.

J. W. Getzendanner, son of John D. Getzendanner, is, like his ancestors, a native of Frederick County. He chose the science of medicine as his work in life, and has been in the active practice of his profession in Middletown Valley, Frederick County, since 1868. He resides in the village of Myersville. He has met with success, and is held in high esteem by all with whom he has come in contact. Dr. Getzendanner was married to Isadora V. Fout, daughter of Grafton and Lucretia C. Fout, of Frederick City. She is deceased.

Harvey F. Getzendanner, son of Dr. J. W. and Isadora V. (Fout) Getzendanner, was raised by his grandmother, Lucretia C. Fout, of Frederick, and while a lad he attended the public schools of that place and the old Frederick City College. He later attended the Baltimore City College, from which institution he was graduated with the degree of A. M. in 1891. Upon his return to Frederick, he took up the study of dentistry in the office of Dr. T. S. Eader, with whom he remained for about nine months. He then entered the Dental Department of the University of Maryland, from which he was graduated in 1893. In October of the same year, Dr. Getzendanner entered the Medical Department of the Baltimore University, from which he was graduated as valedictorian of his class in 1894.

After the completion of his medical studies, Dr. Getzendanner returned to Frederick City, and entered into a partnership with Dr. W. T. Wootton, with whom he remained until the latter's death. Since that time Dr. Getzendanner has practiced his profession alone. In 1898, he received a call and accepted a position as resident physician of the Baltimore University Hospital, where he remained for one year. He then returned to Frederick, where he has since been engaged in the active practice of his profession. He was the first physician of Frederick to introduce the use of the X-ray. Dr. Getzendanner has attained distinction as one of the best known and most successful physicians and surgeons of the city. His exceptional skill soon attracted to his support an extended and important practice and few men of his years have won higher or more enviable repute in the exacting field to which he has devoted himself. He is a man of vigorous mentality and marked intellectual attainments, and has remained an untiring student throughout his whole career. His views on medical topics are those of one who has given his life to their study, and he is an active member and leading spirit of the Frederick County Medical Society. Dr. Getzendanner was appointed jail physician for Frederick County, December 2, 1909, by the Board of County Commissioners for a term of two years.

In politics, Dr. Getzendanner is an adherent of the Republican party. Fraternally, he is a member of the Modern Woodmen of America. He is affiliated in a religious way with the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Dr. Getzendanner was married October 25, 1899, to Almetta E. Stein, daughter of John F. and Nannie M. (Brown) Stein. They are the parents of two children: Alice May, deceased, and John Harvey.

Mrs. Getzendanner's great-grandfather was John Stein, a native of Middletown Valley, Frederick County. Her grandfather, Elias Stein, was also a native of Frederick County, and spent his life following the occupation of a farmer near Braddock Heights. Her father, John F. Stein, was married to Nannie M. Brown, daughter of George Brown, an officer in the War of 1812, whose ancestors were among the early settlers of Maryland. John F.

and Nannie M. Stein were the parents of four children: Almetta E. (Mrs. Getzendanner), Alice C., Florence M., and Franklin.

CHARLES ALBERT GILSON, the efficient cashier of the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank, of Frederick, Md., was born in Greencastle, Franklin County, Pa., August 29, 1875. He is a son of Charles A. and Harriet E. (Morrison) Gilson.

Charles A. Gilson the father of Charles Albert Gilson, was a native of near Emmitsburg, Frederick County, Md., where he was born in 1840, and died in Frederick City in 1892. He was a son of Richard Gilson, also a native of Frederick County, who was of Scotch-Irish extraction. Charles A. Gilson spent the early years of his life in the occupation of a farmer, but afterwards devoted himself to mercantile interests. He was a member of the Union Army for four years during the civil war, serving with much credit, and participating in many of the hard fought battles of that struggle. He was married February 27, 1866, to Harriet E. Morrison, of Emmitsburg District, Frederick County. In 1877, he located in Frederick, and at the time of his death was engaged in the implement business. In politics he was an active and earnest supporter of Republican principles. In religion he was affiliated with the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he was a consistent member. He was a man who was highly respected in the community in which he lived. Charles A. and Harriet E. Gilson were the parents of seven children: John Emory; Carrie M., the wife of M. C. Haller, of Frederick City; Ella B., married to J. H. Bladen, of Washington, D. C.; Myrtle E., the wife of Harry E. Clutz, of Arlington, Md.; Elizabeth M., unmarried; Charles Albert, of whom presently; and Thomas J., of Quincy, Ill.

Charles Albert Gilson was two years of age when his parents removed to Frederick. As a youth he attended the public schools of Frederick, and spent two years in the High School of Washington, D. C. At the age of fifteen he entered the Frederick post-office, where he remained one year. He then accepted the position of discount clerk with the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank of Frederick, with which institution he has ever since remained identified. He later served as bookkeeper and teller, and in December, 1906, he was elected cashier, which position he has filled with much ability and success, the deposits having greatly increased under his management. Politically Mr. Gilson is a Republican, and in a religious way he is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he is very active, at present filling the position of steward. Fraternally Mr. Gilson is a member of Lynch Lodge, No. 163, A. F. and A. M., Enoch Royal Arch Chapter, No. 23, Enoch Council, No. 10, Royal and Select Masters, Jacques de Molay Commandery No. 4, and of the Order of Heptasophs. He is also excedingly active in the Young Men's Christian Association of Frederick, of which he is an officer, and he has taken a large part in the erection of the Association's new $60.000 building. Mr. Gilson is unmarried.

CHARLES M. GILPIN, one of the ablest and most prominent members of the Frederick County Bar, is a native of Parkersburg, West Va., where he was born January 17, 1854. He is a son of George F. and Maria L. (McCulloh) Gilpin.

The Gilpin family is of English antecedents. The first appearance of the name in England was during the reign of King John in 1206, when we find the name of Richard de Gylpyn, who was of French Norman origin. The progenitor of the family in this country was Joseph Gilpin, who was a native of Dorchester, Oxfordshire, England. He emigrated to America and settled in Chester County, Pa., in 1696. He was a Quaker, as were most of his descendants for many years. He had a son Joseph, who was the father of Gideon, who was the father of Bernard Gilpin, the grandfather of Charles M. Gilpin.

Bernard Gilpin, son of Gideon Gilpin, was a native of Montgomery County, Md. He was twice married, and the father of sixteen children. His son, George F. Gilpin, was by his second wife.

George F. Gilpin, the father of Charles M. Gilpin, was a native of Montgomery County, Md., where he was born April 4, 1817, and died in Frederick City, February 20, 1891. In early life he engaged in the mercantile business but later followed the occupation of a farmer. He was highly esteemed by those who knew him, and he was honorable in all his dealings. In politics he was a supporter of the Republican party. In religion, he was in early life a Quaker, but in later years became a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Mr. Gilpin was married in 1853, to Maria L. McCulloh, daughter of George and Mary (Clark) McCulloh, of Frostburg, Allegany County, Md. Of this marriage, there was but one child, Charles M., of whom presently.

The American ancestor of the McCulloh family to which Mrs. Gilpin belonged was George McCulloh, a native of Killebegs, County Donegal, Ireland, where he was born about 1710. He emigrated to Pennsylvania in 1728, and settled in Lancaster County, Pa., dying in Little Britton township in 1806-'07. He was the father of Robert McCulloh, a native of Pennsylvania, who was the father of George McCulloh. George McCulloh was engaged in the real estate business in Frostburg, Md., for a number of years. He was married to Mary Clark, and was the father of Maria L. McCulloh, who became the wife of George F. Gilpin.

Charles M. Gilpin, son of George F. and Maria L. (McCulloh) Gilpin, was reared in Frederick County, and received his education in the Frederick College. He then began the study of the law under Hon. Milton G. Urner, and was admitted to the Frederick County Bar in December, 1877. He has since continued in active practice in Frederick City, where he is recognized as an able attorney. In addition to the practice of his profession, he attends to the management of his well improved farm of 138 1-2 acres, situated two miles west of Frederick. Politically Mr. Gilpin is an adherent of the Republican party, although he has never aspired to office. In religion he is an active and consistent member of the Protestant Episcopal Church, in which he serves as register and a vestryman. He is one of the best known members of the Frederick Bar, and is held in high esteem by all who know him.

COLONEL LUKE TIERNAN BRIEN, of "Tyrone," (Urbana), Frederick County, Md., son of Robert Coleman and Ann (Tiernan) Brien, was born in Frederick County, Md., December 22, 1827.

Through his maternal ancestors, Col. Brien is a descendant of an illustrious family of County Meath, Ireland. The name, signifying chief, occurs frequently in Irish history, and many legends are connected with the family. The Princess of Brefni Mara, who belonged to this race, is mentioned in Moore's Irish Melodies, in the poem beginning with the line "The valley lay smiling before me." Some representatives of the family who are prominent in the affairs of church and state, still reside in Drogheda, Ireland. In 1729, the Dublin Penny Journal published a picture of the new church of Kil Tiernan, just finished, in the County of Dublin. The original edifice of this very ancient parish, a small but picturesque reminder of the earliest days of Christianity on the island, still exists, a cherished ruin. The parish, now a vicarage in the diocese of Dublin, is joined with the old parish of Kilgobbin.

Members of the Tiernan family emigrated to American at a very early date. Patrick Tiernan, a cousin of Luke Tiernan of Baltimore, shared in the hardships and dangers of the Revolution. Paul Tiernan, who was born in County Meath in 1728, and died near Dublin, Ireland, aged ninety-one, had a son Luke, who was born on the River Boyne, in 1757, and came to America about 1783, settling in Hagerstown, Md. Luke Tiernan was married, January 6, 1793, to Nancy, daughter of Robert and Rebecca (Swearingen) Owen, of Hagerstown. She was a lady of a benevolent disposition and possessed of considerable executive ability, and was connected with many of the public charities of Maryland, among them the Baltimore Orphan Asylum, of whose board of trustees she was president. In 1795, Mr. Tiernan removed to Baltimore, Md., where he was engaged in business as a commission merchant, and was the first person engaged in the shipping trade between Baltimore and Liverpool. He was active in the organization of the Hibernian Society and succeeded John Oliver as its first president, holding that office for ten years. He was the first treasurer of the Maryland branch of the African Colonization Society. In 1797 the Legislature of Maryland appointed him one of the managers of the turnpike road from Baltimore to Frederick and Williamsport. On May 21, 1812, Luke Tiernan, and other members of the committee signed the resolutions to be presented to the President of the United States, pledging their support, at every hazard, to the government in the war with Great Britain which was then pending, and, in 1813, he was a member of the committee for the defense of the city of Baltimore. He was one of the original board of trustees of the Cathedral of Baltimore, and his grandson, Charles B. Tiernan, of Baltimore, Md., holds the following receipt: "Baltimore, July 6, 1816, Received of Luke Tiernan $3000, on account of lot of ground sold to the trustees of the Catholic Church building the Cathedral." Signed, "J. E. Howard." Luke Tiernan was one of the presidential electors of John Quincy Adams, and was a warm personal friend of Henry Clay, who frequently visited him at his home in Baltimore, and who spoke of him as the "patriarch of the Whig party in Maryland." In December, 1831, he was a member of the national convention which nominated Henry Clay for the presidency.

The Baltimore Sun of March 17, 1848, gave an account of an anniversary supper of the Baltimore Hibernian Society, at which the president of the society, Hugh Jenkins, gave as a toast: "The Honorable Henry Clay, America's distinguished son, the Star of the West, like the glorious king of day, as he advances to his close, he casts a brighter radiance around his name." Mr. Clay rose among the most deafening cheers. Addressing the company he said among other things: "I have during a life by no means short been honored with the respect, love and friendship of many Irishmen, a friendship that could never be broken, bonded by mutual love and esteem, that still causes the fond remembrances of some who are now no more to cling to my heartstrings with still closer fervency, as life speeds to its close. One, whose friendship is fondly cherished by me, as it is also doubtless by many of those present, was the amiable and philanthropic friend of man, Luke Tiernan of Baltimore, a man whose character I may hold up to your view as a true example of the generosity, the hospitality and the noble devotion of Irishmen wherever I have met them. Luke Tiernan was a member of the committee appointed at the inauguration of the movement for the erection of the Washington monument in Baltimore. He was one of the committee appointed February 19, 1826, to urge upon the legislature of Maryland the incorporation of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, whose charter was the first railroad charter in the United States; and the Herald, one of his ships brought from England the first locomotive for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He was greatly respected and beloved, and strongly attached to the people and government of this country."

Luke Tiernan O'Brien.

Robert Coleman Brien, father of Col. L. T. Brien, who was born in Frederick County, Md., in 1805, and died in 1834, was married to Ann, daughter of Luke Tiernan. Their son, Col. Luke Tiernan Brien, was honored with the name of his distinguished grandfather. When he was seven years old he was taken to Baltimore, where he received his primary education, and later graduated from Georgetown College. In 1847, after his marriage, he settled on a farm at Mount Washington, Baltimore County, Md., where he remained until 1854. After spending a year in Europe, he returned to Maryland, and purchased a farm near Hagerstown, which he made his home until the spring of 1861. For one year he was chief of staff for Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, and on the re-organization of the army, was elected lieutenant-colonel of the First Virginia Cavalry, Fitzhugh Lee being colonel, and two months later, was made colonel. In April, 1864, he was made chief of staff of Gen. W. H. H. Lee, in which position he was retained until the close of the war, participating in all the engagements of the army.

In the fall of 1865, Col. Brien went to New York to engage in business as a commission merchant, but afterwards became interested in the building of railroads. In 1874 he went to the west with James C. Clark, general manager of the Illinois Central Railroad, and was his assistant manager for three years. From 1877 to 1882 the territory over which he was assistant manager covered the road from Cairo to New Orleans. In the latter year, he removed to Urbana District, Frederick County, Md. where he purchased 180 acres of fine farming land, the beautiful homestead upon which he now resides. "Tyrone," the home of Col. Brien, was built from material that was taken down piece by piece, marked, and transported from its original site on the Rappanhannock River, near Fredericksburg, Va., where it was built for a silk worm farm, by the father-in-law of the Rev. Mr. Phillips, a minister of the Episcopal Church. In 1846, the building was set up on its present site, and an addition of twelve thousand brick was added to the original frame work, making a house containing forty rooms. After its completion at Urbana, it was used for several years as a female seminary, and was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Phillips. The property next came into the hands of Mr. Jones, afterwards a general in the Confederate army, who used it as a Military Training School for boys, until the time of the Civil War. In 1862, it was purchased by Mr. Hinks, the Know-Nothing Mayor of Baltimore, who made it his home until 1883, when its present owner took possession of it. Col. Brien has many personal friends among whom he numbers Potter Palmer, of Chicago, of whose hotel in Chicago he has had the management at different times.

Col. Luke T. Brien was married, in 1874, to Mary V. Wilson, of Baltimore. Their children are: Robert C.; William H.; Lawrence W.; Annie I., Ada and Mary; the youngest alone survives. Col. Brien is a member of the Roman Catholic Church. The Colonel has been a stanch Democrat for over 60 years.

REV. AARON MANNS GLUCK, pastor of the Reformed Church of the Incarnation, Emmitsburg, Frederick County, Md., son of Henry and Anna Margaret (Manns) Gluck, was born in Markes, Franklin County, Pa., June 9, 1877.

The parents of the Rev. Mr. Gluck, Henry Gluck and Anna Margaret Manns, then unmarried, left Heibach, Hesse, Germany for the United States in a party of three hundred emigrants who took passage in the sailing vessel Julies, bound for Baltimore, Md., where they landed, November 27, 1855, after a tedious voyage of forty-two days. After spending one night on board the ship, they started for Chambersburg, Pa., where they arrived in the evening of November 28. Here they found a home with Mr. John Seibert from whose house they were soon after married. In the following spring, Mr. Gluck went about fifteen miles into the northwestern part of the county and hired himself as a farm laborer to Mr. McDowell for four dollars a month. Two years after this, he began farming for himself, renting one of the McDowell farms. Mr. Gluck continued renting until he had saved enough to purchase a home of his own. On this place, situated near Markes, Pa., his wife died, June 26, 1898. Mr. Gluck has retired from active life and resides in Shippensburg, Pa. Twelve children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Gluck, of whom the subject of our sketch is the youngest.

Aaron Manns Gluck grew up on his father's farm near Markes, Pa. He remained at home working with his father and attending the village school until he reached his seventeenth year when he entered Mercersburg Academy. He graduated from that institution in 1896 and, in the autumn of the same year, entered Franklin and Marshall College, graduating in the class of 1900. After completing a three years' course in the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church at Lancaster, Pa., Mr. Gluck graduated May 14, 1903, and was received into the ministry of the Reformed Church at Emmitsburg, Md., October 1, 1903. In November of the same year, he was ordained and installed as pastor of the church of the Incarnation, Emmitsburg, Md., by a committee appointed by the Classis of Maryland. The Rev. Mr. Gluck has contributed many interesting articles to the periodicals of the Reformed Church. Although he is a member of an old Democratic family, Mr. Gluck is independent in politics.

JOHN T. GAVER, a retired farmer of Hyland, Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., son of John P. and Elizabeth (Cline) Gaver, both deceased, was born near the place on which he now resides, February 3, 1842.

Henry Gaver, great-great-grandfather of John T. Gaver, was born and grew up in Holland. In early manhood, he emigrated to America, landed at Baltimore, Md., and finally settled near what is now Ellerton, Md. He was one of the earliest settlers in the Middletown Valley where he took up 1140 acres of timber land. He married, in Maryland, and had one son, John Gaver.

John Gaver, great-grandfather of John T. Gaver, was born and brought up on his father's large estate in Catoctin District. He remained on the homestead with his parents and, at his father's death, inherited the estate. Mr. Gaver cleared a part of his land and spent his life in farming it. He gave the land for the church at Church Hill, and also that for the graveyard adjoining the church in which he now rests. John Gaver married and had two sons: Daniel, and George.

Mr. Gaver's grandfather, George Gaver, was born near Ellerton, Md. When he was still quite young, his father died and his mother married a second time. Young George was, therefore, soon thrown on his own resources, and learned to battle for himself. After trying various occupations, Mr. Gaver turned his attention to farming, and spent the remainder of his life in cultivating the soil. George Gaver married Mary Raymor, and had a large family. He was one of the first advocates of the temperance cause in Frederick County. He died at the early age of forty-four, and is buried in the graveyard at Church Hill.

John P. Gaver, eldest son and second child of George and Mary (Raymor) Gaver, father of John T. Gaver, was born on his father's farm near Ellerton, January 22, 1817. He grew up on the homestead, and remained at home, working with his father and, after his father's death, took charge of the place and managed it for his mother. After his marriage, Mr. Gaver purchased 121 acres of timber land and began working for himself. He was a cooper and, during the summer, spent his time in the mountain, peeling bark and getting out material for barrels; in winter he worked in his shop. He was successful financially, and after some time bought 60 acres more of timber land. This he cleared, built on it a house and barn, and spent the remainder of his life on this place. Mr. Gaver was a Democrat, but he was an ardent admirer of Abraham Lincoln. John P. Gaver was married to Elizabeth, daughter of Philip and ———— (————) Cline, whose father was prominent among the older men of Jackson District, Frederick County. They had fourteen children, ten of whom reached maturity: 1, John T., retired farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County; 2, George D., farmer, of Jackson District, Frederick County; 3, Philip F., farmer, of Jackson District; 4, Louisa, widow of the late John Shipley, of Frederick City, Md.; 5, Henry P., farmer, of Clarke County, Ohio; 6, Annie R., married Daniel M. Wolf, a farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County, Md.; 7, Elias H., farmer, Montgomery County Ohio; 8, Levi, farmer, Montgomery County, Ohio; 9, Charles, farmer, Montgomery County, Ohio; 10, Mary, married Jacob Burns, machinist, Cumberland, Md. Mr. Gaver and his wife were members of the German Baptist Church. He was active in the work of the church, and a liberal contributor. He died in March, 1875, and is buried in the graveyard at Grossnickle Meeting-house. His widow, who died in ———, rests beside him.

John T. Gaver was educated in the common schools of the district, and became a cooper, learning his trade in his father's shop, with whom he remained for some time. During the Civil War, when young men were being pressed into service, Mr. Gaver, not wishing to enter the army, went to Montgomery County, Ohio, where he was employed as a laborer, by the day or by the month, for a number of years. He married in the west, and soon after his marriage, returned to Maryland and bought a farm of 50 acres, which he cultivated successfully for a number of years. Mr. Gaver finally sold this place and purchased his present home, a farm of 135 acres of fertile land, situated at Hyland, near Ellerton. The line between Jackson and Catoctin Districts runs through his front yard. It was on this farm that Mr. Blessing, that brave and loyal citizen, defended his horses, and held off a company of Confederate cavalry. Mr. Gaver improved his land by careful cultivation, erected a comfortable, two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn and all the required outbuildings, making his property one of the best in the district. He attributes his success to hard work, diligence, and economy. Mr. Gaver is a Democrat, interested in local affairs, and highly esteemed in the district. He is a stockholder in the Myersville Savings Bank, the Allaugh Dover Company, of Chicago, Ill.; and of the Washington Realty Company, Washington, D. C. He has been president of the Farmers' Exchange, of Myersville, Md., since its organization, in which he took an active part.

John T. Gaver was married to Eliza Jane, daughter of David Spitler, a merchant of Montgomery County, Ohio. Of their twelve children, eleven reached maturity: 1, Elizabeth V. A., (Mrs. Levi Morgan), of Frederick City, Md.; 2, Mary (Mrs. Benjamin Cline), deceased; 3, Lola E., married Trenton C. Shroyer, merchant, of Wolfsville, Md.; 4, George E., of Graceham, Md.; 5, Fannie C., married Perry Coblentz, farmer, of Middletown District, Frederick County, Md.; 6, David T., farmer, of Howard County, Md.; 7, John W., farmer, of Middlepoint, Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md.; 8, James W., dealer in lumber, resides in the state of Washington; 9, Nellie L., (Mrs. Keefer Brandenburg); 10, Harry S., of Jackson District, Frederick County; 11, Roy V., at school. Mr. Gaver and his wife are active members of the German Baptist Church, to which he contributes liberally.

ADOLPHUS FEARHAKE, one of Frederick County's best known and prominent citizens, was born in Frederick City, April 23, 1840, on the site of the new home that he now occupies at No. 129 East Patrick street. He is a son of Adolphus and Elizabeth (Lease) Fearhake.

George Fearhake, the grandfather of Adolphus Fearhake, the younger, was the ancestor of the family in this country. He was a native of Westphalia, Germany, whence he emigrated to America about the close of the Revolution with the Amelung Colony that came over with John Frederick Amelung as glass-blowers. They established the celebrated glass factory at Fleacy Dale, Urbana District, Frederick County, Md., which is supposed to be the first glass works in the country. From the first United States Census of Frederick County, taken in 1790, we find his name spelled Fuerhacke. In religion he was a member of the Lutheran Church.

Adolphus Fearhake, the elder, son of George Fearhake, the emigrant, was a native of Frederick County, where he was born in 1795, and died in 1882. He was married to Elizabeth Lease, a daughter of Jacob and Cassandra (Thompson) Lease. Jacob Lease was born in Frederick County in 1769. The Lease and Thompson families were among the early settled German and English families of Western Maryland. Adolphus and Elizabeth (Lease) Fearhake were the parents of three children: Rose, of Frederick City; George, (deceased) and Adolphus.

Adolphus Fearhake, son of Adolphus and Elizabeth (Lease) Fearhake, was reared in his native city, and as a youth attended the public schools, subsequently studying at the Frederick City College. At the age of fifteen he began the study of surveying. In 1862 he entered the service of the Confederacy as a member of Company D, 1st Maryland Cavalry. He participated in the battle of Gettysburg and various other engagements. After the sanguinary struggle at Gettysburg he was taken prisoner, and confined at Fort Lookout and Fort Delaware. After Lee's surrender in 1865, he was paroled. Prior to entering the Confederate army, he had read law in the office of the late Judge John A. Lynch. After returning to Frederick upon the close of the war, he was admitted to the Frederick County Bar in 1866. After practicing his profession for one year, he was elected surveyor of Frederick County in 1869, later resigning to accept the office of deputy clerk of the Circuit Court. This position he filled until 1879, when he was elected to the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court of Franklin County for a term of six years by the Democratic party, of which political organization he has always been an adherent. He discharged his duties as Clerk with much ability. In 1888, he was again appointed deputy clerk of the Circuit Court, which position he has since continuously filled, making a period of almost forty years that he has served as clerk and deputy clerk of the Circuit Court of Frederick County.

Mr. Fearhake is prominent fraternally, being a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., of which he is Past Master and present secretary, a member of Enoch Royal Arch Chapter, No. 23, of which he is past High Priest; and is Past Commander of Jacques de Molay Commandery of Knights Templars. In religion Mr. Fearhake is an active and consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he is a trustee, and is the leader of the song services that are held at Braddock Heights during the summer season.

In 1877, Mr. Fearhake was married to Agnes Elliott, daughter of James Elliott. She is descended of an old Frederick City family. They have no children.

JOHN M. FISHER, one of the old and highly esteemed citizens of Creagerstown district, passed his active years in rural occupations. He was born in Adams County, Pa., near the Maryland line, November 27, 1827. His parents were Isaac and Mary E. (Rowe) Fisher.

The first of the Fisher family to come to this country was Thomas Fisher. He was a native of Germany, and when a young man emigrated to America, settling in Adams County, Pa., near what is now Littlestown. He later bought a farm and was engaged in agriculture until his death. In his day, he was well known. His wife was Catharine Mitten. They were the parents of eight children.

Isaac Fisher, son of Thomas and Catharine (Mitten) Fisher, was a twin. His birth occurred in Adams County, Pa., in 1799. He was given such an education as was available in those days, and in later life followed farming in his native county and Frederick County, Md. Upon his marriage, he set out on his own account, and began farming on what was known as the old Flemming farm. Here he remained for ten years, at the end of which he removed to his father's farm, where he was located for twelve years. Mr. Fisher then acquired by purchase a farm of 175 acres of excellent land, which was partly in Adams and partly in Frederick County, lying on the Frederick and Littlestown road. He later bought the 70 acre tract adjoining, on which he began to live. This farm he divided into two tracts, erecting a new set of buildings on one, and improving the original houses. He was also the possessor of the farm now owned by his son, John M. He died on his farm in 1875, and was laid to rest in the Lutheran Cemetery at Emmitsburg. In his political affiliations, Mr. Fisher was a Democrat. He was a Lutheran in his religious convictions and was a member of the Emmitsburg congregation. Mr. Fisher was married to Mary E. Rowe, daughter of Daniel Rowe, who was a prominent farmer of Emmitsburg district, Frederick County. She died in 1869. They were the parents of thirteen children, namely: Alice, deceased, was the wife of Christian Shriver, a farmer of Adams County, Pa.; Agnes, deceased, married Samuel Veant, an agriculturist of Carroll County, Md.; Thomas, deceased, followed farming at Richmond, Ind.; Nathaniel, deceased, was a miller of Mechanicstown district; David, deceased, was engaged in farming in Mechanicstown district; John M.; Sarah, deceased, was married to Solomon Ridenour, a farmer of Creagerstown district; Lucy A., the deceased wife of Alfred Harner, of Littlestown, Pa., who is a carpenter; Susan, was married to Jacob Hoover, of Waynesboro, Pa., a merchant; Catharine and Vanburn, who were twins; the former the deceased wife of John Stear, a carpenter of Littlestown, Pa., and the latter a farmer of Butler County, Ind.; George W., removed to Ohio; and Amanda, married William Walker, a retired farmer of Carroll County.

John M. Fisher, son of Isaac and Mary E. (Rowe) Fisher, attended the common schools and followed farming until 1891, when he gave up active work. He helped his father until he reached the age of twenty-six years, when he began the cultivation of his present farm, then owned by the elder Fisher. For four years he was successful in the management of the place, and then bought it. This farm lies one mile north of Creagerstown, on the road from that place to Loy's Station. This tract Mr. Fisher greatly improved by the erection of a two-story brick house, a bank barn and necessary outbuildings, making it one of the fine farms of the district. He also owned the adjoining farm, now in the possession of his son, Allen G. Mr. Fisher is one of the oldest residents of Creagerstown district and is universally esteemed for his excellent character.

Mr. Fisher takes allegiance with the Democracy in politics. He is a devout member and leading spirit in St. John's Lutheran church of Creagerstown. He has served in official capacities, having acted as deacon and is at present an elder. He was also a member of the building committee that erected the new church edifice at Creagerstown.

Mr. Fisher was twice married. His first wife was Mary E. Valentine, daughter of Samuel Valentine. By this union there were five children, all of whom grew to maturity: Calvin V., deceased; Laura, the wife of Jesse Gaugh; Sarah E., married to William H. Long, a farmer of Creagerstown district; Allen G.; and Effie M., married to Calvin L. Putman, a farmer of Creagerstown district. Mrs. Fisher died in 1897, and was interred in St. John's Cemetery at Creagerstown. Two years later, Mr. Fisher was married to Annie E. Eyler, daughter of Charles H. and Sarah C. (Staub) Eyler, of this district. There is no issue by this marriage.

A. E. FISHER, one of the successful young business men of Frederick, is a dealer in stoves, tinware, etc., being the successor to S. D. Thomas & Company. He was born May 1, 1884, and is a son of Willis E. and Mary E. (Reifsnider) Fisher.

Abraham Fisher, the grandfather of A. E. Fisher, was descended from one of the early families of Frederick County. He was engaged in farming in Liberty District. He was the father of five children: Willis E.; Newton, lives in the West; Charles and John, are in Oklahoma; and a daughter, who married a Mr. Davis, of Illinois.

Willis E. Fisher, son of Abraham Fisher, spent his active life following the occupation of a farmer in Frederick County. He is now living retired in Frederick City. Mr. Fisher was married to Mary E. Reifsnider. They were the parents of three children: a daughter, the wife of C. E. Schildknecht, of Frederick City; A. E.; and Ruth, is unmarried.

A. E. Fisher, son of Willis E. and Mary E. (Reifsnider) Fisher, was reared on a farm in Emmitsburg district, Frederick County. While a boy, he attended the public schools and worked on the home farm. He later was a student at Taneytown, Md., in the Milton Academy, and he also took a course in Sadler's Business College at Baltimore, being graduated from the latter institution. Mr. Fisher then came to Frederick, and became bookkeeper for the Bowers Lumber Company. This position he held for six years. At the end of this time, in 1907, he purchased his present business, and became the successor to S. D. Thomas & Company. He has been successful in this enterprise and is one of Frederick's rising young business men. In politics, he is independent. He is a member of the Y. M. C. A. and is affiliated with Grace Reformed Church of Frederick.

Mr. Fisher was married November 15, 1907, to Vallie E., daughter of Thomas Ramsburg, of Frederick. They have one son, Ralph M.

JOHN P. FLOOK, a well-known farmer residing near Myersville, Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., son of Dawson F. and Elizabeth (Harp) Flook, was born on the farm on which he now resides, October 27, 1859.

The ancestors of the Flook family, who were of German birth, were among the early settlers of Frederick County. The late Perry Flook, grandfather of John P. Flook, was a farmer who lived near Burkittsville, Md. He was married to Delana Routzahn. Perry Flook died in early manhood and is buried in the cemetery of the Lutheran Church in Burkittsville. (For family history see biography of Cyrus Flook.)

Dawson F. Flook, son of Perry and Delana (Routzahn) Flook, father of John P. Flook, a retired farmer of Myersville, Md., was born near Burkittsville, March 5, 1837. He was educated in the public schools of his native district. His father died when he was a youth, and some time after his mother was married to James Sheffer. He remained with his mother until he married when he began farming for himself, on the farm now owned by his son, John P. Flook, then the property of his father-in-law, John Harp. After cultivating this land successfully for a few years, Mr. Flook purchased the place, which consisted of 136 acres of fertile land situated half a mile north of Myersville, on the old Hagerstown road. Mr. Flook remodeled the house and built a large bank barn and all the required outbuildings. He improved this land and cultivated it successfully until the spring of 1893 when he retired from farming, and removed to Myersville, where he built the beautiful two-story frame dwelling in which he resides. He afterwards bought several farms near Myersville, which he improved and sold at a high price. His financial success is the reward of diligence and close attention to business. Mr. Flook is a Republican, interested in county affairs. He is a stockholder in the Myersville and Catoctin Railroad, and is highly esteemed as a successful business man. Dawson F. Flook was married to Elizabeth, daughter of John and Elizabeth Harp, whose parents were descended from prominent families of Frederick County. Their children are: 1, John P.; 2, Joshua M., who was killed in an accident while motorman on the electric railroad in Baltimore, Md.; 3, Mary (Mrs. Elmer Smith); 4, Cyrus F., banker and merchant, Myersville, Md.; 5, Elizabeth D., married to Alvey J. Horine, principal of the public school in Myersville; 6, Elmer S. farming near Boonsboro, Washington County, Md.; 7, Emma E., married to the Rev. F. Berry Plummer, a minister of the United Brethren Church, stationed at Shippensburg, Pa. Mr. Flook and his wife are members of the United Brethren Church in Myersville. He is an active worker and a liberal contributor. He was one of the building committee that erected the new church edifice.

John P. Flook attended the public schools of Jackson District, and remained on the farm with his father until he married and began farming for himself on one of his father's farms near Myersville, where he remained for nine years. When his father retired from farming, Mr. Flook removed to the homestead, where he now resides. In the spring of 1909, he purchased the place which contains 136 acres of excellent land, situated a quarter of a mile north of Myersville. His home, which is numbered among the most valuable farms of the district, is beautifuly situated and is equipped with a two-story brick dwelling, a bank barn and all the required outbuildings. Everything about the place is in excellent repair. His toil and watchfulness have brought him a rich reward. He is a successful business man and has won the confidence of his fellow-citizens. Mr. Flook is a director and a stockholder in the Flook, Summers, Leatherman and Grossnickle Bank of Myersville. He also holds stock in the Farmers' Exchange of Myersville. Mr. Flook is one of the leading Republicans of Jackson District. The Hagerstown Electric Railroad passes his farm and adds to the value of the property.

John P. Flook was married to Martha, daughter of Jacob and Charlotte (Ahalt) Young, whose father was prominent among the retired farmers of Middletown District. They have two children: 1, Albert D., a graduate of Lebanon Valley College, class of 1909, at present manager of the Farmers' Mutual Exchange, located at Myersville, Md.; 2, Dawson Y., a student in dental department, University of Maryland, Baltimore, Md.

WILLIAM H. FUSS, deceased, who was a retired farmer, and well-known citizen of Emmitsburg District, Frederick County, Md., son of John and Hettie (Fuss) Fuss, was born in Taneytown district, Carroll County, Md., December 24, 1848; died April 24, 1909.

John Fuss, father of William H. Fuss, was born nine days after his father's death, in the year 1825, in Frederick County, Md. He grew up on the farm and devoted himself to husbandry. In early manhood, Mr. Fuss hired by the month as a farm laborer, but after his marriage, began farming for himself on rented land. He was industrious and thrifty and finally was able to purchase the farm on which his son, Asbury, now resides. In 1877 he moved to the farm now owned by his son Mead, where he died in 1890. His wife died in 1888, aged fifty-nine. They were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Fuss was a Republican, interested in public affairs, but never held office. The children of John and Hettie (Fuss) Fuss are: 1, William H.; 2, Kate (Mrs. B. F. Edwards), of Los Angeles, Cal.; 3, Ezra, married Sarah Mickley, resides in Perth, Kan.; 4, Albert, of Glenden, Baltimore County, Md., married Miss Woods; 5, Virginia (Mrs. Henry Troxell), of New York City, N. Y.; 6, Mead, married Kate Baumgardner; 7, Missouri (Mrs. Charles Cork), of Brooklyn, N. Y.; 8, Asbury, a farmer of Emmitsburg District, married Carrie Haak; 9, John T., died aged twenty-one.

William H. Fuss was ten years old when his parents removed to the farm in Emmitsburg District, now the property of Asbury Fuss, a younger brother of William H. Fuss. Here he passed his youth, and here he received his education in the Ridge School under Linnie Sproukle, her brother, Isaac C. Sproukle, Jerry Demuth, Harry Six, Jonathan Allison, James A. Golding, and Daniel P. Honkey. Mr. Fuss remained at school until he was twenty-one, giving his leisure time and all his vacations to assist his father with the farm work. After leaving school, he remained at home working for his father until 1873, when he began farming for himself on rented land and, after six or eight years of patient toil was able to purchase the property. The farm consisted of 147 acres for which he paid $5,500. When Mr. Fuss took the farm it was considered the poorest place in that section of the State. When he left it after thirty-five years of intelligent care, it was rated as one of the best, giving one season 888 bushels to thirty-one acres. In 1908 Mr. Fuss retired from active farm life on account of ill health, which was caused by injuries received some years before when he was thrown from a wagon in the wagonshed, and died April 24, 1909.

William H. Fuss was married, February 10, 1873, to Maria Louisa Overholtzer. Their children are: 1, Annie (Mrs. Mahlon Stonesifer), of Keysville, Md.; 2, John I., of Frederick, Md., married Miss Bertie Clutz. Mr. Fuss was a stanch Republican and served for one term as register and judge of elections. He was a member of Towncreek Methodist Episcopal Church, in which congregation he held the office of steward, and of which also the family are members.

WALTER ALEXANDER ENGLAND resides on the beautiful estate of 186 acres known as "Idle Wild," situated on the Urbana and New Market road, in Urbana district. He was born on the parental farm in Mount Pleasant district, Frederick County, November 5, 1864. He is a son of John W. and Mary Ellen (Hendry) England.

Nathan England, the grandfather of Walter A. England, was a native of Frederick County, Md. He was a farmer by occupation. He removed from his native county to Baltimore City where he started the first temperance hotel called "Maypole Inn," in Baltimore. His object in leaving the farm to go to Baltimore City was that his children might have the benefit of a good education. He subsequently returned to the old farm in Mount Pleasant district, where he died. It is said that he was a descendant of Bishop England. He was the father of the following children: John W.; Harriet Elizabeth, married Daniel Root; Mary Rebecca, died unmarried; Henrietta, married Charles Hendry; Charles, married a Miss Angus, of Washington, D. C., and died there; Joseph, of Covington, Va., formerly a dentist but now engaged in farming, and is married to a Miss McAllister; James, married Lavinia England; and Frank, a physician, and was married to a Miss Caples, of Baltimore County, Md.

John W. England, son of Nathan England, was born near Liberty, Frederick County, Md. He grew up a farmer's boy. He was educated in an academy at Liberty and when a young man became a traveling salesman through the South for a New York dry goods house. He held this position until the war broke out, when conditions forced him to abandon that work. He later followed farming in Mt. Pleasant district, and died in 1873, aged about fifty years. Mr. England was twice married. His first wife was a Miss Mitchell, of Washington, D. C., who died at the birth of her first child. He was married secondly to Mary Ellen Hendry. She died in 1883, at the age of forty years. She was the mother of six children: Walter Alexander; Nathan J., a farmer in Urbana district, married a Miss Montgomery; Harriet E., is unmarried; Charles Edward, of Montgomery county, Md., married Callie Gordon; Imogene, has never married; and John W., went to Rockwell City, Ia., and is engaged in agriculture.

Walter Alexander England, son of John W. and Mary Ellen (Hendry) England, received but a very limited education which was secured in the common schools. He was the oldest of a family of six children and his father died when he was nine years old, he having but little opportunity after that to acquire learning. While a boy he worked out among farmers dropping corn. His first wages were twenty-five cents a day. When he was fourteen years old, the family removed to "Idle Wild," which was the land left to his mother by her grandmother. "Idle Wild" was sold after the death of Mrs. England, and Walter and two of his brothers bought it. They cultivated the place in partnership until after Mr. England's marriage, when they separated, and our subject purchased the estate. This was in 1890, since when he has lived here and been very successful in its management. In 1895 he built a new barn, 40x70 feet and 20 feet to the square. He has also built additions to the old home, making this improvement in the fall of 1897. Mr. England is also the possessor of another farm in New Market district, which contains 166 acres.

Politically, Mr. England is a stanch Democrat, and has served in minor offices. Religiously, he was raised in the Methodist faith.

Mr. England was married December 27, 1888, to Fanny Temple Hood, of Urbana district. She is a daughter of George A.. and Mary J. (Baer) Hood. There were six children by this marriage: John Walter, born September 27, 1889, at home; Mary Ellen, born May 14, 1891, in school; George Marion, born September 6, 1893; Mildred Jane, born June 6, 1895; Roland Lee, born March 22, 1898; and Edwin Hood, born May 1, 1900.

George A. Hood, Mrs. England's father, was born in Frederick County. In his young days he was a cooper and for a time conducted a store. He then went to farming in Urbana district where he died in December, 1909, aged 87 years. Mr. Hood was married to Mary J. Baer, daughter of Jacob Baer, of Frederick County. She died March 1910, aged 82 years. Mr. Hood was a Republican. Both were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. They were the parents of five children: Sarah, the wife of Thomas L. Crawford, of Ijamsville; Marion Hood, of Montgomery County, Md., married Emma Crawford; George A., of Brunswick, Md., married a Miss Jones; Ella Daisy, married to John H. Crawford, and Fanny Temple, the wife of Mr. England.

FRANKLIN BUCHANAN SMITH, M. D., one of the ablest and most prominent physicians of Frederick County, Md., is a native of Frederick City, where he was born April 10th, 1856. He is the son of George and Mary (Nixdorff) Smith. No family is better known in Maryland than that of the Smiths, which is descended from ancient and reputable German lineage. The name was originally spelled Schmid, and the American ancestry was John Schmid, who was born in Germany, and emigrated to this county in 1730, settling upon an extensive plantation in Maryland. He purchased a tract of land situated in the southwestern part of the beautiful Monocacy Valley, for which he obtained grants from Charles Calvert, Lord Baltimore. His naturalization papers bear the date of 1761, and the signature of Reverdy Ghiselin, clerk of the court. Mr. Schmid was a Revolutionary soldier, serving with credit in the struggle for independence. He was a sergeant in Capt. Wm. B. Blair's Company called the "Game Cock." It was the first company from Frederick County to go to the front. He died in 1785.

George Smith, son of John Schmid, or Smith, the ancestor, was the grandfather of Dr. Franklin Buchanan Smith. He was born June 12th, 1776, in the Monocacy Valley, on his father's plantation, called "New Germany," granted by patent signed by Thomas Bladen and dated August 9th, 1774, and was raised on the farm, eventually succeeding to the management of his father's extensive estate. He was for a number of years conspicuously identified with Frederick County's agricultural interests and was widely known and respected as one of the most enterprising and energetic citizens of his day in his part of the State. He was a Lutheran in his religious faith and always took an active and praiseworthy part in the affairs of his church. He died on October 26, 1832.

George Smith, son of George Smith, the father of Dr. Franklin Buchanan Smith, was born in Frederick County, Md., January 31, 1807, and was reared upon the paternal acres. He was educated in the common schools of the neighborhood, acquiring knowledge readily and possessing an intelligence far above the ordinary. Following his father's example, he became a farmer and pursued that line of endeavor during the earlier portion of his career. Progressive and enterprising, he was very successful in his agricultural operations and later became a dealer in farm properties and other real estate, in which calling he attained notable prominence and success. He was a man of pronounced executive capacity, unquestioned integrity and sterling worth that commended him to the community in which he lived as one of its most worthy citizens. He was progressive and enjoyed the confidence of his neighbors to a marked degree, his reputation being more than local. Mr. Smith served with notable credit for many years as Judge of the Orphans' Court, in which capacity he displayed an ability and judgment that added materially to his repute. He was frequently called upon as a referee in the disputes that arose among his neighbors and it is worthy of mention in this connection that in many instances he proved an effective factor in the adjustment of such cases without the necessity of an appeal to the courts. Possessing as he did the confidence of all who knew him, his services were constantly in demand in the settlement of estates and he probably served to a greater extent in this way than any other resident of Frederick County, before or since. He was one of the founders of the Frederick County Bank, of which he was a director throughout his life. He took a keen interest in Free Masonry, and was a leading member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., in which he was a past master. He was a Democrat in his political affiliations, and a public spirited citizen, always ready to co-operate in every movement that tended to advance the general welfare, ranking high in the business, social and religious life of the community. He died September 14, 1871, widely regretted as one whom the County could ill afford to spare. He was twice married, first to Lydia Baugher, by whom he had two children, George William (see sketch), and Evaline, who married John L. Nicodemus, of Hagerstown, Md., and died April 26th, 1891. His second wife was Mary Nixdorff, daughter of Henry Nixdorff, by whom he had nine children, only four of whom reached adult life: Charles C., who died January 25th, 1905; Emma J. and Franklin Buchanan, living, and Clara V., who was the wife of M. E. Getzendanner and died October 22nd, 1898. The others died in infancy. The Nixdorff family from which Dr. Smith is descended on the maternal side, is of ancient German origin, the American ancestor being John George Nixdorff, a native of Schiefer, Silesia, Germany, where he was born February 22nd, 1700. He married a Miss Karns, and with the Moravians emigrated to Pennsylvania in 1730, settling in Bethlehem, where he died September 22, 1785, leaving several sons. His remains lie in the Moravian Cemetery of that City. One of these sons, Samuel Nixdorff, removed to Maryland shortly after the close of the Revolutionary War with his brothers. He was born April 18th, 1745, and died March 1st, 1824. He married Barbara Medtard. Although his death occurred some time after the close of the war, it was due to the infirmities of rheumatism originally incurred by hard service and exposure endured by him while in the ranks of the American Army. He enlisted in the Revolutionary War March 7th, 1776. in Capt. John Nelson's Company of Independent Riflemen, vide Pa. Archives, second series Vol. 10 John Red Historical Rooms, Baltimore, Md.

After locating in Maryland, he engaged in the manufacture of wagons and carried on a general blacksmithing business. His son, Henry Nixdorff, was born December 25, 1780, and was notable in his day as one of the pioneer merchants and most extensive land owners of Frederick County. He was an active and prominent factor in the growth and development of the varied resources of his section and stood high in general esteem. During the war of 1812, he served in Capt. Henry Steiner's Frederick Artillery. He died May 4th, 1859, and his daughter, Mary, married George Smith, and became the mother of Dr. Franklin Buchanan Smith.

Dr. Franklin Buchanan Smith received his rudimentary and college-preparatory education at Frederick Academy, in his native city. He subsequently entered Princeton College, from which institution he was graduated in 1876, with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Three years later the honorary degree of Master of Arts was conferred upon him by his Alma Mater in recognition of his ability as a student. Having a natural taste for the study of medicine, he had decided to make that work his future profession and he commenced his studies along this line even previous to his leaving college. Thus equipped, he entered the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania in the fall of 1876 and was graduated with the degree of M. D. in 1878, in addition to which he secured the honor of the prize for anatomy, there being but two other prizes offered that year. He afterwards served for a period of six months as substitute resident physician in the Blockley and Presbyterian Hospitals of Philadelphia, thus acquiring a practical insight into his profession. Returning to his old home in Frederick in the fall of 1878, he established himself in practice there, since which time he has continued to serve the large and important following that he speedily built up. His abilities made themselves manifest even at the beginning and he was promptly recognized as a careful, conscientious and thoroughly competent physician. Frederick County possesses no medical practitioner who is more prominent or able, and throughout his entire career he has been a thorough and careful student of his profession, keeping abreast of every advancement in medical science and displaying a skill and success in treatment that have served to win him wide repute. Dr. Smith possesses in a marked degree the qualifications that are essential to success in his chosen profession, in which field of human endeavor no one ranks higher than he in his State. From 1886 to 1895 he served with notable credit as health officer of his city, in which capacity he served well the best interests of the community. He was instrumental in bringing about the adoption of many measures beneficial to the public health and it was to him that a number of needed sanitary improvements were directly due. Dr. Smith was the first County and City Health Officer and with the assistance of the late Judge James McSherry and Prof. Charles Ely of the Maryland School of the D. & D., acting as Board of Health, was instrumental in abating the terrible epidemic of Diphtheria which had without intermission from 1880-1885 scourged the City of Frederick. During this period an average of seventy-five children per annum were destroyed and hardly a home had not felt the effect of this terrible plague. Through Dr. Smith's efforts the majority of the present City and County Health Regulations were compiled and enacted, the collection of garbage started, wholesome regulations for the government of slaughter houses and pig pens enforced, every known nuisance in the town such as foul cesspools unused tan yards, dumps, etc., were done away with. The packing house of the L. McMurray Co. was compelled to cease the manufacture of thousands of tons of fertilizer from decaying husks and the manure of hundreds of head of cattle and hogs in the centre of the city. Within six months time from his induction into office the benefits of the general application of these wholesome health regulations were made manifest in the abatement of the epidemic and from that time to this Frederick has enjoyed to an exceptionable degree immunity from the disease.

He is at present the Vice-President of the Md. State Board of Medical Examiners and has been a member of the Board since its organization 1892, and for ten years he served as a member of the United States pension board for Frederick County. He has been for a number of years an influential member of the American Medical Association, the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland of which he was vice-president 1903-4, and is now (1910) president, the Frederick County Medical Society of which he was President 1900-1903, and the Association of Surgeons of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, of which he was in 1909 President. From 1880 to 1883 he was local surgeon for the Pennsylvania Railroad and since 1890 has held a similar position with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. From 1890 to 1898 he was attendant physician and surgeon to Montevue Hospital. During his administration wards for isolation of the sick and systematic attendance under the supervision of a trained nurse was introduced. It is noteworthy that in the administration of the duties of these several positions, he has invariably received the commendation of all with whom he came into contact and has fulfilled every obligation with promptitude and marked ability. Dr. Smith is as prominent and useful a citizen as he is a physician. He is acknowledged to be one of the leading and most representative men of Frederick County and is active in all its affairs, exhibiting a public spirit that is worthy of all praise. Despite his exacting professional interests, he has always found time to display progressiveness and enterprise in the promotion of anything that tends to prove of general welfare or which is calculated to advance the material requirements of the community at large. He is actively identified with the business and financial life of his City and County, and for several years was Vice-President of the Farmers' and Mechanics Bank. He was Secretary, Treasurer and General Manager of the Frederick County Telephone and Telegraph Co., and the President of the Washington and Frederick and Gettysburg Railroad, an enterprise that bids fair to prove of incalculable benefit to the interests along its line. When the Frederick, Thurmont and Northern Railway, the first name of the Washington, Frederick and Gettysburg Railway, was first projected, Dr. Smith was made its Treasurer and no man has done more than he to promote railroad and similar developments in his section of Maryland. This Railroad has been lately united with the Frederick and Middletown and Jefferson Electric roads in what is termed the Frederick Railroad. Dr. Smith is vice-president of this combination. He is a stockholder in the Union Manufacturing Company of Frederick and was one of the original promoters of the Frederick Brick Works, Frederick City Packing Co. as well as the Hygeia Ice Co. and other industrial undertakings that have been established. He was one of the original stockholders of the Citizens National Bank of Frederick, when that institution was organized in 1886, and his time and means are ever ready to assist any worthy movement of general import.

Dr. Smith is equally prominent in fraternal circles. He ranks high in the Masonic order, being a leading spirit in Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., Enoch Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, and Jacques de Molay Commandery, Knights Templar, and Boumi Temple of the Mystic Shrine. He also belongs to Frederick Lodge, No. 684, of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and King David Lodge, No. 50, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and Palestine Encampment.

Dr. Smith was married October 29, 1879, to Charlotte Patterson Dennis, daughter of Col. George R. Dennis, a prominent and influential citizen of Frederick. She died January 21, 1889, leaving three children: Franklin Buchanan, Jr., who died November 15th, 1903; Alice McPherson, and Charlotte Patterson, who, through their mother, are lineal descendants of Thomas Johnson, the first Governor of Maryland. Dr. Smith was married for a second time, September 21, 1892, to Anne Grahame Dennis, a sister of his first wife. Dr. and Mrs. Smith are highly esteemed in the social and religious circles of their city, their home and hospitality being much enjoyed by their extended circle of friends.

THE ELDER FAMILY.—William Elder, a Catholic, who emigrated from St. Mary's County, Md., to Frederick County, was the first white man who settled in Emmitsburg district, and he gave the name of "St. Mary's Mount" to a portion of Carrick's Knob. He located at the foot of Blue Ridge in 1734, then the abode of numerous Indians and the haunt of wild beasts. He called his place "Pleasant Level." Here he built a house, reserving one room for religious services which he called a chapel. This room was equal in size to all the rest of his house. He was there joined by his family and a few friends from St. Mary's County. Mr. Elder was a devout Catholic and his chapel was the home for all weary travelers, and a delightful resort for all professing his faith. Hospitality was religiously practiced by this good family and their descendants. The little congregation was taken care of by priests from St. Mary's, and later from Conewago and Frederick, while sometimes Father Mathew Ryan, from Path Valley, Pa., visited them. In 1807 St. Mary's Church was built. The old mansion stood until about 1852.

William Elder was born in Lancashire, England, in 1707, and emigrated to St. Mary's County, Md., not earlier than 1728 and not later than 1732. In 1739 death invaded the home of this pioneer, taking from him the mother of his five children. Her maiden name was Ann Wheeler, and she was married to Mr. Elder in England. She bore him four sons and one daughter. The first son, William, married a Miss Wickham. The second, Guy, was twice married, and by his second wife was the father of thirteen children: Joseph, Judith, James, Polly, Benjamin, Guy, Priscilla, Edward, Thomas and George, of whom the first four went to Kentucky. Charles, the third son of the immigrant, married Julia Ward, of Charles County, Md. The fourth child, Mary, married Richard Lilly, of Virginia, and through her children the family became connected with the McSherrys of Virginia. The fifth child, Richard, married Phoebe Delovier. In 1794, William Elder was married to Jacoba Clementina Livers, daughter of Arnold Livers.

Arnold Livers was an Englishman by birth and had been an active and noted partisan of James II. Upon the collapse of that monarch's cause, Mr. Livers had been obliged to flee from his native land and became the proprietor of a large estate in Maryland, called "Arnold's Delight," on Owing's Creek. It is said of Arnold Livers, in explanation of the singular name given by him to his daughter, that he had registered a vow that his first child, whether a boy or a girl, should be called James. The good priest to whom the child was presented for baptism found no difficulty in complying with the father's wishes and so the babe was christened Jacoba Clementina. Livers in his flight from England carried this child with him.

William Elder's second wife bore him four sons and two daughters: Elizabeth, Arnold, Thomas, Ignatius, Anna and Aloysius. It was from the second named that the title for the farm upon which now stands the structure known as Mount St. Mary's College was derived. In the old Catholic Cemetery, about a half mile below St. Mary's College, and near the town of Emmitsburg, three stones mark the graves of William, Ann Wheeler and Jacoba Clementina Elder. The inscriptions, which are still distinct, record their names and dates of births and deaths: William Elder, born 1707, died April 22, 1775; Ann Wheeler Elder, born 1709, died August 11, 1739; Jacoba Clementina Elder, born 1717, died September 19, 1807.

Thomas Elder, the third child of William Elder by his second wife, was born January 4, 1748, and was married in 1771 to Elizabeth Spalding, a sister of Basil Spalding, of Charles County. Shortly after that event he removed to and occupied a farm in Harbaugh's Valley, where he lived for twenty-eight years, and where his family of eleven children were born. The names of these children were: Anne or Nancy, was born July 1, 1772, and died unmarried in 1844; Basil Spalding, who was born October 22, 1773 and died October 13, 1869, in Baltimore City, was married November 18, 1801, to Elizabeth Snowden, who died January 29, 1860; Catharine, who was born March 7, 1776, was the second wife of Joseph Gardiner, of Nelson County, Ky., three of whose daughters by his first marriage became Sisters of Charity of the Nazareth Community, and of these the late Mother Francis Gardiner was for many years Superior of the sisterhood; William Pius, was born May 4, 1778, and died in Baltimore, August 22, 1799; Clementina, who was born June 16, 1780, and died July 21, 1782, was married to Richard Clarke; Ignatius, was born July 21, 1782, and married Monica Green; Theresa, was born March 1, 1785, and died unmarried, December 19, 1816; Thomas Richard, who was born June 14, 1789, and died July 11, 1835, was married to Caroline Clements; Christiana, who was born October 30, 1791, became the wife of John B. Wright; Mary Elizabeth, born May 15, 1794, married John Tarboe; and Maria M., who was born April 11, 1796, was the wife of John Howard. In 1799, Thomas Elder broke up his establishment in Harbaugh's Valley and removed to Kentucky, accompanied by all his children, except Basil Spalding.

Basil Spalding, the second child of Thomas and Elizabeth (Spalding) Elder, was married to Elizabeth Snowden. To them were born thirteen children, three of whom died in infancy. Of the other ten, Eleanora became a Sister of Charity. Another daughter, Mrs. Jenkins, died in Havana in 1846, and another, Mrs. Baldwin, in Baltimore in 1772. Of the sons, Frances W. settled in Baltimore; Basil T., in St. Louis, Mo.; James C., in Baton Rouge, La.; Joseph E., in Denver, Col.; Thomas S., of New Orleans, La.; William Henry, became Bishop of Cincinnati, O.; and Charles D., of New Orleans.

James Elder, the first Catholic of his name to emigrate to Kentucky, was born in Emmitsburg district, Frederick County, in 1760, and was the son of Guy Elder and grandson of William Elder, the American progenitor. He married Ann Richards and immediately went to Kentucky, where he settled on Hordin's Creek. His brother William, joined him a few months later. James Elder died August 15, 1845, and Ann, his wife, January 8, 1857.

DAVID EYLER, deceased, in his time one of the well known agriculturists and highly respected citizens of Mechanicstown district, was born in Eyler's Valley, Frederick County, Md., February 22, 1813, and died on his farm, situated two and a-half miles north of Thurmont, on June 26, 1863. He was a son of George and Elsie (Kauffman) Eyler.

George Eyler lived in Eyler's Valley, where his parents had located after emigrating to this country from Germany and after whom it was named. The members of the family were Moravians in religion. George Eyler and his wife, Elsie Kauffman, had twelve children: Lavenia, deceased; David; Rachel, deceased; Aaron, deceased; Perry, deceased; Benjamin, deceased; Margaret, deceased; Tracy, deceased; Susan, who is a widow, and resides at State Line, Md.; Amanda, deceased; Harriet, the wife of Ephriam Harbaugh, of Waynesboro, Pa.; and Judith, deceased.

David Eyler, son of George Eyler and his wife, Elsie Kauffman, spent his life following agricultural pursuits. In politics, he was a Republican, but never sought public office. In religion, he was one of the charter members of the old Thurmont United Brethren Church, where for many years he was one of the leading members. He was married to Mary Doub, daughter of Abram and Catherine Doub, and they were the parents of eight children: William; Markwood; Enrezetta Virginia, on the old home, "Brookside"; Arbelon Clementine, who married Rev. Charles Martin Hott, of whom below; David F., deceased; and the others died in childhood.

Arbelon Clementine Eyler was married at Myersville, Md., January 23, 1877, to Rev. Charles Martin Hott, son of Rev. Jacob F. and Jane (Streit) Hott. He was born near Winchester, Va., September 11, 1851, and died in California, June 15, 1890, in the town of Woodbridge. He was a minister in the United Brethren church. He began preaching in 1869. In 1872 he united with Virginia Conference, and was ordained by Bishop Edwards. As a preacher he had but few equals in the church. At the early age of twenty-one he had filled the pulpit in connection with Lebanon Valley College, at the same time pursuing collegiate studies. In 1879, he was called to Shenandoah Institute, Dayton, Va., where he both preached and taught. He was a member of the General Conference of 1885, and for the eight years prior to his going to California, he resided at Boonsboro, Md., serving two years as presiding elder and six years as preacher. In December, 1889, he accepted a call to the United Brethren church at Woodridge, Cal., where he remained until his death a short time afterward. Rev. Charles M. and Arbelon C. (Eyler) Hott had two children: G. Dwight, manages the old Eyler farm, is a bookkeeper by profession, and married Bertha Summers, daughter of Jonas Summers, and has two sons, Dwight Kingston and Charles Eldon, and one daughter, Virginia Evangeline; and Mary Vada, with her mother on the Eyler homestead.

Rev. Jacob F. Hott, the father of Rev. Charles M. Hott, was for many years a minister in the United Brethren Church. He was married to Jane Streit. They were the parents of the following children: James William, deceased, was a bishop in the United Brethren Church and in his day ranked very high in that denomination; John E., a minister in the United Brethren Church, residing in Augusta County, Va.; Ellen F., deceased, was the wife of Rev. M. F. Keiter, also a minister in the U. B. Church; George P., a minister in the U. B. Church, located at Dayton, Va.; Charles M., deceased, married Arbelon C. Eyler; Jacob W., a merchant of Dayton, Va.; Isabella S., the wife of James M. Hott, of Winchester, Va.; and David, died while studying for the United Brethren ministry.

The Hott family was one of the early settled ones of Virginia. The American ancestor was Francis Hott, who was of French origin.

THE LATE THOMAS F. EYLER, who was the leading merchant of Sabillasville, Frederick County, Md., son of Ex-County Commissioner Charles A. and Charlotte L. (Gurley) Eyler, both deceased, was born on the old homestead, in Eyler's Valley, Mechanicstown District, Frederick Ciunty, Md., September 17, 1858.

Frederick Eyler, grandfather of Thomas F. Eyler, was born in Switzerland, April 9, 1776. In early manhood, he and a brother came to America and settled in the northern part of Frederick County, Md., where he purchased a large tract of farm and timber land and named the place of his settlement Eyler's Valley. A part of this land is still in the family, the property of his grandson, Ross R. Eyler. Mr. Eyler worked hard and was rewarded by success. On his share of the land, he built a dwelling, a barn, and all necessary out-buildings, and improved his land until the wild land had become a fair garden. Mr. Eyler became a prosperous farmer, and a highly respected citizen. He was a Democrat. Frederick Eyler was married December 15, 1809, to Margaret Willier, who was born September 11, 1783. Their children are: 1, ————, died in childhood; 2, J. Frederick, deceased, a farmer of Mechanicstown District, Frederick County; 3, Caroline, deceased, married to the late Robert Clugston, of Waynesboro, Pa.; 4, Marie, deceased, married to the late John Benchoff, of Hagerstown, Md.; 5, Lizzie E., deceased, married to the late Samuel M. Diffendall, of Mechanicstown District; 6, William, deceased; 7, Charles A.; 8, Rebecca, widow of the late George Favorite, of Thurmont, Md. Mr. Eyler and his wife were members of the United Brethren Church. Mr. Eyler and his wife died at their home in Eyler's Valley.

Charles A. Eyler, ex-County Commissioner of Frederick County, father of Thomas F. Eyler, was born on the old homestead, in Eyler's Valley, Mechanicstown District, August 30, 1818. He was educated in the public schools of Mechanicstown District, and remained with his father on the home farm. After the death of his father, Mr. Eyler and his brother, Frederick, bought from two to three hundred acres of the homestead, which they cultivated together, until the death of Frederick, when Mr. Eyler became sole owner of the property. The location of the farm is beautiful, and Mr. Eyler's intelligent cultivation, and improvements have made it one of the desirable farms of the district. Mr. Eyler was a Democrat. He was nominated by his party for County Commissioner of Frederick County, and carried the county by a large majority. He discharged the duties of the office promptly and efficiently, giving satisfaction to all. He was a prosperous farmer, and an honored citizen of Frederick County. Charles A. Eyler was married, October 29, 1857, to Charlotte L., daughter of Thomas Gurley, who was a prominent citizen of Cumberland, Md. Of their eight children, five reached adult age: 1, Thomas F., a merchant of Sabillasville, Md.; 2, Ellen I., widow of Albert Colliflower, of Graceham, Md.; 3, Emma C., widow of John C. Firor, of Graceham; 4, Edward Ross, a farmer of Mechanicstown District; 5, Charles R., a farmer of Mechanicstown district. Mr. Eyler and his wife were members of the United Brethren church of Eyler's Valley. He was one of the most active workers in the church, and held office for many years. He always contributed liberally to benevolent objects. Mrs. Eyler, who was born February 20, 1835, died October 18, 1879. Mr. Eyler died at his home in Eyler's Valley, January 21, 1901, and was buried beside his wife in the cemetery of the United Brethren church in Thurmont, Md.

Thomas F. Eyler was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained with his father on the homestead until the spring of 1886, when he began business for himself as general merchant in Sabillasville, Md. His good judgment in buying, and his honest dealing soon established a large trade, and he became the leading business man of Sabillasville. He owned his beautiful home and the store in which he carried on his business successfully for twenty-two years. After his death his widow retired from business and rented the store. She still resides in her husband's home. Mr. Eyler was a Democrat. He was a member of Acacia Lodge, No. 155, A. F. and A. M., of Thurmont; and of the Junior Order of American Mechanics, Buena Vista. He was one of the leading business men of Frederick County, and was highly esteemed as a merchant and as a citizen. He was one of the directors of the Citizens' Bank of Thurmont.

Thomas F. Eyler was married to Bertha, daughter of Simon W. and Elizabeth (Smith) Harbaugh, whose father was a prominent retired farmer of Sabillasville. Her mother is living in Sabillasville. They have one child, Hazel M., at home. Mr. Eyler and his wife were members of the Lutheran church in Sabillasville. He was a liberal contributor to the church and served the congregation as deacon and as elder for many years. He died at his home in Sabillasville, July 9, 1908, and is buried in the cemetery at Thurmont, Md.

WILLIAM WARREN DOUB, secretary of the People's Fire Insurance Company of Frederick County, and a well known citizen, was born at Myersville, in Jackson District, Frederick County, April 18, 1865. He is a son of Jonas A. and Ann F. (Waters) Doub.

The Doub family is of French lineage and was among the pioneer families of Middletown Valley, in Frederick County.

Enos Doub, the grandfather of William Warren Doub, was a son of Abraham Doub. He was a native of Middletown Valley, and followed agricultural pursuits all his life. He lived to be over eighty-seven years of age. In religion, he was one of the leading members of the United Brethren Church in his district. Mr. Doub was married to Mary Sheffer. They were the parents of a large family, among whom was Jonas A.

Jonas A. Doub, son of Enos and Mary (Sheffer) Doub, was born in Jackson District, Frederick County, October 25, 1840, and died in the borough of Middletown, October 2, 1907. Mr. Doub was married to Ann F. Waters in 1863. She is a daughter of James and Ann E. (Schlosser) Waters. There were four children by this marriage: William Warren; Annie E., married H. E. Zimmerman and died October 7, 1894; Harvey L., died in childhood; and James E., of Middletown, manager of the G. L. Baking Company, Frederick, Md.

William Warren Doub, son of Jonas A. and Ann F. (Waters) Doub, grew to maturity on a farm in Middletown district, Frederick County. While a boy he was engaged in farm work and attended the public schools. He later went to the Middletown Academy. Upon the completion of his education, he was for two years a clerk for A. W. Smith, of Middletown, who conducted a general merchandise store. At the age of twenty-three years, Mr. Doub entered the employ of T. C. Rudy & Son in a similar capacity, they also operating a general store in Middletown. Here he remained for one year until 1889, when he became discount clerk for the Valley Savings Bank of Middletown, a well known financial institution of the county. This position—Bookkeeper and Teller at different periods—Mr. Doub filled until January 1, 1907, at which time he became deputy county treasurer under George W. Crown, holding this office until December 10, 1907. On that date, Mr. Doub was chosen secretary of the People's Fire Insurance Company of Frederick County. He has since been connected with this widely known enterprise and has discharged his duties with much ability. He is well known and is recognized as one of Frederick County's leading and substantial citizens.

Mr. Doub is a stanch adherent of the Republican principles in politics. Fraternally, he is connected with Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., of Frederick City, and the Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Middletown. Religiously, he holds membership in the Lutheran Church, in which he takes an active part. For the past fourteen years he has been superintendent of the Sunday School, and is treasurer of the church council.

On October 2, 1894, Mr. Doub was married to Harriet E. Remsburg, daughter of George W. and Joanna (Derr) Remsburg, a member of an old Middletown Valley family. There are three sons by this marriage: Virgil W., John W., and Donald J. (See the Doub, Remsburg and Ramsburg sketches in this volume for further history of these families).

D. W. DEITRICK, one of the foremost citizens of Frederick City and well known in milling circles, is a native of Reading, Pa., where he was born August 22, 1867.

Mr. Deitrick's ancestors were among the early settlers of Berks County, Pa. They were of sturdy German and Swiss stock, and their descendants have been and are at the present time among the leading business and agricultural people in various parts of the United States. Mr. Deitrick was educated in the Berks county schools. He first engaged in the milling business in 1892, and now operates flour mills at Philadelphia, Harrisburg and Reading, Pa., and Frederick, Md. His establishment at the last named place is known as the Mountain City Mills. This mill is a four-story brick building, equipped with all the latest and modern improved machinery for the manufacture of all grades of the finest flour. This is the foremost industry in Frederick County of its kind. The mill is located at the Baltimore and Ohio depot and has a capacity of 1000 barrels daily, the output being chiefly disposed of to the domestic trade. The plant is operated by steam.

Mr. Deitrick is strictly a self-made man, and has risen to his present position by his own efforts entirely. In politics, he is Democratic, and in religion is a member of the Reformed Church. Mr. Deitrick is a member of the New York Produce Exchange, the Commercial Exchange of Philadelphia, the Chamber of Commerce of Baltimore, the State Millers' Association of Pennsylvania and Maryland, and the Holstein Fresian Association. He is president of the Farmers' Exchange of Frederick.

ROBERT LEE DAVIS is a well-known young farmer, residing upon the old Homestead Stock and Dairy Farm, on the Washington and Frederick road, four miles from New Market. He was born on this farm, November 8, 1867, and is a son of Isaac T. and Sarah F. (Spalding) Davis.

The fine Old Homestead Farm lies along the line between the New Market and Urbana districts. It was formerly a more extensive tract than it is now. From "time out of mind," a couplet has been traditionally connected with it—very curiously, because it is not verified by facts, since every owner of that farm has been successful, and accumulated a competency; the lines are:

"Vulcan's Valley and Cowtail Hill,
For want of the money, the work stands still."

This farm has been in the same family for more than a century. It belonged to Robert Lee Davis's great-great-grandfather, William Morsell, was inherited by his great-grandfather, also a William Morsell, from whom it passed to a daughter, Rachel Morsell, who married Eli Davis, the present owner's grandfather, who bequeathed it to his son, Isaac T. Davis, as a life possession, to be inherited by his children. The old barn, which was torn down in the spring of 1907, was erected so many years ago that the oldest resident of the neighborhood has no recollection of it. On the same site, the present owner has built a fine new barn, 45x70 feet in dimensions. The residence, or a part of it, was built at the same time as the barn. The north end is built of brick, while the south end is frame, or weatherboarded logs—the north end having been burned down in the year ———, and rebuilt with bricks.

George Davis, great-grandfather of Robert Lee Davis, married Miss Elizabeth Hyatt. They spent the later years of their life with their son, Eli Davis. George Davis was by occupation a merchant. He died at the age of seventy-seven years, his wife at seventy-two; both were interred in the old Friends' graveyard, near Monrovia. Their children were: 1, Julia Ann (Mrs. Ezra Greentree); 2, Mary; 3, William, who went to Ohio, and died there; 4, Eli; 5, Isaac, all his life engaged in farming, near Sugar Loaf Mountain; he married Catherine Miles; 6, George, who married Margaret Bosley, lived and died in Baltimore; 7, John, who removed to Zanesville, O., in the service of the B. & O. R. R.; returned in later years, and died in New Market District; never married; 8, Rufus, also single, died in Urbana District; 9, Mary Ann; 10, Charlotte, (Mrs. Thomas Fowler), died in New Market District; 11, Richard, all his life engaged in farming, married Annie Williams; died in Frederick City.

Eli Davis and his wife, Rachel (Morsell) Davis, spent all their married life at the Old Homestead Farm. Both were born in the year 1809; Mrs. Davis died in 1886, and her husband followed her in 1887; both were buried by the Friends' meeting-house near Monrovia. They had united with the Methodist Protestant Church, but Mrs. Davis was of a Quaker family. Politically, Eli Davis was first a Whig and later, a Democrat. Their children were: 1, Mary, who died in early life; 2, William M., deceased, who married Antonia Windsor; 3, George W., a retired farmer of Urbana District, who married Elizabeth Price; 4, Henry Clay, who died young; 5, Isaac T.; 6, John F., of Urbana District, married Josephine Spalding; 7, Samuel B., deceased, married Rebecca Ebert; 8, Eli, died in infancy; 9, Charles G., of New Market District, married Laura Warfield; 10. James A., deceased, married Lola A. Day.

The fifth member of this family, Isaac T. Davis, was born on the Old Homestead Farm, December 16, 1841. He was educated in the public schools, began life as a farmer, and followed the same calling until his retirement from active life, a few years ago. In 1866, he married Sarah F., daughter of Elias and Nellie (Howard) Spalding. She died in May, 1905; she was a member of the Catholic Church at Urbana, where she is buried. Her early home was near Greenfield Mills, in Frederick County. Mr. Davis was a member of the same church with his wife; in politics, he was a Democrat. Their children are: 1, Robert Lee; 2, Charles Spalding, of Woodbine, Howard County, who married Jessie Molesworth, and has two children, Gasson and Frances Isabelle; 3, Nellie May (Mrs. William Gaithers), of Woodlawn, Baltimore County, has one child, Frank; 4, Louis D., of Baltimore, who married Harriet Lumpkins, has two children, Robert Spalding; Louis Detrick, Jr., 5, Rachel M., unmarried.

Robert Lee Davis was educated in the public schools. He was accustomed from boyhood to wrestling diligently with hard work. His knowledge of farming was acquired through fiften years' of experience on the farm of Mr. M. P. Wood, in New Market District. In 1908, he removed to the old "Homestead," which he purchased in 1906. He is one of the most successful young farmers in this section, intelligent and fully "up-to-date" in his methods. Beginning at the foot of the ladder, he has made a success, his farm being the best cultivated one in his vicinity.

On December 27, 1888, Robert Lee Davis married U. Cora, daughter of Uriah and Ann Louisa Layton, of Hyattstown, Md. Their children are: 1, Robert Leslie; 2, Bernard Martina; 3, Aubrey Gaffney; all at school. In political faith, Mr. Davis is a Democrat. He is a member of the Catholic Church, and Mrs. Davis of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

WILLIAM SCHNAUFFER, one of the most prominent business men of Frederick County, Md., and vice-president and treasurer of the Savings Bank at Brunswick, Md., is a native of Baltimore City, where he was born June 23, 1866. He is a son of William and Elise W. (Moos) Schnauffer.

The Schnauffer family originally came from Saxony, on the border of Prussia, where for many generations they owned salt mines. This family, as well as the Hasemeyers, of Wurtemberg, with whom they intermarried, were wealthy, patriotic and philanthropic. Thus it was natural that the Schnauffers upon their arrival in this country would be at once identified with the affairs of Baltimore, in which city they resided. The American ancestors of the family were Carl H. Schnauffer and his younger brother, William Schnauffer, sons of Johan Heinrich Schnauffer and his wife, Caroline Hasemeyer. One of the Hasemeyers had been consul at Smyrna, and the Bible used by him officially is one of the treasured heirlooms of the Schnauffer family in Baltimore. This Bible was printed in Holland in 1661. Another interesting relic is a silver medal, given to all who had aided much in relieving the famine sufferers in Wurtemberg in 1815.

Carl Heinrich Schnauffer, eldest son of Johan Heinrich and Caroline (Hasemeyer) Schnauffer, landed at Baltimore, Md., in 1851. He had been exiled with Schurz and other Germans who had participated in the unsuccessful revolution of 1848, when a constitutional monarchy was demanded as the government of Germany. For a year previous to coming to America, he had been the guest of his friend, Fothergill, on the latter's estates in Scotland and Ireland. In Baltimore in 1851, he founded the "Wecker," a daily German newspaper, which met with great success. As a poet, Mr. Schnauffer was widely and favorably known, numbers of his poems being set to music and sung in many homes. In 1854, he died suddenly of typhoid fever. Although he had resided in Baltimore but a few years he had won the respect and esteem of the community, over eight thousand people attending the services at his grave. Mr. Schnauffer was married to Elise W. Moos, daughter of Johan Adam and Caroline (Hays) Moos. Mr. Moos had been a wealthy merchant of Baden and was noted for his philanthropy. Carl H. Schnauffer was the father of two daughters. Mrs. Schnauffer was a woman of rare talent, who had received an excellent education when few women had such opportunities. After the death of her husband, Mrs. Schnauffer assumed the management of the "Wecker." In 1859, she married William Schnauffer, the younger brother of her deceased husband, who then directed the affairs of the paper until his death.

William Schnauffer emigrated to Baltimroe City in the spring of 1854, and at once became associated with his brother in the direction of the "Wecker." He was the possessor of some literary ability but was essentially a business man. He was fond of music, art and science, and his home was one of culture and refinement. Mr. Schnauffer was engaged in the management of the newspaper until his death, which occurred in 1889. From 1873, however, he had devoted much of his time to his foreign exchange and banking business. By his culture and strong character, he commanded the respect and esteem of all who knew him. He was especially widely known for his philanthropy. His newspaper, the "Wecker," from its early days, has always been a supporter of the Republican party. Its views in this direction brought it into bad repute with the lawless element in Baltimore during the Civil War. Shortly after the riot incident upon the marching of Massachusetts troops through the city in 1861, the building in which it was published was attacked by a mob, which announced its intention of destroying house and plant. Mrs. Schnauffer, who was then editress, appeared at the door with a child in her arms, and rebuked the crowd, which ended the demonstration. Mrs. Schnauffer died in 1895, after an eventful and successful career. William and Elise Schnauffer were the parents of three children: William, Lillie and Emma, of Baltimore City, Md., who were interested in art, literature, science and philanthropy.

William Schnauffer, son of William and Elise (Moos) Schnauffer, grew to manhood in Baltimore. He was educated in the public schools, Zion's Private School, by private tutoring under Professor Eley, and at the Baltimore City College. When he reached maturity, he worked in the newspaper office of his father and learned the trade of type-setting. He then studied editorial work. Later taking a general course in Bryan & Stratton's Business College of Baltimore, he entered the banking house of his father.

In December, 1902, Mr. Schnauffer came to Brunswick, Md., where he organized the Savings Bank of Brunswick which he has served as vice-president and treasurer. This is one of Frederick County's best managed financial institutions, and much of its success has been due to Mr. Schnauffer's ability and knowledge of banking. He is one of the best known citizens of the county and as a business man is very prominent. He is identified with many enterprises, his business interests being both diversified and wide in extent. In many of these industries he has served as an officer, and has always shown great executive capacity. He is president and treasurer of the Brunswick and Middletown Electric Railroad Company and is president and a director of the Harper's Ferry Light and Power Company, of Harper's Ferry, West Virginia. He is vice-president of the Redmen's Construction Company of Brunswick, and also of the Brunswick Furniture Company. He is a director in the Lovettsville and Berlin Bridge Company. He is also a stockholder in twenty-three different railroads and in national banks of Baltimore, Chicago and New York. His time is so engrossed by his many interests that Mr. Schnauffer takes but one holiday each year, and that is to attend the annual football game between the Army and the Navy.

In politics Mr. Schnauffer is a stanch Republican, although he has never aspired to any political office, preferring to devote his whole time and energy to his numerous business cares. He has served, however, as a member and treasurer of the local Republican committee for the past sixteen years, and he was a delegate from Frederick County to the National Convention which met at Chicago, June 16, 1908, and nominated William H. Taft for President. Fraternally, he is a member of Delaware Tribe, No. 43, J. O. R. M., Brunswick, of the Junior Order United American Mechanics, and the Fraternal Order of Eagles. He is also a member of the Maryland State Bankers' Association, of the Brunswick Business Men's Association, of the Brunswick Young Men's Christian Association, of the Union League of Baltimore, of the Frederick County Country Club, and of the Brunswick Fire Company. He founded the Schnauffer medal for the graduates of the Brunswick High School. In religion, he is an active member and vestryman of St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal Church, and has for six years served as treasurer of Grace Chapel of Brunswick.

Mr. Schnauffer was married December 15, 1897, to Mary West, daughter of Patrick McGill and Elenora A. (McGill) West. They are the parents of four children: Levin West, Elise W., William and Patrick McGill. Mr. and Mrs. Schnauffer in 1905 founded the private school at Grace Episcopal Church of Brunswick for the eduaction of young children. Owing to the crowded condition of the public schools, this institution has been of great benefit. Mr. Schnauffer presented John Hopkins University, at its Twenty-fifth Anniversary, $25 for the first brick in the New University Buildings, in memory of his mother, Elise W. Schnauffer.

ELMER E. DIXON, one of the enterprising young business men of Frederick County, who is engaged in trucking and is a member of the firm of Colt, Dixon & Company, packers of Frederick City, was born on a farm in Frederick district, May 21, 1876. He is a son of Thomas O. and Julia (Hiteshew) Dixon.

William T. Dixon, the grandfather of Elmer E. Dixon, was a native of Frederick County, and was of English and Scotch descent. He was the father of Thomas O. Dixon.

Thomas O. Dixon was born in Frederick district, Frederick County, on the Colonel Victor Baughman farm, in 1836, and died on a farm near Frederick City, April 1, 1890. He was a farmer by occupation and was engaged in that vocation on a tract in Frederick district, two miles west of the city of Frederick. In politics, he supported the Republican principles, and in religion he was connected with the Reformed Church. Mr. Dixon was married to Julia Hiteshew. They were the parents of these children: C. M., a clerk for the firm of Besant & Knott, of Frederick City; Harry H., engaged in the insurance business in Baltimore, Md.; Clayton T., a farmer in Frederick County; Elmer E.; and R. May, the wife of Archie

A. Ogle, of Frederick County.

Elmer E. Dixon, son of Thomas O. and Julia (Hiteshew) Dixon, was raised on his father's farm in Frederick district and secured his education in the public schools. When he was sixteen years old, he became a clerk in the store of the well known grocery firm of Besant & Knott in Frederick, where he remained for five years. At the end of that time, Mr. Dixon embarked in the grocery business on his own account at No. 7 West Patrick street, with his brother, C. Merle Dixon, where he conducted a first class grocery store for seven years. He then became a member of the firm of Colt, Dixon & Company, and engaged in the packing business from 1902 until 1906. In the latter year, he bought the old Schley farm. This tract adjoins the city of Frederick on the east, and consists of 49 acres of fine limestone land, on which is located the old Schley mansion, a four-story brick building with twenty-four large rooms. Mr. Dixon has won success by his own efforts and is held in high esteem in the community in which he resides.

Politically, Mr. Dixon is a stanch supporter of the Republican party but he has never aspired to public office. Fraternally, he is a member of Frederick Lodge, No. 684, B. P. O. E. In religious belief, he holds membership in Grace Reformed Church.

Mr. Dixon was married April 6, 1904, to Amy C. Kump, of Abiline, Kan. She is a daughter of L. H. and Annie Kump. There is one daughter by this union: Marie. Mrs. Dixon is a talented musician and singer, and is a member of Grace Reformed Church.

REV. THOMAS FREEMAN DIXON, pastor of the Frederick Presbyterian Church, is a native of Mount Washington, Baltimore County, Md., where he was born November 7, 1870. He is the son of Thomas and Rebecca (Freeman) Dixon.

Thomas Dixon, father of Rev. Thomas Freeman Dixon, was a native of Delaware, and located in Baltimore as a young man. He was an architect and was for many years associated with that well known firm of Dixon & Carson. This firm was one of the leading and most prominent firms of architects in Baltimore, and drew the plans for many fine edifices in that city. In politics, he was a life long Democrat, and in religion he was a member of the Presbyterian Church of Baltimore, in which he served as an elder for many years. Mr. Dixon was married twice: to Lydia Ann Symmons and Rebecca Freeman. He was the parent of five children: Sarah, the wife of R. J. B. Boggs, of Baltimore, Md.; Lyda, resides in Baltimore; and Eliza, by his first wife; and Thomas Freeman, of whom presently; and Rebecca by his second, the wife of George E. Wilcoxon, a leading lumber merchant of Frederick, a sketch of whom appears in this work.

Thomas Freeman Dixon was reared in Baltimore County and City. He was educated in the public schools of Baltimore and was graduated from the Baltimore City College in 1890. In the fall of 1890 he entered the Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N. J., from which he was graduated in 1893. Also doing post graduate work at Princeton University in Philosophy and Ethics. The same year he took the pastorate of the Mount Paran charge, where he remained until 1897. In April of that year he accepted a call to the Presbyterian congregation at Frederick, where he has since remained in active charge. Mr. Dixon has made many friends since coming to Frederick, and is much beloved by his parishioners. In politics he is a Democrat, and fraternally is a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., and King David Lodge, No. 50, I. O. O. F., of Frederick City. He received the degree of D. D., in 1909.

Rev. Thomas Freeman Dixon was married in 1896, to Sarah A. Odell, a daughter of William C. Odell, of Baltimore County, Md.

The Presbyterian Church of Frederick was founded in 1780, and is one of the historic churches of Frederick County. The present church edifice was completed in 1831, and the same time the manse was built. The present chapel was erected in 1884. Since Rev. Dr. Dixon's pastorate the church has been completely renovated, and has recently installed and dedicated a new pipe organ. The pastors that have officiated in the church since its organization are as follows: Rev. Stephen B. Balch, 1780-90; Rev. David Baird, 1790-97; Rev. Samuel Knox, 1797-1803; Rev. Patrick Davison, 1810-24; Rev. James G. Hamner, 1830-33; Rev. Philo F. Phelps, 1835-36; Rev. James Smith, 1838-43; Rev. John Miller, 1843-48; Rev. Joseph Adkins, 1848-55; Rev. John B. Rass, 1857-62; Rev. Rob H. Williams, 1864-80; Rev. Irwin P. McCurdy, 1881-84; Rev. William L. Ould, 1884-90; Rev. David J. Beal, 1891-96; and Rev. Thomas Freeman Dixon, 1897—.

GEORGE W. DEAN, deceased, was one of the honored and highly respected citizens of Frederick County. He was born on the old Moses Worman farm in Frederick district, January 31, 1836, and died May 14th, 1908, at his home in Frederick City. He was a son of John and Margaret (Barrick) Dean.

The Dean family is of Scotch-Irish origin. For full history of the family see sketch of George A. Dean in this volume.

John Dean, the father of George W. Dean, was a son of John Dean. He followed agricultural pursuits. In politics, he was an adherent of the Republican party, and in religious belief he was a Presbyterian. Mr. Dean was married to Margaret Barrick. They were the parents of these children: John; Annie, married John E. Gittinger; George W.; and three that died before reaching maturity.

George W. Dean was reared on his father's farm and was educated in the old fashioned pay schools of the county. All of his active life, he followed the occupation of a farmer. He was the owner of one of the best farms in Frederick County, situated about three miles north of Frederick City, consisting of 150 acres of fine limestone land. This place he sold in 1905 to John K. Robinson for $11,000. Ill health had compelled him to relinquish active farm work, and he removed to Frederick City, where he remained until his death. He was successful at agriculture and was a practical and progressive farmer. He took pride in keeping his farm in first class condition and well improved with modern buildings and late farm machinery. Mr. Dean was widely known throughout the county and possessed the esteem of all who knew him.

In politics, Mr. Dean was all of his life an adherent of the Republican party. In religion, he was a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church, in which he served as a deacon for many years.

Mr. Dean was married in 1870 to Laura Ganso, of Frederick. There were five children by this marriage: Roberta W., the wife of Charles B. T. Hendrickson, teller in the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank of Frederick; John, died without marrying; Stewart, a physician, lives in the West; Nellie, the wife of Frank Weller; and Alice, at home with her mother.

CORNELIUS E. DERR, a retired farmer of Creagerstown District, Frederick County, Md., son of Samuel and Mary M. (Yaste) Derr, was born in Middletown District, Frederick County, Md., December 7, 1845.

Jacob Derr, grandfather of Cornelius E. Derr, was one of the early settlers of the Middletown Valley. He was of German descent, and owned a fine farm in Middletown district, where he was prominent among the farmers of his generation. He was married to a Miss Long, both now deceased.

The late Samuel Derr, father of Cornelius E. Derr, was a successful farmer of Middletown District, where he was born in Middletown Valley. He received his education in the public schools of his native district, and devoted his life to the cultivation of the soil. He remained at home, working with his father, until he began farming for himself on the homestead, which he cultivated for his father until his father died, and afterwards farmed for his mother until her death. After the death of his parents, Mr. Derr purchased the homestead from the heirs. This property, consisting of 140 acres of fine farming land, is situated about three miles northwest of Middletown. Through his untiring efforts Mr. Derr's farm became one of the best in the district, and some years before his death, he was able to retire from active farm life, but he never left the home in which he had spent his life. Mr. Derr was a Republican, and was highly respected by the citizens of the Middletown Valley. Samuel Derr was married to Mary M., daughter of Samuel and Mary (Yantzey) Yaste. Mrs. Derr's parents were prominent in Middletown Valley and afterwards in Ohio. Of their ten children nine reached maturity: 1, Cornelius E.; 2, Manzella C., married the Rev. J. R. Ridenour, of Middletown, Md.; 3, Lucinda F., of Middletown; 4, Margaret E., married the Rev. Henry Koogle, of Chapman, Kan.; 5, the Rev. Samuel, of Neppico, Carroll County, Md.; 6, Daniel C., farming in Middletown District; 7, Mary A., married Charles Rice, a farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County; 8, Luther Z., merchant, Middletown, Md.; 9, John T., a farmer of Middletown District. Mr. Derr and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church in Middletown. For many years he was an office bearer in the church and in the Sunday School belonging to the church. He died at his home in Middletown District, and is buried in the Lutheran cemetery in Middletown; his widow, who died in 1905, rests beside him.

Cornelius E. Derr received his education in the public schools of Middletown District, and remained with his parents, working on the homestead, until after his marriage. Mr. Derr began farming for himself on a place belonging to his mother-in-law, Lydia (Tomes) Metzger. After cultivating it for two years, he purchased his homestead, the property of Ephraim Myers, a fertile farm of 130 acres situated in Creagerstown District, a mile and a-half from Creagerstown, on the road leading from Creagerstown to Utica, Md. Mr. Derr spent the greater part of his life in cultivating and improving this property. He remodeled the old stone house, built in 1780, making it comfortable and beautiful, built a fine bank barn, and all the necessary outbuildings, and made his place an ornament to the district. Mr. Derr attributes his success to hard work and close application to business. In 1909 he retired from active farm life to enjoy his well-earned rest from toil. He is a Republican, highly esteemed by his fellow citizens.

Cornelius E. Derr was married to Mary E., daughter of William and Lydia (Tomes) Metzger. Mrs. Derr's parents were prominent citizens of Myersville, Jackson District, Frederick County. The children of Cornelius and Mary E. (Metzger) Derr are: 1, William S. T., salesman, Vancouver, Wash.; 2, Maurice M., farming in Creagerstown district; 3, Bessie, Mrs. Frederick Hull, of Westminster; 4, Luther E., of Virginia; 5, Estella, died in childhood; 6, Roy V., a student at Gettysburg College; 7, Ada, married Abraham Derr, a farmer of Lewistown district; 8, Lulu B., at home; 9, Mamie F., at home; 10, Beulah J., in Vancouver, Wash., with her brother William; 11, C. Paul, makes his home with his brother, Maurice, on the home farm. Mrs. Derr died in 1905, shortly after her return from a trip to California whither her husband had taken her in search of health. She rests in the Lutheran cemetery in Middletown. In 1908, Mr. Derr was married to Annie E. (Putman) Warner, widow of John Warner. They have no children. Mr. Derr is a devout member of St. John's Lutheran Church in Creagerstown, in which he has held the office of deacon, and is now an elder.

JAMES E. DOLL, proprietor of the jewelry store at No. 9, South Market street, Frederick, is one of the prosperous and active merchants of that place. He was born in Frederick, September 19, 1867, and is a son of Lewis H. and Annie H. (Ogle) Doll.

The Doll family was early settled in Frederick County. Ezra Doll, the grandfather of James E. Doll, died about 1842. He was a farmer throughout his life. In politics, he was an old line Whig. The name of his wife was Harriet, and they were the parents of the following children: Joseph; Lewis H.; Samuel V.; Melvin E., of Frederick City (whose sketch see for further history of the Doll family); Leander; and Louisa, deceased, was the wife of Harry H. Stahle, who was for many years the editor of the Gettysburg Compiler.

Lewis H. Doll, son of Ezra and Harriet Doll, was born in Frederick in 1831, and died there, December 5, 1890. He followed the occupation of a merchant tailor. In politics, he was an active supporter of the Democratic party and was at one time mayor of Frederick. He was a consistent member of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Doll was held in high esteem by all who knew him and was a prominent citizen of the city in his day. He was married to Annie H. Ogle. They were the parents of five children, four of whom attained their majority: Annetta, the wife of J. M. Diffendal, of Frederick City; Louisa, is unmarried; C. Mantz, manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company at Frederick; and James E.

James E. Doll, son of Lewis H. and Annie H. (Ogle) Doll, was reared in Frederick, and received his education in the public schools and St. John's College in his native place. In 1878, being then twelve years old, he went into the well known jewelry store of J. W. Morris, of Frederick, where he served in the capacity of a clerk for many years and afterwards acted as manager of the business. In 1904, Mr. Doll purchased the establishment and has since conducted this well known house under his own name. He carries the largest stock of watches, jewelry and optical goods in Frederick, and his store, which is located in the Cline building, is a most attractive one. He commands a large trade, and his business takes high rank in its own particular branch of trade. Mr. Doll has prospered in the management of the enterprise, and is recognized as one of Frederick's successful business men.

In politics, Mr. Doll supports the principles of the Democratic party. He is a member of St. John's Catholic Church of Frederick. He also holds membership in the Catholic Benevolent Legion, and in Frederick City Lodge, No. 684, B. P. O. E.

Mr. Doll was married September 16, 1907, to Gertrude Spalding, daughter of John Spalding, of Gettysburg, Pa., a member of an old Adams County, Pa., family.

JOSEPH W. L. CARTY, one of the well-known and leading citizens of Frederick City, Md., and cashier of the Frederick County National Bank, was born in Frederick, April 12, 1867. He is a son of Joseph W. L. and Mary M. (Lugenbeel) Carty.

William P. Carty, the grandfather of Joseph W. L. Carty, was a native of Frederick County, Md. His father removed from Philadelphia, Pa., and settled in Frederick County in the early days. He was of Scotch antecedents. William P. Carty was married to Henrietta Haller, a native of Frederick County.

Joseph W. L. Carty, father of Joseph W. L. Carty, was born in Frederick City, Md., in 1823, where he died in 1867. (For a complete sketch of him, see the biography of Clarence C. Carty in this work). Mr. Carty was twice married. He was married first to Margaret C. Hardt. They were the parents of two sons: Charles P., deceased; and Clarence C. He was married secondly to Mary M. Lugenbeel. They were the parents of three children: Alton B., in the employ of the Government at Washington, D. C.; Daisy E., the widow of William Conklin, of Boston, Mass.; and Joseph W. L.

Joseph W. L. Carty, son of Joseph W. L. and Mary M. (Lugenbeel) Carty, was reared in Frederick, the place of his nativity, and there received his education in the public schools. At the age of fifteen, he began to learn the printers' trade in the office of the Frederick City Times. Here he remained for two years, at the end of which time he accepted a position in the job department of the Frederick News. In 1885, he received an appointment as a clerk in the Frederick Post Office, and in 1887, he was made assistant postmaster under R. B. Henderson. He filled this position for one year, when he became discount clerk in the Frederick County National Bank.

Since first entering the employ of the Frederick County National Bank in 1888, Mr. Carty has ever since remained with that institution. In 1889 he was promoted from discount clerk to the position of teller, and in 1892, he was elected to the office of cashier, in which capacity he is still serving. Since becoming cashier he has managed the affairs of the institution with an ability, foresight and sagacity that stamp him as a man of high executive capacity and rare financial acumen. The institution with which he is connected is one of the most substantial and leading financial enterprises of Western Maryland. Mr. Carty is one of the best known and most prominent citizens of Frederick, and commands the respect and confidence of business and financial circles generally. His business methods have always been characterized by the highest principles, and he is held in high esteem by all who know him.

In politics, Mr. Carty is an adherent of the Democratic party. He is affiliated in a religious way with the Evangelical Reformed Church, of Frederick, in which he is an active member and serves as an elder. Fraternally, he is a member of Lynch Lodge, No. 163, A. F. & A. M., of which he is Past-Master, and of Enoch Royal Arch Chapter, No. 23, Royal Arch Masons. Mr. Carty is secretary and treasurer of the Masonic Temple Association of Frederick, and has served in a similar capacity with the Frederick Building Association since its organization in 1895.

Mr. Carty was married November 5, 1890, to Minnie R. Dixon, daughter of Charles F. Dixon, of Frederick City. They are the parents of two daughters: Mary Virginia and Nannie Roberta.

GEORGE HENRY RIGGS, M. D., of Riggs Cottage Sanitarium for Nervous and Mental Diseases, Ijamsville, Md., son of the Hon. Christopher M. and Angeline (LaBarre) Riggs, was born at the family homestead near Ijamsville, Md., June 20, 1870.

Dr. Riggs is of Colonial ancestry, on both the paternal and material sides. John Riggs, his first ancestor in this country, was the son of Ralph and Mary (Blake) Riggs, of Southampton, England. He came to this country and settled in Anne Arundel County in 1716, where his name first appears in the will of John Marriott, as the legatee of fifty acres of "Shepherds Forrest." This tract had been taken up by Nicholas Shepherd in the neighborhood of Indian Landing, close to which lived Thomas Davis, whose daughter Mary married John Riggs (at St. Johns Church, Annapolis) January 16, 1721. He afterwards acquired large tracts of land overlooking what is now the town of Laurel, Md., to which he gave the name of "Riggs Hills." His twelfth son, Capt. Amon Riggs, of the Continental Army, born April 21, 1748, married Ruth Griffith, daughter of the Hon. Henry and Elizabeth (Dorsey) Griffith, and inherited the family homestead, "Riggs Hills," in Montgomery County. Their eldest son John, born November 20th, 1770, married Esther, daughter of Benjamin Willett, December 18, 1794. Their eldest son Henry, born July 11, 1796, married Rebecca, daughter of Capt. Christian (War of 1812) and Ruth (Ijams) Mussetter. Their third child, Christopher Mussetter, father of Dr. Riggs, was born December 29, 1825, and married Angeline LaBarre, March 15, 1867. He was three times a member of the Legislature of Maryland.

On the maternal side Dr. Riggs' ancestors were natives of France. His great-grandfather, George Royal LaBarre, came to America with his brother, as soldiers under General LaFayette, and bore their share in the sufferings and dangers of 1776. His mother's grandfather, on the maternal side, Col. Abraham Long, was also an officer of the Continental Army.

George Henry Riggs, attended the public schools of Frederick County and after spending one year in the schools of Baltimore, continued his studies at Glenellen Academy. At the age of eighteen he entered the medical department of the University of Maryland, and graduated from that institution in the class of 1891. Soon after graduation he was appointed Associate Resident Physician at Conrad's Sanitarium for Nervous and Mental Diseases, at Relay, the first private institution of the kind in Maryland. In 1896 he established his Sanitarium at Ijamsville, Md., devoting his time and talents to his specialty. Dr. Riggs is a member of the County, State and National Medical Societies. On July 1, 1896, he married Cordelia, daughter of Benjamin and Anna (Eichelberger) Duvall, of Frederick, Md. They have two children, Evelyn Rebecca, and George Henry.

JACOB M. BIRELY, an energetic and successful merchant of Frederick City, who deals in pianos, organs and all kinds of musical instruments, with an establishment at the corner of Market and Church streets, was born in Middleburg district, Carroll County, Md., June 9, 1845. He is a son of William and Elizabeth Birely.

Jacob Birely, the grandfather of Jacob M. Birely, was a native of Frederick County, whose antecedents had settled early in that section of Maryland. He was a tanner by trade, and was the father of five children that grew to maturity; Lewis, David, William, Mary and Norris.

William Birely, son of Jacob Birely, was born in 1816, and died in 1852. He lived in Carroll County, Md. In his political views, he was an old line Whig. In religion, he was connected with the Lutheran Church. The name of his wife was Elizabeth. She was born about 1818, and died in 1897. They were the parents of six children: Margaret, married Lewis Cash; Catharine, the wife of Neill Haugh; Amanda, died young; Ella, the wife of Samuel C. Haugh; Thomas F., a farmer of Middleburg, Carroll County, Md.; and Jacob M.

Jacob M. Birely, son of William and Elizabeth Birely, was raised on a farm and was educated in the public schools. He was engaged in farm work until he was sixteen years of age, when he began to learn the trade of a miller, under William Ammon, on Double Pipe Creek, in Frederick County, Md. After following his trade for five years, he embarked in the general merchandising business at Ladiesburg, Md. He was engaged in this line for six years. He then turned his attention to the sale of musical instruments, having his headquarters at Ladiesburg, Md. In 1890, Mr. Birely came to Frederick City, and founded Birely's Palace of Music, and in 1902, he located at his present stand. Mr. Birely is numbered among the prosperous and successful business men of Frederick. He has one of the best establishments of its kind in the city and he does a large business in his own branch of trade.

In politics, Mr. Birely is a strong Republican. In 1903, he was the choice of his party for the office of judge of the Orphans' Court of Frederick County. In fraternal circles, he is identified with King David Lodge, No. 50, I. O. O. F., of Frederick, of which he was one of the charter members. In church affairs, he is a member of the Lutheran congregation at Frederick, and has served as an officer.

Mr. Birely was married in 1866 to Ella Feeser, daughter of John Feeser, of Carroll County, Md. There were four children by this marriage: Daisy, the wife of Robert A. Kemp, cashier of the Central National Bank of Frederick, (see his sketch); Willie, died in August, 1903, at the age of thirty-one years; Lillie, is unmarried and resides with her parents; and Lottie, died in childhood.

COLONEL ANTHONY Z. KIMMEL, deceased, was born July 2, 1836, on his father's farm in Liberty District, Frederick County, Md., near the boundary line of the New Market District. His father was Major General Anthony Kimmel. Colonel Anthony Z. Kimmel who served on the staff of Governor Bowie, of Maryland, and was afterwards a brigadier general of militia. General Kimmel was born, March 17, 1746, in Manheim, Germany, from which place his father, Anthony Z. Kimmel, with six brothers, emigrated, in 1750, to America. The six brothers settled in Lancaster County, Pa., and in all probability gave its name to the town of Manheim, in that county, and to the Manheim turnpike. Their descendants are scattered throughout Pennsylvania, and are found in other parts of the country.

Anthony Kimmel was the progenitor of the the Kimmels of Maryland. He resided on Howard street, in Baltimore, and there engaged in the hardware business, and in banking. Many of his family were members of the old Church of the Disciples of Christ, which stood on the corner of Paca and Lombard streets, with a burial ground attached. When this graveyard was condemned by the City of Baltimore, Colonel Kimmel re-interred the bodies of deceased members of the family which had been buried there, in the Loudon Park Cemetery.

The Kimmel family is of Saxon ancestry. Maj. General Anthony Kimmel, son of the first settler in Baltimore, was born in that city, March 22, 1798. He received his education at St. Mary's College, and afterwards engaged with his brother, Michael, in the hardware business, on Howard street. A short time after, he withdrew from the firm and came to Frederick County, where he was married, October 17, 1822, to Sidney Ann, daughter of Major Daniel and Margaret (Clemson) James. After his marriage, he settled upon a farm opposite to that of the James family, where he was eminently successful as an agriculturist. His thrifty husbandry won for him the well-merited title par excellence, of "The Farmer of the Linganore."

For more than ten years, General Kimmel was vice-president of the county, state and national agricultural societies. He was initiated, March 19, 1819, in the Concordia Lodge No. 1, A. F. and A. M., of Baltimore. In 1822, he was Master of Lafayette Lodge No. 79, at Liberty, Frederick County. He was exalted about 1829, in Concordia Lodge No. 1, and very soon after, was dubbed a Knight Templar, in Maryland Commandery No. 1. For about fifty years, he was a regular attendant at the communications of this Grand Lodge, and during that time filled all offices with dignity and ability. As an evidence of the high esteem he enjoyed, he was, in 1859, elected Grand Master. General Kimmel visited Europe, and was everywhere received and treated by the craft, and others, with well-merited distinction. Having entered the political arena early in life, as a zealous Federalist, he was made president, in 1826, of the State Convention which advocated such a reform in the Constitution as would allow the people to vote directly, in the election of the governor of the State. General Kimmel was one of the presidential electors when the Harrison-Tyler ticket was nominated. In 1857, his fellow-citizens again called him from retirement, to be a State Senator, which position he held until 1861.

As a soldier, General Kimmel's record is an honorable one. He was but a boy when he volunteered, and assisted in erecting fortifications to defend his native city, also participating in the battle of North Point. As a reward for his gallantry on that memorable occasion, he was elected, in 1816, corporal of the then "crack" company—the "Columbian Volunteers," of the Fifth Maryland Militia. In 1819, he was transferred to the cavalry, and appointed adjutant of the Fifth Maryland Cavalry. In 1822, he was commissioned by Governor Hicks as Major General, commanding the Fourth Division of Maryland Militia. He was, therefore, on duty and in commission, as a Mason and as a soldier, for more than a half-century, during which period he had the rare honor as commanding officer, of receiving General Lafayette, and also of sitting in the Lodge with that illustrious hero and brother.

General Kimmel was, by birth and breeding, essentially a gentleman. With a mind enriched by a liberal education; a courtly address, acquired in the highest social circles; a generous disposition, a heart as warm as his hand was always open; and withal, gifted with a genial temperament,—overflowing with the "milk of human kindness," yet ever delighting in fun and merriment,—he was a favorite companion among all who had the pleasure of his friendship. While living on Linganore's beautiful banks, he dispensed the rites of rural hospitality with grace and dignity. Truly may it be said of him that the doors of his mansion swung upon the hinges of hospitality; and they opened to welcome a wayworn and distressed stranger as readily as to entertain a friend, a neighbor, or a brother. He remained hale and hearty to the last, retaining much of the elasticity of youth, and all of its freshness of feeling, and chivalrous devotion to true womanhood. He was, as it were, guarded by troops of admiring friends, surrounded by loving neighbors, and entwined in the affectionate embraces of his descendants. General Kimmel well deserved the enviable distinction deserved by so few—that of being a fine specimen of the Maryland gentleman of the older school. All these qualities, added to his fluency of speech, his buoyant temperament, enterprising nature and executive genius, his wit and humor, contributed to make him a strong and influential public speaker.

General Kimmel died in 1871, and was buried in Loudon Cemetery, Baltimore. He was an Episcopalian. His political tenets were those of an ardent Democrat. His wife died about 1851, aged about forty years. Of their family of six children, Anthony Z. was the only one who grew to manhood. At the time of his mother's death, he was twelve years of age. He had begun his education at Frederick College, and now entered St. Timothy's Hall, at Catonsville, Md. He next studied for a time at Princeton, and then in the Law School of the University of Virginia, ending his education at Cambridge, Mass. Returning to Frederick, he continued his legal studies with Wm. J. Ross, Esq., as his preceptor; he subsequently graduated from the Harvard Law School. It was his intention to practice law; but his uncle, Sir Pratby James, dying about this time, and having bequeathed to him Linganore Farm, he decided to lead the life of a farmer; and he continued, so long as he lived, to cultivate this farm. Since that time, many and great changes have taken place. His inheritance consisted of 1,400 acres, lying in New Market, Liberty and Woodville Districts. During the Civil War, he owned about one hundred slaves; but when President Lincoln issued his famous Emancipation Proclamation, they were lost to him; forty-two of them left the Linganore Farm on that day. The old slave-quarters are still standing. Before his death, Colonel Kimmel sold Linganore to Lewis F. Dietrich, of Baltimore, but remained on the farm until he died, in March, 1896. He was buried on the farm, in the family burial-plot. Around it is a stone wall four feet in height, and four feet across the top. In the plot is a weeping-willow, which had been brought by Colonel Kimmel's father from the grave of Napoleon; also four honey-locust trees, which sprang from a twig that he gathered on the Pincian Hill, at Rome.

Anthony Z. Kimmel was a colonel on the staff of Governor Bowie. He was married January 24, 1860, to Mary, daughter of Thomas and Mary (Rollington) Morgan, of Frederick City; she received her education at the Woman's College of her native city, and from private tutors. Their children are: 1, Pratby James; 2, Anthony Z., who died aged nineteen years; 3, Mary, unmarried; 4, Thomas Morgan; 5, Ellen, who married Joseph Kent Hill, great-grandson of Governor Kent, of Maryland; they reside in Baltimore, and have two children, William Kimmel, and Frederick J.

PRATBY JAMES KIMMEL, eldest son of Colonel Anthony Z. and Mary (Morgan) Kimmel, was born at Linganore Farm, November 28, 1860, and educated at Frederick College. He married Nannie Pottinger, daughter of Dr. J. Gregg and Susan (Waters) Gibson, of Shepherdstown, W. Va. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Pratby J. Kimmel are: 1, Mary Morgan, a trained nurse in the Maryland University Hospital; 2, Agnes Gibson, of Baltimore; 3, Eleanor James, of Baltimore; 4, Anthony Z., at home; 5, William W., at home; 6, Elizabeth Marshall, at home.

THOMAS MORGAN, the father of Mrs. Anthony Z. Kimmel, was born in Frederick, and educated at the Frederick College. He was a well-known citizen, having for many years filled the position of Cashier of the Farmers' and Mechanics Bank. While still a young man, he served as sheriff of Frederick County. He died in Frederick in 1861, aged seventy years. He was an Episcopalian, and a Democrat. His wife also died in Frederick City, about 1872, aged 68 years. She was a descendant of William Rollington, who emigrated from England to this country, and married a Miss Ernst, of Philadelphia. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morgan had eleven children, of whom Mrs. A. Z. Kimmel was the youngest. The Morgan family is of Scotch descent; but Mrs. Kimmel's grandfather, Thomas Morgan, Sr., was born in Frederick; her father was his only child.

CHARLES HENRY CONLEY, M. D., a successful practitioner and one of the representative citizens of Frederick County, who resides at his fine country home "Guilford" on the Frederick and Buckeystown pike, was born at Silver Spring, Montgomery County, Md., April 7, 1876. His parents are Charles William and Martha E. (Larrick) Conley.

Thomas Y. Conley, the grandfather of Dr. Charles Henry Conley, was a native of the north of Ireland, and came to this country from his native land in 1801 or '02. He was married to Helen Mary Fuller, daughter of Aaron Fuller, who at one time owned the old Kirkwood Hotel in Washington, D. C., on which site now stands the New Willard Hotel. The Fuller family is of English lineage, and among its members is Chief Justice Fuller, whose ancestors came over on the "Mayflower" and settled in Boston among the early families in the New World. Thomas Y. and Helen Mary Conley were the parents of Charles William Conley.

Charles William Conley, son of Thomas Y. and Helen Mary (Fuller) Conley, spent his active life in agricultural pursuits. He is now living retired near Silver Spring, Montgomery County, Md. Mr. Conley was married to Martha E. Larrick. They were the parents of four children: Helen Mary, the wife of Dr. William T. Brown, of Montgomery County, Md.; Clara B., the wife of Dr. Eugene Jones, of Kensington, Montgomery County, Md.; Edgar Thomas, was graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1897, now a captain in the army in charge of the cadets at Maryland Agricultural College, College Park, Md.; and Charles Henry.

Charles Henry Conley, son of Charles William and Martha E. (Larrick) Conley, was reared at Silver Spring, Montgomery County, Md. He received his education in private schools, the Episcopal High School, near Alexandria, Va., the Maryland Agricultural College, and began the study of medicine at the University of Virginia, completing his course in the Baltimore Medical College, from which institution he was graduated with the degree of M. D. in 1898. Dr. Conley then served two years as house physician, after which he located in Adamstown, Frederick County, Md., going there in 1900. He has since continued to practice his profession and has achieved much success in the exacting field to which he has devoted himself. He soon acquired a large practice due to his recognized ability.

Dr. Conley in 1908 purchased the old McPherson farm of 110 acres, on which he now resides. This tract is situated one mile south of Frederick City, and is an excellent country home. Dr. Conley is one of the well-known citizens of the county. As a citizen he is public spirited, and has been a supporter of all worthy enterprises that tended to increase the general welfare. He is a director in the Citizens' National Bank and in the Frederick County Agricultural Society.

Politically, Dr. Conley is a stanch supporter of the Jeffersonian Democracy, and has served as chairman of the Democratic Central Committee of Frederick County since 1907. At the election of November, 1908, he was a candidate for Presidential elector. Fraternally, Dr. Conley is affilated with the Masonic Order, and Frederick City Lodge, No. 684, B. P. O. E. He also holds membership in the Frederick County Medical Society, the Medico-Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland, and the American Medical Association. In religion, he is connected with the Episcopal Church. Dr. Conley is a member of the medical staff of the Frederick City Hospital; a director in the State Sanitarium for the treatment of tuberculosis at Sabillasville, Frederick County, and the Eudowood Tuberculosis Sanitarium of Baltimore County, Md., and is a surgeon for the B. & O. R. R.

Dr. Conley was married December 12, 1905, to Helen Abell Baughman, daughter of L. Victor and Helen (Abell) Baughman, of Frederick County (see Mr. Baughman's sketch). There are two children by this marriage: Charles Henry and Helen Abell.

JOHN M. CULLER, a well-known grocer of Frederick City, Md., son of William L. and Jennie R. (Wiles) Culler, was born on his father's farm near Middletown, Md., January 22, 1880.

Mr. Culler's grandfather, William Culler, was one of the old residents of the Middletown Valley, where he spent his life in the cultivation of the soil. He was highly regarded as a good citizen. William Culler was married to Alice Brandenburg. Among their children was a son named William L. Culler.

William L. Culler, son of William and Alice (Brandenburg) Culler, and father of John M. Culler, was born in the Middletown Valley, December 25, 1851. He was educated in the public schools of Middletown District, and began farming when quite a young man. He was an excellent farmer and devoted his life to agricultural pursuits. After cultivating rented land for some time, Mr. Culler purchased a farm of 50 acres lying along the Harmony road. He has improved this property in every way and, by hard work and close attention to the needs of the soil, has brought the land to a high state of cultivation, and made the place known as one of the best small farms in the district. Mr. Culler is a Democrat, interested in all that concerns the good of the district. William L. Culler was married to Jennie R., daughter of Thomas Wiles, an old resident of the Middletown Valley. Their children are: 1, George W., a carpenter of Middletown District; 2, Alta V., married to Newton S. Bussard, a farmer of Middletown District; 3, John M.; 4, Morris L., a farmer of Middletown District; 5, Charles H., of Washington, D. C.; 6, Blanch, at home; 7, Lloyd, at home. Mr. Culler and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church in Middletown.

John M. Culler received his education in the public schools of Middletown District. He remained on the home farm until he attained his majority, when he began business for himself. After working as a farm laborer for eighteen months, Mr. Culler secured a position as clerk with the late William S. Ray, general merchant at Pearl, Frederick County, Md. Eighteen months later, he purchased his present business, known as the old Phoebus stand, on West Patrick street, Frederick City, Md. He has stocked his store with a large line of fine groceries, and is doing an excellent business. In 1908, Mr. Culler bought his comfortable home on West Patrick street, the property of George Lewis. He remodeled the house and improved the place in every respect. He afterwards bought, of Elsworth Phoebus, the house in which his store is located, and this property also he has greatly improved. Mr. Culler, who is an enterprising business man, ascribes his financial success to industry and strict attention to business. Mr. Culler is one of the rising men of Frederick City. He is a member of the Modern Brotherhood of America.

John M. Culler was married to Mary A., daughter of the late Milton A. and Fannie (Copland) Biggs. They have no children. Mr. Culler is a member of the Lutheran Church in Middletown, Md. His wife holds her membership in the Presbyterian Church in Frederick City.

THE HON. LEWIS D. CRAWFORD, member of the Maryland Legislature of 1904, Principal of the Deerfield public schools, Deerfield, Md., son of the late George H. and Laura E. (Birely) Crawford, was born in Sabillasville, Md., November 9, 1868. Mr. Crawford's grandfather, Thomas H. Crawford, was born in Ireland, where his childhood and youth were spent. He came to America in early manhood and settled near Sabillasville, Hauvers district, Frederick County, Md., where he was employed as a laborer. He married and among their children was a son named George H. Crawford. Thomas H. Crawford and his wife died at their home near Sabillasville, Md.

The late Lieutenant George H. Crawford, father of Lewis D. Crawford, was born at his father's home near Sabillasville, Md. He was educated in the public schools of Sabillasville, and taught for a short time before the Civil War. In 1862, Mr. Crawford enlisted in Company D, Sixth Maryland Infantry. This company was drawn from Sabillasville and Thurmont, and was in the field for three years. He took part in a number of severe battles, saw hard fighting in the Battle of the Wilderness, and lost his left arm in the battle of Cedar Creek. He was promoted several times for bravery on the field, and was mustered out as lieutenant of his company. After the close of the war, he returned to his profession, but was forced to abandon it on account of failing health, caused by the wound he had received. He was then appointed school commissioner of Frederick County, a position which he filled with credit. Some time after he was appointed to an office under the Federal Government at Washington, D. C., but his health was so broken by his wound that he was unable to discharge the duties devolving upon him. Lieutenant Crawford was a Republican, and was highly esteemed as a citizen. George H. Crawford was married to Laura E., daughter of John and Susan (Miller) Birely, whose father was prominent among the older residents of Sabillasville. Their children are: 1, George M., a farmer of Hauvers District; 2, Blanche S., married to Alfred Taggart, a farmer residing near Smithsburg, Washington County, Md.; 3, Maud M., (Mrs. Adam H. Anders), of Sabillasville; 4, Lewis D.; 5, Bruce L., of Blue Ridge Summit. Mr. Crawford and his wife were members of the German Reformed Church in Sabillasville. He was a liberal contributor, and an active worker in the church. He died in February, 1872, and is buried in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Sabillasville, Md. His widow resides in Sabillasville, Md.

Lewis D. Crawford was only three years old when his father died. He received his education in the public schools of the district, and remained on the home farm assisting his mother until he married. When he was twenty, he began teaching in Eyler's Valley. He afterwards taught in Emmitsburg, and from there removed to Deerfield where he has been teaching successfully for the last eighteen years. He is a prosperous man, and owns his beautiful two-story frame dwelling in Deerfield. Mr. Crawford is one of the leading Republicans of Hauvers District. In 1903, he was elected by the party to the Legislature of Maryland, and took his seat in that body in 1904. He is a member of Acacia Lodge, No. 155, A. F. and A. M., of Thurmont; of the I. O. O. F., of Thurmont; the J. O. of A. M., No. 25, of Buena Vista. Mr. Crawford is highly esteemed as a business man, a successful instructor and as a good citizen.

Lewis D. Crawford was married to Edna M., daughter of Maurice and Flora (Shafer) Sheffer, whose father is a prominent farmer of Fairfield, Pa. They have two children: Helen K., and Ethel L., both at home. Mr. Crawford and his wife are members of Saint Mark's Lutheran Church in Sabillasville.

CHARLES A. CASTLE, manufacturer of saddles and all manner of harness, who is a leading citizen of Frederick City, was born on a farm near Boliver, in Middletown district, Frederick County, March 25, 1851. He is a son of Daniel Castle of T. and his wife, Susan Routzahn.

Thomas Castle, the grandfather of Charles A. Castle, was a native of Frederick County, and a descendant of one of the pioneer families of that part of Maryland. He was married to Barbara Long, also born in Frederick County. They were the parents of Daniel Castle.

Daniel Castle, son of Thomas and Barbara (Long) Castle, was born in Middletown Valley in 1817, and died in 1896. In his later years, he was engaged in the mercantile business. He was married to Susan Routzahn, daughter of George Routzahn. Mr. Routzahn lived to be ninety-five years old, and one of his daughters reached the age of ninety-three years. Daniel and Susan Castle were the parents of these children: George T., Cordelia, the wife of William Zimmerman, of Mechanicstown district, Frederick County; Lewis O., deceased; Charles A.; Emma F., deceased; Ida V., the wife of R. H. Campbell, of Baltimore, Md.; C. Estella, is unmarried; and William E., lives in Baltimore, Md. Mrs. Castle is a native of Middletown Valley, and is living at the age of eighty-eight years.

Charles A. Castle, son of Daniel and Susan (Routzahn) Castle, was only twelve years old when he came to Frederick, where he received his education in the public schools. At the age of eighteen years, he began to learn the trade of a saddle and harness maker at Springfield, O., under Thomas W. Bean. After he had followed his trade for three and a-half years, Mr. Castle returned to Frederick, where he embarked in the harness and saddle business, having a partner, the firm name being Brish & Castle. This business association continued from 1874 to 1880, when Mr. Castle withdrew from the firm and started a similar business at No. 10 South Market street. At this location, Mr. Castle remained for one year, and in 1881 he removed to his present stand at Nos. 8-10 North Market street. Mr. Castle does a large business and has succeeded in his chosen vocation. His establishment stands well among similar enterprises of Frederick.

Mr. Castle started life in very poor circumstances but now owns the valuable three-story property in which his business is located. He is also a stockholder in the Frederick and Jefferson turnpike and the Woodsboro and Frederick turnpike.

In politics, Mr. Castle supports the candidates of the Republican party. Fraternally, he is a member of the I. O. O. F. In religion, he is affiliated with the Lutheran Church.

Mr. Castle was married in 1882 to Annie Phillips, daughter of Lycurgus N. Phillips, of Frederick County. They are the parents of four children: Mary E., Cora B., C. Phillips, and Frank A. Mr. Castle lost his wife in 1901, and married a second time to Miss Annie Thrasher, of Washington, D. C., on June 2, 1910

COMODORE I. B. BRANE was born in Frederick City, Maryland, December 25th, 1848, the son of Henry and Margaret Brane, the former a native of Frederick County, Maryland, and the latter a native of Lancaster, Pa., where her father, Jacob Lauman, a Revolutionary soldier, was born and reared. In the summer of 1776, when he was 21 years old, he enlisted for the war under Captain Hubley, and in the regiment commanded by Col. Hubley, a brother of the captain, in General Wayne's command, and participated in all the battles fought in Pennsylvania. He passed the winter in the historic camp at Valley Forge; was subsequently transferred to South Carolina and was at the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown. After the war he settled in Montgomery County, Maryland, where he died in the 105th year of his age. His daughter, Mrs. Brane, lived to be 94 years old. Her husband Henry Brane, was only 58 when he died. They were poor people. In 1857, when they lived in Washington, D. C., and when "Com" was only nine years old, he swept the carding room of a cotton factory for five dollars a month. Two years later the family returned to Frederick County, where young Brane attended Rockey Spring school two or three months each winter. These were all the school advantages he enjoyed. But by hard study and diligent application to books all through the year from childhood to the present day, he has attained a degree of culture and state of knowledge that many college men fail to realize.

Religiously speaking, young Brane was baptied and brought up in the faith of the Reformed Church, Dr. Zacharias being his father's pastor. Later on Mrs. Brane became a member of the United Brethren Church. In 1870 "Com." was converted and joined his mother's church. Two years later, at a quarterly conference held in Harbaugh's Valley, at Otterbein Chapel, he was authorized to preach the Gospel. All through his childhood and youth he cherished the hope that he might some day become a minister of the Word. Now that sweet dream was realized! He was converted, received into the Church, received his first communion and preached his first sermon in Rocky Spring school-house, near his childhood home. His first pastoral services were rendered on Potomac Mission, west of Hagerstown, in 1872. The next year he was received into the Virginia conference at Hagerstown, Maryland, and assigned to New Germany Circuit, located chiefly in Garrett County, Maryland, among the Allegheny Mountains, and included appointments in Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. There was not a Church or Chapel on the charge; and the names of the preaching places were significant: "The Forks," "Manadiers Ridge," "Negro Mountain," "Backwoods," "Bear Creek" and "Savage." The salary was $150 with 100 pairs of woollen stockings in presents. When the snow was deep and the roads unbroken, the boy-preacher sometimes walked twenty miles on the hard snow crust and preached three times on Sunday.

On the 19th of February, 1885, Rev. Brane was married to Miss Clara M. Harp, daughter of Rev. Joshua Harp, of Benevola, Washington County, Maryland.

Rev. Brane's license was signed by Bishop Weaver; and his ordination certificate, dated Churchville, Virginia, February, 1876, by Bishop Edwards. For a period of thirty-six years he has been actively engaged in the ministry, one year as agent of Lebanon Valley College, one year as presiding elder, two years as general secretary of the Church Erection Society, and thirty-two years in the pastorate. Some twenty years ago Lebanon Valley College conferred on him the degree of Master of Arts; and in 1903 Otterbein University, Westerville, Ohio, gave him the degree of Doctor of Divinity. But Doctor Brane enjoys a still greater distinction: he never served a charge that did not pay him more for his labor than had been promised; and at the close of each year and every pastorate the officiary of the Church unanimously requested him to remain. St. Paul's Church, Hagerstown, Maryland, Memorial Church, Washington, D. C., and Trinity Church, Lebanon, Pa., are some of the more important congregations that he served. In Hagerstown he organized the Church on a sound business basis, indoctrinated the young people in the truths of the Gospel, and largely substituted personal work and Bible study for all-winter "protracted" meetings. In four years he paid off an old debt of $1200, and built and paid for a fine parsonage costing $2,400. In Washington, D. C., he bought a lot and built a chapel on the corner of R and North Capitol streets for $20,000, $18,000 of which was collected and paid on the property. Here he had no members to begin with but his own family; and after the chapel was built, he served as pastor and janitor on a salary of $500, during which time he was twice called to the pastorate of Salem Church, Baltimore, with a salary of $1200 and parsonage. In Trinity Church, Lebanon, Pa., one of the most influential congregations in eastern Pennsylvania, not only in material and political respects, but also in point of culture and spirituality, the results of his ten-year pastorate were still more gratifying. Between this great church and the annual conference a bitter war had been waged for two long years. Dr. Brane's faithful ministry and Christ-like spirit brought peace and prosperity to that people, to whose material assets his leadership added $21,000, to say nothing of their blessed exaltation of life and spirit.

Twice he represented the Maryland Conference in the general counsel of the denomination; and four years ago he was sent as a delegate to the same general body by the East Pennsylvania Conference, to which he now belongs. He was also one of the five delegates elected to the general conference which met in Canton, Ohio, May 13th, 1909. In his attitudes on general legislation and Church polity, Dr. Brane has been uniformally conservative; and almost invariably the laws and policies he outlined and advocated were finally accepted by the Church, though in some cases he had to wait long. Being a man of deep convictions, and correspondingly stable in his devotion to them, he often stood with the minority and sometimes absolutely alone, in the great debates and actions of the annual and general conferences. That has been true of him in his opposition to the old secrecy law of the Church, and in his earnest advocacy of lay representation, church extension and the cause of education. In the general conference of 1904, he opposed organic union with the Congregational and Methodist Protestant Churches, upon the ground that they differed too widely in doctrine and polity, and because of the division and strife which he believed such action would produce in each of the denominations. He also insisted that the providential origin and organization of the United Brethren Church is an eloquent plea for a continuance of its organized life and labor.

During the Civil War and the days of reconstruction Dr. Brane spent most of his time at the National Capitol, where he gained an intimate knowledge of public men, and measures, and furnished "Washington Letters" to different periodicals under the nom de plume of "Moc Enarb," which is his real name spelled backward. In his relation as correspondent he often met General Logan, "Mat" Carpenter, Roscoe Conkling, A. G. Curtin, John Sherman and James A. Garfield, with whose assassin, Guiteau, he spent thirty minutes a short time before he was executed.

Dr. Brane is now serving his third year as pastor of Otterbein U. B. Church, Reading, Pa. As a pastor and as a preacher he is gifted and

Very Sincerely,
C. S. B. Brane.

successful. His devotion to the sick and poor and sinful is like unto the Master's; while his sermons are intellectually well prepared and spiritually inspiring, and are delivered without manuscript or notes. He takes great interest in history and is popular as a lecturer.

He served as a member of the board of trustees of the U. B. Publishing House and U. B. Seminary during the litigation period and is a member of the Board of Education.

JOHN BAUMGARDNER, one of the successful citizens of Frederick and prominent there as superintendent and general manager of the Frederick Brick Works, is essentially a self-made man, being one of the many who started life in humble circumstances, without much education, money or financial friends, and yet by energy has been able to work upward to a position of strong financial standing and enviable repute. It is to Mr. Baumgardner's credit that he started his career with only a few dollars, and his success in life is to be attributed to his temperate habits, hard work and close application to business, coupled with his natural ability, honesty and fair dealings. He is a native of Germany, where he was born April 30, 1840, being a son of Thomas and Margaret Baumgardner.

The Baumgardner family is an old and respected one in Germany, where its scions have figured conspicuously and with notable credit in the annals of the locality where they resided. Thomas and Margaret Baumgardner, the parents of John Baumgardner, emigrated from the land of their nativity and settled in Frederick in 1843, bringing their children to Maryland with them.

John Baumgardner, son of Thomas and Margaret Baumgardner, grew to manhood in Frederick, where his entire career has been passed, and in which his success in life has been achieved. Mr. Baumgardner had little opportunity to obtain an education, being compelled to earn his own living at a very early age. Nevertheless, he was endowed with mental qualifications that enabled him to acquire knowledge readily and in the course of time, he became known as a man possessed of a fund of broad general information. While a young man, he was apprenticed to the trade of brick mason, and learned that calling, at which he became a skilled workman. He followed this line until 1867, at which time he engaged in the general junk business, which he has since successfully conducted on an extended scale, in connection with other lines of business for the past forty years, gradually extending his interests and acquiring noteworthy independence.

Mr. Baumgardner is a gentleman of unquestioned capacity and high business qualifications, being progressive in his methods and public spirited in his relations to the community at large. He was one of the organizers of the Union Knitting Mills, and is at present one of the members of the board of directors controlling that industry. For a number of years he was in partnership with John W. Stonebraker, of Hagerstown, in the manufacture of fertilizers. In 1891, Mr. Baumgardner, in association with D. C. Winebrener, Col. Charles E. Trail, Dr. George Johnson, William Duvall and Edward Eichelberger, organized and incorporated the Frederick Brick Works, of which he was made the superintendent and general manager, and which, under his efficient and enterprising direction, has developed into one of the leading and most important manufacturing industries of Frederick, the plant being equipped with all the modern improvements for the production of all kinds of hard and machine made building, pressed and street paving bricks. The plant has a capacity of 75,000 bricks a day, and employs a force of about one hundred men, being operated to its fullest capacity and constituting the largest concern of its kind in the state of Maryland. Much of the success achieved and the highest quality attained in the production of the company's bricks are directly traceable to the energy infused into the enterprise by Mr. Baumgardner, and to the high ability shown by him in the general conduct of its affairs. Mr. Baumgardner is a director in the Home Building Association, and a number of other leading local institutions.

Although he has never held public office, Mr. Baumgardner is an earnest Democrat in his political affiliations, and has always voted the ticket of that party. He was a member of the Board of Aldermen of Frederick City for three years. In his religious views, he is allied with the Lutheran Church, in the work of which he has always taken an active interest. He has served as elder for many years, and as manager of the Lutheran Sunday School for thirty years.

In 1863, Mr. Baumgardner was married to Fannie Sinn. To this union were born seven children, all living, as follows: George T., cashier of the First National Bank of Frederick; Ella, the wife of George O. Snapp; Harry D., a prominent butcher and successful packer of Frederick; William, who conducts the junk business with his father; John, machinist for the Union Knitting Mills; Susie, wife of Claggett Ramsburg, assistant manager of the Frederick Brick Work; and Luther A., also of Frederick.

D. PRINCETON BUCKEY, one of the leading and prominent members of the Frederick County Bar, was born in Johnsville district, Frederick County, September 5, 1875. He is a son of Daniel E. and Louisa C. (Duttera) Buckey.

The Buckey family is of French and English lineage. George P. Buckey, the great-grandfather of D. Princeton Buckey, was one of the early residents of Mount Pleasant district, and he was for many years one of the leading tanners of the county. He was the father of Ezra Buckey.

Ezra Buckey, son of George P. Buckey, was a native of Frederick County. He followed the occupation of a farmer, and was the father of Daniel E. Buckey.

Daniel E. Buckey, son of Ezra Buckey, was born in Frederick County. For many years he was engaged in farming, milling and the sale of agricultural implements in Johnsville district, Frederick County. He is now residing at Littlestown, Adams County, Pa. Mr. Buckey was married twice. By his first marriage one son was born, Ezra L., a physician of New York City. Mr. Buckey was married secondly to Louisa Duttera. They were the parents of the following children: William G., a real estate dealer, of Baltimore City; Elmer D., dealer in farm implements and grain at Littlestown, Pa.; Lula K., the wife of John Walter Clemson, of Walkersville, Md.; Minnie L., the wife of John Travers Thomas, of Frederick City; and D. Princeton.

D. Princeton Buckey, son of Daniel E. and Louisa (Duttera) Buckey, spent his boyhood on his father's farm, where he assisted in its various duties. As a lad he was engaged in the milling and agricultural implement business with his father. He attended the public schools of his native district, and the Union Bridge High School. He later spent two years in Western Maryland College. Having decided to enter the legal profession, he came to Frederick City and began the study of the law under Frank L. Stoner, Esq. Upon the completion of his preparation, he took the State Bar examination and was admitted to practice in all the courts of the State in 1899, since which time he has been actively engaged in the work of his profession. Mr. Buckey is one of the foremost of the lawyers at the Frederick Bar. He enjoys a large practice, and numbers among his clients many important interests and prominent citizens. He has been very successful in his chosen work, and is noted for the careful manner in which he safeguards the causes submitted to him. He is very active and is one of Frederick's highly respected citizens.

Politically, Mr. Buckey is a Democrat, with liberal views. In November, 1899, he was elected by his party as a member of the Maryland House of Delegates from Frederick County. He was the youngest member of the House and took a most active part in the discussion of the various bills before that body in the sessions of 1900 and 1901. As a legislator, Mr. Buckey made a most creditable record, and discharged his duties in a manner altogether satisfactory to his constituents. Fraternally, Mr. Buckey is a member of King David Lodge, No. 50, I. O. O. F., and Frederick Lodge, No. 684, B. P. O. E.

Mr. Buckey was married in November, 1906, to Louisa Rothermel Griesemer, of Reading, Pa., a member of one of the oldest families of Berks county.

J. J. BIELFELD, one of the prominent business men of Frederick, a member of the well-known firm of Marken & Bielfeld, publishers and printers, located at Nos. 123-125 West Patrick street, Frederick, is a native of New York State, where he was born December 29, 1857. He is a son of the Rev. Herman and Friederecke (Piele) Bielfeld.

Rev. Herman Bielfeld was a native of Germany, where he was born September 4, 1815, and died in this country, November 26, 1895. He spent his entire life as a minister of the German Reformed Church. The name of his wife was Friederecke Piele, a native of Germany. They were the parents of nine children.

J. J. Bielfeld, son of the Rev. Herman Bielfeld, was reared principally in Frederick City. He received his education in Frederick and Canada. At the age of fourteen, he entered a drug store at Harrisburg, Pa., in the capacity of a clerk. After remaining here for a short time he went to Baltimore, Md., where he became a student of fresco painting. He then removed to the West, where he was engaged in various pursuits. After some time, he returned to the East, and located in Frederick City in 1879. He immediately engaged in the printing and publishing business in partnership with V. M. Marken, under the firm name of Marken & Bielfeld. This house is one of the leading and best known enterprises of its kind in western Maryland. Since its foundation, the firm has met with substantial success, and now commands a large trade. He is recognized as one of the leading and most prominent business men of Frederick City. To his forceful and pleasing personality is due much of the prosperity and prestige attained by his firm. He has managed the affairs of his business with an ability, foresight and sagacity that stamp him as a man of high executive capacity.

Politically, Mr. Bielfeld is independent in thought and action, and gives his support only to those men and measures that he deems best calculated to serve the public interests. He has never held public office, having no ambitions in that direction and preferring to concentrate all his time and energies upon his extensive business. Fraternally, Mr. Bielfeld is a member of Lynch Lodge, No. 163, A. F. and A. M.; Enoch Royal Arch Chapter, No. 23, Royal Arch Masons; Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar; Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias; Winfield Scott Schley Tent, No. 9, of the Order of Maccabees; Washington Camp, No. 17, P. O. S. of A.; and Purity Lodge, No. 248, Independent Order of Good Templars. In religion, he is a member of the Reformed Church. Mr. Bielfeld is unmarried. He is of a genial and jovial disposition, and by his pleasing manner has won a host of friends.

WILLIAM A. BLACK, a leading merchant of Rocky Ridge, Frederick County, Md., son of Joseph H. and Matilda C. (Norris) Black, was born in Oakhill, Md., November 19, 1869.

William Black, grandfather of William A. Black, was German by descent. He was one of the early settlers of Frederick County, and was a prominent farmer among the men of his generation. He owned a fertile farm of 175 acres in Emmitsburg District, and spent his whole life in improving this property. He was a Republican, interested in county affairs. William Black was married to Barbara Martin. Their children were: 1, Joseph; 2, Mary (Mrs. Reuben Ovelman), deceased; 3, Lizzie, married Calvin Caine, a retired merchant, dealer in lumber, of Washington, D. C.; 4, Julia, deceased. He was a member of Mt. Tabor Lutheran Church at Rocky Ridge, and is buried in the cemetery adjoining that church.

Joseph H. Black, father of William A. Black, received his education in private schools and, in early manhood, taught school for fifteen years. He remained at home assisting his father until he married, when he began farming for himself in Woodsboro District. He cared for his land in summer and taught during the winter months. He was also a surveyor and was frequently employed in that business. After some years of successful farming, Mr. Black sold his land and purchased the establishment of Joshua Dutson, general merchant, where he carried on a lucrative business for a number of years, after which he sold the property and bought the "Old Grocer's Stand," at Rocky Ridge. Here, too, he met with success and built for himself a comfortable home adjoining the store. Finding that his health would suffer if he remained in the store, he sold his property and removed to his father's farm, the old Black homestead. After his father's death, Mr. Black moved to Waynesboro, Pa., where he spent the rest of his life. Mr. Black was a Republican, interested in all that concerned the well-being of the country. Joseph H. Black was married to Matilda, daughter of Amon T. and Mary (————) Norris, descendants of one of the old families of Rocky Ridge. Their children are: 1, Rose, deceased; 2, William A.; 3, Edith, of Baltimore City; 4, Harry M.; 5, Daisy, married Ira Valentine, a merchant of Rocky Ridge; 6, Howard J., of Rocky Ridge; 7, Lulu, married J. Baumgartner, manufacturer of stamps and seals, of Baltimore City, Md. Mr. Black and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church in Emmitsburg, but afterwards transferred their membership to Mt. Tabor Church at Rocky Ridge. Mr. Black was superintendent of the Sunday School for many years, and served the congregation as deacon and as elder; he was also a member of the building committee that built the Mt. Tabor church at Rocky Ridge. Mr. Black died in Waynesboro, Pa., and is buried in the cemetery adjoining Mt. Tabor Church. After Mr. Black's death, his widow and family returned to Rocky Ridge, where she spent the remainder of her life. She rests beside her husband in the graveyard at Mt. Tabor Church.

William A. Black received his education in the public schools of the district, and remained on the homestead assisting his parents. After his father's death, he secured a position as clerk in the store of J. B. Black, in Rocky Ridge, with whom he remained for some time. In 1890 he accepted a position with H. Eastee & Sons, of Baltimore, and remained with that firm until the members retired from business. Mr. Black then went to Sparrows Point, Md., to assume the management of the drygoods department in the "Sparrows Point Store Company." Under his careful supervision trade increased rapidly, but after four years of close application to business, his health failed, and he was compelled to resign his position and remove to the country. For a short time, he engaged in business at Point of Rocks, Md., and in 1905, purchased the stand of J. B. Black, general merchant, at Rocky Ridge. Mr. Black does a large and increasing business in his new establishment, and ascribes all his financial success to hard work and close attention to business. He belongs to the Independent party and is interested in county affairs. He is a member of the Royal Arcanum of Sparrows Point.

William A. Black was married to Mary C., daughter of Henry and Ann M. (————) Peier, of Baltimore, Md. They have one son, W. Henry R., at home. Mr. Black and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church.

JOHN S. NEWMAN, one of the best known and leading members of the Frederick County Bar, is a native of the village of Woodsborough, Frederick County, Md., where he was born May 7, 1870. He is a son of Jacob M. and Catharine E. (Shaw) Newman.

The American ancestor of the Newman family was John Nicholas Newman, a native of Rhenish Prussia, whence he emigrated to this country about 1753, and settled near the town of Hanover, York County, Pa. Here he purchased a farm, which has remained in the possession of the Newman family for about 135 years.

Jacob Newman, son of John Nicholas Newman, the emigrant, was born near Hanover, York County, Pa., in 1789, and died in 1873. He spent his entire life following the occupation of a farmer.

Jacob M. Newman, son of Jacob Newman, and the father of John S. Newman, is a native of Hanover, York County, Pa., where he was born in 1843. In 1866, he removed from York, County, Pa., to the town of Woodsborough, Frederick County, Md., where he engaged in general merchandising. This he followed for about a quarter of a century, when he removed to Frederick City, in 1893. Here he embarked in the coal business, which he has since continued, and in which he has met with substantial success. He conducts this business under the firm name of J. M. Newman & Company, his son, Francis J. Newman, being associated with him. Mr. Newman's business methods have always been characterized by the highest principles, and he is one of the best known and most highly respected business men of Frederick City. Politically, Mr. Newman has always been a stanch adherent and active worker in the Democratic party, and in 1891, was elected to the State Senate. He served as cashier of customs of the Port of Baltimore from June 1, 1894, to June 1, 1898, under Collector Dr. Frank T. Shaw. Mr. Newman was married in February, 1868, to Catharine E. Shaw, daughter of Francis Shaw, of Woodsboro', Md. They are the parents of five living children: John S.; Helen Elizabeth; Emma Catharine; Francis J., a member of the firm of J. M. Newman & Co., of Frederick City; and Mary Henrietta.

John S. Newman, son of Jacob M. and Catharine E. (Shaw) Newman, was reared in Woodsboro', Md., and received his elementary education in the public schools of that place, the Frederick City College, and the Maryland Military and Naval Academy of Talbot County, Md. He later entered St. John's College, at Annapolis, Md., from which he was graduated with the degree of B. S. in 1890. He then entered the Law School of the University of Virginia, the head of which at that time was Dr. John B. Minor, a distinguished law professor of the University for more than fifty years, who taught many of the leading and most distinguished lawyers in the country. Mr. Newman was graduated, with the degree of B. L., from the University of Virginia, in 1892.

After the completion of his legal studies, Mr. Newman returned to Frederick City, and entered upon the practice of his profession, in which he has since been actively engaged. He is recognized as one of the ablest and most prominent of the younger members of the Frederick County Bar, and is the possessor of a large and lucrative practice. In addition to his large legal business, Mr. Newman has served as president of the Central National Bank of Frederick, to which position he was elected in 1905, and in which office he has discharged his duties with an ability, foresight and sagacity that stamp him as a man of rare executive capacity.

Politically, Mr. Newman has always been a stanch adherent of the Democratic party, and was urged by many of his friends and members of the Frederick County Bar for appointment to fill the vacancy of Chief Judge of the Sixth Judicial District of Maryland, caused by the death of the late Hon. James McSherry. He is now attorney for the Citizens' National Bank of Frederick, one of the leading financial institutions of Western Maryland; local counsel of the B. & O. R. R. Co., and Monocacy Valley Canning Company. Mr. Newman is affiliated in a religious way with the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Mr. Newman was married October 2, 1895, to Amy R. Parsons, of Frederick City. They are the parents of two sons: Parsons and John S.

HARVEY D. BEACHLEY, a well-known educator of Frederick County, Md., and principal of the Thurmont High School, was born on the old Beachley homestead in Middletown district, at the foot of South Mountain on the old National pike, where the battle of South Mountain was fought, September 14, 1862. The date of his birth was December 23, 1867. He is a son of John W. and Marietta Susan (Smith) Beachley.

Henry Beachley, the ancestor of the Beachley family in this country, purchased the old homestead prior to the Revolution. This tract was located in Middletown Valley, where he was among the early Swiss settlers. He was a member of the Reformed Church. He was married to Barbara Flook. They were the parents of a large family, namely: Peter, Jacob, John, Conrad, Henry, Daniel, Barbara, married John Flook; Mollie, married Henry Ahalt; Catharine, married a Mr. Leinbach; and two other daughters.

Daniel Beachley, son of Henry and Barbara Beachley, was the grandfather of Harvey D. Beachley. He was born on the old homestead in Middletown district in 1802, and died in 1874. He was married to Esther Shoemaker. They were the parents of eight children: Henry; Rebeccca, married John Line; Ezra; Anna, married William Kepler; Daniel; Henson; Jonas, and John W.

John W. Beachley, son of Daniel and Esther (Shoemaker) Beachley, was born on the ancestral seat in Middletown district, March 9, 1844. He spent his active life following the occupation of a farmer. He is now living retired. He was married to Marietta Susan Smith, (died December, 1909), daughter of Daniel and Mary Smith, in 1867. They are the parents of the following children: Harvey D.; Alvey L., a teacher in the Middletown district schools; Grayson R., died aged twenty-seven years; Oscar C., of Harrisburg, Pa.; Vernon S., a teacher in the Allegheny High School; Edgar M., a carpenter by trade, residing at Sharpsburg, Md.; Mary Esther, a primary teacher at Jefferson, Md., and Edna E., at home.

Harvey D. Beachley, son of John W. and Marietta Susan (Smith) Beachley, was reared on the old homestead. As a boy he worked on his father's farm, and attended the public schools. He later was a student at the Classical Academy at Middletown. He entered Franklin and Marshall College in 1891, from which institution he was graduated in 1895. For three years previous to entering college, he had been employed as a teacher in the public schools, being located at Fink's school house, in Middletown district. Upon the completion of his collegiate course, he was chosen principal of the Thurmont High School. Here he has since remained, and has achieved success as an educator. He is well known throughout the county as an instructor, and is highly esteemed in the community in which he has labored.

In politics, Professor Beachley is a stanch adherent and active supporter of the Republican party, with which organization he has been allied for the past twenty years. In 1909, he was a candidate for the nomination of his party as county treasurer. Fraternally, he is a member of Columbia Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, Chancellor Lodge, Knights of Pythias, and Acacia Lodge, No. 155, A. F. and A. M., of Thurmont, of which latter he is Past Master and secretary. In religion, like his forefathers, he is a member of the Reformed Church, being connected with Trinity Church at Thurmont, of which he is serving as an elder.

Professor Beachley was married June 28, 1900, to Blanch Hammett, daughter of David C. Hammett, deceased, of Thurmont. They have one daughter, Dorothy E.

ALBERT W. BARTGIS, dealer in produce, of Ellerton, Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., son of Titus V. and Mary (Hedges) Bartgis, was born in Middletown, Md., October 27, 1854.

Mathias Bartgis, great-grandfather of Albert W. Bartgis, with two of his brothers, natives of France, came to America with William Penn. They landed at Philadelphia and Mathias Bartgis finally settled in Fredericktown, where he found a good opening for his business, he being the first printer to settle there. Here he spent the rest of his life and carried on his business successfully until his death. Mathias Bartgis married and had two sons, Franklin and Mathias, Jr.

Mr. Bartgis' grandfather, Franklin Bartgis, was born and grew up near Fredericktown, where he spent his whole life in farming. He was educated in the schools of the district, and was highly respected among the men of his generation. Franklin Bartgis was married to Elizabeth Hoffman. They had six children, one of whom was Titus Bartgis. Franklin died at his home near Fredericktown, and is buried in the Old Cronis' graveyard near Fredericktown.

The late Titus Bartgis, father of Albert W. Bartgis, was born in November, 1818, at his father's home about five miles north of Frederick, Md. Like his father, he was educated in the schools of the district, and remained at home working for his father until his marriage. He then began business for himself, dealing in live-stock. In this he was so successful that he devoted all his time and attention to that occupation. Mr. Bartgis was one of the active Democrats of Middletown, where he made his home. Titus Bartgis was married to Mary, daughter of Joseph and Miller (Miller) Hedges, whose father was prominent among the older farmers of the Middletown Valley. Their children are: 1, Albert W.; 2, Charles W., farmer, of Montgomery County, Md.; 3, Byron C., farmer, of Berkeley County, W. Va.; 4, James M., deceased; 5, Mary J., deceased, married the late George Watkins, of Washington, D. C.; 6, John E., dealer in live-stock, Martinsburg, W. Va. Mr. Bartgis and his family were members of the Lutheran Church in Middletown. Mr. Bartgis died in November, 1888. He and his wife are buried in the cemetery of the Lutheran Church in Middletown, Md.

Albert W. Bartgis received his eduaction in the public schools of Middletown, and learned shoemaking. He remained at home until the time of his marriage, when he opened a shop of his own, where he carried on a successful business in shoes for ten years. Mr. Bartgis then began dealing in produce and live-stock at Ellerton, Md., where he remained for twenty-five years. He was very successful financially, and ascribes his good fortune to untiring work. Three years after he began business in Ellerton, Mr. Bartgis bought his present home, a comfortable, two-story frame dwelling. He has invested his earnings in tracts of land, making the purchases at different times. Recently he bought a small farm in Middletown District, Frederick County, Md. This property he has greatly improved, putting up a fine two-story brick dwelling, a bank barn and all of the necessary outbuildings, making it one of the good farms of the district. Mr. Bartgis is a Democrat, interested in local affairs, and is counted among the successful business men of that section. He is a stockholder of the Myersville Savings Bank.

Albert W. Bartgis was married three times. His first wife was Lidya, daughter of Elias and Elizabeth (Hurley) Blickenstaff, both deceased, whose father was a farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County. They had four children, three of whom reached maturity: 1, Edith L. (Mrs. Edward Dutloyd), of Jackson District, Frederick County; 2, Mary E., married William Ganker, dealer in produce, Ellerton, Md.; 3, Lloyd C., in the United States naval service at Newport, R. I. Mrs. Bartgis died in 1895, and was buried in the cemetery of the United Brethren Church at Wolfsville, Md.

In 1897, Mr. Bartgis was married to Salome, daughter of the Rev. A. M. Smith, of Myersville. She died in 1899, and nine years after her death, Mr. Bartgis was married to Fanny, daughter of the late Daniel Koogle, prominent among the older farmers of the Middletown Valley. Mr. Bartgis and his wife are members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church at Middletown, Md. Mr. Bartgis takes an active part in the work of the church, and is a liberal contributor to benevolent objects.

REV. M. L. BEARD, minister in charge of St. John's Lutheran Church, Thurmont, Md., was born on a farm near Williamsport, Washington County, Md., April 26, 1849. He is a son of William H. and Susan (Byers) Beard.

The Beard family is of Scotch-Irish origin, and was among the early families of Washington County, Md. William H. Beard, the grandfather of Rev. M. L. Beard, spent his life following the occupation of a farmer near St. Paul's Church, Clearspring district, Washington County, Md. In politics, he was an old line Whig until the formation of the Republican party, when he became an adherent of the latter. In religion, he was a member of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Beard was twice married. His first wife was Catharine Fiery, by whom he was the father of three children: Jacob, William H., and M. L. He was the father of the following children by the second marriage: John T., deceased, was a physician; Benjamin F., of Clearspring, Md.; Tillie, deceased, the wife of Christian Mentzer, of Williamsport, Md.; Elizabeth, deceased, was the wife of Oliver Knode; Samuel M., was a lieutenant in the Union Army during the Civil War.

William H. Beard, father of Rev. M. L. Beard and son of William H. and Catharine (Fiery) Beard, was born in Clearspring district, Washington County, Md., January 8th, 1823, and died August 28, 1896. He was a well-known business man in Williamsport district, Washington County, after reaching manhood. He was married to Susan K. Byers. They were the parents of the following children: M. L.; Isaac T., deceased; Martha, deceased, was the wife of J. Michael Miller; William H., of Williamsport, Md.; and John B., also of Williamsport, Md.

Rev. M. L. Beard, son of William H. and Susan (Byers) Beard, was reared in Williamsport district. While a boy he worked on a farm and attended the schools of the neighborhood. At the age of twenty-one he entered Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Pa., from which institution he was graduated in 1875. Having decided to enter the ministry of the Lutheran Church, he then took the course in the Theological Seminary at Gettysburg, from which he was graduated in 1878. At this time he took charge of the Mount Joy Lutheran congregation and served the Keys and Rockey Ridge Churches. In 1881, he accepted a call to the Burkittsville Lutheran Church, Middletown Valley, Frederick County, Md. This congregation he continued to serve until October, 1885, when he accepted a call to Boonsboro, Washington County, Md., where he remained until October, 1893, when he assumed the pastorate of the Middletown congregation. This charge he ministered to with success, as he had successfully in all previous pastorates, until September 1, 1896. At that time, he accepted a call to St. John's Lutheran Church, Thurmont, Md. Here he has since remained.

The Rev. Beard has the distinction of serving the various named churches for the past twenty-eight years all within a radius of about twenty-five miles, something unusual under the Lutheran system. While in Middletown he made extensive improvements. He renovated the church edifice, purchased the new cemetery and organized the cemetery association. In Thurmont, he has met with much success in his work, and is highly esteemed, not only by members of his church, but by all with whom he has come in contact. He was re-elected pastor at Burkittsville, 1889, but declined the call. During the course of time he has been in the service of the Lutheran Church he has been president of the Middle and Western Conferences of the Maryland Synod, and was three times a delegate to the General Snyod. He was a member of the board of directors of the Gettysburg Theological Seminary from 1903 to 1908, and is also a member of the Ministerial Board of Education of the Maryland Synod.

In politics Mr. Beard is not affiliated with any particular party, being independent, and prefers to support principles rather than any political organization. He is an active supporter and loyal adherent of the anti-saloon movement. He is a self-made man, and is well known throughout the county as an able minister.

The Rev. Beard was married in the Lutheran Church at Myersville, Frederick County, Md., June 17, 1880, to Katharine Sophia Bowers, died June 19, 1910, daughter of H. G. and Matilda A. (Feidt) Bowers. They are the parents of the following children: Leola Grace, the wife of Frank R. Young, of Emmitsburg, Md.; Catharine M., at home; Mary Maude, the wife of Rev. E. Carl Mumford, a Lutheran minister, now in charge of the congregation at Littlestown, Pa.; Haidee V., at home; Elinor L., married Lester S. Birely (see sketch of S. M. Birely, deceased); Paul B., now deceased, and John W., both at home.

JOSEPH BYERS, deceased, late owner of "Pleasant Farm," son of Michael and Elizabeth (Dutrow) Byers, was born on the home farm near Westminster, Carroll County, Md., March 19, 1824.

The Byers, formerly spelled Boyer, family is of German descent. Gabriel Boyer, grandfather of Joseph Byers, came to America from Germany, in early manhood, and settled near Westminster, Md. He married ——— ———. Their children are: 1, Michael; 2, John Henry; 3, Elizabeth (Mrs. John Power); 4, Catherine (Mrs. Peter Slagle); 5, Sarah (Mrs. Solomon M. Myesli); 6, Polly (Mrs. James Orndorf).

Mr. Byers' father, Michael Byers, was a cooper and farmer, and spent his whole life near Westminster. He was a soldier in the War of 1812, and the sword he carried is in the possession of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Byers. Michael Byers was married to Elizabeth Dutrow, of Emmitsburg District. Their children are: 1, Noah Amos, married Catherine Reese, moved to Omaha, Neb., where his wife died, afterwards returned to Frederick County, Md., where he died; 2, Joseph; 3, Joshua married Martha Willson, lived and died in Pottstown, Pa.; 4, Elizabeth (Mrs. Emanuel Keller), lived and died on a farm near Gettysburg, Pa.,; 5, David, married Mary Ann Morelock, both died in Kansas; 6, George, moved to the West where he married and died; 7, Ellen, died aged eighteen; 8, John, married Ann Getty, settled in Littlestown, Adams County, Pa., where he died; 9, Jacob, died in the West; 10, Frances Anna (Mrs. Francis Wampler), died near Westminster; 11, Caroline (Mrs. William G. Rinehart), spent her whole life in Westminster. Michael Byers and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church, in which he was an elder for many years. Both are buried at Krider's Church, near Westminster.

Joseph Byers grew up on his father's farm and received his education in the public schools of Emmitsburg district. In early manhood, he drove a team for his father between Baltimore, Md., and Pittsburg, but afterwards turned his attention to agriculture. After farming for four years on rented land near Bridgeport, Frederick County, Md., he purchased his homestead, "Pleasant Farm," which contains 230 acres of fine land. When Mr. Byers took the property, it was in poor condition. For a time he used the old log house, but in 1884, he built his pleasant, comfortable home. Mr. Byers was a Democrat, very highly esteemed in the county and, soon after his marriage, was elected to the State legislature. He was a stockholder and a member of the board of directors of the Emmitsburg railroad.

Joseph Byers was married, at Bridgeport, Md., to Ellen, daughter of Adam and Catherine (Diffenball) Gilbert. Their children are: 1, Gilbert G., born in 18—, died in childhood; 2, Margaret E., (Mrs. Guyer Block), of Thurmont, Md., has seven children: Morris G., Earl L., Martha E., William J., Willis G.; Goldie A., and George G.; 3, George G., of Fairfield, married Nettie G. Patterson, has one child, Grace L.; 4, Carrie J., at home; 5, Jacob K., married Emma J. Bullinger, deceased, has four children, Maud E., Harry Bryan, Luther Gilbert, and Charles Robert, deceased; 6, Mary Janette, a graduate of the Woman's College, Philadelphia, Pa., has spent the last nine years as a trained nurse in Cuba; 7, Blanche G., married J. Lewis Rhodes, a miller living in Adams County, Pa. Mr. Byers died at his home near Emmitsburg, April 11, 1898. He was a devout member of the Lutheran Church, a Christian gentleman, a kind and loving husband and father.

Mrs. Byers was born June 7, 1828, on a farm near Westminster, one mile distant from that which was to be her married home. She attended the same church and the same school as her future husband. Her father, Adam Gilbert, a well-known farmer, spent his whole life in Westminster district. He married Catherine, daughter of John and Eva (———) Diffenball. Mrs. Byers' paternal grandfather, George Gilbert, was of English descent; her maternal grandfather, John Diffenball, came to America from Germany and settled on a farm near Westminster.

DAVID F. BUSSARD, deceased, was at the time of his death one of the well-known and highly esteemed agriculturists of Jackson District, Frederick County. He resided on a farm of 139 acres, situated two miles and a-half east of Myersville. He was born February 15, 1855, and was killed by a runaway team, October 9, 1896. His parents were John Wesley and Catherine (Poffenberger) Bussard.

The Bussard family is of ancient and honorable lineage, and comes originally from Germany. The American ancestor was Peter Bussard, the great-grandfather of David F. Bussard. He was born in Germany, and emigrated to this country, first settling in Pennsylvania. He afterwards went to Western Maryland, and became one of the early settlers in Hauver's district, Frederick County. He died in 1802. He was married to a Miss Householder, by whom he had the following children: Danie; Ulstey; Peter; John Wesley, of whom below; Samuel; Susan, married a Mr. Kinney, removed to Ohio, where she died at an advanced age; and Sophia, married George Fox, of Hauvers district.

John Wesley Bussard, son of Peter Bussard the emigrant, was born in 1794. He lived for some time at Cavetown, Washington County, Md., but later resided in Frederick County. He was married in 1815 to Susan Ann DeLauter. They were the parents of the following children: Lydia, born in 1816; Enos, born in 1818; John Wesley; Susan E., born in 1822; Peter Hanson, born in 1826; Gideon B., born in 1828; Ezra Lee, born in 1830, and killed by an explosion of a boat on the Ohio river; Samuel M., born in 1832, married Hannah Toms; Lewis, born in 1835; Mary Catharine, born in 1839, the wife of George J. Brown, of Waynesboro, Pa.; George Washington, born in 1841. The members of the old family were affiliated with the German Reformed Church.

John Wesley Bussard, son of John Wesley and Susan Ann (DeLauter) Bussard, was born in 1820, and died in 1893. He followed agricultural pursuits, and was one of the best known farmers of the Middletown Valley. At one time he was the owner of about five hundred acres of excellent farm land. In politics, he was a stanch Democrat, and in religion he was a consistent member of the Baptist Church. Mr. Bussard was twice married. By his first wife he had two children: John A., a minister in the German Baptist Church, located in Jackson district, Frederick County; and Catherine, died unmarried. Mr. Bussard was married secondly to Catharine Poffenberger. They were the parents of three children: James Oliver; Susan, the wife of George W. Gaver, a retired farmer of Middletown district (see his sketch); and David F.

David F. Bussard, son of John Wesley and Catharine (Poffenberger) Bussard, received his education in the public schools. As a boy he became familiar with the routine of farm life, and followed agricultural pursuits his whole life. He was a prominent citizen of his district, and his unfortunate death was regretted by all who had the pleasure of knowing him. He was known for strict integrity and high character. He was an affectionate man, and was a devoted husband. In politics, Mr. Bussard was a Democrat. In religion, he was a devout and consistent member of St. John's Lutheran Church of Myersville.

Mr. Bussard was married February 5, 1880, to Susan Blessing, daughter of Benjamin L. and Sarah (Blessing) Blessing, of Jackson district. There were three children by this marriage: Stelia C., died January 20, 1889, aged eight years; Loretta C., died January 1, 1899, aged six years; and John Franklin, was born July 23, 1896. Mrs. Bussard survives her husband, and is living retired in Myersville. She is the owner of her husband's farm in Jackson district. She is keenly interested in the work of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Myersville, of which she is a member.

Mrs. Bussard's father, Benjamin L. Blessing, was a son of George Blessing. He was born in Jefferson district, November 16, 1826, and died October 27 1886. He was a farmer and teacher. The name of his wife was Sarah Blessing, daughter of George Blessing, also. They were the parents of four children: Tilghman L., was born February 14, 1856, lives in Johnsville district, Frederick County; Susan E., widow of D. F. Bussard; Ann Catharine; and Lydia, died in childhood. Benjamin L. Blessing was a Republican in politics, and in religion, a member of the Lutheran Church.

George Blessing, the father of Mrs. Benjamin L. Blessing, married Anna Barbara Martin, widow of George Martin. By her first marriage she had one daughter, Anna Barbara. By her marriage with Mr. Blessing, she had seven children: Mary Elizabeth, George Philip, Ann Catharine, Lydia Ann, Sarah Jane, Susan, and Margaret Sophia.

George Blessing, the father of Benjamin L. Blessing, married Susan Easterday, near Jefferson. He acquired the title of the "Hero of Highland" on account of the bravery he displayed in protecting his property during the Confederate invasion of Maryland in 1864. A company of Southerners appeared on his place one day, and sent a detachment to steal his horses, but with his son Lewis, by using several guns, he drove a party of forty away. He lived to be nearly eighty years of age. Mr. Blessing was the father of ten children; 1, Ellen; 2, Benjamin L.; 3, Catharine; 4, Rebecca; 5, Parker; 6, Lauretta; 7, Penora; 8, Lewis; 9, Sarah, and 10, Tilghman, who was killed by a runaway team.

CYRUS W. BLICKENSTAFF, a well-known farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., son of the late Jacob and Margaret (Grossnickle) Blickenstaff, was born on the old homestead, on a part of which he now resides, near Middle Point, Catoctin District, September 9, 1863.

Yost Blickenstaff, great-grandfather of Cyrus W. Blickenstaff, an emigrant from Germany, was one of the earliest settlers in the Middletown Valley. He came to America in early manhood, and took up a large tract of timber land, known as "Yost's Claim," situated in the northern part of the valley, and on this land he spent his whole life. He married and had several children, among them a son named John. When he died he was buried on the home which he had cleared in the wilderness.

John Blickenstaff, son of Yost Blickenstaff, and grandfather of Cyrus W. Blickenstaff, was born on the homestead and spent his life in caring for and improving the family dwelling place. He owed his success to diligence and hard work. He was a good citizen, and was respected by his fellow citizens. John Blickenstaff was married to Mary, daughter of —— —— (————) Fair. They had four children: 1, Susan, deceased, married the late Jonathan Stottlenger, a farmer of Washington County, Md.; 2, Margaret, deceased, married to the late Henry A. Frushour, a farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County; 3, Jacob; 4, the late John E., a farmer in Nebraska. Mr. Blickenstaff and his wife were members of the German Baptist Church, and are buried in the cemetery of that church.

Mr. Blickenstaff's father, Jacob Blickenstaff, a retired farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County, was born on the family homestead in March, 1832. He was educated in the public schools of the district, and remained at home, working with his father, until his father retired from active farm life. Mr. Blickenstaff then took charge of the home farm and, after some time, bought the property from his father. He was a skilful farmer, and greatly improved the place, which he cultivated until he, too, retired from farming a few years before his death. This farm, which is now numbered among the valuable farms of the section, is situated near Middle Point, two and a-half miles from Ellerton, on the Ellerton and Wolfsville road. Mr. Blickenstaff was a Democrat, and was highly respected as a citizen. Jacob Blickenstaff was married to Margaret, daughter of George and Hannah (Barnhiser) Grossnickle, whose father was an Elder in the German Baptist Church for many years. They had two children, but only one, Cyrus W., reached maturity. Mr. Blickenstaff and his wife were members of the German Baptist Church. Mr. Blickenstaff was interested in church work, and contributed liberally to all benevolent enterprises. He died at the homestead, February 1, 1904; he and his wife are buried in the cemetery of the German Baptist Church.

Cyrus W. Blickenstaff was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained on the home place until his father died. Mr. Blickenstaff was the only heir to 200 acres of fine farm and timber land, known as "Yost's Claim." He employed his energies in improving his patrimony, putting up a comfortable two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn, and all necessary outbuildings. He devided his land making two farms, each having a complete set of buildings. By diligence and careful attention to business, Mr. Blickenstaff has achieved financial success, and is considered one of the prominent farmers of the district. He is a stockholder in the Farmers' Exchange, of Myersville, and in the Albaugh Dover Company, of Chicago, Ill. Mr. Blickenstaff is a Democrat, and takes an interest in all that concerns the betterment of the community.

Cyrus W. Blickenstaff was married to Flora M., daughter of Hezekiah and Susan (Stottlemyer) Palmer. They had fourteen children, nine of whom are living: 1, George L., farming a part of the homestead in Catoctin District; 2, Charles W., at home; 3, Mandy B., married Wade Grossnickle, a farmer of Catoctin District; 4, Bessie M., at home; 5, Mattie S., at home; 6, Jacob R., at home; 7, Foster H., at home; 8, Dorsey E., at home; 9, Nellie L., at home. Mr. Blickenstaff and his wife are members of the German Baptist Church. He is a liberal contributor and has held the office of deacon for many years.

JESSE MARCELLUS BURALL, a leading farmer and prominent citizen of Frederick County, Md., son of Adam and Charlotte (Walker) Burall, was born on a farm two miles north of New Market, Md., November 16, 1852.

Mr. Burall's grandfather, William Burall, was one of three brothers who came to America from Germany. One of the brothers settled in Virginia, one in New York or New Jersey, and one, William Burrall, in Frederick County, Md.

Adam Burall, father of Jesse M. Burrall, was born in 1796, in Frederick County, Md. He grew up on the farm and received his education in the schools of his native district. He was a boy when the Baltimore pike was being built, and he, and an elder brother, worked on the road. He gathered stones, and his brother drove a team. When he reached manhood, Mr. Burall turned his attention to farming. Adam Burrall's first wife was Miss Runkles. They had eight children. His second wife was Charlotte, daughter of Edward and Mary (Brandenburg) Walker. Their children are: 1, Jesse Marcellus; 2, Ruth (Mrs. George W. Shoemaker), of Liberty district, Frederick County, Md. Mr. Burall died at his home near New Market, May 29, 1869, aged 73. His widow died in 1883, aged sixty-eight.

Jesse Marcellus Burall attended the public schools of New Market district and continued his studies at home. At fourteen, he was obliged to leave school and begin to earn his living. For one year he worked by the day as a farm hand and, at the end of that time, hired by the month to Harry Kemp, a farmer of New Market district. His wages, nine dollars a month, were devoted to the support of his mother and the family. Mr. Burall next hired by the year to his half brother, Samuel Burall, of New Market district, with whom he remained for fourteen years. By this time he had saved a little money and with it he rented a farm lying two miles north of New Market, Md., the property of the late William Downey. Mr. Burall started with a debt of $100 and yet at the end of three years, by economy and hard work, he was able to rent a larger farm in the same district. On this land, also the property of Mr. Downey, he spent nine years. Mr. Burall was now prepared to invest his savings, and purchased from George M. Smith, a farm situated near Monrovia, Md. He cultivated and fertilized the land, and improved the property, building a new barn, and, at the end of eight years, sold his property to L. O. Willis, and bought his homestead. This place, then owned by John S. Ramsburg, consists of 250 acres of arable land situated on the Baltimore pike between New Market and Frederick City, a short distance from New Market. In 1908 he built a large new barn 40x90 feet and made other improvements. The appearance of the buildings and of the neat, well-cultivated fields prove that Mr. Burall is an energetic, intelligent agriculturist. He started at the bottom of the ladder and is now one of the substantial men of New Market district. He is progressive, sober, industrious, and frugal, and is highly esteemed in the county. His neighbors call him "the soul of honor." He is a Democrat, and interested in all that concerns the well-being and the improvement of the community.

Jesse Marcellus Burall was married, March 25, 1880, to Delilah, daughter of Reuben and Elizabeth (Lease) Sheetenhalm, of Mt. Pleasant, Md. Their children are: 1, Walter, a farmer of New Market district, married Ada Utz, of New Market, Md.; 2, Bessie, married to Clifford Thomas, farming; 3, Sally, at home; 4, Irving, at home; 5, Marshall, at home. Mr. Burall is a devout Christian gentleman, a member of the Church of the Brethren, which he helped to build, and in which he was ordained assistant elder in 1906.

ISIAH H. BUHRMAN, a farmer residing two miles northeast of Foxville, Frederick County, Md., son of the late Henry of J. and Charlotte M. (Fahs) Buhrman, both deceased, was born on the old homestead in Hauvers District, Frederick County, October 11, 1858.

Mr. Buhrman's grandfather, Jacob Buhrman, a German by descent, was one of the early settlers of Frederick County. He bought a tract of timber land on which he built a dwelling and a barn. He spent his life in clearing and improving his land, and worked in timber. He married and had nine children, among them a son named Henry.

The late Henry Buhrman, of J., second son of Jacob Buhrman, father of Isiah H. Buhrman, was born on the old homestead in Hauvers District, December 11, 1821. He grew up on the homestead, and was educated in the public schools of his native district. He remained with his father, assisting him on the farm, and after his father's death, he and his brother David, bought the homestead, containing 117 acres, and spent the rest of their lives in caring for and improving their old home. They cultivated the land, felled the timber, and by hard work and constant attention to business, added acre to acre until they had 500 acres of farm and timber land all lying in Hauvers District. They were prosperous and cleared a large part of the land. Henry Buhrman was a Republican, and was highly esteemed as a man and as a citizen. Mr. Buhrman was married to Charlotte, daughter of ——— Fahs, a tailor of Bethlehem, Pa. Eight of their children reached adult age: 1, Josiah, of Highfield, Washington County, Md.; 2, Cornelia, married to William Smith, a farmer of Hauvers District; 3, Sophia, died unmarried; 4, Martha E., (Mrs. Lewis Fultz), of Washington County, Md.; 5, Alverta M., died unmarried; 6, Lewis A., of Baltimore, Md.; 7, William H.; 8, Ida, deceased. Mr. Buhrman and his wife were members of Mt. Moriah Lutheran Church, to which he was a liberal contributor. He died on June 9, 1901; his wife June 29, 1897.

Isiah H. Buhrman was educated in the public schools of Hauvers District, and remained at home assisting his father on the farm. After his father's death, Mr. Buhrman bought his father's share of the land, the old homestead, consisting of 275 acres of excellent farm and timber land in the Catoctin Mountain. He has remodeled the buildings and improved his farm in every way. This valuable property, Mr. Buhrman's home, lies two miles northeast of Foxville on the road from Foxville to Deerfield. His toil and care have been rewarded by success in business, and he has won for himself the respect of his fellow citizens. He is an active member of the Republican party. Mr. Buhrman is unmarried.

J. STEWART ANNAN, a highly respected citizen of Emmitsburg, Md., and one of the present County Commissioners of Frederick County, was born in the town in which he now resides, March 9, 1874. He is a son of James Cochran and Rosa J. (Stewart) Annan, the former deceased.

Andrew Annan, the grandfather of J. Stewart Annan, was of Scotch-Irish descent. He lived at Emmitsburg, Frederick County. The name of his wife was Anna Motter. They were members of the Presbyterian Church. They were the parents of these children: Robert L., deceased; David, deceased; Isaac S., deceased; Andrew A.; James Cochran; and Anna Elizabeth, the widow of Major O. A. Horner, of Emmitsburg, Md.

James Cochran Annan, son of Andrew and Anna (Motter) Annan, was born in Emmitsburg, Md., in 1836, and died in August, 1894. He was a general merchant at Emmitsburg for many years, being junior member of the firm of I. S. Annan & Brother. He was a highly esteemed citizen. In politics he was a Republican, but never asked for office. He was a life long member of the Presbyterian Church, being one of the pillars of that denomination. For thirty years he was superintendent of the Sunday School and one of the trustees. Mr. Annan was married to Rosa J. Stewart, a member of an old and well known Scotch-Irish family of the Cumberland Valley, Pa. There was one son by this marriage: J. Stewart. (For further history and ancestry of the Annan family see sketch of Edgar L. Annan, of Emmitsburg).

J. Stewart Annan, son of James Cochran and Rosa J. (Stewart) Annan, spent his early life and received his education in his native place. He also attended New Windsor College, and the Chambersburg Academy, Chambersburg, Pa., and was one year at Lafayette College, Easton, Pa. Upon the completion of his education, he returned home, and has been engaged in various occupations. Much of his time and energy he devotes to the management of his farms, which comprise about 700 acres of land in Emmitsburg district. From time to time he has been interested in various enterprises of the county. He is a director in the People's Fire Insurance Company of Frederick County, and in the Emmitsburg Water Company; Emmitsburg and Frederick Turnpike Company, and a member of the Banking House of Annan, Horner & Co., of Emmitsburg, Md.

Mr. Annan has been all his life a loyal supporter of the Republican party. In November, 1907, he was elected to the office of County Commissioner of Frederick County for a term of four years. During the time he has served he has filled the position with general satisfaction. Fraternally, he is a member of Tyrian Lodge, No. 305, A. F. and A. M., Emmitsburg; St. John's Chapter, R. A. M., of Baltimore; and Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Frederick City. Religiously, he is affiliated with the Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Annan was married March 10, 1896, to Elizabeth A. Morrison, daughter of William and Helen (Agnew) Morrison, of Emmitsburg, Md. They are the parents of three children: James Cochran, Margaret, and Jane.

JESSE C. CLAGETT, a well-known citizen of Motters, Emmitsburg District, Frederick County, Md., son of Thomas and Cynthia (Norwood) Clagett, both deceased, was born on his father's plantation, Urbana District, Frederick County, Md., May 15, 1851.

Jesse C. Clagett is the eighth child and the third son of his parents. He attended the country schools until his parents removed to Frederick when he was sent to Mount St. Mary's College, where he spent four years under Father McCaffray and Father McCloskey. However, Jesse was of a restless, roving disposition, and left school against his father's wishes to go to Texas, where he became a cowboy on a ranch in McCennan County. He rode into Dallas when it was a straggling village with one old countrified hotel with steps on the outside leading into it. He spent four years in Texas and, after a short visit at his home in Maryland, went to St. Louis, Mo., where he secured a situation as night clerk in a hotel. Not long after this, he was taken sick with typhoid fever, and was removed to the Sisters' Hospital on Grand Ave. When he was discharged, at the end of nine weeks, he secured a position with a firm of wholesale grocers to build up their city trade. Some time after this, Mr. Clagett accepted a position as street broker for a firm dealing largely in tea and coffee. He soon decided that he could sell for himself as well as for others, and began business for himself, and was very successful. He was finally made a partner in the first firm which he had served, the firm being, Churchil, Rearick & Clagett. This partnership lasted almost three years, when Mr. Clagett withdrew from the firm after making the largest coffee deal ever made in St. Louis, at that time, through B. G. Arnold & Co., of New York, then known as the Coffee King of Wall Street. Mr. Clagett now went to New York, speculated in Wall Street and lost, returning to his home in Frederick City, and afterwards going to Baltimore to seek a position. There he approached Levering & Co., large dealers in coffee, without success. However while at the old "Maltby House," he was offered a position as salesman for a dealer in paper collars at $75 per month and expenses. This offer he accepted and remained with the firm for five or six years. Mr. Clagett was next employed by a firm in Troy, N. Y., to sell shirts and linen collars. After having spent twenty-one years as traveling salesman, Mr. Clagett gave up the business and, returning to Maryland, settled in Frederick City. About 1890 he purchased his present home, a farm of 40 acres, known as "Windy Castle." At the breaking out of the Spanish-American War, Mr. Clagett responded to the call for volunteers and enlisting in the Rough Riders under Col. Roosevelt, served until the close of the war and, after the surrender, was taken sick with yellow fever. He is a member of the Society of the Army of Cuba. Mr. Clagett was a Democrat, but left the party at the time it divided on the silver issue, and is now an independent voter.

Jesse C. Clagett was married in 1880 to Miss Price, daughter of the late Thomas W. Price, of Philadelphia, Pa. They have two children, Thomas, aged twenty-seven, and Jesse, deceased. On November 5th, 1903, Mr. Clagett was married to Mrs. Etta L. Spicer, daughter of Mrs. Florence Shipley, of Baltimore, Md. They have one child, Cynthia Norwood, born on October 4th, 1904.

RALPH BROWNING, M. D., one of the successful and leading physicians of Myersville, Frederick County, Md., is a native of New England, being born at Griswold, New London county, Conn., April 26, 1869. His parents were Beriah Hopkins and Sarah (Campbell) Browning.

The American ancestor of the Browning family was William Browning. The name of his wife was Sarah. Nothing is known of their birth, marriage or death. The first information we have of them is as residing in Portsmouth, R. I. Whether they came from England can only be surmised. Previous to this time, the name of Nathaniel Browning appears on the roll of freemen in Portsmouth in 1655, and soon afterward William Browning. William Browning was the father of these children: John; William; Samuel, is supposed to have settled in South Kingston, but nothing definite is known to him; Hannah; and Sarah.

John Browning, son of William Browning, was married to Anna Hazard, by whom he had ten children, among whom was John.

John Browning, son of John and Anna (Hazard) Browning, was the great-grandfather of Dr. Ralph Browning. He was born November 15, 1742, and died February 24, 1832. He was a good type of a portly English farmer and "squire." He held all prominent town offices and various positions of trust. He owned a large tract of land, and although he never labored himself, gave his personal superintendence to all branches of his extensive farming. He was a genial man, fond of conversation, of great hospitality, and lived to be nearly ninety years of age. It was his usual practice in hot weather to leave all outside doors open on retiring, and never was troubled by thieves or robbers. Mr. Browning was three times married. His first wife was Mary Davis, by whom he had two sons, Jedediah and John. Mr. Browning was married to Eunice Williams, and they were the parents of seven children: George, Mary, Eunice, Avery, Annie, Jesse, and George W. Mr. Browning's third wife was Elizabeth Boss, by which marriage there were no children.

Avery Browning, son of John and Eunice (Williams) Browning, was born February 8, 1786, and died May 9, 1865. His birthplace was Exeter, R. I. He remained with his father, and became a farmer. He was an active agriculturist, and was successful in his vocation. He was very prominent in public affairs and was a representative citizen. He held all the town offices, and on the passage of the free-school law, which divided the town into school districts, he was called upon to draw many legal instruments, which were carried into the highest courts and never broken. In March, 1834, Mr. Browning purchased a farm in Griswold. After residing here several years, he sold the place and went to Preston, thence removing to Norwich, where he was at the time of his death. For many years he was a member of the Baptist Church. Coming of Democratic stock, he steadfastly adhered to the same principles during his life. Mr. Browning was married July 17, 1808, to Mary Arnold. She was born June 8, 1796, and died June 22, 1879. They are the parents of the following children: Arnold, Hiram, Beriah Hopkins, and Eunice W.

Beriah Hopkins Browning, son of Avery and Mary (Arnold) Browning, was born in Exeter, R. I., September 13, 1819. He lived with his father until he attained his majority. He then roved for two years, being engaged at various occupations. In 1842, he started in trade as a merchant at Brooklyn, Conn. Three years later he relinquished this business, and removed to his father's farm on Plain Hill, in Norwich. He subsequently purchased this place. In 1866, Mr. Browning sold his Norwich property and removed to Griswold, where he purchased a beautiful home. Mr. Browning was a Democrat in his political beliefs, and was prominent in political and public affairs. He was appointed justice before he was thirty years old, and was for most of his life in some public position. He settled several important and difficult estates, one involving $40,000. He represented Griswold in the State Legislature in 1873, being elected by a large majority, although the town is strongly Republican. He was selectman for a number of years. In 1878, he was nominated by the Democratic Senatorial Convention for the Eighth District of Connecticut as Senator by a unanimous vote, which nomination he declined. He served many times on grand juries, and was foreman of the jury in the famous trial of Mrs. Cobb for murder. He was always active in all things tending to elevate, improve or educate mankind, and was especially interested in the advancement of Griswold, where he was one of the leading citizens. Mr. Browning was married November 21, 1842, to Sarah Elizabeth Campbell, daughter of Bonaparte Campbell. They were the parents of the following children: Joseph B., a physician at Havana, Ill.; Frank, deceased; Lucinda, deceased; Sarah E., the wife of Simon Brewster; Mattie; Nellie; Arba; Mary A.; and Ralph.

Ralph Browning, son of Beriah Hopkins and Sarah Elizabeth (Campbell) Browning, attended the public schools of New London county, Conn., and was employed on his father's farm as a youth. In 1894, he was graduated from the Ohio Northern University with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Having decided to take up the study of medicine, he entered the Baltimore Medical College, at Baltimore, Md., from which institution he was graduated with the degree of Doctor of Medicine in 1897. Having completed his medical studies, Dr. Browning came to Frederick County and located in Myersville, where he has since remained, engaged in the active practice of his profession. Soon after entering upon practice, he was the possessor of a large and influential clientele, his skill winning him a wide reputation. Dr. Browning has won an enviable position in the exacting field to which he has devoted himself, and is held in high esteem by all who have come in contact with him.

Dr. Browning, like his forebears, is a Democrat in politics. Fraternally, he is a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., of Frederick City. He is also a member of the Frederick County Medical Society and the Medico-Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland. In religion, he is a member of the Christian Church. Dr. Browning received the degree of Master of Arts from the Ohio Northern University in June, 1908.

On January 1, 1895, Dr. Browning was married to Addie Harris, daughter of Israel Harris, of Dayton, O. There are two children by this marriage: Maud and Avery.

ALVEY R. BRANDENBURG, farmer and fruit-raiser, of Foxville, Frederick County, Md., son of Samuel and Julia C. (Grossnickle) Brandenburg, was born at the old Brandenburg homestead, in Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., July 21, 1863.

The Brandenburg family is German by descent. The name of Jefferson Brandenburg appears in the list of the early settlers of the Middletown Valley. Samuel Brandenburg, great-grandfather of Alvey R. Brandenburg, owned a farm in the Middletown Valley, and bought, for his son, Henry, a tract of timber land situated a mile and a-half north of Wolfsville.

Henry Brandenburg, son of Samuel and ——— (Bear) Brandenburg, grandfather of Alvey R. Brandenburg, was born on his father's farm near Middletown, Md., in 1793. His boyhood and youth were spent on the homestead, assisting his father, with whom he remained until he married, and began farming for himself on the land belonging to his father, situated a mile and a-half north of Wolfsville, Md. He was counted among the prosperous farmers of his time, and greatly improved the land which was under his care, besides putting up substantial buildings. Henry Brandenburg was married to Mary Kemp who was born in 1794. Their children are: 1, Samuel; 2, John, a farmer of Catoctin District; 3, Mary E., deceased, married to the late Henry Poffenberger, a farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County; 4, Malinda C. (Mrs. Daniel Toms), of Kansas. Mr. Brandenburg and his wife were members of the Reformed Church. He died August 2, 1845; his widow died October 21, 1863. Both are buried in their family burying ground on the homestead.

Samuel Brandenburg, father of Alvey R. Brandenburg, a prominent farmer and dealer in lumber in Frederick County, Md., was born on his father's farm near Wolfsville, Md., May 21, 1824. He was educated in the public schools of the district, and remained on the homestead until his father died, when he took charge of the place for his mother. Mr. Brandenburg afterwards purchased the farm consisting of 200 acres of farm and timber land. He cleared more of the land, put up a two-story dwelling, a bank barn, and all the necessary outbuildings. He owned a sawmill and was successful both as a dealer in lumber and as a farmer. By his intelligent cultivation, he made his farm one of the best in the section. Mr. Brandenburg was a Democrat, interested in local affairs.

Samuel Brandenburg was married to Julia C. Grossnickle. Of their ten children nine reached maturity; 1, C. Upton, a carpenter and contractor, of Garfield, Catoctin District; 2, Henry L., a farmer of Catoctin District; 3, Martin R., a farmer of Urbana District, Frederick County; 4, Samuel T., a farmer of Catoctin District; 5, Cyrus P., a farmer of North Dakato; 6, Alvey R., a farmer of Hauvers District; 7, Elmer C., carpenter and contractor, Wolfsville, Md.; 8, Mary E., married to Jacob L. Routzahn, a farmer of Catoctin District; 9, Chester R., a farmer of Hauvers District. Mr. Brandenburg was a member of the Reformed Church in Wolfsville, and was a liberal contributor to benevolent enterprises. He died on July 6, 1888, and is buried in the cemetery of the German Baptist Church at Ellerton, Md. His widow resides on the homestead.

Alvey R. Brandenburg grew up on his father's farm and was educated in the public schools of Catoctin District. He remained with his father until he attained his majority when he began business for himself. After spending a year in Illinois, Mr. Brandenburg returned to Frederick County and learned carpentry, and found profitable employment at that trade for eight years. During this time he purchased, from T. C. Fox, his present home at Foxville, Md. Mr. Brandenburg now abandoned his trade, and devoted his whole time to his land. He planted orchards of choice fruit, apples peaches, and pears, and has one of the finest fruit farms in that section of Maryland. He ships large quantities of fruit to the cities where he has a good and increasing business. On this place, which is beautifully situated near Foxville, he has built a comfortable dwelling, two stories and a-half in height, containing ten rooms, a large bank barn, and all the necessary out-buildings, making it one of the finest homes in the district. Mr. Brandenburg is an alert business man and has earned his prosperity by hard work and constant watchfulness. He is a Democrat, interested in all that pertains to the progress of the district.

Alvey R. Brandenburg was married to Estelle E., daughter of Thomas and Ruth A. (Buhrman) Fox, whose father is a prominent farmer and merchant of Foxville. Their children are: 1, Russell T., a student of Columbia Business College, Hagerstown, Md.; 2, Grace, at home; 3, Samuel R., at home. The family belong to the Lutheran Church.

ELMER C. BRANDENBURG, carpenter and contractor, Wolfsville, Md., son of the late Samuel and Julia C. (Grossnickle) Brandenburg, was born on the old homestead in Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., November 13, 1865. (For family history, see sketch of Alvey R. Brandenburg, in this volume.)

Elmer C. Brandenburg received his education in the public schools of his native District, and remained on the home farm, working for his parents, until he was eighteen years of age, when he secured a clerkship with Frederick Leatherman, general merchant, in Wolfsville, Md. After a trial of eighteen months, Mr. Brandenburg resigned his position to learn carpentry with his brother, C. Upton Brandenburg. After working at that trade successfully for three years, Mr. Brandenburg began business for himself as contractor. His venture was a financial success and he has built many fine edifices in Frederick County, and in Washington County, Md. He was, for some time a member of the firm of Morgan & Brandenburg, owners of a planing-mill. When he was about to remove to North Dakota, he sold his interest to his partner, Irving Morgan. In 1892, he bought his present home, a farm of 30 acres of arable land adjoining Wolfsville on the east. On this place Mr. Brandenburg has erected a three-story dwelling, the finest residence in that section of Frederick County, with a large bank barn, and other necessary buildings, making it one of the most desirable small farms in the county. Although he is a successful farmer, he has not given up his business as contractor. He is a progressive business man and ascribes his success to diligence and careful attention to business. Mr. Brandenburg is a Democrat, and highly esteemed in Frederick County. He is a charter member of the Improved Order of Red Men, Catoctin Tribe, No. 139, of Wolfsville, instituted June 2, 1902, with thirty-four members, as follows: George R. Stottlemyer, Christopher C. Stottlemyer, Martin C. Dutrow, John W. King, Henry M. Warrenfeltz, Jonathan D. English, Harvey C. Wills, Peter C. Pryor, John F. Schroyer, Victor R. Cline, Elmer C. Brandenburg, Upton W. Palmer, Oliver Pryor, Samuel C. Pryor, Daniel S. Garnand, James E. Bear, Ira E. Pryor, Mahlon B. Green, Josiah Recher, John A. E. Bowman, Luther M. Schroyer, Lewis T. Green, Josiah Betts, William H. Brandenburg, Stanley Dusing, Asbury E. Hoover, Paul Kline, Jr., David E. Barkman, Jr., John R. Horn, Adam B. Martin, John L. Herbst, John W. Brandenburg, C. F. S. Warrenfeltz. Officers: Henry M. Warrenfeltz, Sachem; George R. Stottlemyer, Senior Sagamore; John W. King, Junior Sagamore; Asbury E. Hoover, Prophet; Christopher C. Stottlemyer, Chief of Records; Elmer C. Brandenburg, Keeper of Wampum.

The tribe now numbers seventy. The officers of the year 1909 were: James H. DeLauter, Sachem; Jesse B. Kelbaugh, Senior Sagamore; George H. DeLauter, Junior Sagamore; W. S. Williams, Prophet; E. C. Brandenburg, Keeper of Records; J. W. Brandenburg, Representative to G. C. Officers for the year 1910: Jesse B. Kelbaugh, Sachem; George N. DeLauter, Senior Sagamore; Alvey Easterday, Junior Sagamore; James H. DeLauter, Prophet; E. C. Brandenburg, Chief of Records: George R. Stottlemyer, Keeper of Wampum; Uriah M. Palmer, Representative to G. C.

Elmer C. Brandenburg was married, November 9, 1887, to Teressa M., daughter of Josiah F. and Ellen A. CHESTER R. BRANDENBURG, a progressive young farmer of Hauvers District, Frederick County, Md., residing one mile northeast of Foxville, son of Samuel and Julia C. (Grossnickle) Brandenburg, was born on the old Brandenburg homestead in Catoctin District, Frederick County, June 7, 1870. (For family history see sketch of Alvey R. Brandenburg, in this volume).

Chester R. Brandenburg grew up on his father's farm, and received his education in the public schools of his native district. He learned carpentry, but had not been employed at his trade for many years, when his father's death called him to take charge of the farm for his mother. Mr. Brandenburg cultivated the land for her for seven years. Then, after farming on the shares for three years, he bought his present farm of 90 acres of fine farm and timber land, to which he removed in the spring of 1902. He has been very successful, and improved his property in every respect. He has built a beautiful three-story dwelling containing ten rooms, a large bank barn, and convenient outbuildings. He has one of the most desirable residences in Foxville, and one of the best farms in Hauvers District, beautifully situated between the Blue Ridge and Catoctin Mountain. Mr. Brandenburg also owns two desirable building lots in Smithsburg, Washington County, Md. He is prominent among the younger farmers of Hauvers District, and ascribes his success to hard work and good business management. Mr. Brandenburg is a Democrat, interested in all that will advance the best interests of the district. He is a member of the Modern Woodmen of America, No. 11778, of Smithsburg, Washington County, Md., and a stockholder in the Citizens Bank of Thurmont, Md.

Chester R. Brandenburg was married to Susan, daughter of Hamilton and Cornelia (Pryor) Harbaugh, a descendant of one of the oldest families of the county, whose parents were among the most prominent residents of Harbaugh Valley. The children of Chester R. and Susan (Harbaugh) Brandenburg are:

1, Ruth M., died in infancy; 2, Rosco H.; 3, Eva C.; 4, Mildred E.; 5, Samuel Rue; all at home. Mrs. Brandenburg is a member of the United Brethren Church.

JOHN C. AMBROSE, a farmer of Hauvers District, Frederick County, Md., son of ex-County Commissioner George H. and Matilda (Marker) Ambrose, was born near Myersville, Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., March 28, 1857.

John Ambrose, grandfather of John C. Ambrose, was one of the early settlers of Catoctin District, Frederick County. He was a German by descent, and was well known among the older farmers of Catoctin District. He owned two fertile farms near Wolfsville, and spent his life in cultivating and improving his holdings. John Ambrose was married to Catherine Mundbach. Among their children was a son named George H. Ambrose.

The late George H. Ambrose, a prominent farmer of Catoctin District and ex-County Commissioner of Frederick County, father of John C. Ambrose, grew up on his father's farm in Catoctin District. At his father's death, Mr. Ambrose inherited the land. These farms he soon after sold, and bought a place of 160 acres near Deerfield, Md., now the property of his son, John C. Ambrose. He spent the remainder of his life in caring for this place, and made it one of the valuable farms of the district. Mr. Ambrose was one of the leading Republicans of Hauvers District, and was nominated and elected on the party ticket, County Commissioner of Frederick County. He proved himself an excellent public officer, but he died before his term of office expired. George H. Ambrose was married to Matilda Marker. Of their twelve children, eleven reached adult age: 1, Ezra, deceased, a farmer of Hauvers District; 2, Mary (Mrs. L. H. Boyer), of Rouzersville, Pa.; 3, Lottie (Mrs. Cyrus Davis), of Washington County, Md.; 4, Katherin, married to Washington Ridenour, a farmer of Mechanicstown District, Frederick County; 5, John C.; 6, Laura, married to John Mathews, a farmer of Emmitsburg District, Frederick County; 7, Rene, of Philadelphia, Pa.; 8, Charles, deceased; 9, Rebecca, deceased; 10, Emma, single; 11, George B., of England; and 12, Mireno, unmarried, of Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Ambrose and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church in Foxville, Md.

John C. Ambrose grew up on his father's farm near Wolfsville, Md., and was educated in the public schools of his native district. He remained on the homestead, and after his father's death, he remained with his brother who took the home farm. After the death of his brother, Mr. Ambrose purchased the homestead, a farm of 101 acres of fine farm and timber land, on which he now resides. He has increased the value of his place, putting up a two-story dwelling, a bank barn, and convenient outbuildings. This desirable property is situated half a mile west of Deerfield on the road to Foxville. Mr. Ambrose is a prosperous farmer, and his success is due to his industry and careful attention to business. He is one of the leading Republicans of Hauvers District, and has been a member of the central committee for a number of years.

John C. Ambrose was married to Amanda, daughter of John C. and Hilda (Boyer) Smith, of Mechanicstown District, both deceased. Of their six children, five reached maturity: 1, John H., a farmer of Mechanicstown District; 2, Lottie V., married to Lewis B. Smith, connected with the Western Maryland R. R.; 3, Bertha, married to Albert Grossnickle, a farmer of Catoctin District; 4, Marshall F., at home; 5, Clarence R., at home. The family belong to the Lutheran Church at Foxville.

JOHN H. ABBOTT, a well-known machinist of Frederick City, was born in that place, June 30, 1835. He is a son of John H. and Julia A. (Dorff) Abbott.

John H. Abbott, the grandfather of the above John H. Abbott, was a native of Liverpool, England, where he was associated with his uncle in the manufacture of implements for weaving fine goods. In the year 1815, when about to embark from Liverpool to the United States, intending to start in the new world a business similar to that conducted by his uncle in Liverpool, his machinery was taken from him. At that time feeling ran high against the United States in consequence of the defeat of the War of 1812, and no skilled workmen or machinery were allowed to go to this country. Determined not to be defeated, he copied the plans of the machinery in pasteboard, and took his wife and six children (one of whom was the father of the subject of this sketch) to Ireland, from whence they sailed for the United States. After a perilous voyage of three months their vessel, the brig Mariah, was towed into Newport, Rhode Island, a very bad wreck. Mr. Abbott took his family to Philadelphia, Pa., intending to locate there, but finally settled in Frederick, Md. After all his trouble his machinery was not called for, but not discouraged, and knowing that wherever civilization extends there is a demand for cleanliness and light, he established a soap and candle factory in East Patrick street, which he conducted successfully until 1832, when he died of cholera, his wife having died the previous year. After the death of the parents the family scattered, locating in Kentucky, Ohio and Texas.

John H. Abbott, Jr., remained in Frederick, where he was marrired to Julia A. Dorff. Their children were Edward G., John H., Eleanor V., and George A.

John H. Abbott, 3rd, son of John H. and Julia A. (Dorff) Abbott, attended the public schools and also the school conducted by Mr. Samuel Markell, now known as Frederick College. At the age of seventeen he entered the foundry of the late Calvin Page. After serving an apprenticeship of four years, he was made foreman of the machine shop, which position he held for fifteen years. He was then employed by Mr. McClintock Young in building machinery for the manufacture of the Diamond matches. In 1876, he opened an establishment of his own in West All Saints' street, which business he has conducted successfully since that time. Having recently associated with him his son, Henry H. Abbott, the firm is now known as John H. Abbott & Son.

Mr. Abbott has been a stanch Republican since the Civil War, and voted for Abraham Lincoln for his second term. In 1873, he was elected a member of the City Council, was several times re-elected, and later filled the office of alderman. Mr. Abbott is a member of Columbia Lodge, A. F. and A. M., and also of the United Fire Company from the days of the old hand engine and leather buckets. He has been a member of the Evangelical Reformed Church from his early manhood, and was also connected with the Young Men's Christian Association when it was conducted by a few men whose headquarters was a small room in the building now occupied by William A. Burger's photograph gallery.

On October 29, 1868, Mr. Abbott was married by Rev. Dr. Daniel Zacharias to Julia M. Hanshew, daughter of Henry and Catharine (Stover) Hanshew, and grand-niece of Mrs. Barbara (Haner) Fritchie, Whittier's heroine. Mr. and Mrs. Abbott have in their possession the flag through which originated Whittier's poem, "Barbara Fritchie." Mr. and Mrs. Abbott have two children: Eleanor D., and Henry H., who married Jane E. Staley, by whom he has one child, Julia E.

THE REV. CHARLES F. AUSHERMAN, an ordained minister of the Church of the Brethren, and a prominent farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., son of the late John Jr. and Elizabeth (Leatherman) Ausherman, was born on the old Ausherman homestead, near Burkittsville, Frederick County, Md., September 21, 1865.

John Ausherman, Sr., grandfather of the Rev. Charles F. Ausherman, was numbered among the early settlers of the Middletown Valley. He was the owner of a valuable farm of 160 acres of good land, well improved, situated near Burkittsville, Md. John Ausherman was married to Lydia Arnold, who was a descendant of one of the old families of the section. They had twelve children. John Ausherman died at his home near Burkittsville in his eighty-seventh year.

The late John Ausherman, Jr., sixth child of John and Lydia (Arnold) Ausherman, father of the Rev. Charles F. Ausherman, was born on the family homestead, near Burkittsville, Md., September 28, 1828. He was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained on the homestead with his father until he married, when he began farming for himself. Mr. Ausherman purchased from his father the old homestead, a farm of 160 acres of excellent land, and spent the remainder of his life in caring for his property. Mr. Ausherman was a Republican, and was a prominent man among the farmers of his generation in Frederick County. John Ausherman, Jr., was married to Elizabeth, daughter of Jacob and Susan (Harp) Leatherman, both deceased, whose parents were the descendants of old families, residing near Myersville, Md. Of their children only one son, Charles F., reached manhood. Mr. Ausherman and his wife were members of the Church of the Brethren. Mr. Ausherman died, January 26, 1873, and is buried in Valley View Cemetery, near Burkittsville, Md.

Charles F. Ausherman received his primary education in the public schools of Middletown Valley, and continued his studies at Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa. When he returned from college, Mr. Ausherman took charge of the home farm for his mother and, after her death, being the only heir, succeeded to the property, on which he now resides. He is a skilful farmer, and ascribes his success in business to industry and careful management. His place, situated in Jackson District, near Ellerton, contains 106 acres of arable land, well improved, with all the necessary buildings in excellent order, and is numbered among the fine farms of the district. Mr. Ausherman, in politics, is a Republican, and interested in all that concerns the well-being of the community. He is a stockholder and one of the directors of the Myersville Savings Bank, of Myersville, Md.

Charles F. Ausherman was married to Caroline, daughter of Peter and the late Marie (Bittle) Grossnickle, whose father is one of the oldest men in Frederick County. They have one daughter, Elizabeth, at home. Mr. Ausherman and his wife are members of the Church of the Brethren. Mr. Ausherman has always been an active worker in the church, and a liberal contributor to all church enterprises. In 1896 he was licensed to preach the Gospel as a minister of the Church of the Brethren. Since that time he has been one of the ministers in charge of Middletown Valley congregation, a position which he still holds. He is an active worker in the church in all of its branches. Mrs. Ausherman died at the homestead, April 9, 1895, and was laid to rest in the German Baptist Cemetery at the Grossnickle Meetinghouse.

DR. S. PHILIP APPLEMAN, of Middletown, Frederick County, Md., son of John and N. Agnes (Sadler) Appleman, both deceased, was born in Middletown, Md., September 30, 1849.

Philip Appleman, grandfather of S. Philip Appleman was born in Heidelberg, Germany, October 20, 1755. In early manhood, he came to America, settled in Pleasant Valley, Washington County, Md., where he purchased about 1500 acres of land. Mr. Appleman was one of the first to build on the site of the present town of Middletown. He put up two dwellings in one of which he lived after he retired from business. He was a successful man and a reliable citizen. Philip Appleman was married to Maria Brunch, of Heidelberg, Germany. Their children are: 1, Elizabeth, died in Middletown, aged 101; 2, John; 3, Catherine, of Middletown, died unmarried; 4, Sarah, of Middletown, unmarried; 5, Jacob; 6, Susan, deceased. Mr. Appleman and his wife were members of the United Brethren Church in Middletown. He was one of the founders of the United Brethren Church in that section of the country, and was actively interested in its work. He died at his home in Middletown, October 20, 1830, and is buried in the graveyard of the United Brethren Church in Middletown. His wife died in ——.

Dr. Appleman's father, the late John Appleman, who had an extensive harness shop in Middletown, Md., was born in Pleasant Valley, Washington County, Md., in November, 1783. He attended the public schools of Middletown, and remained at home until he married, when he began business for himself. He was a tanner, and had a tannery in Middletown for a number of years, and was also engaged in farming. He was one of the active business men of his day, and was highly esteemed in the community. He was successful in all of his business undertakings. John Appleman was married to N. Agnes Sadler, of Cumberland County, Pa. Their children are: 1, Alpheus R., deceased; 2, John P., deceased; 3, Mary F., married to Dr. Brown, of Augusta, Ga.; 4, Rebecca N., widow of the late D. W. Rudy, of Baltimore, Md.; 5, Catherine C., deceased, married to the late Edward Fales, of Baltimore, Maryland; 6, A. G., of New York City; 7, S. Philip; 8, William S., resides in Texas. Mr. John Appleman was a member of the Methodist Church. He was an active worker and a liberal contributor. He died at his home in Middletown, December 25, 1864, and is buried in Rose Hill cemetery in Hagerstown, Md. After the death of her husband Mrs. Appleman and her family removed to Hagerstown, Md., in 1866, where the family opened a private bank which they carried on successfully for fourteen years. They then established the Citizens' National Bank with A. R. Appleman as president, and his brother, A. G. Appleman, as cashier. Two years later, the brother became interested in a bank in Washington, D. C., and the Citizens' National Bank was removed there, of which A. R. Appleman was Vice-President. Mrs. Appleman, the mother, died in 1884, and was buried beside her husband, at Rose Hill Cemetery.

Dr. S. Philip Appleman received his primary education in private schools and completed his studies at Dickinson Seminary, Pa., and afterwards took a course in Medicine and Dentistry. After leaving college, Dr. Appleman opened an office in Bethlehem, Pa. He was very successful in his profession, but at the end of fourteen years, he began to study art under Philip Weber and Merritt Post, of N. Y. He has become well-known as an artist, and has preserved, in oil and in water colors, many beautiful scenes in the country. His work sells very high. His summer home, one of the elegant residences of Braddock Heights, is beautifully situated on Catoctin Mountain. He ascribes his good fortune to diligence and close application to his art. In the autumn of 1909, Dr. Appleman presented to the citizens of Middletown, a public drinking fountain, in memory of his parents. He is a Democrat, interested in the progress of the community, where he is honored as a good citizen.

Dr. S. Philip Aplpeman was married to Miss Heiste, of Philadelphia, Pa. Their only child, Lieghton F., is demonstrator of Pharmacy and Materia Medica in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, Pa. Mrs. Appleman died in 1874. Dr. Appleman's second wife was Mrs. Josephine Durnin, (maiden name Lane), of Washington, D. C. They have no children. Dr. Appleman and his wife are members of the Episcopal Church.

LEVIN WEST, M. D., one of the leading physicians of Frederick county, Md., who is engaged in the active practice of his profession at Brunswick, was born in Petersville district, Frederick county, July 26, 1864. He is a son of Patrick McGill and Eleanora (McGill) West.

The West family is of ancient and honorable lineage of English origin. The genealogical records of this family trace back to the fifth century, showing that among its early members were Lord Delaware, Alfred the Great and Charlemagne. The American ancestor emigrated to this country from England and settled in Prince George county, Md.

Joseph West, the great-grandfather of Dr. Levin West, was one of the early settlers of Petersville district, Frederick county, Md. He was the father of Levin West. The latter was a native of Frederick county, and spent his life following the occupation of a farmer in Petersville district. He was the father of seven children: Thomas H., Patrick McGill, Erasmus, Sarah, Mary, Susan and Elizabeth.

Patrick McGill West, son of Levin West, was born in Frederick county, February 3, 1825, and died in 1904. Like his forebears, he was a farmer. In politics, as the West family generally have been, he was a Democrat, and in religion, a member of the Episcopal Church. He was married to Eleanora A. McGill. She was descended from James McGill, who was created Viscount of Oxford and Lord McGill by King Charles in 1651. The McGill family is of Scotch-Irish origin. Patrick McG. and Eleanora A. West were the parents of two children: Mary H., the wife of William Schnauffer, of Brunswick, Md. (see sketch); and Levin.

Levin West, son of Patrick McGill and Eleanora A. (McGill) West, was reared on the farm in Petersville district. Until he was nineteen years of age, he attended the public and private schools. At that time he began the study of medicine under his uncle, Dr. George Washington West, of Petersville, one of the county's most successful and best known practitioners. In 1884, he entered the Medical Department of the University of Maryland, from which institution he was graduated in the spring of 1886. He was then located at the Bay View Hospital for a short time. In the fall of 1886, he located at Petersville, Md., and began the practice of his profession. Here he remained until 1890, when he entered the University of New York, where he took a special course. In 1891, he came to Brunswick, where he has since remained in the active practice of his profession. He soon acquired a large practice, numbering among his clients many of the community's leading and most prominent citizens. His skill soon won him a wide reputation and today he is the leading practitioner of Brunswick. His success in the exacting profession to which he has devoted himself has been well merited and is the result of hard and conscientious study.

In politics, Dr. West votes the Democratic ticket. He is a member of the American Medical Association, the Medical and Chirurgical Society of Maryland, and the Frederick County Medical Society. For sixteen years, he has been surgeon for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He is a member of the board of directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Brunswick. He is also a member of the Improved Order of Red Men. Dr. West also takes a keen interest in all that tends to improve the general welfare. He is the owner of considerable valuable real estate in Brunswick. In religion, he is a member of the Episcopal Church. Dr. West has never married.

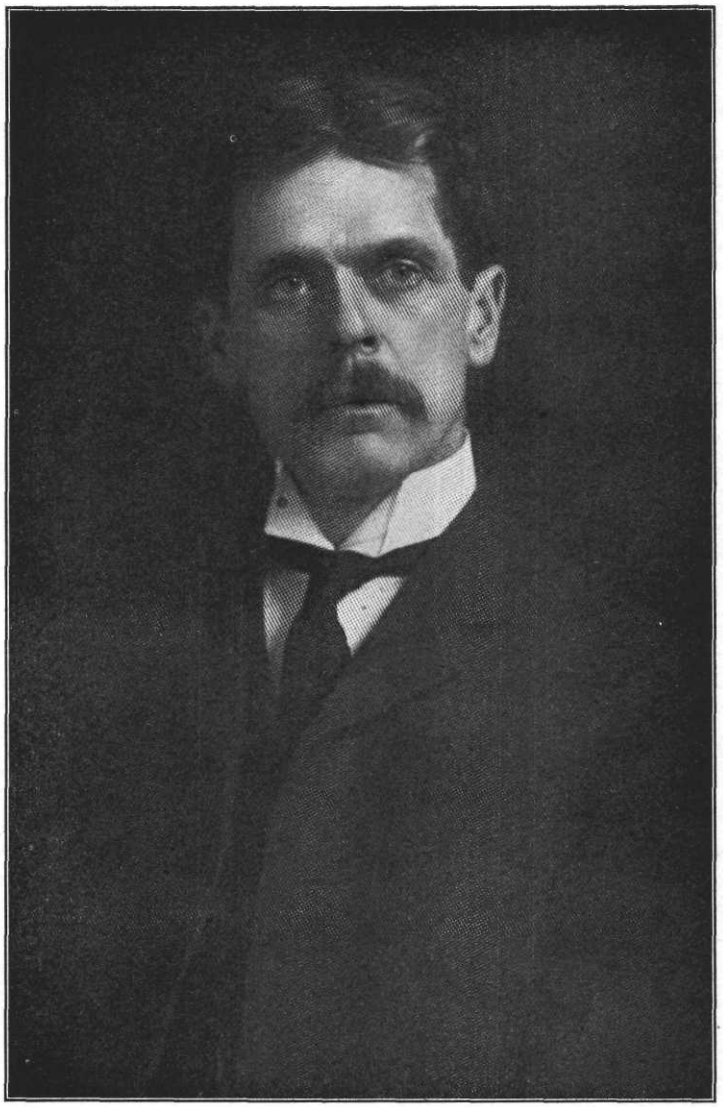
CLEMENT C. AUSHERMAN, a prominent and successful member of the Frederick County Bar, who maintains offices at No. 120 Court street, Frederick City, was born near Myersville, in Jackson district, November 6, 1868. He is a son of Rev. David Ausherman.

John Ausherman, the grandfather of Clement C. Ausherman, was a native of Middletown Valley, Frederick County. His parents were natives of Germany, and came from Hesse Cassel to Frederick County about 1790. John Ausherman was a farmer by occupation. He was married to Lydia Arnold. They were members of the River Brethren, and were the parents of the following children: William, Sallie, Tilghman, John, Lydia, Eliza, Elizabeth, Samuel, David, Martin, Thomas, and Mary, all deceased.

David Ausherman, son of John and Lydia (Arnold) Ausherman, was born in Middletown



Lenin West

Valley, July 7, 1838, and died April 24th, 1907. He was for many years a minister in the German Baptist Church, and lived near Burkittsville, in Middletown district. Rev. Ausherman was married to Amanda L. Remsburg, daughter of Samuel and Maria (Bowlus) Remsburg, a descendant of one of the valley's old families. There were five children by this marriage: Annie A., the wife of Vincent S. Kepler, a farmer in Petersville district; Mollie E., the wife of O. C. Sigler, engaged in farming in Burkittsville district.

Clement C.; Emma M., the wife of George V. Arnold, an agriculturist of Burkittsville district; and Samuel Q., resides in Burkittsville district.

Clement C. Ausherman, son of Rev. David and Amanda L. (Remsburg) Ausherman, was only four years old when his parents removed from Jackson to Middletown district, and there located on a farm. Here he grew to manhood and followed the routine of the average farmer's boy. He attended the public schools, the Maryland Agricultural College and later a business college at Delaware, O. At the end of his studies, he accepted a position with the Bureau of Awards at the World's Fair, Chicago, in 1893. Mr. Ausherman then followed the profession of a teacher for some time in the West and in Frederick County. In 1897, he was chosen clerk to the county commissioners. This position he held for a period of eight years. Mr. Ausherman then began the study of the law under Arthur D. Willard, Esq., and was admitted to the Frederick County Bar in the summer of 1906. He has followed his profession in Frederick. In the short time he has been in practice he has built up a susbtantial clientele and has achieved much success.

In politics Mr. Ausherman is a loyal Republican, and in 1909 was elected a member of the House of Delegates, leading the legislative ticket with the largest majority. He served during the session of 1910, and as a member of three of the most important committees—the Ways and Means, Judiciary, and Corporations. Fraternally, Mr. Ausherman is a member of Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias; Frederick City Lodge, No. 100, I. O. O. F.; Palestine Encampment, Canton Victory No. 6, P. M.; Frederick Conclave, No. 731, I. O. H. He is also identified with the Young Men's Christian Association of Frederick.

Mr. Ausherman was married to Katharine E. Sheeler, daughter of Conrad and Mary Sheeler, of Monrovia, Frederick County.

The Remsburg family, to which Mr. Ausherman's mother belongs, has long been prominent in the county, and much of the family's history is to be found in this volume. Mr. Ausherman's great-grandfather, like his grandfather, was was named Henry Remsburg. His mother was one of eleven children, of whom four are now living, namely: Charlotte, Amanda L. (Mrs. David Ausherman), Singleton E., and Emma.

CHARLES H. BROWN, dealer in grain, fertilizers, wood, groceries and general merchandise, of Deerfield, Hauvers District, Frederick County, Md., son of Joseph B. and Dinah (Buhrman) Brown, was born in Hauvers District, June 11, 1859.

Jeremiah Brown, grandfather of Charles H. Brown, was a prominent citizen of Washington County, Md. His ancestors, who were of English lineage, were among the early settlers of Washington County. Jeremiah Brown was married to Mary Flant, a descendant of one of the old families of Washington County. Their children are: 1, Joseph B.; 2, James, a mechanic, of Washington County, deceased; 3, William, a farmer of Hauvers District, Frederick County; 4, Upton, a farmer of Washington County, deceased; 5, Servilla, widow of the late George M. Harbaugh. Mr. Brown and his wife were members of Mount Moriah Church in Foxville, Md.

Mr. Brown's father, Joseph B. Brown, was born in Washington County. His father died while he was still a child, and he made his home in Hauver's District, Frederick County, with his uncle, William Brown, with whom he remained until the time of his marriage. After his marriage, Mr. Brown purchased 110 acres of farm and timber land on which he built a two-story dwelling, a barn, and all the necessary outbuildings. This land was situated in Hauvers District, on the road from Deerfield to Mt. Zion. Mr. Brown felled the trees, worked out the lumber, cleared and cultivated the soil, and after thirty-five years of hard labor, made his place one of the fine farms of the district. He then sold the land, and bought his present home, a farm of 150 acres, the property of Albert Lantz. He immediately began improving his home with the necessary outbuildings, and a store and warehouse at Deerfield, on the line of the Western Maryland Railroad, in which he did a thriving business, admitting his son, Charles H. to a partnership, under the firm name of Joseph B. Brown and Son. After devoting five years to building up a business, Mr. Brown withdrew from this business, and gave his attention entirely to his farm, and in 1903, retired from farming to enjoy the reward of his toil and care. Mr. Brown was one of the old citizens of Frederick County, where he was highly esteemed. He was one of the leading Democrats of the county, and was elected county commissioner by a large majority, a position which he filled with great credit. When his term expired, Mr. Brown was elected one of the school commissioners of Frederick County, and discharged the duties of that office acceptably.

Joseph B. Brown was married to Dinah, daughter of Jacob and Mary N. (McLain) Buhrman, both deceased, whose father was a prominent farmer of Adams County, Pa. Of their nine children, six reached adult age: 1, Martha A., married to John I. Harbaugh, a farmer of Chewsville, Washington County, Md.; 2, Wilford B., a farmer of Miami County, Ohio; 3, Charles H.; 4, Effie O., married to Milton Lantz, principal of the High School in Waynesboro, Pa.; 5, Mary N., married to Frederick Ridenour, bridge builder, Deerfield, Md.; 6, H. S., deceased. Mr. Brown and his wife are members of Mt. Moriah Lutheran Church, of Foxville, Md. Mr. Brown is a liberal contributor to benevolent enterprises, and has served the congregation as deacon.

Charles H. Brown was educated in the public schools of Hauver's District, and remained on the farm with his father until he reached his twenty-eighth year, when he and his father began dealing in general merchandise in Deerfield. For five years the firm of J. B. Brown and Son did a thriving business, and at the end of that time, Mr. Brown purchased the business, and carried it on under his own name. Besides dealing in all kinds of merchandise, Mr. Brown makes a specialty of telegraph poles and lumber. He owns about 1,000 acres of valuable timber land, has a large sawmill, and is the largest shipper of lumber in Frederick County. Through his agency Deerfield has become a large shipping point for the Western Maryland Railroad. Mr. Brown owns two dwelling houses in Deerfield and a large warehouse in the same town, in which he does a good business. Some years ago he purchased his father's farm, "Mount Zion," which he has made one of the finest farm properties in Hauvers District. Mr. Brown is one of the leading business men of Frederick County, and ascribes his financial success to hard work and constant attention. He is also highly respected as an intelligent citizen. He is a Democrat, interested in all that pertains to the progress of the community. In 1886, he was appointed postmaster in Deerfield, a position which he still holds. He is a member of Acacia Lodge, No. 155, A. F. and A. M., of Thurmont, and a director of the Thurmont National Bank, of Thurmont, Md.

Charles H. Brown was married to Nettie J., daughter of Frederick and Matilda C. (———) Addison, of Thurmont. Her parents were Germans by birth, and her father was a retired farmer. They have one daughter, Bessie M. (Mrs. Robert D. Roser), of Thurmont. The family belong to the Lutheran Church.

JOHN H. BROWN, who is engaged in agriculture and the dairy business, is a well-known resident of Braddock district. He was born in Frederick district, March 14, 1836. His parents were George A. and Elizabeth (Getzendanner) Brown.

George A. Brown was the recipient of a public school education. He was reared near Sharpsburg, in Washington County, Md., where he was born in 1800. His death occurred December 23, 1850. He learned the vocation of a shoemaker and followed that trade until his death. In early manhood, he removed to Frederick County with his uncle, Daniel Staub, with whom he remained as a journeyman until he was married. Mr. Brown then opened a shop of his own. He was a good workman in his line and was very successful. In 1837, soon after embarking in business for himself, he bought two acres of land along the national turnpike, about one mile west of Fairview, now Braddock. Here he erected a two-story frame dwelling-house, in which he had his shop. He remained busily occupied here until his death. Mr. Brown was an old line Whig in politics. In religious belief, he was a Catholic. Mr. Brown was married to Elizabeth Getzendanner, daughter of Captain Jacob and Elizabeth Getzendanner. Her father secured his title by participation in the War of 1812. Mr. and Mrs. Brown had issue of eight children, of whom seven grew up: Elizabeth, the wife of David Frizzel, of Carroll County, Md., is now deceased; Hester A., deceased, was married to Samuel Waltz, of Baltimore City; Henry, died young; John H.; Amanda, deceased, was the wife of John F. Stine, of Frederick district; Francis L., deceased, of Frederick district; William A., lives in Braddock district; and Mary R., the wife of Daniel Smith, of Braddock district.

John H. Brown, son of George A. and Elizabeth (Getzendanner) Brown, was educated in the public schools and remained home with his mother until he was a young man. He then went to West Virginia, and worked on a farm a short distance west of Martinsburg for some time. In 1860, he secured a position with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad as a trackman and served in this capacity for thirteen years. Mr. Brown was then promoted to foreman of the repair gang. This position he filled for a period of eleven years, at the end of which time he relinquished railroading, although the company made him a fine proposition, not wishing to lose the services of such a valuable employe. He, however, wished to turn his attention to farming and removed back to Frederick County.

After returning to his native county, Mr. Brown farmed the Hedges' place, near Braddock, for four years, and the Markel tract, south of Frederick, for two years. He then removed to the farm of the late Captain Dever, known as the Maryland Tract, where he was engaged for five years. He next rented a farm of 280 acres from D. H. Rolkey, in Petersville district, staying here three years. His next residence was on the Red Hill farm, owned by Mrs. Nash, where he was busily engaged for nine years. In 1906, Mr. Brown bought his present farm of 61 acres of fine land, well improved with a fine house and barn. This tract lies about two miles southwest of Frederick City, on the line of the Interurban Electric Railroad. The previous owner of the place had been David F. Mayne. Mr. Brown has had good returns from his labor on his farm. He is also interested in the dairy business. During the last two years of his residence on the Red Hill farm he first embarked in this line, and has ever since continued in it. He calls his dairy the "Altocrest." He keeps only the finest breeds of cattle and his dairy is sanitary in every way.

Politically, Mr. Brown is an adherent of the Republican party, and he has been supervisor of roads for a number of years. In religion, he is a member of the Lutheran Church at Frederick.

Mr. Brown was married to Ellen C. Carl, daughter of David and Nannie (Johnson) Carl, of near Martinsburg, West Virginia. There were eleven children by this union, seven of whom reached maturity: Francis L., of Martinsburg, West Va.; Martha E., the wife of the late Cornelius Virts, of Washington County, Md.; Alice M., resides at home; Marion, also at home; Julia G., married to Vernon C. Porter, of Baltimore City; Hester E. and Charles W., both living on the homestead. Mrs. Brown died February 17, 1908, and is buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery. She was a member of the Lutheran Church.

GEORGE W. BITTLE, treasurer of the Myersville Savings Bank since its organization, January 1, 1899, was born at Ellerton, Catoctin district, Frederick County, October 27, 1866. He is a son of Thomas F. and Mary E. (Waters) Bittle.

Jonathan Bittle, the grandfather of George W. Bittle, was a son of George Michael Bittle, who located in Middletown Valley, Frederick County, among the early settlers. Jonathan Bittle was a farmer by occupation. The name of his wife was Rachel. They were the parents of five children: Henry, deceased; Malinda, deceased, was the wife of Elias Routzahn; Thomas F.; Maria, deceased, was the wife of Peter Grossnickle; and William M., of Myersville, a retired farmer.

Thomas F. Bittle, son of Jonathan and Rachel Bittle, is a merchant and farmer at Ellerton, Catoctin district, Frederick County. He is well known in the community in which he lives and is an active and enterprising citizen. In religion, he is connected with the Lutheran Church. Mr. Bittle was married to Mary E. Waters, who died at the age of fifty-three years. They were the parents of nine children, three of whom grew to maturity: J. Elmer, a minister in the Evangelical Lutheran Church, is located at Turtle Creek, Pa.; George W.; and J. Thomas, resides with his father and assists the latter in his business interests.

George W. Bittle, son of Thomas F. and Mary E. (Waters) Bittle (see ancestry and sketch of Thomas F. in this volume), was born and reared on the old homestead. As a boy, he was employed on his father's farm, and attended the public schools of the neighborhood. At the age of twenty-five years, in 1891, he left the farm and located in Myersville. Here he embarked in the mercantile business, succeeding his brother, J. Elmer, in the general merchandise store. This establishment he still conducts, and it is one of the leading stores of its nature in Myersville. As a merchant, Mr. Bittle has been prudent and successful, and is one of the representative citizens and leading business men of the vicinity. In 1899, when the Myersville Savings Bank was organized, he was chosen its treasurer, a position which he has since retained, discharging the duties of the place with credit. He is also a director in that financial institution.

Politically, Mr. Bittle is an adherent of the Republican party. In religion, he is a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Myersville, in which he has served in official capacities, having acted as deacon and member of the church council. Fraternally, he is identified with Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, and the Modern Woodmen of America, of Frederick, and the Junior Order United American Mechanics of Myersville.

Mr. Bittle was married March 21, 1888, to Mary E. Routzahn, daughter of Ezra and Sarah C. (Harp) Routzahn, of Myersville. They are the parents of two children: David Edgar, a student in Roanoke College, Salem, Va.; and Roy M., died in childhood.

THOMAS F. BITTLE, a prominent merchant of Ellerton, Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., son of Jonathan and Rachel (Bogner) Bittle, was born on the old Bittle homestead, one mile north of Bellesville, now called Harmony, Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., September 23, 1838.

The Bittle family is of German ancestry and settled first in Pennsylvania. George Bittle, grandfather of Thomas F. Bittle, removed from Adams County, Pa., to the northern part of the Middletown Valley, in Frederick County, Md. He was among the early settlers of that section of Maryland, where he purchased a large tract of timber land, which he cleared and converted into a fertile farm. Here he spent the remainder of his life cultivating and improving his property. He erected suitable buildings, and brought the land to serve him with heavy crops. Mr. Bittle was a successful farmer, and a prominent man in the county. George Bittle was married, the union being blessed with five children. Mr. Bittle and his wife died at their home in Frederick County.

The late Jonathan Bittle, youngest son of George Bittle, father of Thomas F. Bittle, was born in 1800, on the old Bittle homestead in Jackson District, Frederick County, Md. He grew up on his father's farm and received his education in the public schools of the district. He devoted his energies to the cultivation of the soil and remained with his father, working for him. After his marriage, Mr. Bittle took charge of the homestead for his father. His management was very successful and, after his father's death, he purchased 155 acres of the homestead, and began farming for himself. He improved his land in every way, and finally purchased from his brother, George Bittle, the remainder of the home farm, 150 acres. This also he improved, making of the whole two fine farms. Each place has a two-story brick house, a fine bank barn, and all the necessary out-buildings. Mr. Bittle ascribes his success to hard work and close attention to business. He was one of the prominent farmers of his generation, well-known and respected in the community. He was an old line Whig. Jonathan Bittle was married to Rachel, daughter of John Bogner, of Dauphin County, Pa., a prominent farmer of that section who lived to celebrate his one hundredth birthday. Jonathan and Rachel (Bogner) Bittle had six children, five of whom reached maturity: 1, Malinda, deceased, wife of the late Elias Routzahn, a farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md.; 2., John H., deceased, a farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County; 3, Marah E., deceased, married Peter Grossnickle of J., a retired farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County; 4, Thomas F., merchant, of Ellerton, Md.; 5, William M., retired farmer, of Myersville, Md. Mr. Bittle and his wife were members of St. John's Lutheran Church at Church Hill. Mr. Bittle was a liberal contributor to the needs of the congregation in which he held the office of deacon and of elder for many years. He died at his home on the farm, in 1855. His widow, who was born in 1804, died in 1885. Both rest in the cemetery adjoining the Lutheran Church at Church Hill. Hill.

Thomas F. Bittle grew up on his father's farm, and received his education in the public schools of his native district. He remained at home working for his parents, and after his father's death, which occurred when he was sixteen, took charge of the place for his mother, with whom he remained until he was twenty-three. In 1861, Mr. Bittle began farming for himself on a part of the homestead, 150 acres, which he purchased from his mother. He was very successful in his treatment of the land and by careful cultivation for a number of years made his home one of the fine farms of that section. He afterwards sold his property to his brother, John H. Bittle, and opened a store for the sale of general merchandise at Ellerton on the boundary line between Catoctin and Jackson Districts. His enterprise has proved a financial success. His stock is large and well-selected, his manner genial and obliging, and his customers are constantly increasing in numbers. He is a conservative business man and owes his success to good judgment in buying, and constant attention to business. Along with his store property Mr. Bittle owns a ninety-acre farm in Catoctin District, near Ellerton. He has made many improvements on this property, building a comfortable two-story brick house, a bank barn and all necessary outbuildings. Intelligent cultivation has increased the fertility of the land and the farm now ranks among the best in the district. Mr. Bittle also owns the buildings occupied by his store and warehouse. Mr. Bittle is one of the prominent business men of his native district, and is highly esteemed by his fellow citizens. He was active in organizing the Myersville Savings Bank, and has been a member of the board of directors since its organization. He is an ardent Republican, interested in all that concerns the good of the community.

Thomas F. Bittle was married to Mary E., daughter of the late James and Annie (Schlousser) Waters, whose father was a prominent farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County. They had eight children, only three of whom reached maturity: 1, the Rev. J. Elmer, missionary president of the Pittsburg Synod one term, and is now and has been Missionary President of the Pittsburg Synod for the last five years; 2, George W., merchant, treasurer of the Myersville Savings Bank; 3, J. Thomas, at home. Mr. Bittle and his wife are members of St. John's Lutheran Church at Church Hill. He is an active worker, and a liberal contributor to all church enterprises. He has served the congregation as deacon, and has been an elder for a number of years. Mrs. Bittle died July 10, 1893, and is buried in the cemetery adjoining the Lutheran Church at Church Hill.

WILLIAM M. BITTLE, a retired farmer of Myersville, Frederick County, Md., son of Jonathan and Rachel (Bogner) Bittle, was born on the old homestead, one mile north of Bellesville, now Harmony, Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., March 21, 1841. (For Bittle family ancestry see sketch of Thomas F. Bittle, in this volume.)

William M. Bittle grew up on his father's farm, and received his education in the public schools of his native district. He was fourteen when his father died, and he remained at home, assisting his mother on the farm until he was twenty-one. On reaching his majority, Mr. Bittle purchased, from his mother, the home farm of 150 acres of farm and timber land, which he improved in many ways. He built a new barn, and convenient out-buildings, and by intelligent cultivation increased the value of the land until it was regarded as one of the best farms in the section. He remained on the homestead until the spring of 1902, when he retired from farming, and removed to Myersville, where he purchased his beautiful home at the southern end of the village. Mr. Bittle also owns two other fine farm, one of 155 acres of good land, purchased from Elias Gaver, which he cultivated and improved until it was greatly increased in value, when he sold it to Charles Grossnickle. Mr. Bittle then owned a place of 60 acres situated a mile and a-half south of Myersville on which he made many improvements. When he retired, he sold his farms to two of his sons. Mr. Bittle has been more than ordinarily successful in business, and attributes all to honest labor and watchful care. He is a Republican, and is highly respected by his fellow citizens. He is a stockholder, and a member of the board of directors of the Myersville Savings Bank, and a stockholder of the Jefferson and Frederick Electric Railroad.

William M. Bittle was married to Catherine, daughter of Jacob and Catherine (Routzahn) Floyd, whose father was a prominent farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md. Of their eight children seven reached maturity: 1, Charles J., manufacturer of coaches, Myersville, Md.; 2, John O., farmer, Fauquier County, Va.; 3, Annie C., married George D. Toms, a farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County; 4, William E., farmer, of Jackson District, Frederick County; 5, David F., farmer, of Jackson District; 6, Lawson F., merchant, Myersville, Md.; 7, Emry L., of Myersville, conductor on the Inter Urban Railroad. Mr. Bittle and his wife were members of St. John's Lutheran Church at Church Hill, where he held the office of deacon. When they removed to Myersville, their membership was transfererd to St. Paul's Lutheran Church at Myersville. Mr. Bittle is an elder in the congregation. He is active in church work and contributes liberally to all benevolent enterprises.

GARRISON M. BRANDENBURG, one of the leading farmers of New Market District, Frederick County, Md., owner of the "Sarah and Elizabeth Farm," situated one mile north of Kemptown, Md., son of Lemuel and Charlotte (Kindley) Brandenburg, was born on the farm on which he now resides, April 16, 1845.

It is said that Prince Bismarck was a member of the Brandenburg family, which traces its origin to the province of Brandenburg, Germany. Jacob Brandenburg, the founder of the American branch of the family, was a native of Brandenburg, Germany, a member of a wealthy family, no doubt connected with the nobility. It is said that after the estate was confiscated by the crown it came into the possession of Prince Bismarck. During the reign of the father of the present emperor of Germany, the estate was restored to the Brandenburg family, and efforts have been made to gain possession of it, but all have proved unsuccessful.

Jacob Brandenburg, grandfather of Garrison M. Brandenburg, came to America with his two brothers, Mathias and William. Mathias settled in Kentucky; William in the Middletown Valley, Frederick County, Md., on land still owned by his descendants; and Jacob in the wilderness of Frederick County, on a farm in New Market district called "Chance," now the property of J. L. Baker, one of his descendants. Jacob Brandenburg was married to Elizabeth Rine. Their children are: 1, William, married Rachel Purdum, died in Carroll County, Md.; 2, John, deceased; 3, Jacob, married ———, died in Montgomery County, Md.; 4, Jesse, married in Flushing, Ohio, to Miss Turner, both deceased; 5, Lemuel; 6, Mary Polly, (Mrs. ——— Walker), died near Fountain Mill, Frederick County; 7, Mahala (Mrs. Denton Watkins), she and her husband died in Ohio; 8, Priscella (Mrs. Thomas Baker), mother of J. L. Baker, of Frederick County. Jacob Brandenburg died at his home in Frederick County, in 1829 at a ripe old age; his wife died in 1833. They were undoubtedly Lutherans.

Mr. Brandenburg's father, Lemuel Brandenburg, was born, in 1772, at the "Chance," his father's farm in New Market District, Frederick County, Md. He was educated in the schools of the district, and spent his life in the cultivation of the soil. Lemual Brandenburg was married to Charlotte, daughter of Frederick Kindley, who did not reach old age. They began their useful married life on the farm now owned by their son, Garrison M. Brandenburg. Their children are: 1, Jesse, born June 16, 1824, married Sally Purdum, died in Frederick County, in 18—, has —— children; 2, Ezra, born January 28, 1826, married first to Miss Wortman and afterwards to Margaret Wenner, died in Frederick County; 3, Emily (Mrs. Rufus Purdum), born April 5, 1827, resides in Appomattox County, Va.; 4, Elizabeth, born May 12, 1828, widow of John Boyer, resides in Baltimore, Md.; 5, William R., born November 15, 1829, married Sarah Millineaux, both deceased; 6, Ann Priscilla, born February 11, 1831, widow of Rufus K. Day, resides in New Market District; 7, Lucinda, born June 12, 1832, widow of William Browning, resides in Montgomery County, Md.; 8, Emanuel, born November 20, 1833, married Anna Johnson, died in Johnsville, Frederick County; 9, Hephzibah, born April 24, 1835, married Greenberry Baker, both died in New Market District, Frederick County; 10, Charlotte, born February 20, 1837, married Andrew Jackson Lease, both died in New Market District; 11, Lemuel, born June 12, 1838, died in early childhood; 12, Matilda (Mrs. John Bell), born February 7, 1840, died in Montgomery County, Md.; 13, George E. L. H., born December 11, 1842, died in infancy; 14, Sarah, widow of Luther Brown, born February 4, 1843, resides in New Market District; 15, Garrison McLain; 16, Mary Manzella (Mrs. Jonathan Jacobs), born March 4, 1849, resides in Gaithersburg, Montgomery County, Md. Lemuel Brandenburg was a life-long Democrat. He was a pillar in the M. P. Church in Kemptown, Md.; a member of Quarterly Conference, an officeholder, and a liberal giver. His home was always open to the preachers of his day, in fact he offered liberal hospitality to all. Mrs. Brandenburg died in 18—.

Garrison McLain Brandenburg was educated in the public schools of Frederick County. He was the son of a farmer, inured to hard work, and has devoted his life to the cultivation of the soil. He remained with his father working on the homestead until his father's death when he inherited the homestead, a farm of 221 acres, beautifully situated in New Market District. Mr. Brandenburg is a life-long member of the Democratic party.

Garrison McLain Brandenburg was married, in 1866, to Mary E., daughter of B. M. and Sarah Ann (Day) Norwood. Their children are: 1, Oscar M., of Kemptown, Frederick County, born June 27, 1868, married Miss Mollie Baker; 2, Matilda May, born October 20, 1869, at home; 3, Lemuel Reece, of Baltimore, Md., born November 15, 1870, married Lillia Tribby; 4, Eunice Estella (Mrs. William Norwood, born June 16, 1872, resides in Montgomery County, Md.; 5, Effie Clearfield, born February 12, 1877, at home; 6, Anna Myrtle, born October 29, 1878; 7, Cleveland LeRoy, born November 27, 1882, died in 1904; 8, Norma Oleanda, born March 5, 1884; 9, Kerby Brandenburg, born November 28, 1888, died in infancy. Mr. Brandenburg is a member of Providence M. P. Church of Kemptown, Md.

THOMAS SOUDER THRASHER is one of the leading farmers of Frederick County. His estate of 150 acres comprises two large tracts of land, formerly styled "Children's Chance," and "Enough and To Spare." He is a widely known citizen, and is as widely respected, not merely as a successful man, and the representative of an old family, of high social standing, but for his sound judgment, and his genial, kindly disposition and manner.

Thomas Thrasher, paternal great-great-great-grandfather of Thomas S. Thrasher, was born in Wales, in 1725. He emigrated from the British Isles to America, and when the city of Frederick was first laid out, in 1745, was a chain-carrier for the surveyors. He settled upon a tract of over 200 acres, the same which is now the Lewis Whipp farm; this became Mr. Thrasher's homestead, on which he passed the remainder of his life, died, and was buried, about the year 1804.

Thomas Thrasher married Maria Lee, who was a cousin of Governor Thomas Lee, of Maryland. Her home was in what is now called Petersville District. Mr. and Mrs. Thrasher were members of the Episcopal Church. They raised a family of children.

Benjamin Thrasher, great-grandfather of Thomas S. Thrasher, bought from his father a tract of land, and this, with 95 acres purchased from the Delashment Plantation, gave him an estate of about 150 acres, which had ever since remained in the family—a period of more than a hundred years; it is now owned by Messrs. Albert and John Thrasher. Benjamin Thrasher also owned some slaves, whom, at his death, he bequeathed to his children. Two of his uncles, John and William, were soldiers during the War of the Revolution. It is related of them, that when they returned home from the war, they were in so pitiable a state of starvation that, finding a dead horse on the road, they cut a piece from its body, and ate it to appease their hunger; and that when they reached home, it was necessary to lock them up in a room, and to pass food into the room in small quantities, lest they should kill themselves by overeating.

Benjamin Thrasher married Miss Martha Ridgely, daughter of a planter of Frederick County. She died about 1837.

Thomas Thrasher, grandfather of Thomas S. Thrasher, was born in 1776, on the home farm in Jefferson District. He followed the example of his fore-fathers, by devoting his attention to agriculturre. He was educated in the schools of his day, and, possessing much natural ability, put all his acquirements to good, practical use.

Thomas Thrasher married Miss Martha Johnstone, who was born in Middletown District about the year 1796. Mr. Thrasher came into possession of the family homestead, and died there about 1842; his wife survived him until about 1878; she was a daughter of Robert and Martha Johnstone.

Robert Knight Thrasher, father of Thomas S. Thrasher, was born on the homestead in 1820. The same place was his life-long dwelling. He received an excellent education, and became one of the leading spirits of his neighborhood, esteemed and respected for his upright character and his intelligence, and beloved for his genial, kindly disposition. Mr. Thrasher and his family were devout Lutherans; he took an active part in the affairs of his church, in which he served for years as an elder. He was a Republican in politics.

Robert K. Thrasher married Margaret, daughter of Peter and Susan Souder. She was born in Loudoun County, Va., in 1819, and was six months old when her parents removed to Maryland, and settled in Jefferson District. Mr. Thrasher died about 1879, and his wife about 1901; their bodies lie side by side in the Jefferson Cemetery. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knight Thrasher are: 1, Thomas Souder, born October 10, 1849; 2, Robert K. born in 1852, died at two years of age; 3, Benjamin Albert, born on the homestead in 1854; 4, Margaret A., born in 1856, at home; 5, William Johnstone, born in 1858, resides near Frederick City, married Miss Miller and has six children; 6, Martha Theresa, born in 1861; 7, John Robert, born in 1864; at home.

Mr. Thomas S. Thrasher was educated in the Jefferson schools, and early inured to hard work on his father's farm. So long as his father lived his eldest son was his faithful assistant; and after the father's death, the same son was the helper and support of his widowed mother, so long as she survived.

Thomas Souder Thrasher was married, April 3, 1888, to Miss Charlotte B., daughter of Captain William Lakin, born in Jefferson District in 1851. (See sketches of Francis and Wm. H. Lakin, her brothers.) After the death of their father, Mr. Thrasher and his brothers and sisters had remained on the homestead; but at his marriage, he bought his present estate, and built a fine house upon it. His wife, however, did not live long to enjoy this new home, which was completed in 1901. She was called to her last resting-place on April 1, 1903. She was a devout Christian, a member of the Reformed Church. Their children are: Anna Margaret, born June 30, 1891; and Thomas Lakin, born August 15, 1894.

Mr. Thrasher is a Republican in politics. He is a member of the Lutheran Church; he became an officer in the Church very early, being only seventeen years of age. For many years, he has been in service, first as deacon, and later as elder. As a neighbor, a citizen, and a faithful servant of the church, Mr. Thrasher is justly respected and esteemed.

CLARENCE C. CARTY, one of the best known and most prominent merchants of Frederick City, Md., was born in that city, January 8, 1847. He is a son of Joseph W. L. and Margaret C. (Hardt) Carty.

Joseph W. L. Carty, was a son of William Proctor and Harriet (Haller) Carty. The Carty family is of English and Scotch extraction. Joseph W. L. Carty was born in Frederick City, Md., in 1823, and died there in 1867. In his time he was one of the leading and most prominent citizens of Frederick. He was deputy clerk of the Circuit Court of Frederick County under B. F. Fitzhugh in 1858, and served as clerk from 1863 to 1867. He was a public spirited citizen, and was always to the fore in promoting enterprises that would benefit the general public. He was the organizer and president of the Lincoln Building Association, a director of the Farmers and Mechanics National Bank, and was connected with various other industries of the county. In politics, he was a stanch adherent and active supporter of the Republican party. Fraternally, he was a member of King David Lodge, No. 50, I. O. O. F., and the Order of Red Men. He was affiliated in a religious way with the Lutheran Church, in which he was an active and consistent member, and served for many years as superintendent of the Sunday School. He was a sincere and devout Christian. Kindly in manner and sympathetic in disposition, he gave with a generous hand to every worthy purpose that appealed to his ever ready sympathies, and his charities, unostentatiously bestowed, were without number. Mr. Carty was twice married. He was married first to Margaret C. Hardt. They were the parents of two sons: Charles P., deceased; and Clarence C., of whom presently. He was married secondly to Mary M. Lugenbeel. They were the parents of three children: Alton B., in the Government service at Washington, D. C.; Daisy E., the widow of William Conklin, of Boston, Mass., and Joseph W. L., whose sketch appears in this work.

Clarence C. Carty, son of Joseph W. L. and Margaret C. (Hardt) Carty, received his education in the public schools of Frederick City, the place of his nativity. In 1869, when he was twenty-two years of age, he established his present business on East Patrick street, where he has conducted a furniture and undertaking business for forty years. This is the oldest established business of its kind in Western Maryland, and carries the largest and most select stock in the State outside of the city of Baltimore. He is recognized as one of the foremost and most prominent merchants of Frederick, and is held in high esteem by all with whom he has come in contact. Mr. Carty has directed the affairs of his establishment with a foresight and sagacity that stamp him as a man of superior executive ability. To his forceful personality is due much of the prosperity and prestige attained by him, and he is widely prominent in furniture circles as one of the ablest and most representative men identified with that branch of industry. Honorable in all his dealings and a merchant of the old school, whose business methods are characterized by the highest principles, he commands the respect and confidence of business and financial circles generally.

Mr. Carty, however, does not confine his energies to the furniture and undertaking trade alone, but has from time to time been interested in various other enterprises. He is treasurer of the Frederick Brick Works, and a director in the Frederick County Building Association. He is also a trustee of the Loats Orphan Home of Frederick, and vice-president of the Funeral Directors' Association of the State of Maryland.

In politics, Mr. Carty has always been an adherent of the Republican party, but has never aspired to public office, preferring to devote all his time and attention to his large business interests. Fraternally, he is a member of Lynch Lodge, No. 163, A. F. and A. M., and the Royal Arcanum. He is affiliated in a religious way with the Lutheran Church, of which he is an active and consistent member. He has been for some years superintendent of the Sunday School of his church.

Mr. Carty has been twice married. He was married first to Joanna Elizabeth Fox, of Frederick City. They were the parents of the following children: Margaret A., married J. Harry Jones, of Washington, D. C.; William A., of Portland, Ore., married to Amanda Stark, of Chicago; Charles C., connected with the furniture house of his father, married to Hallie Walker, daughter of James E. Walker; Arthur C., a clergyman of the Lutheran Church, with a parish in Philadelphia, Pa., married to Luanna A. Reese, daughter of Captain T. P. Reese, of Burlington, W. Va.; Harry E., also connected with his father in business, married to Bettie Cramer, daughter of George W. Cramer, and Frank R., Secretary of Chamber of Commerce, Newport News, Va., married to Katharine M. Keisicker, of Washington, D. C. After the death of Mrs. Carty, he was married secondly to Nannie C. Keefer, of Frederick. They are the parents of four daughters: Cora M., the wife of Solomon D. Hedges, of Frederick; Eleanor G.; Ruth and May.

THE LATE JOHN NICHOLAS ZIMMERMAN, at No. 514 North Market street, was one of the highly esteemed citizens of Frederick City. He was born about six miles northwest of Frederick, at Yellow Springs, on December 2, 1832, and died ——. His parents were John Nicholas and Elizabeth (Albaugh) Zimmerman.

The Zimmerman family is descended from three brothers, who were natives of Germany and emigrated to this country. One of the brothers located in New York State and another in Pennsylvania. The progenitor of the Frederick County branch of the family was George Zimmerman, the third brother. He located in that county among the early German settlers of that community. He was the father of seven sons and four daughters: John; Andrew; Benjamin; George; Henry; Michael; John Nicholas; daughter, who married a Mr. Brenner; daughter, who married a Mr. Simm; daughter, who married a Mr. Byerly; and daughter, who married a Mr. Burkhart.

John Nicholas Zimmerman, son of George Zimmerman the emigrant, was the owner of the first paper mills in Frederick County. His place was located on Tuscarora Creek, near Yellow Springs. He was the father of the following children: John Nicholas; George; Jacob; Michael; David; Susan, married John Stull; Rebecca, married Adam Stull; Maria, married John Gills; Annie, married Dennis Ramsburg; Polly and Elizabeth, died unmarried.

John Nicholas Zimmerman, son of John Nicholas Zimmerman, was born in 1809, and died in 1875. He was the owner of a farm in Tuscarora district, which he cultivated. Like the members of the family before him, he was Democratic in politics and a member of the Reformed Church. Mr. Zimmerman was married to Elizabeth Albaugh. She was born October 5, 1812, and died August 28, 1866. They were the parents of these children: John Nicholas; David, deceased; Columbus, lives in Tuscarora district; Elizabeth, married Frederick Krise, both deceased; and Savanna, the widow of Lewis Stahley.

John Nicholas Zimmerman, son of John Nicholas and Elizabeth (Albaugh) Zimmerman, was reared on his father's farm in his native district and received his education in the old time pay schools. He then took up farming as an occupation and later conducted a general store at Yellow Springs. In 1860, he entered the employ of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and shortly afterwards entered the 13th Maryland Regiment of Infantry, serving in the quartermaster's department. He remained in service until the summer of 1865, when he was mustered out at Baltimore, Md. Mr. Zimmerman then returned home, and was engaged in farming and trucking until 1885. In that year, he removed to Frederick, and purchased his late home in North Market street.

In politics, Mr. Zimmerman was a supporter of the Prohibition party, and in religion, held membership in Grace Reformed Church of Frederick. Fraternally, he was a member of the I. O. O. F. and Good Templars. He was also connected with J. F. Reynolds Post, No. 2, Grand Army of the Republic. Mr. Zimmerman was a public-spirited citizen, and always advocated anything that tended to increase the general welfare. He was well known in Frederick and held in high esteem by every one.

Mr. Zimmerman was married in 1856 to Julia Ann Measell, daughter of George Measell, of Frederick District. She was a native of Frederick County and died in 1894. They were the parents of these children: Infant, deceased; Carrie C. and Bertie May, both died young; Lew Reno, died young; Ginnevra Lucttia, the wife of E. L. Roelkey, of Frederick City, by whom she has three children, Lew Milton, Margaret M. and Julia S.

LEVI C. LEATHERMAN, who is living in retirement in Thurmont, was formerly engaged in agricultural pursuits. He was born in the Middletown Valley, Frederick County, December 2, 1846, and is a son of Daniel and Caroline (Michael) Leatherman.

The Leatherman family is of ancient and honorable German lineage. The family has been settled in this country for a long period, the American ancestor having come from Germany in 1725. He took up his residence in Lancaster County, Pa., whence his descendants went to Frederick County, Md.

The great-grandfather of Levi C. Leatherman was Godfrey Leatherman, who was married to a Miss Miller. They were the parents of a son Daniel.

Daniel Leatherman, son of Godfrey and _____ (Miller) Leatherman, was born April 9, 1797, and died March 4, 1859. He was a resident of Middletown Valley in Frederick County. He was married to Christine Warrenfeltz. They had a son Daniel.

Daniel Leatherman, son of Daniel and Christine (Warrenfeltz) Leatherman, was born April 24, 1821. He secured his education in the schools of Middletown Valley and made his home with his father until he was twenty-two years old. He then formed a partnership with his brother Jacob, and they rented from their father and uncle a farm and mill. Jacob cultivated the farm, while Mr. Leatherman operated the mill. For three years this plan was carried out, when Mr. Leatherman purchased the interest of his uncle in the milling property, which he conducted for five years. He then sold it to Isa Mealey, and bought a fine farm of 116 acres on this side of the mountain, near Lewistown. He also secured 100 acres of timber land. These pieces of realty he secured from Gideon Bantz, of Frederick City, in 1849. In 1850, he removed from Middletown Valley to the farm near Lewistown, which is now owned by Levi C. Leatherman. Mr. Leatherman improved this place by building a new house and barn. He afterwards bought 87 acres of timber land and a saw mill, and during the winter months he sawed lumber for barns. Some of the material thus prepared was used in the construction of a number of large barns around Lewistown. In 1868, Mr. Leatherman secured his present home from Jacob Cronise. This tract contains 142 acres of good agricultural land, and lies about ten miles north of Frederick on the Emmitsburg pike. On this place he erected a two-story brick dwelling, the brick being burnt by Mr. Leatherman on the place. He also put up a new bank barn and outbuildings. Some time in the '80's he bought from the Catoctin Iron Company a farm of 138 acres, called "Springfield," which was the home of the father of ex-Governor Thomas Johnson of Maryland. In politics, Mr. Leatherman has always supported the Democratic party. In 1868, he was nominated and elected by his party as one of the commissioners of Frederick County, and discharged the duties of this position with credit. He has been a life long member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church at Utica, in which he has taken an active part. He has filled the offices of deacon and elder. Mr. Leatherman was twice married. His first wife was Caroline Michael, daughter of Conrad and Elizabeth Michael, by whom he was the father of eight children, namely: Levi C.; Amanda A., who is the wife of Charles Isanogle, of Frederick City; Marshall E., deceased, was a physician in Washington, D. C.; Gardiannis O., deceased; Mary E., married to Howard Ramsburg, of Lewistown district; Daniel I., is a physician of Williamsburg, Pa.; Robert Lee, a minister in the Lutheran Church, living near Pittsburg, Pa.; and Martha E., the wife of Upton Grossnickle, of Jackson district. Mrs. Leatherman was a member of the Reformed Church at Utica. Three years after her death, Mr. Leatherman was married to Josephine Curtis, daughter of John R. and Sarah Jane (Burkett) Curtis, of Montgomery County, Md. They are the parents of three children: Harry F.; Orests F. E., of Lewistown district; and Luther E., a merchant in Mechanicstown district.

Levi C. Leatherman, son of Daniel and Caroline (Michael) Leatherman, received his elementary education at Lewistown and completed his studies at the Frederick Academy. When he was twenty-four years old, he began to farm for himself on one of his father's places. For a few years he worked on shares, and in 1873 he bought his beautiful farm of 108 acres of very fine land from his father. This place is located about nine miles north of Frederick on the Emmitsburg pike. With the exception of two years spent in Baltimroe, he was engaged in farming until 1907, when he gave up active work. In 1891, Mr. Leatherman purchased 70 acres from Joseph D. Green, adjoining his home farm. In 1897 he sold three acres of his farm to Peter Waltman, who intended laying it out in building lots, as the tract is adjacent to Lewistown. The old Methodist Episcopal Church stands on a part of this farm, which is one of the nicest country homes in Lewistown district. There is a good house and barn, and it is kept under a high state of cultivation. Mr. Leatherman is also the possessor of 30 acres of excellent timber land. In the spring of 1908, he rented his farm to his son Paul, who has since managed it.

In his political views, Mr. Leatherman is a Democrat. For a number of years he has been one of the trustees of the Lewistown public school. He holds membership in the Evangelical Lutheran Church at Utica, where he has served as deacon and is one of the present elders.

Mr. Leatherman was married February 18, 1874, to Lizzie A. Derr, daughter of John C. and Elizabeth (Kemp) Derr. There were three children by this union: Clarence G., a minister in the Lutheran Church, who is pastor of Bethany Church, at New Castle, Pa., married Elfie I. Cramer, daughter of George and Annie Cramer, by whom he has one son, Paul C.; Oliie L., who is the wife of Luther Bitler, of Chambersburg, Pa., and they have one son; and Paul R., married Rena I. Reddick, daughter of Calvin B. and Laura Jane Reddick, and is operating the old homestead. Mr. and Mrs. Leatherman are members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church at Utica.

THE REV. GEORGE W. CRIST, pastor of the Monocacy Valley Lutheran Charge, Walkersville, Frederick County, Md., son of David and Margaret E. (Campbell) Crist, was born at Markelsville, Perry County, Pa., April 17, 1849. His paternal ancestors were Germans. His great-great-grandfather, Jacob Adam Crist, with his elder brother, John George Crist, sailed from Rotterdam in the ship "Robert & Alice," and landed in Philadelphia, Pa., September 24, 1742. He was then a youth of seventeen, and went with his brother to the Tulpehocken, in Berks County, Pa. Here he married, but the name of his wife is unknown. Tradition says that he removed with his wife's relatives, to York County, Pa., where he settled about 1755. They had sons and daughters among whom were: Jacob, who settled on the old homestead in York County; and Philip, born in 1760, the head of a large and influential family. Philip Crist, great-grandfather of George W. Crist, was married, in 1781, to Elizabeth Long, of York County. Their children are: 1, Jacob; 2, Adam; 3, Daniel; 4, Catherine (Mrs. Daniel Smith); 5, William, died in childhood; 6, Mary Ann (Mrs. Isaac France); 7, John. All the children were settled in Perry County, Pa., whither Philip Crist and his family had removed in 1800.

Daniel Crist, grandfather of the Rev. George W. Crist, was born, April 15, 1787, and was married, in 1814, to Mary Biceline. Their children are: 1, David; 2, Rebecca, died in youth; 3, Michael; 4, Catherine; 5, Mary; 6, Daniel, Jr. Daniel Crist, Sr., died February 18, 1870, aged eighty-two years, ten months, and three days. He and his wife were pious, Godfearing Christians, and had been trained in the Lutheran, their ancestral faith. But the church was eight miles from their home; hence for several years, from 1820 to 1827, church services were held in their home. Then the grandmother died. In 1830 a church was built within reach of the family.

David Crist, shoemaker and farmer, father of the Rev. George W. Crist, was born March 1, 1815, and was married to Margaret E., daughter of William and Anna (Olinger) Campbell. Of their nine children, four died unmarried. Margaret of scarlet fever, and four, Elizabeth, Nancy, Harriet, and Daniel Alfred, of typhoid fever. (Elizabeth was married and had two children: 1, Lester C. Smith; 2, Jessie D. Myers. Four are living: 1, Mary (Mrs. W. S. Blain); 2, Alice (Mrs. Elmer E. Snyder); 3, Laura (Mrs. Oliver Crawford); 4, George W.; the first three reside in Pennsylvania.

George W. Crist is of German and Scotch-Irish ancestry, that peculiar combination which has given so much permancy and strength to both church and state. He received his education in the academies at Markelsville and New Bloomfield. After teaching for six winter terms, from 1865 and 1871, Mr. Crist spent three years in Susquehanna University, and, in 1874, became a student in the Theological Seminary at Gettysburg, Pa., where he graduated in 1877. On September 14, 1876, he was licensed by the Synod of Central Pennsylvania, at Liverpool, Pa., and in October, 1877, he was ordained, by the Maryland Snyod, at Jefferson, Md., having accepted a call to the Lutheran Church at Harper's Ferry, W. Va. In 1879, after two years of service, he removed to Duncannon, Pa. After laboring in this charge for three years, his health was broken by a very severe attack of typhoid malaria, which drove him from this field. After a short rest, Mr. Crist took charge of the new mission which had been started at Philipsburg, Pa. On this charge, he bestowed seven years of careful, faithful labor, and during these years, he also developed a new field outside of Philipsburg, which entailed upon him much additional labor. He received into the church 240 members besides the infants baptised, and gathered about eleven thousand dollars worth of church property. To carry on this work, he traveled about four thousand miles by train, and by buggy and on foot, about twelve thousand miles. He frequently traveled from fifteen to twenty, or even more miles in his sleigh or buggy, after church service, or when he was gathering funds, or attending funerals. On April 1, 1889, he left this large field to accept the Jennerstown Charge, composed of four congregations, with a membership of 200. He remained in this field seven years, or until 1896. During his pastorate two churches were built and one repaired. The church edifice at Mt. Zion was torn to pieces, and the gable end crushed in by a great storm, and was repaired at a cost of $1,000. At Jennerstown a new parsonage was built at a cost of $2,000, a very comfortable home for the pastor. After seven years of incessant labor in this field, the Rev. Mr. Crist felt that the care of more than three hundred and fifty members, scattered over a wide field, was too great a burden for his strength. Having visited Millersville, Pa., and received an urgent call from Bethany Lutheran Church there, he removed to that town on February 1, 1896. With his children in the Normal School, a parsonage equipped with all the modern conveniences, and a kind, helpful people, the six and a-half years spent in this charge were most delightful. On June 1, 1902, he took charge of the work at Union Deposit, Dauphin County, Pa. To this charge, he gave four years of faithful toil. As it was country work and included the supply of adjoining churches, the pastor was very frequently obliged to drive from twenty to twenty-five miles, and to preach three times each Sunday. The field was large, the membership of each church small, and part of the work not very encouraging. This work is now divided between two pastors, which is far better. On July 4, 1906, the Rev. Mr. Crist removed to the Monocacy Valley Charge, in Frederick County, Md., consisting of Creagerstown, Bethel, and Walkersville. Here he serves nearly four hundred members. A new church has been built at Creagerstown, which, when properly appreciated by all the membership, will form a center of worship and piety worthy of the name of the successor of "The Old Monocacy Church," the first house of worship in Frederick County.

The Rev. George W. Crist, was married, December 27, 1877, during his pastorate in Harper's Ferry, to Anna B., daughter of Robert and Jane (Alexander) Orr, of New Bloomfield, Pa. Their children are. 1, Robert O., received his preparatory education in the State Normal School at Millersville, Pa., graduated from the medical department of the University of Maryland in 1903, practiced his profession very successfully, for four years in Boswell, Pa., died from hemorrhage, caused by an attack of tonsilitis, May 6, 1907, aged twenty-eight; 2, Laura Alice, only daughter, married December 29, 1909, to Lewis E. Barrack, resides in Walkersville, Md.; 3, David Monroe, a graduate of the scientific department of Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Pa.; 4, George Bruce, graduate of the Walkersville High School.

Mrs. Crist's father, Robert Orr, was of Scotch-Irish descent. His ancestors settled near New Castle, Del., in early Colonial times. When a mere youth, he removed with his elder brother, Henry, to Pennsylvania. There he was married to Jane Alexander, daughter of Hugh, a member of the large and influential Alexander family so widely known in the affairs of church and State. They had three children: 1, and 2, James Monroe and Mary Priscilla, who died in youth; 3, Anna Baum, the wife of the Rev. George W. Crist.

GEORGE K. SAPPINGTON, a man of excellent character and unquestioned integrity, is an elder in the Beaver Dam congregation of the Church of the Brethren. He was born at Linganore, Frederick County, July 12, 1855. He is a son of Thomas Sappington.

The grandfather of Elder Sappington was Francis Brown Sappington. He was a physician. He removed from Anne Arundel county, Md., to Liberty, Md. Here he acquired an extensive and lucrative practice. He was an able physician and achieved much success in his chosen work. He was the father of Thomas Sappington.

Thomas Sappington, son of Dr. Francis Brown Sappington, was born in Libertytown about 1789. He was educated in the schools of Frederick County. When about eighteen years of age, he went on a visit to his uncle, John Sappington, in Kentucky. While there he joined a regiment of cavalry and fought under Harrison, participating in the battle of Tippecanoe. He returned to his old home in Frederick County, Md., where he became a very prominent citizen. He was very active in politics. He was at first an adherent of the Whig party but at the time of his death was a member of the American, known as the Know-Nothing party. He served as Register of Wills of the county. He was also a member of the Maryland House of Delegates from Frederick County. Mr. Sappington was twice married. His first wife was a Miss Cole. He was married secondly to Louisa Klein, who was the mother of George K. Sappington.

George K. Sappington, son of Thomas and Louisa (Klein) Sappington, grew to manhood in the neighborhood of and in Frederick City. He was sent to the public schools of Frederick until he was twelve years old. He then spent three years at the Frederick Academy and two years at Calvert College, New Windsor, Md. When he was about sixteen years of age, he began to contribute to the support of the family. He became a clerk in a store in Frederick, which position he held for three years. He then went to Illinois where he taught school for one year. Returning home, he also taught there for a like length of time. Mr. Sappington again went west, locating this time in Kansas, where he followed his vocation for three years. He again came back to Frederick County, however, where he has been engaged in teaching, a period of twenty-four years. He is one of the oldest teachers in the county in point of service and one of those who taught under John W. Page. He is at present in charge of the Hopewell school in Johnsville district. As an instructor, he has been very successful.

Politically, Mr. Sappington is a strict Prohibitionist. In the summer of 1874, being at that time in Illinois, he became a member of the Church of the Brethren. In 1881 he was elected to the first degree of the ministry, and to the second degree two years later. He was ordained to the eldership in 1892, and was the first minister of the Beaver Dam congregation, in the work of which he has always played a prominent part. He is one of the leading men in his denomination in the county.

Elder Sappington was married in 1878 to Elizabeth C. Frazier, of Frederick City. She is a daughter of David Frazier. They are the parents of eight children: Louisa M., died in infancy; Ernest F., a physician, engaged in practice in Washington, D. C.; Amy V., the wife of Edward D. Furry, of Johnsville district, by whom she has three children, Paul, George Wilber, and Myrtle; Ross F., of Frederick; Lillian R., married Clinton Nusbaum; George Clifford, of Washington, D. C.; Nannie E., died at the age of thirteen years; and Helen M., who lives at home.

The Beaver Dam Church is the second oldest Dunkard congregation in the State of Maryland. It is now affiliated with the Church of the Brethren, or new order of the Dunkard Church, from which older body they separated in 1881. The new church edifice at Beaver Dam was built in 1882 and dedicated on October 31, of that year. All of the members there went with the new order, and George K. Sappington was elected the first minister. His successors have been John H. Utz, David Stoner, Daniel O. Metz and Jesse R. Kline. All of these men are still active in the work there except John H. Utz, who is now located near Taneytown, Md., at the Piney Creek Church. Some of the old members were the Garbers, the Repps, the Stoners, the Saylars, the Metzes, and the Albaughs. The first love feast was held in 1881 in Samuel Repp's barn in Johnsville district, a short time before the erection of the church building. There has not been a death in the ministry since the congregation was organized and all have and still are in active service. There are six deacons, namely: George W. Stitley, William H. Dotterer, Wesley Myers, Thomas H. Albaugh, William H. Wolfe, and ————.

There are a hundred and fifty members at the present time. The Sunday school contains about the same number of members, with an average attendance of seventy-five. Every Sunday evening a Christian Workers' meeting for the young people is held. Preaching service is held at Beaver Dam every two weeks in the morning, and in the evening at Good Intent.

WILSON L. PRYOR, a prominent farmer of Hauvers District, Frederick County, Md., son of the late Samuel H. and Dorothy (Wolf) Pryor, was born on the old Pryor homestead, one mile north of Foxville, Md., July 15, 1854.

Peter Pryor, grandfather of Wilson L. Pryor, was one of the early settlers of Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md. He was of English descent and lived to a good old age. He was well known among the older inhabitants of that section of Maryland. He was a member of the Democratic party. Peter Pryor was married to Mary Hays. Of their nine children seven reached maturity: 1, Samuel; 2, Eliza, deceased, married to the late Jacob Buhrman, of Foxville, Md.; 3, Joseph, deceased, a farmer of Smithsburg District, Washington County, Md.; 4, Jane (Mrs. Jacob Fissler), deceased; 5, David, of Hauvers district, Frederick County, Md., deceased; 6, George, deceased, a farmer of Hauvers District; 7, Hannah, deceased, married to the late David Buhrman, a farmer of Hauver's District. Mr. Pryor and his wife are buried in Mount Bethel Cemetery.

The late Samuel Pryor, father of Wilson L. Pryor, an old resident of Hauvers District, was born near Wolfsville, Md., May 11, 1821. He was educated in the public schools of his native district and remained with his father until he attained his majority, when he began business for himself. After working as a day-laborer for three years, Mr. Pryor purchased a small tract of timber land on which he built a house and a barn. He cleared the land, and added to his holding from time to time until he owned 106 acres of fine farm and timber land, situated about one mile north of Foxville. Hard work and close application made him a successful business man. He began life with no capital but strong hands, good habits and good health, and won for himself a comfortable living and the esteem of his fellow citizens. Like his father, he was a Democrat. Samuel Pryor was married to Dorothy, daughter of Thomas and Catherine (Toby) Wolf, who was a descendant of one of the old families of Hauvers District. Of their eight children six reached adult age. 1, Cornelia A., married to the late Hamilton Harbaugh, and after his death to John Hauver, a retired farmer of Shelby County, Ohio; 2, Seraphyne, deceased, married to the late Oscar Harbaugh, of Hauvers District; 3, Alfred, a farmer of Hauvers District; 4, Mary C. (Mrs. William H. Hoffman), of Waynesboro, Pa.; 5, Wilson L.; 6, Annie M., of Hauvers District. Mr. Pryor died October 5, 1903. His widow is living in Hauvers District.

Wilson L. Pryor received his education in the public schools of his native district, and remained with his father until he was twenty-one, when he began farming for his brother-in-law. After the death of his brother-in-law, Mr. Pryor cultivated the land for his sister for nine years. At the end of this time, he purchased his present home, a farm of 218 acres of farm and timber land, the property of John Weller. Mr. Pryor afterwards sold a part of the land and now has 116 acres of excellent land, well improved, and equipped with a comfortable two-story dwelling, a bank barn, and convenient outbuildings. This place, situated at Foxville, is considered one of the desirable farms of the district. Mr. Pryor sold his land near Foxville to Mr. Toms, and, in 1909, purchased a farm of 42 acres situated near Thurmont, the property of Henry Sipes. This place which is furnished with a two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn, and all the necessary outbuildings, is a valuable property. Mr. Pryor attributes his financial success to industry and close attention to business. He is a Democrat, interested in the progress of the district. Wilson L. Pryor was married to Ida T., daughter of William and Lydia (Stottlemyer) Hauver, both deceased, whose father was a prominent farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County. They had two children one only is living: William S., at school. Mr. Pryor is a member of the Lutheran Church in Foxville, Md.; Ida T., a member of the Reformed Church at Wolfsville, now Thurmont. Mr. Pryor is a liberal contributor to benevolent enterprises, and takes an active part in church work.

PATRICK E. LONG, the well known and popular proprietor of the beautiful Hotel Braddock, at Braddock Heights, in Frederick County, Md., is a native of Richmond, Va., where he was born in 1861. He is a son of James Long.

The Long family is of Irish origin. Patrick E. Long while yet a child, removed with his parents from Richmond, Va., to Baltimore, Md. In the latter city he grew to manhood, and there received his eduaction in the public and parochial schools. After he had attained his majority, he became employed at Harper's Ferry, Va. He remained here but a short time, however, and soon returned to the city of Baltimore. Here he engaged in the restaurant business, which he continued for seven years. He met with substantial success in this undertaking, and after relinquishing the restaurant business, came to Frederick City. Here he engaged in the hotel business, becoming the proprietor of the Groff House. Later he conducted the Central Hotel, on West Patrick street, and subsequently the Carlin, afterwards the Park Hotel, which was torn down, and the present handsome Young Men's Christian Association building erected on its site. In 1898, Mr. Long temporarily retired from the cares of active business life, and spent a well-earned vacation in the wilds of Colorado, after which he returned to the East. In 1900, Mr. Long leased the well known City Hotel, in Frederick City, his lease expiring in May 1908. In the intervening time, he had built the beautiful Hotel Braddock, at Braddock Heights, a popular resort, in Frederick County, Md.

Hotel Braddock was completed in July, 1905, and is one of the best known and most popular hotels in the State of Maryland. The building consists of stone and frame construction, and contains seventy rooms en suite, either with or without connecting bath. The rooms are all of large dimensions and outside ones. The plan of erection affords ample light, sunshine and breeze. Every known modern means and latest improvements in hotel fittings have been used to insure comfort and pleasure to the guests of this resort. A broad piazza, one hundred and eighty feet in length, runs around three sides of the hotel, and affords room for promenade, lounging and a grand view of the surrounding country. The first floor of the hotel contains a writing room, sitting room and a parlor for ladies, and is supplied with pure mountain water. The elevation of the hotel is 1,000 feet above the sea level, situated on the mountain ridge, overlooking the Middletown Valley on the west and the beautiful and historic Frederick Valley on the east, and is twenty minutes ride by trolley from Frederick City. The surroundings are beautiful and spacious, consisting of walks, driveways and park, the advantages of which are always accessible to guests.

During the time that he has been engaged in the hotel business, Mr. Long has always directed the affairs of his establishments with an ability, foresight and sagacity that stamp him as a man of high executive capacity, and he is widely known as one of the ablest and most representative hotel proprietors in the State. He has risen to his present enviable position by reason of close application to business and dint of perseverence.

Politically, Mr. Long is affiliated with the Democratic party, of which he is a stanch adherent. He is a prominent member and leading spirit of the Catholic Benevolent Association, the B. M. A., St. John's Beneficial Society, and the Frederick City Lodge, No. 684, Order of Elks. He is also trustee of the Frederick City Hospital. In religion, he is a member and liberal contributor of St. John's Roman Catholic Church, of Frederick.

Mr. Long has been twice married. He was married first in 1885, to Winifred Boland, a sister of the Rev. J. D. Boland, rector of a prominent Roman Catholic Church, of Baltimore. She died without issue, and in 1897, Mr. Long was married secondly to Margaret Harvey, of Washington, D. C. By this marriage there are two children: Margaret and Catharine. (Since this sketch has been prepared our subject died).

CHARLES WERTHEIMER, who stands high among the business men of Frederick City, where he is a member of the clothing firm of Lowenstein & Wertheimer, is a native of Tremont, Schuylkill county, Pa., where he was born January 29, 1861. He is the son of Frederick and Clotilda (Karley) Wertheimer.

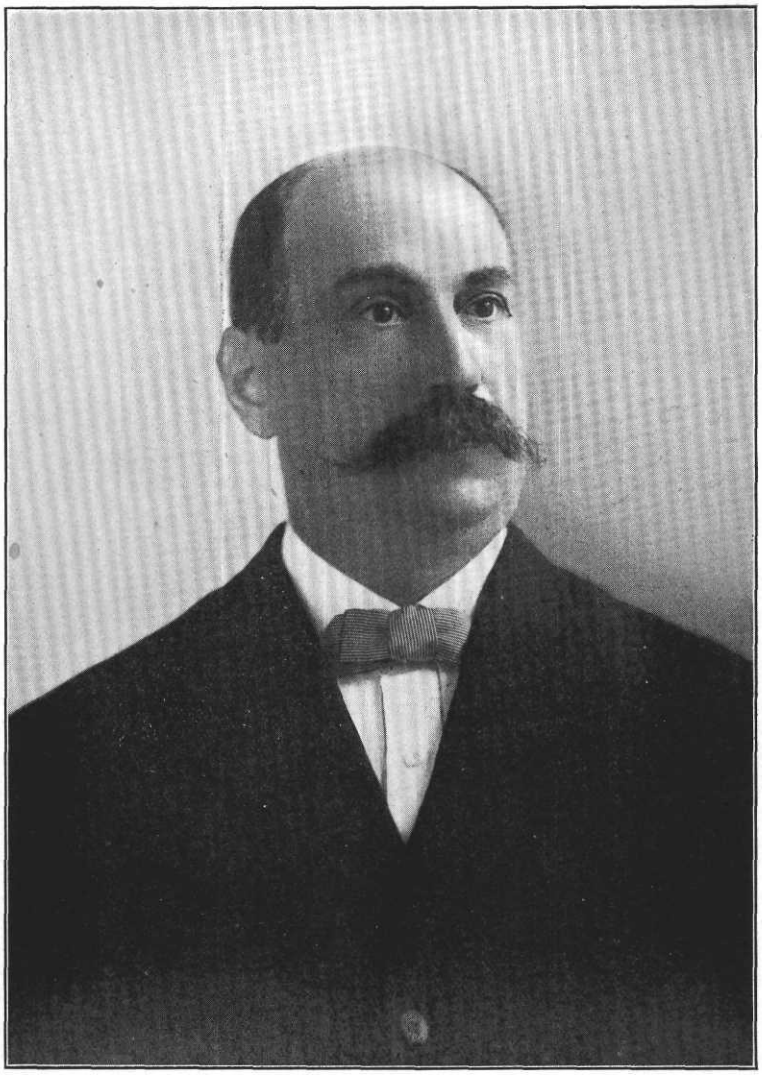
Frederick Wertheimer, the father of Charles Wertheimer, was a native of Pennsylvania, and died in Frederick City in 1897. He was for many years engaged in the grocery business in his native State, and afterwards removed to Frederick, where he opened a place of business in East Church street. Here he spent the remainder of his life, being at his death one of the most highly esteemed citizens of the city. He was one of the best known members of the Masonic Order in the county, having been a Mason for half a century. In politics he was a Democrat but never aspired to public office, giving all his time and attention to the management of his business. Mr. Wertheimer was married to Clotilda Karley, also a native of Pennsylvania, who is still living in Frederick City, at the age of seventy-six years. They were the parents of the following children: Sarah, who resides in Frederick; Francis Karley, formerly in mercantile lines, now retired; Marcus, who succeeded to the grocery business established by his father in Frederick in 1863; David, a merchant of Connellsville, Pa.; Charles, Meyer and Samuel, associated in business under the firm name of Wertheimer Brothers; Sarah, Rose and Emma C., all residents of Frederick.

Charles Wertheimer, son of Frederick and Clotilda (Karley) Wertheimer, was but two years old when he accompanied his parents to Frederick from Pennsylvania. Here he grew to maturity, and received his education in the public schools and the old Frederick City College. When he was fifteen years of age, he began life as a clerk in the employ of David Lowenstein. In this capacity he remained until 1885, when he became a partner with Mr. Lowenstein in the business, under the firm name of Lowenstein & Wertheimer. This business association has since continued, and the firm is one of the leading and most successful mercantile enterprises of the county. This clothing house is one of the largest in its section of the State, occupying spacious quarters at Nos. 9-11 North Market street. There are two well built brick buildings, each three stories in height, and provided with all modern appliances for comfort and successful work. The firm gives employment to a number of hands, and in its various departments is to be found a very large stock. The house has gained a wide reputation, which is steadily increasing, and the amount of business done yearly reaches a high figure. Besides this business, Mr. Wertheimer is also interested in the firm of Wertheimer Brothers, of Cumberland, Md., and Connellsville, Pa. The Cumberland establishment was founded in 1902, and the business at Connellsville in 1906.

As a business man, Mr. Wertheimer is widely known, and he has not confined his attention to mercantile lines, but is identified with various other undertakings of the county. He is vice-president of the Central National Bank of Frederick, one of the city's many good financial institutions. Mr. Wertheimer is also extensively engaged in agriculture. He is the owner of the well-known Mount O'Donnell farm, situated in Petersville district, Frederick county, which contains 317 acres of the best land in the county. This farm had remained in the possession of the O'Donnell family for over half a century, and was purchased in 1903 by Mr. Wertheimer after the death of the only male member of the family. The fine old Colonial mansion on this tract was built in 1819 by the grandfather of Governor Francis Thomas of Maryland. During the Civil War, the house was occupied at various times by several well known generals of the Union forces, including Custer and Kilpatrick. From this beautiful home, situated on an elevation, is to be had a splendid view of Harper's Ferry Gap, South Mountain, the Potomac and Middletown Valleys. On this farm, Mr. Wertheimer has one of the finest herds of Holstein cows in Western Maryland. The dairy business run in this connection is conducted in a strictly sanitary manner, most of the produce being sold to the trade of Brunswick, Md. Mr. Wertheimer is also the possessor of several other fine farms, one of 237 acres in Buckeystown district, Frederick county, one of 224 acres, near Mount Airy, Carroll county, Md., and a large stock farm in Montgomery county, Md. All of these farms he conducts in a most scientific manner, and the latest improved machinery and progressive methods are used in cultivation.

Mr. Wertheimer is one of Frederick's prominent citizens and is a man who owes his success in life entirely to his own efforts. He is public spirited, and any movement that tends to promote the general good of the community finds in him an earnest supporter. In 1907 he was chairman of the building committee that erected the handsome Young Men's Christian Association Building in Frederick City.

In politics, Mr. Wertheimer is affiliated with the Democratic party, but has never had any desire for public office. Fraternally, he like his father, is a well known Mason, being a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., Enoch Royal Arch Chapter, No. 23, and



Chas Wertheimer,

Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar.

Mr. Wertheimer was married February 8, 1899, to Annie Mary Hiteshew, daughter of P. L. and Fannie Alverta (Wilcoxan) Hiteshew, of Frederick City, (see sketch). They are the parents of two sons: Charles J., born February 18, 1901, and Philip, born April 22, 1907.

JOHN H. LIGHTER, one of the well-known agriculturists of Middletown District, who resides on the old Sharpsburg road a mile and a-half west of Middletown, was born on the farm that he now owns, May 20, 1834. He is a son of Peter and Elizabeth (Everhart) Lighter.

Henry Lighter, the grandfather of John H. Lighter, was one of the early settlers of the Middletown Valley, Frederick County, Md. He was a blacksmith by trade, and conducted a shop within a short distance of the present dwelling house of John H. Lighter. In this place, he from time to time purchased small pieces of land until he had accumulated 119 acres, which is a part of the present farm. There was a resurvey of this tract made in 1800. In politics, Henry Lighter was a Democrat, as have been all his descendants. In religion, he is a member of the Reformed Church. He was married in 1780 to Catharine Stahley. They were the parents of the following children: John, Jacob, Henry, Joseph, Peter, Elizabeth, Mary, Barbara and Hannah; the daughters died unmarried.

Peter Lighter, son of Henry and Catharine (Stahley) Lighter, was born about 1794, and died in 1863. He was a wellknown citizen of Middletown Valley, in which he was born and spent his life. He was a farmer by occupation. In politics, he gave his support to the candidates of the Democratic party, and in religion he was connected with the Reformed Church. He was married to Elizabeth Everhart, daughter of Jacob Everhart, and niece of Laurence Everhart. The latter served as a sergeant in the War of the Revolution, and had a most creditable record. At the battle of Brandywine, he was largely instrumental in saving General Lafayette after the latter had been wounded. Peter and Elizabeth Lighter were the parents of the following children: Catharine, married David H. Koogle; Elizabeth, married John C. Motter; Malinda, married Tilghman F. Gaver, deceased; John H.; Mary E., the widow of T. C. Rudy, of Middletown; Simon P., deceased; Daniel J., a resident of Middletown, and Martha J.

John H. Lighter, son of Peter and Elizabeth (Everhart) Lighter, was reared on the old homestead in the Middletown Valley. As a boy he was instructed in the details of farm life. His education he secured in public schools of his native district. He decided to take up farming as his occupation, and this he has followed for nearly sixty years. He is the owner of the old home farm, which consists of 204 3-4 acres of good land, part of this tract being the land purchased by Henry Lighter, the grandfather of John H. Lighter. Mr. Lighter has been very successful as an agriculturist. He is a practical and progressive farmer, and his farm yields large annual crops. He is very well known throughout the district and is a man who possesses the esteem of all who have met him. He is well read, and keeps abreast of the times.

Politicaly, Mr. Lighter, like his forebears, is a stanch adherent of the Democratic party, and has served as a member of the district central committee for twenty-five years. He was some years ago the nominee of his party for County Commissioner and although the county is Republican, came within 12 votes of being elected. In religion, he is affiliated with the Reformed Church, Middletown, in which he has served as a deacon.

Mr. Lighter was married in 1857 to Mary M. Kepler, daughter of John Kepler. She is descended from an old Middletown Valley family, and died in 1879. This marriage had eleven children, of whom ten grew to maturity: Charles E., deceased; Daniel W., deceased; Mary E., the wife of Howard Smith, of Springfield, O.; J. Calvin, a resident of Dayton, O.; William E., engaged in farming in Washington County, Md.; Simon P., went to Ohio; Emma K., deceased; Alice V., the wife of Garfield Crone, and they reside on the old Lighter homestead; Lorenz Carlton, of Middletown district, is a farmer; and Gertrude F., married Arthur Morris, of Dayton, Ohio.

RUSSELL E. LIGHTER, formerly judge of the Orphans' Court of Frederick County, Md., was born in Middletown, where he now resides, May 30, 1875. His parents were Daniel J. and Mary (Vananda) Lighter.

Henry Lighter, the great-grandfather of Judge Russell E. Lighter, was one of the early settlers of the Middletown Valley, Frederick County, Md. He was a blacksmith by trade, and conducted a shop on the old Sharpsburg road. In this locality, he from time to time purchased small pieces of land until he had accumulated 119 acres. Mr. Lighter was a Democrat in politics, and in religion was a member of the Reformed Church. He was married in 1780 to Catharine Stahley. They were the parents of the following children: John, Jacob, Henry, Joseph, Peter, Elizabeth, Mary, Barbara and Hannah; the daughters died unmarried.

Peter Lighter, son of Henry and Catharine (Stahley) Lighter, was born about 1794, and died in 1863. He was a well known citizen of Middletown Valley, in which he was born and spent his life. He was a farmer by occupation In politics, he gave his support to the candidates of the Democratic party, and in religion he was connected with the Reformed Church. The latter served as a sergeant in the War of the Revolution, and had a most creditable record. At the battle of Brandywine, he was largely instrumental in saving General Lafayette after the latter had been wounded. Peter and Elizabeth Lighter were the parents of the following children: Catherine, married David H. Koogle; Elizabeth, married John C. Motter; Malinda, married Tilghman F. Gaver, deceased; John H., a farmer of Middletown District; Mary E., the widow of T. C. Rudy, of Middletown; Simon P., deceased; Daniel and Martha J.

Daniel J. Lighter, son of Peter and Elizabeth (Everhart) Lighter, is living in Middletown, where he is highly respected. He was married to Mary Vananda, daughter of James Vananda, who was the captain of an Ohio company in the Union Army during the rebellion. Mr. and Mrs. Lighter were the parents of four children: Russell E., Norma R., Edna K., and Frank R.

Russell E. Lighter, son of Daniel and Mary (Vananda) Lighter, was reared in Middletown. He was educated in the public schools of Middletown and the High School and business college at Lafayette, Ind. At the age of sixteen years, he went west to Lafayette, Ind., where he entered the employ of the Ridgeley Decorating Company. With this firm he remained for four years, attending school during the winter season. He then returned to his old home, and engaged in various occupations.

In politics, Mr. Lighter has always been an active supporter and stanch adherent of the Democratic party. At the age of twenty-three he was elected burgess of Middletown. In the fall of 1899, he was the nominee of his party for judge of the Orphans' Court of Frederick County, and was elected. He discharged his duties in such a manner that he was re-elected in 1903, serving until the fall of 1907. He is the only Democrat who has served that number of years in the office, Frederick County being largely Republican.

Judge Lighter has in his possession an interesting bit of literature, namely, the diary of his great-uncle, Hiram Ridgley. This book covers the events and happenings of over half a century of the early days of the county. Judge Lighter is strictly a self-made man, and his present standing in the community is due entirely to his own efforts. He is held in high esteem in Middletown, where he is a leading citizen.

EDWARD F. FRY, a well-known farmer of Frederick County, Md., residing on his farm near Washington Junction, Buckeystown District, son of Samuel F. and Christina (Stoneburner) Fry, was born on the Old Fry homestead, near Leesburg, Loudoun County, Va., July 21, 1846.

Peter Fry, grandfather of Edward F. Fry, who was one of the early settlers of Loudoun County, Va., was a German by descent. He spent his whole life on his land in Loudoun County, where he was highly regarded as a good citizen. He married, and among his children was a son named Samuel.

Samuel Fry, a retired farmer of Loudoun County, Va., father of Edward F. Fry, was born in Loudoun County, in 1800. He received his education in the public schools of Loudoun County, and learned carpentry. He remained with his parents on the homestead until he married. After working at his trade successfully for some time, Mr. Fry purchased 60 acres of good land which he made his homestead. He equipped his place with a comfortable dwelling, a barn, and all the necessary buildings, and made it one of the desirable small farms of the district. He attained success in life by hard work and close application to his business, and was well and favorable known among the citizens of the county. Samuel Fry was married to Christina Stoneburner, whose parents were descendants of prominent families of Loudoun County. Eleven of their twelve children reached adult age: 1, Mary A., widow of Joseph Brown, a farmer of Loudoun County; 2, Annie, widow of the late Daniel Everhart, of Washington, D. C.; 3, Charles W., a farmer of Loudoun County; 4, Lydia J., widow of the late William Beatty, of Lovettsville, Va.; 5, Margaret E., died unmarried; 6, George W., farming the old homestead in Loudoun County; 7, David J., a retired farmer residing near Lovettsville, Va.; 8, Samuel L., a retired farmer of Lovettsville; 9, Curtis J., a retired farmer of Lovettsville; 10, Ella V., married to John Compher, a farmer residing near Waterford, Loudoun County, Va.; 11, Edward F. Mr. Fry and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church in Lovettsville, and are buried in the cemetery adjoining the Church. Mr. Fry contributed liberally to the support of the church in which he held office for many years.

Edward F. Fry was educated in the public schools of Loudoun County, Va., and remained on the homestead with his parents. After the death of his father, he took charge of the farm for his mother until he was twenty-two years of age, when he married, and rented the homestead which he cultivated successfully for three years. In 1883, Mr. Fry removed to Frederick County, Md., where he purchased his present home, a farm of 123 acres, part of the Grub estate. He put up a comfortable two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn, and all the necessary buildings. He has brought his land to a high state of cultivation, and has made his home a valuable property. Mr. Fry afterwards purchased one of the old Michael farms, one of the fine farms of the district, adjoining his land, and furnished with all the required buildings in excellent repair. Both of these properties are conveniently situated about a mile and a-half northeast of Washington Junction, Md. He also owns a desirable dwelling in Point of Rocks. He is one of the progressive and honored farmers of Buckeystown District, and his financial success is due to industry and close attention to business. He is a stanch Republican.

Edward F. Fry was married to Sarah, daughter of Joseph and Susan (Springer) Shafer, whose father is well-known among the older farmers of Loudoun County, Va. Their children are: 1, Pearley B., married to J. Frederick Stunkle, a farmer of Buckeystown District, Frederick County, Md.; 2, Scott L., a farmer of Buckeystown District; 3, Olie M., married to Joseph Carry, a farmer of Buckeystown District; 4, Charles M., at home; 5, Nellie V., married to Walter Remsberg, a farmer of Buckeystown District; 6, Addie C., at home, unmarried. Mr. Fry and his wife are members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church at Point of Rocks in which he is an active worker, and contributes liberally to the church. He has been a deacon and is now an elder.

He then, in 1862 enlisted in the Seventh Maryland Volunteer Infantry and served in the Union Army until Lee's surrender, April 9, 1865. The Seventh Regiment formed part of the Army of the Potomac and took part in many hard fought fields. Mr. Whitmore made a very creditable record as a soldier. He was with his regiment at: Funkstown, Md., July 12, 1863; at Haymarket, Va., October 19, 1863; at the Battle of the Wilderness, Va., May 5 to 7, 1864; at Battle of Laurelhill, Va., May 8, 1864; Battle of Spottsylvania, Va., May 9, to 20, 1864; Harris Farm, Va., May 19, 1864; Battle of the North Anna, Va., May 23 to 27, 1864; Battle of Bethesda Church, Va., May 31 to June 1, 1864; Battle of Cold Harbor, Va., June 2 to 5, 1864; the assault on Petersburg, Va., 1864-1865; the Weldon Railroad, Va., August 18 to 21, 1864; Poplar Spring Church, Va., September 30, 1864; Chapel House, Va., October 1 to 3, 1864; Preble's Farm, Va., October 7 to 8, 1864; Hatches Run, Va., October 27, 1864; Raid to Hicks Foard, Va., December 7 to 12, 1864; Dabneys Mill, Va., February 6, 1865; White Oak Road, Va., March 31, 1865; Five Forks, Va., April 1, 1865; and the surrender of General Lee at Appomattox, Va., April 9, 1865.

After the close of the war, Mr. Whitmore returned home and again took up his trade of carpenter. This he was engaged in until 1890, when he turned his attention to agriculture, removing to a farm in Liberty District. He retired from active farm work in 1906. He is the owner of an excellent farm of 232 acres in Liberty District, which is well improved and kept in a good state of cultivation. Mr. Whitmore is one of the substantial citizens of the county and is a man of high character. Politically, Mr. Whitmore has all his life been in the ranks of the Republican party. In 1907, he was the choice of his party as a member of the board of judges of the Orphans' Court of Frederick County, and was elected for four years. Since filling this office, he has ably discharged his duties. In religion, Mr. Whitmore is a member of the Liberty Methodist Protestant Church, in which he acts as a trustee.

Mr. Whitmore has been twice married. He was married first, in 1868, to Henrietta F. Gittings, daughter of George W. Gittings. They have one son, W. H. Whitmore, a farmer of Liberty District, who married Ada Zimmerman, daughter of ex-Sheriff Zimmerman, of Frederick County, and has two children, Berta I., and Oscar H. Mrs. Whitmore died March 14, 1904. Judge Whitmore was married secondly to Isabella Carr. She is a daughter of Thomas Carr, of Liberty District. They have no children.

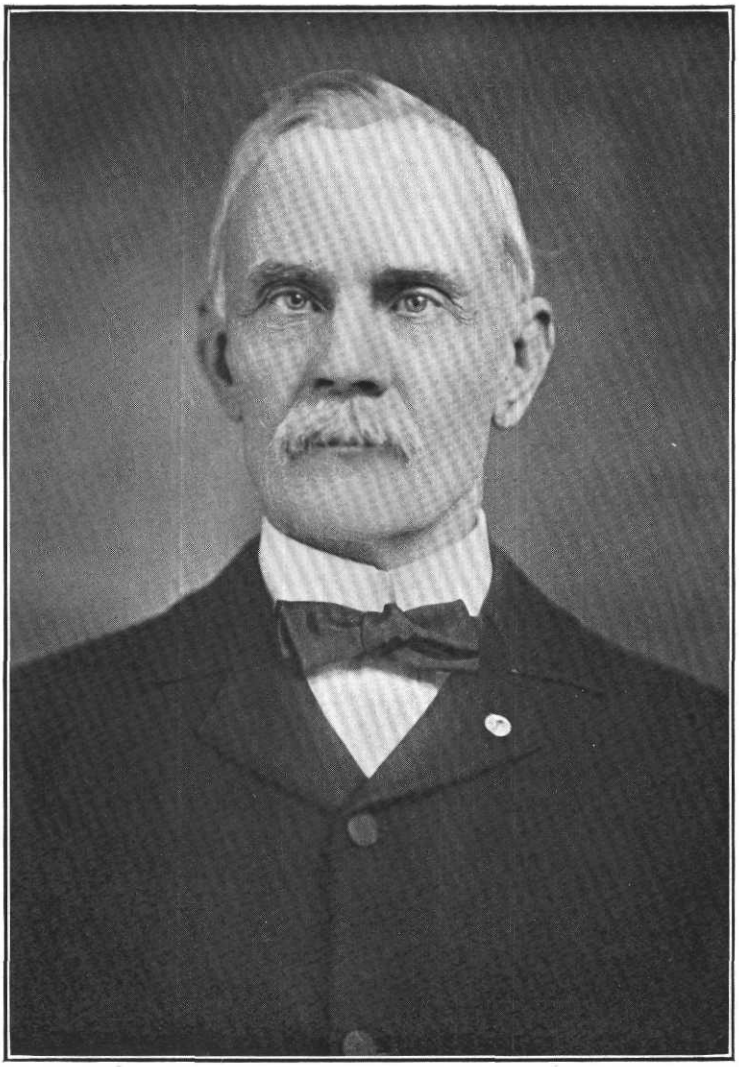
BENTON M. MORGAN, farmer and fruit raiser, residing near Myersville, Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., son of David and Susan (Morrison) Morgan, both deceased, was born at the old paper mill northwest of Myersville, December 24, 1853.

The late David Morgan, father of Benton M. Morgan, a manufacturer of fine paper, was born in Baltimore, Md., May 27, 1803. He spent his boyhood and youth in Baltimore, and received his education in the public schools of that city. He learned paper making in Baltimore and after working at his trade for some years in Virginia, removed to Frederick County, Md., and purchased the Old Paper Mill, a mile and a-half northwest of Myersville. Mr. Morgan improved his mill and had a large trade, the demand for his goods being greater than he could supply. He sold his papers in Baltimore, Washington and other cities. Mr. Morgan afterwards bought the old Grist mill, which he managed successfully for some years. He was a good business man and an honored citizen. He was an active member of the Republican party, and held the office of supervisor of roads in Jackson District. During the Civil War, Mr. Morgan was one of the enrolling captains for his section of Frederick County. His financial success he owed to honest labor and close attention to business. David Morgan was married to Susan, daughter of Richard and Susan (Kimball) Morrison. Of their ten children, nine reached maturity: 1, Mary Jane, 2 years, deceased; 2, Franklin, lawyer, deceased; 3, Wesley, deceased; 4, Randolph, deceased; 5, Susan, widow of the late Thomas Crawford, a farmer of Darke County, Ohio; 6, Margaret, deceased, married John Hoffman, of Washington County, Md.; 7, Saline, deceased; 8, Silas, deceased, a lawyer of Montgomery, Ala.; 9, Clinton, deceased; 10, Benton M. Mr. Morgan and his wife were members of the United Brethren Church, in which Mr. Morgan was an office-bearer for many years. He was superintendent of the Sunday School, and as a member of the board of trustees, was actively interested in building the United Brethren Church. He died at his home in Frederick County, in 1889, and is buried in the cemetery of the United Brethren Church in Myersville, Md.

Benton M. Morgan began his studies in the public schools of Jackson District, and completed his education at Wurtemburg College, Springfield, Ohio. After he left college, Mr. Morgan taught for three years in Ohio. Returning to Maryland, he taught for fifteen years in different places in Frederick and Washington counties. During this time, he also owned and cultivated a small farm. When he grew tired of teaching, he purchased his present home, a farm of 116 acres, situated a mile west of Myersville, the property of Joseph Bolus. He greatly improved this place putting up a two-story dwelling, a fine bank barn, and all the necessary outbuildings. Three years after he bought the farm, Mr. Morgan planted 2,300 fruit trees, and today he is the largest fruit raiser in the Middletown Valley, and the largest shipper of fruit in Frederick County. His farm is considered one of the finest in the county. Mr. Morgan is a Republican, interested in political affairs, and is highly esteemed as a successful business man, and as a reliable citizen.

Benton M. Morgan was married to Emma C., daughter of the late Lawson and Mary A. (Dutrow) Haupt. Their children are: 1, Mary S. (Mrs. Calvert Houver), of Jackson District; 2, Della E., at home; 3, Annie L., married Clay



Geo. H. Whitmore

V. Grossnickle, agent at Myersville, of the Inter Urban Railroad; 4, Alice D., at home; 5, Ethel V., at home; 6, Grace, at home; 7, Dale, at home. Mr. Morgan and his wife are members of the United Brethren Church in Myersville, Md. JOHN MASON GROVE, owner of "Allendale," a farm of 102 acres, situated near Broad Run, Frederick County, Md., son of Jacob and Eliza (Willard) Grove, was born at Hammond's Mill, Jefferson District, Frederick County, Md., February 14, 1842.

(See biographical sketch of the Grove family in the History of Washington County, Md.)

The first representative of the Grove family settled in Middletown Valley, Frederick County, Md., in 1708. Mr. Grove's great-grandfather, Dewalt Willard, M. D., was a resident of the Middletown Valley as early as 1709, and owned large tracts of land near Broad Run, Md. The extent of his holding may be better estimated when it is known that from it was carved out several farms: Allendale, now the property of John Mason Grove; Castle Hill, now owned by Edward Willard; the farm owned by Miss Frank and William Willard; the Harry Huffer farm; part of the Jacob Huffer farm; and part of the John C. Boyer farm.

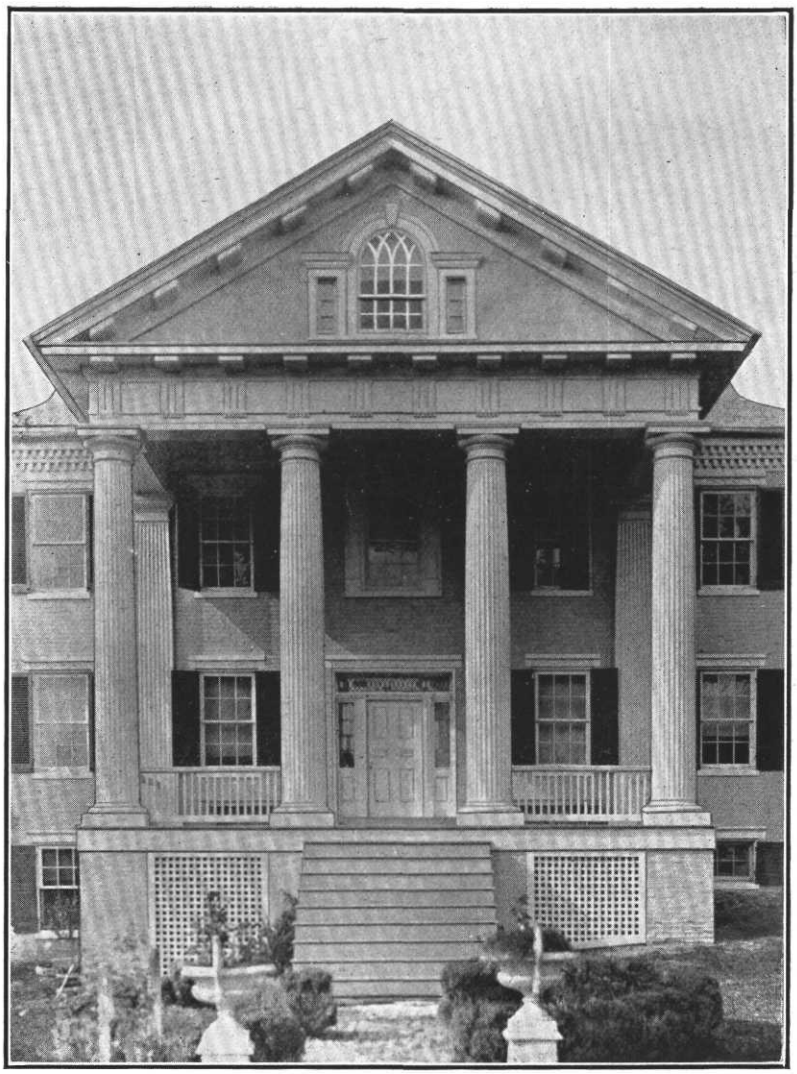
Jacob Grove, grandfather of John M. Grove, son of Jacob and Christena (Doyle) Grove, spent his whole life on his estate in Middletown Valley. He not only owned all the land between Middletown and Braddock Heights, but also two farms on the other side of Middletown, the place now owned by Joshua D. Ahalt, and that owned by Amos Remsburg. Mr. Grove was a Democrat, interested in all that concerned the best interests of the community. Jacob Grove was married to Christena Storm, of Frederick Valley. Their children are: 1, Mary Magdalene (Mrs. Stephen House), died in Jefferson, Md.; 2, John, married first to Miss Herring, and after her death to Miss Van Meter, residing near Moorefield, West Virginia; 3, Jacob; 4, Leonard, married Miss Rebecca Fout, died near Jefferson, Md.; 5, Martin, married Miss Routzahn, died in Middletown district; 6, George, married Elizabeth Biser, died in Burkittsville, Frederick County, Md.; 7, William, married Mary Ann Willard, died at the Allendale farm in 1876; 8, Daniel, married Julia Ann Willard, died at his home in Broad Run, Frederick County; 9, Samuel, married Rebecca Shaffer, died in Burkittsville district, Frederick County. Jacob Grove and his wife were members of the Reformed Church in Middletown. They died at their home near Middletown.

Mr. Grove's father, Jacob Grove, was born at the family homestead in 1793. He learned tailoring in Middletown, and worked at this trade in early manhood. He also learned milling and was employed in that business for some time. In 1858 he opened a store for the sale of general merchandise in Frederick City. In 1861, Mr. Grove turned his attention to agriculture, and settled on a farm near Hancock, Washington County, Md., where he spent the remainder of his life. Jacob Grove was married to Eliza, daughter of John Willard. Their children are: 1, Loretta (Mrs. Grafton Fout), deceased; 2, Manzella (Mrs. Emanuel Mantz), deceased; 3, Mary Ann (Mrs. George G. Lambert), deceased; 4, William, deceased, married first to Ann Eliza Figgins, and after her death to Miss Chestnut; 5, Jeremiah, married first to Fanny Whitter, and after her death married Mary, widow of John Lyons, of Kentucky, who died in Kentucky; 6, Johanna (Mrs. Charles Howard), of Washington, D. C.; 7, Jacob F. T., of Hancock, Washington County, married Miss Hardsack; 8, John Mason; 9, James K. P., of Frederick City, married Miss McKelvy. Jacob Grove and his wife were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mrs. Grove died at her home near Jefferson, Md., in 1853, aged fifty-two. Mr. Grove died at his home near Hancock, Md., in 1878, aged eighty-five.

John Mason Grove began his school days at the old Union School, under Judge Lynch, and completed his education at a private school in Frederick City. He grew up on his father's farm and, after his mother's death, in 1861, went with his father to Hancock, and remained with him until the time of his death. After his marriage, Mr. Grove settled on his present place, Allendale, and occupied his energies in improving and cultivating his land. He was a successful agriculturist, but for some years has retired from active farm life. Mr. Grove is an ardent Democrat, interested in political affairs, and is highly esteemed in the community. When the Middletown Savings' Bank was organized January 4, 1908, Mr. Grove was made one of its directors. He is also a member of the board of directors of the Granger Insurance Company.

John Mason Grove was married, December 24, 1885, to Sarah Alice, daughter of William and Mary Ann (Willard) Grove. Mr. Grove and his wife are members of the Reformed Church in Burkittsville, Md.

Mrs. Grove was born at Allendale, where she has spent her whole life. She was educated in the public school at Broad Run, and is an intelligent, liberal minded lady. Her father, William Grove, was born at the family homestead in 1804. He received a good education in the public schools of his native county, and spent his life in the cultivation of the soil. In February, 1835, two years after his marriage, he settled at "Allendale," where he spent the remainder of his life, cultivating and caring for his estate. He was a Democrat, interested in the well-being of the community. William Grove was married, in 1835, December 11, to Mary Ann, daughter of Abraham and Catharine Willard. Their children are: 1, Fullerton, M. D., practiced in various places, finally settled in Kirksville, whence he returned to his home to die, married Virginia, daughter of



The Old Pearre Homestead, Formerly the Home of Rev. James Pearre, Now the Home of Alexander Pearre, of Linganore District.

ALEXANDER PEARRE, who resides on part of the old Pearre farm, called so by reason of Pearres being the first to locate on it, is a highly respected agriculturist and representative citizen. He was born on the family estate, in October, 1852. He is the sixth child of James Pearre and his wife, Eliza Dudderar. (For history of the Pearre family see the sketch of Judge W. H. Pearre, of Linganore district).

Mr. Pearre received his education at the Oak Orchard public school under Dennis Bankert and William Curry. When he was about twelve years old, he began working on the home farm. He thus learned by experience all the details of a farmer's life. When he was sixteen years old he gave up school. He afterwards assumed charge of the home place. After the death of his father he succeeded to the place, which he has since very successfully operated. He is an up-to-date and practical farmer. His labors have borne much fruit and he is one of the substantial residents of the county. In his political affiliations, he is a Democrat. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

WILLIAM H. PEARRE, chief judge of the Orphans' Court of Frederick County, Md., was born on a farm in Liberty, now Linganore district, September 11, 1836. His parents were Rev. James and Eliza (Dudderar) Pearre.

James Pearre, grandfather of William H. Pearre, was born in Frederick County in 1760, and died September 19, 1825. He followed the occupation of a farmer in his native county. The name of his wife was Sarah. She was born in 1768, and died February 3, 1857. They were the parents of these children: Charles, Lemuel, Otho, James, Joshua, Miranda, married Jesse Nelson; Eliza, married a Mr. Dixon. The Pearre family is of French descent.

James Pearre, son of James and Sarah Pearre, was born September 11, 1809, and died October 5, 1882. He was for many years a minister in the Methodist Episcopal Church. Rev. Pearre was married to Eliza Dudderar, daughter of William and Margaret Dudderar, natives of Frederick County. She was born August 14, 1814, and died May 16, 1898. William Dudderar was born in 1781 and died February 26, 1847, and his wife Margaret was born in 1783, and died November 20, 1849. Rev. James and Eliza (Dudderar) Pearre were the parents of the following children: Joshua, deceased; Peter, deceased; Cecelia, died without marrying; Margaret; David Dudderar; Caroline, the wife of Charles Vance, a cigar manufacturer of Westminster, Md.; Eliza, is unmarried; William H.; Aubra, of Baltimore, Md., is a retired merchant; James, a farmer of Howard County, Md.; Alexander, a retired agriculturist of Liberty District; and Oliver, engaged in farming in Johnsville District, Frederick County.

William H. Pearre, son of Rev. James and Eliza (Dudderar) Pearre, spent his early years on a farm. His education he secured in the public schools and he has been engaged in agricultural pursuits all of his life. Mr. Pearre is one of the best known and most highly respected citizens of the county. In farming he has been very successful.

Politically, Mr. Pearre is a stanch adherent of the Republican party, although for three generations the Pearre family had been Democrats. In 1903, he was nominated and elected by his party to the office of judge of the Orphans' Court of Frederick County. He filled this position in such a manner that in 1907 he was again nominated and elected to succeed himself for another term of four years. For the present term he was chosen chief judge. In this capacity, Mr. Pearre has discharged his duties with great ability and he has given satisfaction to all regardless of partisanship.

Fraternally, Judge Pearre is a member of King David Lodge, No. 50, I. O. O. F., and Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, of Frederick City. In religion, he holds membership in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Judge Pearre has been twice married. He was married first about 1858 to Julia Lindsay, of Liberty District, daughter of Benjamin and Sarah Lindsay, who were natives of Frederick County. There are two living children by this marriage: Ernest, in the employ of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad; and Walter, a practicing physician of Waynesboro, Pa. After the death of his first wife, Mr. Pearre was married secondly to Ruth Ann Buckingham, of Frederick. They are the parents of five sons: Leona, retired farmer of Linganore District; William H., Hixon, postmaster of Unionville, Frederick County; David, a farmer of Linganore District; and Mertin S., a retired physician of Unionville, Frederick County.

CHARLES C. WATERS, one of the leading and most prominent members of the Frederick County Bar, was born in Lewistown, Frederick County, Md., August 25, 1868. He is a son of Dr. James K. and Annie M. (Hill) Waters.

The Waters family was among the first settlers in Frederick county. Richard Waters, the great-great-grandfather of Charles C. Waters, was a native of Maryland, and served as a surgeon in the Revolution. He was buried at Richmond, Va. Somerset R. Waters, the grandfather of Charles C. Waters, was a native of Frederick County, and followed the occupation of a farmer and local M. E. minister.

Dr. James K. Waters, the father of Charles C. Waters, is a prominent citizen of Thurmont, Md. He is a physician and druggist, and is president of the Citizen's Savings Bank of Thurmont. His first wife, mother of Charles E. Waters, was Annie M. Hill. She was a daughter of John Hill, a native of Frederick County, who was a son of Christopher Hill, and served in the Revolution, under General Lafayette.

Charles C. Waters was reared at Lewistown, Md., and received his education in the public schools of his native place and Utica Mills, Md. At the age of sixteen he entered the Military Academy at Oxford, Md., where he remained for two years. He then went to Thurmont, Md., and engaged in the drug business with his father. He later spent some time as a travelling salesman.

In 1891, his father was elected Register of Wills of Frederick County, at which time Mr. Waters was appointed Deputy Register, and assumed entire charge of the office for the full term of six years. While serving in this capacity, he began the study of the law under Judge John C. Motter, and in 1898, was admitted to the Frederick County Bar. He immediately began the practice of his profession, and by his ability has acquired a large and important practice. He has achieved much success in his chosen field, and is one of the best known and ablest of the attorneys at the Frederick County Bar. Besides his legal business, he is interested in various other enterprises. He is secretary and a director of the Washington, Frederick and Gettysburg Electric Railway Company, and a director and editor of the Thurmont "Clarion," a weekly paper devoted to local interests and independent in politics. He is also a director of and attorney for the Citizen's Savings Bank of Thurmont, and is the attorney for the Walkersville Savings Bank, Walkersville, Md.

In politics, Mr. Waters has always strictly adhered to Democratic principles. In 1897 he was a candidate for the office of Register of Wills to succeed his father, but was defeated with the rest of the Democratic ticket. In 1899, he was a candidate for and elected to the Maryland House of Delegates.

Fraternally, Mr. Waters is a member of Acacia Lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Thurmont, Md.; Enoch Royal Arch Chapter, No. 23, of Royal Arch Masons of Frederick; Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar, of Frederick; Boumi Temple of the Mystic Shrine, Baltimore, Md., and Good Samaritan Lodge, No. 58, I. O. O. F., Thurmont, Md. In religion, Mr. Waters is a member of the All Saints Protestant Episcopal Church of Frederick City.

Mr. Waters was married in 1896, to Rosa L. R. Jones, of Frederick; they are the parents of one son, James Somerset.

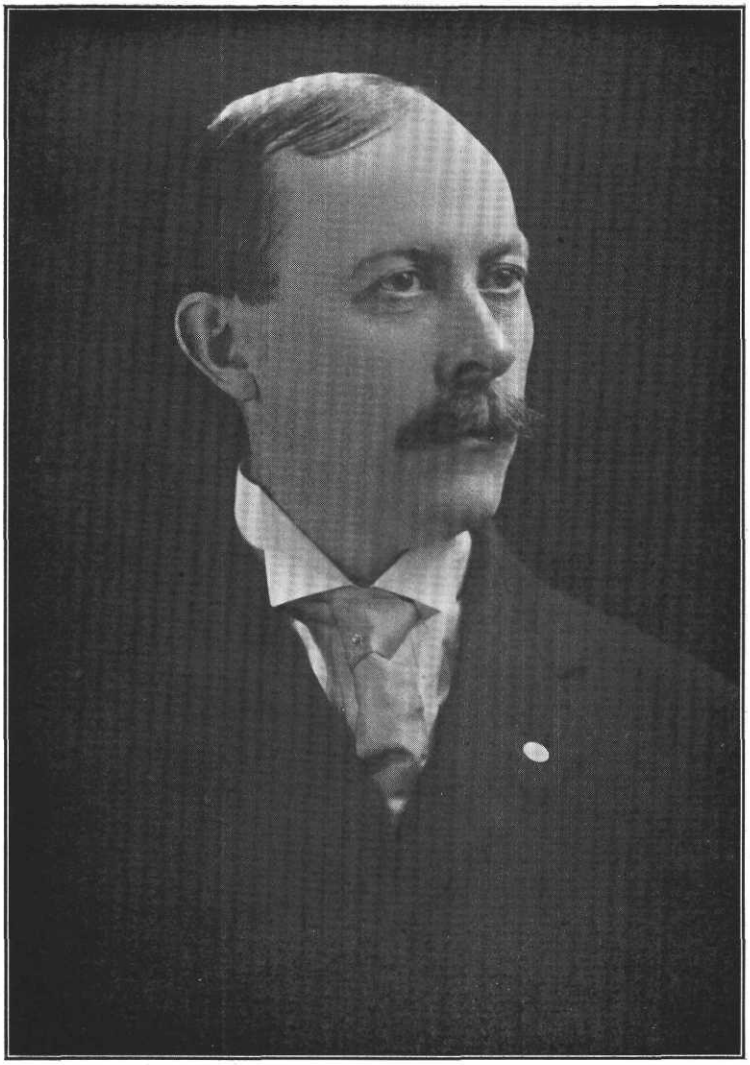
CHARLES W. JOHNSON, a prominent farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., son of the late John W. and Caroline (Routzahn) Johnson, was born on the old Johnson homestead in Jackson District, June 22, 1857.

Jacob Johnson, grandfather of Charles W. Johnson, one of the early settlers of the upper part of the Middletown Valley, was one of the successful farmers of that section of Maryland. Besides the Johnson homestead, near Ellerton, he owned a valuable farm near Wolfsville, Md. Mr. Johnson was a Republican, and was well-known and highly respected in the district. Jacob Johnson was married to Catherine, daughter of the late George Bittle, a prominent farmer residing near Bellsville, now Harmony, Md. Of their five children, four reached maturity: 1, Julia Ann, deceased, widow of the late Ezra Hessong, a farmer of Jackson District; 2, Mary Ann, deceased, widow of the late John Hessong, a farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County; 3, Rebecca Ann, deceased, widow of the late Elder George Leatherman, of Jackson District; 5, the late Jacob. Mr. Johnson and his wife, were members of St. John's Lutheran Church, at Church Hill. Mr. Johnson served the congregation as deacon and as elder for many years. He was superintendent of the Sunday School for some time. He died in 1865, aged 72 years.



Charles C Watling

The late John W. Johnson, father of Charles W. Johnson, was born at the old homestead in Jackson District, near Ellerton, October 2, 1834. He received his eduaction in the public schools of Jackson District, and spent one term at Koogle's School and one at Church Hill. After teaching for two years, Mr. Johnson decided that he did not care to follow teaching as his profession, and, in the spring of 1857, took charge of his father's farm. He was very successful as a farmer, but in the following February, he died of typhoid fever. Mr. Johnson was a stanch Republican, interested in all that concerned the good of the community. John W. Johnson was married to Caroline, daughter of the late Jacob and Catherine (Floyd) Routzahn, both deceased, of Frederick County. Their parents, who were Germans by descent, were prominent among the early settlers of the Middletown Valley. John W. and Caroline (Routzahn) Johnson had one son, Charles W. Johnson. Mr. Johnson and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church at Church Hill, he was an active worker in the congregation. He died at his home near Ellerton, February 11, 1858, and is buried in the cemetery of St. John's Church, at Church Hill, aged 23 years, 4 months and 9 days.

Charles W. Johnson received his primary education in the public schools of Jackson District, and completed his studies at Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Pa. When he returned from college, Mr. Johnson began farming on the homestead, now the property of his mother, and remained with her for twenty years. He then bought, from the heirs of the late Josiah Harp, the property known as the Shady Grove Mill. He remodeled the building, put in modern machinery, and made it one of the best equipped mills in that section of the State. One grade of his flour, "Baker's Choice," was greatly in demand. During the time that he had the mill, Mr. Johnson was also dealing in machinery, and managing the home farm for his mother. He was very successful in business and was engaged in milling, selling machinery, and farming until the spring of 1909, when he rented the mill property to his son, and removed to the homestead where he now resides with his mother. Mr. Johnson attributes his financial success to hard work, and close attention to business. He is an active, ardent Republican, and in the summer of 1909 was nominated for county commissioner on the first ballot and elected in September following by a handsome majority. Mr. Johnson is well-known as a reliable business man and a good citizen. He is a stockholder in the Myersville and Catoctin Railroad, and was one of the organizers of the Myersville Savings Bank. For some time he was one of the board of directors of the bank.

Charles W. Johnson was married to Amanda E., daughter of Enos and Mary E. (Fisher) Wiseman, whose father was a well-known farmer, residing near Ellerton, Md. Their children are: 1, Edwin L., a miller of Jackson district; 2, Carrie E., married David T. Gaver, a farmer of Howard County, Md.; 3, Annie F., married Seymore Summers, farmer, of Middletown District, Frederick County, Md.; 4, Nellie A., at home; 5, Mary E., at home; 6, Charles E., at home, and one who died in childhood. Mr. Johnson and his wife are members of St. John's Lutheran Church at Church Hill, where he has held office as deacon and as elder for a number of years. He is also assistant superintendent of the Sunday School.

THE LATE SAMUEL MILLER, retired farmer, son of Adam and Elizabeth (Baer) Miller, both deceased, was born on the old Miller homestead, near Bealsville, now Harmony, Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., April 20, 1809.

Mr. Miller's father, Adam Miller, who was of German descent, was one of the early settlers of Frederick County. He was born in 1770, and learned milling, but after his marriage he turned his attention to farming. Mr. Miller began farming on land belonging to his father-in-law, Philip Baer, situated one mile north of Bealsville. After Mr. Baer's death, he purchased the property which consisted of 400 acres of farm and timber land, and spent the remainder of his life in cultivating and improving his holding. He was a prosperous farmer and was highly esteemed as a citizen. Adam Miller was married to Elizabeth, daughter of Philip and Elizabeth Baer, who was born in Lancaster, Pa., April 9, 1782. Her father, Philip Baer, was born in Germany, May 1, 1747, and sailed for America May 18, 1765. He settled in Lancaster County, Pa., where he married. Some time after his marriage, Mr. Baer removed to Frederick County, Md., and became one of the early settlers of the northern part of the Middletown Valley. He purchased a large tract of land near Bealsville, and spent the rest of his life in clearing and cultivating his land. He died at his home in Frederick County, April 28, 1828. Adam and Elizabeth (Baer) Miller have three children: 1, John, born June 26, 1807, a farmer; 2, Samuel, a farmer, born April 20, 1809; 3, Adam, a farmer, deceased, born January 11, 1817. Adam Miller died at his home near Harmony, January 12, 1901.

Samuel Miller was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained at home assisting his parents. After the death of his parents, the farm was willed to him and his brother, Adam. The brothers were successful farmers and cultivated the land together for some years. Samuel Miller afterwards bought the property known as the old Peter Kemp farm, and named "Rockey Spring." This place, consisting of 272 acres of excellent farm land lies two miles northwest of Frederick on the Montevue turnpike. Here Mr. Miller passed the rest of his life. He improved the property in every respect, and made it one of the fine farms of the district. On this place the United Brethren Church held its first Conference, in 1800. Mr. Miller afterwards purchased from W. N. Martz, the adjoining farm of 52 acres. Mr. Miller was on of the prominent farmers of Frederick County, and ascribed his success in business to hard work and close attention to the needs of his land. He was an active Republican, and was highly esteemed as a citizen.

Samuel Miller was married to Sarah A. C., daughter of Jacob and Rachel (House) Easterday. Jacob Easterday, who was born April 3, 1794, was a descendant of one of the old German families of Frederick County. The children of Samuel and Sarah A. C. (Easterday) Miller are: 1, Rachael, died in infancy; Sarah A. E., married to O. J. Toms. Mrs. Toms has four childen: 1, Keefer S., purchasing agent for the Ox Fiber Brush Works, Frederick, Md.; 2, Lester A., chemist, Frederick City; 3, Raymond E., U. S. Civil Engineer, of Department of Public Roads, Washington, D. C.; 4, Jay W., Civil Engineer, with the Corrugated Bar Co., St. Louis, Mo. Samuel Miller and his family are stanch members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Frederick City. Samuel Miller died at "Rockey Spring" December 31, 1894, and is buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

John C. Carpenter, father of Peter J. Carpenter, a native of Lancaster County, Pa., removed, with his family, to Frederick County, Md., in 1854, and settled on a farm adjoining "Cherry Blossom Farm." Here he spent the remainder of his life, devoting himself to the cultivation of the homestead. John C. Carpenter was married to Margaret Davis, a native of Lancaster County, Pa. Their children are: 1, Andrew Jackson, deceased, 2, Mark C., married Rhuanna Staley, removed to Nebraska; 3, Mary (Mrs. Philip Zober), of Nebraska; 4, Annie E.; 5, Peter J.; 6, Martha (Mrs. Daniel Staley), of Ohio. Mr. Carpenter was an ardent Democrat. He and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church. He died at his home in Frederick County, in July, 1880, aged seventy-two; his widow died in 1896, aged seventy-six.

Peter J. Carpenter was three years old when his parents removed to Frederick County. At the age of six, he became a pupil in the Mount Carmel public school under Miss Betty Riggs, and continued his studies there, attending part of each year, until he was twenty-two. He was accustomed to hard work from boyhood, and remained on the homestead working with and for his father until 1880, when his father died. Mr. Carpenter afterwards cultivated the home farm for his mother until her death, when he purchased the homestead. He cultivated and improved the place until 1899, when he bought "Cherry Blossom farm," then the property of Phillip Hiteshew. His estate is situated on the Baltimore pike, five miles east of Frederick City, Md. Mr. Carpenter is a scientific farmer and has increased the value of his land by careful cultivation. He has built a silo, and has made many other improvements. He cast his first vote for Horace Greely, and believes that the country's return to Democracy is the only salvation for the masses.

Peter J. Carpenter was married, October 16, 1889, to Hattie V., daughter of B. Franklin and Sidney Ann (Sheetenhelm) Hall, of New Market district, Frederick County. Their children are: 1, Grover Nelson, b. August 3, 1890; 2, Mabel Floyd, b. October 25, 1891; 3, Margaret Ann, b. February 8, 1895; 4, Flora Elizabeth, b. February 25, 1896; 5, Clarence Stanley Farring, b. March 8 1898; 6, Franklin Buchanan, b. May 16, 1899; 7, Hattie Jane, b. January 13, 1902; 8, Maud Lillian, b. June 19, 1903; 9, John Markell, b. February 3, 1905; 10, Roger Ruley, b. December 19, 1906; 11, Mary Edna, b. June 12, 1910.

Mr. Carpenter is a member of Mount Carmel Methodist Protestant Church, in which he holds the offices of secretary and treasurer. He is also secretary of the Sunday School of which he became a member in boyhood. He is actively interested in the work of the school, and has for several years been its superintendent.

THOMAS C. FOX, farmer and merchant, of Foxville, Hauvers District, Frederick County, Md., son of George P. and Sophia (Bussard) Fox, was born on his father's farm, half a mile northeast of Foxville, July 19, 1841.

Mr. Fox's great-grandfather was born and educated in Germany. He came to America in early manhood, and was one of the early settlers of Pennsylvania, where he spent the remainder of his life. He married, and among his children was a son named George.

George Fox, grandfather of Thomas C. Fox, was a young man when he removed to Frederick County, Md., where he bought a tract of timber land situated in Hauvers District in the northwestern part of the county. He named his place "Foxes Ranges," and afterwards Foxville. He cleared a part of his land, erected substantial buildings, and began to cultivate the soil. He afterwards opened a store in which he did a good business. He was well and favorably known among the early settlers of Hauvers District. George Fox was married and among their children was a son named George P. Fox.

The late George P. Fox, father of Thomas C. Fox, was born on his father's farm near Foxville, Md., where his childhood and youth were spent. He received his education in the public schools of Hauvers District, and remained at home with his father until he married. After his marriage, Mr. Fox purchased a part of his father's land, and engaged in farming and felling timber. He put up a dwelling, a barn, all necessary outbuildings, and spent the rest of his life in cultivating and improving his homestead. His toil and care were rewarded by financial success, and the esteem of his fellow citizens. He owned large tracts of timber land in Hauvers District. For a number of years, Mr. Fox was the magistrate of Hauvers District, and he was also one of the first Judges of the district. George P. Fox was married to Sophia, daughter of John and Susan Bussard, whose father was well-known among the older citizens of Hauvers District. Their children are: 1, Margaret A., deceased, married to the late John M. Brown, of Washington County, Md.; 2, George H., deceased; 3, Ann M., deceased, married to the late Peter Hauver, a farmer of Hauvers District; 4, Sophia, widow of the late John O. Hays, of Wolfsville, Md.; 5, Maryetta, deceased, married to the late George Harbaugh; 6, Joseph J., deceased; 7, John P., a retired farmer of Hauvers District; 8, Thomas C., 9, Ella, married to Josiah Smith, a farmer of Catoctin District, Frederick County. Mr. Fox and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church in Foxville, in which he was an office-bearer for many years. He was one of the most active workers in the church, and contributed liberally to the fund for the erection of the church edifice in Foxville. He and his wife are buried in the cemetery of the Lutheran Church in Foxville.

Thomas C. Fox was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained with his father on the homestead until he married. After his marriage, Mr. Fox bought a small farm near Foxville, on which he made many improvements. In connection with farming, he erected a fine store for the sale of general merchandise. Industry and constant attention to his business, have made him successful as a farmer and as a merchant. He carries a well chosen stock, and has a large trade. Mr. Fox afterwards purchased a fertile farm of 200 acres, known as the old Hauver Tavern. He remodeled the dwelling, built a large bank barn, all necessary buildings, and made it one of the desirable farms of the district. He also owns 150 acres of valuable timber land near Foxville. Mr. Fox is a Democrat, and was for a number of years the leader of his party. He is highly esteemed as a successful business man, and as a good citizen. He is one of the directors of the Citizen's Savings Bank, of Thurmont.

Thomas C. Fox was married to Ruth A., daughter of Jacob and Eliza (Pryor) Buhrman, whose father was a merchant of Foxville. Of their five children, four reached adult age: 1, Eliza M., married to Isaac Grumling, a merchant of Highfield, Washington County, Md.; 2, Estella E., married to Alvey Brandenburg, farmer and fruit raiser, of Foxville; 3, Irving A., a farmer of Hauvers District, and owner of his grandfather's homestead; 4, Gazella G., married to George O. Poffenberger, school teacher, of Foxville. Mrs. Fox died September 6, 1892, and is buried at Foxville. Eight years after the death of his first wife, Mr. Fox was married to Clara E., daughter of George and Sarah A. Poffenberger, of Jackson District, Frederick County. They have no children.

JOHN T. BEST, JR., who is engaged in contracting and agriculture, and resides adjacent to Frederick City, on his fine farm, was born on a farm south of that place, March 7, 1874. He is a son of the late John T. and Joanna (Dorsey) Best.

David Best, the grandfather of John T. Best, Jr., was a native of Pennsylvania and passed his early life there, coming to Frederick County while yet a young man. His father was a native of Germany, who settled in the Keystone State in the eighteenth century and there spent the rest of his days, being buried near Littlestown, Adams County. Daniel Best farmed for twenty-six years upon one of Colonel Charles E. Trail's tracts of land, but afterwards owned a farm near Lewistown, in Frederick County. He retired from business about sixteen years prior to his death, which occurred when he was in his seventy-seventh year. He was buried at Mount Olivet Cemetery in Frederick. He was an influential member of the Reformed Church of Frederick, and in political affairs he was a Democrat. Mr. Best was married to Mary Lantz, of Carroll County, Md. She lived near Uniontown, her father being a well-to-do farmer of that region. She died at the age of sixty-eight years. This marriage had issue of four children: William H., was a farmer of Frederick County; Simon David, was first engaged in farming in his native county and then embarked in business in Washington, D. C.; Elizabeth Ann, who never married, died aged sixty years; and John T.

John T. Best, son of David and Mary (Lantz) Best, was born on a farm in Lewistown District, Frederick County, April 9, 1839, and died on his farm south of Frederick City in 1900. He grew to manhood on his father's farm and attended the small district schoolhouse to gain his elementary knowledge, later completing his education in Frederick City College. He then took charge of a farm near Monocacy Junction. This place was one of the farms belonging to Colonel C. E. Trail, and was one of the finest homesteads in the county. Here he continued to dwell for a quarter of a century, and such perfect confidence was felt by Colonel Trail in the integrity of his tenant that for years at a time he did not visit his property. He then branched out on his own account. In his business career Mr. Best met with some reverses, though he was usually successful in his undertakings. The first year of his experience as an independent farmer he had his barn and his fine and abundant crop of grain, hay, etc., tools and implements burned by the soldiers. He removed to the home where he died, south of Frederick, in 1888. There he raised two crops a year on much of the land, and kept over forty cows, besides having many young stock and fine horses. For over forty years, he carried on a flourishing dairy business, which was a source of much revenue to him. This tract adjacent to Frederick was a beautiful homestead. The elegant mansion which Mr. Best occupied is finely located on a prominence commanding an excellent view of the surrounding country. This magnificent modern home was erected at a cost of $17,000, and is provided with all conveniences. Mr. Best was a man of cultivated tastes and this characteristic displayed itself in the furnishings of his home. Mr. Best was long recognized as one of the representative agriculturists of Frederick County. He served as supervisor of roads in his district, and filled every official position save that of treasurer in the Frederick County Agricultural Society. For over thirty years he never missed a day in attending the county fair while it was in session. He held membership in the Reformed Church. His death caused deep regret in the community in which he made his home.

Mr. Best was twice married. He was married first in 1864 to Joanna Dorsey, daughter of William B. Dorsey, who was a wealthy farmer of Frederick County. There were six sons born of this union: Charles E. T., lives in New York City; William H., is a minister in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and lives in Baltimore, Md.; John T., Jr.; Oliver D., was killed in 1909; Harry H. J., lives in Frederick; Frank Lawrence, died young. After the death of his first wife, Mr. Best was married to Emily C. Ford, daughter of James Edward Ford, a railroad man.

John T. Best, Jr., son of John T. and Joanna (Dorsey) Best, was reared on the home farm. He procured his education in the public schools and the Frederick City College. He chose farming for his life's work, and has since been engaged in that occupation. Mr. Best purchased his present home in 1906 at a cost of $6,900. This place is adjacent to the city of Frederick on the Frederick and Woodsboro pike. Mr. Best is well known and is highly thought of by all who know him.

Politically, Mr. Best votes the Democratic ticket. He is a member of Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, of Fredonia Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, and of the Frederick County Agricultural Society. He is affiliated with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of Frederick City. Mr. Best is unmarried.

GEORGE W. BILLMYER, cashier of the People's National Bank, of Brunswick, Frederick County, Md., and one of that town's leading citizens, was born near Shepherdstown, West Va., March 10, 1865. He is a son of David and Ellen (Spong) Billmyer.

The ancestors of the Billmyer family were among the earliest settlers of Boonsboro, Md. David Billmyer was a native of Virginia, where he was born in 1811, and he died in Shepherdstown, West Va., in 1897. Early in life he was a merchant, and afterwards a grain dealer. For many years he was president of the Jefferson Savings Bank, of Shepherdstown, West Va., one of the best known and soundest financial institutions in that part of the State. For sixty years, Mr. Billmyer was one of the town's representative citizens and most prominent business men. As a financier he had an enviable reputation and he managed the affairs of the bank with great ability. In politics he was a supporter of the Republican party. In religion he was a member of the Episcopal Church. Mr. Billmyer was twice married. His first wife, Eliza Catherine Shepherd, to whom he was wedded about 1841, died in 1847. By this union there were two children, who died young. In 1849 Mr. Billmyer was married to Ellen Spong, who died July 27th, 1910, in Shepherdstown. They were the parents of ten children, seven of whom grew to maturity: William H., a lumber dealer and prominent citizen of Charlottesville, Va.; Edward E., a farmer of Jefferson County, West Va.; Frank L., also follows farming in Jefferson County; Jefferson Davis, engaged in the baking business at Shepherdstown, West Va.; George Waters; John R., engaged in mining in Wyoming; and Ellen B., the wife of R. C. Grove, Jr., a resident of Shepherdstown, W. Va.

George Waters Billmyer, son of David and Ellen (Spong) Billmyer, was reared in Shepherdstown, West Va., and received his education entirely in private schools. He was a student at Shepherd College, Shepherdstown, the Episcopal High School, at Alexandria, Va., and Georgetown University. Upon the completion of his education, he engaged in mercantile pursuits at Shepherdstown, West Va., until 1900. At that time he became deputy sheriff under his brother, J. D. Billmyer, sheriff of Jefferson County, West Va. This position he filled until 1905, when he operated a shirt factory in Shepherdstown for one year. He was then active in aiding in the organization of the Farmers Bank of Shepherdstown and in May, 1906, was made cashier. This position he retained, until he resigned to become the cashier of the People's National Bank of Brunswick on January 6, 1908. This office he has since filled, discharging his duties in a manner that shows great ability in financial lines. He is a thorough business man and is one of Brunswick's prominent and most highly respected citizens.

Mr. Billmyer was married in 1898 to Elise Hamtramck Shepherd, daughter of James H. and Florence (Hamtramck) Shepherd. They are the parents of five children: George Waters, Jr., James Shepherd, Elise Selby, David and Francis Hamtramck.

In politics, Mr. Billmyer is an adherent and supporter of the Democratic party. Fraternally, he is a member of Frederick City Lodge, No. 684, B. P. O. E. In religion, he is a member of the Episcopal Church.

FREDERICK CLAYTON MILLER, a farmer of Jefferson District, is the second son of Frederick and Lydia (Dorner) Miller, and was born May 9, 1854, on what is now the Emory Remsberg farm, in Jefferson District. His father occupied that farm at the time, as a renter.

During his youth, the family resided on different farms of this section, and he received his education in the public schools of Jefferson District. He was nearly seventeen years of age whien his father bought the Lynch farm—Mahogany Heights—and removed there with his family. When he was twenty-one, Frederick Clayton Miller left home, and for two years worked in the Mountain Flour Mill, in this district; after which, he returned home, and remained at the homestead until his marriage. After that event, he and his wife remained there for two years, and then, in connection with his brother Charles W., Mr. Miller bought the home farm, and cultivated it as partners for three years. Frederick C. Miller then sold his share to his brother, and removed to his present residence, a farm which he bought from his father-in-law the year 1902.

Frederick Clayton Miller was married, October 12th, 1880, to Miss Julia, daughter of the late Philip Sheffer; both are members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church. Their children are: 1, Daisy (Mrs. Roy Brubaker), who has two children, Frederick and Paul; 2, Alice V., at home; 3, Martin Matthias, deceased. Mr. Miller is a stanch Democrat; in 1905, he was a candidate for the Maryland House of Delegates.

WILLIAM S. RAMSBURG, an agriculturist, is a man who stands high in the estimation of the community in which he lives. He was born June 26, 1860, and is a son of Urias D. and Ann S. (Staley) Ramsburg, of Frederick, now Tuscarora District.

The first of the Ramsburg family in this country came here from Germany. The Ramsburgs were first located in Pennsylvania but afterwards removed to Maryland, settling near Charlesville, Frederick County, of which locality they were pioneer settlers. A member of the third generation of the family was Frederick Ramsburg. He was married to Lydia A. Snook. They were the parents of Urias D. Ramsburg.

Urias D. Ramsburg, son of Frederick and Lydia A. (Snook) Ramsburg, was born April 27, 1825, and died September 1, 1903. In the common schools of Frederick District he secured his education. He followed the vocation of a farmer all his life. Upon his father's death he was forced to give up his studies and assume charge of the home farm. This he managed for his mother until 1857, when he purchased the place and began farming for himself. The present owner of this tract of 140 acres is Marshall Zimmerman. It is situated about five and a-half miles northwest of Frederick, near Charlesville, in Tuscarora District. Mr. Ramsburg some time later bought a farm of 192 acres near Utica Mills, which he improved with a new house and barn. This place is now in the possession of his son, William S. Ramsburg. Mr. Ramsburg was thoroughly acquainted with all phases of agriculture and was a very successful farmer. Politically, he adhered to the Democratic principles. He was an ardent worker in church circles. He was a member of the Reformed congregation at Bethel, in which he held the offices of deacon and elder for a number of years and was also superintendent of the Sunday School. He was also very active as a member of the building committee which erected the first church edifice at Charlesville, now known as Zions. Mr. Ramsburg was married to Ann S. Staley, daughter of Peter S. and Margaret E. (Albaugh) Staley. They were the parents of the following children: Josiah A., of Frederick City; Frederick P., deceased; William S.; Florence V., the wife of Ezra L. Kemp, of Frederick City; Alva S., of Poplar Springs, Howard County, Md.; Calvin A., deceased; Elmer K., a farmer near Utica.

William S. Ramsburg, son of Urias D. and Ann S. (Staley) Ramsburg, was educated in the school at Bethel. He was raised on his father's farm, and here he lived until he was twenty-two years old. He then cultivated one of his father's farms, containing 192 acres, for a period of ten years, at the end of which time he secured the place. This tract he still owns. It lies about nine miles north of Frederick on the road leading from Hansonville to Creagerstown, about one mile east of Utica, in Lewistown district, and is well improved with a two-story dwelling and fine bank barn. This farm produces very excellent crops of wheat, hay and corn, and is said to be one of the best tracts in that section. Mr. Ramsburg is a wide awake and progressive agriculturist and his success is well deserved.

In politics, he gives his support to the Democracy. Religiously, he is connected with the Evangelical Reformed Church at Utica, where for a number of years he has acted as deacon.

On February 23, 1882, at Charlesville, Frederick County, Mr. Ramsburg was married by Rev. S. A. Hedges to Clara A. J. Stup, daughter of John J. and Ann S. (Angleberger) Stup, granddaughter of Joseph and Elizabeth B. (Martz) Angleberger, and a great-granddaughter of Major George Martz. There were six children by this union: Ira C., graduated from Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., 1910, now a student of a New York Law School; Mamie J., deceased; Ava M.; Alta I.; Merhl H.; Erma E.

CAPTAIN DANIEL RINEHART, deceased, of "Marble Knoll," Johnsville District, Frederick County, Md., son of Israel and Mary (Snader) Rinehart, was born on the Rinehart homestead, two miles from U. B. South, Carroll County, Md., February 23, 1823.

Daniel Rinehart was the second of seven sons born to his parents. He was educated in the country schools and in select schools, under good teachers. His father believed that every man should learn a trade, and made Daniel a plasterer. However his sons never worked at their trades, but three of them gave all their attention to the cultivation of the soil. Mr. Rinehart was very unassuming, but brave and patriotic. He grew up on the home farm which lay partly in Carroll and partly in Frederick County. In 1862 he recruited and organized a company in the lower part of Frederick County, and was made captain of the company. Company F, Captain Rinehart, was in the second division, of the fifth army corps, Seventh Regiment Maryland Volunteer Infantry, under Colonel Phelps. Captain Rinehart was with his company in the battles of the Weldon Railroad, Laurel Hill, Spottsylvania, Cold Harbor, and the Wilderness. Soon after the last battle, Captain Rinehart had a severe attack of malaria and, after treatment in the hospital, was honorably discharged, October, 1864, three months before his term of three years had expired. He returned to Frederick County, and, having partially recovered his health, on April 1, 1865, again took charge of his farm, "Marble Knoll," where he spent the remainder of his life. Captain Rinehart was an intelligent farmer, and was honored and esteemed in the community. He was a life-long Republican.

Captain Daniel Rinehart was married to Margaret, daughter of Jacob W. Hyder, of Johnsville District, Frederick County, Md. Their children are: 1, Mary (Mrs. Willis R. Zumbrum); 2, Olivia Student of Art in Maryland Institute, Art Student's League, N. Y., and Juliens Atelier, Paris, France; later a successful teacher of Art in Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md.; teacher of art in a college in Virginia; 3, Florence Jennie (Mrs. John D. Engle, died in Carroll County, Md.; 4, Joseph P., of Iowa; 5, Thomas M., journalist, resides in Texas. Mrs. Rinehart died in May, 1860. In March, 1865, Captain Rinehart was married to Rebecca L., daughter of Edward O. and Sarah (Fries) Norris. They have two children: 1, Lucy N., died aged twenty-eight; 2, Grace L., inherited great talent for painting and sculpture, and won the gold medal in the art class of 1895, in Western Maryland College. For the last nine years, she has been teaching art and some other branches. Captain Rinehart died at "Marble Knoll," in 1886, and is buried in the cemetery at Beaver Dam.

RENO S. HARP, according to the Pennsylvania Archives, Second series, Vol XVII, is either a descendant of Daniel Harp, who came to this country from Rotterdam in a ship called "Molly," in 1707, and settled in Berks County, Pennsylvania, or he is a descendant of John Michael Harp or Michael Harp, who came to this country from Rotterdam at the age of 30 and 27, respectively, in 1741, in a ship called "Thackleberry," both of whom settled in Berks County, Pennsylvania.

John Michael Harp took the oath of allegiance at the age of 40, and Michael Harp took the oath of allegiance at the age of 37, and spelled his name "Herb." John Michael Harp spelled his name "Harp," which is correct. Jacob Harp who settled in Germantown, Ohio, more than a hundred years ago claimed that all the Harps were from one family. They were from French descent, and in the sixteenth century settled along the Rhine, and during the reign of Louis XIV and XV, when the Thirty Years War was on, they were scattered all over Europe. They were French Protestants. Some claim they were Huguenots, but this is not supported by history. Palatines is proper. Tradition says that some of the Harps were Scotch and some were English. That branch of the Harp family which settled in what is now known as Carroll, Anne Arundel and Montgomery Counties, and in Baltimore City and throughout the South, some of whom served in the Revolutionary war, were of English descent. The Harps from Scotland, through the aid of Queen Anne, settled in Maryland, Virginia and the South. There can be but little doubt that Reno S. Harp is a descendant of Daniel Harp.

John Harp and two brothers left Berks County, whose ancestors were either Daniel Harp, Michael Harp or John Michael Harp, and John Harp settled in the locality of what is known as Wolfsville, Frederick County, in 1760, and later he moved to Graceham, Frederick County, where he died at the age of 80 years, and was buried at Rocky Hill, near Woodsboro, Frederick County, Maryland, in 1795. His estate was settled up by Jacob and George Harp, his sons, and after his debts were paid he left 139 pounds. One brother drowned crossing the Susquehanna River at Harrisburg, Pa., and the other brother went to Kentucky. The enrollment of 1790 gave John Harp seven children, three sons and four daughters. One son, whose name is not known, went south. The daughters were Mary, Maria, Hannah and Susannah. Hannah married Abraham Toms, a son of John Toms, the first progenitor of all the Toms who settled in this country in Middletown Valley in 1830, and they were of English descent. Susan married Leonard Weddle, progenitor of all the Weddles. Maria married Lloyd Thompson. Mary married Michael Palmer, a Revolutionary soldier, who first settled at Mt. Alto, Pa. His sons were Jacob and George Harp. Jacob Harp was born 1777; died 1833, and was buried in the United Brethren Cemetery at Thurmont, Frederick County. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Peter Grossnickle. They had ten children, all daughters. It was the custom of the Germans to name their sons after their fathers for three generations.

George Harp, the oldest son of John Harp, was born 1765, died March 5, 1844, and was buried at St. John's Cemetery, near Myersville, Frederick County. He moved from Graceham, Frederick County, and settled about two miles east of Myersville, near the place now owned by the heirs of the late Henry Bittle. He was a shoemaker by trade and was very poor. There was no flooring in the house, and he used a barrel with a board across the top for a table. His children were born in the house still standing on the farm now owned by the heirs of the late Henry Bittle. In 1818 he purchased the property, where his father first settled, near Wolfsville, from John Raymer, consisting of six and one-half acres for $458.00, and this tract was called "Three Brothers." He also later purchased the adjoining tract, called "Five to One," containing 172 acres. On this tract he built a large one and-a-half-story house, with very large rooms, in which he died. In 1830 he bought the old St. John's Lutheran Church at Church Hill, Frederick County, and used the logs in building the house where now resides the widow of the late Henry Gaver. He was a money lender and was regarded as the bank of that section for many miles around for a number of years. He was a successful financier and extremely economical. In religious belief he was a German Reformed, but before he died united with the United Brethren Church. In some respects he and his father were in advance of the nation. They were opposed to slavery. They never distilled liquor like most of their neighbors, and never gave it as a beverage in the family, as was customary in those days. Grain made into liquor could be taken into Baltimore on horseback with less expense was the reason given by many in that day who distilled liquor. John Harp, his father with some few of his neighbors, welcomed George Washington at Hagerstown on his way from Harrisburg during the "Whiskey War," and he loyally supported George Washington's administration. He married Catharine Toms, a daughter of William Toms, the third, of English descent. He was a German and could not read English, and his wife was English and could not read German. He left the following children: John, Daniel, Jacob, George, Susannah, Catharine and Hannah Harp.

John Harp, who was the oldest son of George Harp, is the grandfather of Reno S. Harp, and was born 1798, near Myersville, Frederick County, in the house now owned by the heirs of the late Henry Bittle. He died March 3, 1877, and is buried along side of his wife in the United Brethren Cemetery at Myersville. His wife died in 1857. His wife's name was Elizabeth Doub, daughter of Jacob Doub, the fourth, whose ancestors were the first settlers in Western Maryland in about 1712. They came from Germany, were Huguenots and of French descent. They first settled along the Delaware, and from there they went to Cecil County, and later a colony from this county settled near Myersville, Frederick County, and they called the place "Jerusalem." Jacob Doub, the first, was one of this colony and he was born in the Sixteenth century.

John Harp settled near Myersville about 1833 and owned most of the land upon which Myersville is now built. The United Brethren Church and the Myersville Savings Bank and all the land North and East of this bank property was owned by John Harp in his lifetime. The old Harp homestead known as the "John Toms Plantation," which is now owned by Cyrus F. Flook and wife; the farm now owned by Charles C.; George D., and Mary Eldridge; the farm now owned by John P. Flook; the house in which John Harp died, now owned by Alvey J. Horine, and the farm near Beaver Creek, Washington County, now owned by Calvin Harp, were all numbered among his possessions. He was one of the organizers of the United Brethren Church at Myersville, and all his life he was a devout Christian gentleman. He, like all the Harps, was a Whig until the organization of the Republican party, and he was a stanch Republican all his life. He was a man of courage, true to his convictions, quite economical, yet liberal to all benevolent purposes. He was a successful farmer and good business man. He settled many large estates, handled large sums of trust money, and acted as guardian for a number of people. In all his transactions with the Courts, and those whom he represented, he was well known for his honesty, integrity and business tact. He left the following children: Joshua, Lydia, Caroline, John, Daniel V., Elizabeth and Mary A. Harp.

Daniel V. Harp, a son of John Harp and the father of Reno S. Harp, is a resident of Myersville, where he has lived all his life, and is highly respected. He was born March 30, 1835, and spent his active life following the occupation of a farmer. He was one of the first advocates of railroad and other improvements in his locality. For the past fifty years he has been an enthusiastic and strict adherent of the Republican party. For many years he has been one of the leading and consistent members of the United Brethren Church of Myersville and always liberal to all benevolent purposes. He was the first active advocate of the Frederick and Middletown and the Middletown and Myersville Electric railroads. He was the leader of the singing of the largest audiences ever assembled in Western Maryland, at Keedysville, Washington County, Camp Meetings, held in 1871 and 1872. He married Lugenia Frances Sheffer, the only daughter of Jonas Sheffer, a prominent farmer and benevolent Christian gentleman of Middletown District. She was born in 1844, and died in June, 1896. She was a sweet and devout Christian woman. They were the parents of five children, four of whom survive: Clara E., the wife of Elmer A. Young, a farmer of Jackson District, a member of the board of directors of the Myersville Savings Bank; Reno S., of whom presently; Markwood D., of Frederick, who was Deputy Register of Wills under William B. Cutshall, and is now Clerk to the Board of County Commissioners for Frederick County; and Jennie M., the wife of John H. Horine, who resides in Myersville.

Emma Victor Harp, a deceased child, was born on Saturday morning, September the 6, 1862, in the home of Jonas Sheffer, her grandfather, at the base of South Mountain, and the same day was moved with her mother one mile through the picket lines of the Confederate forces to the home of Daniel Sheffer. The following day one shell penetrated both brick walls of the house. It severed a large peach tree, and then exploded in the garden. Another shell exploded in the parlor of the house. In this house of Daniel Sheffer many soldiers' wounds were dressed during the battle of South Mountain, among whom was General Hatch. While his wound was being dressed on the first floor of the house, the mother with her infant was being cared for on the second floor. It was at this house that Major William McKinley was given his breakfast by grandmother Sheffer, together with many of the Union soldiers, on their way to Antietam. General Hayes was wounded a short distance from this house, and was taken to Middletown. General Reno was killed within two miles of the Sheffer home, after whom Reno S. Harp was named. However he was born six years later.

Reno S. Harp was born October 3, 1866, on the old Harp homestead, near Myersville, known as "John Toms' Plantation." He attended public school during the winter months only. The school house was known as "Frog Holler," and was situated about one mile from the Harp homestead, about a quarter of a mile from Myersville. It was built of logs with plenty of room between them for the snow to sift in upon the books of the pupils. There was but little studying done, but plenty of time was devoted to physical encounters with the teacher. About once a week the chimney disappeared from this log cabin, and a rough house followed between the teacher and his scholars. He assisted in the farm work during the winter months, and until he was twenty-four years of age he worked on the farm. Everything raised on the farm he hauled to the Frederick market, a distance of thirteen miles, and upon the return trip he drove the team hauling either lime or fertilizer. Fruit grew in abundance on this farm and it was his pleasure to deliver it, either in its original state or as cider or vinegar over the streets of Frederick. He attended the Middletown High School for two years, walking a distance of six miles most of the scholastic year, morning and evening. Later he entered Lebanon Valley College, Annville, Pa., from which institution he was graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1889. Three years later he received the degree of Master of Arts from the same institution. He then returned to his father's farm near Myersville, where he worked for one year, and at night read law under the direction of the Hon. Milton G. Urner, of Frederick.

In 1890, he went to Washington, D. C., to accept a clerkship in the United States Census office, where he remained one year. While in Washington he continued his law studies at night. In 1891, he returned to Myersville, and engaged in journalism, establishing the "Frederick County Guide," a weekly newspaper of which he was editor for two years. In 1893, he sold this paper, in which he had a half interest, and purchased an interest in the "Frederick Examiner," the only Republican organ in Frederick County. This paper was established in 1809, and during the period of two and a-half years that he remained in charge of it, he increased its circulation from 600 to 2200. Through his energy and able editorial work it attained a greater prestige than it had possessed in many years. The files of this paper show that he was the first advocate of a system of Electric Railroads for Frederick County. In 1895, he sold his interest in the "Examiner," and in August of the same year was admitted to the Frederick County Bar. He has been since actively engaged in the practice of his profession in Frederick City, where he today enjoys a large and lucrative practice.

Besides the practice of his profession, Mr. Harp is interested in the Myersville Savings Bank, of which he is a director and attorney. This financial institution was organized January 1, 1899, through his efforts. He was the organizer and the most active promoter of the Myersville and Catoctin Railroad, running between Myersville and Middletown. He served eight years as trustee of Lebanon Valley College, and was a member of the Executive Committee of the college for four years.

Like his father, Mr. Harp has always been an active and strict adherent to the principles of the Republican party. During the session of the Maryland Legislature in 1898, he was journal clerk of the House. In 1899, he was nominated by the Republicans for State's Attorney of Frederick County, but was defeated with the rest of his ticket. He served as attorney to the Board of County Commissioners, 1903-07. In 1904, he was a delegate from the Sixth Congressional District to the Republican National Convention, held at Chicago in July, that nominated Theodore Roosevelt for President. He was a member of the Republican State Central Committee for eight years, and served as chairman of the Republican County Committee for three years. He has also served as a delegate to Congressional, State and County conventions for the past fifteen years. For some years he has been prominently mentioned as a candidate for Congress from the Sixth Congressional District, but he has always refused to acquiesce in the wishes of his many friends and earnest advocates for this honor.

Mr. Harp is also a prominent man in fraternal circles. He is a member of Mountain City Lodge No. 29, Knights of Pythias, and is at present one of the Supreme Representatives from Maryland to the Supreme Lodge. During his term as Grand Chancellor, there were 2,600 members admitted to the organization, the largest number ever admitted under any other Grand Chancellor in the State of Maryland in a single year. He is a member of Frederick Lodge, No. 684, B. P. O. E., Frederick; Jr. O. U. A. M. Council, No. 118; of Francis Scott Key Council, O. U. A. M.; of Chippewa Tribe, No. 19, Red Men; of the Heptasophs; of the Modern Woodmen; of the Maccabees, and of Frederick City Lodge, No. 100, I. O. O. F.

In religion Mr. Harp is an active member of the Centennial Memorial United Brethren Church of Frederick, in which he has served as trustee and secretary of its official board for a great many years. He has been Superintendent of the Sunday School and leader of the Church choir for eight years. It was through his efforts largely that this church was built in the year 1900. He is well known for his liberality toward all charitable purposes, and all his life has been an earnest advocate of every enterprise for the good of his city, county and State. He was married first, in April, 1895, to Annie E. Brightbill, only daughter of Samuel L. Brightbill, a wealthy and prominent citizen of Annville, Pa. She died March 10, 1896, upon a visit to her home, and is buried in the U. B. Cemetery at Annville, Pa. He was married secondly, November 22, 1904, to Bessie D. Zentz, daughter of Newton M. and Jennie Michael Zentz, of Frederick City, (see sketch of Newton M. Zentz in this work). By this marriage there are two children, Reno S. Harp, Jr., and Madaline V. Harp. He and his accomplished wife live in their own commodious home, opposite the Court Park, in which his law office is located.

THE LATE REV. THOMAS SCOTT BACON, D. D., who resided in Buckeystown, Md., son of the Rev. William Bacon and his wife, Abbie (Price) Bacon, was born in Saratoga, N. Y., in 1825.

Mr. Bacon's paternal grandfather, Captain David Bacon, served under General Selton of the Continental Army, during the Revolutionary War. He was a farmer of the state of New York, and was a descendant of some of the earliest settlers in the vicinity of Boston, Mass.

The Rev. William Bacon, father of Thomas Scott Bacon, was a most saintly man, whose power for good was far-reaching, and had a noticeable effect upon all who came under its influence. He was a life-long member of the Presbyterian Church, and was one of its most efficient pastors. For a few years, he had a charge in Philadelphia, Pa., but most of his life was spent in New York State, where he graduated from the Union Theological Seminary. The Rev. William Bacon was married to Abbie Price, whose only brother was a distinguished member of the New York bar. Their children are: 1, A. B., a lawyer and editor of note, a member of the Senate of New York, sympathized strongly with the South during the Civil War, died in New Orleans, La.; 2, the Rev. Henry M., a minister of the Presbyterian Church, served as a chaplain in the Union Army all through the Civil War; 3, ————, died in youth; 4, Thomas Scott; 5, Maria (Mrs. L. P. Brewster), of Oswego, N. Y. Mrs. Bacon died, aged fifty. The Rev. William Bacon died in 1862, aged sixty-eight. For some time previous to his death, he had retired from active ministerial work.

The childhood of the late Rev. T. S. Bacon was spent, mainly, in Philadelphia, where he received his elementary education. He matriculated at Williams College (the Alma Mater of General Garfield, Justice Field, and many other notable men) and was graduated at seventeen. He was, at the time of his death, the youngest surviving graduate of the college. Mr. Bacon studied law and was admitted to the bar in Boston, Mass. In 1848, he went to New Orleans, where he was, soon afterwards ordained a minister in the Episcopal Church by Bishop Polk. He was given a charge which he filled until the beginning of the Civil War when he returned to the north. After having been stationed in a pastorate in western Ohio, for a few years, he settled in St. Mary's County, Md., and later went to Oakland, on the crest of the Alleganies. For five years he was pastor of St. Paul's parish, in Frederick County, but since 1886 he had been practically retired. After a very busy and useful life devoted to the service of the Master, the Rev. Dr. Bacon retired to his beautiful home in Buckeystown, where he spent the remainder of his life. At last he gave himself up almost exclusively to study and research finding his chief pleasure in "seeking for the deep and hidden things of God." He had for a long time desired to devote himself to this field and was, by nature and experience, well calculated to lead others in the "paths of righteousness." His tastes were distinctly literary and he had already published several valuable additions to religious literature. The comprehensive and scholarly work of his first publication, "The Beginnings of Religion," shows great study and research, as well as unusual knowledge of the motives of the human heart which is always, in all times and lands, reaching out after God. That he might do justice to his subject, the author went to England, where he had access to the old manuscripts, inscriptions, etc., narrating the early efforts of the human race in expressing their ideas of the creator. The work was published in England. His next publication was entitled, "The Rule of God not the Rule of Law," and then came his great work, "The First and Great Commandment of God," which was published in New York. All of his publications were well received.

The Rev. Dr. Bacon was married, in 1856, to Miss Kelsoe, of Baltimore City, who died in 1882. His second wife was Sophia T., daughter of William and Anna (Brown) Graff, both deceased, whose parents were prominent in the southern part of the County. Mrs. Bacon is a granddaughter of the late Mathew and Elizabeth Frick Brown, editor of the Federal Gazette, the first daily newspaper of Baltimore City. He afterwards removed to Frederick County where he bought 1000 acres of land called "Montevino," situated eight miles south of Frederick, at what is known as Park Mills. He was one of the prominent business men of the county. The Rev. Thomas Scott Bacon, D. D., died at his home in Buckeystown, September 13, 1904, and is buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Mrs. Bacon resides in her beautiful home in Buckeystown.

THE LATE JOHN HENRY LAMPE, an enterprising and well-known business man of Frederick City, was a native of Brunswick, Germany, where he was born May 7, 1841. His education was secured in the parochial schools of his native place. In 1854 he, with his parents, Julius and Christine Lampe and family, came to America and located in Frederick, Md. Julius Lampe, the father, was born in Germany in 1801 and died in Frederick in 1881. Soon after he came to Frederick, Mr. Lampe began to learn the trade of painting, frescoeing and sign-writing. For a number of years he was employed by H. F. Debring, and in 1868, he went into business for himself. By strict attention to business, combined with much ability, he was most successful. He soon acquired a reputation for first class workmanship, and was a leader in his particular line in Frederick. He frescoed many churches, halls and prominent buildings in the community, state and even neighboring States. In recent years he was greatly assisted in his work by his son, Harry R. Lampe, who is an expert sign painter and decorator, and who has succeeded his father in business. Mr. Lampe stood high in business circles of Frederick County and was a highly respected citizen.

In the political affairs of the community, Mr. Lampe always took an active part. He was a lifelong Republican and served as an alderman and a member of the city council. He was always interested in fraternal organizations and was an officer and member of the Improved Order of Red Men since 1868. He was Great Sachem for the State and representative to the Great Council of the United States for a number of years. He was also a member of the Knights of Pythias. For a number of years he was vice-president of the Junior Steam Fire Engine Company of Frederick. He was a faithful member of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick City, and served in official capacities, having acted as elder and deacon.

Mr. Lampe was married in 1863 to Elizabeth M. Ross. They were the parents of six children: Lewis T., deceased, was a prominent minister in the Reformed Church; Henry R.; Allen R., of Frederick; J. Gerhard, lives in Baltimore; Frank B., also of Baltimore; Blanche, the wife of Jacob Erdman Cope, of Sellersville, Pa.

Mr. Lampe died at his residence, East Fifth street, April 3, 1910, after an illness of several months. His funeral took place April 6 from his late residence. Services were conducted by Rev. S. S. Miller and Rev. I. M. Motter. The full ritualistic honors of the I. O. R. M. were held at the grave, the great chiefs of the State officiating. Representatives from the Knights of Pythias, and many others attended the funeral. All the fire bells of the city were tolled during the funeral. Interment was made in Mt. Olivet Cemetery.

CORNELIUS A. STALEY, deceased, was born February 21, 1834, and died March 11, 1883. He was an honorable and highly esteemed man. His parents were Frederick and Elizabeth (Shaffer) Staley.

Mr. Staley was educated in the common schools of his day, and followed agricultural pursuits all of his life. He was married to Miss Main, and they began farming. She, however, died a short time later, leaving an infant child who only lived a short time. Mr. Staley then returned to his father's place, with whom he remained until the latter's death. He then cultivated the home farm until it was sold. Mr. Staley was to have fallen heir to the place, but the will was lost. He then purchased a tract of 86 acres of fertile land, on which his widow now resides. He increased the value of the property by the erection of a new two-story frame dwelling, repaired the barn and all other necessary outbuildings. He was meeting with success when he was taken ill and his death followed. Mr. Staley's second wife was Mary A. C. Measell, daughter of George and Margaret R. (Martz) Measell. Their were eight children by this marriage: 1, Amanda M., the wife of Edward Zimmerman, of Braddock District, Frederick County, Md.; 2, Carrie C., married to Clarence Holtz, resides in Frederick City; 3, Orsena P. A., who is the wife of Elmer B. Feaga, of Tuscarora District, Frederick County; 4, Hulda A., the wife of Uriah V. Feaga, of Tuscarora District; 5, Reverdy T. farming one of the home farms; 6, Effie M., deceased, was married to Spencer Stup, of the neighborhood of Charlesville; 7, Worthington C., engaged in mercantile business in Frederick City; 8, Marion J., living on the home farm. About twenty years after the death of her husband, Mrs. Staley received a 75-acre farm from her sister-in-law, who had also passed away. This property is situated about five miles west of Frederick on the Hamburg turnpike. Mrs. Staley managed these two farms in her possession until the spring of 1908, when she retired. Her son Reverdy is farming one of the properties, and her son Marion is now conducting the home place. Mrs. Staley is a woman of high character. The family is affiliated with the Evangelical Lutheran Church at Bethel.

MAHLON C. KEFAUVER, who is numbered among the prosperous and intelligent agriculturists of Braddock District, was born in Middletown Valley, Frederick County, March 7, 1841. He is a son of Henry and Maria (Biser) Kefauver.

Nicholas Kefauver, who was the American ancestor of the Kefauver family, was born in Germany. He emigrated to this country, and became an early settler near Middletown, in Frederick County, Md., in 1782. He was accompanied to America by a brother, who settled in Pennsylvania.

George Kefauver, son of Nicholas Kefauver, the emigrant, was the grandfather of Mahlon C. Kefauver. Mary Kefauver was his mother. He followed the vocation of a farmer, and passed his life in Middletown Valley. He held membership in the Reformed Church, and was noted for the strict integrity which marked all his transactions with his fellowmen. The name of his wife was Mary. They are both interred in the Reformed graveyard at Middletown, Frederick County. They were the parents of the following children: Daniel, was born in 1808, and died in 1876; Henry; John, for some time a flour inspector in Baltimore; Jonathan, a miller by trade, went to Ohio; Jacob, was a farmer; Elizabeth, who married Hanson Flook; Mary Ann, became the wife of Philip Coblentz (see sketch of George G. Coblentz); and Rebecca, married a Mr. Young, of Pennsylvania.

Henry Kefauver, father of Mahlon C. Kefauver, was born in Middletown Valley in 1810 and died in 1865. He followed agricultural pursuits. He was married to Maria Biser. They were the parents of the following children: Daniel, lives in Baltimore, Md.; Henry Milton; George H., of Linganore District, Frederick County; Mahlon Calvin; Sophia, the wife of Joseph Hedges, a farmer of Middletown district; Germanus, of Washington County, Md.; Thomas Theodore, deceased; William Emory, a milk dealer, of Frederick City; Eugene, deceased; and Mary Elizabeth, of Middletown district, has never married.

Mahlon C. Kefauver, son of Henry and Maria (Biser) Kefauver, secured instruction in the public schools of Middletown Valley. He remained with his father until he branched out as an agriculturist on his own account. He first cultivated the Rudy farm in Middletown, where he lived four years. In 1882, he removed to the Isaac Brunner farm in Frederick District, two miles west of Frederick City on the Shookstown pike. He farmed this tract on shares until the death of Mrs. Brunner, the widow of Isaac Brunner. Mrs. C. Thomas Kemp inherited the farm, and in March, 1909, Mr. Kefauver purchased it from her. It consists of 95 acres of fertile land. Mr. Kefauver has improved the place since buying it by the erection of a new bank barn and necessary outbuildings. There is also a dwelling house in first class condition on the place. Mr. Kefauver is a prosperous farmer, and is highly regarded in the community in which he lives. Politically, he adheres to the principles of the Republican party, and he was for a number of years a trustee of the Shookstown school.

Mr. Kefauver has been twice married. He was married first to Susan Remmell, daughter of John Remmell, of Harford County, Md. Of this union, there were two children: Harry J. and Oscar C., both of Frederick City. Mrs. Kefauver died in November, 1884, and is buried in the Reformed Cemetery at Middletown. In December, 1886, Mr. Kefauver was married to Annie Remmell, a sister of his former wife. They are the parents of one son: Curtis, who lives at Waynesboro, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Kefauver are members of Grace Reformed Church of Frederick. Mr. Kefauver formerly was connected with Christ Reformed Church, of Middletown, where he held the office of elder for a number of years.

REV. EDMUND RISHEL ESCHBACH, D. D., late pastor in charge of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick City, Md., was a native of Northumberland County, Pa., where he was born November 9, 1835. Died April 15, 1910. He was a son of David and Elizabeth B. (Rishel) Eschbach.

The American ancestor of the Eschbach family was John Eschbach, a native of the Palatinate, in Germany, where he was born September 15, 1747. He emigrated to this country as a young man, and settled in Bucks, now Lehigh County, Pa., where he followed the occupation of a farmer. He was married to Catharine Bush. She also was a native of Germany, where she was born in 1749. They were the parents of five sons.

Anthony Eschbach, son of John and Catharine (Bush) Eschbach, and grandfather of the Rev. Edmund R. Eschbach, was born in Pennsylvania, May 10, 1772. He followed the occupation of a farmer, and was accidentally killed by being thrown from a horse. He was married to Barbara Roemig, of Allentown, Pa.

David Eschbach, son of Anthony and Barbara (Roemig) Eschbach, and the father of the Rev. Edmund R. Eschbach, was born on the homestead of his father in Bucks County, Pa., October 27, 1802, and died February 15, 1879. His parents moved to Paradise Township, Northumberland County, Pa., when he was a few years old, and here he grew to manhood. He was one of the prominent citizens of the county wherein he lived, and was a man who was held in the highest esteem by all with whom he came in contact. The cause of education always found in him a sincere friend. Politically, he was an adherent of the Republican party. He was affiliated in religion with the Reformed Church, in which he was an active and consistent member and wherein he served in various official capacities. Mr. Eschbach was twice married. He was married October 14, 1824, to Elizabeth B. Rishel. She was born November 18, 1806, and died October 14, 1844. They were the parents of four children that grew to maturity; Edmund Rishel; Mary C., who married B. Schaffer, and resides in Kansas; Elizabeth B., who married William S. Clapp, of Milton, Pa., and David J., deceased. The name of Mr. Eschbach's second wife was Sarah. They were the parents of seven children, two of whom survive; Albert, a farmer, who resides on the old homestead in Pennsylvania, and Henry Clay, a physician of Albia, Ia.

Edmund Rishel Eschbach, son of David and Elizabeth B. (Rishel) Eschbach, was born on the old Eschbach homestead farm in Turbut township, Northumberland County, Pa., where he grew to manhood. Very early in life he manifested that fondness for study and literature that has since been one of his notable characteristics. His desire to enter the Christian ministry came to him while he was yet a mere lad, and the conviction that his duty lay in that direction became stronger as he grew to manhood. At the age of eighteen he commenced his studies, and was graduated from Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa., in 1859. He pursued his studies further at the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church at Mercersburg, Pa., and in the summer of 1861, he was licensed to preach. He was recommended by the faculty of the Mercersburg Seminary to be assistant pastor of the First Reformed Church of Baltimore City, Md. The minister in charge of that congregation, the Rev. Elias Heiner, D. D., was in failing health, and it was deemed advisable to relieve him of many of his duties. Mr. Eschbach, however, declined the position, and decided to locate in Somerset County, Pa.

Mr. Eschbach entered upon his first charge in Somerset County, Pa., in October, 1861, and that same month he was regularly ordained by a committee of the Westmoreland Classis of the Reformed Church. But a few months had elapsed ere he was again urgently pressed to become assistant to the Rev. Dr. Elias Heiner, and the end of his first year in the ministry he reluctantly yielded to the advice and wishes of his elders and went to Baltimore. From November 1, 1862, to October 20, 1863, Mr. Eschbach's duties became more responsible and arduous as Dr. Heiner's health rapidly declined, and on the last mentioned date he passed away. On January 1, 1864, Mr. Eschbach was chosen as his successor, and for over ten years he faithfuly ministered to the large congregation entrusted to his charge. He won the love and esteem of the parishioners, and it was to their great regret that he was induced to leave them in 1874 to become pastor of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick City, Md. It is needless to say that on the part of Mr. Eschbach his relations were severed with regret and as responding to a call of duty, and not of preference.

For thirty-eight years, the Rev. Dr. D. Zacharias had filled the pulpit of the Frederick Reformed Church, and after his death a division in the congregation arose, as the members could not agree upon his successor, and partisanship threatened to destroy forever all harmony. At last the name of Rev. Edmund R. Eschbach was presented to the congregation as a candidate, and he was elected. A very strong pressure was then brought to bear upon him, and, as previously stated, he accepted the position. It was well known that few could have done better to bring order out of chaos and made peace and harmony to reign once more supreme than Mr. Eschbach. His loving care of his new flock soon restored good feeling among them, and long since they have willingly surrendered themselves to his kind, yet firm guidance.

During Dr. Eschbach's long pastorate, numerous improvements were made, among which may be mentioned additions to the granite steps, the skylight in the dome reopened, a new pipe organ purchased, the steeple repaired, Trinity Chapel built, a new parsonage erected at a cost of $6,500, and new furnishings placed in the audience room, Sunday School and chapel. A monument was also erected to the memory of the former faithful pastor, Rev. Dr. Zacharias, and a second congregation organized and successfully established.

In general work of the denomination, Dr. Eschbach had been prominent for over thirty-five years. For that length of time he was chosen continuously a member of the Board of Home Missions by his Synod, and during nine years of this time he filled the office of Secretary to the board, and for the succeeding nine years has been its President. He was one of the Board of Visitors of the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church at Lancaster, Pa., and for five years had been its President. He was an officer of the society that had in charge the welfare of disabled ministers and the widows of deceased ministers of the church. For more than a quarter of a century he was chosen to represent the Maryland Classis in the General Synod, the highest judiciary of the church. In 1888, he was honored by being sent as a delegate to the General Conference of the Church at London, Eng., and was again called upon to go as a delegate to the General Convention, held at Toronto, Can., in 1892, where he delivered an able address upon "The Unemployed Resources of the Church." In 1893, he was the representative of his denomination in the World's Parliament of Religions in Chicago, Ill., and gave a scholarly address.

Dr. Eschbach was president of the board of directors of the Woman's College of Frederick, and since 1883 had served as a trustee of Franklin and Marshall College. He was also prominent in the Alumni Association of his alma mater. He was elected its corresponding secretary in 1863, one of its vice-presidents in 1867, and served as its president from 1879 to 1882. At the annual reunion, held June 18, 1890, he was the orator of the occasion, his subject being "The Significance of the Ideal in Life." Dr. Eschbach was also elected president of the Southern Alumni Association of Franklin and Marshall College, 1894. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was confererd upon him June 18, 1878, by Heidelberg College, Tiffin, O.

Fraternally, Dr. Eschbach was a Mason. He joined, in 1868, the Doric Lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Baltimore, Md. He was one of the prominent members of the Masonic order in the State, having attained the thirty-second degree. In 1869, he became a Knight Templar, and for four years, or until 1873, was Grand Chaplain of the Grand Chapter of Maryland, and in 1872 and 1873 was Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge. During his college days, Dr. Eschbach was a member of the Chi Phi fraternity, and of the Goethean Literary Society.

Dr. Edmund R. Eschbach was married November 9, 1864, to Mary Susan Doll, daughter and Daniel and Catherine (Wolf) Doll, of Martinsburg, West Va. Daniel Doll was one of the prominent citizens of Martinsburg, and the Wolfs were of Revolutionary War fame. Dr. and Mrs. Eschbach are the parents of two daughters, 1, Catherine E., and 2, Mary S., the former of whom is the wife of A. Kemp Keefer, of Frederick.

(For sketch of Dr. Eschbach's pastorate in Frederick, see Historic narrative of Evangelical Reformed Church).

ELMER C. KEFAUVER, M. D., a practicing physician of Thurmont, Md., who ranks high in the medical profession, was born on the old Kefauver homestead, in Middletown district, Frederick County, Md., March 18, 1868. He is a son of Richard C. and Laura (Toms) Kefauver.

The Kefauver family is one of the early settled families of Maryland, and is descended from Nicholas Kefauver, a native of France, who located very early in Middletown Valley, Frederick County. For a full history of the ancestors of Dr. Elmer C. Kefauver, see the sketch of his father, Richard C. Kefauver, in this volume.

Richard C. Kefauver, son of Daniel and Catharine (Bechtel) Kefauver, was born on the old homestead of the family in Middletown Valley, Frederick County, Md., April 15, 1843, where he still resides, being highly respected in the community. He was married to Laura V. Toms, daughter of Samuel and Margaret (Floyd) Toms, of Middletown, who were members of one of the old and highly esteemed families of the district (see sketch of Edward A. Toms). They were the parents of twelve children, seven of whom grew to maturity: Elmer C.; Daniel C., a farmer of Middletown District, who married Eva Coblentz, and they have one daughter, Eva; Albert, unmarried, employed on the Frederick & Interurban Electric Railway; Noah E., a dentist of Frederick City, married Lucretia Michael; Newton R., married Lillie Crouse, and has two children, Calvin and Lauretta; Mary V., married Emory L. Coblentz, a prominent attorney-at-law of Frederick County (see his sketch), and Julia O., at home.

Elmer C. Kefauver, son of Richard C. and Laura V. (Toms) Kefauver, was reared on the old homestead. His early life was passed in acquiring such an education as was afforded by the public schools of his native place, as well as assisting in the management of his father's agricultural interests. After he had acquired a common school education, he entered the old Middletown Academy, at that time under Prof. William L. Avis, one of the leading educators of the time, where he prepared for a course in Franklin and Marshall College, at Lancaster, Pa. On the completion of his collegiate course, he began the study of medicine under the tuition of Dr. J. E. Beatty, of Middletown. He later entered the Medical Department of the University of Maryland, from which institution he was graduated with the degree of M. D. in 1891. During the latter year of his course he gained valuable experience in his profession while serving as clinical assistant of the hospital connected with the University. Upon his graduation from medical college, he began the practice of his profession at Thurmont, Md., where he has ever since remained. His skill soon won for him a large practice, and he numbers among his clients many of the leading citizens of that section. By hard work and close application, he has won high rank in the exacting profession to which he has devoted himself, and he is highly esteemed by every one.

Politically, Dr. Kefauver is a Republican. Fraternally, he is a member of Acacia Lodge, No. 155, A. F and A. M.; of the Junior Order American Mechanics; of the Royal Arcanum, and of the Order of Odd Fellows. He is a member of the Frederick County Medical Society, the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland, and the Western Maryland Association of Railway Surgeons. He is also a member of the medical staff of the Frederick City Hospital. He is identified with the Citizens' Savings Bank of Thurmont as a stockholder and director. He, as is his wife, is a member of the Reformed Church, in which he has served as an elder for some years.

Dr. Kefauver was married September 27, 1892, to Mary A. Atlee, daughter of Edwin Atlee, a prominent financier of Loudoun County, Va. At the time of her marriage Miss Atlee was a resident of Hagerstown. To them has been born one child, a daughter, Lillian S.

GEORGE W. CRUM, one of the best known and most prominent citizens and the present treasurer of Frederick County, Md., is a native of Jefferson district, Frederick County, where he was born February 15, 1857. He is a son of Dr. George W. and Susan S. (Remsberg) Crum.

Henry Crum, the grandfather of George W. Crum, was a native of Virginia, where he was born in 1776, and died in Frederick County, Md., in 1846. While yet a young man, he came to Frederick County, and purchased in 1793 a valuable farm in Jefferson district, which is now in the possession of his grandson, George W. Crum. He was married to Barbara Hoffman.

George W. Crum, son of Henry and Barbara (Hoffman) Crum, was born on his father's farm near the village of Jefferson, Frederick County, and died in Jefferson, March 15, 1896. He received his elementary education in the public schools of Frederick County and at the celebrated old Frederick City College. He then took up the study of medicine, and was graduated from the Medical Department of the University of Maryland in 1832. He returned to his old home in Jefferson district, and entered upon the practice of his profession. He continued in active practice up to the time of his death, a period of sixty-four years, and was the oldest practicing physician in western Maryland. He attained distinction as one of the best known and most successful physicians in that part of the state. His exceptional skill attracted to his support an extended and important practice, and few men won higher or more enviable repute in the exacting field to which he devoted himself. Dr. Crum was a man of vigorous mentality and marked intellectual attainments, and remained an untiring student throughout his whole career. His views on medical topics were those of one who had given his life to their study. In politics, Dr. Crum was a life long and active supporter of the Republican party. He was affiliated in a religious way with the Reformed Church of Jefferson, of which he was an active member and a liberal supporter. Dr. Crum was married to Susan S. Remsberg. They were the parents of five children: John H., a well known physician, who died in Jefferson, Md., in 1885; Mary Kate, the wife of A. D. Thomas, a farmer of Petersville district, Frederick County, Md.; George W., of whom presently; Annie M., the wife of Edward Herring, a farmer of Petersville district; and Charles W. R., a practicing physician of Brunswick, Md.

George W. Crum, son of Dr. George W. and Susan S. (Remsberg) Crum, was born and reared at the old Crum homestead in Jefferson, Frederick County, Md. As a boy he received his elementary education in the public schools and under a private tutor. He later attended the business college of Bryant & Stratton and in 1877 was graduated from the commercial college of Eaton & Burnett. He then accepted a position as head book-keeper with a wholesale sugar house in Baltimore, Md., where he remained for two years. He then embarked in the general merchandizing business at Manchester, Carroll County, Md. After conducting this enterprise with success for some time, he sold out, and returned to Jefferson, where he taught school until 1885. He then turned his attention to the management of his farm in Jefferson district. In 1893, he built a fine home and made many other improvements there, and the old place is one of the best farms of the Middletown Valley. It is under a good state of cultivation. Mr. Crum is recognized as one of the leading and most capable agriculturists of the county, although for some years he has devoted his attention to politics. He is one of the leading and most prominent citizens of the county, and is highly esteemed by all with whom he has come in contact. As a business man, he showed rare acumen, and in all his dealings he has always been characterized by the highest principles of honesty and integrity.

In politics, Mr. Crum has always been a stanch adherent of the Republican party, and for the past twenty-five years has been an active party worker. In 1894 he was nominated and elected by his party as a member of the Maryland Legislature from Frederick County. As a mark of appreciation for his services there, he was once more honored by being re-elected to the General Assembly. During the two terms that he was a member of the Legislature, Mr. Crum was chairman of several and a member of numerous committees. While he was serving in the House, many important bills came up for consideration, including those relating to assessments, school boards and election laws. In 1904, Mr. Crum was nominated and elected treasurer of Frederick County, and was re-elected in 1907. During his incumbency of the office, he discharged its duties entrusted with fidelity and ability. His term expired in June, 1910.

Mr. Crum is prominent in fraternal circles. He is an active member and leading spirit of Lynch Lodge, No. 163, A. F. and A. M., Enoch Royal Arch Chapter, No. 23, of Royal Arch Masons, Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar, Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, and King David Lodge No. 50, I. O. O. F., all of Frederick City; of Boumi Temple of the Mystic Shrine of Baltimore, and the Jr. Order United American Mechanics of Jefferson.

Mr. Crum is affiliated in a religious way with the Reformed Church of Jefferson, of which he is an active and consistent member.

George W. Crum

Mr. Crum was married in 1881, to Mary Etchison, second daughter of J. Garrison and Julia A. (Cochran) Etchison, of Frederick County. There is no issue by this marriage.

JAMES K. WATERS, farmer, residing in Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., son of James and Annie (Schlosser) Waters, both deceased, was born near Bellsville, now Harmony, Frederick County, Md., March 2, 1853.

The Waters family is of English descent, and some of its members are numbered among the early settlers of Montgomery County, Md. Mr. Waters' grandfather, Joseph Waters, was a successful farmer of Montgomery County, and was highly esteemed by his fellow citizens.

The late James Waters, father of James K. Waters, was born in Montgomery County, Md. His parents died while he was a little child, and he grew up in the home of his uncle, Somerset Waters. He was educated in the public schools of the district, and on attaining his majority, married and began farming for himself on the farm of his father-in-law, Peter Schlosser, situated near Harmony, Md. After the death of his wife's parents, in 1861, Mr. Waters purchased the property from the heirs. He was successful in business and remained on the place cultivating and improving it until the time of his death. This farm consisted of 234 acres of fine land. Honest toil and close attention to business, brought him a rich reward, and Mr. Waters bought another farm of 95 acres, three miles south-east of Middletown, on the road from Jefferson to Middletown. He also owned 90 acres of valuable timber land on the Catoctin Mountain. Mr. Waters was a Republican, interested in county affairs. James Waters was married to Annie, daughter of Peter and Elizabeth Schlosser, both deceased. Mrs. Waters' father was a prominent farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County, Md. The children of James and Annie (Schlosser) Waters are: 1, Mary E., deceased, married Thomas F. Bittle, a merchant of Ellerton, Md.; 2, Ann Francis, widow of the late J. A. Doub, of Middletown, Md.; 3, Catherine A., widow of the Rev. Hiram Knodle, of Bairdstown, Ohio; 4, Peter S., deceased, a farmer of Blaine County, Neb.; 5, G. W., deceased; 6, James K.; 7, Charles E.; 8, John C., deceased. Mr. Waters and his wife were members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Middletown, Md., in which Mr. Waters held the office of deacon for many years. He died at his home near Harmony, January 19, 1876, and is buried in the Lutheran Cemetery in Middletown, Md.

James K. Waters was educated in the public schools of Jackson District, and grew up on the homestead, working for his father. After his marriage, Mr. Waters began farming for himself on his present home, then the property of his father-in-law, situated about one mile southeast of Myersville, Md. On the death of Mrs. Waters' parents, the farm was willed to her. This farm is beautifully located and lies along the line of the Inter Urban Railroad. Mr. Waters has improved it in many ways building a comfortable brick dwelling, a bank barn and all the necessary outbuildings. He afterwards bought, from Joshua Summers, a fertile farm of 180 acres, near Harmony, Md. This also he improved until both of his farms are spoken of as among the best farms in the district. His work and close attention have brought their reward. Mr. Waters is a Republican, not interested in county affairs, and is highly esteemed in the district.

James K. Waters was married to Laura E., daughter of Peter and Julia (Bowlus) Leatherman, being deceased, whose father was a well-known farmer of Middletown District, Frederick County. Their children are: 1, Mary A., at home; 2, Carrie E., married Welty K. Grossnickle, farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County; 3, Guy P., at home; 4, William L., at home. Mr. Waters and his wife are members of the German Baptist Church in Ellerton, Md. He is active in church work, and is liberal in his contributions. Mrs. Waters died, September 13, 1907, and is buried in the graveyard of the German Baptist Church, near Ellerton, Md.

HARRY EUGENE CHAPLINE, former member of the Maryland Legislature, and one of the well-known citizens of the county, was born in Shepherdstown, West Va., September 10, 1869. He is a son of Isaac Thomas and Laura (Schley) Chapline.

The Chapline family is of ancient and honorable lineage and is of English origin. The ancestor was Isaac Chapline, of the royal navy of England, who came to America with Lord Delaware, as king's council to the colony of Virginia, in 1610, and settled upon a tract of fine land called Hundred Chapline's Choice. He was the father of John Chapline. John Chapline lived in Virginia, and had a son William, who died in Maryland in 1682. This William Chapline was the father of another William Chapline, who was one of the passengers on the Mayflower. William Chapline, 2nd, became a member of the king's council in Maryland, and was the father of three sons: William, born in 1700, from whom the Frederick County family is descended; Moses, born in 1702, and died in 1762, removed to the Eastern Shore of Maryland, married Jeannette Caton, a cousin of the celebrated Richard Caton, who married a daughter of Charles Carroll, of Carrollton; and Joseph, born in 1707, the ancestor of the Sharpsburg Chaplines.

James Augustus Chapline, a descendant of William Chapline, who was born in 1700, was the grandfather of Harry Eugene Chapline. He was a native of Jefferson County, Va., where he was called upon to fill numerous public offices of trust and responsibility. Financially, he was very well-to-do, as he owned several valuable farms and had money invested in various enterprises. In religion, he was connected with the Episcopal Church. Mr. Chapline was married to Elizabeth Swan Latimer, of Prince George's County, Md., she being a descendant of the famous Bishop Hugh Latimer of England. Among their children were Isaac Thomas; Ann Elizabeth, who married Judge Joseph Chapline, the law partner of Senator Allison; and Margaret, wife of John T. McKevitt, who was a lieutenant in the Union Army during the Civil War.

Isaac Thomas Chapline, son of James Augustus and Elizabeth Swan (Latimer) Chapline, died in 1876, aged thirty-eight years. He was a farmer of Jefferson County, West Va. He was highly respected and honored among his fellow-citizens, who in 1864 chose him to serve them as county sheriff, in which office and that of tax collector he spent twelve years. He was a member of the electoral college which elected President Lincoln. He was a strong friend of the Union, and being a man of the courage of his convictions he proclaimed his opinions, though a resident of a section where few sympathizers with the North chose to let it be known. In religion, he was a member of the Episcopal Church, and served as a vestryman. Mr. Chapline was married in 1867 to Laura Schley, daughter of Col. Edward and Margaret (Brengle) Schley, and a descendant of John Thomas Schley, a pioneer of Frederick County, and the builder of the first house on the site of Frederick City. Colonel Edward Schley was an extensive owner of valuable property, chiefly real estate, and his name and that of his family is closely interwoven with the history of Frederick County. Isaac Thomas and Laura Chapline were the parents of three children: Thomas A., whose sketch see; Harry Eugene, and Rosa, the wife of William Warner Osburn, of Frederick City (see sketch).

Harry Eugene Chapline, son of Isaac Thomas and Laura (Schley) Chapline, received his higher education in Shepherd College, after which he learned the printer's trade, and has devoted much time to journalism. In 1886, he located in Frederick, and became a member of the reportorial staff of the Frederick News. After a few years he went to Philadelphia, where he was similarly occupied for two years. Upon his return he resumed his position with the News. At present, he is a special correspondent for the Baltimore Sun and has achieved much success in newspaper work.

Mr. Chapline is an active adherent of the Republican party, and his opinions carry weight in party councils. In the fall of 1897, he was elected a member of the House of Delegates from Frederick County, and as a legislator he made an enviable record. Immediately after his term in the legislature, he was appointed deputy clerk of the Frederick County Court, which position he still fills. Fraternally, he is a member of Frederick Lodge, No. 684, Elks, the Royal Arcanum and the Order of Heptasophs. In religion, like his forebears, he holds membership in the Episcopal Church.

THOMAS AUGUSTUS CHAPLINE, discount clerk and bookkeeper for the Fredericktown Savings Institute, is one of the honorable and highly esteemed citizens of Frederick City. He is a native of Shepherdstown, West Va., where he was born May 22, 1871. He is a son of Isaac Thomas and Laura (Schley) Chapline.

Thomas Augustus Chapline, son of Isaac Thomas and Laura (Schley) Chapline, remained in his native town until he was fifteen years old. At that time, he came to Frederick City with his mother, where he has since resided. While a boy he attended the public schools and Shepherd College in West Virginia. He learned the trade of a printer in the office of the Frederick Examiner. At the age of nineteen years, he became a clerk in the dry-goods store of Thomas H. Haller, with whom he remained for ten years. At the end of that time, in 1902, he accepted a position as bookkeeper for the Fredericktown Savings Institute, one of the leading financial institutions of Frederick City. He is still in the employ of this bank. Mr. Chapline is well known in Frederick and highly respected.

Politically, Mr. Chapline is a Republican, and religiously, he is a member of All Saints'

Episcopal Church of Frederick. Fraternally, he is a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., of the Royal Arcanum, and of Frederick City Lodge, No. 684, B. P. O. E. He is treasurer of Independent Hose Company of Frederick City.

Mr. Chapline was married June 1, 1899, to Mary C. Byerly, daughter of Davis and Mary (Markell) Byerly (see history of Byerly and Markell families in this volume). There are two children by this marriage: George Markell and Thomas Augustus, Jr.

GEORGE ELIJAH HOUSE, deceased, was one of the best known farmers and citizens of Frederick County. He was a man of high character and was highly thought of by the many who knew him. He was born near Jefferson, Frederick County, October 19, 1820, and died February 23, 1904. His parents were George Elijah and Anna (Rice) House. He was a grandson of George House, for whose history see sketch of Greenberry House, of Burkittsville.

George Elijah House, the father of our subject, was born near Jefferson, Frederick County, January 1, 1796, and died April 22, 1825. He engaged in agriculture. He was a man of strict integrity, honest, just and upright. He was a good citizen and his death occurred in the prime of life. Mr. House was married September 4, 1817, to Annie Rice, daughter of Perry Rice, a well known citizen of Jefferson District. She was born July 8, 1800. There were five children born to this union: Perry Thomas, born in September, 1818; Martha Elizabeth, who was born in December, 1819, became the wife of Benjamin Johnson, and died in Hyattstown, Md.; Rebecca Annie, who was born September 10, 1821, died in childhood; William Richard, who was born May 4, 1823, married Ann Norris, and went to Indiana, where he settled in Madison county; and George Elijah. Six years after her husband's death, Mrs. House was married to Samuel Cecil, who died in Montgomery County, Md. She died with her daughter, Mrs. Catharine Baker, near Ijamsville, Frederick County. By her second marriage, she was the mother of five children: Samuel, Levin, Catharine, Mary and Amanda.

George Elijah House, son of George Elijah and Anna (Rice) House, was an infant when his father died and was but six years old when his mother married again, and moved to the neighborhood of Hyattstown, Montgomery County, Md. There he grew to manhood and attended the old time pay schools. He remained at home until his marriage. He was married February 6, 1845, to Ann Burnside, daughter of John Nelson and Nancy (Talbot) Burnside. She was born near New Market, Frederick County, August 28, 1822, and when a child her parents removed to near Clarksburg, Montgomery County, Md., where she grew up. Mr. House began farming at his marriage on "Bloomsburg" farm, in Urbana district, Frederick County. He and his wife lived at first in a little log house, containing one room. In this room was a fire place, which gave heat and furnished the means of cooking. This fire-place is now in the dining-room of the structure which superseded the log house. Eleven years after their marriage, they built a two-story addition of stone and twenty-three years after first coming to the place, they erected another addition to the rear. Mr. and Mrs. House lived happily, although their home was plain. They were devout Methodists, and eleven years after their marriage built a Methodist Episcopal Church of logs. Rev. Granden came from Clarksburg, Md., one day, and took dinner with them. He made the remark that he noticed a site coming along that would be excellent for a church. Mr. and Mrs. House replied that this was just what they wanted, and they forthwith set to work to erect a church edifice, leaving the addition they were building to their house go until the church was completed. Four families worshipped here, those of Mathias Geigis, John Holland, Thomas Peters, and Mr. House. In 1881, a new frame church was built and still stands. The pastor is Rev. Yost. Rev. R. R. Murphy built the present edifice.

When Mr. House settled on this farm, he and his brother, William R., bought 100 acres, which was part of "Bloomsburg," owned by Major Johnson's family, who was a brother of the first Governor of Maryland, Thomas Johnson. This 100 acre thact the brothers divided equally, and later Mr. House purchased his brother William's share. He kept adding to his original purchase until he secured possession of 325 acres. Since his death, Mrs. House has managed the farm with the aid of her sons and daughter. She has proven herself to be an efficient manager. The death of Mr. House caused genuine regret among a wide circle of friends. He was a man who was held in high esteem and all his business dealings were characterized by the highest honesty. He was a devoted husband and kind father, and was a man of great moral worth. Mr. and Mrs. House joined the old Sugar Loaf Mountain Methodist Episcopal Church when they were children. They went to school together, were converted at the same meeting, and became church members at the same time. For the long period of sixty-five years they lived together, and never was dissension heard between them. Mr. House is laid to rest in Mount Olivet Cemetery, at Frederick. He was a life long Republican.

Mr. and Mrs. House had issue of eight children: John William, who is engaged in agriculture in Urbana District, married Lucy R. Beall; George Thomas, died at the age of thirty-nine years; Charles T., who is a minister in the Methodist Episcopal Church, with a charge at Savage, Md., in the Baltimore Conference, was twice married, first to Hattie Stryker, and secondly, to Serena Clough; Annie Mary, resides at home; Joseph A., living at home, married Mrs. Lawrence; Levin B., a farmer near Frederick, married Maymie C. Crooks; and Ulysses Grant, a resident of Walbrook, Md., married Lottie Crooks. One child died in infancy.

John Nelson Burnside, Mrs. House's father, was born near Clarksburg, Montgomery County, Md., where his family carried on a large tannery and owned much farm land.

He became a foreman in the tannery. He was married to Nancy Talbot, of the neighborhood of New Market, Frederick County, who was a daughter of Charles Talbot. Her father followed teaming on the Baltimore and Washington turnpikes. After the death of his wife at Clarksburg, Mr. Burnside lcoated at Shepherdstown, West Va. He was married secondly to Mrs. Beck, a widow. There his death occurred.

Joseph Burnside, the grandfather of Mrs. House, was a native of Ireland. He came to the United States with two of his brothers. One settled in Virginia and the other near Baltimore, Md. He took up his residence in Montgomery County, Md., where he was among the early members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was twice married. His first wife was Olivia Taylor. He was married secondly to a Miss Ward.

THE HOUSE FAMILY.—An organization was formed several years ago by the members of the House family, who met in Richmond, Indiana, for the purpose of looking into the matter of a large fortune supposed to be due the House heirs. The investigation brought to light the following history:

Their report was that there was an estate of $64,000,000 that should belong to the House descendency, embracing lands which included Baltimore, Rockville, Frederick, etc. In 1760 Andrew House, a wealthy nobleman in his native country, came to America from Germany. He was a great friend of King George III, of England. He was active in helping King George in the Revolutionary War, and as a token of his appreciation King George gave him a colonial grant of a large tract of land on which a part of Baltimore, Rockville and Frederick were built. When King George and the hold of England on America failed, Andrew House returned to Germany, where he died.

While he lived in America he had a son born whose name was John Valentine House. After the Revolution, Andrew House being dead, the Government levied a tax on land for internal improvement. John Valentine House, being a tory as his father had been, refused to pay the tax, so the Government sold the rents and profits of the estate for 99 years. Shortly after this John Valentine House moved to Kentucky, and from his family sprang the Houses in the West, and many in the East.

John Valentine House had six children, Joseph, George, William, Elitha, Martha, Elizabeth. From this stock there are several thousands settled throughout the country. The subject of this sketch was a grandson of one of the above named children. It is claimed that the records of Frederick County show the Colonial Grant, and that it takes two months to run back the old records. Much time and money has been spent in these investigations foolishly and have proven futile.

VALENTINE S. BRUNNER, deceased, was in his time one of the well-known and highly esteemed citizens of Frederick City. He was born in that city in 1818 and died in his native place in 1889. His parents were John and Maria (Stickle) Brunner.

The American progenitor of the Brunner family was Joseph Brunner, who was born in the city of Manheim in upper Germany. He emigrated to the colonies and settled on Carroll's Creek, near the present city of Frederick, Md., in 1726. He was the father of four sons and two daughters, the names of the sons being: 1. Jacob; 2, John; 3, Elias; and 4, Henry. At his death he left a fine tract of land to each of his sons.

Jacob Brunner, son of Joseph Brunner the emigrant, had a son John, who in turn was the father of a son Jacob. This latter Jacob had a son John.

John Brunner, son of Jacob Brunner, was the father of Valentine S. Brunner. He served in the American army in the second struggle with Great Britain in 1812. He was twice married. His first wife was Maria Stickle, by whom he had four children: Valentine S.; Mary, married Lewis Markell; Lewis A., and Edward J. Mr. Brunner was married secondly to a Miss Doll, by whom he had two children: Caroline, married William S. Buntz; and Ellen C., married Martin N. Rohrback, of Frederick.

Valentine S. Brunner, son of John and Maria (Stickle) Brunner, was the first agent of the Adams Express Company in Frederick, and this position he filled for many years. He was well-known and was highly respected in the community in which he made his home. Politically, Mr. Brunner was in early life an old line Whig, but when the Republican party was founded he joined its ranks and was a stanch supporter of that organization the rest of his life. He was for many years a director in the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank and president of Mt. Olivet Cemetery. In religion he was a communicant of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Mr. Brunner was married in 1853 to Margaret M. Pyfer, daughter of Philip and Rachel (Brengle) Pyfer, of Frederick City. She was born in Frederick City in December, 1817; and died February 15, 1910, at her home, No. 14 East Patrick street. Mr. and Mrs. Brunner were the parents of two children: F. M., deceased; and Virginia, who is still living.

The Pyfer family, of which Mrs. Brunner was a member, is one of the old and well-known families of Frederick County. Philip Pyfer, Mrs. Brunner's father, served in the War of 1812. Mr. Pyfer was married to Rachel Brengle. They were the parents of four children: William, died in California, having sailed around Cape Horn to that State during the gold boom in 1849; Margaret M., the widow of Valentine S. Brunner; Ann C., the widow of Philip B. Kunkel; and Philip H., deceased.

THE REV. GEORGE A. SNYDER, pastor in charge of Christ Reformed Church, Middletown, Frederick County, Md., son of John George and Susannah (Kepler) Snyder, was born in Summit County, Ohio, August 10, 1863.

John George Snyder, son of Michael and Barbara (Weimer) Snyder, father of the Rev. G. A. Snyder, was born in Alsace Lorraine, Germany, then a province of France, January 13, 1827. His parents came to America in 1838, and settled in Stark County, Ohio. Michael and Barbara (Weimer) Snyder had five children: John George, Michael, Eve, Frederick, and Julia. John George Snyder was married to Susannah Kepler. Of their ten children nine reached maturity: 1, Mary C. (Mrs. Moses Loutzenhauser), of Ohio; 2, Savilla C. (Mrs. John Dice), of Ohio; 3, William W., deceased; 4, Solomon, a minister of the Reformed Church, at Dayton, Ohio; 5, Houston E., a farmer of Summit County, Ohio; 6, the Rev. George A.; 7 Charles A. of Ohio; 8, Harvey A., M. D., of Ohio; 9, Eliza (Mrs. Amandus Asdale). Mr. Snyder and his wife were members of the Reformed Church.

George A. Snyder grew up on his father's farm in Summit County, Ohio. He attended the schools of his district, and worked with his father on the farm until he reached his eighteenth year. In 1881, he entered Heidelberg College, Tiffin, Ohio, and graduated from that institution with the degree of A. B., at the age of twenty-four. He immediately entered the Theological department of Heidelberg College and graduated in the class of 1888. In July of the same year, the Rev. Mr. Snyder was called to the pastorate of Christ Reformed Church at Hagerstown, Md., where he remained for sixteen years. During his long pastorate, the congregation in Hagerstown built a handsome, new church, in which they placed a fine pipe organ, and also erected a commodious parsonage valued at $25,000. In 1904, the Rev. Mr. Snyder resigned his charge in Hagerstown to accept the presidency of Catawba Collegs at Newton, N. C. While he was president of the college, all of the buildings were remodeled and enlarged. The lands of the institution were increased and the campus was enlarged and beautified. The receipts from the students enrolled were increased from $4,800 in 1904-'05, to $10,100 in 1907-'08; the number of students was greatly increased, and the institution popularized. In the summer of 1908 the Rev. Mr. Snyder resigned the presidency of Catawba College. He accepted a call from Christ Reformed Church, at Middletown, Md., and began his pastorate September 1, 1908. He attributes whatever success he has attained in life, to hard work and close application to the duties of his profession.

The Rev. George A. Snyder was married, October 5, 1892, to Mary Irene, daughter of Jacob H. and Alice (Koons) Cost, of Washington County, Md. They have had five children, three of whom are living: 1, George Randolph; 2, Charlotte Blanche; 3, Beatrice Rosaline.

WHENDELL L. H. ZENTZ, a prominent farmer of Mechanicstown District, Frederick County, Md., residing in the suburbs of Thurmont, son of ex-County Commissioner Abraham S. and Sarah D. (Biggs) Zentz, both deceased, was born on the old Zentz homestead, December 23, 1869.

(For family history see biographical sketch of his brothers.)

Whendell L. H. Zentz received his education in the public schools of Frederick County. He grew up on the homestead and remained with his father until he married, when he took charge of the home place. After cultivating this land successfully for three years, Mr. Zentz bought a small property in the northeastern suburb of Thurmont, along the line of the Western Maryland Railroad. This he improved with a comfortable two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn, and convenient outbuildings. He has added to his land from time to time until he has 33 acres of well-improved land in the highest state of cultivation. Mr. Zentz has one of the finest homes in the district. It is now within the town limits and will be valuable for dividing into building lots. Besides the interest which he takes in improving his land, Mr. Zentz takes great delight in breeding heavy draft horses, in which he has been very successful. He is a prosperous business man, and ascribes his succes to pluck and constant attention to business. He is one of the leading Republicans of Mechanicstown District.

Whendell L. H. Zentz was married to Flora D., daughter of William and Catherine (Harbaugh) Smith, whose parents were old residents of Mechanicstown District. They have two children: Rolland R., and Charles E., both at home. Mr. Zentz and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church in Thurmont. He is a generous contributor and has served the congregation as deacon and as elder for a few years. Mr. Zentz was also superintendent of the Sunday School at Apple's Church.

C. M. BENNER, M. D., engaged in the practice of his chosen work at Taneytown, Md., possesses a large and influential practice, which has been attracted to his support by his well known skill and ability. He is a native of Libertytown, Frederick County, Md., where he was born January 31, 1877. He is a son of Alonzo and Virginia (Miller) Benner. His father served in Cole's Maryland Cavalry during the Civil War; enlisted as a private, promoted to corporal; slightly wounded near New Market, Va., in cheek and ear. His father afterwards served as sheriff of Frederick County, and is now living at Libertytown. He is widely known.

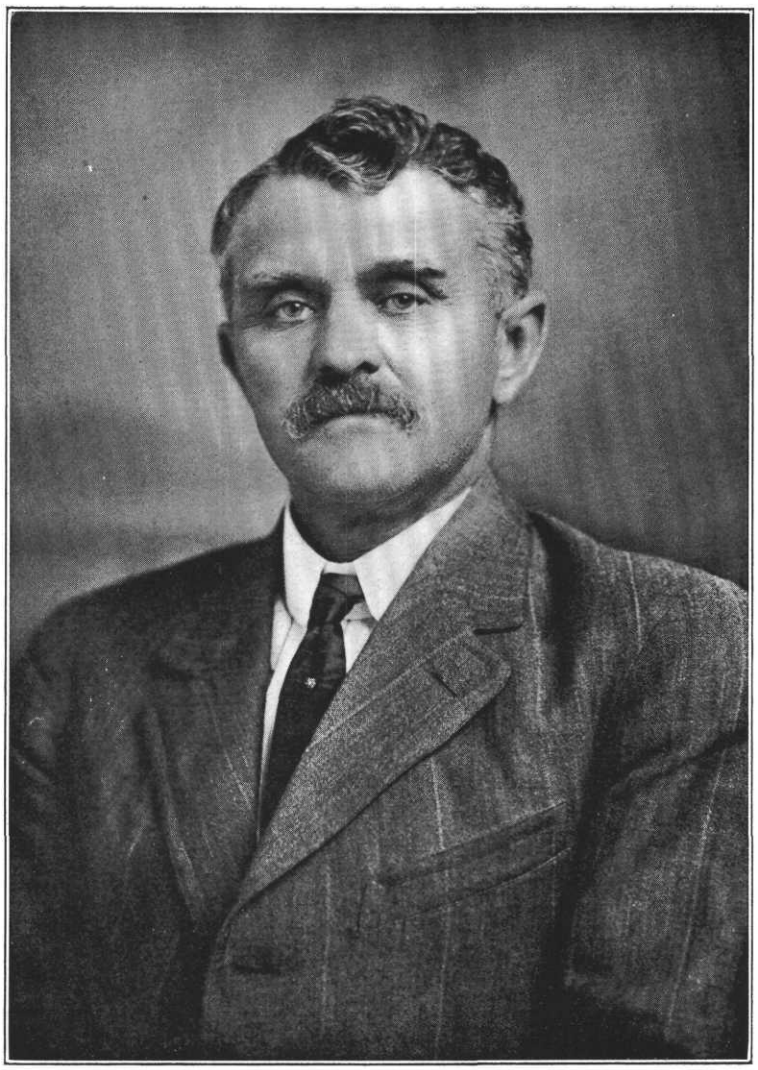
Dr. Benner acquired his elementary education in the public schols and the Walkersville High School, from which he was graduated with the class of 1899. He taught in the public schools of Frederick County for three years, after which he entered Roanoke College, Salem, Va., where he completed his literary course. Having a taste for the medical profession, he entered the medical department of the University of Maryland, from which well-known institution he was graduated in 1905. He entered upon the active practice of his profession at Taneytown, where he has since remained. He is one of the best known of the younger practitioners of his locality and bids fair to achieve much success in the exacting work to which he proposes to devote his life.

Politically, Dr. Benner is loyal in his adherence to the Republican party. Fraternally, he is identified with the Masonic Order, the I. O. O. F., the Knights of Pythias, the Woodmen and the Heptasophs.

Dr. Benner is a member of the Carroll County Medical Society, the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland and the American Medical Association. In religion, he is a member of the Lutheran Church and is unmarried. Dr. Benner's family is one of the oldest in this country. His ancestors crossed the stormy Atlantic from Holland during the religious disturbances in Europe in order to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences and settled in Pennsylvania near Gettysburg.

Christian Benner, the oldest known ancestor by name, was born in Pennsylvania. The date of his birth and death is not known. His son, John Benner—great-grandfather of Dr. Benner—was born October 12, 1793, in Hamilton Township, Adams County, Pa., and died January 12, 1850. He served under William Henry Harrison in the war of 1812-14, in the Northwest, helped to repulse the British forces under Proctor, and aided Perry to construct his vessels on Lake Erie; and after Perry's victory on Lake Erie helped to totally rout the British in the battle of the Thames, on October 5th, 1813.

John Benner's oldest son, George Benner, grandfather of Dr. Benner, was born January 1st, 1819, in Franklin Township, Adams County, Pa., and at present lives near Taneytown, Md., on a small farm, and enjoys good health in his old age.



Peter N. Hammaker

RESIDENCE OF PETER N. HAMMAKER, THURMONT, MD.

McGILL BELT, one of the leading farmers of Urbana District, Frederick County, Maryland, son of John Lloyd Belt and his wife, Sarah Eleanor (McGill) Belt, was born August 14, 1856. At one time he conducted a farm owned by his father, known as "Belton," an ideal farm, and the most beautiful location on what was once Carroll's Manor. John Belt bought this tract of land direct from the Carroll heirs and built a handsome residence, a fine bank barn and other buildings upon it. After the death of his father, McGill Belt returned to the old homestead, "Rock Hall," which later he and his brother, Dr. E. Oliver Belt, purchased from the other heirs, and after the sudden death of the latter he came in legal possession of the entire tract of 700 acres, which borders the Monocacy river for more than a mile, and runs south to the Montgomery County line.

McGill Belt was twice brought out by his Democratic friends for the House of Representatives and led his ticket each time, but as Frederick County is largely Republican, his party was defeated. Mr. Belt has always been an enterprising and public spirited man, and has done much for the advancement of both Frederick and Montgomery counties. He is one of the stockholders and directors of the Peoples' Insurance Company of Frederick and manager of the Barnesville Canning and Supply Company. For a number of years he was one of the vestrymen of St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church, near Point of Rocks, and is now Senior Warden of Christ Church, Barnesville.

John Lloyd Belt, father of McGill Belt, was born February 20, 1819, at "Rock Hill," near Leesburg, Loudoun County, Va. In 1839 he moved to "Rock Hall," Frederick County, Md., a large and valuable estate then owned by his father, Alfred Belt, and subsequently willed to him. In 1845 he married Sarah Eleanor McGill, of "Potomac Hills," Frederick County, Md., whose first ancestor to come to this country was the Rev. James Macgill, who was sent over by King George the Second, in 1730, to be the first Rector of Christ Protestant Episcopal Church in Anne Arundel County, Md., (now Howard County), of which church he was rector 49 years. After his death in 1770 this church was partly destroyed by fire, and was rebuilt in 1809 of brick sent over from England, and on October 6th, 1909, the one hundredth anniversary of rebuilding the church was celebrated and three beautiful stained glass windows were unveiled—one in memory of the Rev. James McGill; one to Dr. Charles McGill, and the other to Miss Mary McGill. Bishop Murray and fourteen other clergymen attended this service, two of whom were descendants of the Rev. Jas. McGill; they were Rev. Julius Soper and Rev. B. Duvall Chambers. Among other descendants present were Mrs. Charles Macgill and family, of Catonsville; Mrs. Lottie Belt Chambers, Dr. Alfred McGill Belt, of Baltimore; Miss Julia Belt and Mr. McGill Belt, of Rock Hall; Miss Eleanor McGill Chambers, of Trinity Rectory, Mrs. Clifford Bridges, of Virginia; General James Macgill, of Pulaski, Va.; Mrs. Drury, of Virginia; Mrs. Robert Bridges, of Maryland, and Mrs. Mollie Macgill Rosenberg, of Galveston, Texas, who presented the three windows.

This branch of Macgills is descended from James Macgill, of Edinburg, Scotland, who married Helen Wardlaw, in 1545. The title of Viscount of Oxford belongs to this branch of Macgills.

John Lloyd Belt and his wife, Sarah Eleanor (McGill) Belt, spent all their married life at Rock Hall, whose massive stone walls defy both heat and cold. This is a beautiful old homestead, and visitors are entranced by the rare beauty of the view seen from its porches. It is situated on what was years ago an old Indian trail, and later it was called Braddock's Pass, and is the most direct route from Washington to Frederick.

John Lloyd Belt and Sarah Eleanor (McGill) Belt, were the parents of the following children: 1, Mary Charlotte Belt, married Lieutenant B. D. Chambers, of Delaware; Dr. Alfred McGill Belt, married Arie T. Trail, of Frederick, Md. For a short time he conducted his father's farm, "Belton;" afterwards he clerked in the store of R. H. Macgill; later he became a traveling salesman and traveled extensively through the South. Finding it impossible to resist the profession of the family, he studied medicine and practised in Baltimore a number of years. 3, John Lloyd Belt, died in early manhood, unmarried; 4, Ellen Campbell Belt, married John H. Reich, of Frederick, Md.; 5, America Macgill Belt, married Thos A. McIlvains, of Delaware; 6, Annie Oliver Belt, married Laurence A. White, Dickerson, Md.; 7, Sarah Virginia Belt, unmarried; 8, McGill Belt, unmarried; 9, Julia Belt, for two years Historian of Frederick Chapter D. A. R., organist and choir leader of Christ Church, Barnesville, and for five years president of Christ Church Guild; 10, Edward Oliver Belt, married Emily W. Norvell. He graduated in medicine at the Maryland University, after which he went abroad and studied in Vienna, Berlin, Paris and London. Upon his return home he located in Washington, D. C., and founded the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, which stands as a monument to him.

On December 30, 1906, as he was returning from a day spent at Rock Hall, he and his two little sons, Edward McGill Belt and Sinclair Belt, ages six and seven years, lost their lives in a horrible railroad wreck at Terra Cotta, six miles west of Washington.

Alfred Belt, father of John Lloyd Belt, was born in Montgomery County, Md., February 14, 1788. When he was seven years old his parents moved to Loudoun County, Virginia. He studied medicine and practiced extensively, in addition to conducting a large farm. On this farm he erected a fine dwelling, a large bank barn and every other necessary building, all of brick made on the farm; also a high brick wall around his large gardens. He married Charlotte Trundle, December 22, 1809. Their children were Ruth Ann Belt, married George Sinclair and lived in Charlottesville, Va.; Mary Ellen Belt, married Cephas Hempstone of Loudoun County, Va.; Alfred Campbell Belt, married Mary Mills, of Alexandria, Va.; John Lloyd Belt, married Sarah Eleanor McGill, of Maryland; Dr. James Belt, married Elizabeth Snouffer, of Maryland; Ann Elizabeth Belt, married J. J. M. Sellman, of Baltimore, Md.

Carlton Belt, father of Alfred Belt and grandfather of John Lloyd Belt, was born in Montgomery County, Md., December 26, 1784. He married Anne Campbell, daughter of Colonel Aeneas Campbell, a direct descendant of the Duke of Argyle. He was the first high sheriff of Loudoun County, Va., and owned the beautiful estate called Raspberry Planes, near Leesburg. He served in the Revolutionary War and was captain of the Flying Camp. He died February 21, 1812.

The family of Belt, according to English authorities, is one of the most ancient now existing in Yorkshire, England. The oldest records in possession, regarding the settlement in that country, are dated in the reign of King Richard the Second, A. D. 1387. Their earlier origin was in Lombardy; the registers of the Armorial College are those of that duchy.

The first of the name found in the history of this country was William Belt, who settled on Kent Island with William Claiborne, about the year 1630. The next was Sir Humphrey Belt who sailed from Gravesend, England, in the ship "Arden," and landed in Anne Arundel County, Md., June 30, 1663. His son, John Belt married Elizabeth Tidings and their son John Belt 2 married Lucy Laurence. This marriage is registered in "All Hallows" Church, Anne Arundel County, and states "that the said Lucy was betrothed to another man when she married John Belt, which is against the laws of God and man."

Their son, Higginson Belt, was the father of the above mentioned Carlton Belt, and grandfather of the John Belt, who married Dorothy Williams—a niece of Oliver Cromwell. In the early days of the country the various families of Belts owned tracts of land from one hundred to several thousand acres and were known by the following names: Belt's Prosperity, Aquilla, Collington, Chelsea, Belt's Discovery, Chevy Chase, Seneca, Friendship, Arthur's Seat, Belt's Poor Chance, Godfather's Gift, Norway, Oat Mead, Belt's Hills, Belt's Point, Belt's Park, etc.

The Belts and McGills have intermarried with the families of Hook, Burgess, Davis, West, Warfield, Pratt, Mackall, Hilleary, Magruder, Wemyss, Ruth, Livingston, Claggett, Sprigg, Camden, Addison, Dulany, Howell, Woodward, etc.

PETER N. HAMMAKER, who is numbered among the enterprising business men and leading citizens of the town of Thurmont, Frederick County, Md., was born on a farm near Cavetown, Washington County, Md., February 27, 1858. He is a son of Solomon and Catherine (Newcomer) Hammaker.

Peter Hammaker, grandfather of Peter N. Hammaker, was a farmer in Cavetown District, Washington County, Md. His ancestors were among the early settlers of that county. He was the father of Solomon Hammaker.

Mr. Hammaker's father, Solomon Hammaker, was born in 1826. He spent his whole life in Washington County, where he was engaged in agricultural pursuits. Solomon Hammaker was married to Catharine Newcomer. They had three children: 1, B. F., dealer in marble and granite, at Libertytown, Md.; 2, Mary C. (Mrs. T. B. Winter), of Middleburg, Va.; 3, Peter N.

Peter N. Hammaker, son of Solomon and Catherine (Newcomer) Hammaker was brought up on a farm in Leitersburg District, Washington County, Md., and attended the public schools there until he was sixteen. At that time he accompanied his brother to Thurmont, where he was employed by his brother who dealt in marble and granite. After working for his brother for two years, Mr. Hammaker went to Washington, D. C., and was employed at his trade in that city for two years. In 1878 he returned to Thurmont and began business for himself as a dealer in marble and granite. For the past thirty-two years he has conducted this business successfully. He necessarily began on a small scale, but he has met with such success that his business ranks well with similar establishments in Frederick County. Mr. Hammaker is one of the foremost business men in the town of Thurmont, and has won success in life entirely by his own efforts. In the management of his enterprise, he has shown much business ability. Mr. Hammaker is a stanch Republican. He is a public-spirited citizen, and is ever ready to aid anything that tends to advance the general welfare. He has not confined his attention to his marble and granite business, but from time to time has been interested in the various other enterprises of the vicinity. For the past sixteen years, he has been superintendent of the Emmitsburg Turnpike Company. Mr. Hammaker was one of the organizers, and is now President of the Electric Light and Power Company, of Thurmont; and one of the directors of the Thurmont National Bank. He was one of the organizers and is now treasurer of the Thurmont Land and Improvement Company. He has just completed a fine new residence at the corner of Church and East Second streets in Thurmont. It is built of brick and is one of the handsomest dwellings in the town.

Mr. Hammaker was married, February 17, 1887, to Ida C. Miller, daughter of George W. and Caroline (Hill) Miller, the former deceased, and the latter residing in Lewistown District. (For history of the Miller family, see biographical sketch of J. Marshall Miller, which appears in this volume).

Peter N. Hammaker and Ida C. (Miller) Hammaker had two children, both died in infancy. Mr. Hammaker is an active and consistent member of the Lutheran Church, in which he is an elder, and of which he is treasurer. For four years he has served as president of the Board of Charities and Corrections of Frederick County. He was one of the organizers, and is now vice-president of the Mechanicstown Water Company. At a meeting of the Maryland State Turnpike Association, held in Frederick, December 1909, he was elected President of said association.

HARRY J. KEFAUVER, a member of the Maryland House of Delegates from Frederick County for 1907-08, and a teacher in the Boys' High School of Frederick City, was born on a farm in Middletown district, November 8, 1878. He is a son of Mahlon C. and Susan (Remmell) Kefauver.

The Kefauver family is one of the oldest and most prominent families of the Middletown Valley, Frederick County, Md. The American ancestor was Nicholas Kefauver, who was a native of Germany, and emigrating to this country, became an early settler in that section of the county.

Henry Kefauver, grandson of Nicholas Kefauver the emigrant, was a native of Middletown District. He was a farmer.

Mahlon C. Kefauver, son of Henry Kefauver, is engaged in agricultural pursuits in Frederick District, Frederick County. He uses his right of franchise in support of the Republican party. In religious affairs, he is a member of the Reformed Church. Mr. Kefauver has been twice married. He was married first to Susan Remmell, by whom he had two children: Harry J. and Oscar C. Mr. Kefauver was married secondly to Anna Remmell, by whom he had one son, Curtis R., engaged in farming.

Harry J. Kefauver, son of Mahlon C. and Susan (Remmell) Kefauver, received his education in the public schools and the Frederick City Boys' High School, from which he was graduated in 1897. He then entered the Maryland Agricultural College, at College Park, Md., from which institution he was graduated in 1900. Upon the completion of his education, Mr. Kefauver returned to his native county and began teaching in the public schools, in the fall of 1900. His first charge was at Lewistown, and he next became principal of the grammar school at Thurmont, Md., where he was located from 1901 to 1903. In the latter year, Mr. Kefauver was appointed assistant principal of the Boys' High School of Frederick. This position he still fills. He is well known in local educational circles and is a prominent citizen. Mr. Kefauver has won his own place in the world and is deserving of much credit for his success.

In politics, Mr. Kefauver has always been a stanch adherent of the principles of the Republican party. At the November election of 1907, he was elected as a member of the Maryland House of Delegates from Frederick County. During the session of 1908, he served on the committees of education and militia. He was very active in the House, and introduced and had passed several important bills relating to his own county. As a legislator, he has a most praiseworthy record, and the best interests of his constituents were always uppermost in his mind.

Mr. Kefauver is prominent in fraternal circles, being identified with Acacia Lodge, No. 155, A. F. and A. M., Thurmont, Md.; Enoch Royal Arch Chapter, No. 23; Enoch Council, No. 10, Royal and Select Masons; Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar; Boumi Temple of Ancient Arabic Order of the Mystic Shrine, of Baltimore; Mountain City Lodge No. 29, Knights of Pythias; Frederick City Lodge, No. 684, B. P. O. E., of which he is Past Exalted Ruler. He is also First Lieutenant of Company A, First Infantry, Maryland National Guards. In religion, he is affiliated with Grace Reformed Church of Frederick, in the work of which he takes a keen interest and is a teacher of a Bible class.

CHARLES ABRAHAM OGLE, of Locust Glen farm, Woodville District, Frederick County, Md., son of Ephraim and Mary (Fillinger) Ogle, was born near Union Bridge, Carroll County, Md., July 25, 1872.

Mr. Ogle's ancestors were of English descent. In the early days of the colonies, two brothers of the name came to America. One settled in the west and the other in Maryland, it is supposed in Frederick County, from whom Charles A. Ogle is descended.

Thomas Ogle, grandfather of Charles A. Ogle, was a shoe-maker, and lived and died in Johnsville District, Frederick County. He was married to Annie Webb. Their children are: 1, William, deceased, married Louisa Harris; 2, Thomas, enlisted during the Civil War, in the Confederate Maryland Regiment, went to the front and was never heard from; 3, Alfred, married to Sarah Saylor, removed to Kansas, where he and his wife died: 4, Ephraim; 5, Evan, married to Amanda McCallister, settled in Baltimore County, Md., where he died; 6, Mary, married Daniel R. Saylor, a well-known minister of the Dunkard Church, who died in Frederick County, Md.; 7, Rebecca (Mrs. William Snyder), died in Baltimore City, Md.; 8, Lydia Wolfe. Mr. Wolfe and his wife were members of the German Baptist Church. They died in Baltimore City, and are buried in the cemetery at Pleasant Hill, Md

Mr. Ogle's father, Ephraim Ogle, was born on a farm in Johnsville District, Frederick County, Md., in 1829. He was educated in the public schools of the county, and learned stone-masonry under his brother, William, in Frederick County. He was an expert workman and was employed at his trade until 1904, when he retired from active business and now resides in Johnsville District. Mr. Ogle is a Republican, interested in County affairs. Ephraim Ogle was married to Mary, daughter of Michael and Susan Fillinger, of Johnsville District. Their children are: 1, Albert, of Carroll County, Md., married Alice Kelley; 2, William C., of Carroll County, Md., married Annie Billmyer; 3, Edward, born in 1856, married Ella King, resides in Palmer, Mass.; 4, George, born in 1856, married Almeda Heckathorn, settled in Trotwood, Ohio; 5, Laura (Mrs. George Pittinger), of Frederick County, Md.; 6, Mary (Mrs. George Goodwin), of Carroll County, Md., born in 1860; 7, Harry, of Dayton, Ohio, born in 1870, married Clara Bush; 8, Sidney, of Carroll County, Md., born in 1867, married William Grimm; 9, Charles Abraham. Ephraim Ogle and his wife are members of the Dunkard Church.

Charles A. Ogle received his education in the public schools of Frederick County. He attended the sessions of the school at Mountain View schoolhouse under Mrs. Rebecca Rinehart, James Walburn, Clarence Stoner, Miss Ella Ecker and Frank Wolfe. After completing his public school work, Mr. Ogle took a correspondence course at the Buckeystown Normal school. When he was nineteen, he began his career as a teacher at Lewistown, Frederick County, where he remained for one year. Mr. Ogle has been very successful in teaching and has always enjoyed the respect and confidence of his pupils. After leaving Lewistown, he spent one year in the Mapleville school; two years at Beaver Dam; one year in Brunswick; one year at Ecker school, near Liberty, Md.; then returned to Mapleville for two years; three years at West Falls, Frederick County; three years at Unionville, Frederick County; and three years at the Long, or Friendship school.

In 1907, Mr. Ogle purchased his homestead, "Locust Glen," a farm of 41 acres situated in Woodville District, Frederick County, Md. The house was built about eighty years ago, the barn was put up in 1855. Mr. Ogle is a Republican, interested in all the affairs of the county and is highly esteemed by his fellow citizens.

Charles A. Ogle was married, December 5, 1893, to Carrie, daughter of Cephas and Annie (Warner) Barnes, of Woodville District. Their children are: 1, Ada M., born in 1894; 2, Nora L., born in 1898; 3, Mary V., born January 7, 1903; all born in Frederick County, State of Maryland.

At the present time (1910) Mr. Ogle is deputy Clerk of the Circuit Court for Frederick County, Md.

MAURICE C. BRANDENBURG, who is one among the leading and honorable agriculturists of Middletown district, resides on the old homestead of the family, situated two miles and a-half northeast of Middletown. Here he was born May 1, 1860, and is a son of Daniel and Lydia A. R. (Remsburg) Brandenburg.

Isaac Brandenburg, the grandfather of Maurice C. Brandenburg, purchased the farm now owned by his grandson about a hundred years ago. This tract contains 152 acres, and is one of the best farms in Middletown Valley. Isaac Brandenburg was the father of these children: Mary, married Isaiah Routzhan; Sarah, married John Michael; Daniel; Cornelia, married Jonathan Main; Lydia, the wife of Edward Herring; and Joel.

Daniel Brandenburg, son of Isaac Brandenburg, died at the age of seventy-nine years. He spent his whole life cultivating the farm purchased by his father in Middletown district. He was a supporter of the Republican party, but never sought public office. Religiously, he was a member of Christ Reformed Church of Middletown, in the work of which he was very active, and where he filled the office of deacon. Mr. Brandenburg was married to Lydia A. R. Remsburg, who is living aged seventy-six years. They were the parents of four children: Fannie, the wife of Martin C. Coblentz; Charles H., lives at Tiffin, O.; Maurice C., and Lizzie L., the wife of Calvin R. Coblentz (see his sketch).

Maurice C. Brandenburg, son of Daniel and Lydia A. R. (Remsburg) Brandenburg, was reared on the old homestead, and was educated in the public schools of his native district. Reaching manhood, he chose farming as his vocation, and has followed that occupation for the last thirty years. He is the present owner of the old place upon which his grandfather settled a century ago. Mr. Brandenburg has managed this farm with much ability, and he is one of the prosperous farmers of the vicinity.

In politics, Mr. Brandenburg is a supporter of the principles of the Republican party, and is one of the trustees for the Valley View district. In religion, he is a consistent member of Christ Reformed Church of Middletown, in which he serves in an official capacity, being one of the present deacons.

Mr. Brandenburg was married February 5, 1891, to Martha A. Bussard, daughter of Samuel Bussard, a native of Middletown Valley. There are five children by this marriage: Ira C., Erma F., Grace R., Glenn H., and Emory M.

CALVIN BROWN ANDERS, a retired agriculturist of Clemsonville, Johnsville District, and the proprietor of the "Weeping Willow" farm, containing 160 acres of excellent land, was born at the old Stoner Mill, on Sams Creek, just across the line, in Carroll County, Md., April 11, 1850.

Aaron Anders, the father of Calvin B. Anders, was born in the lower end of Frederick County, in 1820, and died in 1875. He spent his boyhood in his native locality, where he was educated. He learned the milling business, at Waesche's Mill on Double Pipe Creek, now known as Detour, in Carroll County, Md. He later went to the Stoner mill, of which property he took charge. About 1851 Mr. Anders went to Linganore and formed a partnership with Lewis Shull, the firm name being Anders & Shull. Some time afterward Mr. Shull withdrew, and his interest was bought by a Mr. Reifsnyder, the firm changing then to Anders & Reifsnyder. This business association continued until Mr. Anders' death, which occurred August 20, 1875. Mr. Anders was possessed of a strong character. He was a vigorous and an able business man, and as well a great friend of all worthy causes. He was a prominent and esteemed citizen of the county in his day. In politics he was a Republican, and was a member of the Methodist Protestant Church. He is interred in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Frederick City. Mr. Anders was married to Mary Ann Stoner, daughter of Henry and Betsy (Kinzer) Stoner. She was a Dunkard in her religious beliefs, and died in 1855, being buried also in Mount Olivet Cemetery. There were three children by this marriage, namely: Calvin Brown, our subject; Charles Clay, who died at Linganore Mills; and Lizzie, the wife of Edward Saylor, of Frederick City.

Calvin Brown Anders, son of Aaron and Mary Ann (Stoner) Anders, was only a babe a year old when his father removed to Linganore Mills, Frederick County, known now as Linganore Inn. While a lad he assisted his father in the mill and attended the county schools. He also studied at the Frederick Academy, and completed his education in Columbia College, Washington, D. C. Among his schoolmates at the Academy were Dr. Steiner Schley, the late Douglass H. Hargett, and Charles Hargett. After the completion of his schooling, Mr. Anders returned home and entered the employ of Anders & Reifsnyder. After his father's death in 1875, he, with his brother, Charles C. Anders, took their elder's interest, the same firm name being retained, which was the style of the concern for a quarter of a century. Three years later, in 1878, the partnership was dissolved, Mr. C. C. Anders becoming the sole proprietor. This mill was one of the most successful in Frederick County. At that time it turned out thirty thousand barrels, with markets in Baltimore and Washington, D. C. The mill's products became widely known for their superior quality, and the two brands manufactured, known as "Linganore Mills Family Flour" and "Linganore Mills Extra," became famous. In 1878, Mr. Calvin B. Anders went to Double Pipe Creek, now Detour, Carroll County, where he purchased the Double Pipe Creek Mills, known as the Waesche property. This establishment he operated until June, 1881, when the mill was burnt, and never rebuilt. Mr. Anders then moved his family to Union Bridge, the same county, while he went to Wakefield Valley and conducted the David Roop mill for five years. About 1889, he gave up the milling business and located on the farm which he now owns, called "Weeping Willow." This place contains 160 acres of excellent land, and has been greatly improved by Mr. Anders. It is beautifully situated, being on a high elevation, six hundred feet above sea level. Here Mr. Anders farmed until 1903, when he retired that he might enjoy the fruits of his labors. He was also engaged while on the farm in the breeding and raising of Jersey and brown Swiss cows. He is a prominent citizen and his success is well deserved.

During the battle of Monocacy, Mr. Anders, being then a boy, climbed up on a shed to watch the conflict. While intensely interested, a bullet whistled close to his ear and he immediately concluded to return to the house, losing all desire to watch the progress of the fight. In politics, he has been a Republican all of his life. He was at one time the choice of his party for the office of commissioner of Frederick County, but a split occurred in the ranks that year, and he was consequently defeated with the rest of the ticket.

Mr. Anders has been twice married. He was married first February 12, 1878 to Annie Mary Repp, daughter of Christian and Annie Barbara (Wolfe) Repp. She is buried in Mountain View Cemetery, Union Bridge, Carroll County, and was a member of the Lutheran Church of that place. There were three children by this union: Aaron Repp, an attorney-at-law of Frederick; John Oliver, died at the age of twenty years, and Mary the wife of David C. Pearre. Mr. Anders was married secondly January 5, 1909, to Mrs. Maud C. Pittinger, widow of Newton Pittinger and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley (Saylor) Repp. Mrs. Anders was the mother of two children by her first marriage: Elmer W. Pittinger, a farmer of Johnsville District, who married Grace Smith; and Mallie Pittinger, the wife of Jesse Pfoutz, by whom she has three children, Donald, Elmer and Thurston. Since the writing of this sketch Calvin Brown Anders died at his home in Johnsville, February 7, 1910.

HONORABLE AARON R. ANDERS, a highly respected citizen of Frederick County, Md., was born at Double Pipe Creek, Carroll County, Md., April 12, 1879. He is a son of Calvin B. and Mary (Repp) Anders, deceased.

Aaron Anders, the grandfather of Aaron R. Anders, was a member of the firm of Anders & Reifsnider, who conducted an extensive milling business at the place now known as Linganore Hills Inn, in Frederick County, Md.

Calvin B. Anders, son of Aaron Anders, was married to Mary Repp, daughter of Christian Repp, who was a native of Frederick County. She died in 1894.

Aaron R. Anders, son of Calvin B. and Mary (Repp) Anders, was educated in the public schools, Union Bridge High School and New Windsor College. Having decided to take up the legal profession, he read law in the office of Frank L. Stoner, Esq., a prominent attorney of Frederick, for one year. He then entered the Law Department of the University of Maryland, from which institution he was graduated in 1903, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Laws. Subsequently, having passed a successful examination before the State Board of Law Examiners, he was admitted to the Bar, and is now engaged in the practice of his profession in Frederick. He maintains offices in the Central National Bank Building, and is one of the popular young attorneys of the Frederick County Bar. He possesses a large clientele, numbering among it many important interests. He is one of the best known and most successful of the younger members of the Bar.

In politics, Mr. Anders is a stanch supporter of the Republican party. He was elected a member of the Maryland House of Delegates by his party in the fall of 1905, leading his ticket with 1027 votes, and served in the session of 1906. In that session he achieved distinction, having introduced a number of important bills, the most notable of which was the now famous Two Cent Mileage law. In consequence of his splendid service during that session, Mr. Anders was re-elected to represent the people of Frederick County in the Legislature in 1908 by an increased majority of 1205. As a legislator, Mr. Anders' record is a most creditable one, and he has filled the position to the entire satisfaction of his constituents, regardless of partisanship. He has served on a number of committees during his two terms in the House.

Fraternally, Mr. Anders is a member of Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, and Frederick City Lodge, No. 684, B. P. O. E. He has never married. Mr. Anders is a member of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick City.

EUGENE LINCOLN HARRISON was born July 29, 1865, at Keep Tryst, Washington County, Md.

His father, George Otho Harrison, was of English descent and was born in Montgomery County, Md., in 1835. He married Emma Virginia Donaldson, of Washington County, Md., November 7, 1861, and had issue as follows: Eugene Lincoln, the subject of this sketch; William Franklin, born October 27, 1867; and Mary Josephine, born December 23, 1869. He enlisted in the Union Army, Company D, First Maryland Regiment of Potomac Home Brigade Volunteers, on August 20, 1861. He was surrendered to the Confederates with Col. Miles' Army at Harper's Ferry, W. Va., September 15, 1862, was engaged in the battle of Gettysburg, July 1-3, 1863, and was honorably discharged from the Army on September 9, 1864. He then engaged in railroading and was killed in a railroad accident at Bartholows on the Hagerstown Branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, April 19, 1870.

Emma Virginia Donaldson, the wife of George Otho Harrison, was born September 17, 1835, and died December 1, 1897. She was a descendant of the Lytteltons of England, her parents being John Lyttelton Donaldson, of Virginia, and his wife, Mary Norris, of Washington County, Md.

At the age of fifteen years, Mr. Harrison left the public school of his native village and entered the employ of the Telegraph Department of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Sandy Hook, Washington County, Md., where he continued as a telegrapher until 1891 when he removed to the new railroad town of Brunswick, Frederick County, Md., and since that time he has had charge of the Baltimore and Ohio and the Western Union Telegraph at that place.

In 1886 he married Fannie Estella Crutchley of Washington, D. C., and Harper's Ferry, W. Va., a daughter of John William Crutchley, and his second wife, Annie Adelia Garner. Of this union there is issue—William Carleton Harrison, born at Camp Hill, Harper's Ferry, W. Va., April 25, 1887, who attended the private schools of Brunswick, was graduated at Frederick College, Frederick, Md., June 9, 1904, entered the Freshman class at Dickinson College, September 1905, entered Dickinson School of Law, September 1906 and was graduated with the degree of L. L. B., June, 1909. In February of the following year he was admitted to practice before the Maryland Court, of Appeals and the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City. Since that time he has practiced his profession in Baltimore. He was married to Florence F. Bailey, of Cumberland County, Pa., June 9, 1909.

In 1897, Mr. Harrison was by appointment of the Mayor and Council of Brunswick, associated with the following gentlemen upon a committee to revise the charter of Brunswick and to prepare a charter bill for submission to the Legislature: Rev. S. M. Bowman, ex-Mayor, Z. T. Brantner, ex-Mayor John T. Martin, ex-Clerk of the County Court, John L. Jordan, Dr. McPherson, Messrs. J. P. Karn, C. A. Carlisle and B. D. Duvall, with Messrs. Glenn H. Worthington and Clayton O. Keedy as counsel. Mr. Harrison was elected Secretary of this Committee and was active in securing the incorporation of a number of progressive features in the new Charter. Among them was a provision for the creation of a local Health Department. In the same year the Mayor and Council appointed Mr. Harrison a member of the Board of Health. His colleagues being Dr. A. G. Horine, and ex-Mayor Z. T. Brantner. Mr. Harrison was elected Secretary of this board and continued to serve in that capacity until September, 1899—within that period the following changes took place within the Board: Dr. H. S. Hedges succeeded Dr. Horine, and ex-Mayor John T. Martin succeeded Mr. Brantner. In his annual report of 1898 to Governor Lowndes, Dr. John S. Fulton, Secretary of the State Board of Health, commended the work of the Brunswick Board highly.

Mr. Harrison has been a member of the Board of District School Trustees since 1900 and has been president of the Board since 1907.

His colleagues on this Board from time to time were, ex-Mayor John T. Martin, ex-Mayor R. T. Ault, Messrs. B. D. Duvall and George E. Miles. Mr. Harrison has devoted himself with zeal and energy to the improvement of the Public School facilities of Brunswick. During the term of his office the High School was established, manual training and business courses introduced, the school advanced to the list of accredited high schools of the state, new buildings have been erected, the teaching force increased from six teachers in 1900 to eighteen in 1910. At the present time the Board of which he is president is engaged in a movement looking to the erection of a new High School building with modern equipment to be centrally located in the town.

Mr. Harrison has been active in the cause of organized labor—being a member of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers since 1892, and was for several years an organizer for the American Federation of Labor.

In politics Mr. Harrison is a Republican and has been more or less active in County politics since 1896. In 1903 he was encouraged by his friends to announce himself for the House of Delegates and finding that he was opposed by a strong element within the organization he was compelled to make one of the most strenuous fights ever witnessed in the District. He won out, however, in the primary and in the convention. In the election that followed he was again successful, leading the Legislative ticket. In the Legislature he followed his party organization in all political measures but his independent attitude toward other questions made him distasteful to the professional politicians. His unobtrusive manners made him a number of friends at Annapolis and he was fairly successful with all that he undertook there.

Ever since Mr. Harrison became active in community affairs he has been classed as an Anti-Saloonist. His experience at Annapolis had the effect of fixing his convictions upon the saloon question with even a greater degree of positiveness than before. In 1905 he identified himself with the Anti-Saloon League and became active in the League affairs in his home county. In 1906 he was one of the leaders in opposition to the most spirited effort ever made to legalize the sale of intoxicants in Brunswick. This contest was fought fiercely throughout the entire Legislative session of 1906 and was the most thoroughly advertised local measure of that session. The defeat of this bill was one of the last acts of the Senate before final adjournment.

In 1905 a public meeting was held in Brunswick by representatives of the R. R. Y. M. C. A. with the end in view of establishing a branch of their organization in that town. The following committee was appointed to solicit funds to further that cause: Messrs. John T. Martin, Z. T. Brantner, T. A. Sigafoose, Dr. H. S. Hedges and Mr. Harrison. This committee was subsequently enlarged. Mr. Harrison was elected Secretary of the Committee and served in that capacity until the building was erected, equipped and the Association successfully established.

Mr. Harrison is a Past Chancellor Commander of Loyalty Lodge No. 122, K. of P., and is a member of Delaware Tribe No. 43, I. O. R. M.

He is a lover of books, being a diligent reader from his boyhood. His range of reading is extensive, including a course in Law. His literary taste is discriminating and his collection of books shows evidence of careful selection. His habits are domestic, his manners unobtrusive. His chief characteristic is earnestness. His convictions are strong. His conclusions are formed slowly and he does not easily turn aside from them. Throughout his life he has been handicapped by physical and temperamental disabilities, but by force of will-power he has to some extent at least overcome these impediments.

JOHN P. T. MATHIAS, one of the most prominent citizens of Thurmont, Md., and well-known in political circles, was born on a farm near Creagerstown, Frederick County, Md., September 7, 1848. He is a son of Philip and Eleanor Carmack (Stimmel) Mathias.

Griffith Mathias, grandfather of John P. T. Mathias, served in the Revolutionary War as a recruiting officer from Maryland. He was the father of two children: Philip and Rose Ann.

Philip Mathias, son of Griffith Mathias, died at the age of eighty-two years. He spent his life following the occupation of a farmer. He was married to Eleanor Carmack Stimmel, who lived to be eighty-eight years old. They were the parents of the following children: Eliza J., the wife of Capt. J. W. Stocksdale, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Laura, the wife of J. B. Ogle, of Rocky Ridge, Frederick County, Md.; Ella J., the wife of Joseph Routzahn, deceased, of Dayton, O.; Elizabeth, who married Irvin W. Loy, of Thurmont; John P. T.; Alice, who married C. B. Routzahn, of Ohio; Rose, the wife of Charles H. Krise, of Waynesboro, Pa.; Susan, married C. N. Thomas, of Frederick, Md.; Etta S., married C. L. Hartsock, Frederick; Park G., of West Virginia; and Abbie, the wife of D. S. Snively, of Hagerstown, Md.

John P. S. Mathias

John P. T. Mathias, son of Philip and Eleanor Carmack (Stimmel) Mathias, was raised on a farm and received his education in the public and private schools of Frederick County. While a young man, he became a clerk in the store of Lewis Wachter, at Lewistown, Md., and later he was in the employ of O. T. Zimmerman, of the same place. After some time, he went to Baltimore and entered the hat trade as a traveling salesman for the firm of Adams, Buck & Company, wholesale hatters. After he had been on the road for some time, he fromed a partnership with Captain Irvin A. Buck, trading under the firm name of Buck & Mathias, and they engaged in the wholesale hat business, which was continued until the fall of 1893. After closing out this business, he retired and located in Thurmont, where he has since continued to make his home. Mr. Mathias, who is one of Thurmont's leading citizens is highly esteemed by all who know him. He is a director in the Citizens' National Bank of Thurmont. He has large land interests in West Virginia, and owns considerable excellent farm land.

In politics, Mr. Mathias is an active supporter and stanch adherent of the Republican party. In the fall of 1901, he was nominated by his party for the Maryland House of Delegates and was elected, serving in the session of 1902. While a member of the House he served on various committees, including Education and Printing. In 1907, he was the candidate of his party for the State Senate and was elected by the large majority of twelve hundred. In both branches of the Legislature his record has been an enviable one, and he has always had the best interests of his constituents at heart. He was a delegate to the National Convention that met at Chicago in 1908, and nominated William H. Taft for President, Mr. Mathias being vice-president of the Maryland delegation.

Fraternally, Mr. Mathias is a member of Acacia Lodge, No. 155, A. F. and A. M., Thurmont; Jerusalem Council, Royal Arch Chapter, No. 109, Baltimore; Beausant Commandery, No. 8, Knights Templar of Baltimore, and of the Knights of Pythias. In religion, he is an active and consistent member of St. John's Lutheran Church, in which he is an elder. For four years, he served as county president of the Christian Endeavor Society. He is also a stanch supporter of the Anti-Saloon League of Frederick County.

Mr. Mathias was married July 2, 1879, to Elizabeth Agnes McCurdy, daughter of Hon. Charles and Amanda (Wysong) McCurdy, of Charlestown, West Va. They have one son, Charles McCurdy, who was graduated from John Hopkins' University, Baltimore, in 1908, and is now a student in the Law Department of the University of Maryland.

CHARLES BYERLY, proprietor of the well-known and long established art and photograph gallery that was founded nearly seventy-five years ago in Frederick City, Md., was born in that city, January 24, 1874. He is a son of John Davis and Mary (Markell) Byerly.

Jacob Byerly, the grandfather of Charles Byerly, a son of Henry Byerly, was a native of Pennsylvania, and descended of an old German family of that State. Jacob Byerly was also a native of Pennsylvania, and in 1842 removed to Frederick City, where he died in 1881. He engaged in the making of daguerreotypes, the forerunners of modern photography. He established the business that is now conducted by his grandson, Charles Byerly. He met with success in his undertaking, and was one of the leading citizens of Frederick in his time. He was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He was married to Catharine Bear, daughter of David Bear, of Cumberland County, Pa.

John Davis Byerly, the father of Charles Byerly, son of Jacob and Catharine (Bear) Byerly, was born in Newville, Cumberland County, Pa., in 1839. He came to Frederick with his parents, where he was reared and received his education. He learned the trade of a photographer under his father, and for many years conducted the business now owned by his son, Charles Byerly. He met with substantial success, and in 1899 retired from active business cares. He is one of the leading and best known citizens of Frederick. In politics, he has always been an adherent of the Republican party. Fraternally, he is a member of the Order of Red Men. He is affiliated in a religious way with Grace Reformed Church of Frederick, of which he is an active and consistent member. Mr. Byerly was married in 1869, to Mary Markell, daughter of George Markell, who was a prominent merchant of Frederick. She is also a member of Grace Reformed Church. They were the parents of four children, two of whom survive: Charles, of whom presently, and Mary Catharine, the wife of Thomas A. Chapline.

Charles Byerly, son of John Davis and Mary (Markell) Byerly, received his education in the public schools of Frederick and at the Frederick City Academy. He learned the trade of his father and grandfather, that of a photographer, and was associated in that business with his father until 1899, when he became the proprietor of the business, which he has since conducted. This gallery is located in North Market street, and was founded nearly three quarters of a century ago by the grandfather of the present owner. He has met with substantial success in the undertaking, and his establishment is one of the leading photograph galleries of the city. He is well known, and is highly esteemed by all who know him.

In politics, Mr. Byerly is a member of the Republican party. He is allied in a religious way with the Lutheran Church. He is also a member of the Frederick City Lodge, No. 684, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

Mr. Byerly was married in 1902, to Regina Eisenhaur, daughter of John Eisenhaur, a well-known merchant of Frederick City. Mr. and Mrs. Byerly are the parents of two sons, John F. and Charles.

MELVILLE E. DOLL, one of the leading and best known citizens of Frederick County, and president of the Fredericktown Savings Institute of Frederick City, was born in Frederick District No. 2, March 4, 1837. He is a son of Ezra and Harriet (Zeiler) Doll.

The Doll family is of German origin and was among the early settled families of Frederick County. Ezra Doll was an active business man, and died in Frederick at the age of forty-three years. Politically he was an old-line Whig, and in religion he was a member of the Reformed Church. His wife was Harriet Zeiler. They were the parents of eight children, six of whom grew to maturity: Louisa B., married to Henry J. Stahle, of Gettysburg, Pa.; Joseph G., deceased; Lewis H., deceased; Charles, deceased; Melville E., of whom presently; and Samuel V., of Frederick City, retired.

Melville E. Doll resided on a farm until the death of his father when he was but six years of age. He then removed to Frederick with his mother, where he attended the public schools until he was eleven years old. He then went to Gettysburg, Pa., to learn the printers' trade under his brother-in-law, H. J. Stahle, at that time editor and proprietor of "The Compiler," an old weekly paper of Adams County, Pa. Here he followed the occupation of a printer until 1866, when he returned to Frederick, and engaged in the drygoods business, the firm being known as G. J. Doll & Brother. This partnership was continued until 1876, when Mr. Doll engaged in the real estate and insurance business under the firm name of Doll & Albaugh. This firm continued to do business until 1901, when it was dissolved through the death of Mr. Albaugh. In 1896, Mr. Doll was elected president of the Fredericktown Savings Institute, of Frederick City, which position he still retains. He has ably discharged the duties of his office, and the business of which he is the head has enjoyed increased prosperity under his careful and intelligent management.

The Fredericktown Savings Institution was founded in 1828, and is one of the oldest and soundest financial institutions in the State of Maryland. Outside of the city of Baltimore, it transacts more business than any similar financial undertaking in the State. It has recently moved into its new and handsome bank building, which was constructed at a cost of more than $60,000. It is built of granite, strictly fire and burglar proof, with all the latest banking house improvements. Since Mr. Doll assumed the presidency, the deposits have increased over $450.000, and the total deposits now aggregate over $1,000,000.

Politically, Mr. Doll has been a life long adherent of Democratic principles. In religion he is an active and consistent member of the Evangelical Reformed Church, of Frederick, in which he has served as deacon and elder. In 1867, Mr. Doll was married to Hannah M. Danner, of Gettysburg, Pa., who is descended from an old and respected family of Pennsylvania. There is no issue by this marriage.

Mr. Doll is strictly a self-made man, having started in life as a poor boy, and by dint of industry and perseverance has worked himself up to the position he now occupies.

FREDERICK WORMAN CRAMER, one of the younger members of the Frederick County Bar, with offices at No. 11 East Church street, Frederick City, was born January 14, 1883. He is a son of George L. and Mary O. (Worman) Cramer.

David Cramer, the great-grandfather of Frederick W. Cramer, was a farmer in Walkersville District, Frederick County. His homestead is still in the possession of the family. In politics he was a Democrat and in religion a member of the Reformed Church. The Cramer family is of German origin, and has been settled in Frederick County for over 125 years.

George Cramer, son of David Cramer, and grandson of Johannus Cramer, was born on the old Cramer homestead in Walkersville District, in 1819, and died there in 1890. He followed the occupation of a farmer, and was well known and highly respected in the community in which he spent his entire life. He was married to Catharine Reynolds. She was born near Frederick in 1827, and died in 1895. They were the parents of eight children, seven of whom grew to maturity: George L.; John D., a farmer; S. Clinton, retired; Harriet R., the widow of the late W. O. Hughes, of Baltimore, Md.; Charles G., a retired farmer; Noah E., a business man of Frederick, and William A., a merchant at Walkersville, Md.

George L. Cramer, son of George and Catharine (Reynolds) Cramer, was born in Frederick County, May 24, 1851. He is a well-known business man of Frederick, being head of the firm of George L. Cramer & Sons, real estate and insurance brokers. Mr. Cramer was married to Mary O. Worman, daughter of Dr. Andrew and Sophia (Cronise) Worman, who were well known in their day. Mr. and Mrs. Cramer were the parents of two sons: Frederick Worman, and William L., members of the real estate firm of which their father is the head, and one daughter, Mary Reynolds Cramer, who died in December, 1890. Five years after the death of his first wife, which occurred in 1890, George L. Cramer was married to May G. Brewer, eldest daughter of William G. and Ida Brewer, of Montgomery County, Md., from which marriage one child was born, a daughter, Catharine Reynolds Cramer.

Frederick Worman Cramer, son of George L. and Mary O. (Worman) Cramer, was born and reared in Frederick City. While a boy he attended the public schools of his native town and the Frederick City College. He was graduated from Briarley Hall Seminary, and later from Washington and Lee University, at Lexington, Va., in 1903, with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. He decided to take up the study of the law, and with this end in view entered the Law Department of the University of Maryland, from which institution he was graduated in 1905 with the degree of L. L. B. He returned home, and was admitted to the Frederick County Bar.

In politics, Mr. Cramer is affiliated with the Democratic party. In November, 1907, he was nominated by his party a candidate for the Maryland House of Delegates from Frederick County, but was defeated with the rest of the ticket. Fraternally, Mr. Cramer is a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M.; Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, Frederick City Lodge, No. 1, I. O. O. F., and Frederick City Lodge, No. 684, B. P. O. E. He is also a member of the Frederick Young Men's Christian Association. Mr. Cramer is a member of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick, and a teacher in the Sunday School.

JOHN SEBASTIAN LAKIN, deceased, a son of Captain William and Susan (Remsberg) Lakin, was born on the home farm near Jefferson, Frederick Co., Md., July 10, 1838. He was a farmer, and a well-known citizen, highly esteemed by all who knew him for his upright character and friendly disposition.

Mr. Lakin passed his early years on the farm, acquiring a good education, which he had the ability to turn to practical account. He was twelve years of age when his father died, and his mother, an excellent woman, of strong character, and a good manager, took charge of the affairs of the farm. Her sons worked harmoniously together for the common good of the family. When the property was divided, Mr. John S. Lakin received as his share the farm of 198 acres which was his home for the remainder of his life. This tract was known as a part of the "Mary Peep-o'-day farm;" it is now called the "Mountain Daisy farm." Mr. Lakin made various improvements upon it; in 1889, he erected a barn, built up fencing, etc. The dwelling was completed in 1901; and since Mr. Lakin's death, Mrs. Lakin has added other needed buildings.

John S. Lakin died September 17, 1903, and is buried in the Jefferson Cemetery. He was a devout member of the Reformed Church at Jefferson, in which he was for a long time an office-holder; for twenty-one years, he was superintendent of the Sunday School. In politics, he always adhered to the Democratic party.

On April 15, 1890, John Sebastian Lakin was married to Bertha Ellen, daughter of Cornelius and Margaret (Heck) Cochran. Their children are: William Cochran, born November 12, 1891; and John Henry, born December 31, 1894.

ALLEN D. HOOVER, a miller and agriculturist, residing on Owen's Creek, one mile east of the village of Graceham, in Mechanicstown District, Frederick County, was born January 17, 1861. He is a son of George A. and Susan E. (Shearer) Hoover.

The Hoover family, or as the name was originally spelled, the Huber family, is of Swiss origin. The American progenitor settled in Pennsylvania, in Manor township, Lancaster County, whence his children located in Frederick and Washington Counties, Md., and York and Franklin Counties, Pa.

Daniel Hoover, grandfather of Allen D. Hoover, spent his life following the occupation of a farmer near the town of Graceham, Frederick County. He was the father of four children: George A.; Lillie, deceased, married Allen S. Shearer; John, deceased; Catharine A., unmarried of Waynesboro, Pa.

George A. Hoover, the father of Allen D. Hoover, was born in 1835, and died September 1, 1887. He was a farmer and miller, living for more than half a century at the place now owned by his son. He was a Republican in politics, and in religion a member of the German Baptist Church. He was highly respected in the community in which he made his home. Mr. Hoover was married about 1859 to Susan E. Shearer. They were the parents of three children: Emma Elizabeth, the wife of A. J. Valentine, a machinist with the Geiser Manufacturing Company, of Waynesboro, Pa.; Allen D.; and Annie Catharine, the wife of Solomon Longnecker, a farmer near Rigely, Caroline County, Md.

Allen D. Hoover, son of George A. and Susan E. (Shearer) Hoover, was born and reared on the old mill property. He was educated in the public schools. Under his father, he learned the trade of a miller, beginning this occupation at the age of fourteen years. He followed his trade in his father's mill until the latter's death. After his father's death, he conducted the mill until 1893, in which year he bought the property from the estate, and has since managed the business. The present mill stands in sight of the original mill that was built by Sebastian Stonebraker and Jeremiah Martin, in 1775, one of the first mills erected in that part of Western Maryland. In 1777, Stonebraker sold his interest to his partner, Jeremiah Martin, for sixteen pounds sterling. The old mill was built of brick and stone and stood until 1884, when the present mill was erected by George A. Hoover. The land upon which the old mill stood was granted by the English Crown to Martin and Stonebraker. Mr. Hoover has been very successful in his management of the property, and he is well known in the district wherein he resides.

Politically, Mr. Hoover is a Republican. In religion he is a member of the Church of Brethren at Rocky Ridge, in which he serves in an official capacity, being a deacon.

Mr. Hoover was married February 13, 1889, to Clara I. Fisher, daughter of David and Maria Fisher, of Frederick County, both deceased. They are the parents of six children: Maria Elizabeth, Edna Missouri, George David, Wilbur Newton, Clara Catharine, and Theodore Allen.

David and Maria Fisher, Mrs. Hoover's parents, were the parents of the following children: George, deceased; I. M., of Motter's Station, Frederick County; Frederick C., a farmer and well driller; Irwin J., of Waynesboro, Pa.; George Newton, a miller at Thurmont; Emma E., wife of Calvin Hiena, of Walkersville, Md.; Ada N., the wife of George E. Willhide, of Thurmont; and Clara J., the wife of Allen D. Hoover.

MARION S. MICHAEL, a retired farmer of Buckeystown District, Frederick County, Md., son of Ezra and Margaret E. (Dudderar) Michael, was born on the Old Michael homestead, adjoining his home near Doubs, Md., September 18, 1852.

Andrew Michael the 2nd, grandfather of Marion S. Michael, was born in Pennsylvania, July 25, 1773, was brought to Maryland, when three months old, and lived and died on the same farm. His father, who was of German descent, was one of the early settlers of that State. In 1773 Andrew Michael the 1st, the subject's great grandfather, came from Germany and removed to Maryland, and bought 350 acres of land in Frederick County, a part of the land now owned by his grandson, Marion S. Michael. He was one of the first settlers of that section of the county, and spent his life in improving his property. He was well and favorably known among the old citizens of the county. Andrew Michael was married to Miss Jennie Grisbert. Their children are: 1, Henry S., deceased, a farmer of Buckeystown District; 2, Samuel A., deceased, a farmer on St. Mary's, Vego County, Ind.; 3, Ezra; 4, Daniel, of Illinois; 5, Eliza, deceased, married to the late Elias Delashmutt, a retired farmer of Frederick City; 6, Sarah, deceased, married to the late Arthur Delashmutt, a merchant of Buckeystown, Md. Mr. Michael and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church. They died in Frederick County, and were buried in the graveyard on their farm.

Mr. Michael's father, Ezra Michael, was born on the homestead in Frederick County, November 9, 1813. He attended the public schools of Buckeystown District, and remained on the homestead with his father until he married, when he began farming for himself on one of his father's farms. After his father's death, Mr. Michael inherited 175 acres of the homestead. This he improved in every way putting up a comfortable two-story frame dwelling. He afterwards purchased 150 acres adjoining his first farm which he improved by careful cultivation. Still later, Mr. Michael bought two fine farms containing 510 acres of excellent land, the property of the late Otho Thomas. These farms which are situated about a mile and a-half south of Doubs, Md., he improved until they are counted among the best farm properties in Buckeystown District. He was one of the richest and most progressive farmers, of his day, in Frederick County, and was greatly honored by his large circle of friends. He was one of the first magistrates of the district, and held the office for a number of years. He toiled and cared for his land and reaped a rich reward. He was a stanch Democrat, interested in the progress of the community. Ezra Michael was married to Sophia Thomas, whose parents were the descendants of families prominent in the district. Mrs. Michael and only child of this union, died—the latter only a few days old—and were buried in the same grave, in the family graveyard on the farm. Mr. Michael's second wife was Margaret E., daughter of the late Philip Dudderar, a prominent farmer of Urbana District. They had nine children, seven of whom reached maturity: 1, Anna A., married to the late Nicholas O. Kline, of Boston, Mass.; 2, Alice, widow of the late William A. James, of Norfolk, Va.; 3, Eugenia, widow of the late Daniel J. Michael, of Frederick City; 4, Marion S.; 5, Harvy N., with the Standard Lime and Stone Company, of Martinsburg, West Va.; 6, Ella, died unmarried; 7, Martin B., deceased. Mr. Michael and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church at Doubs, Md. He was one of the most active members and assisted greatly in building the church edifice in which he afterwards worshipped. He held various offices in the congregation. He died, March 16, 1886, and was buried in Mt. Olivet Cemetery. His wife, who died, October 1, 1897, was laid by his side.

Marion S. Michael attended the public schools of Buckeystown District and remained at home assisting his father until he was twenty-six, when he began farming for himself, his father having retired. At the death of his uncle, Mr. Michael bought his farm of 175 acres, which he afterwards sold to John P. Hickman. When his father died, he became the owner of the homestead, on which he resides. This place is one of the fine dairy farms of the County. It is beautifully situated along the line of the Baltimore and Ohio R. R., one mile south of Doubs, and ten miles south of Frederick, on the Point of Rocks road. Mr. Michael has remodeled the dwelling, put up a bank barn, convenient outbuildings, and brought the land to the highest point of cultivation. He also owns 75 acres of valuable timber land in Catoctin Mountain. Mr. Michael ascribes his good fortune to industry and attention to business. He is one of the prominent men of the county and a reliable citizen. He is one of the leaders of the Prohibition party in Frederick County.

Marion S. Michael was married to Alice, daughter of George W. and Mary (Zimmerman) Copeland, whose father was a prominent miller of Frederick. Their children are: 1, Grace E., married to Elmer Compher, of Doubs, railway mail clerk; 2, Bertha V., married to Otho B. Thomas, farming the old homestead; 3, Annie A., married to Charles D. Hickman, merchant and postmaster at Doubs, Md.; 4, Elmer E.; 5, Walter M., both at home, employed in the railway mail service. Mr. Michael and his wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Doubs. He is a liberal contributor and has served the congregation in various offices.

IRA J. YOUNG, a son of Jacob and Charlotte (Ahalt) Young, was born, December 5, 1870, on the farm where he still resides, and which has been in the family more than one hundred and twenty years. This farm comprises 266 acres, and besides cultivating it, Mr. Young carries on a saw-mill.

Mr. Young's great-grandfather, Conrad Young, came to America from Germany about the year 1770, with his wife. Their children were all of American birth. Conrad Young bought 1000 acres of land in Locust Valley, and erected a saw mill, for which he prepared the timber himself. He also farmed the land that he had cleared. He had two sons, Daniel and John, between whom he divided his land; John Young settled on what is now known as the Beachley farm.

Daniel Young, grandfather of Ira J. Young, was born in 18—, grew to manhood here, and lived on the land assigned to him by his father until 1864, when he sold it to his son, Jacob Young, and removed to Springfield, Ohio, where he bought land, and passed the rest of his life. Daniel Young married Miss Bowlus; their children were: 1, Elizabeth (Mrs. Ezra Smith); 2, Marietta, who died unmarried; 3, Jacob; 4, Julia Ann (Mrs. Martin Castle), removed to Ohio; 5, Sophia (Mrs. Samuel Sigler), removed to Ohio; 6, Lewis, married Miss Arnold; 7, Henry, married Miss Remsburg; 8, Daniel, unmarried, lives in Ohio; 9, Lena, unmarried; 10, Katherine, (Mrs. George Sheaf).

Jacob Young, eldest son of Daniel Young, was born on the homestead, December 26, 1824. He received his education in subscription schools; in early manhood, he himself taught schools in Ohio. Returning eastward, he married Miss Charlotte Ahalt; some time after, they went to Springfield, O., where Mr. Young farmed for some time. Then, coming back to Frederick County, he bought the mill property and the homestead farm, and remained here until 1903. In the Fall of that year, Mr. Young went to Quebec, and stayed for some time at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Remsburg. After his return, he bought property in Middletown; there he passed the short remainder of his life, dying March 19, 1906. His widow still survives him, at the age of seventy-seven years. Jacob Young was all his life a member of the Lutheran Church, in which for many years he held office. In politics, he was Republican.

The children of Jacob and Charlotte (Ahalt) Young are: 1, Myra Loretta (Mrs. William Maught); her husband is deceased, and she resides in Middletown; 2, Julia (Mrs. George Shaffer), living near Burkittsville; 3, Martha (Mrs. John Flook), living near Myersville; 4, Katherine (Mrs. Andrew Arnold), residing near Brunswick, Md.; 5, Ira J.; 6, Emma (Mrs. Hiram Remsburg), lives near Middletown, Md.

Ira J. Young received his education in the public school of his district (Sigler's). His first teacher at this school was William Giddings. His school days ended when he reached the age of nineteen years. He learned the work of the saw mill on an old-fashioned upright saw, at the home place. In his nineteenth year, Mr. Young went to Ohio to make a short visit, after which he remained on the farm, which he bought in 1903.

On December 14, 1897, Ira J. Young was married to Miss Virginia, daughter of George and Sarah (Criswell) Baker, of Keedysville, Their children are: 1, Jacob; 2, Rachel, deceased; 3, Virginia; 4, David; 5, Mary. In politics, Mr. Young is Republican. He is a member of the Lutheran Church at Burkittsville. Mrs. Young is a member of the United Brethren Church, at Keedysville, Md.

REV. JOHN S. WEYBRIGHT, a preacher of the Church of the Brethren and one of Thurmont's hustling business men, was born on Double Pipe Creek, in Carroll County, Md., August 2, 1863. He is a son of Samuel and Mary A. (Snader) Weybright.

John Weybright, grandfather of Rev. John S. Weybright, was a native of Ohio, being born near Dayton. He was married to a Miss Royer, by whom he had five children, one of whom was Samuel.

Samuel Weybright was born November 27, 1837. He is now living retired at Detour, Carroll County, Md. He spent his active life following agricultural pursuits. In politics, he is a Republican. In religion, he is a member of the Church of the Brethren of the United States, and for the past forty years has been a deacon in the church at Rocky Ridge. He was married to Mary A. Snader. They were the parents of the following children: John S.; Jesse P., a farmer of Carroll County, Md.; Annie M., the wife of Prof. John T. Royer, of Westminster, Md.; Martha L., the wife of C. W. Baker, of Milwaukee, Wis.; Jacob, deceased; Vernon J., deceased; Samuel R., residing on the old home farm in Carroll County; and Mary R., with her parents now in Detour.

John S. Weybright, son of Samuel and Mary A. (Snader) Weybright, was raised to manhood on a farm. His education he received in the public schools and at New Windsor, Md. He followed the occupation of a farmer for three years, at the end of which time he engaged in the implement business at Detour, Carroll County, Md. This he conducted for seven years. He then sold his establishment and returned to farming, following agriculture for a period of twelve years. In March, 1907, he located in Thurmont, and engaged in the flour, feed, grain and implement business. He has since remained in this branch of trade, and has met with much success. In the few years he has been in Thurmont, he has made many friends, and ranks high among the business men of that thriving town.

In politics, Rev. Weybright is a Republican. In religion, he is a member and Elder of the Church of Brethren of the United States at Rocky Ridge, Md., and is the preacher for the Rocky Ridge, Thurmont, Mountain Dale and Fountain Dale congregations. Rev. Weybright has been trustee and secretary of the board of the Maryland Collegiate Institute at Union Bridge, Md., now Blue Ridge College, since its organization in 1898.

Rev. Weybright was married December 24,

1884, to Annie Elsworth Saylor, daughter of Elder Daniel R. Saylor, of Detour, Carroll County, Md. They have two children: D. Saylor and Ruth Ella.

JAMES G. STEVENS, of Creagerstown, Md., manufacturer and dealer in hard wood and lumber, son of Charles and Eliza (Crouse) Stevens, was born in Creagerstown, December 21, 1868.

(For family history see biographical sketch of his brother, Frank M. Stevens, which appears in this volume).

James G. Stevens attended the public schools of Creagerstown, and completed his education by a business course in Eaton & Burnett's Business College, in Baltimore, Md. Having finished his course, he spent a short time at home and soon secured a position with the Pennsylvania Steel Company at Steelton, Pa. After serving the company for three years, he resigned his position to accept another with the Lorrilard Tobacco Company, of Jersey City, N. J., with whom he remained for two years, when he was called to the homestead by the serious illness of his father. Mr. Stevens now assumed charge of the home farm, which he cultivated successfully for one year. He then began business for himself as a dealer in lumber. In this he has succeeded admirably. He now owns and manages a saw-mill situated at the foot of the Mountain from which he ships thousands of feet of lumber to all parts of the State. The lumber used in the building of many fine residences and barns in Frederick County was manufactured in his plant. Mr. Stevens owns 100 acres of excellent timber land on the Mountain, and a beautiful residence in Creagerstown. All the lumber required for the house, barn, and outbuildings was the product of his own mill. He has been a hard worker, diligent and faithful in business and to these qualities attributes his financial success. He was appointed Justice of the Peace in Creagerstown District, by Governor Warfield and discharged the duties of the office faithfully, giving entire satisfaction to the community. Mr. Stevens is highly esteemed in the district. He is a member of Acacia Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 155, of Thurmont, and of the Improved Order of Odd Fellows. He is a stockholder in the Creagerstown and Woodsboro Turnpike Company, and in the Woodsboro Canning Company.

James G. Stevens was married to Nannie, daughter of Eugene D. and Sarah Jane (Bell) Stamp, of Creagerstown District. Their children are: 1, Lucy; 2, Isaac L., both at home. Mr. Stevens and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church. The mother of Mrs. Stevens is dead; her father, who is a retired farmer, is a prominent man in Creagerstown District.

At the end of that time he was elected chief bailiff of Brunswick, holding this position from September 1, 1897, until 1900. In the latter year he was appointed assistant postmaster of Brunswick under L. S. Gardner. In 1902, he was appointed by President Roosevelt as postmaster, and in 1906, was reappointed for a second term. Mr. Spitzer owes his success in life entirely to his own efforts, and has reached his present position in life by reason of hard work and temperate habits.

In politics, Mr. Spitzer has always been a stanch supporter and adherent of the Republican party. Fraternally, he is a member of Loyalty Lodge, No. 122, Knights of Pythias, and Delaware Tribe, No. 43, Improved Order of Red Men, Brunswick.

Mr. Spitzer was married December 27, 1888, to Julia Minnick, of Broadway, Va., and they have one son, Frank L., who was appointed in July, 1906, as assistant postmaster under his father.

GEORGE H. ZIMMERMAN, treasurer and director of the Union Manufacturing Company, one of the leading industries of Frederick County, is a prominent citizen of the community in which he resides. He was born in Walkersville District, Frederick County, Md., May 11, 1850, and is a son of William H. and Sarah A. Zimmerman.

The Zimmerman family has been long settled in Pennsylvania, where the forebears were among the early German settlers.

William H. Zimmerman was born in the vicinity of Walkersville, Frederick County, Md., in April, 1826, and died in Frederick City, in 1907. He was in early life a miller, but in 1867, he located in Frederick, where he engaged in the grocery business. He was for many years one of the leading grocers of the place, and his establishment ranked well with similar mercantile enterprises. In religious affairs, he was a consistent member of the Lutheran Church, and in political belief was always a Republican. Mr. Zimmerman was married to Sarah A. Donsife, daughter of Henry C. Donsife, who was a blacksmith in Woodsboro, Md. They were the parents of five children: George H.; Annie, the wife of Henry A. Hahn, a tanner of Frederick (see his sketch); Amanda D. and Clara E., who are unmarried; and David E., engaged in the grocery business at his father's old stand.

George H. Zimmerman spent his early years in Walkersville district, and acquired a general education in the public schools. When he was fourteen years of age, he began life for himself by becoming a clerk in the store of Zimmerman & Schultz, at Sykesville, Md., where he remained for about three years. In 1867, he came to Frederick, where he has ever since made his home. He was employed in his father's grocery store until 1870, when he was chosen teller of the First National Bank of Frederick. This position he filled for a period of seventeen years, at the end of which time he resigned to accept the office of assistant cashier of the Frederick County National Bank. With this financial institution he remained until 1889, in which year he was one of the organizers of the Union Manufacturing Company of Frederick. He was chosen treasurer and general manager of the new enterprise and being desirous to assure its success, he resigned his position with the Bank. He has since remained identified with this concern, and during his management the establishment has from time to time been enlarged until now it is one of the leading manufacturing plants in western Maryland. This company is one of the leading enterprises located in Frederick City, and gives employment to hundreds of persons all the year around. The building is 40x210 feet, a three-story brick structure, with all the modern and improved machinery and appliances for carrying on the business and meeting the needs of those employed beneath its roof. He is numbered among the most substantial business men of Frederick. His experience in commercial affairs extends over a long period, during which he has risen to his present responsible position entirely by his own efforts and ability. He has held the following positions of trust for many years: Director of the Frederick County National Bank, Trustee of the Loats Orphan Asylum, and Trustee and Treasurer of the Home of the Aged, Frederick, Md.

Politically, he votes the Republican ticket, and served from 1898 to 1901 as a member of the Frederick City Council. Fraternally, he is very prominent in Masonic circles, having risen to the thirty-second degree, and being a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., Enoch Chapter, No. 23, Royal Arch Masons, and Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar. In religious affairs, he takes a keen interest. He is a leading and active member of the Lutheran Church in which he for many years served in official capacities, having been Treasurer of its Sunday School for 20 years.

He was married in 1873 to Florence V. Frazier, the eldest daughter of David Frazier, of Frederick City. There are fire children by this marriage: William D., teller for the Frederick County National Bank; Thomas L., manager for the Union Manufacturing Company, of Frederick; Bertha L.; wife of Willard Markey, Washington, D. C.; Grace E.; and George C., who is bookkeeper and manager of the office of the Mountain City Mills, Frederick.

ELI G. HAUGH, Deputy Clerk of the Circuit Court of Frederick County, Md., son of William and Elizabeth (Cramer) Haugh, was born near Ladiesburg, in Johnsville District, Frederick County, Md., January 25, 1866.

Powell Haugh, great-grandfather of Eli G. Haugh, a native of Switzerland, was one of the early settlers of the northern part of Frederick County, where he owned a valuable farm, now the property of Samuel C. Haugh, at Haugh's Church. Powell Haugh gave the ground for the erection of this church which bears his name, and it was the first church built in this section of Maryland. The original edifice stood within a few hundred feet of the present building. Powell Haugh lived and died on this farm and is buried in the graveyard of Haugh's Church. Among his children was a son named William.

William Haugh, grandfather of Eli G. Haugh, was born on a farm in the northern part of Frederick County, where his youth was spent. He was educated in the public schools of his native district, and learned blacksmithing. He owned a farm and a smithy on the old York Road, near Ladiesburg, and devoted his time to the cultivation of his land, and the work of his smithy, thereby earning success. Mr. Haugh was a Whig and afterwards a Republican, and was highly respected as a citizen. His children are: 1, John, deceased, a farmer of Ladiesburg, Md.; 2, David, a blacksmith, deceased; 3, William, deceased; 4, Powell, deceased, a farmer of Greencastle, Pa.; 5, Jacob, deceased, a farmer of Greencastle, Pa.; 6, Judith, deceased, married to George W. Dern, of Yorkroad, Carroll County, Md. Mr. Haugh and his wife were members of the German Reformed Church, known as Haugh's Church. He and his wife rest in the graveyard of Haugh's Church.

Mr. Haugh's father, the late William Haugh, a retired farmer of Frederick City, Md., was born on the old Haugh homestead, near Ladiesburg, Md., November 11, 1811. He grew up on the homestead, and received his education in the public schools of the district. He remained with his father until he married, when he began farming for himself. After farming successfully for some time, Mr. Haugh accepted a position as superintendent of teams with B. F. Fitzhugh, of Catoctin Furnace. Mr. Haugh resigned this position and returned to the cultivation of the soil, purchasing a place of 100 acres, near Ladiesburg, Md., which he farmed successfully until he retired from farming, and removed to Johnsville. The last years of his life were spent in Frederick where his widow now resides. There he enjoyed the reward of his hard work and care. He was an active Republican and highly esteemed by the men of his generation. William Haugh was first married to a Miss Hardman. Their children are: 1, John W., deceased, of Akron, Ohio; 2, Cornelius, of Waynesboro, Pa.; 3, Addison G., of Waynesboro, Pa.; 4, Catherine, deceased, married to Robert Barrack, a farmer of Woodsboro District, and ex-sheriff of Frederick County. Mrs. Haugh died in 1861. Mr. Haugh's second wife was Elizabeth, daughter of Eli and Phoebe (Ellis) Cramer, both deceased, whose father was prominent among the older farmers of Lewistown District, Frederick County. They had two children: 1, Charles E., died in youth; 2, Eli G. Mr. Haugh and his wife were members of the German Reformed Church, at Haugh's Church. He was a liberal contributor, and served the congregation as deacon and as elder. He died August 23, 1899, and is buried in the graveyard at Haugh's Church.

Eli G. Haugh received his education in the public schools of the district, remaining at home until he was fifteen. After passing six years as clerk in several stores in Johnsville, Md., Mr. Haugh formed a partnership with Samuel Garber. The firm of Haugh & Garber bought the stock and trade of Charles E. Saylor, and carried on the business for four years, when they in turn sold to Samuel B. Furry, Mr. Haugh remaining with him as clerk. When he had been with Mr. Furry for seven years, Mr. Haugh was appointed deputy Register of Wills under Charles E. Saylor, with whom he remained for six years. He was next appointed deputy clerk of the Circuit Court for Frederick County, receiving his appointment from ex-clerk Samuel T. Haffner, M. D., with whom he remained for six years, the full term. When Mr. Harry W. Bowers was elected clerk, Mr. Haugh was reappointed deputy clerk for six years. During all these years he discharged the arduous duties of the office punctually and creditably giving entire satisfaction to his employer. Mr. Haugh is one of the leading citizens of Frederick, and is highly esteemed in the community. He is a Republican, interested in the progress of the county. Mr. Haugh is a member of Lynch Lodge, No. 163, A. F. and A. M.; King David Lodge No. 50, I. O. O. F.; Palistine Encampment, No. 20, I. O. O. F.; Canton Victory No. 6, P. M. I. O. O. F.; Mountain City Lodge No. 29, K. of P.; Chippewa Tribe, No. 19, I. O. O. R.; Frederick Conclave, No. 731, I. O. H., of Frederick City.

Eli G. Haugh was married to Mollie, daughter of Daniel F. and Chrissie (Pfoutz) Strausburg, whose father was prominent among the older residents of Johnsville, Md. Her mother is living in Union Bridge, Md. They have two children: Hilda E., and Nellie B.; both at home. Mr. Haugh and his wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Frederick City, Md.

JESSE W. DOWNEY, retired physician and surgeon of New Market, Frederick County, Md., son of William and Margaret Jane (Wright) Downey, was born at the old family homestead, near New Market, Md., March 24, 1848.

William Downey, (the first), great-great grandfather of Jesse W. Downey, emigrated from Scotland to America in 1742, and settled in Lancaster, Pa., where he died, leaving four sons—William, Samuel, John, Robert—and several daughters. His son John, great-grandfather of Jesse, the subject of this sketch, left Lancaster county, Pa., after the Revolutionary War, in which he enlisted as a private and came out as captain (see Genealogy of the Downey Family). He first located at Williamsport, Washington County, Md., and shortly after removed to Virginia. He was a farmer and settled near Charlestown, where he died in 1825. He was married three times. His first wife, whom he married in 1782, was Ruhana Stocksdale. Their children are: 1, Edmund, married Miss Owings; 2, Rebecca (Mrs. Robert Lyons); 3, William.

William Downey, grandfather of Jesse W. Downey, was born at the homestead, May 11, 1789. He was a graduate of Princeton College, and read law with Henry St. George Tucker, of Winchester, Va. He settled in Frederick County, Md., and after his marriage, began farming on land which his wife had inherited from her father. This property which has been in the family ever since, is now owned by his son, Dr. Jesse W. Downey. Mr. Downey was a Democrat, interested in political affairs, and represented Frederick County for one term in the Maryland Legislature. In 1815, he was made Worshipful Master of Philanthropic Lodge, No. 50, and held the office through the anti-Masonic period. William Downey was married to Cordelia, daughter of Basil Dorsey, Jr. Their children are: 1, Basil, farmer, moved to Ohio where he died, married twice, first to Lydia, daughter of Abraham Jones, and after her death to ————; 2, Maria, married Francis Brengle, an attorney of Frederick City, Md., represented his district in Congress; his wife died in Frederick City: 3, Harriet (Mrs. Francis Jones), died in [illegible]-tytown, Frederick County; 4, John, married Elizabeth Johnson, died in Liberty district, Frederick County; 5, William. Mr. Downey was an ardent Presbyterian. He died October 24, 1828, aged thirty-seven, and is buried in the family cemetery on the homestead. His death was the result of injuries received when he was thrown from his horse. His widow died in her eighty-eighth year, and is buried in the graveyard at Central Chapel of the Methodist Protestant Church.

Mr. Downey's father, William Downey, was born, in 1825, at Manfred, New Market district, Frederick County, Md., and received his education at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa. After spending a few years on the home farm, Mr. Downey began business as a general merchant in New Market, Md., where he carried on a successful business for thirty-five or forty years. Mr. Downey was a life-long Democrat, dyed in the wool. For sixteen years he was a member of the board of directors of the Maryland House of Correction, receiving his appointment from Governor Hamilton. He was also a member of Philanthropic Lodge, No. 168, A. F. & A. M., of New Market. William Downey was married to Margaret Jane, daughter of Jesse and Margaret (Mantz) Wright. Mrs. Downey's mother was a daughter of Major Peter Mantz, an officer in the Continental army, to whom, at the close of the Revolution, General Washington tendered a commission as Brigadier General in the regular army. The children of William and Margaret Jane (Wright) Downey are: 1, Jesse Wright; 2, Margaret, widow of Dr. H. H. Hopkins, Sr., of New Market, Md.; 3, Frank, of New Market, married Fanny Lawrence; 4, Eliza (Mrs. John U. Dietrick), died in Orange County, Va. William Downey was a member of Grace Protestant Episcopal Church; he died in 1902 and is buried in the cemetery in New Market. His widow, who was also a member of the Episcopal Church, died October 16, 1907.

Jesse W. Downey was a child three years old when his parents moved to New Market, where he spent his boyhood principally attending the public schools of the town. He completed his education in the Rockhill College at Ellicott City, Md., and at Maryland Military Institute. In June, 1864, Mr. Downey enlisted as a private in Company D, First Maryland Cavalry, C. S. A., and joined his regiment in Virginia. His first engagement was at Falling Waters, after which he took part in the skirmishing around Winchester, and the valley campaign. He was with General McCausland on his raid into Pennsylvania, and was present at the burning of Chambersburg, Pa. He also took part in the battles of Newtown, Cedar Creek, and Fisher's Hill. When the war was over, he returned to New Market, and, in 1866, began to read medicine in the office of Dr. E. W. Mobberly, with whom he remained for one year, and then continued his studies with Professor Nathan R. Smith, of Baltimore, Md. He was graduated from the medical department of the University of Maryland, March 3, 1869, and returned to New Market where he has engaged in practice. Dr. Downey is a life-long Democrat, firm in his allegiance to his party. He has never sought office, nor desired places of public responsibility, preferring to give his time to his practice. All matters relating to his profession receive his earnest attention. He is identified with various medical organizations, and in 1894 served as vice-president of the Maryland State Medical and Chirurgical Faculty, and as president of the Frederick County Medical Society. He is assistant surgeon with the rank of captain, in the First Regiment Infantry, National Guard of Maryland. Dr. Downey is interested in all that concerns the welfare of the county in which he has spent his whole life, and is esteemed and honored as a public-spirited citizen, and as a Christian gentleman. He has served the community in many ways, and was commissioner of fisheries in Western Maryland under John Walter Smith. Dr. Downey is a member of the Masonic order, and is Past Master of Philanthropic Lodge, No. 168 A. F. & A. M., which he resuscitated in 1874, and of which he was the first master. He also belongs to Enoch Chapter No. 23, R. A. M., of Frederick; Jacques Commandery No. 4, K. T., of Frederick; and the Scottish Rite Consistory, of Baltimore. For thirty-two years he served as treasurer of Fidelity Lodge, No. 54, I. O. O. F., of New Market, going out of office in 1907, when he declined re-election. He also belongs to the B. P. O. E., of Frederick City.

Dr. Jesse Wright Downey was married, in 1876, to Mary W., daughter of Major Denton Hammond, of New Market, an officer in the Confederate Army. Their children are: Elizabeth, married D. E. Stone, M. D., of Emmitsburg, Md., and Jesse W., Jr., educated at the University of Virginia and, after his graduation from that institution, served for one year as associate in surgery at the City Hospital in Baltimore. For two years he has been resident physician in charge of the Baltimore Eye and Ear Hospital and as assistant to the professor of diseases of the eye and ear at Johns Hopkins University. Jesse W. Downey and his wife are members of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Dr. Downey died 1910, since above sketch was written.

THE DOWNEY FAMILY.—The following is the genealogy of the Downey Family, written by the late William Downey, of New Market, Md., father of J. W. Downey, M. D., Mrs. H. H. Hopkins, and Mr. Frank Downey:

"A Genealogy of the families from which we, William and Mary Jane (Wright) Downey, are descended, with the names of their children, whom they married, and the names of each of their grandchildren.

New Market, Frederick County, Md., 1899.

By William Downey,

Dedicated to my children.

"I have thought it well to give a short sketch of the ancestry of both myself and my wife, Margaret Jane (Wright) Downey, in order that my children, grandchildren, and my descendants, who may come after me, may have a knowledge of their ancestors. In the words of that great and good man, Sir Philip Sidney: 'Love my memory, cherish my friends, above all, govern your will and affections by the will and word of your Creator; in me beholding the end of the world and all its vanities.'

"May, 1742, William Downey, (the first), emigrated from Scotland before the Revolutionary War, and settled in Lancaster County, Pa. He married ————————, and left children: William, Samuel, John, Robert, and several daughters.

"William and John volunteered at the beginning of the Revolution, and marched to Boston. William was drowned in crossing the Brandywine; John, who was in Captain Hammond's Company, Colonel Duhaas regiment, served through the whole war and was discharged when peace was declared. He enlisted as a private, and was discharged as captain, and was with his company, one of the guards who brought the Hessian prisoners taken at the battle of Trenton, to Frederick, Md. After the war, he married Ruhana Stocksdale. Their children are: 1, Edmund, married Miss Owings, died leaving one son, John, who emigrated to Indiana, and two daughters whose descendants live in the Valley of Virginia; 2, Rebecca (Mrs. Robert Lyons); 3, William, my father, who married my mother, Cordelia Dorsey. She was a daughter of Basil Dorsey, Jr., and his wife, Harriet, who was a daughter of Nathan Harris. My father was a graduate of Princeton College, and studied law with Judge Henry St. George Tucker, of Virginia. When he married, my father settled on the Brick House farm, in New Market district, and built the east end of the house in 1820. He was a member of the Maryland State Legislature in 1818 or 1820, and had a law passed granting to him the privilege of bringing his negroes, of whom he owned eighteen or twenty, from Virginia into Maryland. He died in 1828.

"After the death of my grandmother, my grandfather, John Downey, married Miss Owings, a daughter of Samuel Owings, of Baltimore County, Md. They had two daughters, Ann and Ruth, both of whom married men by the name of Burns, and removed to Missouri, where both died leaving children. They had also two sons, Samuel, who died in Missouri, leaving children, and John, who went to Kentucky, where he married and died leaving children. My grandfather's brother, Samuel, never married; he died at the old home in Franklin County, Pa. His brother, Robert, married Miss Stocksdale, a sister of Ruhana (Stocksdale) Downey, and moved to Batavia, N. Y., where he died leaving children. John Downey would never accept a pension from the Government for his services as a soldier during the Revolution. He was with General Washington's army at the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, Va.

"John Wright was a linen merchant of Belfast, Ireland. Although he was an Englishman by birth. He and his sister, Susanna, immigrated to Pennsylvania, and settled near Wrightsville, Pa., giving his name to the settlement. This sister, Susanna, was said to be the most accomplished and highly educated lady in the Penn Colony, being thoroughly educated in all of the classical branches of learning. John Wright married and left several sons and daughters. Among his children was a son named Jesse, who by his first marriage, left a son Samuel, who died unmarried in 1841. Jesse Wright, after the death of his first wife in Pennsylvania, removed to New Market, Frederick County, Md., and engaged largely in tanning. Here he married the widow Davis (nee Hinkle). The Hinkles of the Valley of Virginia are her relatives. By this marriage was born Jesse Wright, the father of my wife, Margaret Jane. Jesse Wright, my father-in-law, married Margaret Mantz, a daughter of Major Peter Mantz, of Frederick City, Md., and died leaving two daughters, Eliza C., and Margaret Jane. Eliza C. married Nimrod O. Shipley, M. D., Margaret Jane became my wife. Major Peter Mantz was a descendant of John Mantz who, when Germany was ravaged by the Thirty Years war, emigrated with many others, and settled at Frederick, Md. He had several brothers. Major Peter Mantz served as Major of the Maryland Flying Camp during the war of the Revolution. After the war, General Washington tendered to him the appointment of Brigadier General in the regular army, which appointment he declined. He filled many honorable positions in the State, and took up tracts of land, among others the tract called Gibralta, near the Monocacy Junction, which is now (1899) held by his descendants, the Markells. After the war of the Revolution, he married Hannah, a sister of Barbara Freitchie, who was immortalized by the poet Whittier. He left several sons and daughters, among them Margaret, who married Jesse Wright, my wife's father. He also had a daughter who married John Markell, the father of George, Lewis, Frank, and Charles Markell. Another daughter married Nicholas Brengle. Among his sons were Ezra, Gideon and Peter, all of whom have left descendants.

"Thomas Harris, an emigrant from England in earlier colonial days, (about 1660), settled in St. Mary's County, Md. Thomas, his grandson, married Sarah Offutt and left a number of children among whom was Nathan Harris. Nathan Harris came to Frederick County, Md., and married the widow of Captain Philemon Dorsey, she was Rachel, daughter of Levin Lawrence. She bore the latter a son, Johnson, who was a well-known lawyer of Frederick, Md. Joshua married and left a daughter Elizabeth, who married Thomas Johnson, M. D., who was the father of a daughter, Elizabeth, who married my brother, John Downey.

"Rachel (Lawrence) Dorsey bore her husband, Captain Philemon Dorsey, a daughter who married William Hobbs, (commonly called "King Billy of the Convicts," because he bought so many convicts that were sent over from England and sold). Another daughter, who married ———— Warfield, the ancestor of John and Edwin Warfield, of Howard County, Md., and a daughter who married Samuel Owings. Rachel (Lawrence Dorsey) Harris by her second husband, Nathan Harris, had two children: Cordelia, who married Beall Owings, M. D., and died leaving a number of sons and daughters; and Harriet who married my grandfather, Basil Dorsey, Jr. They had two children: Maria, who married Vachel Randall, died leaving no children; and Cordelia, who married William Downey, my father.

"The Lawrences were among the first settlers of the province of Maryland. ———— Lawrence, the settler, married Mary Townley, of England, and from this couple are descended Levin Lawrence, and John Lawrence, the great-grandfather of Frances Lawrence, who married my son, Frank Downey, and who is the daughter of C. Augustus Lawrence. This John Lawrence was one of the justices, or judges of the circuit court of Frederick County, Md., and a brother of Aunt Margaret Lawrence who was known as "Aunt Peggy," whom I recollect well, who died at the Brick House farm and is buried in the old Dorsey burying-ground. Having seen "Aunt Peggy," I can say that I have seen a subject of George the second of England. John Lawrence is also the ancestor of the Lawrences of Kentucky.

"Three brothers, John, Edward, and Joshua Dorsey, emigrated from England, to the Province of Maryland in 1660, and took up a tract of land on Bush river, now the Severn, where Annapolis now stands. This tract they named "Hockley in the Hole" to commemorate the place in England from which they came. John Dorsey married ————, and among their children was a son John who married ————. Among their children was Caleb Dorsey who married Elinore Warfield, and among their children was a son John, better known as the "Honorable John," who married Margaret Boone.

"John Dorsey took up large tracts of land, one in what is now Carroll County, another near Unionville, Frederick County, and still another near New Market, Frederick County, to which he gave the name of "Dorsey's Search." His sons were: Samuel, Harry, Basil, my great-grandfather, Richard, a Major in the Revolutionary army, the ancestor Humphrey and John Dorsey. His daughters were: ———— ————, married Mr. Tod, a merchant in London, England. ————, married Mr. Gough, also a merchant of London. When the Revolutionary War broke out, Mr. Gough, who had large possessions in America, came here and took the part of the Colonies against the mother country, in their struggle for independence. He was the father of Harry Dorsey Gough, who served on the staff of General John Eager Howard. Another daughter married Mr. Ridgeley, of the Ridgeleys of Hampton. This Mr. Ridgeley imported the old gold watch, at a cost of one hundred guineas. At his death his widow gave the watch to my great grandfather, Basil Dorsey. It is now owned by his son, Dr. J. W. Downey.

"Basil Dorsey, my great-grandfather, married Miss Crockett, of Baltimore, Md., whose father was a merchant. Her brother, John Crockett, fitted out more privateers from the port of Baltimore, during the Revolutionary War, than any one in the Colonies. The sons of my great-grandfather, Basil Dorsey, are: 1, Evan, married a daughter of John Lawrence, the son of Levin Lawrence; 2, Joseph, married ————, moved to Kentucky, the ancestor of the Dorseys of Kentucky; 3, William, married a widow Worthington, and died leaving four children, Vachel, Corbin, Arthur, and ————, married Colonel Gist, of U. S. A.

The daughters of Basil Dorsey are: 1, Lucy, married Samuel Stevenson, of Baltimore county, died leaving children; 2, Sophia, married Upton Sheredine, who was a very prominent man during the Revolutionary War, and after it. He occupied many positions of trust and responsibility, such as member of the Committee of Safety, Judge of Frederick County Court, member of the Maryland Legislature, and was the first member of the United States Congress from Western Maryland. After his death, his widow, Sophia, married James L. Higgins, and died leaving a large family of sons and daughters, all of whom were the children of her second husband.

"My great-grandfather, Basil Dorsey, built the house on the Meredith farm, and the material used was of the very finest. No plaster was used in its construction as it was wainscoated in carved work. The mantels were beautiful and were artistically carved. It was a frame building, weather-boarded; all the floors were of poplar and the original stairway is still in the house. The lumber was sawed with a whip saw, there being no saw mills in the country when it was built, (1748).

"Basil Dorsey, Jr., my grandfather, married Harriet Harris, daughter of Nathan Harris, and owned and lived in the old Dorsey homestead which is still in my possession. His children are: 1, Marie, married Vachel Randall, died without issue; 2, Cordelia H., my mother, married William Downey, my father, of Jefferson County, Va., had five children, Basil D, Maria, Harriet D., John, and William. Basil D. married Lydia, daughter of Abraham Jones, of Liberty, left three children, Basil D., of Ohio; Cordelia, and Emma. Maria, married Francis Brengle, a lawyer of Frederick City, Md., left two sons, William D., and Francis. Harriet D. married Francis Jones, left four children, Albert, John Dorsey, William D., and Charles. John, married Elizabeth D. Johnson, granddaughter of Joshua Dorsey, and daughter of Dr. Thomas Johnson, left five children, Elizabeth, John Johnson, Francis J., Harriet and Lidie.

"William Downey, the writer, was married, February 11, 1847, to Margaret Jane, daughter of Jesse Wright and his wife Margaret. They have these children: 1, Jesse W., M. D., of New Market, Md., married Mary W., daughter of Major Denton Hammond, has two children, Elizabeth, and Jesse W., Jr.; 2, Margaret Mantz, married Howard H. Hopkins, M. D., has five children, Mary McConkey, William D., Howard H., Margaret D., and James S.; 3, Frank (see book notes) married Frances, daughter of C. Augustus Lawrence, has two children, C. Augustus, Lawrence and Margaret Jane; 4, Eliza, married John U. Detrick, son of Louis F. Detrick, has two children, Frederick Lewis and Margaret Jane.

"The tract of land known as "Dorsey's Search," which was taken up by my great-great-grandfather, John Dorsey, better known as the "Honorable John," is still owned by his descendants.

"In my earliest recollection, my mother lived at the Brick House farm. She owned in that tract upwards of 1900 acres, together with 412 acres lying on both sides of the County road as you go from New London to the Central Church. She farmed the 1900 acre tract, and had an overseer. She owned eighty-five negroes, and I expect the hogs ate the corn and the darkies ate the hogs, although she was a good manager, level-headed, and kept everything in good, prosperous condition. In the year 1837, she divided her land into six parts, giving each of her five children one part, and reserving one part for herself. The commissioners who divided the land were, Harry W. Dorsey, Henry Nelson, and William Hobbs; the surveyor was Elihu H. Rockwell. To her son, Basil D., she gave 520 acres and upon this tract was the old Dorsey homestead. To her daughter Maria, she gave 256 acres and a wood lot of 100 acres. To her daughter Harriet, she gave 212 acres north of New London, and a wood lot of 60 acres. To her son John, she gave 550 acres which he sold to Jesse Wright, which later fell to my wife. To her son William, (the writer), she gave 165 acres, the Brick House farm, and a wood lot of 110 acres. For herself, she kept the farm north of New London, lying on the west side of the county road, and a wood lot of 145 acres."

JOHN JOSEPH MOLESWORTH, a leading farmer of Woodville District, Frederick County, Md., son of Mathias and Catherine (Condon) Molesworth, was born on a farm belonging to his maternal grandfather, D. John Condon, near the village of Woodville, Frederick County, Md., June 5, 1847. (For family history see biography of John W. Molesworth.)

John J. Molesworth is a grandson of Samuel Molesworth. His father, Mathias Molesworth, was a prominent farmer of the lower part of Frederick County. After his marriage, Mr. Molesworth settled in Woodville District, Frederick County, on the farm now owned by his grandson, Gurney C. Molesworth. He was well-known and highly esteemed in the county. Mathias Molesworth was married to Catherine, daughter of John Condon. Their children are: 1, Susan C. (Mrs. John R. Mount), of Damascus, Md.; 2, John Joseph; 3, Rachael R. (Mrs. Mark Aldridge), of Carroll County, Md. Mr. Molesworth and his wife were devout members of Prospect Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he held the office of steward and to which he was a liberal contributor. He died at his home in Woodville District, January 22, 1890, aged sixty-nine. His widow died at the home of her son, John Joseph Molesworth, in 1898, aged seventy-five.

John Joseph Molesworth received his education in the Prospect public school under Stephen Howell and Annie Shipley, attending during the winter terms until he was eighteen. He did not care for study and much preferred to stay at home and strip tobacco. He remained at home, working for his father until 1874. After his marriage, Mr. Molesworth rented land for one year, and then purchased his present home, a fertile farm of 167 acres lying along the Annapolis road, in Woodville District, Frederick County, Md. Mr. Molesworth is an excellent farmer. His financial success is due to hard work and close attention to business, as he had very little money with which to fight the battle of life. He is a stanch Republican, respected and honored in the district.

John Joseph Molesworth was married, in 1874, to Annie Mary Wolfe. Their children are: 1, Archley R., cashier in a bank in Mount Airy, Md., married Miss Hood, of Woodville, Md., has one child, Helen M.; 2, Gurney C., a farmer of Woodville District, married Jennie M. Enoch, has one child, Annie Lois. Mr. Molesworth and his wife are members of Prospect Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1890, Mr. Molesworth was elected steward of the congregation, to fill the vacancy caused by his father's death, an office which he held until 1808.

JOHN W. BOWERS, an honorable and highly respected citizen of Frederick City, who is a retired engineer of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, is a native of Washington County, Md., where he was born May 2, 1843. He is a son of Daniel and Mary (Pennel) Bowers.

Daniel Bowers was educated in the schools of Washington County, Md. For a number of years he was employed at the Antietam Iron Works as an iron worker. After leaving that position, he removed to Virginia, and followed agricultural pursuits for a number of years. He then went to Martinsburg, West Va., and secured a position as brakeman on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He followed railroading until his death. He is buried in the Greenhill Cemetery at Martinsburg, West Va. He was an adherent of the Republican party. In his religious beliefs, he was a Lutheran. Mr. Bowers was twice married. He was married first to Mary Pennel, of Sharpsburg, Washington County, Md. She died while the family was living in Maryland, and is laid to rest in the Lutheran graveyard at Sharpsburg, Md. There were four children by this union, two of whom grew up: George W., of Hampshire County, West Va.; and John W., our subject. Later in life, Mr. Bowers was married to Sarah Jane Wright, of Virginia. She is also deceased and is interred in Greenhill Cemetery at Martinsburg. They were the parents of six children, four of whom reached maturity: Orba E., the wife of Joseph Sparks, of Baltimore, Md.; Albert, deceased; Daniel and Henry C., both also deceased.

John W. Bowers, son of Daniel and Mary (Pennel) Bowers, received his knowledge in the public schools at Antietam, Washington County, Md., and in Virginia. He remained with his father until 1865, when he entered the employ of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad as a brakeman. This he was engaged in for about ten months, after which he followed firing on the same road for about five years, when he was promoted to engineer. He had continuously served in this capacity since 1871, and stood at the head of the list of old engineers then in service. In his long period of railroading, he was in but one wreck. His engine struck a car loaded with rails and was thrown into the canal at Catoctin Switch, near Brunswick, Frederick County. Mr. Boweres had a very narrow escape from losing his life as he went in the canal with the engine. He was held in high regard by the officials of the road and recognized as a most efficient employe. Mr. Bowers uses his right of franchise to support the principles of the Republican party. In religious affairs, he is affiliated with the Lutheran Church.

Mr. Bowers was married February 6, 1872, to Mary E. Barker, daughter of Jeremiah and Margaret Barker, of Martinsburg, West Va. They are the parents of the following children: Charles H., of Martinsburg, West Va.; Harry M., deceased; Mary E., the wife of E. A. Hobbs, formerly of Wheeling, West Va., but now of Martinsburg; Bertha E., the wife of Charles W. Suters, of Brunswick, Frederick County;

John W. Jr., of Frederick City; Margaret D., James H.; Alice H., and Nelson A., all at home; and Anna Lee, deceased. J. W. Bowers served the B. & O. R. R. for 45 years, and is now retired with a nice pension for the balance of his life.

JOSEPH E. STALEY, a well-to-do and highly respected citizen of Frederick District, was born near Harmony Grove, Frederick County, Md., on the 15th day of January, 1847. He is a son of Daniel and Millie Hedges Staley. Daniel Staley followed the occupation of a farmer. He owned and lived on a farm near Harmony Grove, which at one time was the home of Admiral Winfield Scott Schley. He was a member of the Reformed Church. He married Millie Hedges, and they were the parents of six children, as follows: Mahlon, deceased; Daniel O., of Knoxville, Md.; Lewis, deceased; Ann Salinda, deceased; Joseph E., of Frederick, and Fleet, of Montgomery County, Md.

Joseph E. Staley, son of Daniel and Millie Hedges Staley, was left an orphan when but about three years old; his parents dying within three days of each other. He was raised by Charles Burkhart, of Yellow Springs, Md., who is the father of Albert W. Burkhart. His educational advantages were meagre, and he was early forced to make his own living. He began work at farming and purchased for himself a farm situated in Tuscarora District, Frederick County, Md. This farm he improved wonderfully and today it is one of the finest farms in this part of the country. A number of years ago he purchased another farm just one mile west of Frederick. On this farm he now lives. He has made this place an ideal home for himself and is now enjoying all of the comforts of farm life.

Politically, Mr. Staley is a Republican, but he has never sought any office. He is a member of the Pleasant Hill Reformed Church, where he has served for many years as deacon and elder. Mr. Staley was married in 1868 to Clara Angleberger, of Frederick County. They have six children, as follows: Charles A.; Harvey G.; Marshall D.; Estella B.; Grayson H.; and Irving E. Mr. Staley is strictly a self-made man.

JOHN HERSHBERGER, proprietor of one of the leading confectionary stores of Frederick City, and a well-known citizen of the place, is a native of Washington County, Md., where he was born December 2, 1860. He is a son of J. C. and Rebecca Hershberger.

John Hershberger, the grandfather of John Hershberger, was born in Germany. He came from his native land to this country over a hundred years ago, and settled near Cearfoss Crossroads, in Washington County, Md. He followed agricultural pursuits, and was for many years a justice of the peace. Mr. Hershberger was the father of these children: Hiram; Missouri, the wife of James Murray, of Parsons, Kan.; David, deceased; Joseph C.; Clarissa, the wife of James Rhodes, of Broadfording, Washington County.

Joseph C. Hershberger, son of John Hershberger, resides at Williamsport, Washington County, Md. For a number of years, he has served as justice of the peace. He is held in high esteem in the community in which he makes his home. The name of his wife is Rebecca. They were the parents of seven children, five of whom grew to maturity: John; Mollie, the wife of a Mr. Kriner, of Waynesboro, Pa.; L. S., of Smithsburg, Washington County, Md.; Clarissa, the wife of King Vincen, of Cumberland, Md.; and Joseph C., Jr., of Frederick.

John Hershberger, son of Joseph C. and Rebecca Hershberger, was born and reared on a farm in Washington County, Md. He received such an education as the public schools afforded, and was engaged in farm work until he was seventeen years of age. Mr. Hershberger then went to Hagerstown, Md., where he learned the trade of a baker under Samuel Detrow, with whom he remained for five years. At the end of this time, in 1882, he came to Frederick, and entered the employ of A. C. McCardell, who conducted a confectionery store in North Market street, as a clerk. He stayed with Mr. McCardell for five years, and in 1887 began business for himself at the old Bloomenour stand in North Market street. At this location, Mr. Hershberger conducted business for about five years. In 1893, he purchased the Burger property, No. 213 North Market street, which has since been his place of business. He conducts a first class confectionery store and also an excellent bakery. He necessarily embarked in the business in a small way but from the very outset he met with success, and now commands one of the largest trades in his particular line in Frederick. Mr. Hershberger is active and progressive and is one of the prosperous business men of the city. He was reared a poor boy and began life without money, but by hard work and strict integrity in his business dealings he has won a place for himself in the mercantile world.

In politics, Mr. Hershberger is a stanch Democrat, and has served as a member of the Frederick City Council for three years. Fraternally, he holds membership in Lynch Lodge, No. 163, A. F. and A. M., in Enoch Royal Arch Chapter, in Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, in Frederick City Lodge, No. 684, B. P. O. E., and in the Modern Woodmen of America. In religion, he is identified with the Lutheran Church.

Mr. Hershberger was married December 18, 1887, to Mary Catharine Hooper, of Frederick. She is a daughter of William Hooper. There are seven children by this marriage: Myrtle, Naomi, Helen, Mayette, John, Jr., Rebecca, died in childhood, and William.

CHARLES WRIGHT ELY, for nearly forty years the efficient and able superintendent of the Maryland School for the Deaf and Dumb, at Frederick, Md., was born in Madison, Conn., in 1839. He is a son of Elias Sanford and Hester (Wright) Ely.

The Ely family is one of the oldest of the New England families, the American ancestor settling in Connecticut in 1660. Elias S. Ely, the father of Charles W. Ely, was a native of Madison, Conn., where he was born in 1809, and died in 1888. By occupation he was a farmer. He was one of the leading and most prominent citizens of his neighborhood, and there was scarcely a local office that he did not fill at one time or another. In politics he was an ardent supporter of the old line Whig party, and served for one term in the State Legislature. He was a man of sterling worth and strict integrity. In religion he was a consistent member of the Congregational Church. Elias S. Ely was married to Hester Wright, a daughter of Jedediah Wright, who in early life was a sea captain. The Wrights, also an old Connecticut family, located there in 1660-'70. Mrs. Wright lived to the age of three score and nine. Elias S. and Hester (Wright) Ely had eight children, three of whom are living: 1, Elias H., a merchant of Columbus, Ohio; 2, Cornelia M., the wife of the Rev. W. T. Sutherland, of Oxford, N. Y.; 3, Charles W.

Charles W. Ely grew up on the homestead, where he remained until he was nineteen years of age. After leaving the public schools of his native State, he entered Yale College, from which he was graduated in 1862. He then entered the Union army as a private, became a sergeant and participated in the battle of Fredericksburg, in which engagement his regiment lost one-third of their men. After this sanguinary battle, he was promoted to be a lieutenant in the Twenty-seventh Connecticut Infantry. At the expiration of his term of nine months, he was mustered out, and, in 1863, went to Columbus, Ohio, where he engaged in teaching in the State Institute for the Deaf and Dumb. In 1870, Mr. Ely was induced to come to Frederick in order that he might take charge of the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb. For the first three years after his coming, the institution was located in the Old Soldiers' Barracks, but that has been supplanted by the present fine structure, which now accommodates over one hundred pupils, and could easily care for half as many more. All modern facilities and conveniences are to be found in the buildings, and the grounds comprise about twelve acres. Here, for nearly forty years, Mr. Ely has labored hard, and it is due to him that the institution has attained the high rank which it occupies among educational schools of this kind in the country today. He has always had the interests of the school at heart, and he has devoted all his energies of mind and body to perfecting the system now in use there. The evidences of his labors are apparent to the most casual observer, and to him is due the most unstinted praise for the high plane to which he has brought the school.

In politics, Mr. Ely has always adhered to the Republican party, although he has never sought public office. For many years he has been an active member of the Presbyterian Church in Frederick, in which he has served as an elder for a long time, and of which he is ever a liberal supporter.

Charles W. Ely married Mary G. Darling, daughter of S. R. Darling, of Elyria, Ohio. They are the parents of four children: 1, Dr. Charles R., professor of Natural Science, Gallaudet College, Washington, D. C.; 2, Grace Darling, a teacher in the institution of which her father is the head; 3, Mabel D.; 4, Richard Grenville, both engaged in teaching.

Mr. Ely is a member of the G. A. R., of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion and of the Sons of the American Revolution.

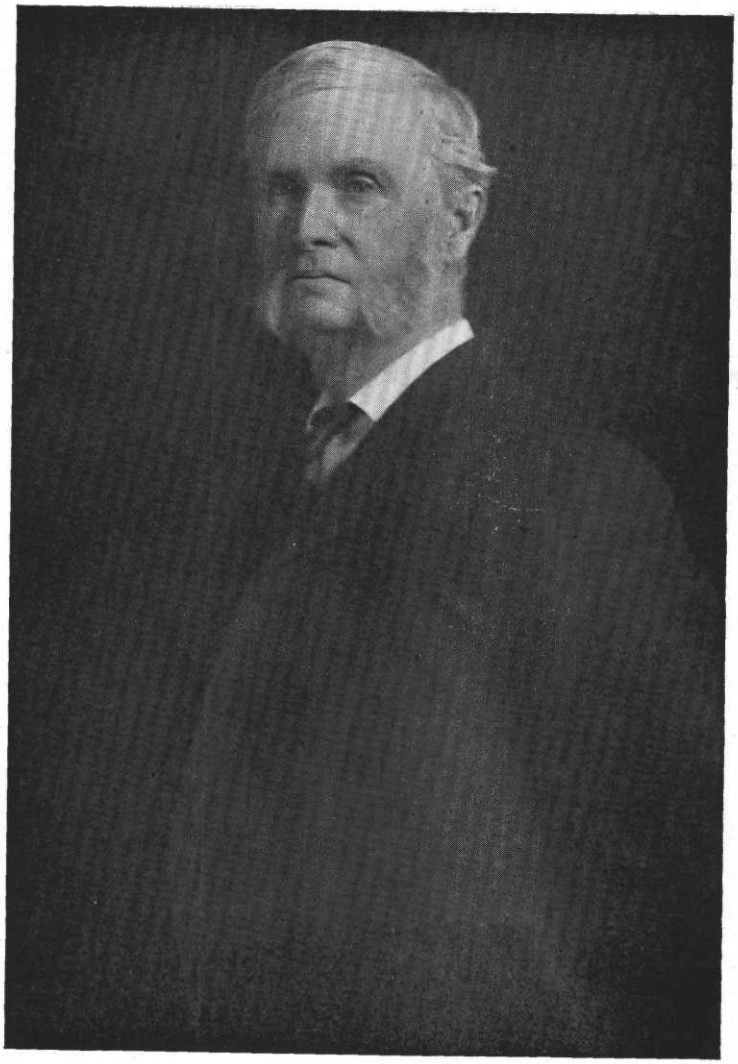
GEORGE A. PEARRE, JR., the subject of this sketch, was born on a farm near the village of Comus, Montgomery County, Md., on February 5th, 1874. He is the son of James Pearre, and Ann Rebecca (DeLashmutt) Pearre, both of French descent. His grandparents were William Pearre, and Catharine



Chas. W. Ely

Mariah (Springer) Pearre, the latter being a descendant of an old English family. She was educated by her uncle, George Baer, who was a member of Washington's Congress, at Philadelphia, and afterwards Mayor of Frederick City, in 1824, when Marquis de Lafayette visited the city. The Pearres came from France, and James Pearre, the original ancestor of William, obtained from George 3rd of England, a patent for large tracts of land, in what is now Frederick and Montgomery counties. William Pearre the grandfather, of the subject of this sketch, a large slave and land owner of Montgomery County, died leaving three sons: Geo. A. Pearre, a lawyer, and for a long time Associate Judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit of Maryland, and father of Hon. Geo. A. Pearre, member of U. S. Congress from the Sixth District of Maryland for twelve years; Hon. Charles B. Pearre, of Waco, Texas, a lawyer, and United States District Attorney General, from Texas, during Cleveland's Administration; and James Pearre, the father of the subject of this sketch, a large and prosperous farmer, of Montgomery County. George A. Pearre, Jr., named by and for his uncle, Geo. A. Pearre, spent his youth on his father's estate in Montgomery County. Fond of nature and out-door life, he spent much of his time, hunting, fishing, rambling and horseback riding. He attended the public schools, and later had a private tutor. Having developed tastes for the profession of the law, in 1895 he entered Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa.; taking a special course, to prepare him for the law. This course was selected and recommended by his uncle, Hon. Charles B. Pearre, then a distinguished lawyer, scholar and orator of the State of Texas. He remained at Dickinson College two years, going through the entire course and selecting such subjects as would especially prepare him for the study and mastery of the Law. Taking such subjects as Latin, mathematics, history, ancient and modern, literature, English, rhetoric, ethics, logic, psychology, moral philosophy, Biblical literature, Constitutional history, political economy, etc., and at the same time with a wide prescribed course of reading, he read Blackstone and Kent. At the conclusion of his course, Dickinson College issued to him a Certificate of Proficiency, in the eighteen subjects covered by him, during his course. In October, 1897, he entered the Law Department of the University of Maryland. While attending that institution he pursued the subject of the law with diligence and method, going far beyond the course prescribed by the University; at the same time attending the Courts of Baltimore City daily, in order to acquaint himself with the actual trial of cases. Taking the three-year course prescribed by the University in two years, he graduated from that Institution June 5th, 1899, with the degree of Bachelor of Laws. Immediately upon his graduation from the University, he was admitted to the Baltimore Bar, and later in the same month to the Montgomery and Frederick County Bars. In May, 1900, he located in Frederick City, where he has since practiced his profession, in all of its branches, trying cases in Frederick, Montgomery, Howard and Carroll counties, and in the Court of Appeals of Maryland. He is a diligent student of the law and a rising young attorney of the Frederick County Bar.

GEORGE SAGER is one of those residents of Johnsville district who have received large returns from their labors. Mr. Sager's efforts have been spent in agriculture. He lives on the "Spring Run" farm of 105 acres which he bought from James Clemson. This property lies on the road from Hopewell to McKinstry's Mills. He was born on a farm near Good Intent, Frederick County, October 17, 1868. He is a son of Mathias and Catharine (Fogle) Sager.

The Sager family is of ancient German lineage. Mathias Sager came from Germany to New York when he was fourteen years old. With him came a brother and sisters, the latter going west. He came to Frederick County, where he hired out to farmers. He later worked by the month in Woodsboro district and then secured a small tract of 25 acres, near New Midway. Here he passed the rest of his life and was buried at Rocky Hill Cemetery. He held membership in the Rocky Hill Lutheran Church and was a devout man. He lent his influence to the advancement of the Republican party. Mr. Sager was married to Catharine Fogle. She is still living. They were the parents of these children: George; John, cultivating the home farm; Elizabeth, married George T. Koons; Harvey, lives in West Virginia; Charles, of Washington, D. C., and Tacie Idella, at home with her mother.

George Sager, son of Mathias and Catharine (Fogle) Sager, secured his schooling at Pleasant Hill. He left school at eighteen years of age and worked out by the month. He began life for himself by cultivating the Longenecker farm in Johnsville district, where he lived for eleven years. In the spring of 1903, he secured possession of his present farm, to which he removed. Mr. Sager is a man of high character. As a farmer, he has been very successful. He is one of the leading men of his community and possesses the esteem of all who have the pleasure of knowing him. He is progressive and a man of intelligence.

Mr. Sager was married January 23, 1891, to Mary Elizabeth Myers, daughter of Abraham and Sarah (Harp) Myers, and a granddaughter of David and Elizabeth (Miller), Myers. Mr. and Mrs. Sager are affiliated with the New Side Dunkard Church. They are the parents of two children: Annie Catharine, born February 12, 1892; and Elmer Myers, born October 11, 1894.

THOMAS M. A. STONER is the owner of "Mapleton," a farm midway between Ladiesburg and Union Bridge, in Johnsville District; it contains 57 acres of finely improved land, all the improvements having been made by Mr. Stoner. He began farming here when this property was yet woods. His first purchase was 18 1-2 acres, and he added to this from time to time until now he has 57 acres. He was born at Johnsville, Frederick County, July 10, 1847, and is a son of Augustus and Ann (Hammond) Stoner.

Augustus Stoner was born in Middleburg, Frederick, now Carroll County, Md., June 18, 1816, and died on his farm in Frederick County in 1896. He was educated in the common school at Johnsville. He first followed the business of a huckster. Afterwards he turned his attention to farming, which he ever after engaged in. He succeeded to the Hammond farm through his wife. This tract contained 86 acres, but when his children grew up it was too small and he traded with John Hartsock for a farm of 135 acres, near Middleburg. He is buried at Beaver Dam Churchyard. Mr. Stoner was three times married. His first wife was Hannah Stoner. He was married secondly to Ann Hammond, daughter of Denton Hammond, who was a weaver at Johnsville. She died in 1852 and is laid to rest at Beaver Dam. There were four children by this marriage: George, died young; Thomas M. A., whose name heads this review; Denton H., went to Dark County, O., while a young man, where he married; and Dallas, died young. Mr. Stoner was married thirdly to Elizabeth Kling, a sister of John Kling, of Woodsboro. She is living at the age of eighty-three years.

Abraham Stoner, the grandfather of Thomas M. A. Stoner, was married to Rebecca Ream. They were the parents of one child: Augustus. Mrs. Stoner was married secondly to John Fox, by whom she had eight children: John Henry, Washington, Jesse R., Daniel, Jacob, Louisa and Mary. After the death of John Fox, Mrs. Fox was married thirdly to Denton Hammond.

Thomas M. A. Stoner, son of Augustus and Ann (Hammond) Stoner, lived at Johnsville, Frederick County, until he was fourteen years old, when his father removed to Good Intent. At these two places he secured his learning in the public schools. When a boy of eleven years he began work on the home farm and has followed agricultural pursuits to this day, save two years. He was for one year a clerk in the store of Anders & Lighter before his marriage at Union Bridge, and for a similar period in a like capacity in the mercantile enterprise of George P. Buckey. For one year after his marriage, Mr. Stoner lived at Union Bridge. For the next six years he rented the home farm. He then purchased his present place in the manner before stated. He is a member of the Beaver Dam Church.

Mr. Stoner was married February 17, 1870, to Laura Bowman, of Good Intent. She is a daughter of William H. and Mary Ann (Hyder) Bowman. She was born at Ladiesburg, Frederick County, February 25, 1849, and was educated at the Good Intent school. She holds membership in the Methodist Protestant Church at Johnsville. Mr. and Mrs. Stoner have no children.

William H. Bowman, Mrs. Stoner's father, was a merchant tailor at Ladiesburg for many years. He removed to Good Intent and kept a small country store. He died at that place in 1890, aged seventy-four years, his death occurring on his birthday. He was a Methodist in religion. Mr. Bowman was married to Mary Ann Hyder. She was connected with the Lutheran Church. She died April 17, 1896, at the age of sixty-seven years. They are both interred in Beaver Dam Churchyard. They were the parents of eight children: Laura, (Mrs. Stoner); Samuel, of Minneapolis, Minn., where he is a lumber merchant, married a Miss Stevens; David M., died in infancy; William C., of Kansas City, Mo., married a Miss Johnson, and is engaged in the lumber business; Bradley C., of Minneapolis, Minn., married a Miss Hyder, and is also a lumberman; Sarah, died young; Allie, the wife of John Newman, of Carroll County, Md.; and Fanny, married to Charles Newman, of Adams County, Pa.

Samuel Bowman, the grandfather of Mrs.

Stoner, died near Middleburg, Md. He was a farmer. His wife was Elizabeth Diehl.

JOHN LAMBERT MICHAEL, a well-known merchant of Frederick, who deals in fancy and staple groceries and queensware in West Patrick street, was born on a farm in Urbana District, Frederick County, October 29, 1836. He is a son of Henry S. and Mary (Crown) Michael.

The Michael family is of German lineage and was among the pioneer families of Lancaster county, Pa. From that county, Andrew Michael, the first of the name in Maryland, went to Frederick County. He purchased a farm in Buckeystown District in 1773, which tract has ever since remained in the possession of the Michael family. Andrew Michael had a son Andrew.

Andrew Michael, son of Andrew Michael, was the grandfather of John Lambert Michael. He was the father of the following children: Henry S., Ezra, Samuel, Daniel, John, Eliza, Phoebe, Sarah and Elizabeth.

Henry S. Michael, son of Andrew Michael 2nd, was born in Frederick County in 1807, and died in 1875. He lived on the old homestead in Buckeystown District for many years. Mr. Michael was married to Mary Crown. They were the parents of thirteen children, twelve of whom reached maturity: William H.; John Lambert; Joshua; Jerome; Curtis; Albertus; Emily, married Grafton B. Christ; Mary E., married Lewis Specht; Sarah, became the wife of Cornelius Ramsburg; Eliza, the wife of William Christ; Isabella M., never married; and Laura, married James Devilbiss.

John Lambert Michael, son of Henry S. and Mary (Crown) Michael, lived in Urbana District, his birth-place, until he was ten years of age, when his father returned to the ancestral home in Buckeystown District. Here he grew to manhood and secured his education in the public schools of the neighborhood. Mr. Michael engaged in farming, which he followed until 1869. In that year he came to Frederick City, and embarked in the mercantile business, opening a store in West Patrick street opposite his present stand. In 1885, he removed to his present location, No. 254 West Patrick street, where he carries a large stock of fancy and staple groceries and queensware. Mr. Michael is one of the oldest grocers of Frederick and is the possessor of a large trade. For the forty years his store has been in existence it has always stood well with similar enterprises. Mr. Michael is widely known and commands the respect of all who know him.

Politically, Mr. Michael is an adherent of the Democratic party. In 1891, he was elected as an alderman of Frederick, and served a term of three years. In religion, he is a member of the Reformed Church.

Mr. Michael was married in 1880 to Mary C. Custard, of Burkittsville, Frederick County. She is a daughter of Adam Custard, who served as sheriff of Frederick County, 1845-47. There were two children by this marriage: Bessie, the wife of Gustave Hortig, of Washington, D. C.; and Pearl C., at home.

JACOB WACHTER HYDER is the owner of a fine 40-acre farm, which is well improved with a beautiful house and good out-buildings. His home is situated in Pleasant Valley, near Good Intent, Johnsville District. Mr. Hyder was born at Pleasant Hill, in Woodsboro District, on the farm of his father, in December, 1833. He is a son of Jacob and Sarah (Lightner) Hyder.

John Hyder, the grandfather of Jacob W. Hyder, followed the profession of a school teacher. He died suddenly while engaged in instructing a school. The name of his wife was Elizabeth Stitely. They had a son Jacob.

Jacob Hyder, son of John and Elizabeth (Stitely) Hyder, was a farmer and also taught in the schools of Frederick County. He was a prominent citizen of the county and was at one time judge of the Orphans' Court. In that office he discharged his duties with marked ability and fidelity. He died on his farm at Pleasant Hill and is buried at Rock Hill Cemetery. He was a man of brilliant natural talents. He possessed many good traits of character and had high standing in the community in which he lived. Mr. Hyder was married to Sarah Lightner. They were the parents of fourteen children. Two of their sons, Theodore and Amos, fought in the Civil War. The former was killed while in the service and the latter is living in the State of Missouri.

Jacob Wachter Hyder, son of Jacob and Sarah (Lightner) Hyder, acquired his learning at the Pleasant Hill school. He was reared in the usual routine of a farmer's son. He later learned the trade of a carpenter with Upton Waltz and Joseph Wolfe. This occupation he followed for a period of fifteen years. At the time of his first marriage, he was living on his farm of 123 acres at Pleasant Hill.

He continued to engage in farming until his wife died, after which he made sale and returned to the carpentering trade. Mr. Hyder in 1886 bought his present home, which contains 40 acres, and lies in Pleasant Valley, in Johnsville District. This is a magnificent estate. Frederick County boasts of many beautiful country homes and the one of Mr. Hyder takes a high rank. Great care is taken in the care of the place and it shows the efforts taken to preserve its excellent condition. Mr. Hyder is one of the representative citizens of his district and has been very successful in life. He has recently retired from active work. He uses his right of franchise in favor of the candidates of the Republican party. In religion, he is a member of Haugh's Lutheran Church, to which he is a liberal contributor.

Mr. Hyder has been twice married. His first wife was Sophia Stull, daughter of Lewis and ——— (Barrock) Stull. She died about the end of the Civil War. Mr. Hyder was married secondly to Susan Elizabeth Snook, daughter of William Snook. There is one child by this latter marriage: Edna S., married Hershey F. Eichelberger, of Woodsboro, Md.

HENRY CLAGGETT DUVALL, farmer, owner of "Mt. Pleasant," a farm of 197 acres in the Maryland Tract, Petersville District, Frederick County, Md., son of Henry Claggett and Sarah M. (Claggett) Duvall, was born at "Waterloo," the homestead of his mother's family, March 7, 1845.

The Duvall family trace their descent from Sieur Hugh Duvall, a native of France, who lived during the latter part of the twelfth century. Their genealogical table is as follows: 1, Robert, son of Sieur Hugh Duvall, married the Honorable Lady Jane De Pritot; 2, ——— ———; 3, John Duvall, Knight, Lord, so called of the place, who lived in 1375; 4, Lawrence Duvall, Esquire, married to the most noble Lady, Agnes de Marmien; 5, William Duvall, Esquire, Lord, so called of the place, married Alex de Marmusin; 6, Massiot Duvall, son of William Duvall, Esquire, and Alex (De Marmusin) Duvall, Lord of the province St. Lawrence, and of the fief of St. Aubin, married Margaret D'Orbin; 7, Thomas Duvall, Esquire, son of Massiot Duvall, Lord of Auge in the province of St. Lawrence, and of the fief of St. Aubin, married Nicola Stayard. From Thomas Duvall, Esquire, through Mareen Duvall, the Huguenot immigrant to Maryland, is descended the American branch of this distinguished family.

Mareen Duvall, one of the earliest and most prominent of the Huguenot immigrants from France, arrived in the province of Maryland, August 28, 1650. On the day of his arrival, he received the patent of a tract of land situated on the south side of South River, in Anne Arundel County, near the site of New London. This land was surveyed and patented to him and was named "La Val," in memory of family estates in France. His landed possessions soon included several thouand acres lying in Anne Arundel and Prince George's Counties. That this distinguished French refugee was of the Protestant faith, is evident from the fact that he built at his own expense, a chapel for private worship on his home plantation in Prince George's County. In 1705, his son, John Duvall, and his wife appeared before the vestry, of which he was a member, and deeded the land on which the chapel stood to Queen Anne for the use of the parish. It was not, however, until 1741 that it became a parish church, repaired and supported by the community. Until that time it was supported and maintained by the Duvall family.

Mareen Duvall was married three times. The name of his first wife is unknown; they had six children. His second wife's christian name was Susanna; they also had six children. His third wife was Mary Stanton. All of his children are mentioned in his will dated August 2, 1684, and probated on August 13, of the same year. The widow of Mareen Duvall was married to Colonel Henry Ridgely and, after his death which occurred about 1711, to the Rev. Jacob Henderson. The eldest son of Mareen Duvall was named Mareen; his youngest son, born about 1685, was called Benjamin. Benjamin Duvall was married, in 1713, to Sophia Griffith; they had four sons and three daughters. Their second son and fifth child, William Duvall, born in 1721, married Priscilla Prunett. They had many sons and daughters.

Samuel Duvall, eldest son of Benjamin and Sophia (Griffith) Duvall, great-grandfather of Henry Claggett Duvall, was born December 24, 1747. Samuel Duvall was an importer at Elk Ridge, Md., when Baltimore was unknown. He was married by Rev. W. Adison, January 2, 1774, to P——— Ann, daughter of John and Martha Ann Dauson, who was born January 6, 1756. They had three sons, only one of whom, Grafton Duvall, M. D., reached manhood.

Grafton Duvall, grandfather of Henry Claggett Duvall, son of Samuel and P——— Ann (Dauson) Duvall, was born June 10, 1780, at six P. M. He graduated from a Medical College, and practiced in Frederick City, Md. He afterwards removed to Oakland, Petersville District, and soon relinquished his practice. Grafton Duvall was married, May 8, 1804, by the Rev. George Bower, to Elizabeth Whittaker, second daughter of Thomas Hawkins, Esq. Their children are: 1, Sarah Ann, born January 20, 1805, married Robert Dorsey, M. D., settled at Relay House, Md., where she died; 2, Alex. Thomas Hawkins, born August 10, 1807, married Miss Johnson, went to Louisiana, during the Civil War returned to Frederick County, where he died; 3, Houston, died in childhood; 4, Julia, died in childhood; 5, Algernon, born January 23, 1813, married Miss Green, practiced law in Mississippi where he died leaving three daughters; 6, Gabriella, died in infancy; 7, Elizabeth Lawrence, died in childhood; 8, Virginia Claggett, born December 6, 1818, married Thomas P. Harrison, M. D., of Mississippi; 9, Henry Clagggett; 10, James L. Hawkins, born December 31, 1822, married Miss Kemp who lived near Frederick City, spent the greater part of his life in Baltimore, Md.; 11, Mary Elizabeth (Mrs. Samuel Hoogereff), of Relay House, Md., born May 20, 1826. Grafton Duvall, M. D., died of congestion of the brain, at his home on the Maryland Tract, on Sunday morning, May 22, 1841, aged sixty-two. Endowed by nature with fine taste and excellent literary judgment, Dr. Duvall was an accomplished writer of great polish and fluency. He was favorably known as a very able advocate of the political opinions which he had espoused. He was at one time a member of the Exeter Council, a post which he filled with usefulness and distinction. He was an honorable gentleman, of blameless morals, and discharged with conscientious fidelity all of the duties which devolved upon him.

Henry Claggett Duvall, father of Henry Claggett Duvall, was born January 15, 1821, and was educated at Mt. Saint Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Frederick County, Md. Mr. Duvall engaged in farming at "Waterloo," his wife's homestead, and at Bannockburn, both places situated in Petersville District. He was an active citizen of Frederick County, interested in political affairs. He was at first a Whig, afterwards, he became a member of the Know-Nothing party. Henry Claggett Duvall was married, November 29, 1842, to Sarah M., daughter of Thomas John and Sophia (Martin) Claggett. Their children are: 1, Henry Claggett, born at "Waterloo"; 2, Thomas Hawkins, born at Bannockburn, Md., April 24, 1848, resides in Wichita, Kansas; Henry C. Duvall, died in Louisiana, January, 1863, and is buried in the cemetery of the Episcopal Church at Oak Ridge, La. His wife died in 1883, and is interred in the graveyard of St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Petersville, Md.

Henry Claggett Duvall was baptized in the Episcopal Church by the Rev. I. F. Hoff, July 13, 1845, and has been an active member of that communion all his life. He was educated in the public schools of Petersville, and in a private school taught by John W. Page. He was in his sixteenth year when his parents moved to Louisiana, where his father became a farmer and commission merchant. When he was eighteen, his father died, leaving his mother and her two sons in very straitened circumstances. In 1863, Mr. Duvall enlisted in Bell's battery, light artillery, and served until the close of the Civil War, when he had not even a suit of clothes to his back. He had, however, a brave heart and began the world again as a farmer, or rather as a cotton planter in Louisiana. In 1900, he returned to Frederick County, Md., having purchased his homestead, "the Hilleary farm," in 1891. This place was the home of the Hilleary family for many years. The house was built by Tilghman Hilleary in 18—; he also built the barn in 18—. Mr. Duvall has been a Democrat all his life.

George Lough, son of John Lough, was born in Adams County, Pa., in 1817. He spent his whole life following the occupation of a farmer in his native county. He was all his life a supporter of the Democratic party. In religion, he was connected with the Reformed Church. Mr. Lough was married to Christianna Flickinger, who was also a native of Adams County. They are buried in the New Oxford Cemetery at New Oxford, Pa. They were the parents of seven children, five of whom reached maturity; Sarah C., the wife of E. C. Slagle, of Hanover, Pa.; John Q., died in 1902; Edwin G., lives at New Oxford, Adams County, Pa., where he is engaged in the marble and monument business; Uriah A.; William A., a hardware merchant at Dixon, Ill.

Uriah A. Lough, son of George and Christianna (Flickinger) Lough, spent his boyhood on a farm in New Oxford township, Adams County. He attended the public schools and later Gettysburg College for two years. After he had discontinued his studies, he followed teaching in Adams County for a short time. Mr. Lough then removed to Woodsboro, Md., where he learned the trade of a stone cutter and the marble business under his elder brother, John Q. Lough, at that time engaged in the monument business. Here Mr. Lough remained for three years, when he went to Ashland, O., and pursued his trade there for one year. He then returned to his old home at New Oxford, Pa., and engaged there in the tombstone and marble business for one year. He next located in Frederick County, Md., and embarked in his line at Emmitsburg, in which place he was occupied for ten years. In 1883, Mr. Lough came to Frederick City, and embarked in the same business on South Market street, near the Mount Olivet Cemetery, where he was located three years. He then opened an establishment in East Patrick street, remaining at this place for eight years. In 1904, Mr. Lough purchased his present place of business, at No. 37 South Market street. Mr. Lough conducts one of the largest marble and tombstone yards in Frederick County. He has been very successful as a business man, and is recognized as one of the substantial citizens of the community. In January, 1907, he took into partnership his son, Charles W. Lough.

Mr. Lough is a director in the Fredericktown Savings Institute. Politically, he votes the Democratic ticket. In Church circles, he holds membership in the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick, in which he is serving as an elder.

Mr. Lough was married in January, 1874, to Margaret Reifsnider, daughter of David Reifsnider, of Carroll County, Md. There were four children by this marriage, of whom three grew to mature years: Charles W., was born at New Oxford, Adams County, Pa., in 1874, married Elinor Fisher, of Philadelphia, by whom he has two children, Margaret and Grace, and is in business with his father; George, died in 1903, a student in the Hahnemann Homeopathic Medical College, at Philadelphia; and Ada E., the wife of Allen R. Lampe, of Frederick.

OSCAR B. COBLENTZ, one of the leading members of the Frederick County Bar, and ex-superintendent of the public schools of the county, was born on a farm in Middletown Valley, in Frederick County, Md., November 24, 1878. He is a son of Edward L. and Lucinda F. (Bechtol) Coblentz.

John Philip Coblentz, the great-grandfather of Oscar B. Coblentz, was a son of Harmon Coblentz, whose ancestors were of German origin and among the early settlers of Pennsylvania. John P. Coblentz was a native of Lancaster County, Pa., and while yet a youth, removed to the Middletown Valley, Frederick County, Md., with his parents.

Philip Coblentz, son of John Philip Coblentz, was born in 1812, and died in 1899. In his time, he was one of the leading and prominent farmers of Middletown Valley.

Edward L. Coblentz, son of Philip Coblentz, and father of Oscar B. Coblentz, was born in 1840, and died in 1902. He followed the occupation of a farmer, and was a man highly respected in the community in which he lived. He spent his entire life in Middletown district, Frederick County. Mr. Coblentz was married in 1868 to Lucinda F. Bechtol, who survives her husband, and is residing in Middletown, Frederick County. They were the parents of four children: Emory L., who is a prominent member of the Frederick County Bar; Oscar B., of whom presently; Bertha F., the wife of Grayson Stahley, Book-keeper for the Citizens' National Bank of Frederick; and Jennie M., unmarried, who resides with her mother in Middletown.

Oscar B. Coblentz, son of Edward L. and Lucinda F. (Bechtol) Coblentz, was reared on a farm. Until he was sixteen years of age he followed farming in the summer, and during the winter months attended the public schools. He then became assistant postmaster of Middletown, under Tilghman F. Gaver. This position he retained for one year, in the meantime attending the high-school of the village. He later became a clerk for L. Z. Derr, in Middletown, Md., and subsequently was graduated from the local high school, being valedictorian of his class. In the spring of 1898, after teaching for a year, he took a competitive examination for the Senatorial Scholarship for Frederick County, in St. John's College, Annapolis, Md. Being successful, he matriculated at that institution in the fall of the same year, and was graduated, with the degree of B. A., in the spring of 1901, again serving as valedictorian of his class.

After his graduation at St. John's College, Mr. Coblentz returned to Middletown, and for two years was principal of the high school there. In 1903, he was a candidate for county surveyor, but was defeated. In 1904, he was made civil engineer of Frederick City, and during his incumbency many improvements were made in the city. At the same time he acted as engineer for the Frederick and Middletown Electric Railway. In 1905, Mr. Coblentz entered the Law School of the University of Maryland, from which institution he was graduated in the spring of 1907, and was admitted to the Maryland State Bar in the same year. Since that time he has remained in active practice in Frederick, where he is recognized as one of the ablest and most prominent of the younger members of the Frederick Bar. In the fall of 1906, he was elected superintendent of the schools of Frederick County, a position which he filled with ability and executive capacity. In August, 1908, he resigned his position as superintendent, to begin the active practice of his profession as a member of the firm of Coblentz and Waters.

Mr. Coblentz has always been a stanch adherent and an active supporter of the Democratic party. He is a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M.; Enoch Chapter, No. 23, Royal Arch Masons; Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar; and King David Lodge, No. 55, I. O. O. F.

One of the county's best known and leading citizens, Mr. Coblentz has risen to his present enviable position through industry, perseverance and integrity. He is secretary of the Braddock Building and Development Company, president of the Braddock Heights Water Company, and treasurer of the W. F. and G. R. R. Company, and of the Maryland Brick and Supply Company, and is prominently associated with many other Frederick County enterprises.

Oscar B. Coblentz was married, in 1903, to Margaret E., daughter of the Rev. John W. Pontius, at that time pastor in charge of the Reformed Church in Middletown. Mrs. Coblentz is a graduate of the Women's College of Frederick, Md. Their children are: 1, Oscar B.; 2, Edward P.; 3, Katherine Reid. Mr. Coblentz is a member of the Reformed Church with which denomination his ancestors have been connected for five generations.

A. C. McBRIDE, a widely known and prominent citizen of Frederick County, was born in Middletown district, July 21, 1860. He is a son of William and Elizabeth (House) McBride.

The ancestor of the McBride family in Frederick County, was a native of Ireland, who came to Maryland and settled in Middletown Valley, where he was among the early settlers. He had a son, Philip McBride, among whose descendants was a son, Henry McBride, grandfather of the subject of this sketch. Henry McBride was a farmer by occupation; in politics an old line Whig, afterwards enrolling himself in the ranks of the Republican party; in religion, he affiliated with the "Church of God." He was the father of the following children: William; George; Henry C.; Lewis; Sarah, became the wife of Levi House, of Ohio; Mary, married John Flook; and Catharine, married Joshua Norris. All of these children are deceased except Lewis McBride and Catharine (McBride) Norris, of Middletown Valley.

William McBride, son of Henry, was born in Middletown Valley, Frederick County, August 21, 1822, and died March 23, 1908. He was for many years a contractor and builder of fences. He was an honorable citizen and was highly regarded in the community in which he lived. He was married to Elizabeth House and they were the parents of the following children: Elizabeth Catharine, wife of Josiah Flook; Mary A., deceased, was the wife of Lewis Lutz; Sarah E., unmarried; Fannie V., wife of John T. Pearl, all of Middletown Valley; George W.; Sidney V., wife of Allen M. Stone, of Boonsboro, Md.; Martha F., wife of George W. Pearl, of Burkittsville, Md.; and A. C., our subject, of Frederick, Md.

A. C. McBride, son of William and Elizabeth (House) McBride was born on a farm. He received his early education in the public schools of Middletown Valley. At the age of seventeen (1877) he entered the State Normal School at Baltimore, Md., from which he was graduated in one year, but owing to his youth was unable to receive his diploma until the year following his graduation (1879). He then entered the profession of teaching and was located, one year each, at Feagaville and Burkittsville, after which in 1881 he took charge of the North Market street school of Frederick, Md., serving in this position thirteen consecutive years. December 1st, 1893, Mr. McBride became office deputy for Daniel P. Zimmerman, then sheriff of Frederick County. In 1895, he was nominated and elected sheriff of the county and served a term of two years. He then turned his attention to agriculture, and having purchased a 200-acre farm near Jefferson, Md., he resided thereon and managed the same until the spring of 1907, when he again came to Frederick and accepted the position of General Manager of the Washington, Frederick and Gettysburg Railway. His health becoming impaired, because of his arduous duties as manager of said railway, he resigned that position June 1909. Mr. McBride has always been a stanch Republican in politics.

During his term as Sheriff of the County, he discharged the duties involved with credit not only to himself but to his party. On June 3, 1884, Mr. McBride was married to Miss Annie E. Routzahn, of Middletown. She is a daughter of Hezekiah and Elizabeth (Bowlus) Routzahn, both deceased. There are three children by this union: Allan C., a lieutenant in the Artillery Arm of the United States Army; Edgar H., a senior in the law department of the Maryland University, Baltimore; and Carrie E. McBride, at home.

JOHN T. MARTIN, general yardmaster of the extensive Baltimore and Ohio yards at Brunswick, Frederick County, Md., was born at Catoctin Furnace, Frederick County, December 16, 1845. He is a son of William and Mary (Gurley) Martin.

William Martin was a native of England. He spent his life following agricultural pursuits. He was married to Mary Gurley, who was born in Frederick County. After Mr. Martin's death, she married George W. Yourtee, of Washington County, Md. She died in 1885, at the age of sixty-four years. William and Mary Martin were the parents of four daughters, two of whom, Mrs. J. W. Jennings, of Brunswick, Md., and Mrs. C. R. Adams, of Lanark, Ill., are still living, and of one son, John T.

John T. Martin, son of William and Mary (Gurley) Martin, was but nine years old when his father died. He did not possess any educational advantages, his learning being confined to such branches as were taught in the common schools of the county. At the age of sixteen, he set out to secure employment, and went to the headquarters of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in West Virginia. Although he had no acquaintance with any of the officers of the road, and had no one to recommend him, he yet succeeded in securing a minor position, from which by hard work and careful attention to duty alone he steadily rose to the position of agent at Martinsburg, West Va. In 1889, he was made the company's representative at Cumberland, Md. In 1890, he returned to Martinsburg, and in 1891, he took charge of the freight yards of the road at Brunswick, Md., which position he has ever since retained.

When Mr. Martin took charge of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad yards of Brunswick, the town had a population of about 250, and it now contains about 5,000 people. The Baltimore & Ohio yard contained about ten miles of track, whereas the present yard has a capacity for 10,000 cars and contains 100 miles of track. This yard is one of the finest and largest in the United States. The switches are operated by electricity and compressed air. The hundreds of trains that run through there every day and the large force of men Mr. Martin has to deal with make his position a responsible one. In all the years he has been in the employ of the company, he has never been absent more than a few days at any time.

Mr. Martin is highly respected and held in high esteem both by the large number of men under him and the officials of the road, being recognized as one of the most thorough and efficient men in the company's service. He is one of Brunswick's leading citizens, and by his untiring efforts has attained his present success in his chosen work. He is a director in the People's National Bank of Brunswick.

In politics, Mr. Martin is an active supporter and loyal adherent of the Democratic party. He served as a member of the town council of Brunswick, 1892-94, and filled the office of mayor, 1895-96. He has also served as a member of the central committee of Frederick County. He was a delegate to the convention that nominated John E. Hurst for governor of Maryland, against whom he made a strong plea. Fraternally, Mr. Martin is a charter member of Brunswick Lodge, No. 191, A. F. and A. M., Druid Council, Royal Arcanum of Baltimore City, and a member of the Frederick Lodge, No. 684, of the B. P. O. E.

Mr. Martin was married in 1868 to Margaret

C. Conway, daughter of William Conway, of Martinsburg, formerly of Staffordshire, England. They are the parents of two children: George W. Martin, who has been in the railroad service for more than twenty-five years, holding various responsible positions; and Emma C., of Brunswick.

CHARLES V. C. SANNER, a practical and progressive farmer, who resides three miles and a-half north of Frederick, on the Hamburg pike, in Tuscarora district, was born on a farm in Middletown District, March 17, 1848. His parents were John and Sarah Ann (Schildknecht) Sanner.

Vincent Sanner, the grandfather of Charles V. C. Sanner, was a native of the Eastern Shore of Maryland, where his ancestors were among the early inhabitants. The name of his wife was Susan Hutzell. They were the parents of the following children: Daniel; Vincent; John; Mary, married Daniel Smith; Amanda, married Henry Kepler; Emma, married Ezra Beachley; Susan, married Henry Miller; Tabitha, married Edward Herring; and Ella, married Calvin Weaver, all of Middletown Valley.

John Sanner, son of Vincent and Susan (Hutzell) Sanner, was born in 1825, and died in 1900. He was a farmer by occupation. Politically, he supported the Republican party, and in religion, he was affiliated with the Lutheran Church. Mr. Sanner was married to Sarah Ann Schildknecht. She was born in 1831 and died in 1899. They were the parents of these children: Charles V. C.; Malanchton, lives in Ohio; Newton, deceased, removed to Illinois, where his death occurred in 1906; Milton, resides in Howard County, Md.; Roger, also of Howard County; Nettie, the wife of Clayton Summers, of Middletown District; Alta, the wife of Ernest Hertsock, of Atlanta, Ga.; Florence, the wife of Charles Reck, of Howard County, Md.; and Georgia, unmarried.

Charles V. C. Sanner, son of John and Sarah Ann (Schildknecht) Sanner, spent his youth upon his father's farm, and acquired an education in the public schools. Farming was his selection of a life's work. After his marriage, he followed agricultural pursuits in various portions of Frederick County. He farmed five years in Jefferson District; then seven years in Jackson District; next to Frederick District for three years; then to Lewistown District for one year, at the end of which time he, in 1887, purchased his present farm. This place contains 112 acres of fertile land, and is one of the best farms in Tuscarora District. Since then, and at the present time, Mr. Sanner has become the owner of another farm, and a pretty large one at that. It is situated in Walkersville District, and contains 257 acres. Mr. Sanner is one of the prosperous farmers of the district and is highly respected.

In politics, Mr. Sanner is an active supporter of the Republican party. He is the present chairman of the Republican Central Committee of Tuscarora District. In religion, he is a consistent member of the Pleasant Hill Lutheran Church, in which he fills the offices of deacon and treasurer of the board of trustees.

Mr. Sanner was married March 14, 1872, to Nettie Toms, daughter of Ezra and Sophia (Doub) Toms. There are four children by this marriage: Vernon L., married Estella Staley, of Tuscarora District; Grayson T., married Mabel Gise, of York; Keefer E.; and E. Chauncey.

Ezra and Sophia (Doub) Toms, Mrs. Sanner's parents, had these children: Nettie (Mrs. Sanner); Laura V., the wife of George C. Shafer (see his sketch); Fannie, the wife of Edward Bittle, of Jackson District; Ella, the wife of Charles B. Young; Elizabeth, deceased, was the wife of Upton Grossnickle; Otho J., engaged in farming in Jackson District; George D.; Millard F., of Jackson District; and Lemuel F., of Washington County, Md. Ezra Toms was a son of Jacob Toms, who was a farmer in Middletown Valley and descended from one of the old families of that part of the County.

VERNON W. NICODEMUS, postmaster of Monrovia, Md., member of the firm of Nicodemus & Grimes, dealers in grain and produce, son of Peter and Emma (Zumbrun) Nicodemus, was born near Union Bridge, Carroll County, Md., December 24, 1870.

Isaac C. Nicodemus, grandfather of Vernon W. Nicodemus, farmer, lived and died at Oak Orchard, Frederick County, Md. He was married to Susanna Dudderar. Their children are: William H., John H., Eliza, Peter, Jesse, Isaac C., Bradley T., and Sarah E.

Peter Nicodemus, father of Vernon W. Nicodemus, was born at Oak Orchard, Md., in 1847. He was educated in the public schools of the district, and learned milling. For the past fifteen years, Mr. Nicodemus has been engaged in milling in Brunswick, Md. He is a Republican. Peter Nicodemus was married to Emma, daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Gilbert) Zumbrun. Their children are: 1, Vernon W.; 2, Percy O.; 3, Lona L.; 4, Nava E.; 5, Eva S. E.; 6, Wilbur P.; 7, Chancy S. Mr. Nicodemus and his wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Vernon W. Nicodemus was an infant when his parents removed to Frederick County, Md. They settled near Unionville, and he received his education in the public schools of Unionville and Oak Orchard. He worked with his uncle, Ezra Nusbaum, on the farm, and learned milling with his uncle, Charles Zumbrun, at New Windsor, Md. Mr. Nicodemus worked in different mills for fifteen years. In 1891, he went to Monrovia, Md. to take charge of the Shawbaker mill which he managed for five and a-half years. At the end of that time, he accepted the position of head miller with William Turner, at Ijamsville, Md., with whom he remained for three years. Mr. Nicodemus next rented the New London Roller Mills, where he did a flourishing business for three years. In July, 1902, he went to Monrovia, Md., and formed a partnership with John W. Sullivan. The firm dealt in grain, fertilizers, coal and agricultural implements. On the 8th of February, 1905, Mr. Sullivan died, and Edgar L. Grimes took his place in the business, the firm name being changed to Nicodemus & Grimes. Mr. Nicodemus was appointed postmaster of Monrovia, April 15, 1905. He is a life-long Republican, interested in public affairs, and is one of the directors of the First National Bank of Monrovia. For seventeen years Mr. Nicodemus has been a member of the I. O. O. F., New Market No. 54. He is a Past Grand of the lodge, and a member of Frederick Lodge, K. of P.

Vernon W. Nicodemus was married, April 27, 1898, to Emma Elizabeth, daughter of Jacob M. Shawbaker. Their children are: 1, Mary L.; 2, Allen W.; 3, Emma L. Mr. Nicodemus is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a class leader, and belongs to the board of trustees. He is also assistant superintendent of the Sunday School.

JOSHUA A. L. RICE, deceased, was a prosperous and well known agriculturist of Lewistown District. He was a man of good character and possessed excellent attributes. the community in which he lived he was held in high regard. He was born January 17, 1864, and died May 29, 1898. His parents were Samuel and Mary Ann (Shaffer) Rice.

The grandfather of Joshua A. L. Rice was Henry Rice. He was a resident of the Middletown Valley in Frederick County. His wife was a Miss Wachter. They are both buried in the Hill Cemetery in Jackson District, near Myersville. They were the parents of a son Samuel.

Samuel Rice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rice, was born in Middletown Valley, March 12, 1816, and died January 15, 1900. He was raised in his native district. His family were in poor circumstances, and he, being the eldest was forced to stay from school and help to support the home. Until he was twenty-three years old he remained with his father. He then removed from Middletown Valley to the neighborhood of Lewistown, where he hired out by the month to various farmers. By strict economy, he accumulated enough money to buy a small place near the mountain, where he planted an orchard. This undertaking afterwards yielded large returns. He later bought 60 acres of mountain land from Dennis Ramsburg and John Shaw. This property he sold to Powell Brothers, and then bought 92 1-2 acres of land, which he improved by constructing new buildings, making it one of the most desirable places in his district. He voted the Republican ticket. Mr. Rice took much interest in church work. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Lewistown, in which he held office at various times, being a member of the board of trustees and also superintendent of the Sunday School. Mr. Rice was married to Mary Ann Shaffer, daughter of Samuel and Susan (Bowers) Shaffer, of Lewistown District. They were the parents of fifteen children, twelve of whom grew to mature years: John W., deceased; Mary Jane, deceased; Daniel J., deceased; Eli D., deceased; Jacob D., of Lewistown District; William H., also of Lewistown District; Joseph A., deceased; Matilda, deceased; Samuel B., deceased; Joshua A. L., our subject; Frederick C., of Walkersville District; and Anna R., who is the wife of John Lutz, of Tuscarora District. Mrs. Rice was also a Methodist.

Joshua A. L. Rice, son of Samuel and Mary Ann (Shaffer) Rice, received his education in the public school at Bethel, Frederick County. When he had attained his majority, he began farming for himself on his father's place, and he was ever after engaged in agricultural pursuits. He remained at this location for two years, after which he bought a farm of about 75 acres of good land from the Wachter estate, which had been the homestead of that family. Here he was employed until death took him, when he was in the prime of life. He is interred in the German Baptist Cemetery at Mountaindale. After his death, his widow continued to operate the farm, with the aid of her eldest son, who was then thirteen years old. She managed to get along in this manner for a few years until her children began to approach maturity. She disposed of the 75-acre farm, and bought a smaller one of 48 acres, on which she raised her children. In the spring of 1908, she purchased a fine farm of 117 acres of excellent land from Joseph O. Rice, situated about seven and a-half miles north of Frederick, on the line of the Washington, Frederick and Gettysburg railroad. She improved this place in various ways, and today it is one of the best farms in the district. Mrs. Rice is deserving of much credit for the manner in which she has reared her family, who were very small at her husband's death. She is a member of the German Baptist Church.

Mr. Rice was married December 18, 1883, to Fannie E. Moser, daughter of John and Lucinda Moser, both deceased, of Middletown. The marriage ceremony was performed by Elder Emanuel Slifer, at Burkittsville, Frederick County. Mr. and Mrs. Rice were the parents of seven children: Roy J., who married Rosie Flohr, of Fairfield, Adams County, Pa.; Aaron F., Emory E., Arthur B., Ella May Goldie G., and Joshua A. L., all at home.

John and Lucinda Moser, Mrs. Rice's parents, had the following children: Olivia C., of Middletown Valley; Fannie E. (Mrs. Rice); Jennetta, the wife of Albert Boyer, of Jefferson District; Alpha, of near Braddock; Ida M., married to William Musselman, of New Carlisle, O.; Samuel C., deceased; Eleanor, and Vallie L., who is the wife of Harry Michael, of Myersville, Md.

ALPHEUS DOUGLAS THOMAS, of "Otterburn" farm, near Knoxville, Petersville District, Frederick County, Md., son of Ezra and Amanda (Stockman) Thomas, was born on what is now the Clayton R. Hemp farm, near Jefferson, Md., November 19, 1846.

Ezra Michael Thomas, father of Alpheus D. Thomas, was born on the farm now owned by L. O. Whip, one-half mile from the town of Jefferson, Md. His parents were poor, and his opportunities for education very limited. When Henry Willard built the home now occupied by Mr. Thomas' son, Charles Silas, Mr. Thomas was working for him, and burned the brick at forty cents a day. While at work he often expressed a wish to own the property, little dreaming that it would one day be his. Patience, hard work, and strict economy practiced by him and his wife at length accomplished what had seemed almost impossible; every dollar of the purchase money was earned by their own efforts. On March 15, 1894, Mr. Thomas lost his barn by fire which was discovered at 10 p. m. His entire wheat crop, forty tons of hay, and all his cattle and horses were burned. The horses, sixteen head, were the heaviest loss as they were fine animals, and were considered the most valuable stock in the county. Mr. Thomas also lost heavily during the Civil War when General Hooker's division of the Union Army was encamped on his place. He put in a claim for $28,000 damages, but the claim was never paid. Ezra M. Thomas was married to Amanda Stockman. Mr. Thomas preceded his wife to the grave, and his widow died April 9, 1904.

Alpheus Douglas Thomas spent his boyhood in Frederick, now Ballinger district, and attended the country schools until he reached his eighteenth year. In 1864 his father settled on the farm now owned by C. Silas Thomas, near Jefferson, where Alpheus remained until his marriage. Hard work and little play was the rule in his youth. After marriage, Mr. Thomas farmed for four years in Jefferson District and, in December, 1877, purchased his present home from his father. This farm belonged to the father of Governor Thomas, and was inherited by his daughter Catherine, wife of Colonel Henry Dunlap. George Dunlap, son of Colonel Dunlap, was born on this farm. In early manhood, he settled in Washington, D. C., where he became president of the Capital Traction Company. Otterburn farm consists of 190 acres of tillable land which produces heavy crops of excellent quality. In 1887, Mr. Thomas built his home and made many improvements. The barn and outbuildings are new and commodious, and the land is in fine condition and well-cared for. He is a stanch Democrat, eager for the success of the party.

Alpheus Douglas Thomas was married, February 24, 1874, to Mary Catherine, daughter of the late George W. Crum, M. D., of Jefferson, Md. (A sketch of the life of Mrs. Thomas' brother, George W. Crum, County Commissioner of Frederick County, appears in this volume). Mrs. Thomas received her education in the public schools of Jefferson, and in the Female Seminary in Frederick City, Md. The children of Alpheus D. and Mary Catherine (Crum) Thomas are: 1, C.

William, farmer, resides at Franklin Grove, Ill.; 2, Mary E., married Lawrence Roelkey, miller, resides in Burton, W. Va., has five children, Emma, Julia, Sue, John Thomas and Anna Kate; 3, Archie A., of Brunswick, Md., a fireman on the B. & O. R. R., married Kate Trundle, has one child, Adaline; 4, Susan N.; 5, Agnes A.; 6, George H.; 7, Katy C.; 8, Anna B., all at home. Mr. Thomas and his wife are members of the Reformed Church in Jefferson, Md.

GEORGE D. TOMS. a progressive farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., son of the late Ezra and Sophia (Doub) Toms, both deceased, was born on the old Toms homestead near Myersville, Md., January 12, 1859.

Jacob Toms, Sr., great-grandfather of George D. Toms, a German by birth, was one of the early settlers of the Middletown Valley, where he bought a tract of land on which he erected a dwelling and all the necessary buildings, and spent his life in cultivating and improving this property. He married and had a large family among whom was a son named Jacob, who became the grandfather of George D. Toms. He is buried near his farm in the old graveyard at Jerusalem, Md.

Mr. Toms' grandfather, Jacob Toms, Jr., spent his whole life in the cultivation of the soil, residing, for most of the time, on the homestead, one mile and a-half north of Myersville. He was born on this place in 1792. After his marriage, Mr. Toms took charge of the farm and finally purchased it. He was a good farmer, and greatly improved his property. His toil and constant care made him successful in business, and won the respect and confidence of his fellow citizens. He was a Republican, and was interested in advancing the progress of the community. Jacob Toms, Jr., was married to Miss Floyd, whose ancestors were among the first settlers of Frederick County, and afterwards became very prominent in the Middletown Valley. The children of Jacob Toms, Jr., and Mary (Floyd) Toms are: 1, Josiah, deceased; 2, Ezra, deceased; 3, John H., deceased; 4, Mary E., deceased, married to the late Rev. Lower; 5, Joshua, a retired farmer of Washington County, Md.; 6, Isiah E., a merchant of Middletown, Md. Mr. Toms and his wife were active members of the United Brethren Church in Myersville. He was very prominent in the building of the first United Brethren Church in Myersville and was for many years a member of the board of trustees. He died in January, 1887, and is buried in the cemetery of the United Brethren Church in Myersville.

The late Ezra Toms, father of George D. Toms, who was prominent among the older farmers of Jackson District, was born on the homestead, three-quarters of a mile north of Myersville, September 12, 1826. He was educated in the public schools of Jackson District, and remained on the homestead until after his marriage. In 1849, Mr. Toms began farming for himself on a farm of 131 acres he purchased, situated near Myersville. He improved this place in every respect putting up a comfortable two-story brick dwelling and a large bank barn, and increasing the fertility of the soil until the place ranked with the best farms in the district. Mr. Toms was a successful business man and owned several valuable farms near Myersville. In the spring of 1894, he retired from farming, and removed to Myersville. He was an active Republican, and was nominated by his party for county commissioner of Frederick County. He carried the county by a large majority, and served efficiently for one term of two years. He was highly respected by his fellow citizens. Ezra Toms was married to Sophia, daughter of George Daub, a well known farmer of the Middletown Valley. Their children are: 1, Anzonettie, married to Charles Sanner, a farmer of Tuscarora District; Frederick County; 2, Laura V. (Mrs. George Shaffer), of Tuscarora District; 3, Alta J., of Jackson District; 4, George D.; 5, Mary E., deceased, married to C. Upton Grossnickle, a farmer of Catoctin District; 6, Ella C., married to Charles B. Young, a farmer of Frederick District, Frederick County; 7, Lemuel V., a farmer of Washington County, Md.; 8, Fannie C., married to William E. Bittle, a farmer of Jackson District; 9, Millard F., a farmer of Jackson District. Mr. Toms and his wife were members of the United Brethren Church in Myersville, Md. He was one of the first to contribute to a fund for the erection of the new church edifice in Myersville. Mr. Toms died at his home in Myersville, September 13, 1894, and is buried in the cemetery of the United Brethren Church in Myersville. His wife is also dead.

George D. Toms received his education in the public schools of his native district, and remained on the homestead, assisting his father, until he married, when he began farming for himself on one of his father's farms. After cultivating this land for eight years, Mr. Toms purchased it from his father's estate. This farm of 126 acres of arable land, is one of the finest farms in Frederick County. It is beautifully situated, adjoining Myersville, along the Inter Urban Railroad, is well watered, and furnished with a comfortable two-story brick dwelling, a fine bank barn, and convenient outbuildings. Mr. Toms is a reliable citizen and enjoys the confidence and respect of his friends and neighbors. He was very active in securing the stock for the building of the Myersville and Catoctin Railroad, and was, for some time, a member of its board of directors. He belongs to the Junior Order of American Mechanics. Mr. Toms is an active member of the Republican party, and was appointed by Governor Lowndes one of the assessors for the Middletown Valley. His success is due to industry and close attention to business.

George D. Toms was married to Annie C., daughter of William and Catherine (Routzahn) Bittle, whose parents belonged to the most prominent families of Myersville. They have seven children, six of whom reached maturity. 1, Orhum B.; 2, Vada C.; 3, Edna M.; 4, William A.; 5, Ruth G.; 6, Emma; all at home. Mr. Toms is a member of the United Brethren Church in Myersville and has been for some time one of the trustees. Mrs. Toms holds her membership in the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Myersville.

H. R. FLAUTT, one of the prominent young business men of Frederick, is a dealer in shoes, hats, caps, trunks and valises in the City Hall Building. He was born on a farm in the vicinity of Walkersville, Frederick County, December 28, 1878, and is a son of L. C. and Jennie (Roderick) Flautt.

L. C. Flautt resides in Frederick City. He is an adherent of the Democratic party. He and his wife, Jennie Roderick, are the parents of seven children: William C., engaged in the jewelry business at Norfolk, Va.; Virginia, the wife of Charles S. Wilson; Gilmore, a clerk for the firm of Lowenstein & Wertheimer, of Frederick City; H. R., our subject; Walter L., with his brother H. R. Flautt, in the shoe business; Hattie B., unmarried, of Frederick, and Carrie, wife of Raymond Hamilton, Frederick City.

H. R. Flautt, son of L. C. and Jennie (Roderick) Flautt, received his education in the public schools of Frederick county and city. When he was ten years of age he came to Frederick City with his parents, and became a newsboy. He was then employed as a bundle boy in the dry goods store of Doll Brothers for one year, and next became a clerk in the carpet store of C. E. Cline, with whom he remained for four years. Mr. Flautt then accepted a position as clerk in the shoe store of A. R. Yeakle. He remained in this capacity for ten years, until October 1, 1906, when he bought out Mr. Yeakle and has since conducted business at the old stand under his own name. Mr. Flautt has recently improved his store by having a large glass front added, and carries a full line of goods such as are usually in establishments of this kind. Mr. Flautt is energetic and progressive in his business methods and controls a large trade. He is one of the leading and successful of the younger business men of Frederick.

Mr. Flautt is a member and leading spirit in Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, and in the United Steam Fire Engine Company, No. 3, of Frederick City.

Mr. Flautt was married October 24, 1905, to Ella C. Brengle, daughter of George W. Brengle, of Frederick. There is one daughter by this union: Virginia Catharine.

GEORGE W. WACHTEL, vice-president of the Myersville Savings Bank, and a leading citizen of that town, was born in or near Myersville, Frederick County, Md., April 10, 1846. He is a son of Solomon and Catherine (Smith) Wachtel.

Jacob Wachtel, grandfather of George W. Wachtel, was a native of Washington County, Md. He was one of the early settlers of that county and lived on the Conococheague Creek. He was the father of six children: 1, Solomon; 2, Daniel; 3, Rebecca, married Samuel Smith; 4, Susan, married Henry Smith; 5, Elizabeth, married Joseph Gaver; 6, Mary, married John Shank.

Solomon Wachtel, son of Jacob Wachtel, was born in 1819, and died, January 12, 1851. He was a carpenter in Jackson District, Frederick County. He was married to Catherine Smith, one of the six daughters of Jacob Smith. There were four children by this marriage: 1, Mary Ellen, died in youth; 2, George W.; 3, Daniel J.; 4, Jacob S. In politics, Solomon Wachtel voted the Whig ticket. In religion he was a Lutheran.

George W. Wachtel, son of Solomon and Catherine (Smith) Wachtel, was less than five years old when his father died. His mother married after his father's death. Her second husband was Jacob Summers, of J., who conducted a general merchandise store in My-ersville and in Beailsville, thus giving young Wachtel some opportunity for business experience. Mr. Wachtel's education was limited, being confined to the public schools of Myersville and Beallsville, and at the age of fourteen he was put to work on the farm, going to school only during the winter months. The winter of 1864-65, during the Civil War, he was employed as a laborer by the Government in Camp R——— C———, near Sandy Hook, Md. Returning home after the close of the struggle, he engaged again as a laborer on farms in Washington and Frederick Counties. In 1867, he embarked in the general mercantile business, in Myersville, having as his partner his stepfather, Jacob Summers of J.

This business continued with reasonable success until the spring of 1870, when the then existing partnership was dissolved, and Mr. Wachtel retired, having laid the foundation for a practical business life.

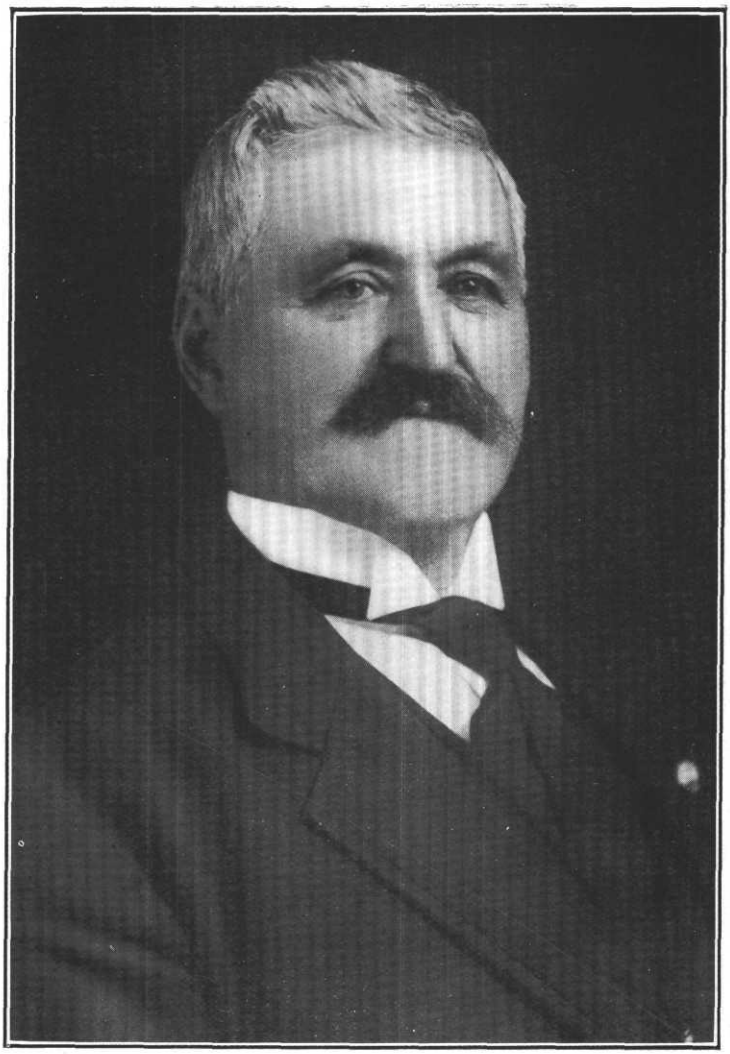
The following year, 1871, Mr. Wachtel went to Iowa on a business trip, returning late in the same year. He was then appointed by Joseph Brown, George Leatherman and John Wesley Bussard, trustees of Daniel Michael, who had been a tax collector for the county but had recently died, as deputy collector of taxes to canvass Frederick County and close up the unfinished task of Mr. Michael. With his usual vigor and ambitious energy, he successfully accomplished his work, thus saving Mr. Michael's bondsmen from loss.

Mr. Wachtel has made twelve trips to the western and south-western states, almost entirely business trips at the solicitations of friends. In two of these trips he crossed the continent to California. In September, 1904, he was urged to go to Vancouver, Washington, on a matter of vital interest, and was prevailed upon to make the trip. He successfully accomplished his mission, traveled over seven thousand miles, and took but eighteen days for the journey. Mr. Wachtel is a thorough and practical business man. He is public spirited, and always has the best interests of his town and people at heart. He was one of the incorporators of the Myersville and Catoctin Railroad. He was one of the prime movers in the organization and an incorporator of the Myersville Savings Bank, of which he is vice-president, and a director and a member of the executive committee, since its doors were opened. To him belongs much credit for its success, and the present high and sound financial basis this bank has attained. The Myersville Savings Bank is one of the leading and soundest financial institutions of the State.

Mr. Wachtel is a great friend of education. He wrote a petition and almost unaided solicited each subscriber for the establishment of a high school at Myersville. This petition, containing ninety-one names, was granted. He also interested himself in behalf of a new school building, which has been granted by the County School Commissioners. He was defeated for commissioner of his town by persons whom he had befriended, but even since then he has helped some of them in adversity, thus giving an illustration of true Christian spirit. Mr. Wachtel is a public-spirited citizen and is always ready to lend a hand and encouragement to any enterprise that tends to promote the general welfare.

Mr. Wachtel is an ardent Republican in politics, but has never asked anything from the hands of his admirers. He has always used his earnest efforts in behalf of friends, according to his aggressive and honest convictions. In 1880, he received the appointment of United States Census Enumerator for his district, which position he filled with acceptance to the government and credit to himself and his constituents. He was judge of elections for a number of years prior to the new law. He was appointed by the governor of Maryland, the Republican member of the first board of election supervisors for Frederick County, during his absence from home, unknown and unsolicited, while on a business trip to the Western States. He received notice from the officials of Frederick County, to appear and qualify, but notified the Governor that he would not be home within the limit of time. Upon his arrival home, however, he found he had been reappointed. Mr. Wachtel has been for the last twelve years, but not of his own choosing, registration officer and judge of elections. He has attended four inauguartions of presidents. He has served as a delegate to a number of Republican Congressional Conventions, and was a member of the Republican State Convention that met in Baltimore in 1904. Mr. Wachtel is an ardent admirer of ex-United States Senator Louis E. McComas, now deceased, and Congressman George A. Pearre. He believes Maryland should be proud of her loyal sons and that the name of L. E. McComas should have been pressed for president.

Mr. Wachtel was married, December 29, 1870, to Louisa C. Metzger, daughter of William and Lydia (Toms) Metzger. They are the parents of eight children, seven of whom reached maturity: 1, Annie L. C. (Mrs. Lemuel Toms), has three children, Hubert W., Oscar R., and Harry L.; 2, Margie Estella,



Geo. W. Wachtel

(Mrs. Reno B. Poffenberger), of Myersville, has two children, Viola Catherine, and George David, now deceased; 3, Lowlie Arbelon, wife of Lawson F. Bittle, general merchant, of Myersville, has two children, Ruth Catherine, and Margaret Lenore; 4, William Solomon, assistant treasurer of the Myersville Savings Bank, unmarrried; 5, Hattie V., the wife of George Upton Shipley, a farmer of Jackson District, has three children, Florence Virginia, Roscoe Ralph, and Austin V.; 6, Martin Luther, principal of the City High School, of Martinsburg, W. GEORGE D. DINTERMAN, a prosperous and progressive agriculturist, who resides two miles and a-half northeast of Middletown, was born near Walkersville, Frederick County, Md., March 21, 1857. His parents were John P. and Charlotte C. (Derr) Dinterman.

George Dinterman, the grandfather of George D. Dinterman, was a native of Mount Pleasant District, Frederick County, Md. He was a farmer by occupation. In politics, he was an old line Whig and in later life a supporter of the Republican party. In religion, he was affiliated with the Lutheran Church. Mr. Dinterman was the father of these children: John P.; Catharine, born in 1824; Caroline, born in 1826, married Jacob Greybill; George H., born in 1828; Jacob B., born in 1831; and Eliza E., born in 1833.

John P. Dinterman, son of George Dinterman, was born December 6, 1822, and died April 28, 1868. He is buried in the Lutheran Cemetery at Middletown. Mr. Dinterman was married about 1853 to Charlotte C. Derr. They were the parents of one son, George D.

George D. Dinterman, son of John P. and Charlotte C. (Derr) Dinterman, was only eleven years old when his father died. He then came to Middletown with his mother in 1868, where he grew to maturity and received his education in the public schools. Since boyhood, he has followed agricultural pursuits. Mr. Dinterman in 1882 bought his present excellent farm, which contains 152 acres and is one of the best in the Valley. The previous owner of the place was Peter H. Bussard. Here Mr. Dinterman has since made his home. His mother, who is seventy-four years of age, resides with him. Mr. Dinterman is a practical farmer, who by the use of intelligent and progressive methods has been very successful at agriculture. He has not confined his attention, however, to farming, but has been interested in various enterprises of the county. Mr. Dinterman was one of the prime movers in the organization of the Middletown Savings Bank, in which he is serving as a director. He was also one of the organizers and is a director in the Grangers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company, and is a stockholder in the Farmers' Exchange of Myersville, and director since its organization.

Politically, Mr. Dinterman votes for the candidates of the Republican party, but he has never had any desire to hold public office. Religiously, he is a consistent member of Zion's Lutheran Church of Middletown. He is a member of the board of the Lutheran Cemetery Association of Middletown, since its organization in 1895.

Mr. Dinterman has been twice married. He was married first in 1882 to Susan A. M. Bussard, daughter of Peter H. and Charlotte Bussard. She died in 1886, without issue. Mr. Dinterman was married secondly in March, 1888, to Phoebe E. Sheffer, daughter of Philip and Lucinda (Ahalt) Sheffer, of Middletown district. They are the parents of five children, three of whom are now living: Minnie C., Annie L. and George H. P.

WILLIAM L. RICHARDS, former member of the Maryland Legislature, and one of Brunswick's prominent citizens, is a native of Hancock, Md., in which place he was born October 31, 1867. He is a son of Isaac and Ellen (Faith) Richards.

The Richards family is an old one of Pennsylvania. Isaac Richards was for many years the largest contractor and builder in Washington County, Md., but is now living retired at Hancock, Md. In politics, he is a supporter of the Republican party. In religion he is a member of the Presbyterian Church. He is highly respected in the town in which he resides. He was married to Ellen Faith. They were the parents of the following children: Edward L., who is a conductor on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad; William L.; Maxwell, principal of the Hancock High School and a member of the board of examiners for Washington County, Md.; Albert Glenn, who became an Episcopal minister, and is now rector of a church at Forrest Park, Chicago, Ill.; Helen, at home; Raymond, United States mail clerk on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad between Washington and Pittsburg; Walter, who is in the employ of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railroad; Ellis, a teacher in the public schools of Washington County, Md.; Frank, a telegraph operator, employed by the Western Maryland Railroad, and residing at Hancock, Md.; and Ruth, now Mrs. Roy Null, residing at Brunswick, Md.

William L. Richards, son of Isaac and Ellen (Faith) Richards, was but nine years of age when he was taken by his parents to Ellis, Kan. Here he remained until he was fifteen years old, receiving his education in the public schools. In 1882, he removed from Kansas and returned to the east with his parents, who located in Morgan County, West Va. In 1888, they returned to Hancock, Md., and engaged in farming. The next year being twenty-two years old, Mr. Richards entered the employ of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad as a brakeman. In 1891, he was promoted to the position of conductor, with a run from Brunswick to Cumberland, Md. This position he still retains, and he is held in high esteem by the officials of the road. In Brunswick, he is well known and is regarded as one of the town's substantial citizens.

For the past twenty years, Mr. Richards has been an active supporter and stanch adherent of the principles of the Republican party. In the fall of 1905, he was nominated by his party, and was elected a member of the Maryland House of Delegates, serving with much credit in the session of 1906. While filling this office, he discharged its duties with marked fidelity, and always had the best interests of his constituents at heart. He was assistant sergeant of arms at the National Republican Convention that met at Chicago, Ill., June 16, 1908, and nominated William H. Taft for President. Mr. Richards is a member of the Order of Railway Conductors, Loyalty Lodge, No. 122, Knights of Pythias, Brunswick, Ben Hadad Temple, No. 93, D. O. K. K., and the Union League of Baltimore, Md. Mr. Richards was married on March 16th, 1909, to Miss Margaret C. Slayman, of Hancock, Md.

JOHN P. BAER, deceased, was widely known throughout Frederick County in his day and met with much success in his business undertakings. He was born in the city of Weinheim, Germany, December 25, 1822, and died in Frederick City, Md., May 20, 1888. He was a son of Adam and Annie M. (Wetzel) Baer.

Adam Baer was born near Weinheim, Germany, about 1785, and died at the age of seventy-four years. He was a farmer by vocation. He was also the owner of several vineyards and was one of the largest wine makers of the state of Baden, Germany. He made a success of life, and was the possessor of several small farms. Mr. Baer was married to Annie M. Wetzel. They were the parents of six children: Philip, spent his life in Germany; George, and Michael, both died in Germany; John P., our subject; Catharine, the wife of Henry Greenwald, of Germany; and Adam, the only surviving member of this family, came to America some time after his elder brother, John P., and settled in Greencastle, Franklin County, Pa., where he still resides. Adam and Annie M. (Wetzel) Baer were members of the Reformed Church and highly respected citizens.

John P. Baer, son of Adam and Annie M. (Wetzel) Baer, received his education at the Weinheim City College. He remained with his parents until 1844, in which year he came to this country with a brother of his father. They landed in New York, and settled at Chambersburg, Franklin County, Pa. Here John P. Baer secured a position with Upton Washabaugh, who was engaged in the brewery business and with whom he remained for about nine years. He thoroughly mastered all the details of that line of business. He later formed a partnership with a Mr. Middlekauff, of Hagerstown, Md., and they engaged in the brewery business. A year later, Mr. Baer sold his interest and removed back to Chambersburg, Pa. In September, 1858, he located in Frederick City, and bought the old brewery of Jacob Markell in Brewery Alley. He fitted up the establishment with first class machinery and for a period of fifteen years was actively engaged in that line of trade, after which he retired from an active business life. He rented the brewery and four years later sold the plant to Paul Houser. Mr. Baer was the possessor of a large trade and his product had a wide sale. He amassed a competency by his business ability and industry. He owned several fine houses in Frederick City and some small tracts of land near the town. In 1873, he purchased from Mr. Dutrow the fine home on South Market St., where his widow resided until she died May, 1909. In politics, Mr. Baer was a stanch Republican, and held membership in the Evangelical Reformed Church.

Mr. Baer was married to Salome Householder, daughter of Henry and Dorothy Householder, of Alsace, France, near the city of Strasburg. She was born in France and came to this country with her parents in 1839, being then a young girl. Her parents landed in New York and settled in Chambersburg, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Baer had three children: Annie C., the wife of Zachery Zimmerman, of Ballinger District; Mary E., married to Charles E. Zellers, of Baltimore, Md.; and William H., who died young.

ERNEST HELFENSTEIN, one of the leading and active young business men of Frederick City, where he is engaged in the general fire insurance business, with offices at No. 24 West Patrick street, was born in Frederick, April 5, 1869. He is a son of C. G. and Annie E. (Trail) Helfenstein.

Rev. J. C. Albertus Helfenstein, the great-grandfather of Ernest Helfenstein, was the emigrant ancestor of the Helfenstein family of Frederick County. He was a native of Germany, and emigrated to America in 1772.

Rev. Jonathan Helfenstein, son of Rev. J. C. Albertus Helfenstein, was born in Germantown, Pa., January 19, 1784. He was pastor of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick, 1811-28, his charge at that time consisting of Fredericktown, Middletown, Glades, Zion, Manor and the Ramsburg school house.

C. G. Helfenstein, son of Rev. Jonathan Helfenstein, and father of Ernest Helfenstein, was born in Frederick City in 1828, and died in 1895. He was reared in Frederick, but in early life he went west, and settled in St. Louis, Mo., where he became a successful merchant. After many years he returned to Frederick, where he lived in retirement until his death. Prior to his death he owned the fine farm now in the possession of Mrs. L. Victor Baughman, which was originally the Trail homestead, and one of the best improved and finest country homes of western Maryland. In politics Mr. Helfenstein was an independent Republican. In religion he was an active member of All Saints' Protestant Episcopal Church of Frederick, in which he served as a vestryman for many years. Mr. Helfenstein was married to Annie E. Trail. They had issue: Fanny, died aged eighteen years; Cyrus, deceased; Rev. E. T., rector of St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church, near Ellicott City, Md.; Allen Trail, died in childhood; Ernest, of whom presently; Nannie, deceased, was married to C. Staley Gambrill, of Frederick City; and Charles M., died in Frederick in 1897.

Ernest Helfenstein was reared in Frederick, where he received his education in private schools and Frederick College. He afterwards occupied a clerical position in a mercantile house in Frederick, and in 1890 went to Anniston, Ala., where he was engaged as a bookkeeper for a large lumber firm. Here he remained for two years, at the end of which time he went to Superior, Wis., where he was employed as a bookkeeper for a large wholesale hardware house for two years. Upon the death of his father in 1895, he returned to his native place, and later engaged in the insurance business, which he has since continued with much success. Politically, Mr. Helfenstein is a Republican, and fraternally a member of the B. P. O. E., Lodge No. 684, of Frederick City. In religion, he is an active member of All Saints' Protestant Episcopal Church, in which he serves as a vestryman. He is a trustee of the Episcopal Orphan House, one of the visitors of Frederick College, a director in the Farmers' Exchange, and President of the Frederick Board of Underwriters.

Mr. Helfenstein was married to Mary G. Levy, daughter of Charles V. S. and Mary G. (Strobel) Levy, of Frederick City. For a history of the Levy family, see sketch of Charles P. Levy in this work. Ernest and Mary G. (Levy) Helfenstein are the parents of three children: Ernest, Anna Trail, and Mary G.

REV. WILLIAM E. BROWN, pastor of Zion's Evangelical Lutheran Church of Middletown, was born at Arcadia, Baltimore County, Md., June 25, 1879. He is a son of William J. and Jennie R. (Gill) Brown.

William J. Brown is a son of Elisha Brown. He is a farmer and breeder of fine horses and cattle. His home is at Arcadia, Md. He was married to Jennie R. Gill, by whom he had two children: William E., and Mamie Grace, residing with her parents.

William E. Brown, son of William J. and Jennie R. (Gill) Brown, was reared at his father's home in Baltimore County, Md., and while a boy attended the public schools of his native district, and the High School at Reistertown, Md. He then entered Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Pa., from which he was graduated with the degree of A. B. in 1899. Having decided to enter the ministry, he became a student at Wittenburg Theological Seminary, Springfield, Ohio, from which institution he was graduated with the degree of B. D. in 1902. His first charge was at Myersdale, Somerset County, Pa., where he remained until 1904, when he accepted a call to a church in Pittsburg, Pa. In the latter city he remained until May 1, 1907, at which time he accepted a call to Zion's Evangelical Lutheran Church at Middletown. Since coming to Middletown, he has made many friends, and his pastorate here has been a very successful one, as indeed were all his former ones. He is highly esteemed by the whole community. He is a man of pleasing and genial disposition and is very popular with his congregation.

Rev. Brown is a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity of Pennsylvania College. He was married October 14, 1902, to Beulah E. Miller, daughter of Silas V. Miller, of Mount Carmel, Md. They have two daughters, Helen Miller, and Elizabeth Grace.

WILLIAM H. SUMMERS, retired, spent his active life in agricultural pursuits. He is a substantial citizen of Braddock District. He was born in Middletown Valley, Frederick County, September 18, 1851, and is a son of Henry W. and Esther (Derr) Summers.

The American progenitor of the Summers family was Jacob Summers, who was the great-grandfather of William H. Summers. He was a native of Germany, and emigrated to this country about the time of the American Revolution. He was accompanied to America by two brothers, who located in Pennsylvania. He came to Maryland, and took up his residence in Middletown Valley, Frederick County. He bought a tract of 116 acres of farm and timber land in Jackson District, and was one of the pioneer settlers of that section of the county. He followed farming all his life. The place he lived on has ever since remained in the hands of his descendants. He was a soldier in the War of 1812. The name of his wife has not been ascertained.

George W. Summers, son of Jacob Summers the emigrant, was born in the upper part of Middletown Valley, in Jackson district, in March, 1802. He attended the common schools and lived at home until he attained his majority. At the age of sixteen years, he started to drive a team for his father and was engaged in hauling over the National pike from all points between Baltimore, Md., and Wheeling, W. Va. After he had reached manhood, he got a team of his own and engaged in hauling on his own account. He was thus occupied for some time, and made many trips over that pike. Mr. Summers then turned his attention to agriculture, and purchased the homestead of 116 acres in Jackson District. He was a large land owner and prominent citizen in his day. Shortly after removing to the home manor, he bought 65 acres of fine timber adjoining. He was also the owner of another fine farm of 180 acres. All his land was well improved, he taking much pride in the good care of his places. He also owned the old Kenney grist mill in Middletown Valley and a fulling mill, known as the Captain Kaylor mill. Mr. Summers died in 1885, having lived in retirement for the previous ten years. In politics, Mr. Summers voted the Democratic ticket, and was a trustee of the public school at Bellesville, in Jackson District. Religiously, he was connected with the Lutheran Church, and filled various offices in his congregation. Mr. Summers was married to Catharine E. Michael, daughter of Henry Michael. She was a member of the Reformed Church at Middletown. They were the parents of the following children: Henry W.; Jacob V., of Tuscarora District; John T., deceased; Samuel M., a retired farmer; David W., of Jackson District; Joshua, of Myersville, Jackson District.

Henry W. Summers, son of George W. and Catherine E. (Michael) Summers, was born October 9, 1826, and died April 3, 1902. He received such an education as the public schools afforded, and followed the vocation of a farmer. In 1849, he began farming on his own account on a farm rented from his father. He afterward bought the farm of his father. This place lay about two miles and a-half southeast of Middletown, in Middletown District. He made his home here until 1868, when he bought a large farm of 304 acres, known as the Mount Philip farm, from George William Smith. This tract was situated about four miles southwest of Frederick, on the road leading from the Hagerstown pike to the Mount Philip school house. Here Mr. Summers remained until 1888, when he relinquished the management of the farm to two of his sons. He improved this large farm in such a way that it could be divided into three tracts, which division was afterwards made. Mr. Summers amassed a competency by industry, perseverence and strict honesty in his business transactions. He was a stockholder in the Valley Savings Bank of Middletown and in the Frederick & Middletown Electric railroad. Mr. Summers was married to Esther C. Derr, daughter of Philip and Elizabeth (Crone) Derr, of Middletown Valley.

They were the parents of fourteen children, nine of whom grew to maturity: Philip W., deceased; William H., our subject; Elizabeth, deceased, was the wife of John W. Bussard, of Middletown Valley; Louis E., of Jefferson District; Clara, married to James Boyer, of Middletown District, deceased; Eli H., deceased; Simon P., deceased; Mary A. S., the wife of Cornelius McDevitt, of Frederick District, deceased; and Cordelia F., the wife of Henry Roberts of Braddock District. Mr. and Mrs. Summers were members of the Lutheran Church at Middletown until after their removal to the Mount Philip farm, when they became affiliated with the Mount Zion Church. In the latter congregation, Mr. Summers served as an elder. Mrs. Summers died in 1874. They are both buried in the Lutheran Cemetery at Middletown.

William H. Summers, son of Henry W. and Esther C. (Derr) Summers, received a public school education. He remained on the home farm until he was twenty-seven years old, when he secured a position with P. L. Hargett & Company, of Frederick City. He was in the employ of this concern for a period of ten years. In March, 1890, Mr. Summers purchased the place on which he now resides from Joseph Fleming's heirs. This farm is in Braddock District, three miles west of Frederick on the Hagerstown pike, and the large brick dwelling house on the place, still in a good state of preservation, was erected in the early part of 1800. Mr. Summers is one of the substantial citizens of the district. He is a stockholder in the Valley Savings Bank of Middletown, and is one of the trustees of the public school at Braddock. In 1908 he retired from active farming, and has since enjoyed the fruits of his industry and business ability.

Mr. Summers was married to Clara V. Barnes, daughter of Thomas and Mary Barnes, of Frederick City. They are the parents of two children: one ———, died young; and John W., who is cultivating the home farm. He is married to Miss Baker, daughter of Christian Baker, by whom he has two children, Mildred B. and William C. William H. Summers and his family are members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Frederick, in which he has held the offices of deacon and elder for a number of years.

CHARLES G. WALTER, farmer, of Emmitsburg District, No. 5, son of John and Mary (Hobbs) Walter, was born on the farm now owned by Franklin Smith, four miles south of Emmitsburg, Frederick County, Md., December 7, 1846.

The great-grandfather of Charles G. Walter, a Dutch baron, emigrated to America with Lord Baltimore, and it is said built the first house on the site of the city of Baltimore. It is probable that he owned large tracts of land in that neighborhood, and, according to the custom of the time, leased a part of them for ninety-nine years. It is said that there is a fortune to be gained from these lands. Mr. Walter's grandfather was robbed and murdered on the Hookstown road, near Baltimore.

John Walter, father of Charles G. Walter, was born in Baltimore, in 1799. He learned shoemaking and worked at his trade for fifty years. He remained in Baltimore until 1820 when he moved to Emmitsburg, Md.

He was married twice and was the father of twenty-three children. His first wife was Agnes Barnes. Their children are: John S., deceased, accumulated property in district No. 5, married Martha Hobbs, had four children; 2, William B., a graduate of Mt. St. Mary's College, a successful lawyer of Wayne, Ind., where he married and became wealthy; 3, Joseph, deceased, huckster of Frederick County, married; 4, Anselm, deceased, a coppersmith, married Miss Mary Neikirk; 5, Ambrose, deceased, coppersmith, married and settled in Philadelphia, Pa.; 6, Jerome, deceased, carriage maker, settled in Gettysburg, Pa., married Hannah Mills; 7, Stanislaus, deceased, farmer, huckster and proprietor of the old "Swan Hotel," in Baltimore, married Ruth Wicard; 8, Agnes, deceased, Sister of Charity; 9, Simon, a veteran of the Civil War, resides in Hagerstown, Md., married Mary Null and had three children who died in infancy. John Walter's second wife, Mary, daughter of John and —— (Devilbliss) Hobbs, was born in 1830, in Emmitsburg District. She died near Washington, D. C., and is buried at Mount St. Mary's. Their children are: 1, Charles G.; 2, Aloysius, carpenter, married Miss Dorsey, resides near Washington, D. C., has children; 3, George M., farming in Montgomery, County, Md., married Lottie Reed; 4, Mary, (Mrs. James Knott), resides in Prince George's County, Md., has six children, 5, Vincent, carpenter, married Miss Tillie Nichols, died in Prince George's County, Md.; 6, Ella (Mrs. James Renner), resides in Washington, D. C.; 7, Robert, carpenter, married Sarah Austin, resides in Kensington, Md.; 8, Jennie, (Mrs. Spencer), died in Washington, D. C.; 9, Bernard, truck gardener in Prince George's County, Md., married Mary Howard; and two children who died in infancy.

Charles G. Walter attended the public schools of the district. As his father had a large family and had now exhausted his fortune, his son Charles was put to work when he was quite young. He remained at home, working with his father on the farm until he was eighteen when he was apprenticed to John Hobbs, carpenter. In 1864, Mr. Walter began working for himself in Baltimore, Md., and the next year, removed to Washington, D. C., where he remained for eight years. During this time, he became a contractor, was very well-known in business, and built more than one hundred houses in the city and suburbs. He erected, near Washington, a residence costing $15,000 for S. T. Suit, a large home for Clark Bowie, at Laurel, Md., and filled a large contract for Andrew Brown. In 1877 Mr. Walter returned to Emmitsburg District and carried on his business there. He built the beautiful home of George Houck at Harmony Grove, Md., and the large school building at Liberty, Md. In 1879 he purchased his homestead, a farm of 150 acres situated in Emmitsburg District, Frederick County, Md. Although he is principally occupied in improving and cultivating his land, he occasionally accepts contracts for fine buildings. In 1897 he built St. Anthony's Catholic Church at Mt. St. Mary's. Mr. Walter is interested in public affairs and is an independent voter.

Charles G. Walter was married, in Washington, D. C., April 24, 1869, to Mary E., daughter of John and Anna B. (Eyler) Dorsey, of Emmitsburg District. The children of Charles G. and Mary E. (Dorsey) Walter are: 1, Fanny, (Mrs. Samuel Cease), of Emmitsburg district, has two children, Cloyd and Charles Allen; 2, William F., at home; 3, Charles D., at home. Mr. Walter and his family are members of Mount St. Mary's Catholic Church.

JOHN THOMAS BARNES, farmer, of Linganore District, Frederick County, Md., son of Levi Zadock and Susan (Lindsey) Barnes, was born at the Barnes homestead, near Oak Orchard, Linganore District, Frederick County, Md., in the house now owned by B. F. Dudderar, June 2, 1835.

Zadoc Barnes, grandfather of John T. Barnes, lived and died on a farm near Franklinville, in what is now Carroll County, Md. He was married to Miss Elizabeth Polsen. Their children are: Andrew, James P., Levi Z.; Rachel, Prudence, Thomas P., and Slingsberry. The last two removed to Ohio and afterwards to Indiana, where both died.

Mr. Barnes' father, Levi Zadock Barnes, was born in 1802, in what is now Carroll County, Md. He was a poor boy and received no education but what he acquired in the old log school house, yet he was an expert mathematician. He learned shoemaking and worked at that trade for many years. After his marriage he settled on land near Oak Orchard, on which now stands the residence of Isaac Nusbaum. At this time Mr. Barnes had but fifty cents with which to buy food. He invested in a sack of flour and middlings. This was soon consumed and as no work came in, he had no cash. He went to the mill and asked for flour on credit, which, after some hesitation was given him. He persevered and worked and saved until finally he was able to buy five or six acres of land near Oak Orchard. Mr. Barnes now abandoned his trade at which he had worked successfully for many years, and had even employed workmen. He built a store on his land, sold general merchandise, and began business as a huckster. He was a successful merchant and continued the business until his death. During this time he was postmaster of Oak Orchard for fifteen or twenty years. Mr. Barnes was a member of the Whig party.

Levi Zadock Barnes was married October 20th, 1825, to Susan, daughter of John and Sarah (Baille) Lindsay. Their children are: 1, Sarah A., deceased; 2, F. Washington, died February, 1908, at Unionville, Md., married Ellen Reese; 3, Lizzie, (Mrs. William R. Curry) of Sam's Creek, Carroll County, Md.; 4, Catherine (Mrs. John Waltz), deceased; 5, John Thomas; 6, Amelia (Mrs. Hamilton Lindsey, died 1904; 7, Augusta (Mrs. William Ecker), deceased; 8, Rachel E., deceased; 9, (Mrs. Lucretia B. F. Dudderar), of Oak Orchard, Md. Mr. Barnes died at his home in Oak Orchard, in 1862, his widow died in 1881, aged seventy-five years. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Linganore. Husband and wife rest in the graveyard adjoining Linganore chapel.

John T. Barnes received his education in the old schoolhouse at Oak Orchard. The building was of hewn logs and was furnished with slab benches. Some of his teachers were: Theodore Curry, Mr. Francis, Mr. Saunders, William R. Curry, and William Weeks. John was permitted to attend a part of each year until he was eighteen. When he was fourteen, his father rented the farm which he now owns, and he was put to work there. Sometimes he helped his father in the store, and in huckstering, and sometimes he worked for the neighboring farmers. As a boy he could turn his hand to anything, and he greatly desired to become a mechanic. He still enjoys this gift of dexterous fingers. Mr. Barnes remained with his father, and after his father's death, took the store and still rented the farm. In 1867, he sold the store and purchased the farm, and the same year, built a convenient barn, and in 1868, he erected his comfortable home. While he had the store, Mr. Barnes also acted as postmaster of Oak Orchard. He now has a fine farm of 150 acres of well-improved land, with substantial buildings all in good order. He is a stanch Republican, and although he has passed threescore years and ten, continues interested in the questions of the day.

John Thomas Barnes was married, in 1864, to Eliza Jane, daughter of Captain William Ecker, deceased, 1865, who resided near New Windsor, Carroll County, Md. Their children are: 1, Mollie (Mrs. Edward Ensor), of Washington; 2, Maggie, (Mrs. Warren E. Dudderar); 3, Amidee; 4, Nora, deceased; 5, Andrew, resides with his father; 6, Lewis, carpenter, resides in Linganore District; 7, Leroy Cress, at home. Mr. Barnes and his wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Linganore.

D. RUPLEY KELLER, farmer, residing on the old Keller homestead, one mile south of Myersville, Jackson District, Frederick Conty, Md., son of Henry and Sarah (Biser) Keller, was born on the homestead, April 18, 1862.

Mr. Keller's great-grandfather, an emigrant from Germany, came to America in early manhood, and settled four miles north of Middletown, Md., but afterwards took up 165 acres of timber land, one mile south of Myersville. He married and spent his life in clearing and improving his land. He is buried in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Middletown, Md. After his death, his son, David, grandfather of D. Rupley Keller, inherited the estate which he in turn cultivated and improved, adding to the homestead 150 acres adjoining, which he also improved. Daniel Keller was married to Hannah Bussard. Among their children was a son Henry. Daniel Keller and his wife rest in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Middletown, Md.

Henry Keller, fourth son of David and Hannah Keller, father of D. Rupley Keller, a prominent farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., was born on the old homestead, near Myersville, December 13, 1819. He grew up on the home farm, and received his education in the public schools of Jackson District. He remained with his father until he reached his thirtieth year, when he married and began farming for himself, renting his father's farm. After his father's death, Mr. Keller purchased the homestead, and cultivated it successfully until 1897, when he retired from farming and removed to Middletown, where he spent the remainder of his life. Mr. Keller was a prominent man, successful in business, and highly respected as a citizen. Hard work and careful attention to business brought him financial success. He was a Republican and, in 1881, was the party candidate for commissioner of Frederick County. He was elected by a large majority, and discharged his official duties promptly and satisfactorily. Henry Keller was married to Sarah, daughter of Daniel and Elizabeth (Routzahn) Biser, both of Middletown Valley. Of their nine children, seven reached maturity; 1, H. Melvin, farmer of Jackson District; 2, Hannah V. E. (Mrs. S. Smith), of Myersville; 3, Lyda C., married Harlom Summers, a retired farmer of Walkersville, Md.; 4, D. Rupley; 5, Annie D., (Mrs. Charles M. Shank), of Middletown; 6, Sumner K. a farmer of Middletown District; 7 Edgar B. a farmer of Jackson District. Mr. Keller and his wife were members of Christ Reformed Church in Middletown. Mr. Keller contributed liberally to church benevolence, and served the congregation as deacon and as elder for many years. He died in Middletown, January 16, 1901; his widow died February 10, 1901. Both are buried in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Middletown.

D. Rupley Keller grew up on the homestead, and was educated in the public schools of his native district. He remained at home, assisting his father on the farm until he married, when he began farming for himself. He removed to Washington County, Md., where he assumed the management of a farm of 275 acres, the property of William S. Young, which he cultivated successfully for thirteen years. In 1902, after the death of his parents, Mr. Keller returned to Frederick County, and purchased the old homestead on which he now resides. He is a skilful farmer and has improved his property in every respect until it is now counted among the fine farms in the district. He owes his success in business to honest labor and careful attention. Mr. Keller is an active Republican, interested in county affairs, and is honored as a good citizen.

D. Rupley Keller was married to Jennette E., daughter of George H. and Mary (Bear) Routzahn, both deceased, whose father was a prominent farmer of the Middletown Valley.

The children of D. Rupley and Jennetta E. (Routzahn) Keller are: 1, Harry C., bricklayer, at home; 2, Elmer L., at home; 3, Earl R., at home; 4, Ethel M., at home. Mr. Keller is a member of Christ Reformed Church in Middletown. He contributes liberally to the church in which he is an active worker, and has served the congregation as deacon. Mrs. Keller holds her membership in the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Middletown, Md.

VINCENT SEBOLD, a distinguished member of the Frederick County Bar, a resident of Emmitsburg, Md., son of Samuel and Ann (Miller) Sebold, was born near Sabillasville, Frederick County, Md.

Vincent Sebold comes from that class of German Ancestors whose energy and industry did so much to make Frederick County one of the first agricultural sections of the United States.

His grandfather, Peter Sebold, emigrated from the Rhine Country in Germany to Pennsylvania, 1822, and, after spending several years at Reading, came to Maryland and settled near Taneytown, when that section was still a part of Frederick County. After living here a few years, on a small farm, he moved to a place near Emmitsburg, in the valley of Toms Creek, where he spent nearly all of his remaining years.

As long as he was able to take an active part in life, he was characterized by his thrift and industry, and, while plain and susbtantial, he filled the office of a good citizen, by taking his part in the material developments of his own section and the advancement of his County.

He was married first to Miss Deitrick. They had four children, one of whom was Samuel, the father of Vincent Sebold. His first wife died early in life, and he married again. His second wife, who also died young, bore him five children. Late in life, he married a third time, and when he died, at the age of ninety-two years, his third wife survived him. She is now also dead. Some of his children died in youth, while others went to Pennsylvania, and Western Maryland.

Samuel Sebold, son of Peter Sebold, remained with his father until he was thirty years of age, when he married Miss Ann Miller, who resided near Bruceville, Md., and settled near Sabillasville, in this County, where Vincent Sebold was born. Moving from Sabillasville to Mechanicstown District near Mt. St. Mary's, in 1860, Samuel Sebold began farming on a small farm which he had purchased from Abraham Sheets, but after some years, he moved from there to Wilkesbarre, Pa., which was then becoming important for its rapid development of the coal interests in that section. After residing there for some years, he moved to Latrobe, in Western Pennsylvania, where he lived until the death of his father, in 1880, when he returned to the Sebold homestead, in the Valley of Toms Creek, near Emmitsburg. Both the grandfather and the father of Vincent Sebold were of the Roman Catholic faith; they were also regular and consistent Democrats, and, while they took no very active part in politics, they were greatly respected and highly esteemed as substantial and useful citizens. Plain and honest in their lives and dealings, they laid no claim to anything that they did not possess, nor to that to which they were not entitled.

Entering St. Vincent's College, near Latrobe, Pa., as a commercial student, Vincent Sebold completed the course in two years, but desiring to continue the study of the Classics, the following year he went to Mount St. Mary's College, near Emmitsburg, where he remained for several years. In 1881 he began to read law in the office of the Hon. Frederick J. Nelson, at Frederick, Md., and after two years' study, passed an excellent examination and was admitted to practice at the Frederick Bar. After completing his law course at Frederick, Mr. Sebold was married to Miss Annie I. Roddy, who resided near Thurmont, Md., and have these daughters: Louise, Vincemtia and Maysie. After his marriage he went to Richmond, Va., where he began the practice of law, but, owing to the death of his mother soon after, on account of his father, who was advanced in years, he abandoned the Richmond field, and returned to Frederick County.

About this time a change took place in the political affairs of Frederick County. The entire Democratic ticket was elected, and the office of deputy Collector of the County was offered to him which offer he accepted and served for two years in this office. When his term of office expired, he was again offered the Collectorship but declined, preferring to return to the practice of his profession, and was appointed counsel to the Board of County Commissioners of Frederick County. While he was counsel for the Commissioners, the celebrated Dr. Wagner tried to collect his $2,000,000 judgments against Frederick County, by suit in the United States District Court, which was effectually defeated and soon after, from the developments of this trial, the career of this famous litigant came to a close by a criminal prosecution and conviction.

Mr. Sebold's practice grew rapidly and extended not only to other counties in Maryland, and to the Court of Appeals, but also to portions of Pennsylvania and to the Federal Courts, his clientele including many of the principal corporations of Frederick County.

While his practice is large and requires close attention, he still finds time to look after and help to develop some of the most important industries and institutions of this county and of Southern Pennsylvania.

When in 1897, after an heroic struggle for many years, the Emmitsburg Railroad went into the hands of receivers, Mr. Sebold formed a syndicate, chiefly of local capital, which purchased the road and formed a new company. He took charge of the property, developed it, and under his management it has become one of the best and most substantial short roads in the country. He is still general manager and treasurer of the road.

In 1900, Mr. Sebold with Samuel M. Birely, and some citizens of Gettysburg, Pa., organized the Citizens' Bank of Gettysburg, a State bank, which has since been changed to the Citizens' Trust Company, now one of the strongest financial institutions of Southern Pennsylvania. About the same time, with a few business men of Thurmont, Md., he organized the Thurmont National Bank which is considered one of the most substantial banking institutions of the county. Not having the time to serve on the boards of both corporations, he resigned his position in the Gettysburg Bank, but is still director and counsel of the Thurmont National Bank.

With Mr. W. A. Himes, Mr. Sebold went into the purchase and reorganization of the East Berlin railroad, a steam road operating from East Berlin to Berlin Junction, in Adams County, Pa., and after Mr. Himes' death, succeeded him as President and General Manager of the road, which position he still holds. Mr. Sebold is also president of the Emmitsburg Manufacturing Company, and of other corporations organized for the purpose of developing local industries.

Although active and energetic in business enterprises, and busy with a large law prpactice, Mr. Sebold takes a keen interest and often an active part in county and State politics. Among the recognized Democratic leaders of the County, for many years he has served on the County and State Committees, and as a delegate from his County to Congressional, Judicial and State conventions. While he is liberal in his opinions, Mr. Sebold never fails to loyally support the principles of his party and its standard bearers, although associated in many ways with a large number of his Republican friends in numerous business relations.

WILLIAM T. BROWN, a well-known farmer residing near Doubs, Buckeystown District, Frederick County, Md., son of the late Joseph L., and Mary Jane (Fry) Brown, was born on his father's farm in Loudoun County, Va., April 19, 1858.

Mr. Brown's grandfather, one of the old German settlers of Virginia, was a prominent resident of Loudoun County, Va. He was a stone mason, and was always employed at that trade. He married and among his children was a son named Joseph L. Brown.

The late Joseph L. Brown, father of William T. Brown, was born in Loudoun County, Va., where his childhood and youth were spent. He was educated in the public schools of his native district. When married he began farming on rented land. After farming successfully for some time, Mr. Brown bought a fertile farm south of Lovettsville, Loudoun County, Va. He greatly improved this property, and cultivated the land successfully until a few years before his death, when he retired from farming and removed to Point of Rocks. Mr. Brown was highly respected as a citizen and as a business man, and his success was due to industry and close attention to business. Joseph L. Brown was married to Mary Jane, daughter of Samuel and Christianna (Stoneburner) Fry, whose father was a prominent farmer of Loudoun County. Their children are: 1, Mary J., married to Charles W. Wright, a merchant at Point of Rocks; 2, William T.; 3, George F., track foreman at Point of Rocks; 4, Joseph M., of Doubs, deceased; 5, Charles C., of Frederick City, Md.; 6, Samuel W., a farmer of Jefferson District, Frederick County, Md.; 7, Alice M., married to William Stone, a farmer of Loudoun County, Va.; 8, John D., a retired merchant of Lovettsville, Loudoun County; 9, Newton V., a farmer of Loudoun County; 10, Flora, married to Charles Cooper, a farmer of Loudoun County; 11, E. E., a farmer of Loudoun County. Mr. Brown and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church. He died at his home in Point of Rocks, in 1910. His widow resides in Loudoun County, Va.

William T. Brown was educated in the public schools of Loudoun County, and remained with his parents until he was twenty-one. On attaining his majority, he began farming for himself near Point of Rocks, Frederick County, Md. After cultivating rented land successfully until 1898, Mr. Brown bought the place on which he now resides, a farm of 150 acres, the property of G. A. T. Snouffer. He remodled the house, a two-story, frame structure; built a fine bank barn, all the necessary outbuildings, and by scientific farming, brought the land to its present high state of cultivation. His place is one of the desirable dairy-farms of Buckeystown District. It is well stocked with fine cattle, and is beautifully situated half a mile southeast of Doubs, along the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. Mr. Brown also owns 33 acres of timber land on the Catoctin Mountain. He is one of the prosperous farmers of the district, and ascribes his success to hard work and care. Mr. Brown is one of the leading Republicans of the district. He is actively interested in political affairs, and has been a member of the District Central Committee. He is highly esteemed in the county, and has been district supervisor of roads for a number of years.

William T. Brown was married to Hannah A., daughter of Samuel and Hannah (Williams) Compher, of Loudoun County, Va. Mrs. Brown has proved herself a true helpmate, and to her untiring care and assistance Mr. Brown ascribes much of his success in life. Of their four children, two reached maturity. 1, William Osbie, a farmer of Buckeystown District, Frederick County, Md.; 2, Samuel E., a student in the High School in Frederick City. Mr. Brown and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church at Doubs, Md. He is one of the most active workers in the church, a liberal contributor, and has been a deacon of the congregation for a number of years.

AUGUSTUS W. NICODEMUS, SR., a prominent retired farmer of Buckeystown District, Frederick County, Md., ex-County Commissioner and ex-Judge of the Orphans' Court, of Frederick County, son of John and Hannah (Englar) Nicodemus, was born on the old homestead, near Westminster, in what is now Carroll County, Md., September 21, 1833.

Henry Nicodemus, the founder of the American branch of the family, the great-grandfather of Augustus W. Nicodemus, Sr., was one of four brothers who came from Germany to America and settled first in Philadelphia, Pa. One of the brothers established his home in Franklin County, Pa., one in Washington County, Md., the third, who was a minister of the Lutheran Church, was the first representative of that denomination who preached in the Middletown Valley, Frederick County, Md. Henry, the fourth brother, removed from Philadelphia, Pa., to Carroll County, Md., then an uninhabited wilderness. Many years prior to the Revolution, he took up the land, which is still in the possession of the family. During the war with England, he owned and operated a small distillery, and also built a mill which he carried on for some time. He died in Carroll County, aged sixty, and is buried on the homestead, where his grave is marked by a stone erected by one whose name is unknown. He had a sister, Mrs. Baile, whose son was named Nicodemus.

John L. Nicodemus, son of Henry Nicodemus, and grandfather of Augustus W. Nicodemus, Sr., was born on the same homestead in Carroll County. He became the owner of large tracts of land and was a rich man, judged by the standard of his day. In addition to farming, he was engaged in milling. He was a Federalist and afterwards a Whig, but never sought or held public office. During the War of 1812, he was too old to take an active part, but he was deeply interested, and greatly delighted in the success of the American army. From his home he could hear the cannonading at North Point. Methodism was established in his vicinity by Mr. Strawbridge, the pioneer of the denomination in that section of Maryland. Mr. Nicodemus, however, was a member of the Reformed Church. John L. Nicodemus was married to Ann March Neff. Little is known of his wife's family, except that they were of Swiss descent. He died at the age of sixty-eight and was buried on the homestead.

John Nicodemus, son of John L. and Ann March (Neff) Nicodemus, father of Augustus W. Nicodemus, Sr., was born on the old homestead in Carroll County, where the first forty-two years of his life were spent. He afterwards removed to Frederick County and purchased a farm near Walkersville. He was a successful agriculturist, interested in every enterprise that would promote the best interests of his county. During the latter part of his life, he made a number of removals. He was at first, an old-line Whig, voted with the Know-Nothing party until the breaking out of the Civil War, but, after that, he was a strong Union man, and a stanch Republican. He assisted in the organization of the Methodist Protestant Church in 1828, and was one of its most faithful and earnest members, serving as an officer for many years, and at all times giving generously of his means. John Nicodemus was married to Hannah, daughter of David Engler, a prominent farmer and dairyman. He was one of the first Dunkards in Carroll County, and served as an elder in the church. He died at the age of sixty-eight, and is buried in the old Pipe Creek burying ground, the largest cemetery in that part of the county. His father, Philip Engler, one of the pioneers of Carroll County, with a few Dunkard friends, came from Germantown, Pa., and introduced the Dunkard faith into Carroll County. The children of John and Hannah (Engler) Nicodemus are: 1, Nathan, farmer, owner of the old homestead, died in 1865; 2, John L., deceased, a prominent farmer of Walkersville; 3, Augustus W.; 4, Eli, a farmer of Buckeystown District, Frederick County. Mr. Nicodemus died in the seventieth years of his age and is buried in Mt. Olivet Cemetery. His wife died in 1852 and was buried at the old Pipe Creek burying ground.

Augustus W. Nicodemus, Sr., received his education in the public schools, and was but a youth when he began working for himself. After his marriage, he began farming on land belonging to his father, situated two miles west of Buckeystown. Mr. Nicodemus afterwards purchased the property, and made many improvements, putting up a two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn, and all necessary outbuildings. He cultivated this land successfully until 1872, when he sold the place and bought 35 acres of excellent farming land adjoining Buckeystown. To this farm, which is beautifully situated at the northern end of Buckeystown, he removed the same year, and began making improvements. It is now one of the most desirable homes in the county. It is equipped with a comfortable two-story brick dwelling, a bank barn, and all the necessary buildings. Mr. Nicodemus, assisted by his son, Augustus W. Nicodemus, Jr., then engaged in the creamery business, in Buckeystown. Mr. Nicodemus afterward put his son in charge of the business, and accepted a position as general manager of the Buckeystown Packing Company. He was one of the organizers of the company and held some of the stock. He remained with the company until he retired from business in 1906. His business ventures have been aggressive and enterprising, and have met with great success. Mr. Nicodemus has been quite influential in the politics of the county. In 1875, he was elected, by the Republican party, commissioner of Frederick County, and served one term. In 1879, he was elected Judge of the Orphans' Court, for a term of four years, and, in 1901, his party sent him to the Maryland Legislature. In these several capacities he fully met the requirements of the offices, and he gave entire satisfaction to his constituents. He is highly esteemed in Frederick County as an able financier, and as a reliable citizen.

Augustus W. Nicodemus, Sr., was married to Barbara A., daughter of John Fulton. Of their twelve children, only four reached maturity; 1, Harry O., in the creamery business in Woodstock, Va.; 2, Augustus W., Jr., in the creamery business at the old stand in Buckeystown, Md.; 3, Mamie E., married to William E. Kindley, connected with the Stone and Lime Company, of Buckeystown; 4, Edgar R., connected with the creamery in Buckeystown. Mr. Nicodemus is a stanch member of the Methodist Protestant Church in which he has held office for many years. He is, at present one of the trustees of the church and was superintendent of the Sunday School for twenty-five years. Mrs. Nicodemus died, February 3, 1909, and was laid to rest in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

CHARLES R. HILDEBRAND, an agriculturist, residing on the National Pike, three and a-half miles west of Middletown, at the foot of South Mountain, where the battle of that name was fought in 1862, is a native of Frederick District, Frederick County, where he was born April 5, 1867. He is a son of Lewis A. and Amanda (Windpigler) Hildebrand.

The Hildebrand family is of German origin and was settled in Frederick County, Md., over a hundred years ago. John Hildebrand, the grandfather of Charles R. Hildebrand, spent his life in the vicinity of Rocky Springs in Frederick District. He was a farmer by occupation. He was the father of the following children: William, deceased; Lewis A.; John, a resident of Myersville, Frederick County; Joseph, of Springfield, O.; Amanda; Laura; and Lydia.

Lewis A. Hildebrand, son of John Hildebrand, was born at Rocky Springs, Frederick District, in 1832, and died May 7, 1900. He was engaged in agriculture during his entire life. He was a Democrat in his political beliefs. In religion, he held membership in the Reformed Church. He was married to Amanda Windpigler, who was born in 1836, and is still living. They were the parents of eight children: George L., of Frederick District; David M., a farmer on the old homestead; Charles R.; John, deceased; Annie the wife of H. L. Black, of Montgomery County, Md.; Lydia; Isadore; and Florence. Charles R. Hildebrand, son of Lewis A. and Amanda (Windpigler) Hildebrand, was raised on the parental homestead in Frederick District. In the public schools of Buckeystown district he received his education. Arriving at man's estate, he selected farming as his work in life. In 1904, he purchased the old Fink homestead where he has since made his home. On this farm, part of the battle of South Mountain was fought on September 14, 1862, several batteries being stationed on this and adjoining tracts. The two-story brick dwelling house now occupied by Mr. Hildebrand, was struck three times with shells from Union batteries. Both during and after the battle, this house, with the stone barn on the place, was used as a hospital. The farm at that time was in the possession of Jonas Sheffer. The property contains 185 acres, 140 of which is excellent agricultural land, which is under a high state of cultivation. Mr. Hildebrand uses practical and progressive methods in his farming and has met with gratifying results.

Mr. Hildebrand gives his support to the candidates of the Democratic party. In religion, he is a member of Zion's Lutheran Church of Middletown.

On December 14, 1897, Mr. Hildebrand was married to Esta L. Fink, daughter of Richard and Susan (Bowles) Fink, of Middletown District. This marriage has three daughters: Blanche Susan, Grace Esta and Naomi.

The Fink family, to which Mrs. Hildebrand belongs, is of German origin. Richard Fink, who was a son of Emanuel Fink, was a farmer in Middletown District. Richard Fink and his wife, Susan Bowles, were the parents of two children: Esta L. (Mrs. Hildebrand); and Jacob, who is engaged in farming in Middletown District.

CLINTON B. G. HARWOOD, a retired farmer of Buckeystown District, Frederick County, Md., residing half a mile south of Adamstown, Md., son of Thomas N. and Emma E. (Plummer) Harwood, was born one mile north of Adamstown, April 7, 1851.

Mr. Harwood's great-grandfather, Thomas Harwood, was a native of Annapolis, Md. He owned a farm of 400 acres, and slaves to till the soil. He married in Annapolis, and among his children was a son named Thomas Noble Harwood.

Thomas Noble Harwood, M. D., an eminent physician, was a native of Montgomery County, Md., just across the Frederick County line. He practiced for some time in Frederick County. Dr. Thomas Noble Harwood was married to Amelia Plummer, who was a native of Buckeystown District. They had two children; Thomas Noble, and Henrietta, died unmarried, in 1864.

The late Thomas Noble Harwood, father of Clinton B. J. Harwood, was born in Buckeystown District, Frederick County in 1816. His parents died when he was a child four years old, and he grew up in the homes of his father's relatives, most of his time being spent with Mrs. Betsy Jones, a rich lady, who was very kind-hearted and generous, and had brought up eleven or twelve orphans to be useful citizens. When he was about seventeen, Thomas N. Harwood began driving a team, and thus earned a little money that was carefully saved. He next rented a farm in his native district and, after a few years, was able to buy a place. The first homestead which he owned is the present site of Buckeystown village. On this land, which he purchased in 1851, he built two or three small cottages, which he afterwards sold. He next owned "Three Springs," one of the finest farms in Frederick County, comprising 400 acres, and the springs, from which it is named, running a mill. The next farms in which Mr. Harwood invested were one near Adamstown, and one near Doubs Switch, both very desirable properties. Under his wise management, his possession accumulated until he was a wealthy man, able to leave a goodly fortune to each of his children. He was, at one time, the largest land owner in Frederick County, and had large sums of money invested in various local enterprises. Throughout his business career, it was his pride to be prompt and strictly reliable in carrying out all agreements. His word was truly esteemed "as good as his bond" and his notes were never contested. Thomas Noble Harwood was married, in 1839, to Emma Plummer, of Montgomery County, Md. Their children are: 1, William Thomas, managing the old home farm, served in the Confederate army under Colonel White, and was present in every battle in which that officer was engaged until he was taken prisoner at Brandy Station; 2, M. Noble, farming on a place adjoining that managed by his brother, also the property of his father; 3, Henrietta (Mrs. George Moler), resides near Harper's Ferry, on a farm belonging to her father; 4, Clinton B. G. Mrs. Harwood, died and in 1866, Mr. Harwood was married to Jane, daughter of Thomas Cleggett, a wealthy farmer. Their only child, Virginia Noble Harwod, was married, in 1897 to Dr. Lee Wiltburger, of Washington, D. C. Thomas Noble Harwood died at his home on Patrick street, Frederick, Md., in 1902, aged eighty-six. He was one of the oldest and wealthiest residents of Frederick. His estate included much valuable real estate, notably the City Hotel property, valued at $30,000, and several desirable farms in West Virginia, and in Frederick County, Md. Mr. Harwood belonged to the Democratic party, but was never a candidate for office. He was not a member of any church although he was connected with the Protestant Episcopal denomination, and contributed liberally to benevolent objects.

Clinton B. G. Harwood, received his primary education in the public schools of his native district, and completed his studies at St. John's College, in Frederick. He remained on the home place until he reached his twenty-third year. After engaging in various occupations, Mr. Harwood accepted a position with the Standard Lime and Stone Company, of Berkeley, West Virginia, and served the company acceptably for twelve years. During this time, he built a convenient two-story frame dwelling in Jefferson, W. Va., married, and remained there until the death of his father, in 1902, when he received, as his share of his father's estate, the valuable farm on which he now resides. This property, which comprises 183 acres of excellent land, well-improved, is admirably located half a mile south of Adamstown, between Adamstown and Doubs, on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. Mr. Harwood has made many improvements, and the place is considered one of the finest farms in the district. After cultivating his land for two years, Mr. Harwood retired from farming, and built a comfortable two-story dwelling and all necessary outbuildings on the eastern side of the farm; this is now his home. He also owns 65 acres of fine land, highly cultivated, and beautifully situated between the Adamstown Turnpike and the New Design road. Mr. Harwood is a Democrat, interested in all that pertains to progress.

Clinton B. G. Harwood was married to Dollie C., daughter of Valentine and Margaret (Henshaw) Moore, whose father was a prominent farmer of Berkeley County, W. Va. Their children are. 1, Jessie M., at school; 2, George M., at school; 3, Margaret E., at home; 4, Thomas Noble, at home. Mr. Harwood is a liberal contributor to all benevolent objects.

J. MARSHALL MILLER, secretary and treasurer of the Fredericktown Savings Institute, a sound and well known financial institution of Frederick City, is an honorable and substantial citizen. He was born on a farm in Lewistown District, Frederick County, December 31, 1857, and is a son of George W. and Caroline (Hill) Miller.

John Miller, the great-grandfather of J. Marshall Miller, came to Frederick County before the Revolutionary War, being then a young man. He served in the American army during the Revolution, and was killed by a horse falling on him in 1793. He was the father of three children, one of whom was George.

George Miller, son of John Miller, was born in 1791, and died January 14, 1861. He served in the army during the War of 1812. He was a well-to-do farmer of Creagerstown District, Frederick County. In politics, he was an old line Whig, and in religion, he was a consistent member of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Miller was married to Catharine Harbaugh. They were the parents of these children: Minerva, the wife of Levi C. Harbaugh, of Frederick City; George W.; Jacob L., a prominent physician of Creagerstown, Md.; William H., deceased; John I., died in childhood; Lewis E., of Creagerstown, a carpenter by trade; Thomas E. R., a physician, who lives in Lewistown District, Frederick County (see sketch); Charles D., deceased; and Mary, died in childhood.

George W. Miller, son of George and Catharine (Harbaugh) Miller, was born about 1835, and died in Lewistown District, Frederick County, in 1906. He was a successful farmer in Lewistown District for many years. He voted the Republican ticket. He was active for many years in the work of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Miller was married to Caroline Hill. She survives her husband and is residing on the old homestead in Lewistown District. They were the parents of five children: J. Marshall; Ida C., the wife of Peter N. Hammaker, whose sketch see; George N., a farmer in Lewistown District; William L., engaged in farming at Loys, Md.; and C. H., lives in Baltimore, Md.

J. Marshall Miller, son of George W. and Caroline (Hill) Miller, was born and reared on the old family estate in Lewistown District. While a lad he was engaged in the many duties that fall to the lot of a farmer's boy and he attended the public schools of the neighborhood. At the age of eighteen years, he came to Frederick City, and became a clerk in the office of his uncle, William H. Miller, who was at that time tax collector of Frederick County. In 1878 he was appointed clerk in the tax collector's office by Peter W. Shafer, collector, and continued there until 1880, when he entered the Fredericktown Savings Institute as discount clerk. In this position he continued for three years, when he was promoted to be assistant secretary. In 1886, Mr. Miller was elected secretary of the bank and has filled this office for a period of twenty-three years. Mr. Miller's success has been well merited and he is widely known in county financial and business circles. He is one of the leading and highly respected citizens of the county.

Mr. Miller is consistent in his support of the Republican party, but has always preferred to remain in private life rather than to hold office. In religion, he holds membership in the Lutheran Church of Frederick City, in the work of which he takes a keen and active interest. He is serving in the capacity of an elder, and for many years acted as a teacher in the Sunday School.

Mr. Miller was married November 10, 1887, to Fannie Harling, daughter of Dr. Charles Harling, of Washington, D. C. They have two children: Edith M. and Virginia H.

EDWARD S. EICHELBERGER, Attorney-at-Law, was born June 16, 1856, in the same house in which he now resides, on Court Square, in Frederick City. Mr. Eichelberger was educated at the old Frederick College and graduated at Princeton in 1875; studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1878; in 1887 was elected State's Attorney on the Republican ticket, receiving the largest majority at that election, and was re-elected in 1891, being the only candidate on his ticket elected. He has at various times filled positions on the directing Boards of the Central National Bank, Frederick College, Mt. Olivet Cemetery and different business enterprises. He, in 1893, originated the idea of a comprehensive revision of the Code of Criminal Law and Procedure in this State.

Mr. Eichelberger is a member of the Presbyterian Church and one of its ruling Elders and has for over twenty-five years been the Superintendent of its Sunday School. For some years past he has been President of the Bible Society of Frederick County. Politically he is a Republican, in local affairs, however, voting for the men he believes best qualified for the position sought.

In 1894 he married Miriam Gray, daughter of Charles Warren and Sarah Elizabeth Gray, of Worcester, Mass. Of this union there have been born two children: Margaret Grayson and Edward Gray. The ancestors of Charles Warren Gray, tracing back, were: Charles, Joshua, Capt. Joshua, John and Edward, the last of whom came to this Country from England in 1632, and whose grave is the only one now on the famous "Burial Hill" at Plymouth, Mass.

Mr. Eichelberger's father was Grayson Eichelberger (married in 1844 to Amanda, daughter of Isaac Baugher, a prominent merchant of Emmitsburg), who for years was one of the leaders of the Bar of Frederick County and who was, during the Civil War, a stanch Union man, being for a time Secretary of State under Governor Hicks and State Senator from this County. He was born in 1821 at Emmitsburg, graduated at Mt. St. Mary's College and died in 1870. Grayson was the son of George M. and Jane Grayson Eichelberger. George M. was born in Carroll County in 1784 and died in Frederick in 1854. For over twenty years he was Register of Wills for Frederick County, was a prominent Mason and at various times was a member of the Boards of the different educational institutions of Frederick. In 1814 he took an active and honorable part as one of the defenders of Baltimore when that place was attacked by the British. His father was Leonard, born in Pennsylvania in 1750, and died in 1811. Leonard was on various committees for the preservation of order during the troublous times following the Revolutionary War, was Justice of the Peace and prominent in local affairs. He was a farmer and wheel-wright. Like his forebears and unlike his descendants, Leonard followed the traditions of his German ancestors and was a devoted member of the Lutheran Church. The father of Leonard was the founder of the family in this country—Philip Frederick Eichelberger—who was born in Germany in 1693 and emigratetd to this Country in 1728. He came from Ittlingen, near Sinsheim, County of Heidelberg in the Grand Duchy of Baden, accompanied by his wife and four children. His wife must have died on reaching America, for he soon was married a second time to one Mary Magdalene—(name unknown), from which second marriage Leonard is descended. At the time of his departure from Germany, Philip Frederick obtained from authorities permission so to do, embodied in a certificate testifying to his character and worth and written in old German with seals of red wax, still intact, and which is in the possession of his descendent whose name heads this article; as a curiosity it is here appended: "Certificate of Good Behavior. Know ye, that the bearer of this, Frederick Eichelberger, a resident citizen of the village of Ittlingen, near Sinsheim, said village belonging to the High and Free Baronial Corporation of Benning and Geikish, and absolutely incorporated with the Free State Baronial Domains in Suabia, Canton Cirgichagen, has humbly made the following announcement to the authorities of the High and Free Baronial Domain of Benning: In order to improve his condition and increase the means of subsistence, he is determined, together with his wife and four children, to leave home and emigrate into Pennsylvania, and he respectfully requests an attested Certificate in regard to his honorable name and good conduct; which request is hereby and without hesitation granted; and now: In the name of the High and Free Baronial Domain of Benning and by virtue of my power, we hereby certify that the said Philip Frederick Eichelberger and family have always conducted themselves obedient, honest, industrious, true and honorable, and if the times and occasion would permit it, should have liked to have him remain in our midst as an upright citizen. We therefore recommend him and his family to the grace and good will of everybody. In testimony of this Certificate of the High and Free Baronial Domain of Benning, have I signed the same with my own hand, and corroborated the same by affixing the seal which has been graciously entrusted to me. So done at Ittlingen, May 11th, 1728.

High and Free Baronial Domain,
Corporation Official Signature,
(Seal) August, Christian Ernst Klein."

Philip Frederick bought land and prospered and brought up a large family in the thrifty German way that has contributed so much to the solid prosperity of our Country and, living a God-fearing life, was gathered to his fathers in September, 1776.

HENRY PERCIVAL MUSSETTER, owner of "Oakdean Dairy Farm," New Market District, Frederick County, Md., son of John and Martha (Waters) Mussetter, was born on a farm in Urbana District, Frederick County, Md., September 30, 1859.

The Mussetter family is of German lineage. The founder of the American branch of the family, was Christian Mussetter, great-grandfather of Henry P. Mussetter, whose parents came to America when he was a child. They were among the early settlers in a country still a wilderness. They took up land between Roger's Mill and New Market, Md., part of the farm now owned by John S. Mason. On this farm, Christian grew up and spent his life, clearing and breaking the land. Christian Mussetter was married and their children were: 1, Christopher; 2, John, removed to Ohio in early manhood, where he died; 3, Nancy married; 4, Barbara, married. Christian Mussetter and his wife died at the homestead in Frederick County.

Christopher Mussetter, grandfather of Henry P. Mussetter, was born on his father's farm in Frederick County, and received his education in schools of the district. He was a captain in the War of 1812, and served until the close of the war. After his marriage, he purchased Oakdean, a farm of 130 acres situated on the road from Ijamsville to New Market, Md., and spent his life in cultivating and improving his property. Christopher Mussetter was married to Ruth Ijams, whose brother, John, had been a soldier in the War of 1812. Their children are: 1, John; 2, Harriet (Mrs. Plummer Ijams), died in Baltimore, Md.; 3, Betsy, deceased; 4, Becky (Mrs. Henry Riggs); 5, Lemuel, went to Warsaw, Ill., where he married and died; 6, Joel, married, settled in Cumberland, Md.; 7, Ruth (Mrs. Samuel Buxton); 8, Jemima (Mrs. Abner Sanks), died in Baltimore, Md.; 9, Ann; 10, Plummer, married Lizzie Hedges, died in Urbana District, Frederick County; 11, Christoper, M. D., died in Georgia; 12, Elizabeth (Mrs. Richard Ijams), died in Urbana, Md. Christopher Mussetter died at his home in Frederick County, in 18—; his wife died in 18—.

Mr. Mussetter's father, John Mussetter, was born at Oakdean, Frederick County, Md., February 24, 1801. He grew up on his father's farm, and received his education in the public schools of the district. After spending ten years as clerk in a store in Ijamsville, Mr. Mussetter returned to the homestead, "Oakdean," where he spent the remainder of his life. He was a stanch Democrat. John Mussetter was married to Martha, daughter of Eli and Miranda Waters Hyatt. Their children are: 1, Harriet (Mrs. William O. Wills), of Baltimore, died in Baltimore County, Md.; 2, Ruth (Mrs. Alfred B. Lewis), resides in Kemptown, Md.; 3, Christopher, died in infancy; 4, Jennie; 5, Lemuel, of Ijamsville, Frederick County, married Mrs. Dean; 6, John, of Baltimore, Md., married Josephine Turney; 7, Elizabeth (Mrs. J. P. Mulfinger), of Ijamsville, Md.; 8, Henry Percival. Mr. Mussetter and his wife were members of the Protestant Episcopal Church. He died at the homestead, May 11, 1879, and is buried in the cemetery in New Market, Md. His widow died in 1892.

Henry Percival Mussetter spent his boyhood and early manhood at "Oakdean," and received his education in the public schools of Ijamsville. He farmed for his father until he was able to begin business for himself. In 1880, he and his brother, Lemuel, purchased the homestead; and, in 1896, he bought his brother's interest. Besides "Oakdean," Mr. Mussetter rents and cultivates the adjoining farm.

He is a stanch Democrat, and has been a member of the County Central Committee for years. Mr. Mussetter is highly esteemed in the community, and is interested in all that concerns the good of the county. He is a member of I. O. O. F., of New Market, Md., and the Masonic Lodge, of New Market.

Henry Percival Mussetter was married January 18, 1893, to Mary L., daughter of Henry and Elizabeth (Mason) Dreyer. Their children are: 1, John H.; 2, Martha Elizabeth; 3, Hobson Schley; 4, Mary Ruth.

SAMUEL M. BIRELY, deceased, was one of the most prominent citizens and business men of Thurmont, Frederick County, and was identified with many industries and institutions. He was born in Ladiesburg, Frederick County, in 1859, and died in Thurmont, September 9, 1904. He was a son of Samuel and Barbara A. (Kemp) Birely.

Samuel Birely, father of Samuel M. Birely, was a successful agriculturist and owned large tracts of land in Woodsboro district. During the Civil War, his sympathies were with the Union cause, and upon the organization of the Republican party, voted that ticket. He was highly respected, and was very liberal in giving aid to colleges and churches. Fraternally he was associated with the Masonic Order. He died at the age of eighty-two years. He was married to Barbara A. Kemp, daughter of Peter Kemp, of Frederick County, who was a miller.

Samuel M. Birely, the eldest son of Samuel and Barbara A. (Kemp) Birely, assumed the management of his father's affairs at the latter's death. The youth was about seventeen years old at this time and had finished his studies in the local schools and was part way through a course at Gettysburg College. His younger brother and sisters were Morris A., a physician; Lillie J., (Mrs. Duttera), of Gettysburg, Pa.; Rebecca, (Mrs. Kissinger), of Gettysburg, Pa., and Elizabeth, wife of Robert L. Koons, a son of the Hon. John A. Koons, of Johnsville district.

Mr. Birely engaged in the produce and grain business in Graceham for about four years. He then embarked in the insurance and broker's business in Thurmont. He was very active in the formation of the excelsior works of Thurmont, and as head of the concern he built up a large and paying business. In 1889, he founded the firm of Birely & Osler, bankers and brokers, and though the venture was a doubtful one, and was necessarily begun upon a small scale, their business steadily increased, and it became recognized as one of the stable institutions of Frederick County. The firm was at first located in a small frame building, but the accommodations proving entirely inadequate, the firm erected a substantial brick structure three stories in height. Mr. Birely was one of the prime movers in the organization of the Thurmont National Bank of Thurmont in July, 1901, and he served as its president until his death. He was widely known as a financier and as president of the Thurmont National Bank discharged his duties with much ability, showing great executive capacity. He was also one of the organizers of the Bank of Smithsburg, Washington County, Md., and and was its vice-president until his death. He was also superintendent and secretary of the Thurmont water works, which enterprise he assisted materially in founding.

In politics, Mr. Birely was a stanch Republican, and usually attended the various conventions of the county and state. He was once nominated for the Maryland House of Delegates, and though defeated, it was by but four votes. He was prominent in Masonic circles, being a member of Acacia Lodge, No. 155, A. F. and A. M., Enoch Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, and Jacques de Molay Commandery, Knights Templar, of Frederick. He was also identified with the Knights of Pythias and the Junior Order of American Mechanics. In the latter association he was a charter member of Columbia Council of Thurmont and served many years as its treasurer; he also held the title of past councilor. In religion, he was a member of the Lutheran Church, and was a liberal contributor.

Mr. Birely was married in 1882 to Belva E. Cramer, daughter of William J. Cramer, of Frederick County. They were the parents of four children: Bessie C., the wife of Grayson E. Palmer (see sketch); Lester S.; Lloyd G., and Victor M.

Lester S. Birely, son of Samuel M. and Belva E. (Cramer) Birely, was born at Graceham, Frederick County, November 12, 1885. He was reared in his native place and was educated in the public schools, the high school at Thurmont and Marston's University School at Baltimore City. He is now Vice-President of the Thurmont National Bank, and is one of the town's enterprising young business men. In politics, he is a supporter of the Republican party. In religion he is a member of St. John's Lutheran Church. Like his father, he is a Mason, being a member of Acacia Lodge, No. 155, A. F. and A. M., of Thurmont and also a member of I. O. O. F. He is married to Elinor L. Beard, daughter of Rev. M. L. Beard, of Thurmont (see sketch). They have one child, Katharine Elizabeth.

JACOB T. HUFFER, who has been very successful at farming, resides on a well-improved farm situated two miles and a-half southeast of Middletown, which is called "Farmers' Delight." His is a native of Burkittsville District, where he was born December 20, 1857. He is a son of David and Annie (Ahalt) Huffer.

Joseph L. Huffer, who was the grandfather of Jacob T. Huffer, was of German lineage, and resided near Middletown, in Frederick County. He was the father of the following children: David; Eliza, married William Remsburg, of Washington County, Md.; John; Davison; Jacob; Julia, who married Daniel Grove; and George, a retired farmer of Middletown. (See his sketch.)

David Huffer, the father of Jacob T. Huffer, died at the age of eighty-seven years. For many years he was a wagoner on the old National pike between Baltimore and Cumberland. He also followed farming. In politics, he voted for the candidates of the Republican party. In religion he was a consistent member of Zion's Lutheran Church of Middletown. He was married to Annie Ahalt. They were the parents of six children, five of whom grew to maturity: Joseph, a farmer, who resides in Jefferson district; Emma, the wife of Mahlon Arnold; Jacob T., a farmer in Middletown District; Howard M., engaged in farming in Burkittsville District; and Oliver, also a resident of Burkittsville District, where he is engaged in agriculture.

Jacob T. Huffer, son of David and Annie (Ahalt) Huffer, was reared on his father's farm and received his education in the public schools at Broad Run. After reaching manhood, he decided to follow farming as his work in life, and this he has been engaged in until the present time. He has met with much success at agriculture and is one of the well-to-do farmers of his district. He is well-known as a highly respected citizen. He is the owner of the old home farm, which contains 143 acres of excellent land, and is the possessor of an elegant farm in Jefferson District that also contains 143 acres. Both these tracts are well improved with good buildings and are under a high state of cultivation. He is the present road supervisor of his district.

Politically, Mr. Huffer is a Republican, but has never aspired to office. He is a consistent and active member of Zion's Lutheran Church of Middletown, in which he has served in the capacity of deacon.

Mr. Huffer was married in 1886 to Emma Shafer, daughter of Samuel and Louisa (Kephart) Shafer. They were the parents of four children: Mamie Leona, resides at home; Arthur Howard; Josephus Theodore; and Carrie May.

Mrs. Huffer's father, Samuel Shafer, is living at the age of seventy-one years. His father was a large land owner and slave holder in Jefferson District previous to the Rebellion. Samuel Shafer was the father of three children: Emma E., was reared in Jefferson District, and married Mr. Huffer; Josephus, a farmer of Jefferson District; and Annie, the wife of Clarence Rudy, of Jefferson District, who is engaged in agriculture.

WILLIAM L. GROSS, who conducts one of the largest general mechandise houses in western Maryland, was born on a farm near Jefferson, Frederick County, Md., August 11, 1857. He is a son of Charles and Elizabeth (Boteler) Gross.

Johnathan Gross, the great-grandfather of William L. Gross, was a native of Germany, and emigrated to this country, settling in Frederick County, where he was among the early settlers of Middletown Valley. The farm upon which he located, near Jefferson, was in the possession of the family until 1880. He was the father of Henry Gross.

Henry Gross, son of Johnathan Gross, the emigrant, spent his life following the occuptaion of a farmer in Frederick County, Md. He was married to Elizabeth Cost. They were the parents of seven children: Johnathan; Daniel; George; Charles; Harry; Elizabeth, married a Mr. Lakin; and Catharine, married Henry Suter.

Charles Gross, son of Henry and Elizabeth (Cost) Gross, and father of William L. Gross, was born on the old homestead near Jefferson, Frederick County, Md., November 24, 1815, and died March 2, 1892. He was one of the most prominent and leading citizens of the county, and was highly respected by all who knew him. In politics, he was in early life an old Whig, but afterwards affiliated himself with the Democratic party. He was very active in party circles and his opinions were always held in high esteem at the party councils. He served as County Commissioner for a period of eight years. He also was a member of the Maryland Legislature for one term, and looked after the interests of his constituents with marked fidelity and zeal. In religion, he was a leading and consistent member of the Jefferson Reformed Church. He was married to Elizabeth Boteler. They were the parents of three children: H. B., who is a practicing physician of Jefferson, Frederick County; Flora, who was married to James W. George, of Haymarket, Va.; and William L.

William L. Gross, son of Charles and Elizabeth (Boteler) Gross, was reared on the old homestead near Jefferson, Frederick County, and educated in the public schools of his home district. He followed agricultural pursuits until he was twenty years of age. Then, in 1877, he came to Berlin, now Brunswick, and purchased a half interest in the general merchandise store of Lingam Boteler, the firm name being Boteler & Gross. This partnership lasted for nine years, until 1886, when Mr. Gross purchased the half interest of Mr. Boteler. He has since continued to conduct the business alone. In the thirty-three years he has been engaged in business in Brunswick, he has seen that place grow from a small village of 300 souls to the present thriving town of 5,000. Mr. Gross has met with much success in his business. The first year he took charge of the store the sales were less than $10,000, and in 1908, the amount of goods sold aggregated over $61,000. His store is one of the largest houses of its kind in western Maryland, and Mr. Gross is recognized as one of Brunswick's most prominent and progressive business men. He has managed his store with a sagacity and foresight that stamp him as a man of fine executive capacity and rare mercantile acquirements.

Mr. Gross is a public-spirited citizen, and has always supported anything that promised to benefit the community. He was chairman of the committee through whose efforts the present system of water works was established in Brunswick in 1909. The water supply is pumped from an artesian well, 305 feet deep, from which flows ninety gallons a minute. The tank is located on a high hill above the town, thus giving one of the highest pressures of any water plant in the State of Maryland. Mr. Gross' efforts were largely instrumental in securing this needed improvement.

In politics, Mr. Gross is a stanch adherent of the Democratic party, but he has never sought public office, preferring to devote all his time and energy to his large business. Fraternally, he is a member of Delaware Tribe, No. 43, I. O. R. M., and the Modern Brotherhood of America. In religion, he is a consistent member of the Episcopal Church of Brunswick. in which he is active, serving as a member of the vestry for 15 years.

Mr. Gross was married September 27, 1893, to Anna C. Householder, daughter of Silas and Roxana (Schooley) Housholder, who are natives of Virginia, and descended from an old Quaker family of that State. They are the parents of five children: Charles A., Edward Lynch, Flora Clarke, Anna Louyse and William Boteler.

HENRY M. GITTINGER, a public-spirited citizen of Frederick, who is a contractor and builder and resides at No. 405 North Market street, was born on a farm north of Frederick, December 3, 1853. His parents were George and Catharine (Young) Gittinger.

George Gittinger was a native of Frederick County, Md. He spent his entire life following the occupation of a farmer. Politically, he was in early life an old line Whig but upon the formation of the Republican party he joined its ranks and voted for the candidates of that organization the rest of his life. In religion, he was all of his life affiliated with the Reformed Church. Mr. Gittinger was twice married. His first wife was Charlotte Scholl. They were the parents of these children: Mary E., wife of William D. Worman, deceased, and she lives at Harmony Grove, Frederick County, Md.; John E., deceased; Lewis C., an engineer in the employ of the Great Southern Printing Company of Frederick; George William, unmarried, of Harmony Grove, Frederick County; Margaret J., unmarried, lives in Washington, D. C.; and Sarah, died in childhood. Mr. Gittinger was married secondly to Catharine Young. They were the parents of five children: Henry M.; Clara M., has never married; Laura C., also unmarried; Daniel F., deceased; and Samuel J., engaged in farming in Frederick district.

Henry M. Gittinger, son of George and Catharine (Young) Gittinger, was raised in his native city and in the public schools secured an education. He followed farming until he was twenty-one years old, at which time he began to learn the carpenter's trade. In 1885, Mr. Gittinger began contracting and building on his own account and he has since been engaged in this occupation.

He is now one of the leading men in his line in Frederick County, and has erected many of the fine buildings of the city and county, among which is the Frederick City Hospital. He has thoroughly mastered all the details of his profession and has taken high rank in his own branch of industry. Mr. Gittinger is one of the well-to-do and energetic citizens of Frederick. He is a director in the Franklin Savings Institute, of Frederick, one of the strong financial institutions of that part of the State.

Politically, Mr. Gittinger is a stanch Republican. In religion, he is a member of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick, in which he serves in an official capacity, being at present an elder, and in the work of which he is very active. At the election held June 14, 1900, he was elected to the board of Aldermen of his native city.

Mr. Gittinger was married in 1886 to Susan Fessler Simmons, whose forebears were among the early settlers of Frederick County. She is a daughter of the late John A. and Rosanna C. (Fessler) Simmons. Mr. and Mrs. Gittinger have no children.

CHARLES H. HEFFNER, junior member of the firm of Debring and Heffner, of the Monon Steam Laundry, Frederick, Md., son of Frederick and Julia (Eyler) Heffner, was born near Frederick City, November 6, 1864.

Daniel Heffner, grandfather of Charles H. Heffner, was born in Brevair, Germany, and came to America in early manhood, landing at Baltimore, Md. He was a blacksmith and machinist, and was employed in these lines all his life. Mr. Heffner was a skilled workman, and was successful in business. He resided near Lewistown, Frederick County, Md., and was highly esteemed by his fellow citizens. He was a Democrat, and was always interested in the welfare of the community in which he lived. Daniel Heffner was married to Susan Eyler, and among their children was a son named Frederick.

Frederick Heffner, son of Daniel and Susan (Eyler) Heffner, and father of Charles H. Heffner, a retired farmer, was born near Lewistown, Md., July 1, 1832. He chose the vocation of farming in which he was engaged for many years. He was a successful agriculturalist, and cultivated his land until after his wife's death, when he retired, and resides with his daughter, Mrs. John S. Himes, at Mt. Zion, Ballinger District, Frederick County. Mr. Heffner is a Democrat, and is numbered among the reliable citizens of the county. Frederick Heffner was married to Julia Eyler, Woodsboro, Md. Their children are: 1, John D., deceased; 2, Charles H.; 3, Matilda A., married to M. C. Fulmer, a farmer of Braddock District, Frederick County; 4, Ida L. C., married to John S. Himes, contractor and builder, of Ballinger District. Mr. Heffner now holds membership in the Lutheran Church at Mt. Zion, and takes an active part in church work. Mrs. Heffner, who died July 27, 1904, was also a member of the Lutheran Church.

Charles Henry Heffner spent his boyhood and youth with his father on the farm of Mr. Samuel Zimmerman, at Feagaville, and attended the public schools of the district during the winter months. When he was nineteen, Mr. Heffner apprenticed himself to Mr. John H. Abbott a machinist of Frederick, Md. His relations with Mr. Abbott were always pleasant, and at the end of his four years' apprenticeship, although he received other offers, he decided to remain with Mr. Abbott, thinking that as he had received years of careful instruction, he ought to show his appreciation of the kindness received by remaining with his old employer. Mr. Heffner was prompt and reliable as an employe, giving faithful service for value received; always ready, early and late, to respond to the call of duty. In October, 1894, after being nearly twelve years with Mr. Abbott, Mr. Heffner formed a partnership with Mr. H. B. Debring, and established the Monon Steam Laudry. Mr. Heffner's skill as a machinist proved very valuable to the firm, and enabled the partners to establish their own plant, and to keep it in successful operation. Mr. Heffner is a progressive business man. Always courteous, kind, and charitable, he never intentionally wrongs any one; should a wrong occur, however, he is ever prompt to right it. He is a conservative Democrat, interested in everything that pertains to the interest and improvement of his adopted city. Mr. Heffner's life has been one of industry and usefulness, and his upright conduct has surrounded him with a host of friends. He is a member of the Royal Arcanum; the Modern Brotherhood of America; the Modern Woodmen of America; the independent Order of Odd Fellows, and Mystic Circle. He is a Lutheran, and holds his membership in Mount Zion Lutheran Church, near Feagaville, Md., where he attends service regularly. He is deeply interested in all that pertains to the welfare of the church, and has, at various times, served as an officer in the congregation and in the Sunday School.

ISAAC C. ZIMMERMAN, a practical and progressive agriculturalist of Ballinger district, was born on the farm where he now lives, February 23, 1852. He is a son of Peter T. and Ann M. (Cronise) Zimmerman.

The Zimmerman family has long been prominent in Frederick County annals. The American progenitor was Michael Zimmerman, who was of German birth and lineage. While a young man he came to this country, accompanied by two brothers. It is probable that Philadelphia was their landing place. Michael afterwards came to Maryland, and settled on some timber land in the southern part of Frederick County, now known as the Addition to Carrollton. Here he spent the rest of his days. This property has ever since remained in the possession of his descendants. Members of the family have the original grants for this land from King George to Lord Baltimore and from the Carrolls to the Zimmerman ancestor. Michael Zimmerman was married to Eva Cronise. They were the parents of three children, two sons and a daughter, Susan. The sons were Michael and Henry and were twins.

Henry Zimmerman, son of Michael and Eva (Cronise) Zimmerman, was born on the homestead, December 12, 1791, and died May 20, 1875. He spent his life on the farm on which his father located. He was a prominent and highly respected citizen of Carroll's Manor. He was a large land owner, being the possessor of three fine farms. He improved the home place by the erection of a two-story brick house near where the former dwelling stood. He was connected with the old Reformed Church on Carroll's Manor, in which he was an officeholder. Mr. Zimmerman was married to Charlotte Thomas, daughter of John Thomas. She was born in 1793, and died in April, 1864. They were the parents of seven children: William H., lived in Buckeystown district; Peter T., Buckeystown District; Daniel J., of Jefferson; Gideon M., lived in Ballinger district; Elizabeth S., was married to Edward Zimmerman, of Buckeystown District; Joshua B., was a resident of Walkersville district; and Ephraim, lived in Mount Pleasant district.

Peter T. Zimmerman, son of Henry and Charlotte (Thomas) Zimmerman, secured his education in private schools. He was born on the paternal homestead, March 13, 1819. When his father relinquished farming in 1860, he took charge of the home farm, which he cultivated on shares until his father's death. Under the latter's will, he fell heir to 203 acres of fine farm land. He afterwards divided the tract into two farms, and also erected a new barn on the old home place, making it one of the best properties in the district. He was one of the most prominent farmers of Buckeystown District for many years. He was successful as an agriculturist and was highly respected in the community in which he made his home. A few years before his death, Mr. Zimmerman bought a small place on the old Point of Rocks road in Ballinger district, and here his widow now resides. He voted the Republican ticket. He was a member of St. Matthew's Reformed Church of Carroll's Manor, in which he filled the offices of deacon and elder for a number of years. Mr. Zimmerman was married to Ann M. Cronise, daughter of Frederick and Annie (Nicodemus) Cronise, a descendant of a prominent family of Frederick County. There were eight children by this marriage, of whom six grew up: Isaac C., Luther C., at home; Isabelle R., at home also; Cornelius F., of Ballinger district; Cephas H.; Curtis T., resides at home. Mrs. Zimmerman is also a member of the Reformed Church.

Isaac C. Zimmerman, son of Peter T. and Ann M. (Cronise) Zimmerman, was educated in private schools. He has followed agriculture all his life. In 1880, he began work for himself and started to cultivate his father's farm. Thus he was occupied until 1901, at which time he received the old homestead, the estate being then divided. This farm contains 106 acres of fertile land, partly in Ballinger and partly in Buckeystown districts. It lies about four miles and a-half south of Frederick on the old Point of Rocks road. Mr. Zimmerman keeps this place under a high state of cultivation and takes great pride in keeping it in first class condition. He is a stockholder in the Ballinger Creek Turnpike Company, and is one of the prosperous citizens of Frederick County.

In politics, Mr. Zimmerman is affiliated with the Republican party. He holds membership in St. Matthew's Reformed Church of Carroll's Manor, and is an active worker. He has acted as deacon, and is at present serving as an elder and also was superintendent of St. Matthew's Sunday School.

Mr. Zimmerman was married to Laura M. Mull, daughter of James Mull, who was a well-known farmer of Lewistown District. Of this union, two children were born: Ira Leslie, lives at home; and Mamie C., the wife of C. M. Arnold, of Loudoun County, Va.

WILLIAM H. SHIPLEY, a prosperous and well known citizen of Frederick City, who is engaged in the bottling business, was born in New Market District, Frederick County, March 7, 1843. He is a son of Joshua and Margaret N. (Sponseller) Shipley, also natives of New Market District, who are both deceased.

Joshua Shipley acquired his education in the schools of New Market District and followed agricultural pursuits all of his life. He began life as a poor boy, but by his own efforts rose to an enviable position in the world. He voted the Democratic ticket and was a member of the Old Side Methodist Church, of New Market. Mr. Shipley was married to Margaret N. Sponseller, daughter of Jacob and Catharine (Shope) Sponseller, of Frederick District. They were the parents of five children: William H.; Eliza Ann, the wife of Lutheran Abrecht, of Frederick City, now deceased; Mary E., deceased; J. Frederick, of Frederick City; and John J., deceased, also of Frederick.

William H. Shipley, son of Joshua and Margaret N. (Sponseller) Shipley, attended the public schools of Frederick City. When he was but nine years old his father died, leaving his mother with a family of very small children, and he was early forced to seek his own livelihood. When he was fourteen years old he stopped school and assisted his mother in the conduct of the farm until the outbreak of the Civil War. He then enlisted in the Confederate Army in the command of "Stonewall" Jackson, and participated in twenty-seven battles, among which were South Mountain, Antietam and Gettysburg. At the last named fight he was wounded seven times, being shot in the side and lower limbs. He was taken prisoner and confined for twenty-five months in a hospital in Baltimore. For his gallantry he was promoted to be sergeant after the battle of Gettysburg. Upon returning to Frederick City after the close of the war, Mr. Shipley obtained a position as foreman of the brickyard of the late James Whitehill. For a period of nineteen years he served in the capacities of bookkeeper and manager. In 1874, he purchased the property which he now occupies, and embarked in the bottling of beer, porter, ale and soft drinks. He has built up a large trade and his establishment is one of the largest of its kind in Western Maryland. He is the leading bottler of Frederick, is a successful business man, and is one of the wellknown and substantial citizens of the city.

In politics, he is a stanch adherent of the Democracy, and has served as a member of the Frederick City Council. He is very prominent in fraternal circles, holding membership and being a leading spirit in many organizations. He is one of the oldest members of the Senior Order of United American Mechanics in the State. He became a member of Fredonia Council, No. 46, in 1874, shortly after the Council was instituted, and when Francis Scott Key Council, No. 48, was formed, he withdrew from the former and became one of the charter members of the latter Council and is one of its trustees. He also held membership in the State Council for seventeen years, and is now a representative from that body to the National Council. Mr. Shipley is also connected with King David Lodge, No. 50, I. O. O. F., in which he is a trustee and also marshal. He is also identified with the Encampment, being guide in that branch of the lodge. He holds membership in Frederick Council, No. 1196, Royal Arcanum; in Frederick Conclave of Heptasophs; in Frederick Aerie of Eagles; and is a charter member of the Order of Owls of Frederick. For about forty-six years he has been a member of the Junior Fire Company, and has been on the standing committee of that organization for some years. He has served as president of the Maryland Bottlers' Association, and is widely known through that branch of trade. Mr. Shipley was married in September, 1866, to Mary E. Ketler, daughter of Frederick and Catharine Ketler, of Frederick, both deceased. Mr. Ketler was a native of Germany, and was engaged in the brewery business for many years. Mr. and Mrs. Shipley are the parents of the following children: Charles F., who married Katie Lebherz, daughter of Joseph Lebherz, of Frederick, by whom he has the following children: Mildred, Charles F., Jr., Ruth, Vida, Marie and Franklin; Fannie E., the wife of Albert Wallace, who have two children, Elizabeth and Grafton; George W., married Susie Hughes, by whom he has three children, Raymond, Ernest and Janet; Mollie May, lives at home; Margaret E., the wife of Charles Haugh, who lives near Frederick, have one child, Thelma; Carrie D. and Franklin F., both at home. The family is affiliated with the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick.

THE LATE JOHN WALTER, a retired business man and capitalist of Frederick, Md., was born in Germany, in 1825.

Mr. Walter's parents died while he was still a little child and he was cared for by friends. He received his education in the public school and he was still but a lad when he began to learn the machinist's trade. He was little more than a child when he was thrown upon his own resources and was literally compelled "to paddle his own canoe." He was only sixteen when he decided to go to America, of which he had heard so much. He had very little money, but not being one who was deterred by slight obstacles, he found a place on a ship where he was allowed to work for passage money. He came at once to Frederick, Md., and, for a time, things looked pretty dark for the orphan boy, alone in a strange land, without money or friends. No one had any employment for him, and he was almost in despair, but at length Mr. F. Pampel gave him a place as machinist. The youth was faithful to his duties there and, at the end of five years, he was employed by Daub & Glaize, machinists. After spending four years with this firm, Mr. Walter began buying "junk." He had good judgment in buying and made a great success of his enterprise. The same sound judgment guided him in investing his profits, and at his death, Mr. Walter possessed railroad securities and valuable real estate in Frederick and in the surrounding country. He always respected the rights of his fellow-men, never overreaching them, but was strictly upright and honorable in all his dealings. A large share of his fortune was made during the Civil War in which he took no active part. After that time he was a Republican. Mr. Walter was a resident of Frederick from his youth, and had been actively interested in everything relating to the development and prosperity of his adopted City. He soon won a competence and, secure from the fear of want in his old age, he enjoyed life thoroughly. His friends were legion, and to one and all he extended most hospitably, the courtesies of his comfortable home. He was an entertaining conversationalist, and his friends enjoyed his graphic account of the way in which he obtained his start in financial affairs. He was a member of the Odd Fellows, of the encampment, and of the Order of Red Men.

John Walter was married, in 1848, to Elizabeth Pampel, a daughter of his first employer. Of their ten children, eight reached maturity: 1, Sarah C., married to John O. Smith, a lumber merchant of Hagerstown, Md.; 2, Jacob W. of Hanover, Pa.; 3, Alice V., married to Jacob F. Snyder, a retired farmer of Germantown, Md.; 4, Charles G., deceased; 5, Lewis C., a locksmith, of Frederick City; 6, Florence M., (Mrs. William F. Snyder), of Frederick City; 7, Edward H., optician, Hanover, Pa.; 8, Bertie E., married first to the late Professor Mitchell E. Daniels, of Vergennes, Vt., and after his death to James F. Eldridge, of Washington, D. C. For more than three decades, Mr. Walter resided at the old home on North Market street where he died October 26, 1905, and was laid to rest in Mount Olivet Cemetery, beside his wife, who had died in 1902. He held the faith of his ancestors and was identified with the Lutheran Church. For more than thirty years he had been superintendent of the Sunday School, and actively engaged in the work among the young people with whom he was a great favorite.

Mrs. Florence M. Snyder, sixth child of the late John Walter, is the owner of the old home on North Market street, where she resides, and carries on her millinery establishment. Her husband, William F. Snyder, who is bookkeeper for Edward Baltzell, a grocer of Frederick, is one of the prominent men of Frederick. He is a member of the Knights of Pythias, of Francis Scott Key Council, No. 48, O. U. A. M.; and of Winfield Scott Schley, Tent No. 9, K. O. T. M., of Frederick. He is a stanch Democrat. Mr. William F. Snyder and his wife have three children: John J., Mary T., and Florence W., all at home. Mr. Snyder, his wife, and family are active members of the Episcopal Church in Frederick City, Md.

R. CLAUDE DUTROW, one of the leading farmers of Frederick County, Md., son of Richard P. T. and Lucretia (Lakin) Dutrow, was born on the old homestead, now his property, situated on the Buckeystown turnpike, two miles south of Buckeystown, June 7, 1857.

Mr. Dutrow's grandfather, Samuel Dutrow, was a prominent man among the old residents of Frederick County. His ancestors, who were French, were among the first settlers of the southern part of the county. He was one of the wealthiest men of his day and owned five valuable farms, four of them in Buckeystown District, and one near Frederick. He was one of the most enterprising men of the county, and his farms were all furnished with good buildings, in excellent order, while the land was brought to the highest state of cultivation. Late in life, he retired from farming and removed to Frederick where his declining years were spent. Mr. Dutrow was a Democrat, interested in the progress of the county. Samuel Dutrow was married to Miss Elizabeth Geisbert, of Frederick County. Of their seven children, four reached maturity: 1, Richard P. T., 2, Rebecca, widow of the late Albert Wallis, of Frederick City; 3, Samuel, a retired farmer, for many years a member of the board of school commissioners of Frederick County; 4, Columbia, deceased, married to the late Grafton Duvall. Mr. Dutrow was a stanch member of the Evangelical Reformed Church. He died at his home in Frederick, and is buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery, where his wife rests by his side.

Richard P. T. Dutrow, father of R. Claude Dutrow, attended the public schools of Frederick County, and completed his education at Mercersburg College, Mercersburg, Pa. He remained at home until he married when he began farming for himself on the farm on which his son, R. Claude Dutrow now resides. Mr. Dutrow spent his whole life in the successful cultivation of this property, a farm of 280 acres of fine land well improved. At his father's death, the place became his, as his share of the estate. Mr. Dutrow was one of the leading Democrats of Frederick County, where he was greatly esteemed as a leader and as a citizen. In 1868, he was elected on the Democratic ticket to the Maryland Legislature, and discharged his duties to the entire satisfaction of his constituents. He was also elected commissioner of the county. Richard P. T. Dutrow was married to Lucretia, daughter of Captain William and Susan (Remsburg) Lakin, whose father, William Lakin, was a Captain in the War of 1812, and one of the most prominent farmers of Frederick County. They had one child, R. Claude. Mr. Dutrow and his wife were members of Trinity Reformed Church in Adamstown, Md. He was the first elder of the church, and one of the four men who built the church edifice. He was a very active worker and contributed most generously to all church enterprises. He was born on one of the old Dutrow farms in the western part of Buckeystown District, in August, 1828, and was killed in a wreck on the B. & O. R. R., near Washington Junction, June 12, 1877. He was buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery. His wife rests by his side.

R. Claude Dutrow was educated in the public schools of Buckeystown District, and remained with his parents on the homestead. After the death of his father, he took charge of the place for his mother, and at her death, the farm came to him as the only child. This farm of 280 acres, is one of the fine farms of the county. It is beautifully situated on the Buckeystown turnpike, two miles south of Buckeystown. It is furnished with a two-story brick dwelling, a bank barn and all the needed outbuildings. Everything is in good repair, and the land has been brought to a high state of cultivation. Mr. Dutrow is energetic and enterprising, and takes an active interest in agriculture and in the welfare of the county. He is a stockholder in the Central National Bank, of Frederick. He was a director, and one of the organizers of the Adamstown Turnpike Company, and also of the Buckeystown Packing Company. He is a member of the Frederick County Agricultural Society; and of Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, of Frederick. Mr. Dutrow is one of the leading Democrats of Frederick County, and has been a member of the Central committee for many years.

R. Claude Dutrow was married to Ida, daughter of Osborn and Rebecca (Gilds) Beck, who was a prominent contractor, resided in Adamstown, now deceased. They have three children: 1, R. O. Lee, at home; 2, Parthenia E., and 3, Laura R. C., both students in Frederick College. Mr. Dutrow and his wife are members of Trinity Reformed Church at Adamstown, Md., where he has held office as deacon for a number of years. Mr. Dutrow is an active worker in the church, and contributes generously to all church enterprises.

SIDA H. BUHRMAN, a prominent farmer residing one mile south of Foxville, Hauvers District, Frederick County, Md., son of Silas and Leah (Stottlemyer) Buhrman, both deceased, was born at his father's home in Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., September 11, 1854.

John Buhrman, great-great-grandfather, came from Germany before the Revolutionary War, and Henry Buhrman, Sr., great-grandfather of Sida E. Buhrman, was born in Germany. He was one of the early settlers of Frederick County, and owned five hundred acres of land, known as "The three mills seats," in Hauvers District. He spent his whole life on this land. He married, and among his children was a son named Henry.

Henry Buhrman, Jr., grandfather of Sida H. Buhrman, was born and spent his whole life on the old homestead near Foxville. He was employed as teacher, farmer, and surveyor. He surveyed the road from Foxville to Wolfsville, which ran through the homestead. He taught school for a number of years, but after the death of his parents, he turned his attention to farming, purchased the homestead and spent the rest of his life in cultivating and improving it. His hard work and care were rewarded by financial success, and he held the esteem of his fellow citizens. Henry Buhrman, Jr., was married to Ann Barnes. Their children are: 1, Harry, M. D., deceased; 2, Upton, deceased, a merchant of Myersville, Md.; 3, the Rev. Alfred, a minister of the Lutheran Church, Stephens City, Va.; 4, Silas, deceased; 5, Emory, a minister of the Methodist Church, retired; 6, Elias, deceased; 7, Ann, widow of the late Josiah Marken, of Frederick, Md.; 8, Katie (Mrs. Conrad P. Easterday), of Danville, Ill. Mr. Buhrman was an active member of Mount Bethel Methodist Church.

The late Silas Buhrman, father of Sida H. Buhrman, was born in 1828, on the old homestead in Hauvers District. He grew up on his father's farm and was educated in the public schools of the district. He remained on the homestead, assisting his father until after his marriage. He was a very young man when he began teaching, and was a successful instructor for thirty-five years, carrying on farming in connection with his profession. After his marriage, Mr. Buhrman removed to his father-in-law's farm in Catoctin District, but two years later he returned to Hauvers district, and purchased the old homestead. Mr. Buhrman was a republican. He was honored as a citizen and as a prosperous business man. He was one of the land assessors of Frederick County, and was a member of the board of school commissioners for many years. Silas Buhrman was married to Leah, daughter of Daniel and Johanna (Rechee) Stottlemyer, both deceased, whose father was well-known among the older farmers of Catoctin District. Of their eleven children, ten reached maturity: 1, Manzella, married to E. M. Z. Buhrman, her second cousin, a retired farmer of Hauvers District; 2, Sida H.; 3, Elias M., of California; 4, Emory L., of Washington County, Md.; 5, Kate A., of Hauvers District; 6, Harvey M., rural mail carrier of Hauvers District; 7, Minnie M., of Hagerstown, Md.; 8, Addie C., married to her distant cousin, Albert L. Buhrman, a farmer of Hauvers District; 9, Alfred R., of Catoctin District, a dealer in produce; 10, Vernon M., a farmer of Hauvers District. Mr. Buhrman and his wife, both deceased, were members of Mount Bethel Methodist Church, to which they contributed liberally. He died at the old homestead, October 10, 1892, and is buried in the cemetery of Mount Bethel Church.

Sida H. Buhrman was educated in the public schools of Hauvers District, and remained at home assisting his father. About six months before his father's death, Mr. Buhrman purchased from him 62 acres of the old homestead. His home is beautifully situated one mile south of Foxville. He has made his home one of the desirable farms of the district, improving the land, and putting up a comfortable two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn, and all necessary buildings. Mr. Buhrman is the leading Republican of Hauvers District. He was postmaster under President Harrison and was one of the census enumerators in 1900. He is a member of South Mountain Lodge, No. 125 I. O. O. F.

Sida H. Buhrman was married to Mary J., daughter of David and Hannah (Pryor) Buhrman, not a relative. Mrs. Buhrman's parents are dead. Her father was a prominent man and the leading Republican of the district. They have two children: Elsie I., married to Harley Sipe, electrician of Lima, Ohio; and Harry S., at home. Mrs. Buhrman died March 6, 1886, and is buried in the cemetery at Mount Bethel Church. Five years after the death of his first wife, Mr. Buhrman was married to Jane E., widow of the late Henry Hoffman. They have no children. Mr. Buhrman is a member of Mount Bethel Methodist Church, to which he contributes liberally.

CHARLES C. COBLENTZ, the leading merchant of Harmony, Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., son of Oliver P. and Rebecca P. (Menchey) Coblentz, both deceased, was born on his father's farm near Middletown, Md., January 12, 1857.

Peter Coblentz, a prominent farmer of the Middletown Valley, was the son of Peter and Elizabeth (Bowlus) Coblentz, and the grandfather of Charles C. Coblentz. He was among the early settlers in the Valley where he owned a fertile farm on which he spent the latter part of his life. He was one of the oldest citizens of that section and was highly respected. He died on his farm, one mile south of Middletown, Md., and is buried in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Middletown.

The late Oliver P. Coblentz, father of Charles C. Coblentz, attended the public schools of Middletown, and completed his education at Mercersburg College, Mercersburg, Pa. After leaving college, Mr. Coblentz returned to the home farm and assisted his father until he married and began farming for himself on land belonging to his father-in-law, two miles east of Middletown. At the death of his wife's parents, she inherited the property. On this farm Mr. Coblentz spent the remainder of his life, cultivating and improving it. He was a skillful farmer and hard worker and attention to business made him a successful business man, and one of the prominent farmers of the Valley. Mr. Coblentz was a Democrat, actively interested in political affairs, and for many years was a member of the central committee. He was, for many years, a magistrate of Middletown District. Oliver P. Coblentz was married to Rebecca, daughter of Daniel and Mary (———) Menchy. Of their eight children, only three reached adult age: 1, Oliver P. Jr., deceased; 2, Helen R., died unmarried; 3, Charles C., merchant in Harmony. Mr. Coblentz was an active member of Christ Reformed Church in Middletown, and was an officer of the congregation for many years. He died at his home near Middletown in 1879. His wife was a member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Middletown; she died in ——.

Charles C. Coblentz was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained on the home farm, assisting his parents. After his father's death, Mr. Coblentz took charge of the place for his mother and cultivated it for her for ten years, when he bought it from her. After farming it successfully for four years, he sold the property, and removed to Harmony, Md., where he opened a store for the sale of general merchandise. Mr. Coblentz is doing business at the old stand where he carries a full line of first class goods, and has a large and profitable trade. He attributes his financial success to honest dealing and close attention to business. Mr. Coblentz is a Democrat, and has always taken an active part in politics. In the autumn of 1901, he was nominated, on the Democratic ticket, for treasurer of Frederick County. He was defeated by a majority of eighty. This defeat almost counted as a victory for he had the largest vote on the ticket, and had a majority of six hundred to overcome. In the summer he was nominated on the party ticket for sheriff on the first ballot, being the first choice of the party. Mr. Coblentz is highly esteemed as a successful business man and as a reliable citizen. He is a member of Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, K. of P., of Frederick City; and of the Improved Order of Red Men, of Frederick City.

Charles C. Coblentz was married to Emma F., daughter of Ludwig and Magdalena Ropp. They have five children: 1, Ethel R. (Mrs. Daniel L. Gladhill), of Jackson District; 2, Oscar P., bookkeeper for the Frederick City Brickworks; 3, Alice G., married to J. Elmer Summers, a farmer of Jackson District; 4, C. Frank, clerk in the office of the Baltimore & Ohio R. R., in Frederick; 5, E. Kathleen, at home. Mr. Coblentz and his wife are members of Christ Reformed Church, in Middletown, Md. The parents of Mrs. Coblentz, Ludwig and Magdalena Ropp, were Germans who came to America in youth and settled in the Middletown Valley. They afterwards removed to the West.

DAVID W. SUMMERS, a prominent farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., son of George W. and Catherine (Michael) Summers, both deceased, was born on the farm on which he now resides, then owned by his father, June 24, 1840.

The great-grandfather of David W. Summers, a native of Germany, came to America in early manhood, and finally settled in the upper part of the Middletown Valley, where he spent the remainder of his life. His son, Jacob Summers, grandfather of David W. Summers, passed his whole life in farming. He owned a valuable property in the northern part of the Middletown Valley, and was prominent among the farmers of his generation. Jacob Summers was married to Elizabeth Horine. He died in 1848; his wife died in 1847. Both are buried in the graveyard at Church Hill, near Myersville, Jackson District, No. 16.

The late George W. Summers, father of David W. Summers, a well-known farmer of the Middletown Valley, was born on the family homestead in the northern part of the valley, April 29, 1802. He received his education in the public schools of his native district, and remained on the home farm, working with his father, until he reached his twenty-second year, when he began business for himself. He was, at first, engaged in hauling over the road to Baltimore, Md., and a few years later, engaged in farming with his brother-in-law, John Putman. At the end of five years, Mr. Summers purchased a farm from Mr. Hulsopple, and spent the remainder of his life in cultivating and improving this property. He was very successful in farming, and some years later bougth another fertile farm, of the Coblentz heirs, lying two miles and a-half south of Middletown, Md. Afterwards he bought the Kenney place, farm of 182 acres, adjoining his first property about one mile south of Harmony. Mr. Summers also owned the Oakland Mill property; the old Woollen Mills at Bellsville, which he purchase of Captain David Kailor; two houses in Bellsville; and 75 acres of valuable timber land. Mr. Summers was a Democrat, interested in local affairs, and was highly esteemed by his fellow citizens. He ascribes all of his financial success to honest labor and close application to business. Having learned the blacksmith trade, he was able to do his own work in that line. George W. Summers was married, December 2, 1825, to Catherine, daughter of Henry and Catherine Michael, who was born January 26, 1804. Her father was a well-known farmer of the Middletown Valley. The children of George W. and Catherine (Michael) Summers are: 1, the late Henry W., a farmer of Mount Philipp, Braddock District, Frederick County, Md.; 2, Jacob V., retired farmer, of Tuscarora District, Frederick County, Md.; 3, the late John Summers; 4, Samuel, a retired farmer of Frederick City, Md.; 5, David W., on home farm; 6, Joshua, a retired farmer of Myersville, Jackson District, Frederick County; and three who died in childhood. Mrs. Summers was a member of the Reformed Church in Middletown, Md. She died February 27, 1875, and is buried in the cemetery adjoining the church in Middletown. Mr. Summers was a member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Middletown, and served the congregation as deacon and as elder for many years. He died April 11, 1884, and is buried in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Middletown, Md.

David W. Summers received his eduaction in the public schools of Jackson District, and remained at home with his father until 1875, when his father retired from active farm life, but continued to reside on the homestead, making his home with his son. Mr. Summers then purchased the home place, a fertile farm of 187 acres, situated in Jackson District, eight miles north of Frederick on the Bellsville road. He improved his property, putting up a comfortable brick dwelling, a bank barn, and convenient outbuildings, and by careful cultivation increased the fertility of the soil until the farm ranked among the best in the section. He afterwards added 42 acres making in all 229 acres. Mr. Summers was a progressive man and a very successful farmer. He afterwards purchased the old Horine farm containing 297 acres of excellent land joining his first farm on the north, situated one mile south of Harmony, Md. When he had improved the land, he divided this farm, putting up a second set of buildings, and made of the whole two valuable properties. Mr. Summers is one of the largest owners of real estate in Frederick County. Besides his farms, he owns 165 acres of fine timber land on the Catoctin Mountain, and two desirable building lots in Frederick City. His financial success is due to hard work and close application to his business. Mr. Summers is a Democrat, actively interested in political affairs, and has been a member of the central committee for twenty-five years. He has been a stockholder and a member of the board of directors of the Valley Savings Bank of Middletown from the time of its organization, and was an active worker in building the Frederick and Middletown railroad. In 1890, he was appointed one of the trustees to Montevue Hospital. He was elected president of the board, and served for four years, giving entire satisfaction. Mr. Summers is also one of the trustees of the public school at Harmony. He is one of the most widely known men of the Middletown Valley and is highly respected by his fellow citizens.

David W. Summers was married to Annie M., daughter of Lawrence and Christina Roltenheffer, of Bellsville, Jackson District, Frederick County, Md. Of their nine children, five reached maturity: 1, Minnie C. V., married J. Newton Stotlemyer, a farmer of Washington County, Md.; 2, Calvin D. H., farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County; 3, John E. M., farmer, of Jackson District; 4, Alva C. L., at home; 5, Annie E., (Mrs. Chester Joy), at home. Mr. Summers and his wife are members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Middletown, where Mr. Summers has served as deacon and as elder for a number of years. He has been one of the trustees of the new Lutheran Church in Harmony ever since it was built in 1880.

MILLARD F. McBRIDE, who is one of the substantial citizens of Ballinger District, is occupied in farming and the raising of poultry. He was born in Middletown Valley, Frederick County, July 12, 1867, and is a son of Lewis and Sarah (Sigler) McBride, the latter deceased.

The McBrides are of Scotch-Irish lineage and were among the pioneer settlers of Frederick County.

Henry McBride, the grandfather of Millard F. McBride, was born in 1800, and died in 1874. He made a success of life. He began his career in very poor circumstances and at the time of his death was the owner of a farm of 60 acres, situated four miles west of Middletown. It was on this farm that he died. He was a highly respected and honored citizen of Middletown Valley. Mr. McBride was married to Polly Roderick. They were the parents of the following children: William, of Middletown Valley; Henry C., of Middletown District; Lewis; George, died young; Sallie, the wife of Levi House, of Middletown Valley; Mary, married to John Flook, of Burkittsville, Md.; and Catharine, the wife of Joshua Norris, of Middletown Valley.

Lewis McBride, son of Henry and Polly (Roderick) McBride, received a private school education under Tilghman Gaver. When he was twenty-one years old, he took up the profession of teaching. For nine years he was thus engaged, instructing in Middletown Valley and Washington County, Md. When he was thirty years old, he turned his attention to farming, and for seven years cultivated his father's farm. When his father retired from active work, he purchased the farm. He continued to follow agricultural pursuits until he retired in 1907. He is also the possessor of a tract of 50 acres of timber land. Mr. McBride was born in September, 1834. He is a Prohibitionist in politics. In religion, he is a consistent and influential member of the Church of God near Burkittsville. He was very active in the erection of the church edifice and is one of the trustees. He also takes much interest in the Sunday school, of which he is treasurer. Mr. McBride was married to Sarah Sigler, daughter of William Sigler. She is deceased. They were the parents of six children: Laura F., the wife of John W. Wilson, of Middletown Valley; Sarah A., married to Charles W. Hanes, of Washington County, Md.; Millard F.; Albert H., lives near Middletown; Samuel E., of Middletown; and Clara A.

Millard F. McBride, son of Lewis and Sarah (Sigler) McBride, secured his elementary education in the public and private schools. He was afterwards graduated from the State Normal School at Baltimore City, and became a teacher. He followed this profession for three years. He was then married and became a farmer, removing to the farm now owned by Jacob Notnagle, but at that time by his wife and sister-in-law. He cultivated this place for three years and a-half, after which he purchased the farm he now owns, consisting of 87 acres of excellent land, well improved. The former owner was Levin Hargett and it lies on the Frederick and Jefferson turnpike. This property is one of the nicest farms in that section of the county and has a brick dwelling and brick barn on it. The barn is one of the oldest in the county. In the spring of 1907, Mr. McBride embarked in the raising of poultry. He began on a large scale and erected several fine houses, equipping them in the most up-to-date and approved style. He has been very successful in his undertaking, and is today one of the largest raisers of chickens in the county. He is one of the prosperous and substantial residents of Ballinger district. He is a stockholder in the People's Insurance Company.

In politics, Mr. McBride is an adherent of the Prohibition party. He is affiliated with the Church of God of Locust Valley, where he is an active participant in the wrok of the Sunday School and has been assistant superintendent of that part of the parish for a number of years.

Mr. McBride has been twice married. He was married first to Minnie J. Hargett, daughter of William and Mary E. (Thomas) Hargett. They were the parents of three children: Maynard, Charles L., and Minnie F. Mrs. McBride died October 1, 1806, and was laid to rest at Locust Valley Cemetery, near Burkittsville. Mr. McBride was married secondly to Viola J. Wilson, daughter of Robert and Mahalia Wilson. Of this marriage one son was born, who died young. Mrs. McBride is a member of the United Brethren Church.

JACOB D. RICE, who is a representative citizen and highly successful farmer of Lewistown District, was born January 19, 1849. He is a son of Samuel and Mary Ann (Shaffer) Rice.

The grandfather of Jacob D. Rice was Henry Rice. He was a resident of the Middletown Valley in Frederick County. His wife was a Miss Wasthler. They are both buried in the Hill Cemetery in Jackson District, near Myersville. They were the parents of a son Samuel.

Samuel Rice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rice, was born in Middletown Valley, March 12, 1816, and died January 15, 1900. He was raised in his native district. His family were in poor circumstances and he, being the eldest child, remained from school and helped to support the home. Until he was twenty-three years old he remained with his father. He then removed from Middletown Valley to the neighborhood of Lewistown, where he worked by the day for various farmers. By strict economy, he accumulated enough money to buy a small place near the mountain, where he planted an orchard. This undertaking afterwards yielded large returns. He later bought 60 acres of mountain land from Dennis Ramsburg and John Shaw. This property he sold to John Selsum, and then bought 92 1-2 acres of land, which he improved by constructing new buildings, making it one of the most desirable places in his district. He voted the Republican ticket. Mr. Rice took much interest in church work. He held membership in the Methodist Protestant Church at Lewistown, in which he held office at various times. He was a member of the board of trustees and also superintendent of the Sunday School. Mr. Rice was married to Mary Ann Shaffer, daughter of Samuel and Susan (Bowers) Shaffer, of Lewistown district. They were the parents of fifteen children, twelve of whom grew to mature years: John W., deceased; Mary Jane, deceased; Daniel J., deceased; Eli D., deceased; Jacob D.; William H., of Lewistown District; Joseph A., deceased; Matilda, deceased; Samuel B., deceased; Joshua A. L., deceased; Frederick C., of Walkersville District; and Anna R., who is the wife of John Lutz, of Tuscarora District. Mrs. Rice was a Methodist also.

Jacob D. Rice, son of Samuel and Mary Ann (Shaffer) Rice, acquired his learning in the public schools of the county. Until he was twenty-five years of age, he remained with his father. He then became a farmer on his own account, having previously learned all phases of agriculture on the home place. He took charge of a farm of about 40 acres owned by Philip Wachter, where he lived for one year. He then secured his present home of about 25 acres of land from Samuel Tomes, situated about seven miles north of Frederick on the Emmitsburg pike. He erected a two-story frame house and barn on this land, thereby greatly increasing its desirability. This farm, although small, is a fertile one and produces large crops. Mr. Rice is a practical and progressive farmer and has been a success in his chosen work. He is recognized as a substantial citizen.

In politics, Mr. Rice takes allegiance with the Prohibition party, but has also given support to the Republican party. He is deeply interested in religious affairs, and is a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Lewistown. He is an active worker in his congregation and has filled the various official positions open to laymen. He is at the present time one of the trustees of the church.

Mr. Rice was married to Catharine E. Wachter, daughter of Philip and Susanna (Reese) Wachter, a member of one of the well known families of Frederick County. There are four children by this marriage, namely: John W., of Bloomfield, in Tuscarora District; Edward A., deceased; P. Luther, who is a minister of the Methodist Protestant Church of the Maryland Conference; and Katharine, who lives at home. Mrs. Rice is a woman of high character and in religion is identified with the Lutheran Church.

M. FOSTER AHALT, a prominent young agriculturist, who resides two and a-half miles west of Middletown, was born on a farm in Middletown, now Burkittsville District, Frederick County, May 24, 1871. He is a son of Matthias S. and Martha (Sheffer) Ahalt.

John Ahalt, the great-grandfather of M. Foster Ahalt, was a farmer in Burkittsville District, Frederick County. He was the father of the following children: Matthias; Samuel; Jacob; Joshua; John; Catharine, married John Young; and Betsy, married Samuel Fink.

Matthias Ahalt, son of John Ahalt, was born in 1803, and died December 3, 1881. He followed farming as an occupation. He was one of the highly respected and influential citizens of the community in which he made his home. In politics, he was in early life an adherent of the Whig party, but after the organization of the Republican party, he allied himself with the latter. For sixty years, he was a leading and consistent member of Zion's Lutheran Church of Middletown, in which he was one of the pillars and very active. For many years he served as deacon and elder. He was married to Phoebe Rautzahn. They were the parents of the following children: Lucinda, married Philip Sheffer, both deceased; Charlotte M., married to Jacob D. Young, of Middletown, who is deceased; Benjamin S., a farmer; Jacob L., an agriculturist of Middletown; Matthias S.; Ellen, the wife of Jacob Huffer, a farmer of Burkittsville District; Joshua D., a retired farmer of Middletown District (see his sketch); Martha F., Luther M., Emma C. and Amanda A., all died within three months of congested brain fever, a very unusual occurrence.

Matthias S. Ahalt, son of Matthias and Phoebe (Rautzahn) Ahalt, spent his active life at farming, and is now living retired in Burkittsville District. In politics he gives his support to the candidates of the Republican party. He is a member of the Lutheran Church. He was married to Martha Sheffer. They were the parents of nine children, eight of whom grew to maturity: Clara, unmarried, resides at home; Lurena, also unmarried; M. Foster; Clarence L., a farmer of Middletown District (see his sketch); Ora; A. S., engaged in farming in Middletown District; Wilber M., and Lester R., both farmers; and Clifford, residing at home.

M. Foster Ahalt, son of Matthias S. and Martha (Sheffer) Ahalt, grew to manhood on the farm of his father. As a lad he attended the public schools of his native district. He has always followed agricultural pursuits. In 1905 he bought his present farm, which contains 150 acres of fine land. It is a well improved tract, with a good two-story brick dwelling house, and one of the best bank barns in the county, which is 120 feet long 50 feet wide and 20 feet in the square. This farm is under a high state of cultivation and yields large crops annually.

Mr. Ahalt was a Republican in his political beliefs, but he has never had any desire to hold public office. In religion he is affiliated with Zion's Lutheran Church of Middletown.

Mr. Ahalt was married January 23, 1900, to Jennie Shank, daughter of Lewis Shank, a farmer of Middletown Valley. They have five children: Martha S., Mary L., Leroy S., Bruce F., and Paul E.

DAVID P. OLAND, a prosperous farmer and business man of Licksville, Md., son of Frederick and Annie (Schaffer) Oland, both deceased, was born on a farm near Frederick, Md., February 12, 1857.

The late Frederick Oland, father of David P. Oland, a retired farmer residing near Frederick, Md., was born in Hanover, Germany, December 9, 1821. In 1830, when he was nine years of age, his parents brought him to America. They landed in Baltimore, Md., and settled in Frederick, where his father soon after died. Frederick Oland was educated in the public schools of Frederick, and learned shoemaking. After working at his trade successfully for some time, Mr. Oland began farming on rented land. He cultivated different farms among others the old Kunkle farm on which he spent fifteen years. While he was on this farm, he purchased, of Daniel Jones, a farm of 310 acres, at Furnace Ford, about thirteen miles southeast of Frederick. His son, Charles F. Oland, took charge of this farm, which Mr. Oland greatly improved. Mr. Oland afterwards bought the valuable property now owned by Parker Devilbiss, two and a-half miles west of Frederick. This place he improved in every way, and here he spent the remainder of his life. He was one of the enterprising and prosperous men of the county, and ascribed his success to the habits of industry and attention which he formed in childhod. Mr. Oland was a stanch Republican, and an honored citizen of the county. Frederick Oland was married to Annie, daughter of Peter Schaffer, whose father was wellknown among the older farmers of Frederick County. Their children are: 1, Frances (Mrs. John Karney), deceased; 2, Carlton E., deceased, a farmer of Montgomery County, Md.; 3, Alice E., married to Parker Devilbiss, a retired farmer residing near Frederick; 4, Lucretia, married to Edward Stull, a retired farmer of Tuscarora District, Frederick County; 5, Charles F., a farmer of Buckeystown District; 6, David P., of Licksville, Md.; 7, Jacob L., a farmer of Montgomery County; 8, Virginia, married to John A. Geesey, a retired farmer of Walkersville District, Frederick County. Mr. Oland was a member of the Lutheran Church and contributed liberally to benevolent objects. His wife, who was a kind, loving helpmate, was a member of the Reformed Church. Mr. Oland died at his home in Frederick County, March 30, 1908, and is buried in Mt. Olivet Cemetery. His wife is also at rest.

David P. Oland received his education in the public schools of Frederick, Md., and remained at home with his father until he married. After his marriage, he bought a steam threshing machine, and began business for himself. He enjoyed a monopoly of this business in the southern part of Frederick County, where his venture was made. He was so successful that he had five machines working at one time; three of them were the first machines of the kind in Maryland. Mr. Oland now bought a dwelling and a small tract of land at Licksville, where he has a fine machine shop. He also owns a saw-mill, and is engaged in packing hay. In all of these enterprises he has prospered, and does a large business in all parts of the county. He has added to his land from time to time, and owns 100 acres of fine farming land besides 25 acres of excellent timber land on Sugar Loaf Mountain. Mr. Oland is progressive in his methods of farming; has greatly increased the yield of his land, and has equipped his place with a comfortable two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn, and all the neccessary outbuildings. Hard work and constant care have brought their reward, and he is numbered among the successful business men of Frederick County, where he is highly esteemed. Mr. Oland is one of the leading Republicans of the county, and has been a member of the District Central Committee for a number of years. He has also served as supervisor of roads for a long time.

David P. Oland was married to Minnie E., daughter of Leander Stull, a retired farmer of Creagerstown District, Frederick County, Md. Their children are: 1, Fannie I., married to Harry Howard, a farmer of Ballinger District, Frederick County; 2, Lena, deceased; 3, Millie (Mrs. Charles Summers). Mrs. Oland died, and is buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Two years after his wife's death, Mr. Oland was married to Miss Kate, daughter of Joshua Doll. They have four children: 1, Ellen D., married to George Slifer, agent for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, at Knoxville, Md.; 2, Sharetts, at home; 3, Charles E., at home; 4, Olive O., at school. Mr. Oland is a member of the Lutheran Church at Doubs, Md., and is a generous contributor to church benevolence.

JOHN H. WRIGHT, who is numbered among the foremost business men and leading citizens of the village of Liberty, Frederick County, is a druggist. He is a native of that place, where he was born February 19, 1840. His parents were John A. and Julia (Danner) Wright.

John Wright, the grandfather of John H. Wright, was born in 1781. He emigrated from the north of Ireland to the United States, and took up his residence at Frederick City, Md. His occupation is not known. His death occurred July 26, 1850. Mr. Wright was married to Polly Talbot. They were the parents of five children; Lewis, Henry, Sarah, Ann Rebecca and John A.

John A. Wright, son of John and Polly (Talbot) Wright, was a native of Frederick City. He secured a common school education, and learned the trade of a tinner. He afterwards removed to Liberty, where he opened a tin shop in the west end of the town. He later changed his place of business to the east end. He was a successful business man. Here he died in 1849, being aged forty-three years. He was a Whig in politics. He was a member of the Roman Catholic Church. Mr. Wright was married to Julia Danner. She lived to be seventy-nine years old. They are both buried in the Catholic Cemetery at Liberty. They were the parents of the following children: William Henry, who died in Washington, D. C., was a dentist and was married to Ada Lloyd; Ann Rebecca, married Thomas Yingling, and died at Liberty; Sophia, died, aged twenty-one years; Margaret, the wife of Joseph F. Wagner, of Jackson, Ga.; John H., whose name heads this sketch; Joel D., who died at Liberty, was married to Kate Wagner; Julia A., has never married; Thomas, died at Liberty; and Lewis Clay, died in infancy.

John H. Wright, son of John A. and Julia (Danner) Wright, was but nine years old when his father died. He was then put to work and had but little opportunity for schooling. He began working on a farm at about two dollars a month, and was engaged at farm labor until he was twenty-six years old. He then learned the trade of brick-laying with a Mr. Baker, at Johnsville. This occupation he followed for ten years. Then, in partnership with a brother, he embarked in the grocery and liquor business at Liberty. This enterprise he was interested in for eleven years. Local option then took effect and he gave up the business. One year later Mr. Wright purchased his present property and turned his attention to drugs. He enjoys a large patronage and is one of the prominent business men of Liberty. He is highly esteemed by every one and by close application to his work has made a success of life.

Mr. Wright was married in 1872 to Loretto Knodle, of Boonsboro, Washington County, Md. There are four children by this marriage: Elmo, deceased; Raymond, of Baltimore, was married in Westminster, Md., September 2, 1908, to Caroline Knapp, of Baltimore; Isadore, died in 1907; and Clotilda, the wife of Russell Parcell, of the vicinity of Baltimore. Mrs. Wright who was a member of the Roman Catholic Church, died in December, 1909, while visiting at Pikesville, Md.

MILTON GEORGE URNER, one of the ables and most prominent members of the Frederick County Bar, who has been successfully identified with much litigation of an important character, was born on a farm in Liberty District, Frederick County, Md., July 29, 1839. He is a son of Samuel and Susanna (Norris) Urner.

The Urner family is one of ancient and honorable lineage, and originally was located in the canton of Uri, in Switzerland. Some members of the family left their native land and emigrated to America, settling in Chester County, Pa., where many of the name still reside. Jonas Urner went from Chester County to Maryland, and located upon a tract of land in what is now Carroll, but was then Frederick County. This farm was located on or near Sam's Creek, and here Mr. Urner died. Like his ancestors, he followed agricultural pursuits all his life. He was the father of ten children.

Samuel Urner, father of Milton G. Urner, was a native of Chester County, Pa., where he was born December 25, 1797, and he died in Frederick County, Md., in August, 1872. While yet a lad he accompanied his father to Frederick County, and spent his boyhood upon the farm on Sam's Creek. He, too, followed the occupation of a farmer, in which he achieved much well merited success. He operated a farm in Liberty District, where he spent most of his life. He was held in high esteem by all with whom he came in contact, and was well known in his day. He was a man of sound judgment and of more than ordinary intelligence and mental vigor. He lived a simple, unpretentious life, and enforced a wholesome parental discipline with religious care. Being a very industrious man himself, he enjoined habits of industry upon his children. Mr. Urner was twice married. His first wife was Elizabeth Snader, daughter of Jacob Snader, of Frederick County, by whom he was the father of two sons. Mr. Urner was married secondly to Susannah Norris, daughter of Amos Norris, a well known citizen of Frederick County. Mrs. Susannah Urner died in March, 1853. She was a woman of intelligence and earnest piety. She was widely known for her zealous activity in matters of benevolence and religion. She was a lady of rare domestic virtues, great force of character, and untiring devotion to the interests of her family and friends.

Milton George Urner passed his early life upon his father's farm, in Liberty District. He acquired his elementary education in the district schools, and Dickinson Seminary, located at Williamsport, Pa. He afterwards attended Freeland Seminary, Montgomery County, Pa. He passed the years of 1856 and 1857 at the latter institution, but by reason of poor health was compelled to relinquish his studies there while his course was yet uncompleted. He taught public school during the winters of three years, 1859-62. In 1862, he began the study of the law in the office of the Hon. Grayson Eichelberger, in Frederick City. Having completed his studies, he was admitted to the Frederick County Bar in October, 1863. He immediately entered upon the active practice of his profession in Frederick. In 1878, he formed a partnership with Edward S. Eichelberger, the son of his old preceptor. As a lawyer, Mr. Urner is entitled to high regard. He soon acquired a large and influential clientele, numbering among his clients many of the most important interests of the city and county. His legal ability is unquestioned and he has made his mark in the profession that he chose so aptly as his work in life. He has been identified with much litigation, and in every instance was noted for the skillful manner in which he safeguarded the interests of his clients. No lawyer in Frederick County ranks higher as a leader in legal circles than he.

In politics, Mr. Urner has been an active supporter and stanch adherent of the Republican party. He carries much influence in that party and his opinions are given much consideration in the party councils. In 1871, he was nominated as State's Attorney for Frederick County and elected by a majority of about five hundred. As State's Attorney he discharged his duties with much ability. In 1876 he was candidate for Presidential elector at large on the Republican ticket. In 1878 he was elected to the House of Representatives from the Sixth Congressional District of Maryland, his opponents being George Peter, Democrat, and Horace Resley, Greenbacker. While in the House, Mr. Urner served on the Committee on the Revision of Laws and on the Committee on Mines and Mining. As Congressman he cared for the interests of his constituents with marked fidelity. In 1880 he was re-elected to Congress and while a member of the 47th Congress was chairman of the Committee of Accounts and also a member of the Committee on the District of Columbia. In 1887, he was elected to the Maryland State Senate from Frederick County. In 1890, he was appointed by President Harrison as naval officer for the Port of Baltimore, and served in this capacity for four years.

In addition to his extensive law business and political interests, Mr. Urner has also been prominently associated with many public enterprises of his city and county. For thirty years he was a director of the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank of Frederick. He is a director in the Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Frederick County. He is a trustee of the Frederick Female Seminary. For a number of years he was a member of the board of trustees of Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa. For a long time he was actively and prominently engaged in the promotion of four of Frederick's building associations. Since 1888, he has been a member of the Board of Visitors of the Maryland Asylum for the Feeble Minded, located at Owing's Mills, Baltimore county, Md., and for some years was president of the board. He has been the local attorney for the Pennsylvania Railroad since 1887. In 1904, Mr. Urner was elected president of the First National Bank of Mount Airy, Md., which position he still retains.

In fraternal circles, Mr. Urner is a well-known Mason, being a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M. For forty-five years, he has been an active and consistent member of the Frederick Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a member of the church's board of trustees, has served as one of its stewards, and has been superintendent of the Sunday School continuously for thirty-nine years. In May, 1880, he was a delegate to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church which met at Cincinnati, and again in 1904 was a lay delegate to the General Conference of Los Angeles, California.

Mr. Urner was married January 10, 1866, to Laura A. Hammond, daughter of Dr. Richard T. Hammond, of Woodsboro, Frederick County, who was a well-known and able physician. They were the parents of ten children, six of whom are still living: Walter G., a resident of Washington, D. C.; Hammond, who was a prominent member of the Frederick County Bar, and a member of the law firm of Urner & Urner, and now Chief Judge of the 5th Judicial Circuit of Maryland and Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals; Milton G., Jr., also a member of the law firm of Urner & Urner; Laura Eugenia, who became the wife of Dr. William E. Gaver, a practicing physician of Mount Airy, Md.; J. Paul, a civil engineer, who is located in the Argentine Republic; and Helen Agnes, who is unmarried. The Hammond family, from which Mrs. Urner is descended, is old and highly respected. The first American ancestor came to America from England and settled near Annapolis, Md., subsequently locating among the early settlers in Frederick County. Mrs. Urner is a lady of rare accomplishments, and has some local fame as a poetess. She is also prominent in church work and giver liberally to those charities which appeal to her.

Mr. Urner is the owner of an extensive and highly valuable farm located near Mount Airy, Md., where he and his amiable wife spend most of their time in the summer season. He is an admirable type of the selfmade man, who has made his way in life through his own exertions and who owes his success entirely to his own abilities and energetic efforts. As a citizen he has always been public spirited, and his services in an official capacity have invariably proved of exceptional benefit to those whom he represented and served. Although he has passed his three score years and ten, he remains a perfect specimen of physical manhood, being hale and hearty, and retaining all his faculties in the fullest degree. His usefulness is not yet ended, and each year of his life he contributes to the work which he has so well wrought in the years that have gone.

HAMMOND URNER is a native of Frederick county, Md., where he was born December 4, 1868. He is a son of Milton G. and Laura A. (Hammond) Urner, of Frederick, Md. (For family history see sketch of Milton G. Urner.)

Judge Urner received his elementary education in the public schools of Frederick, and in Frederick City College. He afterwards entered Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., from which institution he was graduated with the degree of A. B., in 1890. He afterwards received the degree of Master of Arts. Returning to Frederick, he entered his father's office to continue the legal studies which he had commenced during his Collegiate course. Having completed his course, he was admitted to the Frederick County Bar in August, 1891. From the outset he evinced marked ability in the profession which he had chosen, and soon acquired a large practice.

In politics, Mr. Urner has been a Republican. He served as city attorney of Frederick City from 1898 to 1901. In the fall of 1907, he was the candidate of his party for attorney general of Maryland, and carried the county by the largest majority ever polled by a nominee. In 1909, he was nominated and elected chief judge of the Sixth Judicial Circuit of Maryland.

Judge Urner is identified with various institutions of the county. He is a director of the Farmers and Mechanics National Bank, of Frederick City, one of the leading institutions of its kind in the county. He is vice-president of the Young Men's Christian Association, is one of the trustees of the Frederick City Hospital, and is a trustee of Dickinson College. In fraternal circles, Mr. Urner is a member of Frederick City Lodge, No. 100, I. O. O. F., of Frederick; Mountain City Lodge No. 29, Knights of Pythias; and of the Modern Woodmen of America. In religion, he is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Hammond Urner was married, May 3, 1893, to Mary L., daughter of General Joseph W. Floyd, of South Carolina. They are the parents of four children: George Floyd, died March 25, 1903, aged nine years; Joseph Walker, born January 16, 1898; Francis Hammond, born February 23, 1900; and Martin Jonas, born November 16, 1903.

JOHN T. SHAFER, a prominent farmer of Buckeystown District, Frederick County, Md., son of Hamilton J. and Lydia (Koontz) Shafer, was born on the old Shafer homestead, near Burkittsville, Md., May 5, 1858.

The ancestors of the Shafer family, who were Germans, were among the first settlers of the Middletown Valley. Henry Shafer, grandfather of John T. Shafer, was born on his father's farm in the Middletown Valley where his whole life was spent. He was educated in the public schools of the district and remained on the homestead with his parents until after his marriage, when he began farming for himself. Mr. Shafer was one of the wealthiest and most prosperous men of his day and was considered the best farmer in the valley. He owned three fine farms in the valley, on one of which his son Hamilton J. Shafer, now resides, and 85 acres of valuable timber land on the South Mountain. Mr. Shafer was a Republican and was respected and honored in the county. Henry Shafer was married to Miss Willard. Their children are: 1, Alexis, deceased; 2, Rebecca, deceased, married to the late Samuel Grove, a farmer of the Middletown Valley; 3, Martin, deceased; 4, Peter, living, a farmer of Burkittsville District, Frederick County; 5, Caroline, deceased, married to the late Daniel Gaver, of Burkittsville; 6, Hamilton J.; 7, Albenia, widow of Daniel Biser, of Frederick City, Md.; 8, E. T., a farmer of Burkittsville District, deceased; 9, Henrietta, widow of Thomas Biser, of Burkittsville. Mr. Shafer and his family were members of the Reformed Church. He was an active worker in the congregation and a liberal contributor.

Mr. Shafer's father, Hamilton J. Shafer, was born on the old Shafer homestead, in 1834. He was educated in the public schools of the District, and remained at home, assisting his father until he married, when he began farming on the place on which he resides, then owned by his father. He was successful in farming and, after his father's death, bought the place consisting of 210 acres of excellent land. He improved his property, putting up a convenient two-story dwelling, a bank barn, and the necessary outbuildings. By scientific farming, he brought the land to a high state of cultivation and made his property one of the most valuable in the Middletown Valley. He is one of the prominent farmers of the Middletown Valley, and one of the oldest farmers in the district. Mr. Shafer retired from farming in 1908, but still resides on his farm. He is a stanch Republican. Hamilton J. Shafer was married to Lydia, daughter of John Koontz, a well-known farmer of Burkittsville District. Their children are: 1, Sarah, unmarried, at home; 2, Delphina, married to William Z. Main, postmaster of Knoxville, Md.; 3, John T.; 4, Hamilton W., a farmer and dealer in grain, in Burkittsville District, Frederick County; 5, Thomas K., rural mail carrier of the district; 6, Harry B., master machinist for the Bryn & Stratton Construction Company, of Ohio. Mrs. Shafer, deceased, is buried in Burkittsville. Four years after her death, Mr. Shafer was married to Eliza, daughter of John Maught. Of their three children, two are living: Franklin, a farmer; and Mary, at home. Mr. Shafer is a member of the Lutheran Church in Burkittsville. He is an active worker and a liberal contributor to the church and has served the congregation as deacon and as elder.

John T. Shafer attended the public schools of his native district, and completed his education at Frederick College. He remained at home, assisting his father, until he reached his thirty-sixth year, when he bought the farm on which he resides, then owned by John B. Thomas. His home, which consists of 156 acres of arable land, is beautifully situated eleven miles south of Frederick, on the New Design road. The place is furnished with a comfortable two-story brick dwelling, a large bank barn, wagon and machine sheds, and all the usual farm buildings. Mr. Shafer has made his farm one of the finest on Carroll's Manor. The land is highly cultivated and produces heavy crops of the best quality, under his careful and attentive supervision. Mr. Shafer is one of the leading Republicans of the district.

John T. Shafer was married to Mary M., daughter of Robert and Jennie (Eader) Rannesberger, whose father is a retired farmer living at Doubs, Md. Their children are: Virginia; Mary R.; Hellen R.; and John T., Jr., all at home. Mr. Shafer and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church at Doubs. He is an active worker and a generous contributor, and greatly assisted in the rebuilding of the church edifice. He has been a deacon, and is now an elder of the congregation.

JOHN W. LEATHERMAN, a successful and well-known agriculturist of Middletown District, residing two and a-half miles northwest of Middletown, on the Mount Tabor road, was born February 14, 1858. He is a son of Peter and Julia (Bowlus) Leatherman.

Daniel Leatherman was the ancestor of the family in America. He was a native of Germany, and emigrated to this country. He settled at Germantown, Pa., and was a member of the German Baptist Church. He was the father of Peter Leatherman. The latter was a minister of the German Baptist Church, and was married to Annie Swigard, by whom he had, among others, Jacob. Jacob Leatherman was also a minister in the German Baptist Church. His wife was Miss Catharine Harp, by whom he had six children: George, Mary, Peter, Elizabeth, Jacob, and John, drowned in childhood.

Peter Leatherman, son of Jacob and Catharine (Harp) Leatherman, was born October 27, 1831, and died December 27, 1905. He spent his entire life in the occupation of a farmer. In his day he was one of the large land owners of the district, at one time being the possessor of four fine farms. The old homestead contains 106 acres, upon which his widow still resides. In politics, he voted the Republican ticket. In religion, like his forebears, he was a member of the German Baptist Church. Mr. Leatherman was married January 20, 1853, to Julia A. Bowlus, daughter of Adam and Magdalena (Crone) Bowlus, a member of one of the old families of the valley. She was born August 1, 1833. They were the parents of four children: Laura Ellen, the wife of James K. Waters; William H., a retired farmer; John W.; and Anna Mary, the wife of Elmer Shank.

John W. Leatherman, son of Peter and Julia A. (Bowlus) Leatherman, was reared on his father's farm, received his education in the public schools of the neighborhood, and has followed agricultural pursuits all of his life. He is the owner of a good farm of 112 acres, upon which is a four-story stone dwelling house, containing nine rooms. This farm is situated about a quarter of a mile from an electric railroad, and is under a high state of cultivation. Mr. Leatherman is a practical and progressive farmer, and has been very successful in the management of his farm. He is among the esteemed and prosperous farmers of the district. In politics, he is an adherent of the Republican party. In religion, he is affiliated with the German Baptist Church.

Mr. Leatherman was married December 29, 1878, to Flora E. Gaver, daughter of Elias and Henrietta E. (Shebbitts) Gaver, of Frederick County. There were four children by this marriage: Della I., died in infancy; Floyd, married Anna K. CHARLES C. MAUGHT, retired farmer of Burkittsville District, son of Andrew C. H. and Mary A. R. (Long) Maught, resides on the homestead, "Happy Home," where he was born March 16, 1854, and where he has spent his whole life.

The Maught family came from Hesse Cassel or Hesse Darmstadt, Germany. Mr. Maught's great-grandfather, John Maught, was one of the Hessian soldiers brought to America during the Revolutionary War. He was taken prisoner at Yorktown, Va., and with other captives was marched to Fredericktown, Md. He was a weaver, and at the close of hostilities made his way into Middletown Valley and began working at his trade. He married, in Middletown Valley, and had these children: 1, John, grandfather of Charles C. Maught; 2, Samuel; 3, Daniel; 4, William; 5, Henry; 6, Mary Ann; 7, Katy.

Andrew C. H. Maught, father of Charles C. Maught, was born on the farm near Burkittsville, formerly the Claggett place, now the property of D. V. Stouffer. He attended the schools of the district, and spent his life on the farm now owned by his son, Charles, which he had received from his father. Andrew Maught was a prominent and influential man in his district. He was a life-long Democrat, active in public affairs, and always interested in the success of the party. Andrew C. H. Maught was married to Mary A. R., daughter of Christopher and Betsy F. (Easter) Long, of Jefferson district. Their children are: 1, John, deceased, married Florence Horine, has one child, John A. E. H., in the U. S. A. revenue service in Texas; 2, Charles C. Mr. Maught was a member of the Lutheran Church in Jefferson, in which he filled the office of elder. Andrew Maught died at the homestead, July 12, 1892; his wife is also at rest. Both are interred in the Lutheran Cemetery at Jefferson, Md.

Charles C. Maught began school at Broad Run under Louis Cochran, and completed his education in the different schools of the district. As soon as he was tall enough to reach the plow handles, he was put to work in the fields, and has spent his whole life in the cultivation of the soil. With the exception of one year which he spent in Poolsville, Montgomery County, Md., Mr. Maught remained on the farm working for his father until 1881, when he rented the place which he purchased in 1903. "Happy Home," a farm of 226 acres, is situated in Burkittsville District, on the road leading to Harper's Ferry. The greater part of the land is under cultivation and, in point of production, ranks among the best in the neighborhood. The home was built by his father in 1872, it is two and a-half stories in height, with an L, built of red brick, and is one of the comfortable and substantial homes of the community. The barn, also built by his father, is 105 feet by 44, and was erected in 1868. Mr. Maught is a successful farmer and an influential citizen. He is a Democrat, interested in the success of the party, and in all that concerns the good of the community.

Charles C. Maught was married by the Rev. J. H. Turner, a minister of the Lutheran Church, on January 20, 1880, to Julia K., daughter of Captain Stephen R. and Ann Caroline (Remsburg) Bowlus. Their children are: 1, Mayme, married E. E. Guynton, who now farms the homestead; has two children, Velma and Julia Loretta; 2, Roy, a farmer in Jefferson District, married Julia E. Boyer; 3, E. Maud, at home. Mr. Maught was brought up in the Lutheran faith; his wife is a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Jefferson, Md. Mrs. Maught's father was captain of a company of militia raised in Middletown before the Civil War.

JOHN H. WHITMORE, a prosperous and prominent farmer of Lewistown District, Frederick County, was born June 7, 1855, on the old Whitmore homestead in Creagerstown District. He is a son of David and Martha M. (Hospilhorn) Whitmore.

The grandfather of John H. Whitmore was Henry Whitmore. He removed from Pennsylvania to Frederick County, Md., where he bought a tract of 100 acres of farm and timber land in Creagerstown District. On this place he lived until his death. He was one of the early settlers of that section and was a prominent man in his day. Mr. Whitmore was married to Solomo Fundeburg. They were the parents of two children, one of whom died young, and the other was named David.

David Whitmore, son of Henry and Solomo (Fundeburg) Whitmore, was born on the farm of his father, February 16, 1812, and died in 1877. In the public schools of the county he received his education. He lived at home and assisted his father in the work of the place until the latter retired. Mr. Whitmore then cultivated the farm for his parents until they died. He inherited the estate, being the only living child, and he was engaged in farming here the remainder of his days. He improved the place and was highly successful at agriculture, owning another tract besides the home place. He was a man of excellent character. In politics, Mr. Whitmore was allied with the Democracy. He held membership in the German Baptist Church at Rocky Ridge in Creagerstown District. Mr. Whitmore was married to Martha M. Hospilhorn, daughter of Henry Hospilhorn. They were the parents of four children: John H., our subject; Daniel J., of Johnsville District; Mary C., of Creagerstown District; and Pheba A., the wife of George F. Stotlemyer, who resides on the old homestead in Creagerstown District.

John H. Whitmore, son of David and Martha M. (Hospilhorn) Whitmore, was the recipient of a public school education and has followed agricultural pursuits his entire life. He was reared on the farm on which he was born. After his father's death in 1877, he cultivated the place for his mother for four years. In 1882, he removed to the other farm his father had owned, consisting of 100 acres in Lewistown District. He farmed this on shares until 1890, when he purchased it. There was a substantial stone house on the tract, which Mr. Whitmore remodeled, and a bank barn. It is one of the most fertile farms in the district and yields large crops annually. The dwelling house was erected in 1826, and is in excellent condition. Mr. Whitmore is also the owner of another farm, adjoining the one on which he resides.

In politics, Mr. Whitmore supports the policies of the Democratic party. He is a stockholder in the Woodsboro Canning Factory. In religion, he is a member of the German Baptist Church.

Mr. Whitmore was married to Sarah E. Smith, daughter of Ezra and Rebecca (Feiser) Smith. They are the parents of seven children: Harvey V., of Creagerstown District; Calvin E.; Bruce C., a teacher in the public schools; Spencer J. H.; Charles N.; Stiner M.; and Helen R. Mrs. Whitmore holds membership in the Rocky Ridge German Baptist Church.

THOMAS CHALMERS HARBAUGH, youngest son of Morgan M. and Caroline (Routson) Harbaugh, was born in Middletown, Frederick County, Md., January 13th, 1849. When the subject of this sketch was two years old his parents moved to Ohio and settled at Casstown, that state, where the family has since resided. Thomas received but a country schooling, extending over several years, and in 1864 became deputy postmaster of the village under his father.

In 1867 Mr. Harbaugh published his first short story, the success of which induced him to adopt literature as a profession. As early as 1862, however, he contributed poems to the county press. Since 1870 his contributions to the literary journals of the country have been numerous. For twenty years he was on the staff of Beadle & Adams, of New York, and wrote over one hundred novels for that firm. He also wrote many for the Munro Publishing House and various publishers of light and historical fiction.

Many of Mr. Harbaugh's stories have run through several editions, among them being "The White Squadron," "The Boy Spy of '76," "The Czar's Foe." David McKay, publisher, Philadelphia, has just brought out some of Mr. Harbaugh's stories in fine binding. At present he is a contributor in prose (serials) to the "Chicago Ledger" and other publications. He is also writing a series of stories and legends of Middletown Valley, Md., for "The Valley

Register" of this (Frederick) County.

In poetry Mr. Harbaugh's work has been great. In 1885 he published a successful volume of poems under the title of "Maple Leaves" which ran through several editions. His poem "Grant Dying," is found in "Stedman's Library of American Literature," and received the approval of the best literary critics of the day. His later volumes of verse are: "Bugle Notes of the Blue," and "Lyrics of the Gray."

Mr. Harbaugh is a tireless worker at the literary desk. He has at different times contributed to nearly all the prominent newspapers and magazines of the country. He has visited many places in search of material and has journeyed to almost every battlefield within the borders of the United States. He is in demand on Memorial Day and at soldier reunions where he recites his martial poems. In 1909 he compiled a history of Miami County, Ohio, a work of 900 pages, besides keeping up his regular output of poetry and prose. Once a year he visits Middletown Valley, this State, the scene of his birth, and spends a few days at the old home.

The subject of this sketch is now preparing for publication some of his own articles under the caption of "Middletown Valley in Song and Story." He has served continuously for thirteen years as Secretary of the Maryland Association of Ohio, one of the most prominent associations of the country. Mr. Harbaugh is not married and resides with his brother at Casstown, Ohio.

R. SCOTT DERR, a leading resident of Ballinger District, Frederick County, where he is held in high esteem, was born on the old Derr homestead, August 23, 1852. His parents were David and Sarah A. (Smith) Derr, both deceased.

John Derr, the grandfather of R. Scott Derr, was a leading citizen of Middletown Valley, Frederick County, in his day. He was descended from German forebears, who had settled in Pennsylvania. He came from that State to Maryland, and located in the Middletown Valley. He followed agriculture his entire life. At the time of his death he was the owner of two fine farms in that section of the county. He was held in high regard in the community in which he lived. Mr. Derr was married to a Miss Haupt. They were the parents of seven children, the eldest son being David.

David Derr, son of John Derr, was born in Middletown Valley, May 25, 1817, and died April 5, 1884. He secured his education in the common schools and remained with his father until he was twenty-four years old. He then rented the home farm from his father, and cultivated this until the latter's death in 1848. He then bought a farm of 154 acres, now owned by his son, from William Smith. This place lies two miles southwest of Frederick on the Frederick and Jefferson turnpike, and he continued to farm here until 1875, in which year he retired. Mr. Derr then erected a two-story frame house on what was known as the old toll-gate property, along the Frederick and Jefferson turnpike, and there passed the rest of his days. This piece of realty is now owned by one of his daughters, Mrs. Cephas H. Zimmerman. Mr. Derr was also the possessor of another farm, now owned by his son, R. Scott. He was a prominent citizen and possessed the esteem of all who knew him. He was one of the charter members of the Frederick and Jefferson Turnpike Company and was a director of the concern for a number of years. In politics, he was a loyal Republican. Religiously, he was an active worker and influential member of the Lutheran Church at Middletown, in which he filled the offices of deacon and elder for a number of years. He was also superintendent of the Mount Zion Sunday School. Mr. Derr was married to Sarah A. Smith, daughter of Captain John and Mary (Koogle) Smith. They were the parents of nine children, five of whom grew to maturity: Laura J., the wife of Joshua Doubt, of Middletown; C. Edward; R. Scott; Johanna M., the wife of L. C. Smith, of San Jose, Cal.; Ella C., the wife of Cephas H. Zimmerman, of Ballinger district. Mrs. Derr held membership in the Reformed Church at Middletown. After her husband's death, she resided at the toll-gate property until she also died in March, 1892. They are both interred in the Mount Olivet Cemetery, at Frederick.

R. Scott Derr, son of David and Sarah A. (Smith) Derr, was the recipient of a public school education. He spent his early years on the home farm and after reaching manhood chose farming as his life's work. He farmed for his father for ten years. At the death of his parent, he purchased from the estate his present farm of 118 acres of fine agricultural land, situated three miles southwest of Frederick, on the Frederick and Jefferson turnpike. He has improved this place by the erection of a two-story dwelling and new barn. This is considered one of the most valuable and fertile tracts in the district. Mr. Derr uses intelligent methods in his cultivation of the farm and receives large returns for his labors. He is the owner of a fine piece of timber land in Catoctin Mountain. He is a stockholder in the Frederick and Jefferson Turnpike Company. He is a man of high character and is one of the highly respected citizens of the county.

In county politics, Mr. Derr has always played an active part. He is a stanch supporter of the principles of the Republican party. He also takes much interest in religious affairs. He is a consistent members of St. Luke's Lutheran Church of Feagaville, in which he serves in official capacities, acting as an elder and as superintendent of the Sunday School. The latter position he has held for a number of years.

Mr. Derr was married to Sarah C. Leatherman, daughter of George and Rebecca E. (Johnson) Leatherman, a member of a prominent family of the Middletown Valley. There are four children by this marriage: Elmer S., of Feagaville; John C., of Ballinger district; Mary E. and Roy D., both at home.

S. ELMER BROWN, a member of the well-known firm of Wilcoxon & Brown, is a native of Clinton county, Pa., where he was born September 11, 1862. He is a son of Samuel H. and Sarah J. (Horner) Brown.

Samuel H. Brown, the father of S. Elmer Brown, was a native of Clinton County, Pa., and died in Frederick County, Md., in 1901. He was the son of James Brown, who was a native of Virginia. Samuel H. Brown was a major in the Pennsylvania militia previous to the Civil War. At the outbreak of the rebellion, he raised a company and was appointed captain of Company C, 137th Pa. Vols., serving until this command was mustered out, June 1, 1863. His company was a part of the Army of the Potomac, and served in numerous engagements, including the battles of Chancellorsville and Antietam. It was while serving in the army that Captain Brown first became impressed with Frederick County. In 1873 he removed from Pennsylvania and located on a farm near Frederick. Here he remained for ten years, when he removed to Frederick, where he resided until his death. He was widely known and was an honorable and highly esteemed citizen. Mr. Brown was married to Sarah J. Horner. They were both active and consistent members of the Presbyterian Church. They were the parents of one son, S. Elmer.

S. Elmer Brown, son of Major Samuel H. and Sarah J. (Horner) Brown, was eleven years of age when his parents removed from Pennsylvania to Frederick County. He received his education in the public schools of his native State and Frederick County, and later attended the Frederick City College. After leaving school, he followed the occupation of a farmer for five years, until he was twenty-eight years of age. He then became a member of the firm of Wilcoxon & Brown, lumber dealers. Upon the death of his father-in-law, Andrew J. Wilcoxon, in 1893, the firm has since continued with his brother-in-law, George E. Wilcoxon, as his partner. The firm deals in lumber and building material and is engaged in the manufacture of sashes, doors and blinds. It is the oldest established business of its kind in Western Maryland. It has met with success and has won a foremost place in its own special branch of industry. To Mr. Brown's ability is due much of the prosperity and prestige attained by the enterprise, and he commands the respect and confidence of business and financial circles generally. He is identified with the lumber business in that part of the state. He is well-known and highly esteemed in Frederick County, and is a public spirited citizen, always ready to do his share towards promoting the welfare of the community.

In politics, Mr. Brown is an active member of the Republican party, and served as a member of the Board of Aldermen of Frederick City from 1898 to 1901. He is prominent in fraternal circles, being a predominating spirit and active member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M.; Enoch Chapter, No. 23, Royal Arch Masons; Enoch Council, No. 10, Royal and Select Masters; Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias; Order of Maccabees; and the Sons of Veterans. He is affiliated in a religious way with the Presbyterian Church, of which he is an active and consistent member, and in which he fills the office of elder. He is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Mr. Brown was married in 1885 to Clara Wilcoxon, a daughter of Andrew J. and Anna Mary (Getzendanner) Wilcoxon, of Frederick City. This union has had issue, three children: C. Jane, Anna W., and Samuel E.

Jacob E. Zimmerman, son of John Nicholas Zimmerman, was born in 1801. The paper mills established by his father near what is now Yellow Springs came into his possession. The paper which he manufactured was hauled to Baltimore in wagons. He was very successful in this undertaking. He was also the owner of a fine farm. Mr. Zimmerman was married to Barbara Stull. They were the parents of Edward Joshua Zimmerman.

Edward Joshua Zimmerman, son of Jacob E. and Barbara (Stull) Zimmerman, was born September 12, 1830, and died January 4, 1907. He attended the public school at Bethel in Tuscarora District, and was reared on the home farm. He began life for himself by purchasing, when he was twenty-four years old, a small piece of land, upon which he built a two-story frame dwelling and a barn. Here he farmed for eighteen years. This place is situated about seven miles northwest of Frederick, and is now owned by his nephew. Mr. Zimmerman some time later bought the old homestead of 102 acres from his father. This place is in Tuscarora district and is an excellent farm. In 1875, Mr. Zimmerman disposed of his small tract to his brother, Cornelius. In 1899, he retired from agriculture and sold his 102-acre farm to his son, Edward. Mr. Zimmerman then went to live with his son, Marshall,, with whom he remained until his death. Mr. Zimmerman was a self-made man and rose from poor circumstances to a position of affluence. Politically, he voted the Democratic ticket, and was a trustee in the public school at Bethel. In religious affairs, he was a member of the Evangelical Reformed Church at Charlesville, in which he filled the office of elder for a number of years. He was an active church worker and was also superintendent of the Sunday school for a long time. Mr. Zimmerman was married to Mary Ann Wachter, daughter of Philip and Annie M. (Widrick) Wachter. They were the parents of five children: Franklin N., of Frederick City; Clara E., the wife of Milton Wachter, of Lewistown District; Edward J.; William M., of Frederick City; and Marshall L. Mrs. Edward J. Zimmerman was connected with the Evangelical Lutheran Church at Bethel.

Marshall L. Zimmerman, son of Edward Joshua and Mary Ann (Wachter) Zimmerman, was educated in the public schools of Tuscarora District, and has been engaged in agricultural pursuits his entire life. He was raised to maturity on the home farm. When he was twenty-four years old, he took charge of the father's farm, the latter retiring at this time. This farm Mr. Zimmerman cultivated for thirteen years, when he bought his present home of 140 acres of excellent land from his brother, William Zimmerman, one-fourth mile south of Bethel Station of the Frederick railroad. This is one of the best farms in Tuscarora District and is well improved with a fine house, barn and necessary outbuildings. Politically, Mr. Zimmerman is a Democrat. He holds membership in Zion Reformed Church at Charlesville, in which he has served in the capacity of deacon for a long period and at present is elder, and in which he has been superintendent of the Sunday School for a number of years. He has held the office of register and judge of elections of his district.

Mr. Zimmerman was married to Emma V. Easterday, by whom he has six children: Ralph L., Austin E., Bertha M., Ethel M., Ross J.; Albert J. Mrs. Zimmerman is a member of the Bethel Evangelical Lutheran Church, and is a most estimable lady.

B. FRANK DOLL, junior member of the well-known firm of Doll & Doll, of Frederick City, Md., was born July 10, 1882, in Buckeystown District, and is one of the leading young business men of the place. He is a son of Alexander H. and Emma E. (Duvall) Doll.

Alexander H. Doll was born in Ellicott City, Howard County, Md., June 2, 1850. He is a son of Joshua and Ellen (Hood) Doll, both deceased. He was the recipient of a public school education. He began life by taking up farming on a tract at Greenfield Mills, and remained there for four years. He then removed to Thomas A. Smith's farm, near Urbana, upon which place he was engaged in agricultural pursuits for a period of twenty-five years. A few years ago, Mr. Doll gave up farming and removed to Frederick City. Later he formed a partnership with his son, B. Frank, and embarked in the livery business. Politically, he is a Republican. Mr. Doll was married to Emma E. Duvall, daughter of Benjamin and Annie Duvall, of Buckeystown, Frederick County. There were four children by this marriage: Margaret E., deceased; B. Frank; J. Hood, of Kilbourn, Wis.; and Harry, who is deceased.

B. Frank Doll, son of Alexander H. and Emma E. (Duvall) Doll, attended the normal school at Buckeystown, Frederick County. When he was eighteen years old he left home to make his own livelihood. His first position was as time-keeper for the Standard Lime and Stone Company, of Bakerton, West Va. With this firm he remained for about two years and a-half, when he accepted the position of superintendent of the quarries near Charlestown, West Va., owned by the Coal & Coke Railway Company. He filled this place for two years and a-half. Mr. Doll then became superintendent of the concrete bridge work of the Bates & Rogers Construction Company, of Chicago, Ill. This position he was engaged in for about three years, after which he returned to Frederick City. In the spring of 1907, in partnership with his father, he purchased the livery business of George E. Myers, with stables between Second and Third streets, in Frederick. This establishment is known as the old Zacharias stables and is one of the oldest liveries in the city. He has been very successful in this undertaking and the firm of Doll & Doll does a large business in their own field.

Mr. Doll is a supporter of the principles of the Republican party.

J. FREDERICK PUTMAN, a well-known business man of Frederick City, who is the senior member of the firm of Putman Miller Company, who carry on a general merchandise business, was born in Creagerstown District, Frederick County, May 5, 1863. He is a son of John J., Jr., and Rebecca (Shriver) Putman.

John J. Putman, Sr., the grandfather of our subject, was among the well known and prominent farmers of the Middletown Valley, Frederick County. He lived near what is now Harmony. His parents were of German birth and came to America, going to live in Middletown Valley, where he was reared and became a highly respected citizen. His wife was Annie E. Summers, by whom he had six children that grew to mature years: Malinda, the wife of Henry Coblentz, a farmer of Middletown District; Samuel, followed farming in Woodsboro District and is now deceased; John J., Jr.; Annie E., the deceased wife of the late Leander Stull, of Creagerstown District; Julia, married Lewis P. Ramsburg, of Walkersville, both deceased; and Hezekiah, deceased, of Frederick City. In religion, the family were members of the Lutheran Church.

John J. Putman, Jr., son of John J. and Annie E. (Summers) Putman, received a common school education and was engaged in rural pursuits all his life. He began for himself by cultivating one of his father's farms in Creagerstown District, now owned by A. J. Hankey. This place he successfully managed for some time, and then purchased it. It contained 145 acres of good farm land, and was located about one mile south of Creagerstown. He later disposed of this tract and bought a fine farm near Utica, whither he removed. This property he also sold, and returned to the home farm in Middletown Valley, where he stayed until his parents died. Mr. Putman then bought the McDaniel farm, on the Utica road, in Creagerstown district. This farm he later sold to his son, J. Frederick, and it is now owned by H. L. Gaver. Mr. Putman then went to live on the M. J. Grove farm in Buckeystown District, and remained there six years. He then made sale and later secured by purchase a small tract in Lewistown District, which is now owned by his daughter. The remainder of his days was spent here. His death occurred in October, 1907, and he was buried in the Lutheran Cemetery at Utica. In politics, Mr. Putman was stanch in his support of the Democracy. He was a member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Utica, in which he held office for a number of years. Mr. Putman was married to Rebecca Shriver. By this marriage, there were twelve children, eleven of whom grew up: John J., of Tuscarora District; Greenberry H., a farmer of Frederick District; Annie E., widow of John Warner, and now the wife of Cornelius Derr, of Lewistown District; Elmer E., a resident of Cripple Creek, Col.; J. Frederick; Laura C., married Henry Black, deceased, of Buckeystown District; Julia M., married to George O'Neil, a farmer of Middletown District; Minnie, deceased; Lewis W., engaged in agriculture in Frederick District;

Calvin L., farmer in Lewistown District; Dessie E., the wife of William E. Miller, a merchant of Frederick.

J. Frederick Putman, son of John J. and Rebecca (Shriver) Putman, was the recipient of a common school education. He was engaged in farming until 1906, when he retired to Frederick City. He lived at home until he was twenty-seven years old, when he took charge of a farm owned by a brother in Creagerstown District, now part of the Stull estate. Here he remained for a few years and then bought the home place from his father. He improved the property and stayed here for six years. He then sold this place and bought the fine farm of the late Lewis Cramer, situated a mile and a-half west of Frederick, on the Shookstown turnpike. For three years he was located here, and, having disposed of this place, bought the Gorman farm on the Montevue pike. After two years spent here his brother, Greenberry H., purchased the place from him. The various farms which came into his possession were improved by Mr. Putman and he achieved much success in his real estate deals. He owes his success in this respect to good judgment and a natural business ability. He purchased a fine home in Dill avenue, in Frederick, which is one of the finest homes in that neighborhood. In the spring of 1909, Mr. Putman engaged in the mercantile business with William E. Miller, under the firm name of the Putman Miller Company. The store of this concern is well stocked, and is located in North Market street. The firm does a large business and ranks well among similar establishments of the city.

Politically, Mr. Putman is a Democrat. Fraternally, he is a member of Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, of the Junior Order United American Mechanics, and of the Modern Woodmen, all of Frederick. He is connected with St. John's Lutheran Church of Creagerstown.

Mr. Putman was married to Martha N. Zimmerman, daughter of Jackson and Mary (Firstone) Zimmerman, prominent residents of Tuscarora District. Mrs. Putman holds membership in the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Utica. There is one son by this marriage, Robert E. L., who lives at home.

JOSEPH HENRY APPLE, JR., was born at Rimersburg, Pa., August 4, 1865, at the Clarion Collegiate Institute, of which his father, Rev. Joseph H. Apple, D. D., was for many years principal. His mother was Elizabeth Ann Geiger.

Rev. Joseph H. Apple, D. D., was a prominent minister in the Reformed Church, and a noted educator. After giving up the work of teaching, he was pastor of the Reformed Church in the little town of Sagerstown, Pa., until his retirement in 1891, and where his death occurred in 1902. Two of his brothers were talented ministers in the Reformed Church in the United States and teachers of marked ability: Rev. Thomas G. Apple, D. D., LL. D., was professor of Church History in the Theological Seminary, Lancaster, Pa., and president of Franklin and Marshall College, and Rev. Theodore Apple, D. D., was professor of mathematics and Astronomy in the latter institution.

Rev. Joseph H. Apple was married to Elizabeth Ann Geiger, of Manchester, Md. She was a daughter of Rev. Jacob Geiger, who in addition to the pastorate of a large charge in the Reformed Churches of that region, was the first homeopathic physician to practice in the State of Maryland. Of the descendants of "Father Geiger," as he was familiarly known by his large circle of patients and parishioners, ten have been homeopathic physicians. Of the children of Rev. Joseph H. and Elizabeth Ann (Geiger) Apple, Rev. A. T. G. Apple was for twenty-three years a pastor in the Reformed Church, but during most of that time he carried on very careful observations and experiments in amateur astronomy and photography, and in 1907 was elected professor of astronomy and director of the Daniel Scholl Observatory at Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa. Charles A., the second son, is engaged in the insurance business at Mauch Chunk, Pa., and Jacob G. is a watchmaker and jeweller at the old family home in Saegertown, Pa. A daughter, Elizabeth, who died in 1896, at the age of twenty-seven was a teacher for a number of years.

The earliest associations of Joseph Henry Apple, Jr., were with school surroundings, and coming of a family of teachers it was natural that his own talents should have been directed into the same channel when the choice of a life work confronted him. His early education was obtained in the public schools, after which he prepared for college at Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., and Palatinate College, Myerstown, Pa., entering the sophomore year at Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa., and graduating at the head of his class in 1885. His boyhod was spent in Saegertown, Pa., where his father lived for many years. Joseph was the youngest of four sons and with his brothers was always interested in athletics, such as baseball, boating, bicycling, swimming, skating and the like; also in music, having early organized among their companions a military band, and he himself being for a number of years afterward a member of the excellent brass band organized in the community about that time. In the reorganization of the National Guard of Pennsylvania in 1880, Mr. Apple became a member of Company H, 16th Regiment, N. G. P., of which he was appointed first sergeant a few years later. After leaving college, he re-enlisted in Company D, 15th Regiment, of Clarion, Pa., receiving an honorable discharge in 1890, after ten years of continuous service.

Upon graduation in 1885, Mr. Apple was elected principal of the High School at St. Petersburg, Pa., and two years later was chosen professor of mathematics at the newly organized State Normal School at Clarion, Pa. Here he continued, along with his teaching, an active interest in the athletics and music of the institution, and was made instructor in military tactics. In 1891, he resigned to accept a similar position in the Central High School, Pittsburg, Pa. Here he combined with other members of the faculty in stimulating the gymnastics and athletics of the school, and was given charge of the singing and chorus training. In 1893 he was called to the presidency of the newly organized Woman's College of Frederick, Md., and resigned his position in the High School to undertake the arduous task of building a new college. While in Pittsburg he had become popular with students, fellow teachers and directors, his salary having twice been materially increased within two years, and it was with considerable regret that he felt himself impelled to leave to take up his new work.

In his new work Professor Apple has been most successful. In recounting the growth and progress of the College, a local writer in a recently published history of Frederick sums up a very complimentary description by saying: "It is only just to attribute this sturdy progress to the ability and endeavors of the president, who has so identified himself with the growth of the college that it in large measure reflects his capabilities and live energy."

Professor Apple has never been active either as a club man or as a politician. Since his college days, however, he has maintained his connection with the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, and following the example of his ancestors he has usually voted the Republican ticket. He is an active member and participant in the annual meetings of the Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools of the Middle States and Maryland; also a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, of the Religious Education Association, and of the National Education Association. His Alma Mater conferred on him in course the degree of Master of Arts and elected him to membership in the Phi Beta Kappa Society.

The interest of Professor Apple in education extends beyond that of merely so-called "higher education," and he has been much in demand in recent years as an instructor in Teachers' Institutes and as a speaker on academic occasions. He maintains an active interest in all helpful and unlifting influences in the community. In 1906 he was made chairman of the building campaign committee of the Young Men's Christian Association of Frederick, and aided actively in raising the $65,000 expended on the fine new building dedicated by the Association, January 1, 1908. Since that time he has been president of the local association and a member of the Interstate Executive Committee. He has been secretary of the Local Center of the University Extension Society since 1900; an active member and at times an officer of the Frederick Choral Society during the same period; and one of the vice-presidents of the Frederick Branch of the Maryland Society for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis.

In church work Professor Apple has been active since boyhood, and though never having studied theology he was licensed to preach by the Maryland Classis in 1894, and since that time has been almost constantly in demand for public services and addresses before church bodies. In December, 1908, he was chosen chairman of the Executive Committee of the Laymen's Missionary Movement of his church and in March, 1909, presided over the large convention of laymen that assembled for three days in Harrisburg, Pa. Since that time he has given such energy and attention as were possible to directing the movement and speaking on its important phases. In his active and varied career, he has had the sympathetic support and assistance of his second wife, who, graduating from Oxford College, Oxford, O., and being a teacher before her marriage, is by taste and training admirably equipped to be a helpmeet for him.

Professor Apple has been twice married. In December, 1892, he was married to Mary E. Rankin, of Clarion, Pa. In 1896, she died after a lingering illness, leaving two children: Miriam Rankin, born in 1893; and Charlotte Elizabeth, born in 1895 and died in 1902. In 1898, he was married secondly to Gertrude Harner, of Xenia, O., of which union two children have been born: Elizabeth Harner, in 1900; and Emily Gertrude in 1903.

JOSEPH S. GRINDER, a prominent farmer of Frederick County, Md., residing on his farm on the New Design road, one mile west of Buckeystown, son of Samuel and Harriet A. (Null) Grinder, both deceased, was born in Buckeystown, Frederick County, Md., April 21, 1857.

Michael Grinder, grandfather of Joseph S. Grinder, one of the oldest settlers of Frederick County, came from Germany with his three brothers, and landed in Baltimore, Md. He was considered a prosperous farmer, and owned his land which lay near Woodsboro, Md. He married and had six children the youngest of whom was a son named Samuel.

Samuel Grinder, father of Joseph S. Grinder, was born on his father's farm near Woodsboro, Md., September 3, 1813. He grew up on the farm and received his education in the public schools of the district. He remained at home and, after his father's death, continued to cultivate the homestead for some time. Mr. Grinder then bought a property in Woodsboro, and opened a hotel which he carried on successfully for seven years. He then gave up the hotel and began burning lime at Buckeystown, and continued in this business for thirty years. Mr. Grinder was one of the first men to burn lime in Frederick County, and the first to introduce the use of lime into Montgomery County, Md. Some time during these thirty years, Mr. Grinder bought a farm of 147 acres in Urbana District, Frederick County, a mile and a-half south of Urbana, and in connection with his business in lime, engaged in farming. He improved his property, putting up a pretty two-story dwelling, a bank barn, and all the needed buildings, making his place one of the desirable homes of the district. His hard work and patient care were rewarded by success. He was a good citizen well known and respected in the community. He was a member of the Democratic party. Samuel Grinder was married to Harriet A. Null. Of their eight children, seven reached maturity: 1, Alonzo M., deceased; 2, Mary W., resides on the farm with her brother, Joseph; 3, Emma C. (Mrs. Caleb Hacket), of Baltimore, Md.; 4, John S., a retired farmer of Urbana District; 5, Joseph S.; 6, Maggie, unmarrired, resides in Urbana District; 7, Regina C., on the homestead with her brother, Joseph. Mr. Grinder and his wife were members of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church on the Manor. He was an active worker, and gave liberally of his means to the support of the church. Mr. Grinder died at his home in Buckeystown District, September 7, 1874, and was buried in St. Joseph's Cemetery on the Manor. After the death of her husband, Mrs. Grinder remained on the farm in Urbana District, and cultivated it with the assistance of her children. In 1879, she bought the tract of 148 acres on which her son, Joseph, now resides. She improved this property, putting up a substantial two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn, and convenient outbuildings. This place is well situated on the New Design road, six miles south of Frederick, and was farmed for her by her son, Joseph. Mrs. Grinder died at her home in Frederick County, November 5, 1907, and is buried beside her husband.

Joseph Grinder attended the public schools of Buckeystown District, and remained on the homestead with his parents. After the death of his father, Mr. Grinder took charge of the farm at Limekiln, for his mother, and when she bought the farm on which he resides, he cultivated that also for her. After the death of his mother, he and his sisters, Mary W. and Regina C., bought this farm from the estate. With the assistance of his sisters, he cultivates the place successfully. The situation of the place near the Manor woods, is very beautiful, and the land is well watered, and in a high state of cultivation. The buildings are in good repair, and everything pertaining to the property is well cared for. Mr. Grinder also owns a small place adjoining this farm. He is one of the most enterprising farmers of the district, and ascribes his financial success to hard work and constant care. In politics, he is Independent. Mr. Grinder and his sisters are unmarried. They are stanch members of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church on the Manor. All three are active in the work of the church.

CEPHAS H. ZIMMERMAN, a highly respected citizen, who resides in Ballinger district, was born on the old family seat, December 12, 1860. His parents were Peter T. and Ann M. (Cronise) Zimmerman.

The Zimmerman family has long been prominent in Frederick County annals. The American progenitor was Michael Zimmerman, who was of German birth and lineage. While a young man he came to this country, accompanied by two brothers. It is probable that Philadelphia was their landing place. Michael afterwards came to Maryland, and settled on some timber land in the southern part of Frederick County, now known as the Addition to Carrollton. Here he spent the rest of his days. The property has ever since remained in the possession of his descendants. Members of the family have the original grants for this land from King George to Lord Baltimore and from the Carrolls to the Zimmerman ancestor. Michael Zimmerman was married to Eva Cronise. They were the parents of three children, two sons and a daughter, Susan, who never married. The sons were Michael and Henry and were twins.

Henry Zimmerman, son of Michael and Eva (Cronise) Zimmerman, was born on the homestead, December 12, 1791, and died May 20, 1875. He spent his life on the farm which his father located on. He was a prominent and highly respected citizen of Carroll's Manor. He was a large land owner, being the possessor of three fine farms. He improved the home place by the erection of a two-story brick house near where the former dwelling stood. He was connected with the old Reformed Church on Carroll's Manor, in which he was an office holder. Mr. Zimmerman was married to Charlotte Thomas, daughter of John Thomas. She was born in 1793, and died in April, 1864. They were the parents of seven children: William H., lived in Buckeystown District; Peter T.; Daniel J., of Jefferson; Gideon M., lived in Ballinger District; Elizabeth S., was married to Edward Zimmerman, of Buckeystown District; Josiah B., was a resident of Walkersville District; and Ephraim, lived in Mount Pleasant District.

Peter T. Zimmerman, son of Henry and Charlotte (Thomas) Zimmerman, secured his education in private schools. He was born on the paternal homestead, March 13, 1819. When his father relinquished farming in 1860, he took charge of the home farm, which he cultivated on shares until his father's death. Under the latter's will, he fell heir to 203 acres of fine farm land. He afterwards divided the tract into two farms, and also erected a new barn on the old home place, making it one of the best properties in the district. He was one of the most prominent farmers of Buckeystown District for many years. He was successful as an agriculturist and was highly respected in the community in which he made his home. A few years before his death, Mr. Zimmerman bought a small place on the old Point of Rocks road in Ballinger District, and here his widow resided until her death, May 21, 1910. He voted the Republican ticket. He was a member of St. Matthew's Reformed Church of Carroll's Manor, in which he filled the offices of deacon and elder for a number of years. Mr. Zimmerman was married to Ann M. Cronise, daughter of Frederick and Annie (Nicodemus) Cronise, a descendant of a prominent family of Frederick County. There were eight children by this marriage, of whom six grew up: Isaac C.; Luther C., at home; Isabelle R., also at home; Cornelius F., of Ballinger District; Cephas H.; Curtis T., resides at home. Mrs. Zimmerman was also a member of the Reformed Church.

Cephas H. Zimmerman, son of Peter T. and Ann M. (Cronise) Zimmerman, was the recipient of a public school education. He remained with his father until he was twenty-six years old. He then married and removed to his present home, which property was the possession of his wife. This tract is situated one and a-half miles west of Frederick on the Frederick and Jefferson turnpike. During his life, he has been engaged in various occupations. He followed paper-hanging as his last occupation, in which he was engaged until 1904. He then bought a fine farm of 70 acres from Joshua J. Murray, in Ballinger District, about five miles south of Frederick, on the road leading from Feagaville to the old Point of Rocks road. This is a valuable tract and is one of the good producing farms of Ballinger District. In politics, Mr. Zimmerman is an adherent of the Republican party.

Mr. Zimmerman was married to Ella C. Derr, daughter of David and Sarah A. (Smith) Derr, members of a prominent family of the county. There is no issue by this marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman hold membership in the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Frederick. He is an active worker there and is a present deacon.

JOHN E. HARGETT, a citizen of Ballinger District, who has the esteem of the whole community, and who is a well known agriculturist, was born on one of the farms which he now owns, called "Castle Henry," in Frederick (now Ballinger) District, January 19, 1838. His parents were Samuel and Eleanor nee (Burns) Hargett.

John Hargett, the grandfather of John E. Hargett, was a prominent farmer of his time. He owned three very fine farms, one of which was "Castle Henry," above mentioned. He was a highly respected citizen of the county and lived to be seventy-two years old. He was married to Barbara Schaeffer. They were the parents of Samuel Hargett.

Samuel Hargett, son of John and Barbara (Schaeffer) Hargett, was educated at the common schools on Carroll's Manor, where he was born in February, 1811. He was engaged in agriculture all his life. He began life for himself by taking charge of the farm, "Castle Henry," where he remained for about fifteen years, receiving large returns from his efforts. He then purchased the place from his father. It consists of 256 acres of fine land, well improved with substantial buildings. The barn is built of stone and is supposed to be one of the oldest now standing in Frederick County. He was an active and enterprising farmer and owned much land. He had in his possession two other farms, one of which is now owned by Parker Devilbiss, of Ballinger District. Mr. Hargett was an ardent Republican and a hard worker for the success of his party. He was nominated and elected one of the commissioners of Frederick County. While serving in this office, he discharged his duties with much ability. In religion, he was a consistent and influential member of the Reformed Church at Mount Zion, where for a number of years he served in the official positions of deacon and elder. He was always foremost in the work of his congregation and was very active in the erection of a new church edifice. Mr. Hargett was married to Mrs. Eleanor Waters, nee Burns, widow of Richard Waters, by whom she had been the mother of one son, Richard, of Baltimore City. Mr. and Mrs. Hargett were the parents of six children: John E.; Mary C., the wife of William H. Harry, of Ballinger District; Samuel L., of Ballinger District; Douglas H., deceased, was a leading citizen of Frederick City; Shafer T., and Peter C., both of Frederick City. Mrs. Hargett was also connected with the Mount Zion Reformed Church.

John E. Hargett, son of Samuel and Eleanora nee (Burns) Hargett, acquired his learning in the public school at Feagaville. He remained with his father until 1864, when he began farming for himself on the old Norris farm, one mile south of Frederick, on the Buckeystown pike, and now owned by Dr. Conley. Here he lived until 1872. The day before the battle of Monocacy he had entertained General Early, and part of the Confederate Army was encamped on his place. In the spring of 1872 Mr. Hargett bought the farm on which his son Richard now lives from Philip Reich. This tract contains 107 acres of good land, situated two miles east of Frederick, on the Baltimore turnpike. Here he lived and successfully farmed for the long period of thirty-two years, making this one of the most desirable farms in Frederick County. In 1892, he purchased the old homestead of 220 acres from his father's estate. This tract, in Ballinger District, is cultivated by his son, William S. In 1903, Mr. Hargett secured another farm adjoining the home place, containing 147 acres, from the estate of Samuel Zimmerman. A few years later he disposed of this property to Miss Stup, but some time afterwards bought back 80 acres of the tract, lying near Feagaville, in Ballinger District. Here he intends to pass the remainder of his life.

Mr. Hargett is one of the foremost agriculturists and land owners of the county. He is widely known and is a man who is held in high regard by every one. He is a stockholder and a director in the Economy Silo Works of Frederick City. He was a member of the former well known business house of P. L. Hargett & Company, of Frederick, when that concern was first organized, but he afterwards withdrew his connection with the undertaking.

Politically, Mr. Hargett is a loyal supporter of the candidates and principles of the Republican party. In appreciation of his efforts for the success of that organization, he was nominated as one of the commissioners of Frederick County, but was defeated along with the rest of the ticket. In religious affairs, he was in early life a member of the Reformed Church at Mount Carmel, in New Market District, where he was an officeholder for twenty years and most active in aiding in the building of a new church edifice. He is now affiliated with the Reformed Church at Feagaville, in which he has served in the capacities of deacon and elder for a number of years.

Mr. Hargett was married in 1864 to Ellen L. Zimmerman, daughter of Samuel and Susan Zimmerman. Of this union, five children have been born: William S., a farmer of Ballinger district; Eleanor M., the wife of William C. Howard, of Ballinger District; Effie S., married to William Thomas, engaged in farming in Frederick District; Richard S., an agriculturist of Frederick District; and Claude, at home.

JOSEPH DAWSON HUFFER, owner of "Daniel's Addition," a farm of 159 acres, situated on the Middletown road, a mile and a-half from Burkittsville, Md., son of Joseph L. and Catherine (Mullindore) Huffer, was born on the farm now owned by Hiram Remsburg, in Middletown District, Frederick County, Md., January 3, 1834.

Joseph Dawson Huffer received his education in the public schools of his native district, attending during the winter terms until he was fifteen. He grew up on the homestead and when quite young, began helping his father as is usual with the sons of farmers. At sixteen, he began driving a wagon for his father on the National Pike, between Frederick City and Hagerstown, Md. This employment exposed him to many hardships, but for six years he kept the position during the storms of winter and the scorching heat of summer, missing very few days, indeed one year he missed only five days. When he was twenty-two, Mr. Huffer began working on the home farm, and, after his marriage, he cultivated the home place for four years. In 1862, he purchased his homestead, "Daniel's Addition," from David House who had bought it from the heirs of the Biser family. This desirable property is situated on the Middletown road, near Burkittsville. Mr. Huffer has made great improvements on the place. He has erected almost all of the buildings and by careful farming and fertilizing has increased the value of the land, which yields heavy crops of fine quality. Twenty-five years ago, he built his comfortable home, and also added forty feet to the barn, making it 112 by 40 feet. Mr. Huffer also raises very fine live stock. One autumn he had five hogs whose aggregate weight was 2,600 pounds; two were thoroughbred Chester White, and three mixed—Chester White and other breeds. They were "perfect pictures of hog beauty." Mr. Huffer is a stanch Republican, interested in political affairs, and in all that concerns the well-being of the community. He is a good citizen and is highly esteemed and honored by his fellow citizens.

Joseph Dawson Huffer was married at the homestead, in 1858, to Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Remsburg. Their children are: 1, Alberta (Mrs. Charles Ahalt), of Petersville District, has four children, Huffer A., Ralph, Nellie, and Catharine; 2, Mary Etta (Mrs. Oliver Sigler), died in 1896; 3, George S., merchant, of Burkittsville, Md., married Miss Wiles, has two sons, Harry, and Clay Webster; 4, Charles S., a farmer of Burkittsville District, married Miss Hightman, has two children, Ralph and Ruth. Mrs. Huffer was a member of the Lutheran Church. She died at the homestead, in 1878, and is buried in the Lutheran Cemetery in Middletown, Md. Mr. Huffer was married, secondly, to Ellen Wise. They have one son, Clarence Filmore.

(See History of Washington County, Md., for account of the Mullindore family.)

CHARLES SINGLETON HUFFER, a well-known farmer of Burkittsville District, Frederick County, Md., son of Joseph Dawson and Elizabeth (Remsburg) Huffer, was born on his father's farm in Burkittsville District, August 4, 1866.

Mr. Huffer's father, Joseph D. Huffer, is one of the leading farmers of Burkittsville District. His mother died on August 15, 1870.

Charles S. Huffer received his education in the public schools of Burkittsville District. He entered the Broad Run and Quebec school under Robert Lamar, and continued his studies under John Castle, John T. Rudy, Lewis McBride, Loyd Kepler, and Tilghman Gaver, who was his last teacher in the public school at Broad Run. He afterwards spent a short time in the public school in Burkittsville, Md. He grew up on his father's farm where he took his share of the work, and had little time given him for play, the usual lot of farmers' boys, but he learned to be industrious and frugal, lessons which influenced his after life. In 1894, two years after his marriage, Mr. Huffer left the homestead, and formed a partnership with his brother, George S. Huffer, to deal in general merchandise in Burkittsville, Md. They were successful merchants, and built up a thriving business, but at the end of six years, Mr. Huffer sold his interest to his brother, and returned to farm life. He settled on the place on which he now resides and, after renting the land for three years, purchased the property from Charles J. House. It consisted of 92 acres of fertile land which he has improved by intelligent cultivation. No farm in the section produces heavier or better crops. Mr. Huffer is a Republican, and is interested in the general affairs of the community in which he resides.

Charles Singleton Huffer was married, December 23, 1892, to Jennie C., daughter of Joseph and Mary E. (Biser) Heightman. Their children are: 1, Ethel, died in infancy; 2, Ralph Singleton, born July 30, 1896; 3, Arthur, born September 3, 1899, died in 1904; 4, Ruth Elizabeth, born July 31, 1908. Mr. Huffer and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church in Burkittsville.

Mrs. Huffer's father, Joseph Heightman, died on February 7, 1900; her mother makes her home with her children.

CHARLES H. DERR, who during his active life was engaged in agriculture, but is now living retired in Middletown, was born on a farm, August 5, 1841. He is a son of Daniel and Elizabeth (Coblentz) Derr.

Jacob Derr, the grandfather of Charles H. Derr, spent his entire life following the occupation of a farmer. In politics, he was at first a member of the Whig party but after the organization in 1856 of the Republican party he took allegiance with the latter. In religion, he was affiliated with the Lutheran Church. His wife was Margaret Long. They were the parents of the following children: Daniel; John; Samuel; Jacob; Ann Rebecca, married Hezekiah Dean; Lydia, married Elias Delauder; and Mary, died unmarried.

Daniel Derr, son of Jacob and Margaret (Long) Derr, was born in 1812, and died in 1902. He followed agricultural pursuits, and in his day was one of the prosperous and substantial farmers of the Middletown Valley. He was the owner of two good farms, one of 129 acres and one of 150 acres, both well improved, and in the management of which he was very successful. In religion, he was connected with Zion's Lutheran Church of Middletown for about seventy years, in which he was very active. For many years he served in official capacities, being deacon and elder. He was married to Elizabeth Coblentz, daughter of John P. Coblentz (see history of the Cablentz family). She died at the age of eighty-one years. They were the parents of the following children: Charlotte, the widow of John P. Dinterman; Elizabeth, the wife of Samuel Holter; Amanda, married John H. Culler; Charles H.; Lucinda, deceased, was the wife of Lewis M. Culler, also deceased; Oliver C., died in childhood; and Sarah, the wife of Cyrus T. Biser, of Middletown District.

Charles H. Derr, son of Daniel and Elizabeth (Coblentz) Derr, was born and was reared on his father's farm. While a boy, he attended the public schools of the district and at home was made familiar with the various details of farm work. Arriving at his majority, he, like his forebears, chose farming as his life's work, and this occupation he followed for forty years. In 1902, he retired from active agriculture, and located in Middletown, where he has since made his home. Mr. Derr is the possessor of a farm of 129 acres, situated in Middletown District. As an agriculturist, Mr. Derr was very successful, and by industry acquired a competency sufficient for future needs.

Politically, Mr. Derr is a supporter of the principles of the Republican party. In religion, he is a member of Zion's Lutheran Church of Middletown.

Mr. Derr was married February 5, 1867, to Mary C. Neikirk, daughter of George and Mary M. (Bechtal) Neikirk, of Washington County, Md. They are the parents of four children, namely: Ella M., the wife of John T. Derr, a farmer, and they have three children, Harold E., Charles H. and Dorothy May; George D., married Mary E. Holter, by whom he has two children, Erma, Milliard; Mary E., the wife of Edward Dutrow, a farmer, who have three children, Mary Grace, Olive R., Charles D.; and Charles H., Jr., a student in Washington and Lee University, at Lexington, Va.

George Neikirk and his wife, Mary M. Bechtal, had fourteen children: Mary C., the wife of Mr. Derr; George Lewis, deceased; Margaret Ann, the widow of Mahlon Remsburg, of Kansas; Martha Ellen, deceased; Laura, deceased, was the wife of Charles Keller; Emma, married Peter E. Bussard, of Middletown (see his sketch); Lillie, the wife of Oliver Kefauver (see his sketch); Charles E., of Middletown; Clara, unmarried; Albertus, a farmer of Middletown; Esta, the wife of Melvin A. E. Biser (see his sketch); two that died young, and Fannie L., married Grant Keller, of Washington County.

GEORGE WASHINGTON STITELY, one of the old and well known citizens of Johnsville District, who is a retired farmer, living on his estate near Bethel Church, was born in a log house that stood on his father's farm near Woodsboro, Frederick County, October 20, 1833. His parents were Samuel M. and Elizabeth (Eberly) Stitely.

The Stitely family is of German origin, and has been settled in the State of Maryland for a long time. The grandfather of George W. Stitely was Jacob Stitely, whose wife was named Mary. They were the parents of Samuel M. Stitely.

Samuel M. Stitely, son of Jacob and Mary Stitely, was born in the neighborhood of Woodsboro, Frederick County, and died at the age of eighty-eight years. He spent his boyhood in the vicinity of Detour, Ladiesburg and Middleburg, Md. He learned shoemaking with a Mr. Barnhart along the York road. This occupation he followed for many years near Rocky Hill. He then turned his attention to farming, and purchased his father-in-law's farm. He was engaged in agriculture until a few years before his death, when he retired to a house at Centerville, near Woodsboro, where he died. He stood high in the community in which he made his home and was a highly esteemed citizen. He was a Whig. Mr. Stitely was married to Elizabeth Eberly. They were both members of the Lutheran Church and are buried in Rocky Hill Cemetery. She lived to be eighty-four years old. They were the parents of the following children: John Henry, died in Woodsboro district, and is buried in Rocky Hill Cemetery; Caroline, became the wife of Enoch Waltz, and died on Israel's Creek, near Woodsboro; Joel, married Eilen Repp, and was for years a cabinet maker and undertaker at Unionville. Frederick County, where he died; David, who died in Johnsville district, was twice married, first to Rachel Pfoutz, and secondly to Mrs. Rachel Garber, whose maiden name was Repp; George Washington, our subject; Jacob Ephraim, who died in Liberty district, was married to Fanny Danner; Catharine, became the wife of Daniel P. Zimmerman, and died in Woodsboro; Samuel A.

George Washington Stitely, son of Samuel M. and Elizabeth (Eberly) Stitely, attended the Pleasant Hill school under David Rupp. He later went to the Copper Mine school under Jerry Fox. The rest of his education was secured in Johnsville, where he was a student for three years, until he was twenty-one years old. He then took the teachers' examination at Frederick, and passed. For nine years he followed the profession of teaching. His first school was the Green Tree house, in Woodsboro District, where he was located for four years. He was then at Good Intent for two years, followed by a like period at Centerville, and the last year he was located at Mt. Pleasant. While in charge of the Good Intent school, he had 102 pupils enrolled, and an attendance of 72. Relinquishing school teaching, he took up agricultural pursuits. He began farming on a rented place in Johnsville District, where he lived for three years. He then cultivated a tract at the head of Beaver Dam for the same time. Mr. Stitely then bought his present farm of 130 acres, known as part of the Cedar Cliff survey. Here he was actively engaged in agriculture until 1899, when he went into retirement, and his son, Bradley has since operated it. Mr. Stitely is a man of high character. Although he is seventy-six years old, he possesses a sound mind and retentive memory, and is well versed on many topics of the day.

In politics, Mr. Stitely has always adhered to the Republican party, and he served as road supervisor for a period of fifteen years. He held membership in the German Baptist Church, which he joined when he was a young man and in which he served in the capacity of a deacon for many years.

Mr. Stitely was married December 24, 1863, to Hester Pfoutz, daughter of John and Sarah (Saylor) Pfoutz. They were the parents of one son: Bradley P.

Bradley P. Stitely was born near Johnsville, September 30, 1865. When he was six years old his parents removed to the homestead farm, where he grew to manhood. He was educated in the common schools of Frederick and Carroll counties, attending until he was seventeen years old. He has been with his father all of his life. Since 1899 he has rented the home place. He is a Republican and is not connected with any church. Mr. Stitely was married October 12, 1898, to Anne Messler, of Linwood, Carroll county. She is a daughter of John and Emily (Engleman) Messler. There are three children by this marriage: George M., Thomas Lee, and Mary Adelaide.

****

SAMUEL A. STITELY, the youngest brother of George Washington Stitely, was born on the Brandenburg farm, in Johnsville District, near the village of that name, on October 22, 1849. As a boy he lived near Copper Mine school, where he was a student under Basil Stitely, Jerry Fox and his brother, George W. When he reached eighteen years of age he gave up school. Until his marriage, which occurred in 1869, he worked on the home farm for his father. At that time he located on the Copper Mine farm of his father, living there for some time. He then was employed in the mines for three years, after which he removed to Centerville, where he stayed several years. He then began farming on the Colonel Anders farm in Johnsville district, being settled here for two and a half years. He then went to the Aaron Anders estate, where he now lives. Mr. Stitely is a staunch Republican, and served as a school trustee for two years. Mr. Stitely was married December 16, 1869, to Missouri Victoria Hohn, daughter of Jacob and Margaret (Mikesell) Hohn. She was born at Creagerstown, Frederick county, August 20, 1851, and is a member of the Lutheran Church. They are the parents of nine children: Ida M., who was born August 20, 1870, is the wife of Silas Ripon; Rosa E., who was born July 15, 1872, married A. Yingling; Emory F., who was born December 27, 1874, married Eunice Keeney; Clara G., who was born October 28, 1876, died in infancy; Florence Irene, who was born June 10, 1878, married Frank Grimes; Harry W., who was born December 8, 1880, married Nora Smith; Dessie I., was born February 28, 1882, and died in infancy; Elsie R., who was

HON. MELVIN P. WOOD, ex-member of the Maryland Legislature, in earlier days a successful farmer and merchant, is now president of the First National Bank of Monrovia, Md. He represents an old and well-known Maryland family, being the son of Joseph and Eva R. (Burgess) Wood, born at New Market, Md., January 20, 1848.

In ante-Revolutionary days, three brothers by the name of Wood came here from England. One of them settled in Baltimore County, one on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, and the third in Frederick County. They were members of the Church of England. The last mentioned, Henry Wood, became the progenitor of the Wood family of this county. He owned large tracts of land in New Market District, where he died. His estate, known as "Rosedale," was inherited by his son, John Wood, who became a preacher in the M. P. Church. John Wood was the owner of a large number of slaves whom he set free, one by one, as they reached the age of thirty-five years. John Wood married Ruth Burgess; he died at "Rosedale" in 1839.

Joseph Wood, son of John and Ruth (Burgess) Wood, was born at "Rosedale," New Market District, Frederick County. He inherited the estate which was his birth-place, and became one of the most prominent and influential citizens of his county. He was active in politics, first as a "Douglas Democrat," afterwards as a Republican; in the latter party he became very prominent. For several years, he was a member of the Board of County Commissioners, and was president of the board. Joseph Wood was not identified with any religious body, but gave generously to all denominations.

Joseph Wood was married to Eva R., daughter of Washington and Mary Ann (Stier) Burgess. He died at "Rosedale" in March, 1896, and his wife in 1875. Their children are as follows: 1, John W., died in 1894; 2, Dr. R. Vinton, who practiced medicine for many years in Barnesville, Md., where he died in 1889; 3, Melvin P.; 4, Ira Newton, who died in 1881, aged thirty-one years.

Melvin P. Wood attended the public schools of his vicinity until he was fourteen years of age; from that time until he reached his twentieth year, he was a clerk in a country store. His father then bought a store for him in Monrovia. At the age of twenty-one, he was appointed postmaster at that place, and continued business there for ten years longer. He then sold the store to Daniel Fout, from whom he bought it again two years later, and carried on the business until 1885. In that year, Mr. Wood was elected to the House of Delegates on the Republican ticket, being the only Republican among seventeen nominees elected from this county. He declined nomination for the following term, but in 1893, he was re-elected, and again in 1895. During his last term he served on several important committees.

Before this time, in 1890, Mr. Wood had sold his store to John C. Walker, who for several years had been in his employ as clerk. In 1894, with his stepson, Joseph M. Wood, he engaged in mercantile business in New Market, the firm being known as J. M. Wood & Co. This partnership continued for two years. Since 1896, Mr. Wood has devoted his attention to his extensive real estate and agricultural interests. In May 1908, he became one of the organizers of the First National Bank of Monrovia; his associates were: J. C. Walker; R. Bruce Murdock; Jacob M. Shaubaker; Wm. H. Hogarth; V. W. Nicodemus. Mr. Wood was made president of the institution; J. C. Walker and W. H. Hogarth, vice-presidents, and C. A. McBride, cashier. The capital stock was $25,000. All arrangements being completed, the new bank was opened for business on Saturday, October 8, 1908. Mr. Wood is vice-president of the Linganore Copper Company, with mines at New London, Frederick County, Md. He is also one of the trustees of the New Market High School. Mr. Wood is a member of Philanthropic Lodge, No. 168, A. F. and A. M., of New Market, of which he is secretary and treasurer. He is a Past Master, and has served as Deputy Grand Inspector of the Grand Lodge of Maryland. He is a Knight Templar and 32nd degree Mason; a member of the Elks; and of the Knights of Pythias.

Melvin P. Wood was married, August 27, 1887, to Annie M. (Griffith) Wood, widow of his younger brother, Ira Newton Wood, daughter of Mordica J. and Margaret B. (Hammond) Griffith, and great-granddaughter of Colonel Philomon Griffith, of Revolutionary fame, who served under General Washington. Mrs. Wood's father is dead. The Griffith family is numbered among the earliest settlers of Frederick County. Mr. Wood has no children. His stepchildren are: Joseph M., of New Market; Margaret H.; Alice E., (Mrs. Dr. H. H. Hopkins, of New Market); and Anna Louise (Mrs. C. A. McBride), of New Market. Mr. Wood's family are members of the M. E. Church, South; his preference is for the Methodist Episcopal Church.

WARNER T. GRIMES, deceased, well known for many years as a successful farmer and substantial citizen of Thurmont and Mechanicstown district, was born in Frederick county, Md., August 6, 1806, and died August 22, 1896. He was a son of Samuel Grimes by his second marriage.

Samuel Grimes lived for many years near Catoctin Furnace, his father, a native of Ireland, emigrated to this country, and located in Frederick county, Md., among the early settlers.

Warner T. Grimes grew to manhood near Catoctin Furnace, and for many years followed the occupation of a farmer. In his day, he was one of the successful and wealthy agriculturists of the county, and was held in high esteem by all who came in contact with him. At the time of his death, he was the possessor of two fine farms and considerable real estate in the town of Thurmont. Early in life, he had worked as clerk, and was for some time a merchant. He served as constable of Mechanicstown, now Thurmont. In politics, he was an old line Whig, and afterwards a member of the Republican party. For over half a century, he was a consistent and active member of the Reformed Church. In 1872, Mr. Grimes was married to Sarah E. Hesson, daughter of William and Catherine (Hahn) Hesson. They were the parents of four children: Adeline C., Sarepta E., Warner T., a farmer and merchant of Thurmont, and Mary E.

The Hesson family is an old one of Frederick county. William and Catherine (Hahn) Hesson had the following children: Jacob, deceased; George, deceased; Alpheus, killed during the Civil War while a member of the union army; Andrew, a minister in the Lutheran Church, located in Chicago, Ill.; Sarah E., married Mr. Grimes; Alice, the widow of Addison Lynn, of Thurmont; Catherine, widow of Cyrus O. Favorite, of Thurmont; and Lydia, the wife of Henry Krone.

LUTHER A. T. HORINE, deceased, a son of Tobias and Magdalene (Routzahn) Horine, was born on his father's farm near Myersville, Frederick County, July 1, 1830. Most of his later life was spent at Fulderea Manor, the charming country seat where he died, after having attained to a good reputation as a farmer. It is a highly picturesque place, and beautifully situated, at the foot of South Mountain, near Crampton's Gap. Mr. Horine's father was a leading farmer, and the owner of three fine farms in the Middletown Valley.

After passing creditably through the schools of his native county, Luther A. T. Horine matriculated at Wittenberg College, in Springfield, Ohio, where he intended to prepare himself for the Christian ministry. But, after two and a half years of diligent application, he was compelled to relinquish his purpose, on account of ill health; he accordingly bade adieu to the college, and returned to his home. Some time later, he became engaged in mercantile business at Bolivar, Md. After some time, he bought a small farm, lying along Broad Run Branch, on which he lived for nine years; he then removed to a farm one mile from Braddock, Md., where he remained for two years. Then, after a residence of one year at Burkittsville, Mr. Horine bought Fulderea, Manor, for which he paid $151 per acre. It then comprised 198 acres, of which he afterwards sold 40 acres. Fulderea Manor was for many years owned by the McDuell family. Amid the delightful surroundings of this estate, Mr. Horine died, July 27, 1896. He was one of the best known and most influential citizens of the valley; a devout Christian gentleman, a life-long member of the Lutheran Church, esteemed and beloved by all who knew him.

Luther A. T. Horine was married, November 19, 1857, to Miss Susan Rebecca, daughter of Daniel and Mary (Routzahn) Sheffer, and an active member of the Lutheran Church at Burkittsville. She was born on the old Sheffer homestead, between Middletown and Myersville. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Luther A. T. Horine are: 1, George Theopilus, who died at the age of three years; 2, Daniel Carlton, died in infancy; 3, Mary Magdalene (Mrs. Thomas Lamar) residing in Hagerstown, Md.; 4, Luther Keller, died at six years of age; 5, Maurice Sheffer; 6, Caroline May, (Mrs. Charles Warner) Sabillasville, Md.; 7, Ada Marguerite, wife of a Lutheran pastor, the Rev. Arthur N. Bean, Paterson, N. J.

EMORY C. REMSBERG, a prominent farmer of Frederick County, Md., residing near Buckeystown, Md., son of Henry C. and Mehala M. (Kefauver) Remsberg, was born on the Old Remsberg homestead, one mile south of Middletown, Md., December 21, 1867.

(For family history see the biographical sketch of his father, Henry C. Remsberg, which appears in this volume.)

Emory C. Remsberg attended the public schools of Middletown district and remained on the home place, assisting his father, until he began farming for himself. After the death of his mother, he married but remained on the homestead with his father for three years. Mr. Remsberg then purchased his present home, a farm of 158 acres of arable land, the property of William H. Ways, situated one mile south of Buckeystown, on the Buckeystown turnpike. He has put up a beautiful two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn, all the necessary outbuildings, and a comfortable two-story frame tenant house. The place is beautifully situated, adjoining the Buckeystown Industrial School farm. His care and skill have brought the land to a high state of cultivation, and have made his home one of the most desirable farm properties in Frederick County. Mr. Remsberg is one of the prosperous and enterprising men of the county, and is reaping the just reward of all his toil. Mr. Remsberg is greatly esteemed by his fellow citizens. He is one of the leading Republicans of the district, a member of the District Central Committee, and one of the Registration officers of Buckeystown District. He is a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., of Frederick.

Emory C. Remsberg was married to Viola I., daughter of the late Zacharias G. and Louisa E. (Grove) Thomas. Her father was one of the prominent farmers of Frederick County. Her mother resides in Frederick. The children of Emory C. and Viola I. (Thomas) Remsberg are: 1, Oscar Z., at school; 2, Lucy M., at school; 3, Emory E., at school; 4, Loren H., died in youth; 5, Daniel E., at home. Mr. Remsberg and his wife are members of St. John's Reformed Church in Buckeystown. They are active workers and contribute generously to church benevolence.

GEORGE S. MARTZ, a farmer of Tuscarora District, Frederick County, Md., son of David S. and Harriet S. (Wachter) Martz, was born on the old Martz homestead in Tuscarora District, August 15, 1855.

Major George Martz, an officer in the United States Army in the war of 1812, the grandfather of Lewis J. Martz, came to America from Germany when he was quite a young man. He was accompanied by his brother, who settled in Pennsylvania. George Martz made his home in Frederick County, Md. He was married to Catherine Reece. Among their six children was a son named David S. Martz. Major Martz and his wife died on their farm in Frederick County.

(For particulars of family history, see biographical sketch of John H. Martz, which appears in this volume.)

The late David S. Martz, father of George S. Martz, was born in 1813. He attended a private school in his native district, but his educational advantages were limited. He remained with his parents and, when his father retired from farming, took charge of the homestead. Mr. Martz was a prosperous farmer and was highly esteemed in the county. He was a Republican. David S. Martz was married to Harriet S., daughter of Samuel and Mary (Stull) Wachter, of Frederick District, both deceased. Of their twelve children, ten reached adult age: 1, Lewis J., deceased, a farmer of Tuscarora District; 2, Wilson N., United States mail carrier, of Frederick, Md.; 3, Maretta E. (Mrs. Uriah Wachter), of Frederick, deceased; 4, Caroline C., married to Isaac Houck, a farmer of Lewistown District, Frederick County; 5, David H., a farmer of Woodsboro District, Frederick County; 6, Annie V., married to the late Randolf N. Whitmore, a prominent farmer of Tuscarora District, and after his death to the late Lawrence Bentz, of Frederick, who died in 1898; 7, Julia A., married to Daniel Z. Stull, a farmer of Tuscarora District; 8, Albert T., a farmer of New Market District, Frederick County; 9, George S.; 10, Charles C., a farmer on the homestead in Tuscarora District. Mr. Martz and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church at Bethel. He died very suddenly, December 5, 1860. His widow lived to celebrate her eighty-fifth birthday.

George S. Martz received his education in the public school at Brookhill, in Tuscarora District. He was only five years old when his father died, but his mother remained on the homestead, and he grew up on the place and assisted her until he married and began farming for himself, renting the land which he now owns. His home, known as the old Whitmore farm, is beautifully situated three miles northwest of Frederick, and on the southern side it adjoins the line of the Washington, Frederick and Gettysburg railroad. The soil is very fertile and yields some of the heaviest crops in the district. Mr. Martz has worked hard and steadily, and is now reaping his reward. He has one of the finest places in the county. It is equipped with a comfortable two-story dwelling, a bank barn, and convenient out-buildings, all put up by Mr. Martz. Mr. Martz is one of the leading Republicans of the district. He is an active worker in the party, and has been a member of the District Central Committee for seven years. He is well-known in the community and has a large circle of friends.

George S. Martz was married, November 28, 1888, to Clara R., daughter of Elias Warner, who was prominent among the older farmers of Tuscarora District. They have three children: Meharl Edgar, G. Maynard, and Ethel V., all at home. Mr. Martz and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church at Pleasant Hill. Both are very active in the work of the Church. Mr. Martz has been superintendent of the Sunday school for twenty years. He has also served the congregation as deacon and elder for a number of years.

MAHLON LUTHER RICE, assistant cashier of the well known banking house of Flook, Gaver, Leatherman, Summers, Grossnickle & Company, of Myersville, Md., was born on a farm in Buckeystown district Frederick county, October 6, 1854. His parents were Henry and Catherine (Ambrose) Rice. Henry Rice died, Feb. 8, 1910. Catherine Rice is still living.

Henry Rice was a son of Henry Rice, who was a farmer of Frederick county. Henry Rice, 2nd, was born in 1824, and lived two miles north of Myersville. In politics he was a supporter of the Republican party, and in religion, a member of St. John's Lutheran Church of Myersville. Mr. Rice was married to Catherine Ambrose, who was born in 1836. They were the parents of eight children, seven of whom grew to maturity: Mahlon Luther, Manzella V., the wife of Josephus Palmer, a carpenter by trade, of Catoctin district, Frederick county; Susan E., the wife of Charles E. Ifert, of Middletown, engaged in farming; Ida M., unmarried, resides with her parents; Jeremiah D., of Jackson district, and Emma F., is the wife of William S. Shepley, of Myersville.

Mahlon Luther Rice, son of Henry and Catherine (Ambrose) Rice, was reared on a farm two miles north of Myersville. He received his education in the public schools of Jackson district, and attended Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Pa., for one year. He then became a teacher in the schools of Frederick county, teaching in Catoctin district; at Forest, Poplar and Ellerton, in Jackson district; Hazel Bottom and Walnut Hill, covering a period of eighteen years. He then became engaged in agriculture at Church Hill, north of Myersville. In 1905, Mr. Rice became assistant cashier of the banking house of Flook, Gaver, Summers, Leatherman, Grossnickle & Company, at Myersville. This position he still retains and has discharged his duties to the entire satisfaction of every one. Mr. Rice has spent the better part of his life in educational work, and is a self made man. He attributes his success in life to hard work and close application to the duties devolving upon him.

In politics, Mr. Rice is an adherent of the Republican party. In religion, he is affiliated with St. John's Lutheran Church of Myersville, (though situated at Church Hill) in the work of which he has been very active, and he has filled the office of elder.

Mr. Rice was married April 30, 1885, to Anna M. Grove, daughter of James A. and Henrietta, (Hayes) Grove, of Wolfsville, Catoctin District, Frederick County. They are the parents of six children: Elmer F. and Clay E., both students at Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Pa.; Reno C.; Evva M.; Ilga M.; and Cyrus L.

FRANCIS T. LAKIN, of Rocky Springs, Frederick county, is one of the prominent retired farmers of the community in which he resides. He was born in Jefferson district, Frederick County, August 2, 1840, and is a son of William and Susanna (Remsberg) Lakin.

Joseph Lakin from whom Francis T. Lakin is descended, came to Frederick county and became one of the earliest settlers in that part of Western Maryland. He took up a tract of land as a "hatchet claim." The original deed of this tract, bearing date of 1683, signed by the King of England, is still in the possession of the Lakin family. This piece of land lies two miles north of the Potomac River, and two miles and a half south of Jefferson, in Jefferson district. The farm is still in the possession of Joseph Lakin's descendants, having passed from father to son for over two centuries. The Lakin family is of Scotch-Irish origin and the early members were connected with the Episcopal Church. Joseph Lakin had a son Abraham.

Abraham Lakin, son of Joseph Lakin, was the father of Abraham Lakin, who also had a son Abraham.

Abraham Lakin, 3rd, was the grandfather of Francis T. Lakin. He spent his life in farming on the old homestead. He was the father of the following children: John; Abraham; William; Mary Ellen; and Henrietta, married a Mr. McDevitt, and went west, settling in Indiana, where they were among the first settlers.

William Lakin, son of Abraham Lakin, was born on the old home in 1790, and died there in 1850. He spent his entire life in agricultural pursuits on the homestead. He was captain of a company of soldiers in the second war with Great Britain and participated in the defense of Baltimore in 1814. Captain Lakin was a Democrat in politics. Religiously, he was an active member of the Reformed Church of Jefferson, where he served as an elder for many years. Captain Lakin was married to Susanna Remsberg. They were the parents of these children: William H., a retired farmer of Jefferson; Lucretia C., married Richard Dutrow, deceased; Elizabeth died without marrying; John S., deceased; Francis T.; Susan A., died unmarried; Cephas E., deceased; Henry B., deceased; and Charlotte B., deceased.

Francis T. Lakin, son of Capt. William and Susanna (Remsberg) Lakin, was born and reared on the old Lakin estate. He received such an education as the public schools afforded. Like his forebears he took up farming. Some years ago Mr. Lakin retired from active agricultural work, and is now living on the fine farm, called "Kandalia." This place contains 102 acres and lies on the line of the W. F. and G. Railroad. Politically, Mr. Lakin supports the Democratic principles, and religiously, he is connected with the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick City.

Mr. Lakin was married February 13, 1872, to Mary Gerry, daughter of Dr. Michael M. and Catherine (Dare) Gerry, of Franklin county, Pa. There are four children by this marriage: William G. is a farmer, married Charlotte Thomas, and they have a daughter, Alberta; H. A., a physician, now medical examiner for the Pennsylvania Railroad at Erie, Pa., married Alice M. Taughinbaugh, by whom he has one daughter, Frances Isabella; Francis Dare, Division Engineer of the Erie Railroad at Meadeville, Pa., married Catharine Estep; and Mary L., the wife of Roger S. Levy, a druggist of Baltimore City.

Mrs. Lakin's maternal grandfather was John Dare, who was a descendant of William Dare, high sheriff under the first lord proprietor of New Jersey. Mrs. Lakin is a member of the eighth generation from William Dare, the progenitor of the family in this country.

HIRAM T. SMITH, a farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., whose home is situated at the foot of the South Mountain, son of George J. and Nancy (Palmer) Smith, was born near Boonsboro, Washington County, Md., October 18, 1847.

George Smith, carpenter and contractor, grandfather of Hiram T. Smith, was a German by descent. He was born near Rohrersville, Washington County, where the greater part of his life was spent. He was well-known as a contractor, and made a specialty of building fine barns. He was married twice. Among his children was a son named George J. Smith.

The late George J. Smith, a farmer of Jackson District, father of Hiram T. Smith, was born near Rohrersville, Washington County, Md., August 27, 1820. He learned cooperage and worked at that trade successfully for forty years. Mr. Smith afterwards bought a farm of 60 acres near Frostburg, Md., which he improved in many ways, and still later purchased a small tract of land, on which he erected a dwelling in which he spent the remainder of his life. Mr. Smith worked hard and achieved success. He was a member of the Republican party. George J. Smith was married to Nancy, daughter of Jonas and Lyla (Hutzel) Palmer. They had twelve children, eight of whom reached maturity: 1, Hiram T.; 2, Jonas D., gardner, Hagerstown, Md.; 3, George E., a farmer of Jackson District; 4, Sarah E., married to William Bower, a retired farmer of Hagerstown; 5, Mary I., (Mrs. James Woltz), of Hagerstown; 6, Laura A., deceased, married to the late Martin Mumford; 7, Valentine, a farmer of Indiana; 8, Benjamin F., a farmer of Illinois. Mr. Smith and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church in Boonsboro, Md. He died at his home in Washington County, and is buried in the cemetery of the Lutheran Church in Boonsboro.

Hiram T. Smith was educated in the public schools of Jackson District, and remained with his father until he was twenty-two. At that time he secured a position on the Baltimore & Ohio R. R., which he held for five years, when he turned his attention to farming. After tilling the soil for three years in Washington County, Mr. Smith purchased his present home, then owned by Daniel Baker. This farm, a part of which he bought in 1875, is beautifully situated, and is watered by several fine springs. It lies two miles west of Myersville and is well improved. Mr. Smith has added to his land from time to time and the farm now consists of 150 acres of excellent land. He has erected a three-story frame dwelling, a fine bank barn, and all of the requisite outbuildings. By constant care and industry he has won success and made his farm one of the valuable ones in that section of the county. The old house which stands on this farm is supposed to be one of the first houses built in Frederick County. Mr. Smith also owns a comfortable home in Myersville. He is a Republican, highly esteemed in the county. He is a stockholder in the Myersville and Catoctin R. R.

Hiram T. Smith was married to Laura, daughter of Samuel and ——— (Poffenburger) Dutrow. Their children are: 1, Cora J., married to R. C. Yunkins, a farmer of Middletown District, Frederick County; 2, Oliver M., at home; 3, Lewis V., traveling. Mr. Smith and his wife are members of the United Brethren Church in Myersville, to which he is a liberal contributor; he takes an active part in church work.

JAMES O. HARNE, ex-County Commissioner of Frederick County, Md., son of Henry and Elizabeth (Blickenstaff) Harne, both deceased, was born at Wolfsville, Catoctin District, Frederick County, Md., May 26, 1847.

Henry Harne, father of James O. Harne, owned a small farm and dealt in timber. His life was spent in hard work, but he was repaid for his toil, and was highly esteemed as a good citizen. He married and was the father of nine children. He had a long and useful life, dying at the age of eighty-two.

The late James O. Harne grew up on his father's farm in Catoctin District, and remained at home until he attained his majority, when he began working for himself. For two years, Mr. Harne was employed on a farm hiring by the month. After his marriage, he removed to Middlepoint, Catoctin District, where he bought a small farm, and engaged in burning charcoal. He carried on this business successfully for seventeen years, and then purchased a farm near Mount Zion, Hauvers District, Frederick County. After improving this land and cultivating it for two years, he sold the place and bought the old Samuel Bussard farm, five miles west of Catoctin Furnace, where he spent the remainder of his life. Mr. Harne was a skillful farmer and added to his land from time to time until his farm consisted of 200 acres. He afterwards purchased the adjoining farm consisting of 103 acres of excellent farm and timber land, the property known as the old Gates farm. These properties are beautifully situated in the Catoctin Mountain, and Mr. Harne has improved them until they are numbered among the desirable farms of the district. Mr. Harne also dealt extensively in lumber. He owned large saw-mills in the Catoctin Mountain and the output of the mills seldom equaled the demand. He had an expert knowledge of woods and filled large contracts for wood from which to manufacture paper. Mr. Harne was a Democrat and was nominated on that ticket for commissioner of Frederick County. He carried the county by a large majority, and when his term expired he was renominated, but the whole Democratic ticket was defeated. Mr. Harne was an ideal public officer, never losing sight of the fact that he was a servant of the whole people, at the same time seeing that his home people were given their just dues. He was an ardent Mason living strictly within the tenets of the Order. Acacia Lodge, No. 155, to which he belonged, performed the Masonic burial service at the grave.

James O. Harne was married to Annie M., daughter of Philip and Annie M. (Rhodes) Burier, whose father was a prominent farmer residing near Rockey Springs. Their children are: 1, William D. L., farmer and school teacher, Catoctin District, Frederick County; 2, Gideon O., farmer and dealer in lumber, of Catoctin District; 3, Roy M., of Lenox, Iowa; 4, Alonzo J., a farmer of Dickey County, N. D.; 5, Creola V., married to Cyrus Winfield, a farmer of Catoctin District; 6, Charles O., a farmer of Catoctin District; 7, Cyrus F., of Bozeman, Mont.; 8, Cora M. (Mrs. George A. Willard), of Hauvers District, Frederick County; 9, James G., at home; 10, Albert E., at home; 11, Maggie B., at home; 12, Oliver G., at home. Mr. Harne and his wife were members of the Church of God In Christ Jesus. He was a liberal contributor to religious objects, and was, at one time, a local minister of that denomination. He died at his home in Hauvers District, January 8, 1907, and is buried in the cemetery of the United Brethren Church at Garfield, Md. "The death of James O. Harne removes from the community a good and useful citizen, a kind and generous neighbor and friend, and a loving father and husband. Mr. Harne made the most of the opportunities and advantages which he possessed, and became a man whose advice was often sought by those among whom he lived."

DAISEY A. DUDDERAR, farmer, youngest son of Peter and Josephine (Brightwell) Dudderar, was born on the Dudderar homestead, at Oak Orchard, Linganore District, Frederick County, Md., April 11, 1867.

Daisey A. Dudderar grew up on the homestead and attended the school at Oak Orchard under Sanford Roberts and Miss Georgia D. England. At fourteen he was taken from school and set to work in his father's store in Oak Orchard where he remained for six years. When he left the store, Mr. Dudderar worked as a day-laborer for two years. In 1890, after his marriage, he lived for one year with his father and one year on the hill above the store, and during this time continued to work by the day. Mr. Dudderar began farming for himself on the Charles Smith farm, near McKinstry's Mills, and two years later, removed to a farm of sixty acres, near Oak Orchard, now the property of Mr. Alexander. After cultivating this land for a year, Mr. Dudderar settled on the homestead, as a renter, and two years later purchased the place. It consists of 117 acres of fine farming land, and is well improved. In 1905, he bought the Bankert farm, in the same district, containing 100 acres. This also he has improved in every respect. In 1910 he bought the Curry farm which joins the Bankert farm. It consists of 87 acres. Mr. Dudderar is a progressive farmer, intelligent and enterprising, and is highly esteemed in the district. He votes independently, considering the man, not the party.

Daisey A. Dudderar was married, March 20, 1890, to Myra L., daughter of the late William Ecker. Their children are: 1, William, born 1890; 2, Russell, born 1892; 3, Helen, born 1895; 4, Clifton, born 1897; 5, Benjamin, born 1899; 6, Charles, born 1901; 7, Austin, born 1908. (For family history of Mrs. Dudderar, see biography of her father, the late William Ecker, which appears in this volume).

CEPHAS M. THOMAS, a well-known farmer of Buckeystown District, Frederick County, Md., son of Josiah S. and Susan Rebecca (Thomas) Thomas, was born on the old Thomas homestead, two and a-half miles northwest of Adamstown, Md., January 28, 1851.

Gabriel Thomas, great-great-grandfather, of Cephas M. Thomas, was one of three brothers who, in 1754, purchased 326 acres of land, known as the "Poplar Thicket," situated in the southern part of Frederick County, where he remained until his death in 1794. He married, and among his children was a son named John.

John Thomas, son of Gabriel Thomas, and great-grandfather of Cephas M. Thomas, was born on the homestead, September 25, 1757. He spent his life in cultivating the homestead, a part of Poplar Thicket and Long Hope Tracts, which he inherited at the death of his father. John Thomas was married to Elizabeth, daughter of George Ramsburg, April 16, 1786. Among their five children who reached maturity, was a son named Peter.

Peter Thomas, grandfather of Cephas M. Thomas, third child of John and Elizabeth (Ramsberg) Thomas, a prominent farmer of his generation, was born on the homestead, February 23, 1792. He was progressive and enterprising, and owned two valuable farms. He was very successful in the management of his land, to which he devoted all his energy. Peter Thomas was married, October 18, 1823, to Susanna Whip. Their children are: 1, Jonathan A., deceased, a farmer of Buckeystown, Md.; 2, Josiah S.; 3, Lewis E., a retired farmer of Washington City, D. C.; 4 and 5, twins, Daniel P., deceased, a farmer of Buckeystown District and Susan R., widow of Eli C. Wasky, of Ballinger District, Frederick County; 6, Maria E., widow of Ephraim J. Zimmerman, of Mount Pleasant, Md.; 7, Eleanor S., deceased, married to the late Lewis H. Main, of Frederick City; 8, Eliza M., deceased, married to Benjamin F. Dixon, a retired farmer of Catonsville, Baltimore County, Md. Mr. Thomas and his wife were members of the Reformed Church.

Josiah Thomas, father of Cephas M. Thomas, was born on the homestead, January 5, 1826. He was educated in the public schools of the district, and remained at home until he married, when he purchased land near Woodsboro, Md., and began farming for himself. After improving this property, he sold it and rented a place near the old homestead, which he cultivated successfully for nine years. Mr. Thomas then purchased his homestead, a farm of 100 acres, now the property of Curtis W. Thomas, beautifully situated nine miles south of Frederick on the New Design road. He built a pretty two-story, brick dwelling, a bank barn, all the necessary outbuildings, and improved the place in every respect. He was numbered among the enterprising citizens of Frederick County, where he was highly esteemed, and had a large circle of friends. Josiah Thomas was married to Susan Rebecca Thomas in 1848, a distant relation, a daughter of Michael and Eva Thomas, whose father was a wellknown farmer of Frederick County. Five of their children reached maturity: 1, Cephas M.; 2, Abbie L., married to Curtis W. Thomas, a farmer residing near Adamstown, Md.; 3, Mary E., married to Clinton C. Thomas, a farmer of New Market District Frederick County; 4, George C., a farmer of New Market District; 5, Clarence S., of Washington, D. C. - Mr. Thomas and his wife were members of St. Matthew's Reformed Church on Carroll's Manor. He held office in the congregation for many years, and contributed liberally to church enterprises. Mr. Thomas died May 24, 1906, and is buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery. His widow died on May 22, 1907.

Cephas M. Thomas received his eduaction in the public schools of the district, and remained at home until he married, when he began farming for himself, on land adjoining the homestead. He spent four years on this place, two years on the Dutrow farm, and four years on the place now known as the Buckeystown Industrial School farm. In 1883, he rented, from Charles F. Thomas, the farm on which he now resides. He has spent twenty-seven years on this place, and under his skilful cultivation it has become one of the finest farms in the district. It is equipped with a comfortable dwelling, a bank barn and all the necessary outbuildings all in excellent order. He is a progressive farmer, and a reliable citizen. Mr. Thomas is a Democrat, always actively interested in all measures which are calculated to benefit the community. He ascribes his success in life to hard work and constant attention to his business.

Cephas M. Thomas was married to Laura V., daughter of Adam and Elizabeth (Renn) Schaeffer. Their children are: 1, Bernard S., insurance agent, Frederick, Md.; 2, Claud E., insurance superintendent, Washington, D. C.; 3, S. Elizabeth, at home; 4, M. Edith at home; 5, Ralph J., insurance agent, Washington, D. C.; 6, Ruth T., teacher; 7, Nellie B., at home. Mr. Thomas and his wife are members of the Reformed Church in Buckeystown. Mr. Thomas is an active worker and a generous contributor. He was a deacon for many years, and is now an elder of the congregation.

AQUILLA REESE YEAKLE, for many years one of the leading citizens of Frederick, now residing at Cleveland Park, Washington, D. C., was born in Frederick City, Md., June 28, 1848. He is a son of William and Mary L. (Cline) Yeakle.

The grandfather of Aquilla R. Yeakle was Henry Yeakle, who in the old days was a well-known merchant of Hagerstown, Md., at which place he was engaged in the boot and shoe business. Henry Yeakle was the father of William Yeakle, who was born in Washington County, Md., in 1819, and died in Frederick City in 1869.

William Yeakle, the father of Aquilla R. Yeakle, spent his boyhood at home, and received his education in the public schools of the county, and later in the schools of Hagerstown, to which place his father had removed. As a young man, he came to Frederick, where, in partnership with a brother, he embarked in the boot and shoe business. After some years, he sold his interest in the store, and entered the employ of Mr. Gittinger, with whom he remained for some time. He afterwards again began business on his own account, having a store in Market street, in the management of which he was very successful up to the time of his death. In politics, Mr. Yeakle was a Democrat, but never aspired to public office. In the Civil War, the sympathies of Mr. Yeakle were with the South. In fraternal circles, he was a member of the Odd Fellows, in which order he stood very high. In religion he was a devout member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Yeakle was one of Frederick's best known business men, and enjoyed the good will and esteem of all who knew him.

Mr. Yeakle was married October 19, 1845, to Mary L. Cline, daughter of Caspar and Catharine (Evans) Cline. She was educated at the Frederick College and was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. and Mrs. Yeakle were the parents of nine children, five of whom survive: Aquilla Reese; Thomas, engaged in the boot and shoe business in Chicago, Ill.; John, a dry goods merchant, at Peoria, Ill.; Edward, living in Frederick, and Katie, married Charles Thomas, (deceased), by whom she had three daughters, two of whom survive.

Caspar Cline, the father of Mrs. William Yeakle, was a native of Hanover, Pa., and at an early day came to Frederick, where for many years he carried on a flourishing carriage business. Later in life, he retired, and died April 18, 1871, aged seventy-six years. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was married to Catharine Evans. One of their children was Colonel George T. Cline, the millionaire, of Chicago, Ill. The Evans family was of Scotch descent, and at one time owned large tracts of land in Baltimore and vicinity.

Aquilla Reese Yeakle, son of William and Mary L. (Cline) Yeakle, after receiving an elementary education, attended St. John's College. In 1863, he entered the store of Z. J. Gittinger, with whom he remained nearly fifteen years, his services giving entire satisfaction. In October, 1877, he rented the main store room in the city hall building and opened a boot, shoe and hat store, which is still in existence. In the management of this enterprise, he met with much success, being possessed of great mercantile ability. For years Mr. Yeakle was one of the most prominent and successful business men of Frederick City. He at present resides in Washington, D. C., having to a large extent retired from the cares of an active business life. Besides the establishment founded by him, he has been connected with many other enterprises. He is a stockholder and director in the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank of Frederick City, a stockholder in the Union Manufacturing Company and in the Franklin Savings Bank, a member of the real estate firm of Wilcox, Hane & Company, of Washington, D. C., a director in the American Dairy Supply Company, of Washington, D. C., besides having an interest in various other financial and mercantile institutions.

Mr. Yeakle has always shown a strong interest in public affairs, and anything that has promised to benefit the general welfare has always found in him an active supporter. In politics, he has always been an active member and stanch adherent of the Democratic party. After great pressure was brought to bear upon him, he allowed his name to appear as a candidate for Democratic alderman of the third ward of Frederick, and after a vigorous campaign, he was elected. In this capacity he served for six years, much of the time being chairman of important committees, and discharged his duties with such ability that he received the nomination for the mayorship, being the unanimous choice of his party in the fall of 1895. Notwithstanding unsual opposition to the ticket, he was elected by a good majority, serving during the years 1896, 1897 and 1898. He conscientiously attended to the duties pertaining to his office and filled the position in a manner that reflected much credit upon him. As the official representative of the city, he deserves much credit for the ability with which he entertained and made welcome the Maryland National Guard Encampment at Frederick in 1896. It was by his efforts that the parade of the brigade through the city, as an escort to Major-General Nelson A. Miles and Governor Lowndes, was obtained.

Mr. Yeakle is also well known in social and religious circles. For a long time, he was president of the Evening Visitors' Club of Frederick. One of the charter members of the Alpha Temple of Honor, he filled all of the offices of the subordinate Temple and was a representative to the Grand Temple. He was elected Grand Worthy Chief Templar of Maryland and the District of Columbia; was a representative in the Supreme Council of America, and attended the meetings of the Order in Chicago in 1875 and Philadelphia in 1876. For a long time, he was very active in the support of the Business Men's Association of Frederick, which has for its object the industrial and material advancement of the city. Mr. Yeakle is prominently identified with religious work, and is a liberal supporter of church and temperance movements. He is a consistent member of the Lutheran Church, and was one of the church council for a number of years. Before he became a member of the Lutheran Church, he was treasurer of the Sunday School of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church for many years. He was also, for some years, one of the directors of the Frederick County Bible Society. He belongs to the board of trustees of the Loats Orphans' Home, of Frederick. Mr. Yeakle was one of the active trustees under the will of his uncle, Colonel George T. Cline, who died at his home in Chicago, June 23, 1903, leaving a very large estate. Mr. Yeakle was one of three trustees who was very active in making a sale, for over $1,000,000, of a large tract of land to the United States Steel Company, at Gary, Ind. Mr. Yeakle is at present interested in valuable real estate in and around the town of Gary, Ind.

Aquilla R. Yeakle was married, October 31, 1882, to Fannie B. Hane, daughter of the late Jacob D. Hane, and granddaughter of the Rev. David F. Schaeffer, D. D., a noted divine of the Lutheran denomination, formerly of Frederick. Mrs. Yeakle is a vocalist of much talent, having a rich voice, well trained, and of great compass. She was, for years, the leading soprano in the choir of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Frederick, and is always in great demand at all concerts and public entertainments. Mr. and Mrs. Yeakle have one daughter, Marie Hane Yeakle. Miss Yeakle was recently graduated, with high honors, from the Woman's College, of Frederick, Md. She has a very lively disposition and is a general favorite among her companions. She is Vice-President of the Alumnae Association of her Alma Mater.

LEWIS R. DERTZBAUGH, bookseller, stationer, and general merchant, proprietor of "Busy Corner," No. 201-203, North Market street, Frederick, Md., son of William H. and Emma I. (Bennett) Dertzbaugh, was born in Frederick, Md., November 16, 1882.

The ancestors of the Dertzbaugh family, who were emigrants from Germany, were among the early settlers of Fredericktown. John Dertzbaugh, grandfather of Lewis R. Dertzbaugh, was well known among the old residents of Frederick. He received his education in the public schools and was one of the first cabinet makers in Frederick. He was a skilful mechanic and was highly esteemed as a citizen, and as a prosperous business man. He owned his comfortable home in Frederick. Mr. Dertzbaugh was a Republican. John Dertzbaugh was married to Catherine Metz. Their children are: 1, William H.; 2, Jane, deceased, married to Daniel Moberly, of Baltimore, Md.; 3, Fannie, deceased, married to the late John Fox, of Frederick Md.; 4, Ella, widow of the late John Bops, of Frederick; 5, Charles, of Frederick; 6, Hallie (Mrs. William Martin), of Frederick. Mr. Dertzbaugh and his wife were members of the German Reformed Church.

Mr. Dertzbaugh's father, William H. Dertzbaugh, was born in Frederick, March 22, 1848. He was educated in the public schools of Frederick and became a painter. After working at that trade successfully for some time, he became a contractor, and carried on business successfully until his health failed and he retired from active life. He ascribes his financial success to hard work. Mr. Dertzbaugh is an ardent Republican. William H. Dertzbaugh was married to Emma, daughter of Lewis and Mary (Suman) Bennett, whose father was a well-known wheelwright of Frederick. Their children are: 1, Harry B., clerk in the office of the Register of Wills, Washington, D. C.; 2, Mary B. (Mrs. Harry Ebert), Frederick, Md.; 3, Lewis R.; 4, Mabel, at home; 5, Pearl, at home; 6, Frank, head bookkeeper for the Ox Fiber Brush Company, Frederick, Md.; 7, William Lee, at home. Mr. Dertzbaugh is a member of the German Reformed Church; his wife holds her membership in the Lutheran Church.

Lewis R. Dertzbaugh attended the public schools and completed his education in the High School in Frederick. He secured a position at completion of his schooling as clerk with Shipley & Bopst, booksellers, stationers and general merchants. He was an alert, watchful clerk. He remained with the firm until August 1906, when he began business for himself in the same line, forming a partnership with F. Lester Smith. The new firm Smith & Dertzbaugh began business in October, 1906, at the corner of Market and Second streets, known as the "Busy Corner." In 1909 the partnership was dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. Dertzbaugh buying his partner's interest. The "Busy Corner" carries a complete line of well selected books, stationery, fancy goods in the one store, and everything in the house furnishing line on the other side. The "Busy Corner" stationery store is one of the most complete stores in Western Maryland. It has a most up-to-date stock, and the display fixtures are the best in the city.

Mr. Dertzbaugh is one of the successful business men of Frederick City, and also one of the youngest. He ascribes his success to close attention to business. In politics he is a Republican, and is interested in everything for the betterment of his native city. He is a member of the Frederick Board of Trade, Columbia Lodge A. F. & A. M., of Frederick, Enoch Chapter, No. 23 R. A. M., the B. P. O. E., and Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, K. of P. Mr. Dertzbaugh is a liberal contributor to the Evangelical Reformed Church of which he is an active member.

SAMUEL D. THOMAS, Registrar of Wills for Frederick County, of Frederick City, Md., son of David and Elizabeth (Hildebrand) Thomas, both deceased, was born in his father's home in Urbana District, Frederick County, Md., December 10, 1862.

David Thomas, a prominent retired farmer and merchant of Buckeystown, father of Samuel D. Thomas, was born on his father's farm on Carroll's Manor in 1819. He attended the public schools of the district and remained on the home place, assisting his father. After his marriage, Mr. Thomas began farming for himself on one of the old Dutrow farms, which he cultivated for several years. In 1848, he purchased a desirable farm of 200 acres in Urbana District, Frederick County, now a part of the estate of the late Charles E. Trail. He cultivated and improved this place until 1865, when he retired from farming, and removed to Buckeystown, where he formed a partnership with Mr. Dutrow, the firm being Thomas & Dutrow, general merchants. Mr. Thomas afterwards purchased Mr. Dutrow's interest and carried on the business successfully for a number of years under the name of David Thomas & Son. They had a large and lucrative trade, and Mr. Thomas finally retired from active business. He was highly esteemed in Buckeystown as a citizen and as a progressive business man. Mr. Thomas was one of the leading Democrats of Frederick County, actively interested in political affairs. In 1853, he was elected on the Democratic ticket, to the Maryland Legislature, and discharged his official duties faithfully. In 1876 he was appointed by Governor Carroll, land assessor for Frederick County. His ability and good judgment enabled him to fill this important office with credit. David Thomas was married, July 19, 1842, to Elizabeth, daughter of the late John and Margaret (Myers) Hildebrand, whose father was a prominent farmer of Buckeystown District, and a veteran of the War of 1812. Of their ten children, six reached maturity: 1, Francis Granville, real estate and insurance agent in Frederick, Md.; 2, George M., dealer in grain, Adamstown, Md.; 3, J. Fenton, dealer in grain in Adamstown, and deputy in the office of Register of Wills for Frederick County; 4, Emma A., widow of the late Edward T. H. DeLashmut, of Frederick City; 5, Bettie (Mrs. James B. Clory), of Hedgesville, West Va.; 6, Samuel D. Mr. Thomas was a stanch member of the Reformed Church on the Manor. His wife held her membership in the Lutheran Church at the same place.

Samuel D. Thomas was two years old when his parents removed to Buckeystown where he grew up and received his education in the public schools of the place. He afterwards attended Western Maryland College where he completed his studies. After he left college, he spent one year on the farm and then went to Frederick, where he and his brother engaged in the wholesale tobacco business. Mr. Thomas was employed in different ways until 1889 when he bought the busines of E. A. C. Fox, dealer in stoves, on East Patrick street, Frederick, Md., where he carried on a flourishing trade until 1905, when he sold the business, and began dealing in real estate. Mr. Thomas is one of the enterprising business men of Frederick, where he has a large circle of friends, and is highly esteemed as a citizen. He attributes his success in life to honest work and attention to his business. He is one of the leading Democrats of Frederick County. In the Autumn of 1909, he was his party's nominee for registrar of wills for Frederick County, and was the only Democrat elected. Mr. Thomas is a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M.; and of No. 684, B. P. O. of Elks, of Frederick City.

Samuel D. Thomas was married to Annie M., daughter of William D. and Mary E. Worman, both deceased. Their only child is deceased. Mr. Thomas and his wife are members of the Reformed Church, to which he contributes liberally.

THE LATE HENRY ABRAHAM SCHILDKNECHT, a retired agriculturist of Middletown District, in which community he is numbered among the honorable and highly respected citizens, was born in Jackson District, near Myersville, Frederick County, August 6, 1830. He is a son of Jacob and Maria (Routzahn) Schildknecht.

Jacob Schildknecht was born near Myersville, Frederick County, Md., in 1798, and died May 11, 1882. His parents were natives of Germany, and were among the early settlers of the Middletown Valley. He spent his life following the occupation of a farmer. In politics, he gave his support to the Republican party. In religion, he was affiliated with the Lutheran Church. He was married to Maria Routzahn. They were the parents of nine children, six of whom grew to maturity Henry Abraham; Lena, deceased, married Joseph Brown, still living; Louise M., married Martin Snyder, deceased; Jacob Luther, deceased; Charles E., a farmer in Missouri; and Harlen R., of the State of Washington.

Henry Abraham Schildknecht, son of Jacob and Maria (Routzahn) Schildknecht, was reared on a farm. His eduactional advantages were limited, as he only attended the old fashioned district schools for several winter sessions. Having become familiar with farm duties while a lad, he took up farming as his occupation. This he spent his active life in, and in 1902, he retired to enjoy a well merited competency. He was very successful at agriculture. His success came to him, however, as the result of his own efforts. He began life very poor but by industry, honesty and strict economy was enabled to spend the rest of his life in ease. When he was engaged in active farming, he was the possessor of three fine farms, one of 194 acres near Boliver, in Middletown District; one of 207 acres in Washington County, Md., and one of 156 acres in Middletown District. Mr. Schildknecht was a director in the Middletown Savings Bank of Middletown, of which financial institution he was one of the organizers. He was also one of the prime movers in the formation of the Valley Savings Bank of Middletown in 1887, in which he served as a director for more than twenty years. Mr. Schildknecht was one of Middletown District's best known and most highly respected citizens.

In politics, Mr. Schildknecht gave his support to the Republican party for half a century. In religion, he was affiliated with the Lutheran Church, being a member of the congregation at Myersville.

Mr. Schildknecht was twice married, first in 1855 to Ellen Marken, daughter of John Marken, by whom he had one son, Josiah, of Boonsboro, Washington County Md.; secondly, January 14, 1858, to Esther Flook, daughter of Philip and Magdalena (Shoemaker) Flook, who were members of one of the old families of Middletown Valley. There were six children by this marriage: Louisa, unmarried; John, engaged in farming near Boonsboro, Washington County, Md.; Emma Catharine, the wife of Howard Huffer, a farmer near Broad Run; Helen Frances, married Oliver O. Beachley, a farmer of Middletown District; Harlen, an agriculturist of Middletown; and Charles L., also engaged in farming in Middletown.

****

HOWARD M. HUFFER, owner of one of the finest farms in the Middletown Valley, three miles from Burkittsville, Md., son of David and Annie (Ahalt) Huffer, was born on the farm on which he now resides, the old Huffer homestead, in November, 1859.

Joseph Huffer, grandfather of Howard M. Huffer, started from his old home in Washington County, Md., with five dollars in cash and a few clothes tied up in a bandanna. With his bundle over his shoulder, he journeyed over the mountain into Frederick County, Md., and there hired as a day laborer among the farmers. He had some education and was forced to battle with the world under adverse circumstances. His only capital was health, industry and patience; these qualities were well invested, and brought Mr. Huffer a substantial reward.

Mr. Huffer's father, David Huffer, was born on the old Huffer farm in Middletown District, Frederick County, Md. His opportunities for education were very limited; he grew up on his father's farm and, like other farmers' sons in those days, had plenty of hard work and little or rather no time for play. When scarcely more than a boy, he began business for his father, driving a team to and from Baltimore, in all kinds of weather. In winter the rain hung in icicles on the wagon and tinkled like bells in the bitter cold. When the stopping places were reached, no comfortable bed awaited the tired lad; instead he was often obliged to lie on the bare floor, his clothes sopping wet with nothing dry to put on his tired limbs. However he earned and saved and at the time of his marriage, he was able to purchase the farm now owned by his son, Howard M. Huffer. This farm known as "Long's Last Chance," lies in the Middletown Valley along the road from Burkittsville to Jefferson, three miles from Burkittsville. Mr. Huffer built the home in 1860, the barn in 1881, and other buildings followed as soon as he was able, as he spent the remainder of his life in improving and cultivating his place. David Huffer was a Republican. He was married to Annie Ahalt. Their children are: 1, Joseph, farming in Jefferson District, Frederick County; 2, Emma, married Mahlon D. Arnold, of Loudoun County, Va.; 3, Jacob, resides near Middletown, Md., married Emma, daughter of Samuel Shaffer; 4, Howard M.; 5, Oliver Augustus, farming in Burkittsville District, married Amanda, daughter of Daniel Arnold. Mr. Huffer died at the homestead on October 30th, 1903. He was a devout member of the Lutheran Church in Middletown. He led an exemplary Christian life; was temperate in all things, never drank liquor nor used tobacco. Mrs. Huffer died on October 31, 1898.

Howard M. Huffer was educated in the schools of Frederick County, at Broad Run school house, attending school each winter until he was twenty. During the summer months, he assisted his father with the farm work, and remained at home until his father died. Four years before his father's death, Mr. Huffer purchased the homestead on which he is constantly making improvements. The farm originally consisted of 146 1-2 acres to which Mr. Huffer has added 26 acres. He is one of the best and most progressive farmers of Middletown Valley. It has always been a disputed point as to who owns the finest farm in the valley, but all agree that Howard Huffer's ranks among the first five or six. Mr. Huffer is a Republican.

Howard M. Huffer was married to Emma, daughter of Abraham Schildknecht, who is one of the directors of the Middletown Savings Bank. Howard M. and Emma (Schildknecht) Huffer have two children: Irma Katherine, and Louise May. Mr. Huffer and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church. He holds his membership in the church at Burkittsville, while her membership is in the church in Middletown.

THE LATE LEWIS A. HILDEBRAND, one of the leading farmers of Buckeystown District, Frederick County, Md., son of John and Lydia (Albaugh) Hildebrand, both deceased, was born on his father's farm, near Rockey Springs, Md., February 23, 1832.

Mr. Hildebrand's grandparents, who were Germans, were among the early settlers of Frederick County. His father, John Hildebrand, was well known among the older residents of Frederick County, where he owned a valuable farm in Tuscarora District, situated near Rockey Springs, three mile north of Frederick. He gave his whole attention to caring for his homestead, and was highly regarded in the community. He was a stanch Democrat. John Hildebrand was married to Lydia Albaugh. Their children were: 1, Amanda, deceased, married to the late Peter Eves, farmer; 2, William, deceased, farmer; 3, Lewis A.; 4, Sophia (Mrs. Hiram Hargett), deceased; 5, Louisa, married to her brother-in-law, Hiram Hargett; 6, John, Myersville, Md.; 7, Lydia, married to Charles Orrison, a farmer of Tuscarora District, Frederick County, residing near Rockey Springs; 8, Laura A., deceased, married to Simon Best, a farmer of Montgomery County, Md.; 9, Joshua, of Dayton, Ohio. Mr. Hildebrand and his wife were members of the Reformed Church. He was a generous supporter of all religious benevolences.

Lewis A. Hildebrand grew up on the homestead, and received his education in the public schools of Tuscarora District. He remained with his parents until after his marriage, when he began farming for himself on the old Abram Kemp farm, near Frederick, Md., which he cultivated successfully for seven years. After renting various properties, Mr. Hildebrand removed to the farm on which his widow now resides, and three years later he purchased the place from A. W. Nicodemus, spending the remainder of his life in cultivating and improving it. This farm which is one of the best in the county is advantageously situated about five miles south of Frederick, on the New Design road. Mr. Hildebrand remodeled the dwelling, built a large bank barn, and convenient outbuildings. He was a progressive farmer and his skill and care have increased the productive power of the land. The farm is well cultivated and in excellent condition. He ascribed his success to hard work and to the assistance of his loving devoted wife. He had a fine dairy and was one of the largest shippers in the district. Mr. Hildebrand was a stanch Democrat, and was highly esteemed in the district where he had a large circle of friends.

Lewis A. Hildebrand was married to Amanda Winepigler. Their children are: 1, David, on the home farm with his mother; 2, Annie B., married to Henry L. Black, of Thurmont, now a farmer of Montgomery County; 3, George L., has charge of the home farm for his mother; 4, Charles R., a farmer of Middletown District; 5, Lydia C., married to Daniel Grove, a farmer of Rohrersville District, Washington County; 6, Isadore V., at home; 7, John, a retired coachmaker of Myersville; 8, Florence, at home. Mr. Hildebrand was a stanch member of the Reformed Church in Buckeystown, Md., and contributed liberally to the support of the church. He died at his home in Frederick County, May 7, 1900, and was laid to rest in Mt. Olivet Cemetery. After the death of her husband, Mrs. Hildebrand carried on the farm with the assistance of her children. She is very successful and ascribes her good fortune to the fact that they all work hard and labor together. Mrs. Hildebrand is also a member of the Reformed Church, and is active in all church work.

THE LATE LEWIS J. MARTZ, a prominent farmer of Tuscarora District, Frederick County, Md., son of David S. and Harriet S. (Wachter) Martz, both deceased, was born on the old Martz homestead, in Frederick District, Frederick County, Md., April 18, 1836.

Major George Martz, an officer in the United States Army in the War of 1812, the grandfather of Lewis J. Martz, came to America from Germany when he was quite a young man. He was accompanied by his brother, who settled in Pennsylvania. George S. Martz made his home in Frederick County, Md. He was married to Catherine Reece. They had five children, among them a son named David S. Martz. Major Martz and his wife died on their farm in Frederick County.

(For particulars of family history, see biographical sketch of John H. Martz which appears in this volume.)

The late David S. Martz, father of Lewis J. Martz, was born in 1813. His educational advantages were limited but he attended a private school in his native district. He remained with his parents and when his father retired from farming, took charge of the homestead. Mr. Martz was a prosperous farmer and was highly esteemed in the county. He was a Republican. David S. Martz was married to Harriet S., daughter of Samuel and Mary (Stull) Wachter, of Frederick District, both deceased. Of their twelve children, ten reached adult age: 1, Lewis J.; 2, Wilson N., rural mail carrier, of Frederick, Md.; 3, Maretta E., (Mrs. Uriah Wachter), of Frederick, deceased; 4, Caroline C., married to Isaac Houck, a farmer of Lewistown District, Frederick County; 5, David H., a farmer of Woodsboro District, Frederick County; 6, Annie V., married to the late Randolf N. Whitmore, a prominent farmer of Tuscarora District, and after his death to the late Lawrence Bentz, of Frederick; 7, Julia A., married to Daniel Z. Stull, a farmer of Tuscarora District; 8, Albert T., a farmer of New Market District, Frederick County; 9, George S., a farmer of Tuscarora District; 10, Charles C., a farmer on the homestead in Tuscarora District. Mr. Martz and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church at Bethel. He died very suddenly, December 5, 1860. His widow lived to celebrate her eighty-fifth birthday.

Lewis J. Martz attended the public schools of the district, and remained with his father on the homestead until he was twenty-five, when he began farming for himself. In 1898, after farming successfully for some time on rented land, Mr. Martz purchased a valuable farm in Tuscarora District. He put up new buildings and improved his property in every way until it was numbered among the desirable farms of the district. He was well-known as an excellent farmer, and a good citizen.

Lewis J. Martz was married to Margaret C., daughter of David L. and Sarah A. (McDevitt) Staley, both deceased, whose father was a well-known farmer of Tuscarora District. Her paternal ancestors, the Staleys, were among the early settlers of that section of Frederick County. The children of Lewis J. and Margaret C. (Staley) Martz are: 1, Fannie E., married to Jeremiah W. Etzler, a farmer of Johnsville District, Frederick County; 2, William H., a farmer of Johnsville District; 3, Samuel B., a farmer of Lewistown District, Frederick County; 4, Ida R., married to Lloyd Wachter, a farmer of Tuscarora District; 5, Joseph D., farming the homestead; 6, Allen S., a salesman of Baltimore, Md.; 7, Eugene A., of Iowa. Mr. Martz died at his home in Frederick County, October 4, 1905, and is buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery. He was a member of Pleasant Hill Union Church, and served the congregation as elder for many years. His widow resides on the home farm, which is cultivated for her by her son, Joseph D. Martz.

JOHN D. STORR, engaged in agriculture and fruit growing in Lewistown District, is one of the honorable citizens of Frederick County. His birth took place in Mount Pleasant District on February 3, 1864. He is a son of Henry C. and Elizabeth (Glaze) Storr.

Henry C. Storr was a native of Liverpool, England, where he was born in 1836. His father was John Storr. The latter came to this country from England in 1852, landing at New York, and settled in Mount Pleasant District, Frederick County, Md., where he engaged in farming and lived to a good old age.

Henry C. Storr was brought to America by his parents. Part of his education was secured in England and part in Mount Pleasant District, Frederick County. He followed farming all his life. He owned a fine farm of 142 acres in the Mount Pleasant district, which was well improved. In 1864, he bought from Albert Ramsburg a farm of 104 acres, situated near Bethel. He removed from Mount Pleasant District to this latter place, where he spent the rest of his days. He died in 1895. This farm is now owned by one of his sons. He was also the possessor of a fine farm of 112 acres, now owned by his son, John D., in Lewistown District. Mr. Storr was an adherent of Republican tenets. He held membership in Zion Reformed Church, of Charlesville. Mr. Storr was married to Elizabeth Glaze, daughter of David Glaze, of Frederick. There was issue of eight children by this union, five of whom reached maturity: John D., whose name heads this sketch; Mary E., the wife of Frank Michael, of Mount Pleasant District; Charles H., a clerk in the Navy Yard at Philadelphia, Pa.; Andrew G., of Tuscarora District; and Bertha M., married to Bradley Clem, of Lewistown District.

John D. Storr, son of Henry C. and Elizabeth (Glaze) Storr, secured his learning in the public school at Bethel. He assisted his father until he was thirty-two years of age, when he purchased one of the latter's farms. This place contains 112 acres, and lies about six miles north of Frederick on the Emmitsburg turnpike. This farm he has improved in many ways. He has erected a fine house and barn and all necessary outbuildings. It is one of the finest fruit farms in Frederick county. There are at present 2,200 choice peach, pear and apple trees growing and in excellent condition. In 1908, Mr. Storr sold several hundred bushels of peaches and also had a fine crop of apples and pears. He is also extensively engaged in the raising of strawberries, and supplies a large trade. Mr. Storr is an authority on fruit culture and is one of the prosperous and successful citizens of Lewistown District. He is a man of excellent character and highly esteemed by all who know him.

Mr. Storr is a Republican in his political views. He is a member of Zion Reformed Church at Charlesville.

Mr. Storr was married to Ada McDeviett, daughter of John E. and Jane (Zimmerman) McDeviett, of Charlesville. This marriage took place in 1894, and has issue of three children, namely: Elgie M., Ruth E. and Pauline R. Mrs. Storr is also connected with Zion Reformed Church of Charlesville.

BRADLEY E. CLEM, a prominent young farmer of Lewistown District, who has been very successful at agriculture, was born September 9, 1877. He is a son of John H. and Wilhelmina (Stull) Clem, and a grandson of Jacob and Mary M. (Hiteshew) Clem.

Jacob Clem was a native of Lewistown District, and died November 24, 1899. In the public school at Utica, in Lewistown District, he secured his education. Until within a short time of his death, he was engaged in agricultural pursuits. His first farm was the old Schley place, the former home of Rear-Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, which Mr. Clem cultivated for a period of thirty years, being very successful. He then purchased a farm of 280 acres of land and removed thither. He improved this place with a new bank barn and out-buildings. Here he was located for ten years, when he disposed of the place to Dr. T. E. R. Miller. Mr. Clem procured a smaller farm. A few years later he also sold this home, and removed to Kansas, where he remained for some time, after which he returned to Frederick County, and bought a home in Mechanicstown. In the last named place he had his residence for some years, when he built a home near Mountain Dale, and removed there. A few years afterward, he went to Frederick City, and made his home with his daughter, staying there the remainder of his days. In politics, Mr. Clem used his influence in favor of the Republican party, and in religious belief, he was a Lutheran. Mr. Clem was twice married. He was married first to Mary M. Hiteshew, daughter of Philip Hiteshew, of Frederick District. They were the parents of ten children: Catherine, the wife of Milton Crutchley, of Frederick City; George J., lives at Dayton O.; Margaret, married to Joseph Eaton, of Lewistown District; John H.; Florence, the wife of Samuel Toms, of Kansas; Samuel E., a resident of Dayton, O.; David, deceased; and three that died young. Mrs. Clem died in 1865. Mr. Clem afterwards married, and by this second marriage was the father of eleven children.

John H. Clem, son of Jacob and Mary M. (Hiteshew) Clem, secured a public school education, attending the Lewistown school. Early in life he left home to earn his own livelihood. Until he was married he hired out on various farms, working by the month. After his marriage he took charge of his father-in-law's farm, and this he managed for twenty years. At the end of that time his father-in-law, George Stull, died and the farm was sold being purchased by Mr. Clem's brother-in-law. Mr. Clem then cultivated the place on shares, being located here in this way from 1889 to 1904. During that period he purchased a farm of 88 acres in Lewistown District, which he also cultivated, and in 1904, he secured his present farm of 114 acres of excellent land from Elmer Crum. This place lies about seven miles north of Frederick, on the Frederick, Washington & Gettysburg Railroad, in Lewistown District. It is well improved and is considered one of the most fertile tracts in the district. Mr. Clem has disposed of his 88 acre tract to Charles Rice. Mr. Clem started life in very poor circumstances, and is now possessed of a competency sufficient for his future needs. He is a man of high character and his success is well merited.

In politics, Mr. Clem is an adherent of the Republican party. In religion, he is an influential member and very active worker in the Bethel Lutheran Church. He has served as deacon and elder for the past thirty years, is a member of the board of trustees and has been superintendent of the Sunday school for a long period.

Mr. Clem was married to Wilhelmina S. Stull, daughter of George and Mary S. (Staffer) Stull. They were the parents of eight children, seven of whom grew up: Mary C., lives at home; Bradley E.; Chester G., of Tuscarora District, is a teacher in the Frederick City High School; Harvey S., Thomas M., Altah S., and Walter G. H., are all at home. Mrs. Clem is also connected with Bethel Lutheran Church.

Bradley E. Clem, son of John H. and Wilhelmina S. (Stull) Clem, had but meagre educational advantages. As a boy he assisted in the work on the home farm in the summer, and attended the public schools in the winter, but when he was fifteen years old he was compelled to discontinue the latter that his whole services might be available in the care of the homestead. He remained with his father until he was married. Then, in 1901, he cultivated the home farm for one year, after which he purchased a tract of 68 acres of good agricultural land. This place is well improved with a fine two-story stone house and barn, and is one of the finest of the smaller farms in the District. The previous owner had been William Long. It is situated about eight miles north of Frederick City on the Utica road, and about a half mile from Utica. Mr. Clem is industrious, and this, coupled with intelligent methods has brought success to him at agriculture.

Politically, Mr. Clem gives his support to the principles of the Republican party. Religiously, he is affiliated with the Bethel Lutheran Church, in which he has filled the office of deacon.

Mr. Clem was married to Bertha M. Storr, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth (Glaze) Storr. There are two children by this union: Earl J. H., and Lillian. Mrs. Clem is a member of the Utica Reformed Church.

JACOB HOKE, one of the leading farmers of Frederick County, Md., owner of "Mountain Farm," situated near Emmitsburg, Md., son of Jacob and Mary (Link) Hoke, was born near St. Joseph's Academy, January 21, 1848.

Peter Hoke, great-great-grandfather of Jacob Hoke, a native of Germany, came to America at an early date, and received a deed for his land from an Indian Chief. This grant was afterwards confirmed by Penn's heirs. Mr. Hoke's great-grandfather, Jacob Hoke, spent his whole life on this land, which was situated in York County, Pa. Here his grandparents, Jacob and Anna Mary Grons Hoke, passed their lives.

Jacob Hoke, the third of the name, father of Jacob Hoke, was born on his father's farm in York County, Pa., where he spent his childhood and early youth. He was a hatter and broom-maker, and was also a fine mechanic in wood. After his marriage, Mr. Hoke removed to Frederick County, Md., where he was engaged in milling and making brooms. Jacob Hoke was married, in York County, Pa., to Mary Link, of York County. Their children are: 1, Annie, widow of John Septer, resides in Emmitsburg, Md.; 2, Sarah (Mrs. Augustus Stieg), of York; 3, Jacob; 4, John carpenter, resides at Mount St. Mary's College, married Margaret Shob; 5, Elizabeth (Mrs. Joseph Claybargh), resides near Thurmont, Md.; 6, Amanda (Mrs. James Moran), of Hagerstown, Md.; 7, George, died in youth. Mr. Hoke and his wife died in Frederick County, Md.

Jacob Hoke received the greater part of his education in the Annandale School-house. His first teacher was John Donnelly, and he continued his studies under Mary McDermott, Henry Annan, Charles Eichelberger, Jerry Damuth, William Sharretts, Martha Moore, and Michael McFadden, leaving school at eighteen. During the winter, his spare time was spent in helping his father in making brooms. In summer he assisted his father to repair the roads for whose condition his father was responsible, having been supervisor for fifteen years. When he was twenty-three, Mr. Hoke began making brick for his father-in-law, Benjamin Keilholtz, on the farm which he now owns. After he purchased the farm, he continued business in the brickyard for several years. In 1875, Mr. Hoke removed to Adams County, Pa., where he remained for nineteen years. Not long after his removal, he was elected supervisor in Adams County. Two years after the death of his father-in-in-law, in 1895, he returned to Frederick County and purchased the farm on which he now resides. "Mountain Farm," consisting of 128 acres of fine land, is one mile southeast of Emmitsburg, and was part of "Shield's Addition." The house was built about two hundred years ago, by Ebenezer Shields, the first of that name to occupy the farm. Mr. Hoke has greatly increased the value of the land, by the use of fertilizers and by intelligent cultivation, and has repaired the buildings, and made various other improvements. He and his wife had no financial advantages. Their prosperity is the reward of industry and hard work. Mr. Hoke is a Democrat, interested in all that concerns the welfare of the community.

Jacob Hoke was married, May 18, 1871, to Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Derr) Keilholtz, who was born on the old Paxon farm near Emmitsburg, Md. The children of Jacob and Mary Elizabeth (Keilholtz), Hoke are: 1, Mary Elizabeth, Effie, (Mrs. Phillip King) of Waynesboro, Pa., has four children, George, Edwin, Pauline, and Harold; 2, Flora (Mrs. Harry Shully), of Reading, Pa., has two children, Frederick, and Miriam; 3, Kramer J., principal of the schools of Manchester, Va., is a graduate of Emmitsburg high-school and of Mount St. Mary's College. and spent one year at the University of Virginia; 4, Alice, at home; 5, Henry, living in Illinois, married Miss Galt, has one child, Mary C.; 6, Clarence; 7 and 8, twins, Lottie and Lillie; 9, Keilholtz. Mr. Hoke and his wife are members of the Reformed Church in Emmitsburg, Md.

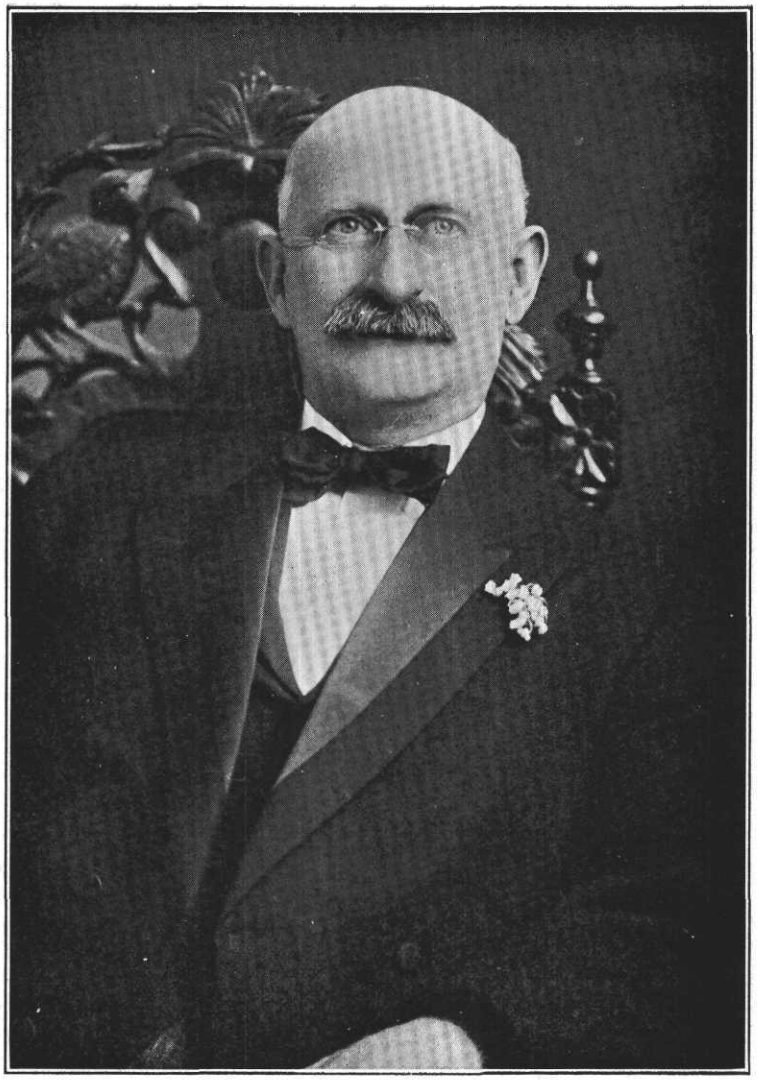
LOUIS ORNDORF WILLIS, son of William Lewis and Frances Ann (Finley) Willis, was born on the estate which is still his home—"Sunnyside"—on February 14, 1857.

The Willis family is of English origin. One of its ancestors, a Dr. Willis, was court physician to Queen Elizabeth. Three brothers belonging to that family emigrated to America. One of them settled on the Eastern Shore of Maryland; one went to Texas; and the third settled near Berryville, Va. Levan C. Willis, the grandfather of Louis O., was a descendant of the first of the three—the settler in Maryland. He was born on February 15, 1792. In 1814, on October 23, he married Eliza Orndorf (born May 31, 1798). For a time, they resided in Ohio or Indiana; but after a few years, returning to the East, they settled near Herring Run, Baltimore Co. Later, they removed to Frederick County, and took possession of an estate called Walnut Grove, a tract of 500 acres, one-half mile from New Market; this place they afterwards named Williston. Mr. Willis was a Democrat of the old school, and a slave-holder. He and his wife were members of the Methodist Protestant Church. When a young man, Levan C. Willis was sent by the U. S. Government on a mission to the Indians of Arkansas. He smoked the pipe of peace with them. This pipe was presented to Mr.



Louis O. Willis

Willis, who as a token of appreciation and esteem by the Indians and as a memento brought the pipe home with him. Its bowl is of stone, its stem of hickory or ash wood; it is now in the possession of Mr. Louis O. Willis, who prizes it very highly.

The children of Levin C. and Eliza (Orndorf) Willis were: 1, Eliza, born August 18, 1815, died unmarried; 2, Henry Newton, born September 19, 1817; 3, Eliza Ann, born March 15, 1820; 4, Susan Ellen, born December 16, 1822; 5, John Emory, born April 8, 18—; 6, William Lewis, born 1831, died in 1858; 7, Keziah Ann, born in 18—; 8, Levan Nicholas, born in 18—; 9, Maria Louisa, born in 18—; 10, Ann Eliza, born in 18—; 11, Arietta, born in 18—, married John Swartz, of Baltimore. Mr. Levan C. Willis died on his farm, Williston, in 1881, at the age of 89 years.

William Lewis Willis was born at Herring Run, near Baltimore, Md., and in his early manhood removed to Frederick County. He studied medicine in Baltimore, graduated, and practised for some time in that city. There, in 1852, he married Miss Frances Ann, daughter of William and Catherine (Garrettson) Finley. Mrs. William Finley was a daughter of Garrett Garrettson, of Harford County. About three years after his marriage, Dr. Wm. L. Willis came to Frederick County, and for some time practised his profession at his home, Sunnyside, now occupied by his son; this was his residence until his death, in June, 1858. He is buried at Spesutia Church, Harford Co., Md. His wife died at Sunnyside in 1901, and is buried beside him. Of their two children, only one, Louis Orndorf, lived to reach mature age. Dr. Willis was a Democrat.

From his eighth year to his eighteenth, Louis O. Willis studied at a private school taught by the Rev. Wm. F. Brand, in Emmorton, Harford Co., with the exception of two years during which he was a pupil of Dr. Robt. Atkinson, who conducted a private school in Baltimore, and one year at Nazareth Hall, Northampton Co., Pa. He then spent one year at a Polytechnic School in Brooklyn, N. Y.; then two years at the University of Virginia, at Charlottesville, after which he returned home, and has since that time been engaged in agricultural pursuits. In 1884, he purchased an extensive tract of timber land in Berkeley Co., W. Va., cleared it, and farmed it for a short time; this land he sold some years ago. Mr. Willis has always been warmly interested in the cause of higher education, and in the political affairs of the country. He adheres to the Democratic party. He joined the A. F. and A. M. in West Virginia. Mr. and Mrs. Willis are members of the Episcopal Church, in which he was for twenty-two years a vestryman.

Louis Orndorf Willis was married in 1887 to Miss Anna Mary, daughter of George and Elizabeth (Anderson) Newkirk, of Berkeley Co., W. Va. Their children are: 1, Hugh Finley; 2, Elizabeth Newkirk; 3, William Brand; 4, Christopher Hampton; 5, Frances Finley; 6, Louis Orndorf; 7, George Newkirk, deceased; 8, Mary Anderson; 9, Levin Charles.

Through his grandmother, Mr. Willis is related to Elizabeth Orndorf, in whose honor Hagerstown received its former name, Elizabethtown. Jonathan Hager, for whom it was afterwards called, was also an ancestor. The Orndorf family is prominent in Washington County.

LORENZO E. MULLINIX, merchant, son of the late Leonard C. and Elizabeth (Simpson) Mullenix, was born in Frederick County, Md., about eight miles from Frederick City May 30, 1855.

Frederick, Maryland, will always occupy one of the foremost places in America history. From the time when the first house was erected, in 1746, to the present day, it has been distinguished not only for the brilliancy and learning of its bar, but for its renowned statesmen, its brave soldiers, and its men of remarkable talents and inventive genius. These men, by their achievements, have not only won for themselves an enviable position on the roll of the world's real benefactors, but have made their home town conspicious among the towns of the country. Few names have been more widely circulated than that of Mr. L. E. Mullinix, author and publisher of the "Reliable Wall Paper Chart." This valuable little book was first published in 1899, and at once found an appreciative public. It was immediately indorsed by the largest jobbers and manufacturers of wallpaper in the United States and Canada, as one of the greatest time and labor-saving schemes ever offered to the public. Up to the present time, 1909, it has been steadily growing in favor and over three hundred and fifty thousand copies have been sold and shipped to every part of the United States and Canada. The need of just such a reference book had been felt by the trade for a long time, but it remained for old Frederick to supply this want.

The paternal ancestors of Mr. L. E.

Mullinix, were Huguenots, emigrants from France, where the name was written Molyneaux or Mullineaux. These sturdy people suffered exile rather than forego the right of free thought and free speech. It is said that when these reliable citizens together with the Jews were driven from France, that country narrowly escaped bankruptcy, and that their flight into England helped to make that nation the counting house of the world. If we would take from America the Hugenots, the Quakers, the Puritans and other refugees, it could hardly be called the "Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave."

Thomas Mullinix, grandfather of L. E. Mullinix, married Miss Brown whose family had settled, in Colonial days, in Howard, then a part of Anne Arundel County, Md. Her ancestors had served with distinction in the Revolutionary War.

Leonard C. Mullinix, father of L. E. Mullinix, was a successful farmer of Frederick County, Md. In 1856 he moved to Birmingham farm just south of Frederick, where he remained until 1882, cultivating and improving his property. This old farm has an interesting history. It was made from a part of the "Rocky Creek" tract granted to John Stoddard, May 22, 1728, part of "Locust Level," granted to Daniel Dulaney, July 11, 1756, and part of "Tasker's Chance," granted to Benjamin Tasker, June 9, 1727. The old residence, which is still standing, was evidently built prior to the Revolution. The fact that it faces directly south is conclusive evidence that it was erected before the laying out of Frederick City, which occurred in 1745. Mount Olivet Cemetery was formerly a part of this old farm. In 1882, Leonard C. Mullinix removed to Frederick City. On November 15, 1849, he was married to Elizabeth Simpson Etchison. Of their eight children only four reached maturity: 1, Elisha E., for thirty years resident physician at Urbana, Md.; 2, Lorenzo E.; 3, Sybelle M., (Mrs. Marshall L. Etchison); 4, Frances A.

The maternal ancestors of Lorenzo E. Mullinix were among the early emigrants to America, although there are no records showing the exact date of their arrival. John Simpson, his great-grandfather, settled in Prince George's County, Md., where he engaged in farming. He served his adopted country in the War of the Revolution, and Mr. Mullinix has in his possession the two commissions given to John Simpson. The first, given January 3, 1776, at Annapolis, Md., signed by Matthew Tilghman, appointing him ensign in a company from Prince George's County, belonging to the Eleventh Battalion of the Province, and the second, given May 1, 1778, signed by Thomas Johnson, first governor of Maryland, by which he was made first lieutenant of the company. John Simpson was married to Miss Perkins. They had two daughters: Ruth, married Ephriam Etchison; and Elizabeth, born October 8, 1786, married in 1801, to Elisha, brother of Ephriam Etchison. Elisha and Elizabeth (Simpson) Etchison had a number of children, among them, Elizabeth Simpson, born April 7, 1828, married to Leonard C. Mullinix.

The Etchisons or "Aitchesons" came from Scotland, and settled first in Pennsylvania; but, being very much disturbed by the Indians, they removed to Prince George's County, Md. Mr. L. E. Mullinix holds the commission given to his grandfather, Elisha Etchison, appointing him ensign in the company of Captain Ephriam Etchison, in the third regiment of Maryland, given at Annapolis, May 17, 1811, signed by Edward Lloyd.

Lorenzo E. Mullinix spent his boyhood on his father's farm. He attended the public schools of his native place and entered Frederick College. At eighteen he began his business career, serving an apprenticeship with the late Charles C. Smith and G. J. Doll, dealers in dry goods. In 1879, Mr. Mullinix began business for himself as a merchant, and continued to sell dry goods until 1897, when he opened a house for the exclusive sale of carpets, wall-paper and curtains, at his present location, No. 28, North Market street. Mr. Mullinix is strongly domestic in disposition and has never been an aspirant or a candidate for an office. He is a member of the Masonic Order, Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M.; also of the Modern Woodmen of America, and of the Royal Arcanum.

Lorenzo E. Mullinix was married, in 1881, to Mary I., daughter of Daniel R. and Mary C. Hendrickson. Four of their five children are living: Helen Alberta; Mary Edna, married to Captain D. John Markey; Ruth Simpson; and Frances Elizabeth. Mr. Mullinix finds the greatest pleasure of his life in his home with his family. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and for many years, served as treasurer of the board of trustees.

JOHN C. LAMAR, senior member of the firm of Lamar & Son, general merchants, Licksville, Frederick County, Md., son of Benoni and Mary C. (Thomas) Lamar, both deceased, was born on his father's farm near Adamstown, Md., September 13, 1856.

John C. Lamar

The ancestors of the Lamar family, who were of French descent, were among the early settlers of Montgomery County, Md. Thomas Lamar, grandfather of John C. Lamar, owned a large farm near Jefferson, Frederick County, Md. He owned a large number of slaves and was one of the wealthy men of the county. He was prominent among the older farmers and was highly esteemed as a citizen. He married and among his children was a son named Benoni.

Mr. Lamar's father, Benoni Lamar, was born on his father's farm near Jefferson, in 1819. He grew up on the homestead, and was educated in the public schools of Jefferson District. He remained with his father until after his marriage, when he purchased Big Spring Farm, a place of 200 acres, situated near Adamstown, Md., where he spent the remainder of his life. He was one of the successful farmers of Frederick County, where he was known as a reliable citizen. Benoni Lamar was married to Mary C., daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth E. (Kephart) Thomas, whose father was a well-known farmer of Carroll's Manor. Of their eleven children, six reached maturity: 1, Samuel C., of Adamstown, deceased; 2, Marion T., deceased; 3, George A., of Licksville, Md.; 4, William B., deceased; 5, Annie M. (Mrs. Edward Bready), of Adamstown, deceased; 6, John C. Mr. Lamar and his wife were active members of the Reformed Church in Adamstown. Mr. Lamar was killed by lightning, June 11, 1858, and rests in the old Thomas burying ground. His wife died January 22, 1889.

John C. Lamar was educated in the public schools of his native district, and, at fourteen, began to earn money for himself. He worked for different farmers until 1879, when he opened a store for the sale of general merchandise at Licksville, Md. He bought a small tract of land on which he built his storeroom. His venture proving successful, Mr. Lamar enlarged his store, and built the beautiful residence adjoining the store in which he resides. His place is one of the best stocked stores in the county. He carries a full line of general merchandise and a superior assortment of fine farm implements. Mr. Lamar also owns a valuable farm of 300 acres, one of the finest dairy farms in the county, beautifully situated at Tuscarora Station. It is equipped with a comfortable dwelling, a barn and all the necessary buildings. The land is well cultivated and everything is in good repair. Mr. Lamar is one of the enterprising men of the county, and ascribes his financial success to honest labor, and careful attention to business. He is a stockholder and director in the Central National Bank, of Frederick City, and is one of the leading Democrats in Frederick County, where he is highly esteemed.

John C. Lamar was married to Miss Hattie A. Hays, daughter of George R. and Sarah A. (Thomas) Hays, whose parents were the descendants of a prominent family of the county, and a granddaughter of the late Captain Otho Thomas, a well-known farmer of Buckeystown District, Frederick County. They have one son, Clarence H. Lamar, junior member of the firm of J. C. Lamar & Son. Mr. Lamar and his wife are member of the Reformed Church in Adamstown, Md. He is an active worker, a liberal contributor, and has served the congregation as deacon and as elder.

LLOYD C. CULLER, is a native of Buckeystown District, Frederick County, Md., where he was born June 1, 1869. He is a son of Philip and Ann (Dixon) Culler. Mr. Culler is a prominent citizen of Frederick City, and is engaged in the building and contracting business, in which line he has taken high rank.

The Culler family is of Scotch ancestry. The American forebears of the family were very early located in Frederick County, Md.

The grandfather of Lloyd C. Culler was Captain Henry Culler, who lived in Frederick County.

Philip Culler, son of Captain Henry Culler, was born in Jefferson District Frederick County, in 1811, and died in 1884. In his political sympathies, he was a supporter of the Democracy. In religious affairs, he held membership in the Lutheran Church at Feagaville, Frederick County. Mr. Culler was married to Ann Dixon. They were the parents of thirteen children, of whom the following are living: James Henry, a farmer of Feagaville, Ballinger District; William L., engaged in farming in the same district; John J., an agriculturist of Buckeystown district, on Carroll's Manor; Ann Rebecca, the wife of Harlan Beard, a farmer of Ballinger District; George B., of Frederick City; Mary Matilda, the wife of C. M. Trundle, who farms in Ballinger District; and Lloyd C., whose name heads this sketch.

Lloyd C. Culler, son of Philip and Ann (Dixon) Culler, spent his early years on a farm and secured his education in the public schools. He was engaged in farm pursuits until 1889, when he started to learn the carpenter's trade under Newton Shaffer, of Buckeystown District, Frederick County. He remained with Mr. Shaffer for three years, at the end of which time he embarked in the building and contracting business for himself. For the past eighteen years, Mr. Culler has held a prominent place in the building industry of Frederick County. He has been very successful in his chosen work and is one of the foremost builders and contractors in the county. He has had charge of the erection of a number of handsome buildings throughout the county. He it was who built the Frederick City Young Men's Christian Association building, one of the finest edifices in the city. Mr. Culler is one of the honorable and highly respected citizens of the county.

In politics, Mr. Culler uses his influence in favor of the Democratic party, although he has never been found among those seeking public office. Fraternally, he is a member of Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, of Frederick City. In church circles, he is identified with the Lutheran Church at Feagaville, Md., of which he is a consistent member.

On February 20, 1894, Mr. Culler was married to Anna Mary Murray. She is a daughter of Joshua Murray, of Ballinger District, Frederick County, who was descended from one of the long settled families of that part of the State. Mr. and Mrs. Culler are the parents of four daughters: Lillian Margaret, Elizabeth Agnes, Anna Rebecca, and Thelma Regina.

MR. EDWARD A. TOMS, the present deputy Register of Wills of Frederick County, Md., is a resident of Middletown, in which borough he was born March 4, 1868. His parents are Isaiah J. Toms, and Mary C. (Schindler) Toms. Isaiah J. Toms is a son of Jacob and Mary (Floyd) Toms, who were among the first settlers in the upper part of Middletown Valley. Isaiah J. was born August 13th, 1848. He is a confectioner of Middletown. Mary C. (Schindler) Toms was born September 28, 1841, and they were married December 25, 1857. Her mother, Ann C. Schindler, was born May 21, 1809, and died March 24, 1909, aged 99 years, 10 months and 3 days. At a recent reunion of the family there were five living generations present, which is a very rare occurrence, the picture of which represents the mother, Ann C. Schindler, the daughter Mary C. Toms, the daughter Annie M. E. Gaver, the daughter Carrie Daly, and the son, Robert Daly.

Isaiah J. and Mary C. Toms were the parents of the following children: Annie M. E., wife of Samuel D. Gaver, of Martinsburg, W. Va.; Willie E., of Fresno, Fresno County, California; Franklin G., a missionary in Central America; Addie E., the wife of James B. Fisher, a dry goods merchant of Martinsburg, West Va.; Edward A., and Gertrude E., the wife of Rev. E. L. Coblentz, a minister of the Reformed Church, with a charge at Ridgely, Caroline County, Md.

Edward A. Toms, son of Isaiah and Mary C. Toms, passed his boyhood in Middletown, where he was educated in the public schools. At the age of twenty years he became the traveling salesman for the J. A. Williamson Drug Company, of Frederick City. This occupation he followed for fourteen years, resigning his position to accept the position of deputy Register of Wills of Frederick County, under William B. Cutshall, and served in that capacity for six years.

In politics, Mr. Toms is a stanch supporter of the Republican party. He is well known, and is one of the county's leading citizens. He is prominent in fraternal circles, being a member of the following orders: The I. O. O. F.; the Order of the Maccabees; Modern Brotherhood of America; Modern Woodmen of America; Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, of Frederick City; Frederick City Lodge, No. 684, B. P. O. E. In religion, Mr. Toms is a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Middletown, and is also a trustee.

Mr. Toms was married May 19, 1896, to Estie O. Gaver, daughter of George W. and Louisa C. (Ropp) Gaver, a descendant of an old and highly respected family of Middletown Valley. There are three children by this marriage: Joseph Harold, born March 31, 1898; Mary Estelle, born April 10, 1903; and Dorothy Gaver, born October 9, 1906.

WILLIAM ANDERSON, a highly respected agriculturist, who resides on his well improved farm, situated a-half mile west of Frederick City, is a native of Prince George's County, Md., where he was born March 4, 1862. He is a son of Thomas W. and Jane (Turner) Anderson.

The Anderson family is of Scotch origin and located in Maryland during the colonial period.

Samuel B. Anderson, the grandfather of William Anderson, lived in Prince George's County, Md. He was all of his life a stanch supporter of the Democracy, and in religious belief was an Episcopalian. He was married to a Miss Hall. They were the parents of six children: John H.; Samuel H., a physician, and lives near Baltimore, Md.; Thomas William; Ann, married Abraham Woodward; Jennie, became the wife of Dodge Woodward; and ——.

FIVE GENERATIONS.

Carrie E. Dailey, Great-granddaughter.

Mary C. Toms, Daughter. Ann C. Schindler, Mother. Annie M. E. Gaver, Granddaughter.

Robert L. Dailey, Great-great-grandson.

Thomas William Anderson, son of Samuel B. Anderson, was born in Prince George's County, Md., in 1834, and died in Frederick County, Md., in 1888. He was well educated and was a graduate of the University of Virginia. He was for a number of years a member of the Washington Bar. He removed to Frederick County, Md., and in 1867 purchased the farm now owned by his son, William. Mr. Anderson was married to Jane Turner, who is also deceased. They were the parents of six children, of whom two grew to mature years: William, and Thomas T., of Frederick City.

William Anderson, son of Thomas William and Jane (Turner) Anderson, was only five years old when his parents located on the farm on which he now resides. It was on this place that he grew to manhood. He was educated in the public schools and the Frederick City College. He became acquainted with the many duties of farming at home, and has always been engaged in agricultural pursuits. He is now the owner of the farm his father bought upon coming to Frederick County. He is a successful farmer and devotes much time to the trucking business.

Politically, Mr. Anderson is an ardent Democrat. He is a member of the Episcopal Church.

Mr. Anderson was married in 1892 to Zoe Lee Hunter, daughter of Henry Lee and Elizabeth (Pettit) Hunter, of Charlotte, N. C. There are five children by this marriage: Zoe Lee, William Turner, Isabel Pettit, died in childhood, Henry Lee Hunter, and Alexander Knight.

JAMES H. SMITH, a retired farmer of Buckeystown, Md., general overseer of the real estate of the estate of Daniel Baker & Sons, of Frederick County, Md., son of the late Thomas A., of T. and Julia A. (Hood) Smith, was born in the southern part of Buckeystown District, Frederick County, Md., November 24, 1854.

Thomas Smith, grandfather of James H. Smith, who was one of the earliest settlers of Frederick County, was of English descent. He worked in various occupations, always in Frederick County. He was a Democrat, interested in local affairs. Thomas Smith was married to Sophia, daughter of Mr. Mitchell, a descendant of one of the oldest families of Baltimore City. Their children are: 1, Thomas A.; 2, Charles, deceased; 3, Sarah (Mrs. John Burch), of Washington D. C., deceased; 4, Annie, died unmarried.

The late Thomas A. Smith, eldest son of Thomas and Sophia (Mitchell) Smith, both deceased, and father of James H. Smith, was born in the southern part of Urbana District, Frederick County, Md., November 22, 1830. He was educated in the public schools of the district, and remained at home until he reached his majority. He had learned coopering, and was employed in that capacity for four years at Greenfield Mills. Mr. Smith then turned his attention to farming and, in 1865, purchased from Captain Nicholas Worthington, 200 acres of arable land situated near Urbana, Md. He improved his farm in every way; the land is well cultivated, and the buildings in good repair. He was energetic and enterprising, worked hard, attended closely to business, and his reward was financial success. In 1883, he retired from active work, but continued to reside on the farm. Mr. Smith was a Republican. In 1888, he was elected one of the county commissioners, by a large majority, and as president of the board, discharged the duties of his office promptly and efficiently. Thomas A. Smith was married to Julia A., daughter of Alexander and Elizabeth (Kurfman) Hood, of Scotch and German descent, whose father was a veteran of the War of 1812. They had one child, James H. Smith. Mr. Smith was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Urbana. He was an active worker and held various offices in the church, to which he contributed liberally. He died at his home in Frederick County, April 13, 1896, and is buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery. His widow, who is in her eightieth year, resides with her son.

James H. Smith attended the public schools of his native district, and completed his education at Frederick College. He remained with his parents, and, after the death of his father, took charge of the farm and the business, and was a very efficient manager. In 1899, Mr. Smith erected his beautiful home in Buckeystown. His mother resides with him. He afterwards accepted a position as general superintendent of all the real estate of Daniel Baker and Sons. He has devoted his whole time to this business, in which he has proved himself an able financier. Mr. Smith, who is one of the best and most prosperous business men of Frederick County, ascribed his success to constant attention, and enjoys the esteem of his fellow citizens.

James H. Smith was married, October 30th,

1878, to Alice, daughter of the late Thomas Dixon, of Urbana, Md. She died October 14, 1902, and is buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Mr. Smith's second wife was Almira, daughter of Charles H. Millard, of Buckeystown. She died September 8, 1905, and is buried in Mt. Olivet Cemetery. On November 11, 1908, Mr. Smith was married to Alice, daughter of John F. Stine, a prominent farmer residing near Frederick City, Md. They have no children. Mr. Smith and his wife are members of the Methodist Protestant Church in Buckeystown. He takes an active part in the work of the church, to which he contributes liberally.

MILLARD F. FLOOK, who lives two miles southwest of Middletown on the Middletown and Burkittsville road, where he is engaged in farming, was born August 14, 1855. His parents were Daniel and Elizabeth Susan (Mumma) Flook.

The Flook family is of German lineage, and was early located in Frederick County, Md., the first of the name settling in the Middletown Valley. Jacob Flook, the grandfather of Millard F. Flook, was a farmer. In politics, he was a Whig in early life, but after the formation of the Republican party, he was a loyal supporter of the latter. Religiously, he was a member of the Reformed Church. Jacob Flook was the father of these children: Hanson; Jacob; Perry; Daniel; Catharine, married Joshua Routzahn; Elizabeth, married Dewalt Willard; Eveline, married Henry Jarbo.

Daniel Flook, son of Jacob Flook, was born about 1826, and died May 4, 1870. He spent his entire life following agricultural pursuits. In religion, he was affiliated with the Reformed Church. Mr. Flook was married to Elizabeth Susan Mumma. They were the parents of eight children, five of whom grew to maturity: William S., engaged in farming in Petersville district, Frederick County; Lewis Martin, of Garland, Tex.; John P. T., a resident of Anderson County, Kan.; Millard Filmore; and Elizabeth, the wife of John M. Ahalt, of Creagerstown District, Frederick County.

Millard Filmore Flook, son of Daniel and Elizabeth Susan (Mumma) Flook, was born and grew to manhood on his father's farm. He received such an education as the public schools of the district afforded. Like his forebears, he selected farming as an occupation, a vocation he has always followed. He is the possessor of the old farm of his father, which contains 120 acres of good farm land. This tract is well improved with good buildings, and by intelligent and up-to-date methods Mr. Flook annually secures large crops. Politically, Mr. Flook is a supporter of the Republican party. In religion, he is a consistent and active member of Christ Reformed Church of Middletown, in which he has filled the offices of deacon and elder. He has also served as school trustee and road supervisor.

Mr. Flook was married November 24, 1878, to Melissa E. Bowlus, daughter of Capt. Stephen R. and Caroline (Remsburg) Bowlus. They were the parents of five children: Oscar B., unmarried, employed by the C. and P. Telephone Company, of Baltimore, Md.; Hattie M., the wife of Alonzo J. Ahalt, and they have four children, Millard, Edgar, Harold and Arthur; Annie E., unmarried, resides at home; Staley M., married Beulah Arnold, by whom he has one son, Millard Benton; and Cyrus Rudolph, unmarried, resides at home.

Captain Stephen R. Bowlus, Mrs. Flook's father, was a son of Nicholas Bowlus, who was a farmer. He and his wife, Caroline Remsburg, were the parents of the following children: Lewis H.; Samuel L.; Stephen; Eliza, married Claggett Biser; Mary F., the wife of Charles Willard; Julia K., the wife of Charles C. Maught; and Melissa Ellen, the wife of Mr. Flook.

GEORGE C. HUFFER, who is now living retired in Middletown, is a carpenter by trade but spent most of his active life at farming. He was born on the old Huffer homestead, three miles south of Middletown, July 2, 1848. His parents are Joseph L. and Catharine (Mullendore) Huffer.

Joseph L. Huffer was a son of John Huffer, who was a farmer and of German descent. The former was born in Washington County, in 1800, and died in February, 1882. He was in early life a wagoner on the old National pike between Baltimore and Cumberland, Md. He afterwards engaged in farming in the Middletown Valley, and died well-to-do. Joseph L. Huffer came to Frederick County after marriage, carrying his worldly goods in a handkerchief, and by his labors accumulated enough during life to start each of his children in business on their own farms. Politically, he was a stanch Republican. In religion, he was a devout members of the United Brethren Church, in which he was very active. Mr. Huffer was married to Catharine Mullendore. They were the parents of nine children, eight of whom grew to maturity: David, who died recently at the age of eighty-two years; Eliza, the widow of William P. Remsburg, now resides in Washington County, Md.; John, a farmer of Washington County, Md.; Joseph D., of Broad Run, Frederick County; Jacob, engaged in farming in Middletown District; Julia, the wife of Daniel Grove, of Washington County, Md.; William E., a farmer of Somerset County, Md.; and George C.

George C. Huffer, son of Joseph L. and Catharine (Mullendore) Huffer, was reared on his father's farm, and as a lad attended the public schools. He learned the trade of a carpenter, and followed this occupation, together with farming, for many years. In 1903, he sold his farm and removed to Middletown, where he built his present beautiful home. In politics, he is an adherent of the Republican party, but has never cared for office. Religiously, he is a member of the United Brethren Church. Mr. Huffer is well known in Middletown, where he is highly respected, and called "Uncle George" by nearly all who knew him. Never is any one turned away from his door hungry or otherwise in need, without an effort to make them comfortable. He is charitable to a fault and assists others when he knows that it will inconvenience himself.

In 1883, Mr. Huffer was married to Mary M. DeLauder, daughter of Samuel and Lydia DeLauder, a descendant of an old and prominent family of Middletown Valley. There are no children by this marriage.

The Mullendore family, to which Mrs. Joseph L. Huffer belonged, is a well-known one of Washington County, Md. The first of the name located in that vicinity among the early settlers, and the Mullendores have been prominent in Washington County affairs for many years. John Mullendore, the grandfather of Mr. George C. Huffer, was a native of Washington County, and lived to be a hundred and three years of age.

HARRY B. FUNK, one of the leading and best known men allied with the building trade in Frederick County, Md., is a native of Martinsburg, West Va., where he was born June 21, 1872. He is a son of V. B. and Georgianna (Dixon) Funk.

The Funk family was among the first settled ones of Frederick County, Md. William Funk, a native of Frederick County, was the father of V. B. Funk. The latter is a native of Lewistown, Md. By trade he is a carpenter, and is now superintendent of the Keller Lime Company, at Engle's Switch, West Va. In politics, he is a supporter of the Democratic party, and in religion, he is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was married to Georgianna Dixon. They are the parents of seven living children: Edward D.; Harry B.; Eliza C.; Daisy D.; Lewis R.; Clara I., and V. B., of Brunswick.

Harry B. Funk, son of V. B. and Georgianna (Dixon) Funk, was but four years old, when, in 1876, his parents removed from Martinsburg, West Va., to Frederick County. In Frederick County he grew to manhood, and received his education in the public schools. As a young man he learned the trade of a carpenter. In 1893, he located in Brunswick where he has since engaged in the building and contracting business. He has been very successful in his enterprise, and has erected many of the finest buildings in the community, among which may be mentioned the Red Men's Hall, the Kaplon Building, the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Middletown High School.

Mr. Funk began life without a dollar, and has made himself what he is entirely by his own efforts. Today he is one of Brunswick's leading and most substantial citizens. He is a stockholder in the R. B. Wenner Lumber Company and also in the Red Men's Hall. He is the owner of five fine dwelling houses in Brunswick.

In politics, Mr. Funk is a supporter of the Democratic party. He is at present a member of the Brunswick town council, and is secretary and treasurer of several lodges. He is a member of Brunswick Lodge, No. 191, A. F. and A. M., Elkridge Lodge, No. 39, I. O. O. F., Brunswick Council, No. 21, Junior Order United American Mechanics, Delaware Tribe, No. 43, J. O. R. M., and of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Mr. Funk was married to Annie B. Demory, of Harper's Ferry, West Va., on June 1, 1894. They are the parents of three children: John B., Raymond D., and Eva Viola Irene. The Demory family is one of the oldest of Virginia. Mrs. Funk is one of a family of nine children: George Theodore B., Daniel P., Luther L., Henry E., Walter M., Decora D., Alvira, William W., and Annie B. C., (wife of Mr. Funk.)

GEORGE H. HOGAN, one of the well-known and highly respected citizens of Brunswick, Md., where he is engaged in the milling and grain business, is a native of that place, where he was born September 13, 1870. He is a son of Michael and Mary V. (Hymes) Hogan.

Michael Hogan, was born in 1848, and died in 1900. He was a son of Thomas Hogan, and was a native of West Virginia. He was for many years in the employ of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He was married to Mary V. Hymes, daughter of Samuel Hymes. She is still living in Brunswick, at the age of sixty-two years. They were the parents of three children: Thomas, who is in the employ of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and resides in Brunswick; George H.; and Ella, unmarried, who is bookkeeper for the Brunswick Savings Bank.

The ancestor of the Hymes family, into which Michael Hogan married, was Henry Hymes, a native of Germany, who emigrated to Pennsylvania, among the early settlers of that State. He was the father of John Hymes, who was born in Pennsylvania and came to Frederick Co., Md., during the Whiskey Insurrection soon after the Revolution. John Hymes was the father of Samuel Hymes, who was a native of Frederick County. The latter was the father of seven children, three of whom grew to maturity, namely: George M., deceased; John H., served as a Union soldier during the rebellion under General Sherman; and Mary V., the wife of Michael Hogan.

George H. Hogan, son of Michael and Mary V. (Hymes) Hogan, was reared in his native town, Brunswick, and was educated in the public schools. At the age of fifteen years, he went to the city of Baltimore, where he began his career as a clerk in a grocery store. Some time later he was employed by the Adams Express Company in the delivery department. He then went to Brunswick, and entered the employment of the Brunswick Flour Mills. Here he remained eight years and learned the trade of milling. For one year, then, he worked as a fireman on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. In 1897, he became interested in the B. P. Crampton Milling Company, and he has remained in charge of this business for the last twelve years. This house also deals in grain, feed and coal.

Mr. Hogan is strictly a self-made man, who began life in very poor circumstances, but by industry and close attention to work has become a successful business man. He is held in high esteem by all who know him and he is one of the leading citizens of Brunswick. In 1907, he was one of the organizers of the People's National Bank, of which he is a director at the present time. He is a stockholder in the Red Men's Hall.

In politics, Mr. Hogan is affiliated with the Democratic party, but has never had any inclination to become an office holder. Fraternally he is a member of Delaware Tribe, No. 43, I. O. R. M.

The mill which Mr. Hogan conducts has a very interesting history. It was originally built in 1845, and the new section was erected in 1870 by Charles F. Wenner. During the rebellion, the old grist mill building and the sheds were used as the provost marshal's court, and several murder trials were conducted therein.

Mr. Hogan was married March 24, 1906, to Bessie L. Magalis, daughter of Richard Magalis. They have two children, David and Richard. It was James Magalis, father of Richard Magalis, who removed the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad engines on the Valley Branch over the pike to Richmond, Va., to be used on other roads in behalf of the confederacy.

CYRUS F. FLOOK, one of the most prominent citizens of Myersville, was born on a farm in Jackson District, a quarter of a mile north of Myersville, Frederick County, August 21, 1866. He is a son of Dawson F. and Elizabeth (Harp) Flook. (See sketch of John P. Flook in this volume.)

The Flook family is descended from five brothers who were of French Hugenot origin. These five brothers sailed from Bristol, and landed at Philadelphia, Pa., about 1760. Three of the brothers settled in Maryland and two in Pennsylvania. One of the former, Henry Flook, later removed to Virginia, where he died in 1840, living to be nearly a hundred years old. Another of these brothers, who had first settled in Lancaster County, Pa., went to Oneida, and located near Smith's Falls, in the province of Ontario, Canada, whence his descendants removed to Iowa and Indiana. There are over a thousand descendants of these five early emigrants, who are to be found in Canada, and the States of Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Iowa, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Kentucky and Nebraska.

The ancestor of the Maryland branch of the family was Jacob Flook. He was the father of a son, Jacob Flook. The latter married Esther ————, by whom he had four sons and three daughters: Percy C., Daniel, Jacob, Hanson, Elizabeth, Eveline and Catharine.

Perry C. Flook, son of Jacob and Esther Flook, was the grandfather of Cyrus F. Flook. He was born in Middletown Valley, January 24, 1816, and died March 9, 1842. He was the father of three sons: Dawson F.; Howard H., deceased, was a farmer near Boonsboro, Washington County, Md.; and Carlton H., died in childhood.

Dawson F. Flook, son of Perry C. Flook, was born March 5, 1838. He spent his active life following agricultural pursuits, and is now living retired in Myersville. He is highly respected in the community in which he makes his home. In religion, he is a devout and consistent member of the United Brethren Church at Myersville, of which he has been treasurer and a trustee for nearly fifty years. Mr. Flook was married to Elizabeth Harp, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Doub) Harp, a descendant of an old family of Middletown Valley. They were the parents of seven children: John P., a farmer in Jackson District, Frederick County; Joshua, deceased; Mary C., the wife of Elmer J. Smith, of Myersville, Md.; Cyrus F.; Betty D., the wife of A. J. Horine, of Myersville; Elmer S., a resident of Boonsboro, Md.; and Emma E., the wife of Rev. F. Berry Plummer, a minister of the United Brethren Church, located at Shippensburg, Pa.

Cyrus F. Flook, son of Dawson F. and Elizabeth (Harp) Flook, was born and reared on his father's farm near Myersville. While a lad he worked on his father's place. His elementary education was secured in the public schools and the Middletown High School. He then attended Lebanon Valley College, at Annville, Pa. After the completion of his collegiate course, he became a teacher of psychology in Kee Mar College, at Hagerstown, Md. Here he remained for one year. While teaching, he began the study of theology preparatory to entering the ministry of the United Brethren Church. At the Quarterly Conference of the United Brethren Church in 1891, he received a license to preach. In 1894, at the Annual Conference he was ordained. He remained in the active ministry until he became the head of the Examiner Publishing Company, of Frederick City, who publish a weekly Republican paper. His position with the Examiner Company, Rev. Flook retained, discharging his duties with much success, until 1899, in which year he returned to Myersville. Here he organized the banking house of Flook, Gaver & Company. In 1903, this firm was merged into the banking house of Flook, Gaver, Leatherman, Summers, Grossnickle & Company. Rev. Flook was chosen president of the new firm, in which capacity he had served with the old company. As head of this firm, Rev. Flook discharged the duties devolving upon him in a manner that indicates the possession of much executive capacity and financial ability. The firm of which he is the head is well known throughout financial and business circles of the county. In 1898, Rev. Flook was elected president of the Myersville and Catoctin Electric Railroad Company, which line connects Myersville with Middletown and Frederick. In 1901, Mr. Flook organized the Catoctin Telephone Company. In 1899, he was the founder of the Farmers' Mutual Exchange. In 1906, this venture was organized into a stock company, with a capital of $10,000. This corporation deals in groceries, coal, wood, grain, fertilizers and farm implements. The purpose of the organization is to furnish the farmers with everything needed for agriculture, and they in turn purchase all the farm products.

Rev. Flook is well known throughout Frederick County, where he has been active in church, political and business affairs for the past fifteen years. He is an enterprising and progressive business man, and is one of the most prominent citizens of his section of the county. Politically, Rev. Flook is a supporter of the Republican party. In 1892, he was nominated with the vote from every district in the county for public office, but on account of his church relations, he declined to be a candidate of his party. In 1894, Rev. Flook was chosen orator of the Philoposonian Literary Society of Lebanon Valley College. In 1890 he was elected a Trustee of Lebanon Valley College, and continues to serve in this capacity. His present term of office will expire in 1912. From 1896 to 1901, he served as National representative Jr. O. U. A. M. from Maryland. Mr. Flook is a member of Mount Zion United Brethren Church, of Myersville, in the work of which he is very active, and to which he is a liberal contributor.

Rev. Flook was married to Elizabeth (Shideler) Eby, daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Shideler) Eby, of Montgomery County, O. There are no children by this marriage. Mrs. Flook is a granddaughter of the late Judge Shideler, who was at one time a member of Congress from Ohio.

STERLING GALT, was born in Washington, D. C., December 11th, 1865. Educated at Emerson Institute, Washington, D. C., Pennsylvania College, and University of Virginia. Son of Matthew W. Galt, born in Virginia, and Mary J. Galt, born in Frederick county, Maryland. Associated in business with the firm of M. W. Galt, Brother & Co., Washington, D. C. Afterwards in charge of Art Department of Gorham Mfg. Co., New York, and later Manager of R. Wallace & Sons Co., New York. Came to Emmitsburg, Frederick county, in 1906. Bought the Emmitsburg Chronicle—founded by Samuel Motter, (a graduate of Princeton University) in 1879.

BROOK BUXTON, the 2nd, residing near Plane No. 4, Frederick County, Md., son of Brook and Kitty (Mullenix) Buxton, was born near Plane No. 4 in what is now Woodville District, Frederick County, Md., April 10, 1839.

The ancestors of the Buxton family were of Scotch-Irish descent. In very early times, two brothers, one of whom was named John, emigrants from the north of Ireland to the United States, settled in Maryland. John Buxton, grandfather of Brook Buxton, was a blacksmith, and at one time made his home near Frederick, Md. He was married to Miss Massey Soper. Their children are: 1, Brook; 2, Susan (Mrs. Mullinix); 3, John; 4, Lizzie, died in youth; 5, Samuel; 6, Basil; 7, James; 8, Upton. All are deceased. Mr. John Buxton and his wife died in Frederick County, Md.

Mr. Buxton's father, Brook Buxton, was born near Frederick, in 1801. He learned blacksmithing, and settled at Plane No. 4. His shop was well located and his business was very successful. He shod the horses for the company when the Baltimore and Ohio R. R. was built, and for some time after the road was opened, while they hauled their cars up the plane by horse power. Mr. Buxton afterwards became a conductor, and served the road in that capacity for twelve or fourteen years. He was a good conductor, and was highly esteemed by the company. He left the employ of the railroad in 1850, when he lost his right hand while coupling cars. Mr. Buxton owned 110 acres of land, and when he was obliged to leave the railroad, he began cultivating it. In this he was so successful that he was able to increase his holding to 430 acres. Brook Buxton was married to Kitty Mullinix. Their children are: 1, Susan; 2, John; 3, Lizzie; 4, Brook (the 2nd;) 5, William; 6, Basil; 7, Mary; 8, Samuel; 9, James; 10, Upton. Lizzie, Samuel and Upton died in their youth. All are deceased, except Brook, William, Basil and James, and these reside near Plane No. 4.

Mr. Buxton, died at the Relay House. He had gone to Baltimore to dispose of his tobacco crop, and left the train at the Relay House, where he was struck by the Relay House Express, and instantly killed. He is buried at Prospect Methodist Episcopal Church.

Brook Buxton, the 2nd, attended the public schools near Kemptown, New Market District, for a short time each winter until he attained his majority. The summer months were spent on the home farm, assisting his father. When he was twenty-two, Mr. Buxton, following in his father's footsteps, secured a position as brakeman on the B. & O. R. R., between Baltimore and Martinsburg, W. Va. He, however, only held the position for one year, as the Civil War broke out, and Mr. Buxton returned to the home farm. But after assisting his father for a year, he again secured a position on the road, as brakeman at Plane No. 4, and afterwards became fireman on the same run. After serving as fireman at Plane No. 4 for seven years, Mr. Buxton became a fireman on the railroad, a position which he held for forty-four years. He was careful and faithful to duty and deserved and enjoyed the confidence and esteem of his employers. In 1904, Mr. Buxton retired from the railroad, and since then resides at his pretty home near Plane No. 4, where he enjoys the rest won by his toil and exposure. He is a stanch Republican, interested in county affairs, and is highly esteemed by his fellow citizens.

Brook Buxton, the 2nd, was married December 7, 1865, to Emma, daughter of Thomas and Amy (Hough) Spurrier, of Plane No. 4. Their children are 1, Carrie B.; 2, Susan, died in infancy; 3, Amy, died in early youth; 4, Eugene, died aged twenty-three; 5, Thomas, died aged twenty-three; 6, Edgar, deceased; 7, Frank, telegraph operator on the B. & O. lines, at home; 8, Ada (Mrs. Walter Runkles), died February 14, 1909. Mr. Buxton is a member of Warman Chapel, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

THE LATE THOMAS R. JARBOE, a prominent farmer, and Ex-county Commissioner of Frederick County, Md., son of William and Margaret (Schaffer) Jarboe, was born on his father's farm in the Middletown Valley, Frederick County, May 15, 1828. Mr. Jarboe is a descendant of one of the most prominent families among the early settlers of the southern part of Maryland. His grandfather, an emigrant from France, landed in southern Maryland, and became a resident of St. Mary's County. He married and among his children was a son named William.

William Jarboe, father of Thomas R. Jarboe, who was prominent among the older farmers of the Middletown Valley, was born on his father's farm in St. Mary's County, Md. In early manhood, he removed to the Middletown Valley, where he became prominent as a progressive farmer and a successful business man. He owned a valuable farm and was highly esteemed as a citizen. William Jarboe was married to Margaret Schaffer, a descendant of one of the prominent families of Middletown

"Gayfield," the Home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Rohrback, Lime Kiln, Frederick County, Md.

Valley. Of their six children, five reached maturity: 1, Henry, deceased, a farmer of Middletown Valley; 2, John S., dealer in grain of Frederick, Md.; 3, Thomas R.; 4, Susan, deceased, married to the late M. J. Grove, who was one of the most enterprising business men of Frederick City; 5, Margaret, deceased, married to the late Charles Brosies. Mr. Jarboe was a member of the Roman Catholic Church.

Thomas R. Jarboe received his education at St. John's College in Frederick City. He remained at home with his father until after his marriage, when he bought "Gay Field," a fertile farm of 185 acres situated near Limekiln, Frederick County, Md. Mr. Jarboe spent his whole life in cultivating and improving this property. He built a pretty, two-story, brick dwelling, a bank barn with all the required out-buildings, and increased the yield of the land by scientific farming. He afterwards purchased an adjoining farm of 200 acres of excellent land which he also improved, putting up good, substantial buildings. Still later he bought the Bushey Place, a farm of 148 acres situated near Limekiln. Mr. Jarboe is one of the leading farmers of Frederick County. He is a stockholder and a director of the Central National Bank of Frederick City; a charter member, and the president of the Buckeystown Turnpike Company and a stockholder and a director of the Buckeystown Packing Company. He is one of the leading Democrats of the county, and was twice elected on the party ticket as commissioner of Frederick County, the only Democrat elected, and discharged the duties of his office with credit to himself and to the county.

Thomas R. Jarboe was married to Lauretta, daughter of the late William and Margaret (Font) Eagle, the descendant of a prominent family, whose father was a large land owner near Tuscarora, Md. They have one daughter Margaret (Mrs. Charles Rohrback). Mr. Jarboe was an active member of St. John's Roman Catholic Church in Frederick, and contributes liberally to its support. Mr. Jarboe died at his home in Frederick County, September 7, 1894, and is buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Margaret Jarboe was married to Charles Rohrback, a prominent man of Frederick City. They reside at Gay Field, a beautiful place near Limekiln, and are numbered among the influential families of the county. Of their seven children, five are living. 1, Lauretta J., married to F. Posey, editor and publisher of the Examiner, of Frederick; 2, Ellen B., at home; 3, Thomas J., at home; 4, Francis E., at home; 5, Margaret J., at home. Mr. Rohrback, his wife and children were all educated at St. Joseph's and at Mt. Saint Mary's College, in Emmitsburg.

ROBERT EDMONSTON DELAPLAINE, Vice-President of the Daily News, an Independent newspaper, published by The Great Southern Printing and Manufacturing Company, of Frederick, Md., son of the late William T., and Fannie (Birely) Delaplaine, was born in Frederick, Md., April 19, 1885.

Mr. Delaplaine's great-grandfather, Joseph Delaplaine, was born about a mile from Woodsboro Frederick County. He was married to Rosanna Crist who was also a native of Frederick County.

Theodore Crist Delaplaine, grandfather of Robert Edmonston Delaplaine was born in Georgetown, now West Washington, D. C., November 2, 1810. His mother died while he was an infant, and two weeks after her death the child was taken to Frederick, Md. On the way from Georgetown to Frederick the stage coach broke down but the little fellow was passed through a window, and was quite unharmed. His childhood and youth were spent on the farm of his uncle, Mr. John Carmack, near Ladiesburg. He received as good an education as the country schools of the day could give, and at nineteen started to make his own way in the world. He first secured employment at Greenfield Mills, Frederick County, but six months later he went to Halltown, W. Va., to assist his father during harvest time. Mr. Delaplaine now decided to learn milling, and after spending a short time in Halltown, he went to Bladensburg, Md., and secured employment in a large mill, where he remained for three years. Mr. Delaplaine then accepted a position as second miller in an establishment owned by a stock company in Georgetown. At the end of a year, he resigned this position, and removed to Alexandria, Va., where he was made head miller in the large flouring mill owned and operated by Jonathan Janney. In the autumn of 1838, Mr. Delaplaine decided to try his fortune in the West, and took the stage for Highland, Ohio. In the following spring, he went to Germantown, Ohio, but after a short stay decided to go still farther and settle in Missouri. There he found hard times. Mills were shut down, and it was difficult to secure employment in any branch of trade. The next year, in May, he returned to Frederick County, and began milling for himself. He rented Riehl's Mills from Canby and Duer, who then owned the Linganore Mills. After running this mill for six months, Mr. Delaplaine went to Ellicott City, near Baltimore, where he was employed as head miller by Shawer, Canby and Company. Six months later, he again returned to Frederick County, and in partnership with John Shaw, again rented Riehl's Mills. Through an unfortunate transaction during the first year he lost six hundred and twenty dollars. In 1851 Mr. Delaplaine purchased the Monocacy Mills which he operated successfully for twenty-four years. During the Civil War his output reached one hundred barrels a day. The quality of his flour was excellent and much of it was sold wholesale to South America. In 1862, General Lee's army made a raid on Mr. Delaplaine's mills and took seven hundred barrels of flour. The General offered to pay in Confederate money as far as he was able but, knowing that it was practically useless, Mr. Delaplaine refused the money. In 1872 Mr. Delaplaine was elected to the Maryland Legislature on the Republican ticket, leading the ticket by a flattering majority. The latter years of his life were spent in the home of his son, the late William T. Delaplaine.

Theodore Crist Delaplaine was married, in 1848, to Mrs. Hannah A. Wilcoxon, daughter of Capt. Eden Edmonston and widow of Jesse Wilcoxon. Their children are: 1, Rosanna; 2, Theodosia; 3, William T., founder of The News. Mrs. Delaplaine died April 2, 1885. Mr. Delaplaine died suddenly, April 13, 1900, in his nintieth year.

William Theodore Delaplaine, only son of Theodore C. and Annie (Edmonston) Delaplaine, was born at "Monocacy Mills," in Baker's Valley, Frederick County, Md., January 3, 1860. He received his early education in the district school near his home, and his boyhood was spent in the country. In early life he manifested that spirit of enterprise and ambition which marked his mature years. In 1875, he removed with his family to Frederick City, and in 1877 was employed by Mr. James H. Gambrill in milling. However, Mr. Delaplaine was impatient to reach a sphere of greater usefulness, and, having decided upon a business career, he entered Eastman Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where he took a full course and graduated with high honors. He returned to Frederick not only equipped with his native energy, industry and perseverance, but well trained for a successful business career. In 1880, Mr. Delaplaine opened a job printing office on the third floor of the old Macgill building, where the Citizens' National Bank now stands, the firm name being Schley, Marken & Delaplaine. The plant was afterwards removed to the corner of Court and Patrick Streets, and from there to the upper story of the Whalen building, near the Square Corner. The firm passed through several changes bearing the name of Schley & Delaplaine, and W. T. Delaplaine & Company, keeping the latter until its incorporation as the Great Southern Printing and Manufacturing Company, its present title. The steady growth of the business demanded a change of location, and, in 1887 the building now occupied having been completed, it was leased. Recognizing the demand in this city for a daily paper that would be a newspaper, the Daily News was established in 1883 followed, in a few months by the Weekly News. Mr. Delaplaine was determined that The News should gain and maintain the leadership, therefore the Morning Call was bought and consolidated with The News, and afterwards The Times was also purchased. In connection with the publication of the paper, Mr. Delaplaine built up a printing business that extended to all parts of the State. The plant has grown in extent and value until it has become the largest in Maryland, Baltimore City only excepted. Mr. Delaplaine's energy was not, however, absorbed by his business. The growth and progress of the city were matters of great concern to him, and he was always ready to assist every legitimate public undertaking. He was interested in the sale of typewriters, real estate, and bicycles. Mr. Delaplaine was a man of strict integrity, and great earnestness of purpose. His indomitable energy established his business through years of hard work, and brought financial success.

William Theodore Delaplaine was married, April 2, 1884, to Fannie, daughter of the late George K. Birely, and a sister of George and Edward Birely, of the firm of George K. Birely & Sons. They have four sons: 1, Robert Edmonston; 2, George Birely; 3, William Theodore; 4, Edward Schley. Mr. Delaplaine died at his residence in Frederick City, after a short illness, February 19, 1895, aged thirty-five, and was buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery. His private and domestic character was beautiful, and his unswerving integrity, and generous, kindly nature won for him not only the love of his immediate friends, but a full measure of public esteem and respect.

Robert Edmonston Delaplaine received his primary education in the public schools of Frederick, and graduated with honors from the Frederick High school in the class of 1901. On July 10, 1901 he received his appointment as discount clerk in the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank of Frederick City, the one selected from a number of applicants. He filled various positions in the bank and was finally made head book-keeper. On April 10, 1909, Mr. Delaplaine resigned his position in the bank, having been elected Vice-President of the Great Southern Printing and Manufacturing Company, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his uncle, Thomas Schley. This position he still holds. Mr. Delaplaine has been associated with The News for some time, he is a member of the board of directors, a position which he has held since his eighteenth year. In early manhood, he identified himself with several of the enterprises of Frederick. He belongs to Lynch Lodge, No. 163, A. F. and A. M.; Enoch Chapter, No. 23, R. A. M.; Enoch Council, No. 10 R. and S. M.; Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar; Boumi Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., of Baltimore; B. P. O. Elks, No. 684; and the Independent Hose Company, one of the leading volunteer fire departments of the State, in which he has held the office of secretary for a number of years. Mr. Delapaine is a member of All Saints' Protestant Episcopal Church in Frederick. He is an active worker of the Young Men's Christian Association, and for some years served as treasurer.

George Birely Delaplaine, brother of Robert Edmonston Delaplaine, was born October 9, 1888. He graduated from the Frederick High School in 1904, and is associated with his uncle in the firm of George K. Birely & Sons, tanners, Frederick, Md.

William Theodore Delaplaine, brother of Robert Edmonston Delaplaine, was born January 22, 1891, and graduated from the Frederick High School at the age of fifteen. After leading his class for three years, in his last year he won a scholarship in Washington and Lee University, of Lexington, Va. In 1909, at the age of eighteen, he graduated from the University with the degree of B. A., winning the "Mapelson Scholarship," one of the highest honors in the gift of the institution. He is a junior in the Law School of the University.

Edward Schley Delaplaine, brother of Robert Edmonston Delaplaine, was born Ocotber 6, 1893. He graduated from the Frederick High School in 1910, leading his class.

CHARLES T. RAMSBURG, a well-known retired farmer of Frederick City, Md., son of Henry and Elizabeth (Coblentz) Ramsburg, was born on a part of the old Ramsburg homestead in the Middletown Valley, Frederick County, Md., February 28, 1841.

Mr. Ramsburg's grandfather, John Ramsburg, who was a German by descent, was one of the early settlers of the Middletown Valley. He was prominent among the men of his generation, and owned two valuable farms of 275 acres, situated one mile south of Middletown on the Jefferson and Middletown road. He was a successful husbandman, and a few years before his death, retired from farming and removed to Middletown where he spent the rest of his life. Mr. Ramsburg was a Whig. He was a good citizen and was highly esteemed in the Valley. John Ramsburg was married and had these children: 1, Elizabeth, died unmarried; 2, Henry; 3, John, deceased, a farmer of the Middletown Valley; 4, Mary, deceased, married to the late John Ahalt, of Illinois; 5, Sally, deceased, married to the late John Coblentz, a farmer of the Middletown Valley. Mr. Ramsburg and his wife were members of the Reformed Church in Middletown. He was active in church work and was a liberal contributor.

Henry Ramsburg, father of Charles T. Ramsbrug, a prominent farmer of Middletown Valley, was born in Middletown Valley. He was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained with his father until after his marriage when he began farming for himself near Shepherdstown, W. Va. A few years later, Mr. Ramsburg returned to the Valley and rented one of his father's farms. At his father's death, he inherited the land and the improvements which he made greatly increased its value. The place is situated one mile south of Middletown and is furnished with a comfortable two-story brick dwelling, a bank barn and all necessary outbuildings, all put up by Mr. Ramsburg. He afterwards bought the Jacob Thomas farm, two and a-half miles southeast of Middletown. After improving this property he sold it to advantage. Mr. Ramsburg was very successful, due to his industry and close attention to business. A short time before his death, he purchased a beautiful home in Middletown but did not live to enjoy it. It was afterwards occupied by his widow. Mr. Ramsburg was a Republican, well-known and highly esteemed in the Valley. Henry Ramsburg was married to Elizabeth, daughter of Jacob Coblentz, a prominent farmer of the Middletown Valley who afterwards removed to Dayton, Ohio. Of their nine children, eight reached maturity: 1, Wiliam P., a retired farmer of Washington County, Md.; 2, Adaline V., deceased, married to the late John W. Ramsburg, not a relative; 3, Ninian H., a farmer of Sandusky County, Ohio; 4 Lydia A., widow of the late Daniel Brandenburg, of Middletown, Md.; 5, Georgiana L., deceased, married to William E. Smith, a retired farmer of Middletown; 6, Elizabeth M., died unmarried; 7, Catharine A. C., deceased, married to the late William Hopwood; 8, Charles T. Mr. Ramsburg and his wife were members of the Reformed Church in Middletown. He was an office bearer in the congregation for many years and contributed liberally to benevolent objects. Mr. Ramsburg died in Middletown Valley, and is buried in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Middletown; his wife rests by his side.

Charles T. Ramsburg was educated in the public schools of his native district, and at the death of his father bought the home farm and cultivated it for a few years. He then removed to Middletown where he spent four years. After his marriage, Mr. Ramsburg returned to his farm which he improved until it was numbered among the desirable farms of the district. In the spring of 1894, he purchased the farm of John H. Williams near Braddock to which he removed, and on which he made many improvements. This place, now the property of Dr. Hoops, is beautifully situated, and is considered one of the finest homes in Frederick County. On account of his wife's failing health, in 1897, he left the farm and removed to Frederick City, and purchased his present home on East Second street. He remodeled the house and made it a beautiful dwelling. Mr. Ramsburg is a Republican, interested in all that concerns the good of the community.

Charles T. Ramsburg was married to Margaret B., daughter of Thomas and Centhia (Norwood) Clagett, whose father was one of the most prominent men of Frederick City. Their children are: 1, Henry T., a farmer of Middletown District Frederick County, Md.; 2, Lillie R., married to H. B. Coblentz, M. D., of Washington, D. C.; 3, Clagett E., superintendent of the Frederick City Brick Works; 4, Samuel C., a farmer of Walkersville District, Frederick County; 5, Nellie L., at home; 6, Vallie E., married to Archie Fisher, dealer in stoves, Frederick City; 7, Bessie E., at home. Mr. Ramsburg and his wife are members of Grace Reformed Church in Frederick. He is a liberal contributor and takes an active part in the work of the church, in which he is an elder. Mrs. Ramsburg died at her home in Frederick, November 24, 1907, and was laid to rest in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

ALEXANDER RAMSBURG, retired, residing in Lewistown District, nine miles northwest of Frederick City and one mile north of Lewistown, spent his active life principally in agricultural pursuits. He was born in the district in which he now lives, near Bethel Church, April 11, 1838. He is a son of Jacob and Elizabeth (Snook) Ramsburg.

The Ramsburg family is of German lineage and is found to be located in Virginia at an early day. Henry Ramsburg, the grandfather of Alexander Ramsburg, was a native of Berkeley County, Va. He was accidentally killed by cutting himself while butchering.

Jacob Ramsburg, son of Henry Ramsburg, was but an infant at the time of his father's death, and he was brought to Lewistown district, Frederick County, where he was raised by relatives. He died at the age of sixty-five years. He was one of the wealthy and influenital farmers of the District. In politics he was a Democrat, and very aggressive in his support, but the only public position ever held by him was that of judge of elections. Mr. Ramsburg was married to Elizabeth Snook, daughter of Henry Snook, a farmer and miller of Frederick County. She lived to be ninety-one years old. They were the parents of these children: Lewis P., was born July 5, 1830, died in December, 1908, married Julia Putman; Eliza, deceased, was the wife of Ezra Michael; Henry, died aged eighteen years; Nelson A.; Alexander; and Thomas C., of Creagerstown District.

Alexander Ramsburg, son of Jacob and Elizabeth (Snook) Ramsburg, became familiar with the various duties of a farmer's life as a boy. After attaining his majority, he started out to make his own way in the world, and became an agriculturist. The first land he owned was a farm adjacent to his present home, this tract being still in his possession. Soon after the close of the Civil War he purchased the valuable farm on which he has since resided. This tract is situated on the Frederick and Emmitsburg pike. At the time of his purchase, this farm was in poor condition and had no buildings upon it. In 1883, Mr. Ramsburg erected a fine brick residence, two stories in height, of modern plan, and costing over $6,000. It stands upon an elevation which commands an excellent view of the surrounding country, and is a most desirable country-place. The farm has excellent barns, and the water needed on the place is furnished by a hot air engine that pumps the water from a well, 239 feet deep, which was drilled mainly through solid rock. Mr. Ramsburg is the possessor altogether of over four hundred acres, comprising three farms, and 50 acres of fine timber land. He started life with only such an educatin as the public schools afforded and in very poor financial circumstances, yet today he is probably the largest land owner and tax payer in Lewistown District. Mr. Ramsburg was one of the promoters and served as vice-president of the W. F. and G. Railroad.

In politics, Mr. Ramsburg is an active supporter of the Democratic party. In November, 1899, he was the nominee of his party for the office of county treasurer, and was elected. He served a term of two years, discharging his duties with much ability and fidelity. In religion, he is a consistent member of the Utica Reformed Church, in which he has served in official capacities, having acted as deacon and trustee.

Mr. Ramsburg was married February 21, 1860, to Hannah Sophia Cronise, daughter of Frederick Cronise, of Frederick County. They are the parents of five children: Luther F., of York, Pa.; Ida B., the wife of William Getzendanner, of Montgomery County, Md.; Daisy C., Martha H. and Danno F., reside at home.

Frederick Cronise was the father of eight children: Ann Maria, John P., Jacob, Lydia, Rebecca, George, Hannah Sophia, and Anna.

WILLIAM H. ASHBAUGH, Deputy Sheriff of Frederick County, Md., son of John and Martha (Hann) Ashbaugh, was born on a farm near Johnsville, Frederick County, Md., March 29, 1837.

The Ashbaugh family is of German descent. Mr. Ashbaugh's grandfather, John Ashbaugh, was a native of Gettysburg, Pa. He was a potter and manufactured earthenware in Gettysburg, and in Middleburg, Carroll County, Md., where he died.

John Ashbaugh, father of William H. Ashbaugh, was born in Gettysburg, Pa., in 1808. He was a child when his parents removed to Middleburg, Md., where he received his education and learned pottery under his father and, finally succeeded him in business. Some time after his father's death, Mr. Ashbaugh moved to Johnsville, Frederick County, Md., where he continued his business in connection with farming. In 1844 he removed to Frederick City, Md., where he erected a pottery in which he manufactured a fine grade of earthenware and stoneware. He was an expert in his line, and his wares commanded a high price and were sold all over the country. Mr. Ashbaugh was a Whig all his life and was actively engaged in public affairs. He was highly esteemed in the city and county. He was obliged to give up business on account of failing health, the result of a shock which he received. John Ashbaugh was married in Middleburg, Md., to Martha, daughter of Henry Hann, a farmer of Carroll County, Md. Their children are: 1, Mary J., (Mrs. Christian Bubel), died in Frederick; 2, Margaret (Mrs. James T. Topper), died in Frederick; 3, William H.; 4, Aquilla, of Frederick, Md., married Rachel Suman; 5, David L., married Julia Duval, died in Frederick, in June, 1908. Mr. Ashbaugh died in Frederick, in 1862; his widow in 1868, aged eighty. He was a member of the Reformed Church.

William H. Ashbaugh was educated in the public schools of Frederick City and, while still a child began helping his father in the pottery. He left school at fifteen and learned his father's business thoroughly. However the work soon affected his health, and he gave up the pottery to open a butcher shop in Gettysburg, where he spent five years. On September 24, 1861, Mr. Ashbaugh enlisted, at Gettysburg, for three years, as a private in Company F, eighty-seventh Pennsylvania Volunteers Infantry, and was assigned to the clerical business of the company. After serving for a year and a-half, his health failed and he was honorably discharged at Cumberland, Md. Returning to his home in Gettysburg, he recuperated and in 1864, re-enlisted for one year, or until the close of the war, as a corporal in Company G, two hundred and ninth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and served until the close of the war. In 1866, Mr. Ashbaugh moved to Emmitsburg where he dealt in horses until 1876, when he was appointed, by the board of county commissioners to a position in the constabulary of Frederick County, and in the city. In the same year, he was made deputy sheriff by Colonel Richardson, sheriff of Frederick County. After filling the three offices for twenty-one years, Mr. Ashbaugh resigned his position in the constabulary. His record as sheriff is unique and is perhaps unequaled in the country since he has been deputy sheriff for thirty-two consecutive years, being reappointed by each succeeding sheriff. He is now so familiar with the details of the office that his services are almost indispensable. He has led an exemplary life, never touching liquor; for the last twenty-eight years he has smoked although as a young man he never touched tobacco. He has been a Republican all his life.

William H. Ashbaugh was married, in Frederick City, April 5, 1858, to Martha J., daughter of John A. and Rachel (Moberly) Dyer, of Frederick. Mr. Dyer was a cooper. The children of William H. and Martha L. (Moberly) Ashbaugh are; 1, William E., of Emmitsburg, at home; 2, Mina L., at home; 3, Herbert M., blacksmith, married Detta Gelwicks, has eight children, Elroy, Harrie, Mabel, Ruth, Violet, George, and twins not named; 4, Mabel (Mrs. Marshall Leatherman), of Thurmont, Md.; 5, Ella G. (Mrs. R. Robert M. Wentz), of Emmitsburg; 6, Charles B., at home; 7, Fanny, (Mrs. William F. Rogers), of Emmitsburg, has three children, Rachel, Bessie, and William Herbert. Mr. Ashbaugh is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. His wife, who was a devout Methodist, died July 31, 1905, and was buried in Mountain View Cemetery.

SAMUEL U. GREGG, superintendent of Montevue Hospital, of Frederick County, and a well-known citizen, was born in Loudoun County, Va., July 31, 1866. He is a son of James W. and Mary C. (Fawley) Gregg.

James W. Gregg was a native of Virginia, where he was born March 4, 1839. His death occurred March 23, 1884. On June 17, 1862, he enlisted as a soldier in the Union Army and joined an independent regiment. He served until the close of the war and was honorably discharged, May 31, 1865. He had a most creditable war record and participated in many hard fought battles. He was wounded five times, once in his side, which disablement shortened his life. Mr. Gregg spent his entire life following the occupation of a farmer. He was a supporter of the principles of the Republican party, and religiously he was connected with the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mr. Gregg was married to Mary C. Fawley. There were three children by this marriage: John, deceased; Samuel U.; and Harry C., of Zanesville, O.

Samuel U. Gregg, son of James W. and Mary C. Gregg, was nine years old when his parents brought him from Virginia to Frederick County, Md., and settled near Catoctin Switch, in Jefferson District. Here he grew up on a farm and received his education in the public schools. He was employed in farm work until he was twenty-three years of age. Mr. Gregg then engaged in the stage and livery business at Jefferson, acting as United States mail carrier to and from Jefferson to Frederick and Jefferson to Catoctin Switch on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. Mr. Gregg continued in this line of work until April 1, 1906. At that time, Mr. Gregg was appointed superintendent of Montevue Hospital of Frederick county, and has been reappointed annually to the present time. Mr. Gregg has attended to the duties of this office in a manner that has been entirely satisfactory to the county at large. He is a well-known citizen and is held in high regard by all.

In politics, Mr. Gregg has for the last twenty years been an active supporter of the Republican party. Fraternally, he is identified with Lynch Lodge, No. 163, A. F. and A. M., King David Lodge, No. 50, I. O. O. F., Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, all of Frederick City, the Junior Order United American Mechanics of Jefferson, and the Modern Woodmen of America. In religion, he is a consistent member of the Lutheran Church of Jefferson, in the work of which he takes an active interest and in which he has served in official capacities.

Mr. Gregg was married to Fannie E. Shaff, of Frederick City, on June 2, 1892. They were the parents of one daughter, Myrtle S. Mrs. Gregg died November 9, 1895. Mr. Gregg was married secondly to Lillie E. Feaster, daughter of Jacob Feaster, of Jefferson, Frederick County. There are two children by this union: Charles S. and Sarah C.

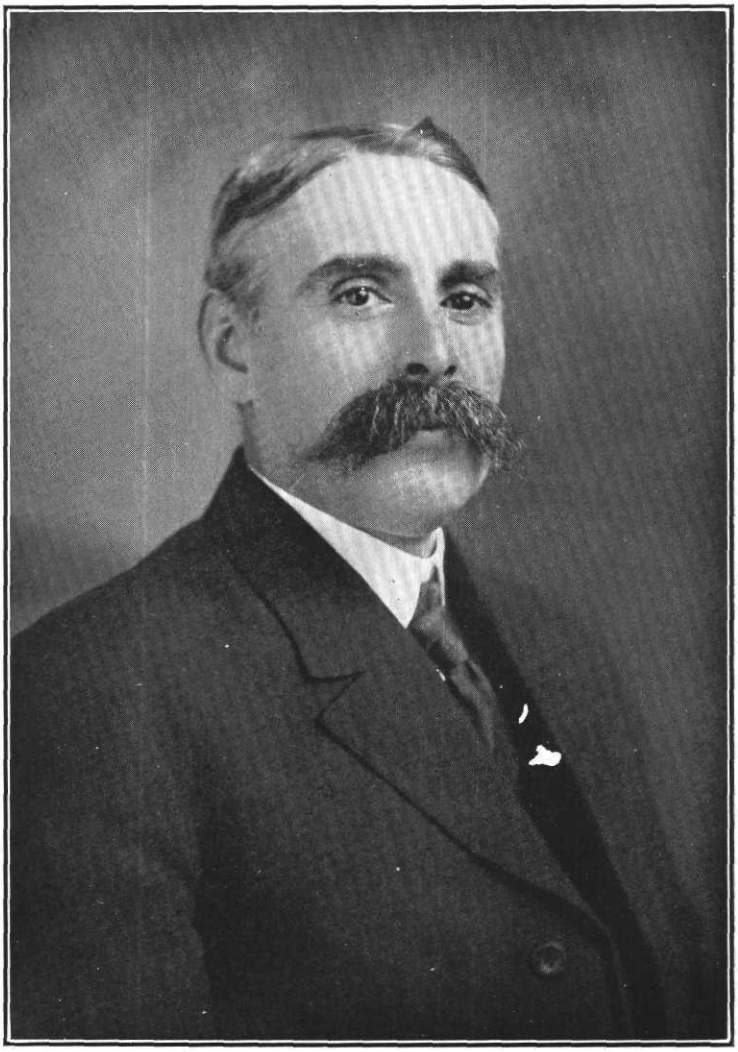
JESSE H. ROUTSON, Superintendent of the Buckingham Industrial School, at Buckeystown, Frederick County, Md., son of George H. and Annie A. (Roop) Routson, both deceased, was born in Uniontown, Carroll County, Md., January 13, 1868.

Henry Routson, grandfather of Jesse H. Routson, was a native of Germany, and emigrated to America in early manhood. He landed at Baltimore, Md., and settled at Uniontown, in Carroll, then a part of Frederick County. He was a tailor and afterwards became a merchant, and did a profitable business until he was finally able to retire from active labor. He was a prosperous business man of Carroll County, where he became a prominent citizen. He ascribes his success to constant attention to business. Mr. Routson was a Democrat, and served as postmaster in Uniontown for a number of years. Henry Routson was married to Mary Garner. Of their eleven children, only three reached maturity: 1, Thomas H.; 2, George H.; 3, John, deceased.



Samuel U. Gregg.

Mr. Routson was a member of the Lutheran Church.

Mr. Routson's father, George H. Routson, was born in Uniontown, Carroll County, Md., March 3, 1835. He was educated in the public schools of Uniontown, and remained on the homestead until after his marriage, when he began business for himself. He learned carpentry and was employed in that line for some time, meeting with much success. Mr. Routson afterwards engaged in tanning in Uniontown, and was carrying on a profitable business, when failing health compelled him to retire from active work. His kind and generous disposition made him a general favorite, and was one of the elements which contributed greatly to his success in life. Mr. Routson was a Republican. He was a charter member of the Heptasophs; Wyoming Tribe, Red Men; and a member of the Senior Order of American Mechanics. George H. Routson was married to Annie A., daughter of Jesse and Urith Roop, of Uniontown, Md., whose parents were prominent among the older residents of Carroll County. Their children are: 1, Charles W., druggist, Baltimore, Md.; 2, Harvey T., ex-mayor of Waynesboro, Pa.; 3, Gover M., with the Geiser Manufacturing Company, of Waynesboro, Pa.; 4, J. Kenly, book-keeper for a Loan and Trust Company, of Baltimore City; 5, Jesse H.; 6, Melvin W., salesman for the George H. Rundle Drug Company, of Ohio; 7, Frank I., deceased. Mr. Routson and his wife were stanch members of the Methodist Protestant Church, of Uniontown. He has held various offices in the congregation, and is an active worker and a generous giver. He died at his home in Uniontown, April 18, 1908, his wife died April 20, 1896.

Jesse H. Routson attended the public schools of Uniontown, and remained at home until he reached his twentieth year, when he went to Baltimore, Md., and began dealing in milk. Two years later, he accepted a position with White & Myers, bakers, and served the firm faithfully for eight years. Mr. Routson then spent one year as floor-walker for Likes, Berwanger and Company, Clothiers, of Baltimore. In March, 1900, he received his appointment to his present position, superintendent of the Buckingham Industrial School, a school for boys, at Buckeystown, Md. The institution is beautifully situated on a farm of 300 acres of excellent land one and one-quarter miles southeast of Buckeystown. Mr. Routson has charge of the farm and of the school. They are engaged in farming and trucking and have a fine Willow Garden, in which Mr. Routson is greatly interested. He is a hard worker and confines himself closely to business, and has been amply rewarded for his toil and care. Mr. Routson is a Prohibitionist. He is a member of Lynch Lodge, No. 163, A. F. and A. M., of Frederick City; of Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, K. of P.; of Germanic Conclave No. 202, I. O. H., of Baltimore; of the Junior Order of American Mechanics, of Baltimore; and of Camp No. 11189, Modern Woodmen of America, of Buckeystown, Md.

Jesse H. Routson was married to Fannie H., daughter of ex-Judge Samuel and Catherine (Sechrist) Griffith, of Baltimore County. They have no children. Mr. Routson and his wife are active and liberal members of the Methodist Protestant Church in Buckeystown.

REV. EUGENE LORAH McLEAN, A. M., minister in charge of Grace Reformed Church, of Frederick City, Md., is a native of Amity township, Berks County, Pennsylvania, where he was born July 19, 1869. He is the son of James B. and Mary A. McLean, nee Lorah.

Both sides of his family were persecuted for their stanch religious convictions. His father's people were Scotch Covenanters. Because of religious persecution they were driven from their home in Scotland, and settled in the beautiful town of Coleraine, on the river Bann, near the famous Giants' Causeway in Northern Ireland. His mother's people, as the name Lorah indicates, were Huguenots or French Protestants of the Reformed Church. As history verifies, the Huguenots were robbed, condemned to the galleys, banished, executed and burned in France in the sixteenth century. In order to escape the cruelties of these persecutions and to maintain their faith inviolate, the Lorah family migrated to America and settled in the Schuylkill Valley, in Southeastern Pennsylvania.

Daniel McLain, great-grandfather of the Rev. Eugene L. McLean, was the ancestor of the McLean family in America. He migrated to this country in 1840 and settled in Carbon County, Pa. The third of his five sons was also named Daniel McLean, who when a young man mined coal with his father in Carbon County, Pa., but later moved to Berks County, Pa., where he followed agriculture. His wife was Elizabeth Brewster, a woman noted for her beauty of character and religious devotion. They were the parents of four children: James and Samuel, who are farmers; Daniel, who is a physician; and John who was a teacher until his death in 1886.

James B. McLean, son of Daniel and Elizabeth McLean and father of the Rev. Eugene L. McLean, was born at Summit Hill, Carbon County, Pa., on September 9, 1843. When quite young he came with his father to Amity township, Berks County, Pa. He now resides in the old Lorah stone mansion, erected in 1797. He is a leading and highly respected farmer. In politics he is a member of the Democratic party, and in religion an active and consistent member of St. Paul's Reformed Church, Amityville, Pa., of which he has been an elder for many years. James B. McLean was married to Mary Amanda Griesemer Lorah by the Rev. Joseph H. Dubbs, D. D., in 1866. The Rev. Dr. Dubbs also baptized the Rev. E. L. McLean in his infancy. The Rev. McLean's mother was a woman of exceptional qualities of character. She died March 2, 1908.

Rev. Eugene L. McLean, the subject of this sketch, was born in Berks County, Pa. He was reared on the old Lorah homestead in Amity Township. As a youth he worked on his father's farm during the summer months, and in the winter attended the public schools. He also went to school at the Amityville Seminary for a number of spring and fall terms. He was prepared for college at the Keystone State Normal School, Kutztown, Pa., then under the principalship of the Rev. Nathan C. Schaeffer, D. D., now State Superintendent of Public Instruction in Pennsylvania. He entered the Sophomore class of Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa., in the fall of 1887, from which institution he was graduated with the degree of A. B. in 1890. He then entered the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church at Lancaster, Pa., from which he was graduated in 1893. He was an honor man in both of these institutions of learning. In 1894 his Alma Mater conferred upon him the degree of A. M.

The Rev. E. L. McLean was examined and licensed to preach the Gospel by Juniata Classis of the Reformed Church, in annual session at Bedford, Pa., on June 8, 1893. The Rev. William C. Schaeffer, D. D., was president, and the Rev. John W. Pontius stated clerk. His first charge was Everett, Bedford County, Pa., which he served with signal success for five years. During his pastorate at Everett, Pa., he greatly increased the membership of Trinity Reformed Church and the attendance of the Sunday School, made the influence of the Reformed Church felt in the community, cleared the church and parsonage of a burdensome debt, renovated the church, and created a fund to rebuild the church, which was successfully accomplished under a later pastor.

In 1898 Rev. McLean accepted a unanimous call to become pastor of the newly organized Grace Reformed Church of Frederick City, Md. He preached in Frederick City several times before Grace Reformed Church was organized by the Evangelical Reformed Church on March 6, 1898. When he entered upon the work of his new charge, the congregation was small and the members as a rule in very moderate circumstances. There were no church buildings and no money was in the treasury. The most substantial thing in connection with the new congregation was the promise of help by the mother church. But during his pastorate of twelve years in Frederick City, Rev. McLean by his energy and ability has increased the membership of Grace Reformed Church from forty-two at its organization to five hundred, and the membership of the Sunday School from sixty to over six hundred. This is a remarkable showing, especially in the conservative and well-churched city of Frederick, and is a record of which any minister may well be proud. Besides this Rev. McLean has built a fine new church edifice on East Second street, Frederick, erected at a cost of $30,000, with all the latest improvements in church building, including a fine pipe organ dedicated in 1907. A splendid parsonage on East Third street, connecting with the church property in the rear, was purchased for $4,700 in 1908. Rev. McLean is recognized as one of the ablest ministers of Frederick City and is held in the highest esteem, not only by his parishoners, but also by all with whom he has come in contact.

Rev. McLean was married November 15, 1905, to Mary Harnish Neff, daughter of William and Cordelia Neff, of Alexandria, Pa. They are the parents of one daughter, Mary Margaret.

Fraternally, Rev. McLean is a member of Eta Chapter, of the Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity; of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M.; and of the Mountain City Lodge, Knights of Pythias.

JOHN H. ZIMMERMAN, who is living retired in Ballinger District, Frederick County, spent his active life following the vocation of an agriculturist. His birth occurred on his present farm, November 15, 1850. He is a son of Gideon M. and Christiana (Wolfe) Zimmerman.

The Zimmerman forebears came originally from Germany. This family has been settled in Frederick County, Md., for a long period, and is one of the more prominent of those families whose representatives have been identified with agricultural pursuits.

Henry Zimmerman, the grandfather of John H. Zimmerman, was a prominent farmer of Frederick County. He was a large land owner and was the possessor of three fine farms, one in Middletown Valley and two located south of Frederick on Carroll's Manor. He was married to Charlotte Thomas. They were the parents of Gideon M. Zimmerman.

Gideon M. Zimmerman, son of Henry and Charlotte (Thomas) Zimmerman, was born on the old homestead, now owned by Isaac Zimmerman, first cousin of John H. Zimmerman, on Carroll's Manor, October 16, 1823. He received a private school education on Carroll's Manor. He was engaged in farming until his retirement in 1884. After his marriage, he began work for himself on his father's farm. He inherited the homestead of 182 1-2 acres of fine land, where he remained for several years. In 1873, he bought a small farm, after which he rented the larger tract to his son, John H. Five years afterward, Mr. Zimmerman removed back to the home farm and there remained until he retired. He purchased a farm of 154 acres adjoining his home farm from the Smith estate. This place is now in the possession of his son, William N. He was a very successful farmer and owned considerable land, having 360 1-2 acres at his death. He died April 28, 1896, and was laid to rest in Saint Matthew's Cemetery on Carroll's Manor. Mr. Zimmerman was married to Christiana Wolfe, on March 26, 1864. She was a daughter of John and Mary (Holtz) Wolfe. There were three children of this marriage: Mary E., deceased, was married to J. Franklin Thomas, of Frederick City; John H.; and William N., of Ballinger District. Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman were both members of Saint Matthew's Reformed Church of Carroll's Manor, where he served as deacon for a number of years and of which he was a liberal contributor. Mrs. Zimmerman died March 16, 1871, and is interred in a private burying ground on Carroll's Manor.

John H. Zimmerman, son of Gideon M. and Christiana (Wolfe) Zimmerman, was the recipient of a public school education. He became acquainted with farm work when a boy at home. He began to make his own way in the world by cultivating his father's farm. He fell heir to the homestead of 182 1-2 acres, lying about five miles and a-half southwest of Frederick on Carroll's Manor in Ballinger District. He followed agriculture until 1904, when he retired, and his son assumed charge of the place. Mr. Zimmerman by hard work and up-to-date methods has achieved success at his chosen work and is one of the well-to-do farmers of his district. He is a Prohibitionist in political views.

Mr. Zimmerman was married to Ellen R. T. Whipp, daughter of Samuel T. and Mary A. (Thomas) Whipp, both deceased. They were the parents of three children, two of whom are living: Harry M., cultivating the home farm; married to Katie May Zimmerman, daughter of Zachary Elias and Anna Catharine (Baer) Zimmerman; and Daisy M., married to Elmer S. Derr, of Feagaville. Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman are connected with St. Matthew's Church of Carroll's Manor, in which he has filled the office of elder for a number of years.

WALTER RALPH STEINER, M. D., of Hartford, Connecticut, son of Lewis Henry Steiner, M. D., and Sarah Spencer (Smyth) Steiner, was born in Frederick City, Md., November 18, 1870.

His paternal ancestors, who were Germans, were among the early settlers of Frederick. His father, Dr. Lewis Henry Steiner, was state senator from Frederick County, for twelve years, and was finally librarian of the Enoch Pratt Free Library in Baltimore, Md.

Walter R. Steiner was prepared for college in the Frederick Academy, the University School for Boys, in Baltimore, and by private instructors. In 1892, he graduated from Yale University with the degree of A. B., and three years later received his Master's degree for work done in chemistry as a graduate student, at the Johns Hopkins University, during 1892 and 1893. In the fall of 1894, Dr. Steiner entered the medical department of the Johns Hopkins University, and was graduated with the degree of M. D., in 1898. Upon graduation, he was appointed one of the house medical officers of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, where he remained until the fall of 1899. In January, 1900, Dr. Steiner removed to Hartford, Conn., for the practice of medicine, and, one year later, was elected pathologist and bacteriologist to the Hartford Hospital, a position which he still holds by annual reappointment. From 1905 to 1907, he was also one of the assistant visiting physicians at the same hospital, and, in December, 1906, was chosen its librarian. On December 17, 1908, he was made one of the four visiting physicians of the institution. Dr. Steiner is also consulting physician to the Hartford Orphan Asylum, and to the Middlesex Hospital, of Middletown. In February, 1901, he was elected a member of the American Association of Pathologists and Bacteriologists. He is also a member of the American Medical Association, the Connecticut, the Hartford County, and the Hartford Medical Societies. He was chosen secretary of the Connecticut State Medical Society in 1905, and still holds that office by annual re-election. In 1905, Dr. Steiner became a member of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, and on May 14, 1909, was made one of the directors of the society. He is also a member of the American Academy of Medicine, the Connecticut Historical Society, the Hartford Yale Alumni Association, the Johns Hopkins University Club of New England, the University Club of Hartford, the Twentieth Century Club, and the Hartford Golf Club. As a representative of the Connecticut State Medical Society, Dr. Steiner attended the recent International Congress on Tuberculosis, at Washington, D. C., where he served as one of the judges of the exhibits. He has contributed monographs to various medical journals, specializing in pathology, internal medicine, and medical history.

DAVID F. MAYNE, who is numbered among the honorable and highly regarded residents of Frederick City, was born November 15, 1852. He is a son of David and Annie (Engle) Mayne.

The grandfather of David F. Mayne was John J. Mayne, who was married to Sarah Bopst. They were the parents of David Mayne.

David Mayne was born November 8, 1822, and died June 11, 1910, in Tuscarora district, Frederick County. He procured an education in the schools of the county, and until a few years ago, when he retired, was always engaged in agricultural pursuits. When he was twenty-three years old he began life for himself, and later bought a farm of about 75 acres. This place adjoined the old Mayne homestead. In his younger days, he bought and sold several tracts of land, and was very successful in his real estate operations. He believed in Democratic principles. Religiously, he was identified with the United Brethren Church. Mr. Mayne was married to Annie Engle, daughter of John Engle. They were the parents of nine children: John H., of Germantown, O.; Joseph H., a minister at Farmersville, O.; David F., our subject; Sarah, the wife of Lewis Lortz, of Tuscarora District; Edward C., deceased; Ruie V., the wife of Rev. Thomas Tyler, of Marysville, Pa.; Annette, deceased; Enos L., of Howard County, Md.; and Annie, the wife of John Delauter.

David F. Mayne, son of David and Annie (Engle) Mayne, received his early education near Frederick and afterwards attended school at Montgomery, O. He spent part of his early years in Ohio with a brother. He returned and remained with his father until he was tweney-five years old. In 1877 he was married and went to Ohio again, settling at Montgomery, near Dayton. Here he followed farming and trucking and also engaged in the fruit business for about fifteen years. Most of the latter part of this period he devoted to trucking exclusively, and purchased a fine tract of land, upon which he erected an excellent house, barn and all necessary outbuildings. In 1892, Mr. Mayne disposed of his Ohio property and returned to Frederick County, where he bought a farm of 127 acres of fertile land from the Reich Estate. This farm is about a mile and a-half east of Frederick, on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The same year he sold this place to great advantage to William Thrasher. Mr. Mayne then bought the old Winchester trucking gardens in East 6th and 7th streets, and has erected several houses there. In 1901 he bought the old Hendrickson property in East 7th street. In 1902, he purchased a farm of 60 acres from George Ramsburg, lying about four miles west of Frederick, near Braddock. Four years later he disposed of this tract to a Mr. Brown. Mr. Mayne is also the possessor of eight fine houses in East 6th street, Frederick. In 1908, he secured a fine home in North Market street from S. D. T. Smith, known as the old Reese home. Mr. Mayne has been exceedingly fortunate in his real estate transactions and has displayed much ability as a business man. He is one of the substantial and public spirited citizens of the city. He is an adherent of the Democratic party.

Mr. Mayne was married to Fannie M. Bopst, daughter of William and Sarah Bopst, of Frederick City. There are no children by this marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Mayne are members of the United Brethren Church at Frederick, in which he is president of the board of trustees and an influential worker.

THE LATE EDWARD NICHOLS, a prominent retired farmer of Adamstown, Md., son of Jacob and Sarah (Rowlings) Nichols, both deceased, was born in Barnesville, Montgomery County, Md., June 5, 1834.

John Nichols, a German by descent, grandfather of Edward Nichols, was one of the first settlers of Montgomery County, Md. He was one of the original land owners of the county, and received, from Lord Baltimore, the grant of a tract of land on which he spent the remainder of his life. He married, and among his children was a son named Jacob.

Jacob Nichols, a prominent merchant of Barnesville, Montgomery County, Md., father of Edward Nichols, was born on the homestead near Barnesville, where his childhood and youth were spent. He began farming in early youth, remaining on the home place with his father. He afterwards, in connection with his farming, opened a store for the sale of general merchandise in Barnesville. He was very successful in both lines of business for a number of years, and finally retired from business to enjoy his well-earned rest. He was one of the prominent merchants of Barnesville, where he was highly esteemed. He was a stanch Democrat, interested in local affairs. Jacob Nichols was married to Sarah Rowlings. Their children are: 1, Thomas, deceased, a farmer of Lafayette County, Mo.; 2, Mary E., deceased, married to the late Lewis Trundle, of Lafayette County, Mo.; 3, William, deceased, a farmer in Missouri; 4, Harriet A., deceased, married to James P. Wade, a farmer of Montgomery County, Md.; 5, Sarah E., married to the late Stephen White, a merchant of Montgomery County, Md.; 6, Edward. Mr. Nichols and his wife were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He served the congregation as an officer, and contributed liberally to its financial needs.

Edward Nichols was educated in the public schools of Barnesville, Montgomery County, and remained with his father on the home farm. In 1854, after his marriage, Mr. Nichols began farming for himself near Furnace Ford, Frederick County, on his father's farm, which he cultivated successfully for nine years. Mr. Nichols then purchased, from W. S. Thompson, the farm now owned by his son, Charles E. Nichols, consisting of 160 acres of excellent land, a part of the Carrollton tract. He greatly improved the property in every respect, and made it one of the most desirable homes in the district. He remained on this place until he retired from farming, in the spring of 1904, when he removed to Adamstown where he had purchased a comfortable residence. Mr. Nichols also owned another farm of 130 acres near Forest Grove School. This also he improved, putting up good buildings, and improving the quality of the land. He owed his success to industry and close attention to business. He was well and widely known in Frederick County, as one of the progressive farmers of the district, and as an honorable citizen. Mr. Nichols was one of the leading Democrats of the county in which he had a large circle of friends.

Edward Nichols was married, in November, 1854, to Ann Virginia, daughter of William and Frances (Hempston) Trundle. Her ancestors, who were English by descent, were among the early settlers of Montgomery County, Md., where her father was a prominent farmer. Of their ten children, seven reached maturity: 1, Dr. Edward, Jr., a druggist, of Oklahoma; 2, William Anna, wife of James B. Davis, a farmer of Buckeystown District, Frederick County; 3, Otho Trundle, insurance agent, of Washington, D. C.; 4, Charles Ernest, a farmer and owner of the old homestead in Buckeystown District; 5, Julia Estelle, wife of Cromwell C. Kessler, a merchant of Hoods Mills, Md.; 6, Harriet Ellen, wife of Hobert Berrian, of Washington, D. C.; 7, Sophia E., deceased, wife of the late Clinton C. Blacklar. Mr. Nichols and his wife were active members of the Methodist Church at Forest Grove. He was a liberal contributor to the church in which he was an office bearer. Mr. Nichols died at his home in Adamstown, April 2, 1910, and is buried at Mount Olivet Cemetery. Mrs. Nichols was a loving wife, always by her husband's side, and a kind, devoted mother. She has reached her seventy-sixth year, and resides in Adamstown, Md. Mr. Nichols has ten grand children.

CHARLES WILLIAM AHALT, a prominent young farmer of Burkittsville District, and the owner of "Meadow Brook farm," on the Burkittsville road, is a son of Benjamin S. and Sarah E. (Derr) Ahalt, born at Mt. Tabor, on the memorable South Mountain battlefield, June 1, 1866.

Two years later, his parents removed to the farm on which they now reside. Charles William received his education at the old Broad Run school, where his first teacher was Miss Elizabeth Scott, afterwards Mrs. A. Dennis. Later teachers were: John Castle; John H. Rudy, an excellent teacher, who died during the summer of 1908; Martin Seyler; and Charles T. Guyton, now a rural mail-carrier. After finishing his course at the Broad Run school, Mr. Ahalt spent a year at a select school in Burkittsville, under Professor Thomas Lamar, ending his school days at the age of twenty.

He now turned his attention to agricultural business, in which he was already proficient, having from early childhood given such assistance in the work on his father's farm as his strength and school engagements would permit. In the busy harvest time, he could already rival many of the most experienced "hands." Marrying in his twenty-third year, he left home, and resided for two years with his father-in-law, Mr. Boyer. He then bought his present home from Mr. Outerbridge Horsey. "Meadow Brook farm" is a tract of 61 acres, at the distance of a half-mile from Broad Run, on the road to Burkittsville. Mr. Ahalt is one of the most successful young farmers of his vicinity, intelligent and thoughtful, besides being progressive enough to appreciate and avail himself of all the latest improvements in apparatus and methods of work. The house in which he resides was built about 1863, by Peter Whipp. Mr. Ahalt has improved this dwelling, and in 1900, built a fine new barn, 40x60 feet in extent, and 16 feet in height.

Charles W. Ahalt and Miss Pearl M., daughter of the late John C. and Laura (Slifer) Boyer, were married by the Rev. Mr. Sheridan, a pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church, on December 20, 1888. Their union has been blessed with nine children as follows: 1, Earl M., born March 1, 1890; 2, Hazel E., born August 7, 1891; 3, Mary L., born April 10, 1894; 4, Paul R., born September 23, 1895; 5, Julia M., born June 24, 1897; 6, Beulah P., born April 1, 1899; 7, Floyd B., born November 14, 1901; 8, Orpha R., born August 28, 1903; 9, Mildred N., born October 11, 1905.

Mr. and Mrs. Ahalt are both members of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Ahalt united with the church at Burkittsville during the pastorate of the Rev. M. L. Beard, and has ever since been a faithful, active and very useful member. He has served the church as a member of its Council; was formerly secretary of the Sunday-school, and has for twenty years been its superintendent. In politics, he is an ardent Republican. Mr. Ahalt's upright character, his benevolent disposition and valuable services to the community, have given him a very high standing.

WALTER C. DOTY, of the firm of Hemp & Doty, dealers in livestock, son of Abner and Jane (Porter) Doty, was born on the family homestead in Jefferson, August 9, 1871.

Mr. Doty's parents reside in Jefferson.

Walter C. Doty entered the public schools of Jefferson when he was seven, and at twelve he left school to learn harness making under his father's care. Even while at school he worked for Dr. J. J. Culler for five years and six months. After spending nine years in his father's shop, in 1895, he began dealing in stock and, in 1901, formed a partnership with Abraham Hemp, Jr. The firm purchases stock in Virginia, West Virginia, Buffalo, N. Y., Chicago, St. Louis and other points in the West, and sells in the Baltimore markets. Mr. Doty is a strenuous, wide-awake business man, always ready, and never misses a good bargain. The firm has been in existence for a very short time, but its success has been remarkable. The partners are the heaviest buyers in that section of the State.

Mr. Doty was married, January 28, 1892, in Jefferson, to Madora I., daughter of Frances and Elmira (Rhodes) Shaff, of Jefferson. Their children are: Erma Elizabeth and Mildred Emily.

Mr. Doty has been a Republican all his life. He is a member of the Modern Woodmen, and Knights of the Golden Eagle. He and his family belong to the Lutheran Church.

ABNER DELOS DOTY, retired manufacturer of Jefferson District, Frederick County, Md., son of Volney Leonard and Athelaine (Reid) Doty, was born in Littlefalls, Herkimer County, N. Y., December 12, 1842.

Mr. Doty's father was a shoemaker and farmer. In 1856, the family moved to Wisconsin, going first to Milwaukee and thence to Darlington, Lafayette County, where he died in 1862; his widow died in Darlington, in July 1888.

Abner D. Doty was fourteen when his parents removed to Wisconsin. He had attended the schools of Littlefalls, N. Y., but when he reached Wisconsin, he began working on the farm with his father. At one time he was employed in a hotel, at another in a livery stable, but he always found his way back to the farm. In June, 1861, Mr. Doty enlisted, at Darlington, for three years or until the close of the war, as a private in Company H, Third Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and reenlisted, as a corporal in 1864, in the same company and regiment, at Wartrace, Bedford County, Tenn. The regiment was attached to the Army of the Potomac, went to Harper's Ferry, thence to Gettysburg, Pa.; sharing in all the battles of the Army of the Potomac. At Brandy Station, Va., Mr. Doty received a flesh wound, but did not go to the hospital. At the close of the war, he returned to his home in Wisconsin, and, for a few months, was engaged in hauling, thus making his living with his team. In August, 1865, Mr. Doty removed to Knoxville, Frederick County, Md., and after his marriage, formed a partnership with his brother-in-law, Robert Porter. The firm of Doty and Porter, manufacturers of harness, did a successful business for four years. In 1869, he moved to his present home in Jefferson, Md., where he and his sons are engaged in making harness. Mr. Doty is a stanch Republican. He belongs to the Knights of Pythias, and to the Red Men.

Abner Delos Doty was married at Knoxville, Md., August 15, 1865, to Emily J., daughter of Philip and Mary (Leatherwood) Porter. Mrs. Doty, a native of Knoxville, was born November 21, 1845. Their children are: 1, Elmer W., of Jefferson, Md., born July 9, 1866, in the R. R. Mail Service, married Lenora Etsheison, has four children, Eugene Delos, Elmer Crum and Abner Wilard, twins, and Josephine Marie, died aged seven; 2, Claude P., manufacturer of harness, born October 5, 1869, married Annie Feaster, has one child, Eva O.; 3, Walter C.; 4, Guy D., an employe in the electrical department in Pittsburg, Pa., born August 29, 1873, married Mamie Keplinger, has one child, Howard D.; 5, Margaret (Mrs. Samuel P. Fetcher), of Cleveland, Ohio, has two children, Dorothy and Elmer; 6, Robert W., a graduate of Gettysburg Theological Seminary, now stationed at Westminster, Md., born August 23, 1876, married Alice Rolkey, has one child, Louise R.; 7, Maud S. (Mrs. Abraham Hemp, Jr.), of Jefferson, Md., born June 21, 1878, has three children, Richard Lee, Robert D., and Helda M.; 8, William B., born May 21, 1879, at home; 9 and 10, twins, Lettie G. (Mrs. J. R. Grove), of Waynesboro, Pa., has one child, Elizabeth, and Nettie G. (Mrs. Edgar Feaster), of Jefferson, has two children, Marguerite and Hazel; 11, Mary, born November 1, 1886, at home. Mr. Dody and wife are members of the Lutheran Church.

NICHOLAS D. HAUER, one of the oldest and most prominent citizens of Frederick County, Md., was born in the fine old colonial house at No. 103 West Patrick street, Frederick City, in which he still resides, July 7, 1817. He is a son of Daniel and Margaret (Mantz) Hauer.

Nicholas Hauer, the grandfather of Nicholas D. Hauer, was the American ancestor of the Hauer family of Frederick County, Md. He was a native of Dildendorf, district of Nassau Farbrucken in German Lotheringen, Germany, where he was born August 6, 1733, and died in Frederick County, Md. As a young man, he emigrated to America and settled in Frederick City in 1754, in what is now commonly called Bentztown. He engaged in the manufacture of hats, and kept what was known as the "Old Dutch Tavern," which was located on the site where the Schley drug store now stands. He afterwards removed to Lancaster County, Pa., subsequently returning, however, to Frederick. He was a man highly respected in the community, and in his day one of the best known and most prominent citizens of the county. In religion he was a consistent member of the German Reformed Church. Nicholas Hauer's wife's name was Catharine Zealer Hauer. They had the following children: Henry; Daniel, of whom presently; Catharine, married Peter Mantz; Elizabeth, married Jacob Steiner; Barbara, married John C. Fritchie, and became famous through the poem of Whittier, who paid a glowing tribute to her patriotism and love of her country's flag during the Civil War; Margaret, married a Mr. Stover, of Baltimore, Md.; and Mary, married William Adams, who removed to Kentucky.

Daniel Hauer, son of Nicholas Hauer, the emigrant, was a native of Lancaster County, Pa., where he was born in 1768. About 1790, he located in Frederick City and engaged in the manufacture of hats, in which field of endeavor he continued until 1830, when he retired from active business life. He was highly successful in his enterprise, and during the many years he was engaged in the business, he directed its affairs with an ability, foresight and sagacity that stamped him as a man of high executive capacity. His business methods were characterized by the highest principles, and he commanded the respect of business and financial circles generally. He was married to Margaret Mantz. They were the parents of the following children: Catharine, married Jacob Byerly; Matilda, married William Randolph Flemming; Harriet, married Allen G. Quynn; George, deceased; Mary, deceased; and Nicholas D.

Nicholas D. Hauer, son of Daniel and Margaret (Mantz) Hauer, received his education in private schools and the old Frederick City Academy. After leaving school, he learned the trade of a hatter under his father, and became the third generation of the family that engaged in that line of industry. As hat manufacturers the Hauers covered a period of over a century. Mr. Hauer continued in this business until he retired from active business cares.

Mr. Hauer is interested in many of Frederick County's flourishing enterprises. He has been a director of the Fredericktown Savings Institution since 1838, a period of seventy years, and in point of continuous service is the oldest bank director in the United States. He is a stockholder in the Frederick County National Bank, the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank, the Central National Bank and the Franklin Savings Bank.

In politics, Mr. Hauer was in early life a member of the old-line Whig party, but upon the organization of the Republican party, he became an active and loyal adherent to it. He cast his first presidential vote for William Henry Harrison in 1840, and has never since missed a presidential election. In 1847, 1854 and 1855, he served as a member of the Common Council of Frederick City. In religion, he has been for nearly three-quarters of a century an active and consistent member of the Reformed Church. Mr. Hauer has always been liberal in his charities and his gifts unostentatiously bestowed have been many. He maintains two furnished rooms at the Frederick City Hospital. Mr. Hauer is possessed of an active and vigorous mentality, and although ninety-three years of age, is well preserved, with a sound and retentive memory. He is a man who is highly respected by all who know him and is the oldest citizen of Frederick City, if not in the county.

Mr. Hauer was married in 1843 to Ann C. Myer, of Baltimore, Md. She died in 1885. They were the parents of four children: Lillian M., Agnes Rebecca, E. Irene and Ira Clarence, all of whom died in childhood.

O. O. F., of Thurmont; and of the Modern Woodmen of America. In religion, he is a member of St. John's Lutheran Church of Thurmont, and for many years a member of the church council.

Morris A. Birely, M. D., was married, June 7, 1900, to Bertha, daughter of Dr. Franklin and Mary Ellen (Carl) Bushey, of Greencastle, Franklin County, Pa., where Mrs. Birely was born. They have one son, Morris Franklin.

Morris A. Bisely M.D.

CHARLES F. OLAND, one of the leading farmers of Buckeystown District, Frederick County, Md., son of Frederick and Annie (Schaffer) Oland, both deceased, was born on a farm near Frederick, Md., July 21, 1854.

The late Frederick Oland, father of Charles F. Oland, a retired farmer residing near Frederick, Md., was born in Hanover, Germany, December 9, 1821. In 1830, when he was nine years of age his parents brought him to America. They landed in Baltimore, and settled in Frederick, where his father soon after died. Frederick Oland was educated in the public schools of Frederick, and learned shoemaking. After working at his trade successfully for some time, Mr. Oland began farming on rented land. He cultivated different farms—among others the old Kunkle farm on which he spent fifteen years. While he was on this farm, he purchased, of Daniel Jones, a farm of 310 acres, at Furnace Ford, about thirteen miles southeast of Frederick. His son, Charles F. Oland, took charge of this farm, which Mr. Oland greatly improved. Mr. Oland afterwards bought the valuable property now owned by Parker Devilbiss, two and a-half miles west of Frederick. This place he improved in every way, and here he spent the remainder of his life. He was one of the enterprising and prosperous men of the county, and ascribed his success to the habits of industry and attention which he learned in childhood. Mr. Oland was a stanch Republican, and an honored citizen of the county. Frederick Oland was married to Annie, daughter of Peter Schaffer, whose father was well-known among the older farmers of Frederick County. Their children are: 1, Frances (Mrs. John Karney), deceased; 2, Carlton E., deceased, a farmer of Montgomery County, Md.; 3, Alice E., married to Parker Devilbiss, a retired farmer residing near Frederick; 4, Lucretia, deceased, married to Edward Stull, a retired farmer of Tuscarora District, Frederick County; 5, Charles F.; 6, David P., of Licksville, Md.; 7, Jacob L., a farmer of Montgomery County; 8, Virginia, married to John A. Geesey, Frederick County. Mr. Oland was a member of the Lutheran Church and contributed liberally to benevolent objects. His wife, who was a kind, loving helpmate, was a member of the Reformed Church. Mr. Oland died at his home in Frederick County, March 30, 1908, and is buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery. His wife died in Frederick County, January 2, 1869, and was buried in Mt. Olivet Cemetery.

Charles F. Oland was educated in the public schools, and remained at home with his parents, until after his marriage, in 1877, when he began farming for himself on his father's farm at Furnace Ford. After cultivating this land successfully for fifteen years, Mr. Oland purchased the place from his father. This farm of 226 acres is beautifully situated on the Furnace Ford road, thirteen miles south of Frederick. The land is in a high state of cultivation, yields heavy crops of a fine quality, and has an orchard in good bearing. Mr. Oland built the large, new bank barn and all of the outbuildings. He remodeled the dwelling putting in water and all the modern conveniences. He is one of the enterprising farmers of the county, and is honored as a good citizen. He attributes his success to industry and care. Mr. Oland is a Republican, interested in all that concerns the best interests of his native county.

Charles F. Oland was married, in 1877, to Clara V., daughter of Simon P. and Susanna (Stull) Craver, whose father was a prominent farmer of Frederick County. They have five children: 1, Daisy A., married to Robert Ranneberger, a farmer of Buckeystown District; 2, Alice D., at home; 3, Susie V., at home; 4, Annie L., at home; 5, Olie M., at home. Mr. Oland and his wife are members of the Southern Methodist Church. He is an active worker in the church, and contributes liberally to all church enterprises.

JOHN HAMILTON SAYLOR, deceased, was a most estimable citizen and a man of high character. He was an agriculturist and highly esteemed in the community in which he made his home. He was born on the old Saylor homestead, now owned by his younger brother, E. W. Saylor, situated near the town of Johnsville, Frederick County, June 11, 1854. His death occurred June 16, 1892. His parents were John and Margaret (Hoffman) Saylor, and his grandparents, Solomon and Catharine (Hoffman) Saylor.

John Saylor followed the occupation of a farmer in Johnsville District, where he was well known and highly respected. In 1853 he purchased the farm now owned by his son, E. W. Saylor, from S. D. Warfield. This place was known as "Warfield's Delight" and had been a slave plantation under the old ownership. Mr. Saylor was married to Margaret Hoffman, by whom he was the father of a large family.

John Hamilton Saylor, son of John and Margaret (Hoffman) Saylor, grew to manhood on the parental estate, where he lived until his marriage. He was industrious and hard-working from his boyhood, and employed by his father in the cultivation of the home place. After his marriage, he began farming on what is now the Daniel P. Zimmerman or Harvey Bohn farm, at Rocky Hill, near Woodsboro. At the end of one year, he located on the Crum farm, near Good Intent, staying there for one year. Mr. Saylor then purchased the farm his widow now owns. This place consists of over 100 acres of fine land. It is situated in the neighborhood of Beaver Dam, Johnsville District. When Mr. Saylor secured possession of the property it was much run down, but he greatly increased its value by making extensive improvements. Mr. Saylor possessed many good traits, chief of which was his industry. When he was able he worked hard, but was for many years afflicted with a malady that caused his death. He is buried at Beaver Dam Church. Since his decease, his widow has successfully managed the farm and has made many improvements in the way of new buildings.

In his political views, Mr. Saylor was a Republican. In religion, he became a member of the German Baptist Church shortly before his death, being connected with the Beaver Dam congregation.

Mr. Saylor was married November 29, 1876, to Sarah E. Diehl, of Johnsville. She is a daughter of Moses and Catharine (Hyder) Diehl. (For the history of this Diehl family see the sketch of Jacob Diehl, of Johnsville, which appears in this volume). Mr. and Mrs. Saylor were the parents of three children: Gertie Irene, who was born August 20, 1877, is the wife of George B. Eyler, by whom she has had these children: Edna May, Clarence Wilbur, deceased; Myra Ethel, Raymond Oscar, Norman Elwin and Ruth Catharine; Rosella May, who was born December 9, 1879, lives at home; Roland Oscar, who was born October 4, 1884, and Helen Marie.

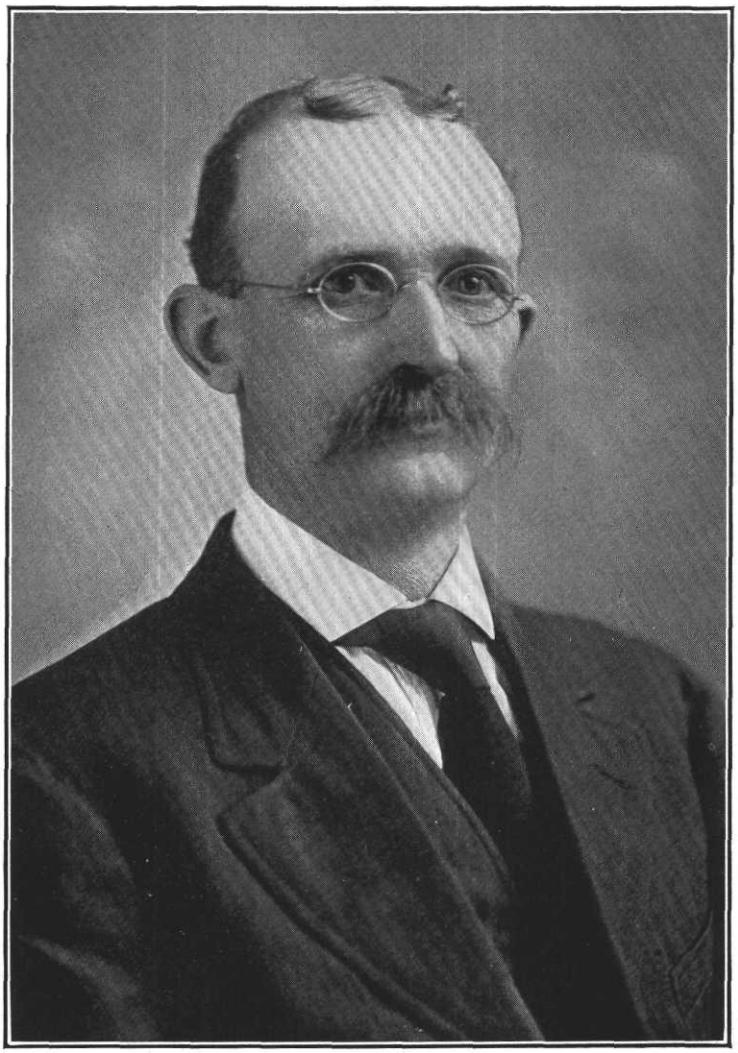
CHARLES C. BISER, a prominent agriculturist, who resides two miles and a-half west of Middletown on the old National pike on what is known as the old Koogle place, was born at the foot of Catoctin Mountain, October 28, 1862. He is a son of Henry and Sophia (Routzahn) Biser.

The progenitor of the Biser family of Frederick County, Md., was Frederick Biser. He was a native of Germany, and emigrated to this country with three brothers. He settled in Frederick County, where he was among the early inhabitants. The farm on which he located is now owned by L. Victor Baughman. He was a member of the Reformed Church. The name of his wife was Margaret Coblentz. They were the parents of the following children: Daniel; John; Peter; Jacob, (for his descendants see the sketch of Melvin A. E. Biser in this volume); Henry; a daughter who married Henry Brandenburg; Elizabeth, died unmarried; and a daughter who married Daniel Routzahn.

John Biser, son of Frederick and Margaret (Coblentz) Biser, was born near Frederick on the Baughman place. He was a farmer by vocation, and connected with the Reformed Church. He was the father of five children that grew to maturity: Catharine, married a Mr. Main; Elizabeth, married Jonathan Keller; Henry; Mahalia, married Daniel Bechtol, and settled in Texas; and Jonathan.

Henry Biser, son of John Biser, was born April 30, 1821, near Middletown, and died in January, 1899. He spent his whole life following the occupation of a farmer. He was a large land owner at one time, and was the possessor of two fine farms in Middletown District, one of 186 acres and one of 150 acres. He was well known in his time, and was highly respected. In politics, he supported the candidates of the Republican party. In religion, he held membership in the Reformed Church of Middletown, where he was very active and served as deacon and elder for many years. Mr. Biser was married to Sophia Routzahn. She was born in 1826, and is still living. They were the parents of the following children: Cyrus T., a farmer of Middletown District; Lawson H., retired, of Middletown; John E., deceased; Mary Catharine, deceased, was the wife of Edward Krontz; Emma F., married Lewis McBride, a farmer of Middletown District; Virginia A. R., the widow of George W. M. Keller, a miller of Middletown District; Charles C.; and Sarah T., died in childhood.

Charles C. Biser, son of Henry and Sophia (Routzahn) Biser, was raised on his father's farm. In the public schools he secured his education. At the age of eighteen years, he began to learn the miller's trade with his brother-in-law, Mr. Keller, at the National Steam Mills on Catoctin Creek, near Middletown. He followed this occupation for a period of sixteen years. In 1896, he gave up the milling business, and began farming on the old Keller farm that he now owns, which contains 150 acres of good agricultural land. In 1903, Mr. Biser purchased the fine home and farm where he now resides. This place contains 65 acres, and he began farming here in the spring of 1904. Mr.



Chas. C. Piser

Biser is a progressive farmer and by the use of intelligent methods has met with much success at agriculture. He is one of the county's well-known and leading farmers. Mr. Biser is a director of the Valley Savings Bank, of Middletown, and is a member of the executive committee. He is also a director in the People's Fire Insurance Company of Frederick County.

Politically, Mr. Biser has been for twenty-five years an active supporter of the principles of the Republican party. In 1901, he was nominated and elected by his party as treasurer of Frederick County. He served a term of two years with such fidelity and ability that he was renominated and again elected in 1903, keeping up the good record he had set in the first occupancy of the office. Fraternally, Mr. Biser is prominent in local Masonic circles, being a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. F. and A. M., Enoch Royal Arch Chapter, No. 23, and Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar, of Frederick City. He also holds membership in Frederick City Lodge, No. 100, I. O. O. F. Religiously, he is a member of Christ Reformed Church of Middletown.

Mr. Biser was married January 26, 1885, to Carrie M. Miller, daughter of Daniel C. and Fannie C. (Coblentz) Miller, members of an old Frederick County family. There are five children by this marriage: Floy Miller, Glenn O., Mark Henry, Goldie May and Charles Bruce.

Daniel C. and Fannie C. (Coblentz) Miller, the parents of Mrs. Biser, had five children: Annie C., the widow of Daniel W. Lighter; Carrie May (Mrs. Biser); Carlton C., lives in Missouri; Lewis P., of Middletown; and Ralph, of Washington, D. C.

CHARLES A. NORWOOD, D. D. S., the leading dentist of Liberty, Frederick County, was born at the mansion home at that place, February 22, 1843. He is the fourth child and first son of R. Nelson and Rachel (Wagner) Norwood.

Dr. Norwood spent his boyhood in his native place, and when he was thirteen years old his father removed to his farm, a mile and a-half from town. Here he grew to manhood. He began his education in the village public schools under J. A. Lafevre, who afterwards became a prominent minister in the Presbyterian Church in Baltimore. Dr. Norwood's education was continued at Liberty Academy under Professor Brockett, where he finished his course at the age of eighteen. Up to this time he had lived on his father's farm. He then entered the old Baltimore Dental College, which was the pioneer dental school of the United States, being organized by Professor Chapin A. Harris in 1839. Dr. Norwood was graduated from this institution in 1867, two years after entering. Immediately upon the completion of his studies, he began the practice of his profession at Liberty, and is one of the oldest dentists in point of service in Frederick County. During this time the advance in dentistry has been remarkable in the way of appliances, material and skill. Bridge work was then unknown. Dr. Norwood, however, has kept abreast of the times and his skill is widely recognized. He always possessed a large and lucrative practice, up until five or six years ago, when he gave up active practice. He, however, still gives attention to some of his old customers. Dr. Norwood is the possessor of the old home farm, which he looks after. He is one of the foremost citizens of Liberty and ranks high in the community. As a dentist, he made an enviable reputation and achieved financial success; his wealth by far exceeding that of any other citizen of the town in which he lives.

Dr. Norwood has never taken more than a citizen's interest in politics. He has been a Republican all his life. When a youth he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, and is a member of the congregation at Liberty. He takes much interest in religious affairs, and is an active church worker. For twenty-five years he has filled official positions, and is now steward, trustee and superintendent of the Sunday School.

Dr. Norwood was married February 22, 1871, to Pauline B. Mills, daughter of Judge John R. and Rachel B. (Pearre) Mills. She is a native of Alexandria, Va., and when a year old was brought to Frederick County. She acquired her education in private schools at Lisbon and near New Market. Dr. and Mrs. Norwood have no children.

John R. Mills, Mrs. Norwood's father, was born at Alexandria, Va. He was a farmer and removed to Frederick County. Here he served as judge of the Orphans' Court. A brother was Colonel Albert N. Mills, of the Confederate Army, and a prominent attorney of Galveston, Tex., where he died about 1900. Another brother, Rev. William R. Mills, became a very prominent minister in the Methodist Episcopal Church and died at Lewistown, Pa. The Mills family is related to many of the leading families of Virginia.

JOHN W. A. HAUGH, an enterprising and up-to-date business man of Haughsville, Woodsboro District, where he conducts a jewelry, drug, optical and notion store, was born at Urbana, Frederick County, November 30, 1854, He is a son of William H. and Henrietta L. (Leather) Haugh.

The name Haugh appears to have originated in Scotland and England, although some have held that it was in France. An iron manufacturer of Manchester, England, John Haugh by name, replying to John W. A. Haugh, who had inquired into the history of the name, said that so far as he could learn "Haugh" was Scotch and English.

Hezekiah Haugh left England with a brother, and came to America. His brother went to live in New Jersey. He located in Frederick County, Md., and took up a tract of land along Little Pipe Creek, at what is now Haughsville. From this family that hamlet takes its name. Hezekiah Haugh served as a soldier in the Revolution.

Paul Haugh, son of Hezekiah Haugh, the immigrant, succeeded to the farm of his father. He was a blacksmith by trade. He bought a farm adjacent to Haugh's Church, and he and Matthias Mort gave the land for a church and cemetery. For many years, until about 1860, there was a union chapel, Lutheran and Reformed. Paul Haugh was a member of the Reformed Church and Matthias Mort, a Lutheran. The church was called St. Paul and St. Matthias. Mr. Haugh died on his farm at Mount Zion Church.

William Haugh, son of Paul Haugh, was born on the old homestead at Haughsville. He was also a blacksmith by trade, and carried on the shop of his father, which is still standing. He married for his second wife a Widow Sowers, from Pennsylvania, and they died at the homestead. He was the father of four sons: John, farmer; David, was a blacksmith at the old place; Jacob, who was also a blacksmith, married a Miss Harbaugh, from Harbaugh's Valley, and some of his descendants settled at Bascomb, Seneca County, O., and at Niles, Mich.; and William, was a farmer and retired to Frederick City, where he died.

John Haugh, son of William Haugh, was the grandfather of John W. A. Haugh. He was born at Haughsville, and after the death of his father bought the home place. He died on this farm in 1862, being then aged sixty-two years. At the time of his death, he was a Republican in politics. Mr. Haugh was married to Catharine Smith. She was a sister of John and Christian Smith, both engineers on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Christian Smith died at Weverton, Md., at the age of ninety-three years, and was a well-known member of the I. O. O. F. Mr. and Mrs. Haugh had issue: William H.; Solomon, who went to railroading on the Baltimore and Ohio at an early age, in which he was engaged until just before his death, which took place at the home of his father, William, at Camden, N. J., married Jennie Colgate, of Baltimore, by whom he had four children, John, Charles, William and Annie; Samuel, who was born on the home place, lives on the farm of his ancestor, Paul Haugh, at Mount Zion Church, and married Ella Birely, daughter of William Birely, of Ladiesburg, by whom he has three children, Charles, Arthur and Cora, married Jesse Kolb, of Detour, Md.; Susan, the widow of Joshua Albaugh, of Liberty, Frederick County, and is the mother of these children: Charles, died in childhood; John Valentine, of Liberty; Eugenie, of Frederick; Thomas and William, live near Tiffin, O.; Irving, Liberty; Laura, Mt. Pleasant; and Flora, married to Ridgely Simpson, of Frederick; Mary, the wife of Louis Birely, of Keysville, Md.; Louisa, was married after her sister's death to Louis Birely, and had three children, Oliver D., Jennie and Mary; and Julia, married David W. Six (both deceased), and had three children, Samuel, William and Ariminta.

William H. Haugh, son of John and Catharine (Smith) Haugh, was born at the ancestral home at Haughsville, Frederick County. He received his education in the common schools. He learned the trade of wagon making at the old Haugh blacksmith shop, and followed that occupation for many years, from 1853 to 1878. After learning his trade he went to Urbana and carried on wagon making there for eleven years. He removed to Woodsboro, where he spent one year. He then went to the old family estate, where he died in 1892. While at Urbana, he served as a magistrate for ten years. He was a life long Republican. He held membership in the Reformed Church. Mr. Haugh was married in 1855 to Henrietta L. Leather, daughter of Major John Leather, of Carroll's Manor, Frederick County. She died in 1905. Both are interred at Haugh's Cemetery. They had issue: Emma, died in childhood; John W. A., our subject; Solomon E. E., whose sketch appears in this work; and one that died unnamed.

John W. A. Haugh, son of William H. and Henrietta L. (Leather) Haugh, acquired his learning in the public school at Urbana and Grove Academy. He learned wagon making and blacksmithing under his father and great-uncle, David Haugh. He afterwards went to Tiffin, O., and learned the jewelry business. He returned home and took up the optical business. He is a graduate of the South Bend College of Optics, South Bend, Ind. In 1878, he opened a small jewelry store and watch repairing shop. In 1901, he built his present store. He carries a line of watches, jewelry, optical goods and drugs. In addition, he deals in graphophones, pianos and organs. Mr. Haugh is one of the prominent citizens of Haughsville and possesses much business ability. From a boy of fifteen years he showed remarkable aptitude for mechanics, constantly tinkering with watches. This natural talent has been much help to him. He is a man of intelligence, fond of reading, and a good conversationalist. He is a loyal Republican. John W. A. Haugh bought Solomon E. E. Haugh's interest in the home place in 1906, for $2,000.00.

Mr. Haugh was married January 1, 1878, to Louisa E. Flickinger, of Abbottstown, Adams County, Pa. She is a daughter of George and Maria (Weikert) Flickinger, the latter being a daughter of Peter Weikert, of Littlestown, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Haugh are the parents of two children: George B., who was born in November, 1878, is operator and agent of the Western Maryland Railroad at Williamsport, Md., and married Minne B. Cover, daughter of Hon. William F. Cover, of York Road, Carroll County, Md., by whom he has one child, Donald C.; and May Isabelle, who was born March 2, 1880, is the wife of Morris J. Wilhide, a farmer of Double Pipe Creek, and has four children, Lloyd, Louisa, Merhl and Dorothy.

JOHN H. BOHN, a well-known farmer of Woodville District, Frederick County, Md., son of Joseph and Sidney (Ecker) Bohn, was born at Glisan's Mill, on the Linganore, Woodville District, Frederick County, Md., January 8, 1865.

Michael Bohn, grandfather of J. H. Bohn, was born and passed the greater part of his life in farming in Linganore District, Frederick County, Md., where he cultivated rented land for twenty-two years. Michael Bohn was married to Annie Saylor. Their children are: 1, Michael; 2, Daniel; 3, John; 4, Hamilton; 5, Thomas; 6, Saylor; 7, Solomon; 8, Annie (Mrs. Scott McAlister); 9, Ida, (Mrs. Scott Manard) 10, Lavinia (Mrs. Wash. Norris). Mr. Bohn died in Frederick City, Md.

Mr. Bohn's father, Jacob Bohn, was born in Frederick County, Md., on a farm two miles below the village of Liberty, on the Linganore. He was educated in the comon schools of the county, and learned milling, and with his brother-in-law, Scott McAlister, owned the mill now known as Glisan's Mill, and the farm of 125 acres surrounding the mill property. About 18—, the partnership was dissolved, and the mill was sold. Mr. Bohn then removed to McKeesport, Pa., and found employment in the steel mills there. He began by pushing the wheel-barrow and worked his way up until he was made overseer of the mill. He also patented a contrivance for steel cars on which he draws a large royalty, and has now retired from active business life. Jacob Bohn was married to Sidney, daughter of Samuel Ecker, of Linganore. Their children are: 1, Derward, married Laura Kline, died aged twenty-five; 2, Ora (Mrs. John C. Bohn), of Waynesboro, Pa.; 3, John H.; 4, James, died aged twenty-one; 5, Harvey, a farmer of Woodsboro District, married Elsie Zimmerman; 6, Ernest, of Ladiesburg, Frederick County, married Ida Pittinger; William, died aged six. Mrs. Bohn died in the same house in which she had passed her whole life, aged thirty-three. After he settled in McKeesport, Mr. Bohn was married a second time and has one child.

John H. Bohn grew up in Johnsville District, Frederick County, Md., in the home of his uncle, Daniel Bohn, with whom he remained from his sixth to his fifteenth year. He went to the school in Johnsville under Emma Stoner and Thomas Sidwell. He also attended the Fountain and the Hopewell schools, going a part of each year until he was sixteen. He was put to work at twelve and by the time he was sixteen, he was earning wages, working for the neighboring farmers. When he reached his twenty-third year, Mr. Bohn began farming for himself on the Albert Jones farm which he rented for three years. He then removed to the William Harn farm, and, after cultivating that land for three years, bought a farm of 115 acres near Harrisville, Md. After cultivating and improving this property for a year and a-half, Mr. Bohn sold it, and bought a place of 92 3-4 acres, near Woodville, Md. In the spring of 1908, he rented this land, and removed to the farm which he now occupies, which consists of 262 1-2 acres of arable land. Mr. Bohn likes to do business on a large scale and, for that reason, rents his small place that he may have more room to exercise his untiring energies. He is an intelligent, progressive farmer, an energetic, wide-awake business man, a clever, well-informed gentleman, and a good conversationalist. Mr. Bohn is particularly interested in fine stock. "Joe," his eight-year-old Kentucky bred horse, took the blue ribbon at the Mount Airy horse show. He is a single foot racker, of great speed, beautiful, kind and shows almost human intelligence. When asked for a kiss, he will give it as gently as a child, will give his "paw" and do any other tricks. "George," a beautiful bay, of 1000 pounds, of the "Norfolk Orange Blossom" stock, bred for speed, is very swift, and is entitled to be registered. Mr. Bohn also owns a fine herd of cattle numbering twenty-six, of mixed breeds, Holstein, Jersey and Durham. Mr. Bohn votes with the Prohibition party. He is a member of the "Woodmen," of Mount Airy, and of the I. O. O. F., of the same place.

John H. Bohn was married in 1888, to Susie R., daughter of Andrew and Olivia (Cassell) Alexander. Their children are: 1, Shirley Wilson, born in 1888, at home; 1, Olivia R., (Mrs. Harry Wilson), born in 1892; 3, Wilbur A., born in 1896, at home; 4, John A., born in 1899; 5, Ruby F., born in 1892, died aged 7 years. Mr. Bohn and his wife are members of Prospect Methodist Episcopal Church. Mrs. Bohn is an active worker in the church, a devout Christian, and a Sunday School teacher.

AMERICUS C. CRONISE, an intelligent and progressive agriculturist, was born in Lewistown District, Frederick County, February 3, 1850. His parents were Jacob and Annie M. (Ramsburg) Cronise.

The grandfather of Americus C. Cronise was Frederick Cronise, who was married to Anna Nicodemus. They were the parents of Jacob Cronise, and seven other children, three sons and four daughters. The youngest of the sons was William Cronise, who went with his brother Jacob to Virginia, where he is still living.

Jacob Cronise, son of Frederick and Anna (Nicodemus) Cronise, was born in 1827 and died in 1900. He was a prominent farmer of Lewistown District, Frederick County, where he owned a farm of 200 acres of fine land. This place was located about one mile north of Lewistown, and is now in the possession of Alex. Ramsburg and Daniel Leatherman. In 1868, Mr. Cronise disposed of this farm and removed to Virginia, settling near Roanoke. Here he purchased a farm of 1400 acres, consisting of agricultural and timber land. Here he made his home until he passed away. This farm was one of the largest in that part of Virginia. Mr. Cronise achieved much success at agricultural pursuits. Politically, he was a Republican. He was a member of the Lutheran Church, and was an untiring worker in religious affairs. He served as deacon and elder at various times in his congregation in Virginia. Mr. Cronise was married in 1846 to Annie M. Ramsburg. This marriage had issue of fifteen children: Jane, deceased; Andrew F., lives in Adams County, Pa.; Americus C., whose name heads this sketch; Anna Mary, the wife of William E. Bream, of Adams County, Pa.; Marshall C., lives in Virginia; Milton A., of Denver, Col.; Rebecca L., the wife of Charles W. Brewbaker, of Virginia; Hannah A., married to Charles L. Williamson, of Virginia; John L., deceased; Charles E., deceased; Edwin H., deceased; Jacob L., of Roanoke, Va.; Webster N., of Salem, Va.; Emma J., the wife of Clinton Brough, of Virginia; and Jennie M., the wife of Joseph L. Watkins.

Americus C. Cronise, son of Jacob and Annie M. (Ramsburg) Cronise, acquired his education in the public schools. He remained with his father until he was twenty-three years old, when he began farming on his own account. In 1875 he bought part of his father's farm near Roanoke, Va., and successfully cultivated it until 1889. In that year he sold the place, which contained 208 acres, to Zan Thompson, clearing a large sum in the transaction. In September of the same year, Mr. Cronise returned to Maryland, and bought the fine farm that he now owns from J. C. Cronise. This tract lies about three and a-half miles north of Frederick on the Emmitsburg turnpike. On this farm is one of the oldest mills in Frederick County, which is still in a good running condition. It was built in 1768 by Adam L. Barbara and is today known as the Franklin Mill. Mr. Cronise is a practical and progressive agriculturist, and by intelligent methods secures large crops annually. He is a supporter of the Republican principles.

In 1873 Mr. Cronise was married to Alice E. Bream, daughter of William and Harriet Bream, of Adams County, Pa. They are the parents of five children: Clayton H., of Frederick City; Harriet M., the wife of Guy Rebert, of Marysville, Pa.; Mary M., married to Harry Worman; Grace E. and Elsie M., both reside at home. Mr. and Mrs. Cronise hold membership in the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Frederick City, where he has acted as an official at various times.

MARION G. BRANDENBURG, a prominent farmer of Jackson District, Frederick County, Md., son of Eli and Susanna (Main) Brandenburg, was born on the old Brandenburg homestead in Jackson District, July 11, 1857.

The Brandenburg family is of German descent. Mathias Brandenburg, great-grandfather of Marion G. Brandenburg, was one of the early settlers of the northern part of Frederick County. He was a teamster and endured many hardships hauling merchandise to and from Baltimore, Md. However hard work and attention to business brought him financial success, and he was able to call the old home his property. Mathias Brandenburg was married to Barbara Keller. Their children are: 1, Abram, deceased; 2, Daniel, deceased; 3, Henry, deceased; 4, Jacob, deceased; 5, David; 6, Catherine, second wife of the late Jacob Biser. Mr. Brandenburg and his wife were members of Christ Reformed Church, of Middletown, Md. He died in 1818. He and his wife were laid to rest in the cemetery at Middletown.

Henry Brandenburg, grandfather of Marion G. Brandenburg, who was well-known among the older farmers of Jackson District, was born in 1792, on the old homestead, two miles south of Myersville, Md. He grew up on his father's farm and was educated in the public schools of his native district. After the death of their parents, he and his brother, Daniel, purchased the home property and divided it. On his share of the land, Mr. Brandenburg built a comfortable two-story brick dwelling, a bank barn, and all the required out-buildings. Here he spent the remainder of his life in cultivating and improving his land, and was highly esteemed by the men of his generation. Henry Brandenburg was married to Mary, daughter of Frederick Biser, whose parents were descended from families prominent in the Middletown Valley. They had five children: 1, Malinda, deceased; 2, Elizabeth, deceased; 3, Mary A., of Jackson District; 4, Harriett, deceased; 5, Eli. Mr. Brandenburg and his wife were members of Christ Reformed Church, in Middletown. He was an active worker in the church, and served the congregation as deacon and as elder for many years.

Eli Brandenburg, father of Marion G. Brandenburg, was born on the homestead in Jackson District, May 15, 1830. He attended the public schools of the district, and remained at home assisting his father until he married, when he rented the place from his father. After the death of his father, Mr. Brandenburg purchased the property from the estate. The farm consisted of 75 acres of arable land to which he afterwards added 20 acres. He improved his property in many ways and made it one of the fine farms of the district. Hard work and watchfulness have brought him a rich reward. Besides this farm, he owns two brick dwellings in Harmony, Md., and 35 acres of valuable timber land on the Catoctin Mountain. In 1899, when he retired from active farm life, Mr. Brandenburg removed to the comfortable two-story brick dwelling which he had built for himself on the farm. He is honored in the community as a successful business man and as a reliable citizen. He is a member of the Prohibition party. Eli Brandenburg was married to Susanna, daughter of William Main, of Frederick City. Of their nine children eight reached adult age. 1, Theodora M., of Frederick City; 2, Marion G.; 3, George W., a farmer of Middletown District; 4, Calvin R., of California; 5, James, at home; 6, Edward F., of Colorado; 7, William W., a merchant of Harmony, Md.; 8, Lewis H., of Myersville, Md. Mr. Brandenburg and his wife are members of Christ Reformed Church, of Middletown. He is a liberal contributor, and has served the congregation as deacon and as elder for many years.

Marion G. Brandenburg was educated in the public schools of Jackson District, and remained at home, assisting his father until he reached his twenty-second year. After his marriage, Mr. Brandenburg began farming for himself on the P. J. Levy farm, which he cultivated successfully for sixteen years. He then removed to the Noah Routzahn place and, after farming it for two years, purchased his present home from Thaddeus M. Biser. This farm, to which he removed in 1900, consists of 104 acres of fertile land, situated a mile and a-half south of Myersville, along the old Hagerstown road and the Inter Urban Railroad. The location is beautiful and Mr. Brandenburg has remodeled the dwelling, and put up a bank barn with all necessary buildings. His toil and care have made his farm one of the best in Jackson District. Mr. Brandenburg is an active member of the Republican party, and has been one of the Central Committee for a number of years. He is also one of the supervisors of roads in Jackson District.

Marion G. Brandenburg was married to Laura C. Routzahn, daughter of Noah and Elizabeth B. (Smith) Routzahn, a descendant of a prominent family of the Middletown Valley. Their children are: 1, Elmer G., merchant, Hagerstown, Md.; 2, Carrie L. (Mrs. Franklin P. Shank), of Middletown; 3, Oscar C., at home; 4, Annie E., at home. Mr. Brandenburg is a member of Christ Reformed Church of Middletown; he is a liberal contributor, and has served the congregation as deacon and as elder for many years. Mrs. Brandenburg is a member of the Lutheran Church at Middletown.

JAMES H. GAMBRILL, JR., is one of the leading and active citizens and business men of Frederick.

He is treasurer and manager of the Frederick County Farmers' Exchange and general manager of the Mountain City Mills, two of the largest and most enterprising industries of the city. He is also closely identified with several other Frederick enterprises; was one of the incorporators and is general manager and treasurer of the G. L. Baking Company which was incorporated in 1909, and are successfully operating a wholesale bakery in this city. He was also one of the incorporators and is treasurer of the Post Publishing Company, recently incorporated for the purpose of conducting an independent Daily Newspaper and general printing and publishing business.

Born in Baltimore, March 9, 1866, our subject is the third son of a family of five sons and four daughters, of James H. and Antionett Frances (Staley) Gambrill.

The Gambrill family is of English origin and Scotch-Irish extraction, and was one of the early settled families of Maryland. The American ancestor of the family was an Episcopal clergyman.

James H. Gambrill, Sr., is a native of Howard county, Md., where he resided until 1849, when he located in Frederick County. For many years he was actively engaged in the milling and grain business in Frederick and Frederick County. Since he first came to the county, with the exception of a year spent in Baltimore at the close of the Civil War, he has resided in or near Frederick. Mr. Gambrill during his active business life became widely known as one of the representative business men of the County and he is held in high regard by all who know him. He is now living retired in Frederick. In politics he is a Democrat and he is a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

On his maternal side James H. Gambrill, Jr., is a grandson of Cornelius Staley who was one of the best known of Frederick County citizens, and who was born near Frederick on October 22, 1808, and died in March, 1883. Cornelius Staley traced his ancestry back through three generations of Frederick County citizens, his great-grandfather having come from Germany shortly after 1740.

James H. Gambrill, Jr., was reared in Frederick County, and he received his education in the public schools and Frederick City College.

At the age of sixteen he, as an apprentice entered into the milling business with his father, and since that time with the exception of five years, from 1888 to 1893, spent in Alabama, where he was engaged in the mercantile business, he has been identified with the milling and grain business.

He has always been actively interested in helping to develop the agricultural resources of the County. In 1898 he was one of the organizers and incorporators of a Truckers Association in Frederick County, organized for the purpose of co-operation and better marketing of vegetables, fruits, etc. Mr. Gambrill was the financial and sales agent of the association for five years, and successfully conducted its affairs until the pressure of his other business interests compelled him to resign.

In 1902 Mr. Gambrill was one of the organizers and incorporators of the Frederick County Farmers' Exchange, a joint stock company composed of one hundred and eighty farmers of the county, incorporated for the purpose of conducting a general grain, flour, feed, fertilizer and implement business. The officers for the first year were D. C. Kemp, president; J. F. Thomas, vice-president; R. Rush Lewis, secretary; James H. Gambrill, Jr., treasurer and manager.

For five years under the active and progressive management of Mr. Gambrill, this organization was very successful, and was looked upon as one of the best managed corporations of the kind in the State.

In 1907 upon the completion, by Mr. D. W. Dietrich, of the Mountain City Mills, which have a capacity of one thousand barrels per day, the stockholders of the Farmers' Exchange decided to sell their holdings of stock to Messrs. D. W. Dietrich and James H. Gambrill, Jr., and received book value for their stock. Since then this enterprise has been conducted in conjunction with the Mountain City Mills, which is the largest mill in the state of Maryland with one exception. From the very outset these kindred enterprises have met with substantial success under the management of Mr. Gambrill.

He has largely been instrumental in directing the affairs of the business with an ability, foresight and sagacity that stamps him as a man of high executive capacity and rare mercantile acumen. To him has been due much of the prosperity and prestige attained by the firms, and he has become prominent in business and milling circles as one of the ablest and most representative men identified with these branches of industry. Honorable in all his dealings, and his business methods characterized by the highest principles, he commands the respect of business and financial circles generally. Mr. Gambrill is also one of Frederick's most public spirited citizen. He has been one of the most active members of the Frederick Business Men's Association for some years. In 1909 he was Vice-President and is now serving as President of this Association. He has largely helped to make this one of the livest and most progressive organizations of the kind in the State.

At a largely attended and representative Citizens meeting held July 15, 1910, for the purpose of taking initiative steps towards the securing of a new Charter for Frederick City, Mr. Gambrill was named by the meeting to be one of seven men who should form a Charter Commission to draft a new Charter, the other six to be named by the committee appointed for that purpose.

In politics, Mr. Gambrill is allied with the Democratic party. From June 1907 to June 1910 he served as a member of the Board of Aldermen of Frederick City. He was one of the active members of the board, and is accredited with having shown ability, sound judgment and good methods in helping to handle the affairs of the city. At the expiration of his term he declined to stand for renomination, and proved his interest in the city, and as an example for future public spirited citizens, when he refused to accept the salary due him for his three years' services.

In religion he is a member of All Saints' Protestant Episcopal Church of Frederick.

October 31st, 1890, Mr. Gambrill married Susan May, the eldest daughter of Colonel D. C. Winebrener, one of Frederick's leading citizens. After being happily married for eleven years the beautiful and useful life of Mrs. Gambrill was brought to a close on December 2, 1902.

Their union was blessed with two living children, James H. Gambrill 3rd, and Susan May Gambrill. The former, who is nineteen years old, graduated at Staunton Military Academy, at Staunton, Va., in June 1910, and is now associated with his father in business; the latter, who is eight years old, helps brighten the home of her father who has remained unmarried since the death of his wife in 1902.

PETER G. SAUBLE, is a well known breeder of blooded cattle and horses, and is the owner of "Dan Tucker," a horse with a mark of 2:16, sired by "George Tucker." He called his stock farm "Highland," and is situated near Johnsville. Mr. Sauble was born in Wakefield Valley, Carroll County, Md., May 2, 1858, and is a son of William and Mary (Geiger) Sauble.

Henry Sauble, the grandfather of Peter G. Sauble, lived for some time at Manchester, Md. He located near Westminster, Carroll County, Md. He followed the vocation of a farmer. His children were as follows: Jacob, Daniel, Catherine, Margaret, George, John, Lydia and William.

William Sauble, son of Henry Sauble, was born at Manchester, Md., and reared to farm pursuits. He was the recipient of a common school education. He farmed in the Wakefield Valley, Carroll County, Md. His death occurred near Taneytown, in that county. He held membership in the Dunkard Church. Mr. Sauble was married to Mary Geiger, still living. They were the parents of the following children: Peter G., whose name heads this sketch; Anne, is unmarried; Wesley Emanuel, of New Windsor, Md., married a Miss Koons; Mollie, the wife of Charles Angle, of Taneytown; William, deceased, was married to Laura Griffin, and secondly to Jennie Little, and left three children, Belle, Harrison and Grace; Daniel, is deceased; John Henry, of Taneytown, Md.; George, lives in Carroll County; Addison, a resident of Baltimore City; and Maggie, married to Edward Cook, of Baltimore.

Peter G. Sauble, son of William and Mary (Geiger) Sauble, received his education in the schools of Frederick County. He was but four years old when his father removed to Johnsville District. Among his teachers were Mary Rhein, Anne Kinper, John S. Repp, R. Glisen, Thomas Sidwell and Frank Sidwell. He left school when he reached nineteen years. During his youth he learned all the details of an agricultural life. For several years he conducted a threshing machine. In 1886 he took up farming at Lenwood, Carroll County. He then located on a rented farm in Johnsville District, and next lived on a place near Unionville. Mr. Sauble then purchased his present farm, in 1891, which contains 140 acres. On this estate, Mr. Sauble has laid out a half-mile track, on which he tries out his horses. As said, he is very prominent in the breeding of blooded cattle and horses.

In his political views, Mr. Sauble is a Republican. He is a member of no religious body. On September 21, 1886, he was married to Emma Amanda Willier, daughter of Augustus Henry and Hannah (Pfoutz) Willier. There is one child by this marriage: Hannah Mary, born in September, 1887,, who is the wife of Roy Dern, of Bruceville, Md.

The Willier family, to which Mrs. Sauble belongs, comes originally from Switzerland. Charles Willier, her grandfather, was a native of Harbaugh's Valley, Frederick County. He was a farmer and distiller. He was twice married. His first wife was Elizabeth Ricksicker, and his second, Margaret Willier. He was the father of these children: Augustus Henry, Herman, Commius, John, and Celia, who married first George Willier and secondly David Buhrman.

Augustus Henry Willier, the father of Mrs. Sauble, was born in Harbaugh's Valley, Frederick County, in 1829, where he grew to maturity. He received a common school education, and worked for his father, driving the teams of the distillery to and from Baltimore. He went to Zanesville, O., where he followed the trade of a carpenter for about a year. He then returned to his native county and entered the employ of Daniel P. Saylor, of Double Pipe Creek. After his marriage, he went to live on a farm in Linganore District, where he stayed for one year, after which he purchased a tract of 164 acres in the same district. Here he died in 1894, and was laid to rest at Locust Grove. He was a member of the Dunkard Church, in which he served as a deacon for many years. Mr. Williar was married to Hannah Pfoutz, daughter of John and Rachel (Lehman) Pfoutz. She died in 1891. They were the parents of five children: Elizabeth, born in September, 1857, and is the wife of William H. Geiman, of Westminster, Md., by whom she has eight children, May, Eugenia, Rose, Harry, Charles, Edna, Lottie Lee and Madeline; Emma Amanda, was born March 31, 1860, on a farm in Linganore District, and is the wife of Peter G. Sauble; Rose Alberta, was born February 3, 1863; John A., born in March, 1865, lives in New York City, where he is engaged in the coal business, and is married to Lornie Burns, of Passaic, N. J., by whom he has one child, Florence L.; and Jacob, born in 1867, who is cultivating the home farm, married Bertha C. Eaker, and has six children, Frank, Marguerite, Prudence, Ralph, Elizabeth and Herbert.

ADAM TAYLOR ETZLER, one of the representative citizens of Liberty District, is the owner of "White Hall" farm, containing 132 acres. This was formerly the old Warfield Simpson place, and on the tract is an old graveyard, where many of the Warfields and Simpsons are buried. Mr. Etzler was born two miles above Liberty, in Liberty District, Frederick County, July 9, 1849. He is the eldest son and child of Daniel and Mary Angeline (Nusbaum) Etzler.

Daniel Etzler was a son of Daniel Etzler by his first marriage. He began life as a farm boy and was identified with farming all his life. A few years before his death he retired from active work. When he was married, he began farming on his father-in-law's farm, which was later inherited by his wife. He died in Liberty District. He used his right of franchise in favor of the Republican party. In religious affairs, he held membership in the Reformed Church, and filled the office of elder for many years. Mr. Etzler was married to Mary Angeline Nusbaum. They are both interred at Union Chapel. They were the parents of these children: Adam Taylor, whose name heads this review; Rachel, died in childhood; Daniel W., of Liberty District, married first Victoria Davis and secondly Eliza Boyer; Charles H., of New Market District, married Florence Appleby; Laura, the wife of Charles Bowers, and lives in Mount Pleasant District; James, of Linwood, Frederick County, married Laura Carter; John, who is a resident of Mount Pleasant District, served as commissioner of Frederick County and married Olivia Nicodemus; Florence, the wife of Edward Crum, of Mount Pleasant District; Ella, married Josiah Crum, of Liberty District; Mollie, died small; and George Albert, of Mount Pleasant District, married Laura Welker.

Adam Taylor Etzler, son of Daniel and Mary Angeline (Nusbaum) Etzler, studied at the old Chestnut Grove school. His instructors were Ellen Albaugh, William Dent, May McAllister and Samuel Davis. Being the eldest child, he was kept home a great deal to help in the work. He was employed by his father until he was about twenty-one years old, when he worked out. Upon his marriage in 1871, he labored by the day for two years, after which he began agriculture in Liberty District. He rented for thirty-three years. For three years his landlord was Dr. Sidney Sappington, and for the remaining thirty years he lived on the Norwood place. This latter is almost a record for a tenant farmer. In 1906, Mr. Etzler purchased his present farm. He is an authority on all pertaining to agriculture and is one of the prosperous farmers of Liberty District. He is a foremost citizen.

Mr. Etzler has been twice married. He was married first October 3, 1871, to Laura Blume, daughter of Michael and Eliza (Boden) Blume. She was a member of the Reformed Church and died Jan. 23, 1879, leaving three children: William N., who was born May 27, 1872, married Fanny Swoduer, by whom he has one child, William Taylor, and is engaged in farming in Liberty District; Annie Pearl, who was born November 11, 1873, is the wife of Charles H. Bell, of Liberty, and has two children, Viola and Earl; and Charles Ellsworth, was born January 14, 1879, and died October 2, 1882. Mr. Etzler was married January 6, 1880, to Anna Carter, of Unionville. She is a daughter of Henry and Margaret (Nicodemus) Carter. She was born in Freedom District, Carroll County, Md., November 14, 1858, and was a babe when her parents removed to Unionville, Frederick County. She attended school at Linganore and a select school at Liberty under Lizzie Hilliary. By this second marriage, there are four children, namely: Margaret Gertrude, who was born May 6, 1881, married Clarence Staup, by whom she has two children, Helen and Genevieve, and lives in Westminster; Lettie R., who was born October 26, 1883, is living at home; Daniel Henry, who was born November 7, 1885, married Nettie Nusbaum, and is living with his father; and Aubrey Taylor, was born November 29, 1887.

CYRUS T. BISER, who is one of the progressive and successful agriculturists of Middletown District, Frederick County, was born February 18, 1849. He is a son of Henry and Sophia (Routzahn) Biser. His home is two miles southwest of Middletown, on the Burkittsville road.

The progenitor of the Biser family of Frederick County, Md., was Frederick Biser. He was a native of Germany, and emigrated to this country with three brothers. He settled in Frederick County, where he was among the early inhabitants. The farm on which he located is now owned by L. Victor Baughman. He was a member of the Reformed Church. The name of his wife was Margaret Coblentz. They were the parents of the following children: Daniel; John; Peter; Jacob, (for whose descendants see the sketch of Melvin A. E. Biser in this volume); Henry; a daughter who married Henry Brandenburg; Elizabeth, died unmarried; and Catherine, married John Routzahn.

John Biser, son of Frederick and Margaret (Coblentz) Biser, was born in Middletown District. He was a farmer by vocation, and connected with the Reformed Church. He was the father of five children that grew to maturity: Catharine, married a Mr. Main; Elizabeth, married John Keller; Henry; Mahalia, married Daniel Bechtol, settled in Texas; and Jonathan.

Henry Biser, son of John Biser, was born April 30, 1821, and died in January, 1899. He spent his whole life following the occupation of a farmer. He was a large land owner at one time and was the possessor of two fine farms in Middletown District, one of 186 acres and one of 150 acres. He was well known in his time, and was highly respected. In politics, he supported the candidates of the Republican party. In religion, he held membership in the Reformed Church of Middletown, where he was very active and served as deacon and elder for many years. Mr. Biser was married to Sophia Routzahn. She was born in 1826, and is still living. They were the parents of the following children: Cyrus T.; Lawson H., retired, of Middletown; John E., deceased; Mary Catharine, deceased, was the wife of Edward Krontz; Emma F., married Lewis McBride, a farmer of Middletown District; Virginia A. R., the wife of George W. M. Keller, a miller of Middletown District; Charles C., engaged in farming in Middletown District; and Sarah T., died in childhood.

Cyrus T. Biser, son of Henry and Sophia (Routzahn) Biser, spent his early years on the farm of his father, on which he had been born, and received such an education as the public schools of the neighborhood afforded. Arriving at maturity, he selected farming as his vocation, and this he has always followed. In 1901, Mr. Biser purchased from the heirs of Eli Routzahn his present farm, which contains 154 acres of excellent land. Mr. Biser is a practical and progressive agriculturist and has had much success at farming. He is well known in the district and is recognized as a substantial citizen. He is at present school director of Fink school district.

Mr. Biser is an adherent of the Republican party in politics, but he has never had any desire to receive office. In religion, he is a consistent and active member of Christ Reformed Church of Middletown, with which he has been connected for the last thirty years, and has filled the offices of elder and deacon.

Mr. Biser was married January 28, 1875, to Sarah A. R. Derr, daughter of Daniel and Elizabeth (Coblentz) Derr, of a well-known family of the valley. They were the parents of ten children, three of whom are living: Edith R., the wife of Jacob Rudy; Sophia and Albert C., reside at home.

HOWARD L. SMITH, an active and successful agriculturist of Buckeystown District, was born on the old Smith homestead, two miles south of Frederick City on the Ballinger turnpike, March 18, 1867. He is a son of George William and Susan V. (Howard) Smith, the latter deceased. (For the history of Mr. Smith's forebears see the sketch of his father, George William Smith, which appears in this work.)

Mr. Smith secured his elementary learning in the public schools. He afterwards attended the Frederick City College. Upon the completion of his education, he assisted his father, until he began farming for himself. He rented from his father the old home place in the spring of 1891. Here he remained for six years, at the end of which time he removed to another farm owned by his father, known as the old Engle farm. Here he has since lived. In 1907, he purchased the place, which contains 198 acres, and is situated three miles south of Frederick on the Point of Rocks road. There is a fine house and barn on the place, and it is a fertile tract of land. Mr. Smith is one of the leading of the younger farmers of Frederick County. He is also engaged in the dairy business, and is among the large milk shippers of the county. He is a stockholder in the Ballinger Turnpike Company, of which he served as secretary for a number of years.

In politics, Mr. Smith uses his influence in aid of the Democratic party. Fraternally, he is connected with Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, Knights of Pythias, and of the Modern Woodmen. In religion, he holds membership in Grace Reformed Church of Frederick.

Mr. Smith was married to Nellie Leona Thomas, daughter of David D. and Hattie (Trundle) Thomas, of Buckeystown District. Her ancestors were among the early settlers of Carroll's Manor, Frederick County. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were the parents of seven children, six of whom are living, namely: Helen, Ruth, Harriet, Howard T., Virginia and Bernard.

GREENBERRY H. PUTMAN, one of the leading and prosperous agriculturists of Frederick District, who resides on his well improved farm a half mile northwest of Frederick City, was born near Creagerstown, April 6, 1858. He is a son of John J. and Rebecca (Shriver) Putman.

John Putman, the grandfather of Greenberry H. Putman, lived and died in Frederick County. He was engaged in farming in Middletown Valley, where his parents had early located. It is claimed by some that the name of the family was originally Putnam and of the same stock as Gen. Israel Putnam of Revolutionary fame.

John J. Putman, son of John Putman, was born in Frederick County in 1825, and died in 1907. He followed the vocation of a farmer all of his life. In his political beliefs, he was a Democrat, and he was connected with the Lutheran Church in religion. Mr. Putman was married to Rebecca Shriver. They were the parents of fourteen children, of whom twelve grew to maturity: John Jerome, a farmer, of Shookstown, Frederick County; Greenberry H.; Elizabeth, was the wife of John Warner, deceased, of Frederick County; Elmer, lives in the West; Jacob F., a retired farmer, of Frederick City, now engaged in the grocery business under the firm name of Putman, Miller Co.; Lewis, engaged in farming in Frederick District; Laura, married Henry Black, who was killed at Lime Kiln Switch by a Baltimore & Ohio train; Julia, married George O'Neal; Minnie, died aged eighteen years; Calvin, an agriculturist of Lewistown District; Dessie, the wife of Edward Miller, of Grafton, West Va., now engaged in the grocery business under the firm name of Putman, Miller Company.

Greenberry H. Putman, son of John J. and Rebecca (Shriver) Putman, passed his boyhood near Creagerstown, in Frederick County, and acquired his education in the public schools. He began life as a farmer at the age of twenty-two years. He bought a farm near Creagerstown, where he followed agricultural pursuits for about a quarter of a century. He sold this farm, and purchased another, which he also disposed of, after which he removed to Buckeystown District, where he rented a farm for several years. His next purchase was a tract of 70 acres. Mr. Putman afterwards bought his present farm from his brother, J. F. Putman, in 1906. This place contains 111 acres of the best limestone land in the county. The price paid for the farm was $14,000. Mr. Putman has made his way in life by hard work and strict honesty.

In politics, Mr. Putman always votes the Democratic ticket. He is connected with the Lutheran Church in his religious belief.

Mr. Putman was married in 1880 to Ida Joy, daughter of James and Rose Ann Joy, still living. They were the parents of seven children: Charles, a farmer, married Bessie Mort, of Frederick County; Roy G., resides at home, is a farmer; Raymond C., farming, married Bertha Zimmerman; James Oscar, a farmer with his father; John Allen, also with his father; Estella, the wife of Harry E. Mohler, formerly a farmer of Frederick County, but now connected with the Prudential Life Insurance Company, of America, Newark, N. J., by whom she has one son, Thomas G.; and Mary C., with her parents.

JOSEPH H. HEDGES, retired, resides on his well-improved farm, situated one mile north of the old National pike, at the foot of Catoctin Mountain, Middletown District. He spent his active life following the occupation of a farmer. He was born on the above farm, March 5, 1838, and is a son of Shedrick and Mary M. (Miller) Hedges.

Shedrick Hedges, born 1753, died 1846, lived and farmed on the old Hedges homestead. This tract was taken up by Charles Hedges, one of the very first settlers in the Middletown Valley, when that section of the country was still overrun with Indians. This farm contains 163 acres of excellent land, and has been in the possession of the Hedges family for nearly 160 years. Shedrick Hedges was a Democrat in his political sympathies, and religiously, he was a consistent member of the Lutheran Church. He was married to Mary M. Miller. They were the parents of five children, three of whom grew to maturity: Charles died in infancy; Mary M., married Titus V. Bartgis; Thomas, died in infancy; Joseph H.; and Shedrick, a minister in the Lutheran Church. Shedrick Hedges also served in the Revolutionary War.

Joseph H. Hedges grew to manhood on the old homestead of the family, and was educated in the schools of the neighborhood. He has followed farming for a period of nearly sixty years. He is now enjoying a well earned competency, and is highly esteemed in the community in which he makes his home. Mr. Hedges lends his support to the candidates of the Republican party. Religiously, he is an active member of Zion's Lutheran Church, in which he has served in official capacities, having acted as deacon and elder. Mr. Hedges was married in November, 1872, to Sophia Kefauver, daughter of Henry Kefauver. The Kefauver family is one of the most prominent and early settled families of the county (see sketch of D. Edward Kefauver). Mr. and Mrs. Hedges have one son, Leslie E., and one daughter, Lillian G.

Lillian G. Hedges was born on the old home farm, September 27, 1879. She is a member of the Middletown Lutheran Church. July 20, 1909, she married Professor Edward B. Cornell, of Burlington, Vermont. She and her husband reside in Haverhill, N. H.

Leslie E. Hedges was born on the old home farm, April 15, 1874. Since his father's retirement, he has undertaken the management of the farm, in which he has been very successful. Politically, Mr. Hedges is a Republican, and he is a member of the Middletown Lutheran Church, in which he has filled the office of deacon. He was married to Harriet M. Getzendanner (see sketch of Dr. Getzendanner, of Frederick), by whom he has five children: John H.; Helen Charlotte, died at the age of eight years; Eleanor M., Harry H.; and Miriam Sophia.

THOMAS ARNOLD, son of John and Sarah (Karn) Arnold, was born, January 22, 1841, on the farm now occupied by his son, George Arnold.

The family is one of the oldest and best known in Frederick County. It is supposed that David Arnold, the grandfather of Thomas Arnold, emigrated from Germany; he settled in Middletown Valley, Frederick County, where he became a prosperous farmer, and the owner of several tracts of land. He died on one of these farms in 1841, at the age of 84 years. David Arnold married and had three children: 1, John; 2, Peter, who married Mary Harshman; he died in Burkittsville; 3, Lydia (Mrs. John Ausherman), died at Arnoldstown, Frederick County.

The eldest of these, John Arnold, was born in 1795, near Burkittsville. He received a very limited education, having been at school but twelve days when he began farm work on a tract of 200 acres, now a part of the farm owned by his grandson, George V. Arnold. The land was at that time in a very poor condition. Mr. Arnold paid only sixteen dollars per acre for it. When he died, in 1860, he was the owner of several good farms, and was well and favorably known throughout the county. He was a man of stalwart physique and commanding appearance; was active in public life, and took a lively interest in current affairs. In politics, he was first a Whig, but at a later time, changed his views, and voted with the Democratic party.

On March 5, 1818, John Arnold married Sarah Karn. Mrs. Arnold died in August, 1878, aged about seventy-eight years. She was a member of the Dunkard Church and a devout Christian woman. The children of Mr. and Mrs. John Arnold were: 1, Eliza, born April 5 1819, died in childhood; 2, not christened, died while an infant; 3, David, born October 13, 1821 (see his sketch); 4, Huldah, born March 23, 1824; was married, April 13, 1843, to Hanson Ausherman; died in Washington County, Md., April 16, 1864; 5, John, born May 28, 1826, married, March 18, 1851, to Matilda Beachley; after her death, he married Annie Himes, and later, Sarah Williams; he removed to Loudoun County, Va., where he died; 6, Sarah, born June 28, 1828, married John Fink; they removed to Virginia, and thence to Kansas; 7, Ezra, born March 5, 1831, married Louisa Boyer, March 20, 1855; both are deceased; 8, Joshua, deceased, was born September 20, 1833 (see his sketch); 9, Mahlon, born February 14, 1836, married Martha E. Ahalt, March 7, 1867; both are deceased; 10, Martin V., born February 3, 1838; married Susan A. R. Haupt, July 28, 1870; they reside near Arnoldstown; 11, Thomas.

Early in life, Thomas Arnold became a pupil at the Pleasant View school, near his old home; the teacher at that time was Mr. Josephus Remsberg. He continued attending school during the winter months until he was eighteen years old, since which time farming has been the occupation of his life. In this business he has been remarkably successful. Beginning as a poor boy, he has become one of the wealthiest farmers of Frederick County, and holds a prominent position in the business world, as a bank director. Every dollar has been honorably earned. Although he began with very limited capital, he has always kept carefully abreast of the times, equipping his farm with the best of stock, and the most improved machinery. In all his investments, he has shown prudence, intelligence and good judgment. After the death of his mother, Mr. Arnold purchased the homestead, where he resided until 1896. He then built his present home, near the Dunkard Church, and since that time, has lived retired, enjoying the fruits of his labors. Besides the home farm, Mr. Arnold purchased two farms in Washington County. When his children married, he gave each one a farm on which to begin.

Thomas Arnold was married, March 30, 1869, to Miss Annie L. Ray. Their children are: 1, George V., resides on the home farm; was born February 14, 1870; married in 1893, to Emma Ausherman, daughter of David Ausherman, deceased; they have children, Thomas D., Annie Louise, and Robert Lee; 2, Jennie May, born May 23, 1871; married in 1895 to George B. Mullendore, of Washington County, Md.; they have four children, Mabel Marie, Mary Annabel, Arnold Lee and Olive Virginia; 3, Cora, born June 14, 1875, married Clifford Mullendore, of Washington County, Md.; has three children, Ellis Clifford, Eva Pauline, and Grace; 4, Eva Frances, born September 18, 1876; died August 29, 1900.

Mrs. Thomas Arnold died on March 6, 1880. Her remains are interred in the cemetery of the Dunkard Church, of which she was a member. She was instrumental in the erection of this house of worship. She is tenderly remembered for her beautiful life as wife, mother and friend.

Mr. Arnold is Democratic in his political opinions, but has never sought public offices, nor been willing to accept those offered to him.

WILLIAM H. NAYLOR, a prominent retired farmer of Sabillasville, Frederick County, Md., son of William and Rebecca (Housman) Naylor, both deceased, was born in Waynesboro, Pa., October 30, 1848.

The ancestors of the Naylor family, who were Germans, were among the early settlers of Pennsylvania.

William Naylor, father of William H. Naylor, was born February, 1818. He learned shoemaking, and after his marriage settled in Waynesboro, Pa., where he did a large business, and owned his establishment. He began life as a poor boy, but hard work and close application to business made him successful. He owned two good dwellings in Waynesboro, and 202 acres of farm and timber land, half a mile north of Sabillasville, to which he removed a few years before his death. He was a Democrat, interested in all that pertained to the best interests of the district. William Naylor was married to Rebecca Housman. They had two children: William H., and daughter, died in childhood. Mr. Naylor and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church in Waynesboro, Pa. He died in Sabillasville, and was buried in the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Sabillasville, Md.

William H. Naylor was educated in the public schools of Waynesboro, Pa., and remained with his father until after his marriage. He learned cabinet making, with Joseph H. Crebs, of Waynesboro, and worked with him for seven years. Mr. Naylor then secured a position in the car shops at Altoona, Pa., where he remained for two years. He then engaged in house painting during the summer; and in winter worked at cabinet making. Some years later, Mr. Naylor removed to the farm which his father had bought in Frederick County, Md., and assisted his father until his father's death, when he inherited the property. The land is beautifully situated on the south side of the Blue Ridge Mountain, and his many improvements have made it one of the fine farm of the district. Mr. Naylor cultivated this land successfully until the spring of 1907, when the State Board of Health selected his farm as the most desirable site for a state sanatorium and purchased it, paying a good price. Mr. Naylor had reserved a part of his land, and on it he built a comfortable home, and retired from farming. He also owns several desirable dwellings near Sabillasville. He attributes his financial success to diligence and attention to business. He is a Democrat, interested in the progress of the district.

William H. Naylor was married to Edith A., daughter of Richard and Ann M. (Miller) Wagaman, whose father was a prominent farmer of Hauvers District. Of their nine children seven reached adult age: 1, John R., a farmer of Hauvers District; 2, Reuben R., a merchant of Sabillasville, Md.; 3, Roscoe, a farmer of Hauvers District; 4, Albina, at home; 5, Annie (Mrs. William Benchel), deceased; 6, Catherine M., at home; 7, Mary A., at home. Mr. Naylor and his wife are members of St. John's Reformed Church in Sabillasville. He is an active worker in the church, and contributes liberally to benevolent enterprises.

DAVID T. STUP, an enterprising farmer residing in the western part of Buckeystown District, near the line of Jefferson District, Frederick County, Md., son of Emanuel and Harriet S. (Webster) Stup, was born on his father's farm near Frederick, Md., August 24, 1861.

Mr. Stup's great-grandfather, who was a German by birth, was one of the early settlers of Frederick County, where he spent the greater part of his life in the cultivation of the soil. He married and among his children was a son named David.

David Stup, grandfather of David T. Stup, was born on his father's farm in Frederick County. He learned blacksmithing and was employed at that trade all his life. He was also engaged in farming, and owned a fine place about two miles west of Frederick, now the property of R. Scott Derr. He cultivated and improved this land until he retired from farming, and removed to Frederick, where he spent the remainder of his life. Mr. Stup was a Democrat, interested in local affairs. He was prominent among the men of his generation, and gave the credit of his success to diligence, and attention to business. David Stup was married to Susan Bast. Their children are: 1, Emanuel; 2, Mary (Mrs. Charles Huff), of Baltimore, Md.; 3, Curtis, deceased; 4, Jonathan, of Frederick City; 5, Douglas, of Frederick City; 6, Randolph, of Baltimore, Md.; 7, William, of Frederick City; 8, Rebecca (Mrs. David Staley), of Frederick; 9, Sophia, of Frederick, unmarried. Mr. Stup was a member of the Lutheran Church; his wife belonged to the Reformed Church.

Emanuel Stup, father of David T. Stup, was born on his father's farm two miles west of Frederick, Md., April 29, 1837. He was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained with his father until he married, when he began farming for himself. After cultivating different farms successfully, Mr. Stup rented the Ross farm, in Urbana District, where he remained for twenty-two years. In the spring of 1910, he retired from farming, and removed to Urbana, Md., where he owns two desirable dwellings. Although he never owned land, Mr. Stup was counted among the enterprising and prosperous farmers of the district. He was a hardworking man and ascribed his success to honest toil and attention to business. Mr. Stup is a Democrat, interested in all that pertains to progress and has a large circle of friends. Emanuel Stup was married to Harriet S. Webster, a member of one of the old families of Frederick County. Of their nine children, seven reached maturity: 1, Fannie, married to Thompson Windser, a farmer of Urbana District, Frederick County; 2, David T.; 3, Ada L., of Urbana, unmarried; 4, Charles W., a farmer of Urbana District; 5, John L., of Urbana; 6, Mary E., married to Brunner Kidd, dealer in produce in Urbana; 7, Jesse D., a farmer of Buckeystown District, Frederick County, Md. Mr. Stup is a member of the Lutheran Church at Mt. Zion, in which he is an active worker and to which he is a generous contributor. He has served the congregation as deacon for a number of years. Mrs. Stup died in January, 1910, and was laid to rest in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

David T. Stup received his education in the public schools of Frederick County, and remained with his parents until after his marriage, when he began farming for himself. He rented a farm in Urbana District and after cultivating it successfully for eight years, purchased his present home, a farm of 165 acres of arable land, the property of Mrs. Redman. It is beautifully situated two and a-half miles north of Adamstown, on the road from Adamstown to Jefferson. When it came into Mr. Stup's possession it was in bad condition; everything had been neglected. His skill and progressive methods have made it one of the most productive farms of the district. He spent many days of hard work upon it, but his toil has been richly rewarded. Besides his care of the land, he improved the place by putting up a comfortable two-story frame house, a bank barn, and convenient outbuildings. Mr. Stup is a Democrat, interested in all that concerns improvement in the county. He is counted among the prosperous men of the county, and has several times been offered an unusually high price for his property. He is a good business man and an excellent citizen.

David T. Stup was married to Hester C., daughter of the late Charles and Miranda C. (Giesbert) Thomas, a descendant of one of the old families of the county. Their children are: 1, Miranda, at home; 2, Maud H., at home; 3, Charles, at home; 4, Carrie; 5, Mary, deceased; 6, George; 7, Jessie; 8, Julia; 9, Howard; 10, Raymond. Mr. Stup and his family belong to the Reformed Church.

WILLIAM HILLEARY LAKIN, one of the most highly respected citizens of Frederick County, who is now living in retirement, after many years of honorable and useful public service, was born on January 12, 1830, and is a son of William and Susan (Remsburg) Lakin. (See sketch of Francis Lakin, his brother.)

The home of Mr. Lakin's parents at the time of his birth was a frame house, situated on a farm about two and a-half miles from Jefferson. In 1859, he built a brick dwelling on the same site, which was his home for forty-eight years after. He then removed to his present home in Jefferson, which he had just completed.

Mr. Lakin's school days were passed in the old Union School, built in 1824 as a subscription school. His first teacher was Amos Carr. This school was regarded as one of the best in the county; pupils came from a radius of many miles, to enjoy its advantages. It was the "Alma Mater" of many well-known professional men. William Lakin was in his sixth year when he became a pupil there; being fond of study, possessing a retentive memory and the ability to make practical application of his acquirements, he made excellent progress. In this respect he was fortunate; for when he was old and strong enough to be serviceable in farm work, he could devote only the winter months to study. While attending school, he took a course in surveying, but never made it his occupation.

Before Mr. Lakin attained to manhood, the family sustained a severe loss in the death of his father. William being the eldest, the cares and anxieties of farm life fell most heavily upon him. He took up the burden manfully, and was the companion of his widowed mother. The deceased father had left a large debt, and the sons, by united efforts, not only discharged all his obligations, but bought new tracts of land, until they at last owned 1,500 acres, which was amicably divided among them. Mr. Lakin continued to cultivate his farm until his retirement. He was always successful, owing to his excellent management, his readiness to adopt any new method which his judgment approved, and his sound business principles.

His public services have been considerable. He was for fifteen years a Justice of the Peace, having been first appointed in 1867 by Governor Thomas Swan. During all that time, no judgment of his was ever reversed by the Court. His duties were well and faithfully discharged, and his counsel was often sought by those who appreciated its value. His experience as a magistrate served him in good stead when he afterward served his county as Commissioner, to which office he was twice elected; first in November, 1883, and again in 1885, receiving one thousand more votes at his re-election, than in 1883. During the last term, he was president of the Board of Commissioners. He had the satisfaction, while in this office, of breaking up a gang of "grafters," who were robbing the public treasury. Mr. Lakin was appointed County School Commissioner in 1889; in the same year, he was a candidate for the General Assembly, but was defeated by thirty votes. In 1899, he was elected to the House of Delegates. Always a Democrat, he has taken a keen interest in the welfare of his party.

On October 13, 1859, William Hilleary Lakin was married in Jefferson, by the Rev. William F. Colliflower, of the Reformed Church in the United States, to Miss Ellen Catherine, daughter of Frederick and Julia (Keller) Hemp, who was born on her father's farm, one mile from Jefferson, October 20, 1835. It was directly after his marriage that he moved into his new home on the paternal farm, as above mentioned. Mr. and Mrs. Lakin have one daughter, Susan Julia, at home.

Mr. Lakin joined the Reformed Church in 1848, and for more than fifty years has been almost continuously in office. He was largely instrumental in the founding of the Woman's College, in Frederick. His memory goes back to the days when the B. & O. R. R. extended only to Harper's Ferry, and when railroad cars were drawn by horses and mules. He has always been interested in improvements; was the first man here to use a drill, and the first to lay a concrete walk in town.

AUGUSTUS NICODEMUS, JR., of Buckeystown, Md., a prominent business man of Frederick County, son of Augustus W. Nicodemus, and his wife, Barbara A. (Fulton) Nicodemus, was born on his father's farm, two miles from Buckeystown, Frederick County, Md., in 1870.

Henry Nicodemus, the founder of the American branch of the family, and the great-great-grandfather of Augustus W. Nicodemus, Jr., was one of four brothers who came from Germany to America, and settled first in Philadelphia, Pa. One of the brothers established his home in Franklin County, Pa.; one in Washington County, Md.; the third, who was a minister of the Lutheran Church, was the first representative of that denomination who preached in the Middletown Valley, Frederick County, Md. Henry, the fourth brother, removed from Philadelphia, Pa., to Carroll County, Md., then an uninhabited wilderness. Many years prior to the Revolution he took up the land which is still in the possession of the family. During the war with England, he owned and operated a small distillery, and also built a mill which he carried on for some time. He died in Carroll County, aged sixty, and is buried on the homestead, where his grave is marked by a stone erected by one whose name is unknown. He had a sister, Mrs. Baile, whose son was named Nicodemus.

John L. Nicodemus, son of Henry Nicodemus and great-grandfather of Augustus W. Nicodemus, Jr., was born on the same homestead in Carroll County. He became the owner of large tracts of land and was a rich man, judged by the standard of his day. In addition to farming, he was engaged in milling. He was a Federalist and afterwards a Whig, but never sought or held public office. During the War of 1812, he was too old to take an active part, but he was deeply interested, and was greatly delighted at the success of the American army. From his home he could hear the cannonading at North Point. Methodism was established in his vicinity by Mr. Strawbridge, the pioneer of the denomination in that section of Maryland. Mr. Nicodemus, however, was a member of the Reformed Church. John L. Nicodemus was married to Ann March Neff. Little is known of his wife's family, except that they were of Swiss descent. He died at the age of sixty-eight, and was buried on the homestead.

John Nicodemus, son of John L. and Ann March Nicodemus, grandfather of Augustus W. Nicodemus, Jr., was born on the old homestead in Carroll County where the first forty-two years of his life were spent. He afterwards removed to Frederick County and purchased a farm near Walkersville. He was a successful agriculturist, interested in every enterprise that would promote the best interests of his county. He was, at first, an old-line Whig, voted with the Know-Nothing party until the breaking out of the Civil War, but, after that, he was a strong Union man, and a stanch Republican. During the latter part of his life, he made a number of removals. He assisted in the organization of the Methodist Protestant Church in 1828, and was one of its most faithful and earnest members, serving as an officer for many years, and at all times giving liberally of his means. John Nicodemus was married to Hannah, daughter of David Engler, a prominent farmer and dairyman. He was one of the first Dunkards in Carroll County, and served as an elder in the church. He died at the age of sixty-eight, and is buried in the old Pipe Creek burying ground, the largest cemetery in that part of the county. His father, Philip Engler, one of the pioneers of Carroll County, with a few Dunkard friends, came from Germantown, Pa., and introduced the Dunkard faith into Carroll County. The children of John and Hannah (Engler) Nicodemus are: 1, Nathan, farmer, owner of the old homestead, died in 1865; 2, John L., deceased, a prominent farmer of Walkersville; 3, Augustus W.; 4, Eli, a farmer of Buckeystown District, Frederick County. Mr. Nicodemus died in the seventieth year of his age and is buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Augustus W. Nicodemus, father of Augustus W. Nicodemus, Jr., received his education in the public schools, and was but a youth when he began working for himself. After his marriage, he began farming on land belonging to his father, situated two miles west of Buckeystown. Mr. Nicodemus afterwards purchased the property, and made many improvements, putting up a two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn, and other necessary buildings. He cultivated this land successfully until 1872, when he sold the place and bought 35 acres of excellent farming land adjoining Buckeystown. To this farm, which is beautifully situated at the northern end of Buckeystown, he removed the same year, and began making improvements. It is now one of the most desirable homes in the county, and is equipped with a comfortable, two-story brick dwelling, a bank barn, and all the necessary buildings. Mr. Nicodemus, assisted by his son, Augustus W. Nicodemus, Jr., then engaged in the creamery business. Mr. Nicodemus afterward put his son in charge of that business, and accepted a position as general manager of the Buckeystown Packing Company. He was one of the organizers of the company, and held some of the stock. He remained with the Company until he retired from business in 1906. His business ventures have been aggressive and enterprising, and have met with great success. Mr. Nicodemus has been quite influential in the politics of the county. In 1875, he was elected, by the Republican party, commissioner of Frederick County, and served one term. In 1879, he was elected Judge of the Orphans' Court, for a term of four years; and in 1901, his party sent him to the Maryland Legislature. In these several capacities he fully met the requirements of the offices, giving entire satisfaction to his constituents. He is highly esteemed in Frederick County and is a reliable citizen.

Augustus W. Nicodemus, Sr., was married to Barbara A., daughter of John Fulton. Of their twelve children, only four reached maturity: 1, Harry O., in the creamery business in Woodstock, Va.; 2, Augustus W., Jr., in the creamery business at the old stand in Buckeystown, Md.; 3, Mamie E., married to William E. Kindley, connected with the Stone and Lime Company, of Buckeystown; 4, Edgar R., connected with the creamery in Buckeystown. Mr. Nicodemus is a stanch member of the Methodist Protestant Church, in which he has held office for many years. He was until the last two years, superintendent of the Sunday school, and is one of the trustees of the church. Mrs. Nicodemus died, February 3, 1908, and was laid to rest in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Augustus W. Nicodemus, Jr., who is prominent among the progressive business men of Frederick County, received his preparatory education in the district schools, became a student in the old Frederick College, and completed his studies in a business college in Baltimore, Md. When he was seventeen, he started to make his own way in the world, and for two years was a clerk in Washington, D. C. When he attained his majority, Mr. Nicodemus returned to Buckeystown, and was associated with his father in the creameries and canning factory in which his father was already interested. In 1894, he became manager of the creamery, and, in 1900, succeeded his father in the business which he conducts so successfully. Since he became the owner of the establishment, Mr. Nicodemus equipped the plant with the best modern machinery, and has made it the most complete sanitary creamery in Western Maryland. He is also largely engaged in the manufacture of ice cream, in which article he does a large and lucrative business. From his youth, Mr. Nicodemus manifested unusual business talent, and his good judgment, foresight, and experience have made him more and more successful in his varied undertakings. He is a true and tried Republican, interested in all that concerns the improvement of the county. In March, 1910, he was appointed, by the Governor, one of the board of School Examiners of Frederick County. He is highly esteemed in the county for his financial ability and for good citizenship. He is a stockholder, and one of the directors of the company of C. F. Thomas & Son, Brick Manufacturers, of Buckeystown. He is a member of Columbia Lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Frederick City. He owns a beautiful home in the pleasantest part of Buckeystown.

In 1897, Augustus W. Nicodemus, Jr., was married to Annie M., daughter of Charles F. Thomas, a well-known citizen of Frederick County. They have two children: Grace H., at school; and Robert F., at home. Mr. Nicodemus and his wife are members of the Methodist Protestant Church. He is an active worker in the church and contributes liberally to its finances. Mrs. Nicodemus is a lady of superior education and attainments. Having finished her studies in the Western Maryland College, at Westminster, she went to Germany where she enjoyed further advantages.

ARTHUR A. PEDDICORD, of "Cedar Grove" farm, Woodville District, Frederick County, Md., son of Henry Adolphus and Mary Elizabeth (Mercer) Peddicord, was born on his father's farm in Woodville District, Frederick County, Md., September 23, 1856.

The ancestors of the Peddicord family were emigrants from England. Mr. Peddicord's grandparents, Caleb and Ann (Sheets) Peddicord, lived and died on their farm in Howard County, Md.

Henry Adolphus Peddicord, father of Arthur A. Peddicord, was born on his father's farm in Howard County, Md., November 22, 1832. He grew up on the homestead and devoted his whole life to the cultivation of the soil. In 1856, Mr. Peddicord purchased a farm of 212 acres in Linganore District, Frederick County, to which he removed, and spent some years cultivating and improving it. However he finally returned to Liberty District, where he spent the remainder of his life. Mr. Peddicord was a Democrat, highly esteemed in the community. Henry Adolphus Peddicord was married to Mary Elizabeth, daughter of John Mercer, of Howard County, Md. They had two children: 1, Arthur A.; 2, Annie M., resides in Liberty, Md. Mr. Peddicord was a member of St. Peter's Church in Liberty. He died at the homestead, March 7, 1904, and is buried in the cemetery adjoining St. Peter's Church. His wife died at the home farm, September 23, 1898.

Arthur A. Peddicord received his education in the public schools of his native district, which he attended until he was eighteen. The son of a farmer, he loved the country, and turned his attention to the cultivation of the soil. In 1884, soon after his marriage, Mr. Peddicord settled on the farm which he now occupies, which he purchased from Thomas W. Harn. This property, known as "Cedar Grove" farm, contains 360 acres of fine, arable land, and is situated in Woodville District. Mr. Peddicord is a successful farmer, and his land shows intelligent care. He also owns several steam threshing machines which he rents to neighboring farmers. He is a stanch Democrat, interested in local affairs.

Arthur A. Peddicord was married, at the age of twenty-eight, September 23, 1884, to Mary Louise, daughter of Sylvester B. and Elizabeth (Bentz) Jamison, of Berkeley County, W. Va. Their children are: 1, Marie E., of Baltimore, Md., born August 15, 1885; 2, Harry A., at home, born March 18, 1887; 3, Catherine A., born June 30, 1889; 4, Arthur A., died in infancy; 5, Louis Victor, died in infancy; 6, Emma Louise, born March 22, 1895; 7, Charles W., born February 22, 1898; 8, Annie M., died aged three. RAYMOND G. FORD, senior member of the firm of Markell & Ford, dealers in coal and wood, owning one of the largest coal yards in Frederick City, son of William F. and Alice (Pembroke) Ford, was born in St. Mary's County, Md., January 23, 1868.

Mr. Ford's paternal ancestors were Scotch-Irish, his maternal ancestors were English. His grandfather, Washington Ford, one of the prominent farmers of St. Mary's County, was one of the early settlers of the southern part of Maryland. He owned a large number of slaves and spent his whole life in the cultivation of his land. Washington Ford was married to Priscilla Greenwell. Their children are: 1, Ignatius, a merchant of St. Mary's County, Md., deceased; 2, William F.; 3, Alice, died unmarried. Mr. Ford and his wife were active members of the Roman Catholic Chruch.

William F. Ford, father of Raymond G. Ford, son of Washington and Priscilla Greenwell Ford, was born in St. Mary's County, Md., in 1839. He received his education in the public schools of his native county, and remained on the homestead with his parents. After his father's death, he took charge of the place for his mother, and at her death the farm became his own. After cultivating this land for some years, Mr. Ford sold it and purchased his present home, known as the Pembroke homestead, containing 268 acres of excellent farm land, situated in the southern part of the county, on the Chesapeake Bay. He is a progressive and enterprising farmer, and has improved his property until it ranks as one of the most desirable farms in St. Mary's County. Mr. Ford is one of the most active Republicans in the county, and has a wide circle of friends. In 1879, he was his party's nominee for sheriff of St. Mary's County, and carried the county by a good majority. He was an able officer, discharging the duties of his office promptly and faithfully. In business, Mr. Ford was a successful marchant. He was Chief State Tobacco Inspector of the State under Lloyd Lowndes' administration and made a good record, saving money for the State.

William F. Ford was married to Alice, daughter of George W. Pembroke who is one of the most prominent farmers of St. Mary's County. Their children are: 1, Ignatius P., of Baltimore City, Md.; 2, Raymond G.; 3, Joseph C., a farmer of St. Mary's County, Md.; 4, Parran B., lawyer and farmer, of St. Mary's County; 5, Mary E. (Mrs. Raymond M. Burch), of St. Mary's County; 6, Alice L., married to Dr. McClane Carwood, of West River, of Anne Arundel County, Md.; 7, Sister Mary Claud, at the convent in Frederick City; 8, Laura M., at home; 9, Paul W., at home. Mr. Ford, his wife and family, are active members of St. Nicholas Roman Catholic Church of St. Mary's County.

Raymond G. Ford attended the public schools of his native county, and completed his education at Charlotte Hall, St. Mary's County, graduating in 1886. After teaching for three years, Mr. Ford accepted a position under President Harrison, in the Internal Revenue Department in Baltimore, Md. Four years later, he resigned his position and removed to Frederick, Frederick County, Md., where he began dealing in wood and coal, and afterwards formed a partnership with the late John U. Markell. The firm of Markell and Ford were very successful in business and had one of the largest coal yards in Frederick City. After the death of Mr. Markell, his widow, Mrs. Mary G. Markell, took her husband's share in the business which is very large, as the firm is the oldest and one of the largest in the city. Mr. Ford, who is one of the progressive business men of Frederick, is the active member of the firm. He attributes his financial success to close application to business. He is a Republican in all that concerns the progress of the county, where he is highly esteemed as a citizen.

Raymond G. Ford was married to Mattie J. B., daughter of the late O. J. and Margaret (Burnett) Keller, whose father was one of the most prominent business men of the county. They have one child, Margaret S., at home. Mr. Ford and his family reside in their comfortable modern dwelling on West Church St., Frederick. Mr. Ford is an active member of St. John's Roman Catholic Church in Frederick City. Mrs. Ford is an active member of All Saints' Episcopal Church of Frederick City.

GEORGE P. BUCKEY, retired banker, Union Bridge, Carroll County, Md., son of Ezra and Susan (Root) Buckey, was born on his father's farm near New London, Frederick County, Md., November 2, 1829.

Mr. Buckey, who belongs to one of the oldest families of Frederick County, is a descendant of the renowned Indian fighter, Colonel Henry Boquet. Colonel Boquet was a personal friend of George Washington, and a prominent officer under General Braddock. At Bushy Run, in the Alleghanies, in 1764, he won the fiercest battle ever fought between the white men and the Indians.

Mr. Buckey's grandfather, George P. Buckey, died near Mt. Pleasant, Md., in 1882, aged ninety-two. (For family history see biographical sketch of Herman A. Buckey.)

Ezra Buckey, father of George P. Buckey, was born at Mount Pleasant, Frederick County, Md., October 3, 1803. He was an intelligent farmer and spent his life in cultivating and improving his land in Frederick County. Ezra Buckey was married to Susan Root who died at her home in Frederick County, aged thirty-three. Mr. Buckey's second wife was his sister-in-law, Ann Root. He died at Johns ville, Frederick County, aged fifty-five.

George P. Buckey spent the first sixteen years of his life on his father's farm near New London, Md., where he attended the schools of the district under Mr. Cassedy, George W. Cook, Mr. Wright, and Joel Hall. He was sixteen when his parents removed to Johnsville, and he completed his education in the school there under John S. Repp, leaving school at eighteen. Having finished his studies, Mr. Buckey learned milling at Pipe Creek mill, near Middleburg, Md., with the Rev. Daniel P. Saylor, and was employed for four years at the Linganore Mills, near Frederick, then owned by Cornelius Shriner. While he was working in the Linganore mill, Mr. Buckey purchased the Pipe Creek mill from his old preceptor, Daniel P. Saylor, and took possession of the property September 1, 1853. After carrying on business successfuly for eight years, Mr. Buckey sold the mill to his brother, Daniel E. Buckey, and removed to his present home at Union Bridge, where he opened a store for the sale of general merchandise. In 1865, Mr. Buckey sold his store, and began dealing in grain. Four years later, however, he repurchased the store which he managed until 1884, when he finally sold the business. In 1884, Mr. Buckey opened his bank, known as the Banking House of George P. Buckey. On the opening day the deposits reached $5000, and afterwards ran up to $92,000. Owing to failing health, caused by a severe rheumatic affection, Mr. Buckey was compelled to retire from business in 1900. His general health is excellent and, although he is eighty, he hopes to rid himself of the affliction by means of osteopathy, as he has been greatly benefited by the treatment. Mr. Buckey believes in sharing his good fortune and, in 1895, divided among his sister, his brother, and eighteen other relatives the generous sum of $100,000. Of the many farms which he owned, he has retained only two. Mr. Buckey has been successful in every financial undertaking His capital was very small. On attaining his majority, his father presented him with $1000, and he received a little more from his grandfather's estate. This, with what he had saved, amounted to $2000, which he paid on the mill property, leaving him $7000 in debt. However, the business was so profitable that the indebtedness was cancelled in three years. Mr. Buckey has what some people call the business sense, and seems rather to feel than to see an opportunity. He is always on the alert, prompt to act, and yet able to bide his time with patience. He is a stanch Democrat, was converted to the principles of Democracy in his youth by his grandfather, Richard Root. He has never aspired to public office, but has been elected tax collector for the Twelfth District, of Carroll County, Md., for thirty-three consecutive years.

Geo. P. Buckley

George P. Buckey was married, May 29, 1856, to Elizabeth R., daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Stoner) Shriner, of Carroll County, Md. Mrs. Buckey was a member of the Dunker Church. She died, December 29, 1906, aged seventy-six years and three months. They had been married fifty years and seven months. They never had any children.

Mr. Buckey never identified himself with any particular church organization, but claimed a birth right in the German Reformed Church. He was friendly to all denominations of Christian people, and contributed generously of his money towards building and sustaining churches. In 1860, when he moved to Union Bridge, there was not a single church in the town, and no place to hold religious worship except on an old dilapidated school house. In 1866, Rev. Thomas Slicer, the son of the venerable Rev. Henry Slicer, who was a young minister in charge of the circuit, began a revival in the old school house, which was packed to overflowing. Mr. Slicer made many converts and one day said to Mr. Buckey: "Brother Buckey, don't you think that we ought to have a church in this town." "Yes, by all means," replied Mr. Buckey. "Then," said the minister, "If I draw up a subscription paper to raise the money to build it, will you start the list with $100?" Mr. Buckey readily promised, and in a short time the money was ready and the Methodist Episcopal Church was built. This set the ball rolling and in less than twelve years there were five fine churches of as many different denominations in the town. To the building of each edifice Mr. Buckey contributed the same amount, $100, and has been a liberal contributor in sustaining them. Geo. P. Buckey has not only been a liberal contributor of his wealth to relatives and churches, but in January, 1887, he gave $500 to the Union Bridge Water Company, and in November, 1901 he gave $500 to the Maryland Collegiate Institute, now known as the Blue Ridge College of Union Bridge, Md.

JOAB W. DAVIS, who achieved much success following the vocation of a farmer, is now living retired in Urbana District, in the town of that name. He was born on his father's farm, September 27, 1834. He is a son of Ephraim and Elinor (Waters-Burgee) Davis.

Ephraim Davis was born near Ijamsville, Frederick County, Md. He was twice married. His first wife was a Miss Anderson. She bore him one child that died in infancy. He was married secondly to Elinor Burgee, widow of Mehrl Burgee, and a daughter of Joel and Ruth (Griffith) Waters. His death occurred in 1858, he being then over seventy years old. His wife died two years earlier.

Joab W. Davis, son of Ephraim and Elinor (Waters-Burgee) Davis, when he got old enough, found plenty of work to do about the home place. In July, 1855, Mr. Davis removed to Baltimore. He then returned to Urbana District and rented three different farms, passing thus twelve or fifteen years. He then bought and built on his present place, which was only wood land at that time. He erected his home right in the woods. On this place General Robert E. Lee made his headquarters for a time. A magnificent spring fifty yards below the house proved a strong attraction for Lee. Mr. Davis continued actively engaged in farming up to a few years ago. He is one of the substantial and hightly regarded citizens of Urbana District. As an agriculturist he achieved much success. An intelligent man, Mr. Davis possesses many good traits of character. Politically, he is an ardent Democrat, but is not a seeker after public office. Religiously, he is affiliated with the Methodist Episcopal Church at Urbana.

Mr. Davis was married in July, 1855, to Elvira W. Kindley, daughter of George F. Kindley. She died June 27, 1890, and is buried in Providence Cemetery, at Kemptown. She was a devout member of the Pleasant Grove Methodist Protestant Church. After the death of his wife, Mr. Davis made several trips through the West. Mr. and Mrs. Davis had six children, namely: Vernon, engaged in the real estate business at Denver, Col., married a Miss Kilgore, daughter of Judge Kilgore, of Muncie, Ind.; Hepsie E., the widow of Henry Etcheson, of Frederick; William K., at home, is married to Mary Linthecum; Joab, Jr.; George, died aged eleven years; and Edith, the wife of Richard Estep, of Baltimore, died in April, 1888.

DANIEL OLIVER SAYLER, who spent his active life in agricultural pursuits, is now living in the village of Johnsville, Frederick County. He was born on the farm owned by his grandfather in Johnsville District, May 30, 1852. He is a son of Solomon and Harriet (Albaugh) Sayler.

Solomon Sayler, the grandfather of Daniel Oliver Sayler, was engaged in agriculture on the farm now owned by Dr. Frank Sidwell. He was a member of the Dunkard Church. He died on a small place, located on the road to Middleburg, and is buried at Beaver Dam. He was the father of these children: John; Daniel; Abram; Solomon; Mary, married Samuel Repp; Betsy, became Mrs. Wesley Repp; Ann, married Michael Bohn; and Sarah, married John Pfoutz.

Solomon Sayler, son of Solomon Sayler, was born at Beaver Dam, one mile and a-half east of Johnsville, Frederick County, September 18, 1823. He received his learning in the schools of his native county, and was brought up to hard work. He took charge of the home farm, which he cultivated until 1867, when he rented the property. He then worked by the day. His death took place at Union Bridge, Md., in 1903, and he was buried in the graveyard of the Dunkard Church at Beaver Dam, of which religious body he was a member. Mr. Sayler was married to Harriet Albaugh, daughter of Andrew and Mary (Smith) Albaugh. She was also a member of the Dunkard Church, and died about 1904, at the age of seventy-five years. They were the parents of these children: Daniel Oliver, our subject; Mary, married Daniel Wolfe; Hester Ann, died aged nine years; Clara Rebecca, the wife of William Hoffman, now deceased; Granville Calvin, died young; Leana Capitola, the wife of Charles Edgar Wolfe; Emma Jane, married to Daniel Leakins; Harriet Rosie May, died unmarried.

Daniel Oliver Sayler, son of Solomon and Harriet (Albaugh) Sayler, attended the Johnsville school during a part of each year until he was about fifteen years of age. While a lad he began working on his father's farm, thus becoming acquainted with the many duties of the life of an agriculturist. When he was sixteen years old, his father quit farming, and he went to work among other farmers. For two years he was engaged in railroading, living in Baltimore. He was a brakeman and fireman, and for some time was employed in the Baltimore yards. He then returned to his home, and was married, after which he settled on one of the farms of his grandfather-in-law, Isaac Pfoutz, at Johnsville. This he cultivated until 1889, when he removed to a twelve-acre lot in the village of Johnsville, where he has since lived, free from the exacting cares of a large tract. As an agriculturist, he achieved success, and is recognized as one of the susbtantial citizens of the community in which he lives.

In his political views, Mr. Sayler is a Democrat. On March 20, 1876, he became affiliated with the Dunkard Church. About ten years later he was elected as a deacon.

Mr. Sayler was married November 18, 1874, to Catharine Bernella Stitely, daughter of David R. and Rachel (Pfoutz) Stitely, and a sister of Rev. Isaac Stitely, whose sketch appears in this work. Mrs. Sayler, in religion, also holds to the Dunkard Church. There is one son from this union: Frank Roy, born September 25, 1882, who is living at home. He was married to Grace Ramsburg, April 11th, 1906, who is deceased. Another child died in infancy. Frank Roy Sayler married, secondly, Linnie Irene Schwarber, October 20, 1909.

WILLIAM B. GRIMES, a retired agriculturist and a veteran of the Civil War, has spent all of his life in Johnsville District, Frederick County, where he is well known and esteemed. He was born on his father's farm near Ladiesburg in that district, September 2, 1838. His parents were William C. and Eliza Ann (Baer) Grimes.

The Grimes are of old and honorable English lineage. The first of the name came to this country from England and took up their residence in the lower counties of Maryland. William C. Grimes, the great-grandfather of William B. Grimes, came from that part of the state to Frederick County, where he took up land in the Glade Valley. He left the lower counties on account of the effect of the dew on the wheat, it causing smut. Another family, the Groffs, came at the same time and located on the Monocacy in what is now Carroll County. The Groffs were great Whigs, and were large slave holders. William C. Grimes also held a number of slaves. He participated in the Revolution as a member of the American army. He had a son, also named William C.

William C. Grimes, 2nd, was born in Glade Valley, Frederick County. He became a planter and large owner of slaves. He later removed to the vicinity of Woodsboro, this county. Here he bought a large tract of land, on which he built a large mill and distillery. The home he erected was of brick, and it was at that time the largest and best in that part of the State. The brick were brought from England. This house is still standing, the farm now being owned by William B. Cutshall, register of wills. Mr. Grimes was married to Mary Clance or Clantz. Her father was a tailor at Woodsboro. Indians were plentiful in those days and often visited the homes of the whites. One came to the cabin of the tailor, and, having peeled an apple for Mary, handed it to her on the end of his long knife. She refused to take it, and the Indian becoming angry darted at her with knife in hand. Her father was sewing near-by, and springing at the Indian felled him with the lapboard. Mary Clantz was but thirteen years old at the time of her marriage. William C. and Mary Grimes were the parents of six children: Mary, became the wife of Nimrod Beck; Susan, married David Rupp, who was a well-known school teacher; Charles; Frederick, married a Miss Beck; Clinton, married Eliza Martin; and William C.

William C. Grimes, son of William C. and Mary (Clantz) Grimes, was born on the homestead near Woodsboro, Frederick County. His father was very wealthy and kept a large sum of money in his room. One day, while William C., 3rd, was yet in dresses, his father found him on the porch with a large bunch of bills and his dog "Bull." Upon being asked what he was doing, the youngster replied that he was "paying Bull off." He had seen his father pay off hands. William C., 3rd, was educated at the Mount Pleasant school. He became a farmer and slave owner. He was a great lover of the fox chase, and one of the prominent citizens of the county. He was a member of the Lutheran Church, and a man of much strength of character. Mr. Grimes was married to Eliza Ann Baer, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Stitely) Baer, of Ladiesburg, Johnsville District. They were the parents of sixteen children, eleven of whom grew to maturity: Mary Ann, the wife of Joseph Haugh; Ephraim D., married Ann Harmiss, and lives in Winchester, Va.; Sarah Jane, deceased, was married to Samuel M. McGinnis; William B., our subject; Charles, married Ann Warfield; Susan, became the wife of Frederick Miller; Taylor, married a Miss Miller; Johanna, became the wife of William Adams; Josephine, married Daniel Yingling; Scott, married a Miss Frock; and James, is unmarried.

William B. Grimes, son of William C. and Eliza Ann (Baer) Grimes, received his education at Pleasant Hill, under Messrs. Rupp, Parsons and Stitely, and Miss Norris. He passed his early years in the routine of a farmer's boy, and learned the many duties of an agricultural life. On August 22, 1862, he enlisted as a private in Company F, Seventh Maryland Volunteer Infantry, under Captain Rinehart, Colonel Webster, in French's Command. After the battle of Gettysburg his company became a part of the Army of the Potomac. Mr. Grimes made a very creditable record as a soldier and took part in about thirty battles. His first engagement was at Boonsboro, then Haymarket, Va., the Wilderness, Spottsylvania and all the battles of that campaign. At the Wilderness his companion on either side was shot down. He participated in the struggle at Bloody Angle. In the fight at Dabney's Mills he was shot in the right arm above the elbow. He was on the picket line at Lee's surrender.

At the close of the war, Mr. Grimes returned to his home. In 1867 he was married, and for the next four years cultivated a rented farm on Beaver Dam. In 1871, he purchased his present property, which consists of 60 acres of excellent land, well improved. This estate is called "Grand Spring," and is a most desirable country home. Mr. Grimes is also the possessor of two other farms in Johnsville District, one containing 60 acres and the other 50 acres. He is one of the prosperous and representative citizens of his district, and is held in high regard in the community in which he lives.

In politics, Mr. Grimes gives his support to the Republican party. He is not a member of any religious body, although he is a contributor to the Lutheran Church.

Mr. Grimes was married in 1867 to Ann Louisa Garber, of Johnsville District. She is a daughter of William and Mary (Sayler) Garber. There were ten children born of this union: Mary Elizabeth, who died aged twenty-nine years, was married to Payton Brown; William Grant; Anna May, who was born April 7, 1871, was the wife of Harry Winebrenner and died at Woodsboro; Maurice Ellsworth, who was born June 19, 1873, married Jennie Coleman, of Baltimore, and has two daughters, Beatrice Virginia and Evelyn Irene; Francis E., who was born March 7, 1875, married Florence Stitely, by whom he has four children, Roland, Russell, Leoda and Rena; Joseph H., who was born February 22, 1877, is unmarried; John Hayden, who was born July 5, 1879, is unmarried; Oscar Sherman, born April 7, 1882; Belva Irene, born June 30, 1884; and James Blaine, born May 9, 1888.

William Grant Grimes, son of William B. and Ann Louisa (Garber) Grimes, was born November 26, 1869. He received his education in the public schools and the Buckeystown High School. For ten years he has been a teacher in the schools of the county. He was clerk to the sheriff for four years under Messrs. Young and Martz. He is at present a candidate for the nomination as sheriff. He was married to Mabel Fraley. They are the parents of a daughter, Gladys Irene.

CHARLES C. RIDGELY, a retired agriculturist living at New Market, Frederick County, is a man of high character and well known as a leading citizen of his community. He was born at "Springfield," the home of his ancestors, in Howard County, Md. He is a son of Oliver Dorsey and Harriet Thomas (Crawford) Ridgely.

The Ridgely family is one of the most noted in the State of Maryland, where it has been settled for a long time.

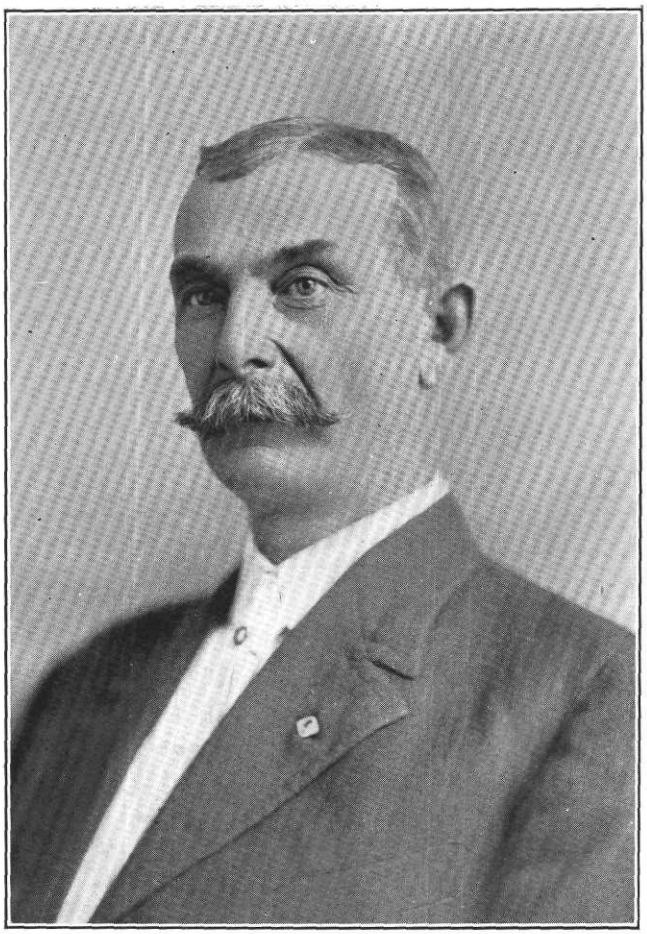
The American progenitor was Robert Ridgely, who landed from England at St. Inigoes creek, Md., and stepped upon St. Mary's undeveloped shore. He took up 5094 acres of land in St. Mary's; 500 acres in Prince George; and 600 acres in Somerset. By his will of 1680, he left 1294 acres to his wife, Martha; 1400 acres to his son, Robert; 1000 acres to his son Charles; 1400 acres to his son William, and 1000 to his daughter, Martha, who married Lewis Duvall. His son, Robert, seems not to have left any descendants. Charles married Deborah Dorsey, daughter of Hon. John Dorsey. He died before 1715, having left two sons, Colonel Charles and William. Colonel Charles married about 1721, Rachel Howard, daughter of John Howard, and Miss Warfield, daughter of Richard 1st. Eight children were left by this marriage. His second wife was Mrs. Lydia Warfield Stringer, widow of Dr. Stringer, with no issue. He died in 1772.

William Ridgely, younger son of Charles and Deborah (Dorsey) Ridgely, and grandson of Robert Ridgely, the immigrant, inherited the estate "Springfield" through his mother. "Springfield" stands upon 400 acres of land bearing the significant title of "White Wine and Claret," revealing the historical fact that it had its origin in the days of good living. The wife of William Ridgely was Elizabeth Duvall. There were thirteen children by this marriage. Two sons and five daughters by their marriages have handed down a wide area of connections.

Charles Ridgely, third son of William and Elizabeth (Duvall) Ridgely, after having left school at the age of seventeen, became a clerk for Judge Henry Ridgely. He came into possession of ten valuable farms in Howard and adjoining counties. His winter residence still stands near Elk Ridge, a large brick house, upon Patapsco Falls. The tract of 600 acres surrounding it is in the possession of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Mr. Ridgely acquired possession, also of 1300 acres of woodland near Cross' store. He was in the Legislature of Maryland twenty-seven successive terms, and for thirteen years was speaker of the House. Mr. Ridgely was married to Ruth Norwood, only daughter of Samuel Norwood. This marriage took place on March 22, 1774. Mr. Ridgely was born in 1749, and died in 1810; his wife died in 1806, at Elk Ridge. Their children were as follows: Samuel, married Deborah Dorsey; Charles Carnan, of whom presently; William A., married Elizabeth Dumest, a niece of Colonel Bantlow, of Baltimore, and left George K., who married Martha Dorsey, granddaughter of Col. Philemon Dorsey; Thomas P., married Maria Solena, of Florida; Robert and John, never married; George Washington, was drowned in the sight of his mother, June 6, 1804, in Patapsco Falls; Frank, never married; Elizabeth, married Robert Ridgely Richardson, a cousin, of Prince George County, Md.; Julia, married Dr. Alexander Barron, of Towsontown; Ruth, married Dr. John Baltzell, of Frederick City; and Susan, married a Mr. Thompson. Dr. John and Ruth (Ridgely) Baltzell had these children: W. H., a physician, married Judge Nelson's daughter; John, a lawyer, lives in Wisconsin; Eliza, married Dr. Montgomery, of Rochester, N. Y.; Ellen, married Judge Robert Ford, of Leonardtown, St. Mary's County, Md.; Fannie B., married Joseph Key, a lawyer of Leonardtown; Alice B., married George Morgan, also of the Leonardtown Bar.

Charles Carnan Ridgely, son of Charles and Ruth (Norwood) Ridgely, was the grandfather of our subject, Charles C. Ridgely. He was a well known physician. His home was "Springfield," where he planted the present locusts and cedars. He was the father of nine children, six sons and three daughters, namely: Henry K., married first Achsah Dorsey, daughter of Col. Richard Dorsey, secondly Eliza Mercer, and thirdly, Mrs. Miller; Henrietta, married Deye W. Wothington, son of Nicholas D. and Matilda Worthington, and on his mother's side a great nephew of Gen. Nathan Towson, who owned Towson and was prominent in the War of 1812; John R., married Mary S. Alcock, of Baltimore City; Oliver Dorsey; George W., married Margaret Turner, of Virginia; and Lucretia, died in 1846.

Oliver Dorsey Ridgeley, son of Dr. Charles C. Ridgely, was born at "Springfield," Howard County, Md., in 1818. He was educated under private tutors and at college. His mother died before he finished his course. He engaged in the lumber business with William S.



Chas. C. Ridgely

Taylor in Baltimore, and became later a prominent contractor and builder in that city. He owned "Springfield," the ancestral home in Howard county and there he died, July 15, 1890. He was a Democrat. Mr. Ridgely was married December 5, 1855, to Harriet Thomas Crawford, daughter of Basil and Arabella (Cross) Crawford. The Crawfords and Crosses were prominent families of Prince George's County, Md. Mrs. Ridgely died March 14, 1897, aged seventy years. She bore three children: Charles Carnan; Catharine D., deceased; and Irwin Oliver, on the home farm, married Florence Brown.

Charles Carnan Ridgely, son of Oliver D. and Harriet T. (Crawford) Ridgely, received his elementary education in the public schools. He afterwards studied at Western Maryland College. He took up the occupation of a farmer, and has always been identified with rural occupations. After his marriage in 1887, he located on a farm three miles east of New Market, which he continued to operate until March, 1906. At that time, he gave up active work, and went to live in retirement at New Market, where he still resides. Besides the farm of 164 acres just mentioned, Mr. Ridgely is the owner of another tract of 146 acres in New Market district also. He votes the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Ridgely was married December 27, 1887, to Rachel Thomas Maynard, daughter of Benjamin and Eliza (Claggett) Maynard. She is a member of the Baptist Church. There is issue by this union: Helen J., Irwin Oliver, and Jemima Ruth.

Benjamin Maynard, son of Thomas and Ruth (Griffith) Maynard, was born on the family estate, August 6, 1819. He was educated by a governess. He fell heir to part of the home farm. He was married to Eliza M. R. Claggett, daughter of Robert Claggett, of Washington County, Md., and his wife, Ann Claggett, a cousin, of the same county. Mr. Maynard died on his farm in August, 1868, and is buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Frederick. His wife died in 1886. They were Baptists. Their children were as follows: Ruth, widow of John Jones, living at Thurmont, Frederick County; Robert Claggett, married Alice Jones, of Colorado; Leah Ellen, married Nathaniel Waters, and died at New Market in February, 1906; Rachel Thomas, the wife of Charles C. JOSEPH M. DRONENBURG, general manager for Scoll Bros., dealers in carpets and furniture, in Frederick City, Md., son of the late John T. and Annie (Dixon) Dronenburg, was born in Ijamsville, New Market District, Frederick County, Md., May 17, 1873.

Mr. Dronenburg's great-grandfather, Jacob Dronenburg, came from Germany in company with two brothers and settled in Frederick County, Md., where he owned a smithy in which he carried on a successful business. He married and among his children was a son named Jacob.

Jacob Dronenburg, grandfather of Joseph M. Dronenburg, was born in Clarksburg. He was educated in the public schools of his native district, and learned masonry and plastering. He was a skilled workman and did the stone work and the plastering for some of the finest buildings in Frederick County. He was very successful in business and after years of hard work, he gave up his trades, purchased a farm near Urbana, and devoted the rest of his life to cultivating and improving his property. Mr. Dronenburg was a Republican, and for a number of years held the office of postmaster in Urbana, where he was highly esteemed as a citizen. Jacob Dronenburg was married to Mary M. Madery. Their children are: 1, John T.; 2, Jane, married to Joseph Brandenburg, a farmer and former tax collector of Carroll County, Md.; 3, Lucy A., widow of the late James Murray, who was a contractor of Carroll County.

John T. Dronenburg, father of Joseph M. Dronenburg, was born in Urbana, Frederick County, Md., in 1842. He was educated in a private school and learned blacksmithing. He was successful as a smith but when the Civil War broke out, and Cole's Cavalry was organized, Mr. Dronenburg enlisted and served for three years and nine months. After the close of the war, he returned to Frederick County and opened a smithy on East Patrick street, Frederick, in the property now owned by Mr. Seeger. After carrying on a successful business for some time, Mr. Dronenburg removed to a place now called Pearl, but in a few years he returned to Ijamsville, and purchased a smithy in which he was doing a good business when he was killed by an accident on the Baltimore and Ohio R. R., January 17th, 1891. Mr. Dronenburg was a hard working man and a good citizen. His death was a shock to the community. He was a member of Reynolds Post, G. A. R., of Frederick. He is buried in the cemetery of the Methodist Church in Urbana. His widow resides in Ijamsville. John T. Dronenburg was married to Annie, daughter of Joshua and Mary (Getzendanner) Dixon, whose father was a retired farmer of Baltimore, Md. Their children are: 1, Cora (Mrs. Charles Hopkins), of Brooklyn, N. Y.; 2, Lillie G., married to Garrot Linthum, a carpenter of Ijamsville; 3, Lucy D. (Mrs. Ignatius Page), of Ijamsville; 4, Joseph M.; 5, John J., collector and salesman, Frederick, Md.; 6, Mary S. (Mrs. William Etchison), of New Market, Md.; 7, Margaret E., teacher, at home. Mr. Dronenburg and his wife were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Ijamsville, to which he contributed liberally. He was a Republican, and belonged to the Improved Order of Red Men, of New Market.

Joseph M. Dronenburg was educated in the public schols of Ijamsville, and remained with his parents until after the death of his father, when he accepted a clerkship in the office of the Old City Passenger R. R. Company of Baltimore. When this road was consolidated with the United Railway Company, Mr. Dronenburg was made one of the division suprintendents. After holding this position for five years, he resigned to accept a clerkship with Scoll Brothers, doing business on the installment plan in Baltimore. After serving the firm acceptably for two years in Baltimore, Mr. Dronenburg was sent to Frederick to open a branch store. He is very successful as general manager of the business, and carries a full line of furniture, carpets, and all house furnishing goods. This is the best equipped installment house in Western Maryland. Mr. Dronenburg attends closely to business and accommodates his patrons in every possible way. He is a Republican, interested in all that concerns the progress of the community. He belongs to Mountain City Lodge, No. 29, K. of P., of Frederick.

Joseph M. Dronenburg was married to Eva, daughter of Valentine and Hannah Horn. They have no children. Mr. Dronenburg and his wife are members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, of Frederick, Md.

JOHN H. WITTER, who is numbered among the well-known citizens of Frederick County, is a retired farmer and miner of Walkersville, Md. He was born on a farm near Boonsboro, Washington County, Md., February 8, 1837. His parents were Emanuel and Sarah (Baker) Witter.

Jacob Witter, the grandfather of John H. Witter, was one of the early settlers in the vicinity of Boonsboro, Washington County, Md. He was of German lineage, and the father of two sons, Benjamin and Emanuel.

Emanuel Witter, son of Jacob Witter, was born in Washington County, Md., in 1809, and died at Freeport, Ill., in 1891. He was by occupation a farmer. Politically, he was all his life a supporter of the Democratic party. He was one of the first members of the United Brethren Church in Washington County, Md. Mr. Witter was married to Sarah Baker. They were the parents of nine children: David, lives in Iowa; John H.; Mary C., deceased; Susan, deceased; Martha, deceased; Ellen, the wife of Isaiah Middlekauff, of Illinois; Dolly, the wife of John Guyer, of Freeport, Ill.; Jennie, the wife of Wesley Moseley, of Lincoln, Neb., and Jacob, lives at Denver, Col.

John H. Witter, son of Emanuel and Sarah (Baker) Witter, grew up near the old Witter homestead in Washington County, Md. He received his education in his native county's public schools. He followed farming until 1859, when he went west to Colorado and on to California, then a wild and unexplored section of the country. He made this trip by ox wagon across the Rocky Mountains, a distance of over 2700 miles. After reaching Colorado and California, he engaged in gold mining there until 1861, when he returned over the old trail on horseback to Freeport, Ill., whither his father had emigrated. Here Mr. Witter followed farming in 1862 and 1863. In 1864, he started back west, bound this time for the Pacific coast. He went by way of what is now the Yellowstone Park, through Wyoming and Idaho. For two years he was engaged in gold mining in Montana and Idaho. Mr. Witter a second time returned home to Illinois, and thence to Frederick County, Md. He settled on a farm on the Emmitsburg pike, near Frederick City. Here he followed agricultural pursuits for twenty-five years. In 1893, Mr. Witter retired and located in Walkersville, where he has since made his home. The farm upon which he lived for a quarter of a century is situated two miles and a-half north of Frederick, and contains 116 acres of fine limestone land. The place is well improved and is now cultivated by his son, Robert G. Witter. Mr. Witter is a highly respected citizen of the county and has a wide acquaintance. In 1894, he made an extensive trip to California and Mexico, where he is a large stockholder in copper mines.

Mr. Witter was married to Annie E. Baker, of Walkersville District, Frederick County. She is a daughter of Aaron Baker, deceased (see sketch of William D. Baker). Mr. and Mrs. Witter are the parents of three children: Harry B., of Frederick City, married Jennie Miller, and they have six children, Mary, Willis, Grace, Alice, John F., and Ruby; Nora T., married Armstrong McKinney, of Walkersville District, by whom she has two children, Walter and Annie; and Robert G., farming on his father's place, married Zora E. Remsburg, and has one child, Annie R.

Emanuel Witter, father of J. H. Witter, was a United Brethren preacher and farmer, who died ninety-one years of age.

J. H. Witter is 73 years old. In August 1909 he made the trip by rail to Pacific Coast, California and on to Yukon-Alaska Exposition and returned via Yellowstone Park. This makes four times he was on the Pacific coast.

CHARLES JOSEPH ARNOLD, owner of Henrico farm, Petersville District, Frederick County, Md., son of David and Mary Ann (Wiener) Arnold, was born at the Arnold homestead, Burkittsville, Md., March 8, 1872.

(For the family history, see biography of his father, David Arnold which appears in this volume.)

Charles Joseph Arnold attended the public schools of Burkittsville until he reached his eighteenth year. He grew up on his father's farm taking his share of farm labor, and gaining a practical knowledge that fitted him for a successful career as an agriculturist. In April, 1899. Mr. Arnold left home and rented a farm in the lower end of Petersville District, where he remained for one year. He then rented the old Governor Lee place situated in the Maryland Tract, Petersville District, which he cultivated so successfully that at the end of eight years, he was in a position to purchase his present home. His homestead, Henrico farm, which he bought from Mrs. Charles Hilleary, through Cramer & Stauffer, real estate agents, had been rented land for fifty years. The soil was impoverished, and the whole place was in a neglected condition. It has however amply repaid Mr. Arnold's skillful management. Mr. Arnold began business without one dollar in money. Patience. industry, and economy have brought him a rich reward. He is a Democrat, interested in county affairs.

Charles Joseph Arnold was married, September 15, 1897, to Mary Louisa, daughter of Edward and Gertrude (Marlowe) Orrison. Mrs. Arnold's parents lived just opposite her new home. The children of Charles Joseph and Mary Louisa (Orrison) Arnold are: 1, Catherine Gertrude; 2. Charles Graham. Mr. Arnold is a member of the Roman Catholic Church; his wife is an Episcopalian.

DANIEL C. BREADY, a well-known farmer, residing near Adamstown, Md., son of George A. and Annie E. (Boutler) Bready, both deceased, was born in Adamstown, November 4, 1842.

The late George A. Bready, father of Daniel C. Bready, who was prominent among the older farmers of his generation, was born, in 1811, on a farm two and a-half miles west of Frederick. His educational facilities were few, as his father died while he was quite young. In early life he was engaged in various occupations, and finally rented the Manor farm, of 400 acres which he cultivated successfully for some time. In 1867, Mr. Bready bought a farm of 276 acres at Adamstown, west of the railroad, where he remained until he retired from farming, in 1874. He sold 130 acres of his land, and began improving the remainder. He built on it a dwelling, a barn, and all the necessary buildings. When he retired, Mr. Bready removed to Adamstown where he had built for himself a comfortable home. He was numbered among the prosperous men of his day and attributed all of his success to hard work and close attention to business. Mr. Bready was a stanch Democrat. George A. Bready was married to Annie E., daughter of Oram Boutler, of Frederick City. Of their thirteen children, eleven reached adult age: 1, George C., a retired farmer of Harper's Ferry, W. Va.; 2, John W., deceased; 3, Curtis B., a merchant of Baltimore, Md., deceased; 4, Anna E., deceased, married to the late Curtis Croun, a merchant of Hancock, Md.; 5, David F., of Baltimore, Md.; 6, Orman, of Adamstown, Md., deceased; 7, Daniel C.; 8, Charles E., of Adamstown; 9, Molly, widow of the late William Ennis; 10, Luther M., of Adamstown; 11, E. Tobias, dealer in produce in Adamstown. Mr. Bready and his wife were members of St. Matthias Lutheran Church. He served the congregation as an officer, and gave generously to church benevolence. Mrs. Bready died in 1892, and was buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Mr. Bready died at his home in Adamstown, in 1894, and was laid beside his wife.

Grayson H. Staley

Daniel C. Bready attended the public schools of the district, and remained at home until the breaking out of the Civil War, when he enlisted in the Confederate army in a company of Loudoun Cavalry. He took part in many of the great battles of the war, and was wounded four times, viz: June 9, 1862, at Brandy Station; July 3, 1863, at Gettysburg; May 5, 1864, at Spottsylvania; October 9, 1864, in the Valley of Virginia. He was taken prisoner at Five Forks. After the war was over, Mr. Bready returned to his home in Frederick County, and remained with his father for nine years. He then began farming for himself on the farm on which his father had begun farming. After cultivating this land successfully for four years, he rented his father's farm. In 1885, Mr. Bready purchased the place from his father. It contains 146 acres of arable land, and thirty acres of timber land, and is beautifully situated half a-mile west of Adamstown, on a road intersecting the road to Point of Rocks. Mr. Bready has spent thirty-one years in caring for his home, and it is now numbered among the best farms of the district. He has a fine orchard and everything is in excellent repair. He is one of the most enterprising farmers of the section, and attributes his success to industry and watchfulness. He is a Democrat, and is interested in all that pertains to progress.

Daniel C. Bready was married to Maggie E., daughter of George W. and Elizabeth (Thomas) Padgett, a descendant of one of the old families of Frederick County, whose father was county commissioner. They have no children. Mr. Bready and his wife are members of the Reformed Church in Adamstown, Md. Mr. Bready is an active worker in the church, and holds the office of deacon.

GRAYSON H. STALEY, a progressive business man, and a member of the firm of Young & Staley, the largest firm in Frederick City dealing in real estate and fire insurance, and a son of Joseph E. and Clara A. Staley, was born at Yellow Springs, Frederick County, Md., on the 17th day of May, 1881.

He attended the public schools in his native district. After completing his course in the public schools he entered the Frederick Male High School, of Frederick, Md., and graduated at that Institution in 1899. He then taught school for several years, and in April, 1902, he was elected bookkeeper in the Citizens' National Bank.

This position he filled for about eight years, after which he resigned to engage in business for himself. On April 15, 1910, he formed a partnership with Mr. Charles T. K. Young, under the firm name of Young & Staley. The new firm of Young & Staley has been very successful and has one of the largest circles of patrons and friends in Frederick City. Mr. Staley is an enterprising business man, and attributes his success to close application to business.

He and his family reside in a beautiful home which he has built for himself on Rockwell Terrace. He has built several other dwellings which are an ornament to the city. Besides these properties he owns many other properties throughout the town. He also owns valuable property at Braddock Heights, including a summer dwelling.

He was one of the incorporators of the Maryland Brick and Supply Company, of Frederick County, and has been Secretary of the Corporation since it was organized. He is an active Republican, interested in the welfare of the community. He belongs to Columbia Lodge, No. 558, A. F. and A. M., to Enoch Royal Arch Chapter No. 23, and Jacques de Molay Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar, of Frederick. On September 20, 1905, he married Bertha Frances Coblentz, of Middletown, Md. Mrs. Staley is a daughter of the late Edward L. Coblentz and Lucinda F. Coblentz. Her father was a prominent farmer of Middletown Valley. Mr. and Mrs. Staley have one daughter, Frances C., at home. They are members of Grace Reformed Church, Mr. Staley being director of the church choir.

DOLL BROTHERS, comprising Charles J. and Roger A. Doll, are the proprietors of the leading department store in Western Maryland, located at No. 205-9 North Market street, Frederick City, Md.

Ezra Doll, the grandfather of Charles J. and Roger A. Doll, was for many years a merchant in Frederick City. He was descended from one of the earliest settled families in Frederick County. It was in his store that G. J. Doll, the father of the members of the above firm, received his first practical insight into mercantile methods. He evinced exceptional aptitude for his chosen pursuit from the very outset, and for over forty-five years was one of the most successful merchants of Frederick. He directed the affairs of his establishment with an ability, foresight and sagacity that stamped him as a man of high executive capacity and rare mercantile acumen. To his forceful personality was due much of the prestige and prosperity attained by him, and he became widely prominent in mercantile circles as one of the ablest and most representative men identified with that branch of industry. A merchant of the old school, whose business methods were characterized by the highest principles, he commanded the respect and confidence of business and financial circles generally.

G. J. Doll was a native of Frederick county, where he was born in 1829, and died in 1895. In politics he was a Republican, and a Union sympathizer during the Civil War. In religion he was an active and consistent member of the Lutheran Church. Fraternally, he was a member of the Masons and numerous other organizations. Mr. Doll was married to Elizabeth Wisong. They were the parents of nine children, eight of whom grew to maturity: Ellen Virginia, the wife of L. P. Sheerer, of Charlotte, N. C.; Elizabeth W., unmarried, of Frederick City; Charles J., of whom presently; Melville E., office clerk for Doll Brothers; Henry W., employed by the Baltimore Bargain House, Baltimore, Md.; Roger A., of whom presently; George J., in the employment of the Frederick City Brush Works; and Frank A., deceased.

Charles J. Doll, of the firm of Doll Brothers, was born August 14, 1859. In politics he is a Republican, and is a consistent member of the Lutheran Church. He is a director of the Farmers' and Mechanics National Bank of Frederick. Mr. Doll was married to Mary L. Cramer, of Frederick City, who is descended of an old and respected family of Frederick County. They are the parents of two children: Frank A., and Marianna.

Roger A. Doll, younger partner in the firm of Doll Brothers, was born October 26, 1873. He was married to E. L. Sanders. There is no issue by this marriage.

In 1893, Charles J. and Roger A. Doll established the present firm of Doll Brothers, at the old stand of their father. The business was a success from the start, and continued to grow until their quarters became inadequate and a new building was erected by them in 1906. This edifice is a handsome three-story brick structure, 38 feet in width and 100 feet in depth, finished in hard oak and hard oil finishing. In the construction and design of the building, and adaptation to business, there is evinced an amount of care and study down to the smallest details that is truly remarkable. The first floor is devoted to dry goods, dress goods, notions, etc.; the second floor to carpets, rugs, mattings, etc.; also, ladies' suits, cloaks, waists and other things in that line. The third floor is for reserve stock. The building is electrically lighted, and the pneumatic tube cash system is used. The firm carries the largest stock of its kind in Western Maryland, and Charles J. Doll, who does the buying, makes weekly trips to Baltimore in order to keep their stock constantly refreshed.

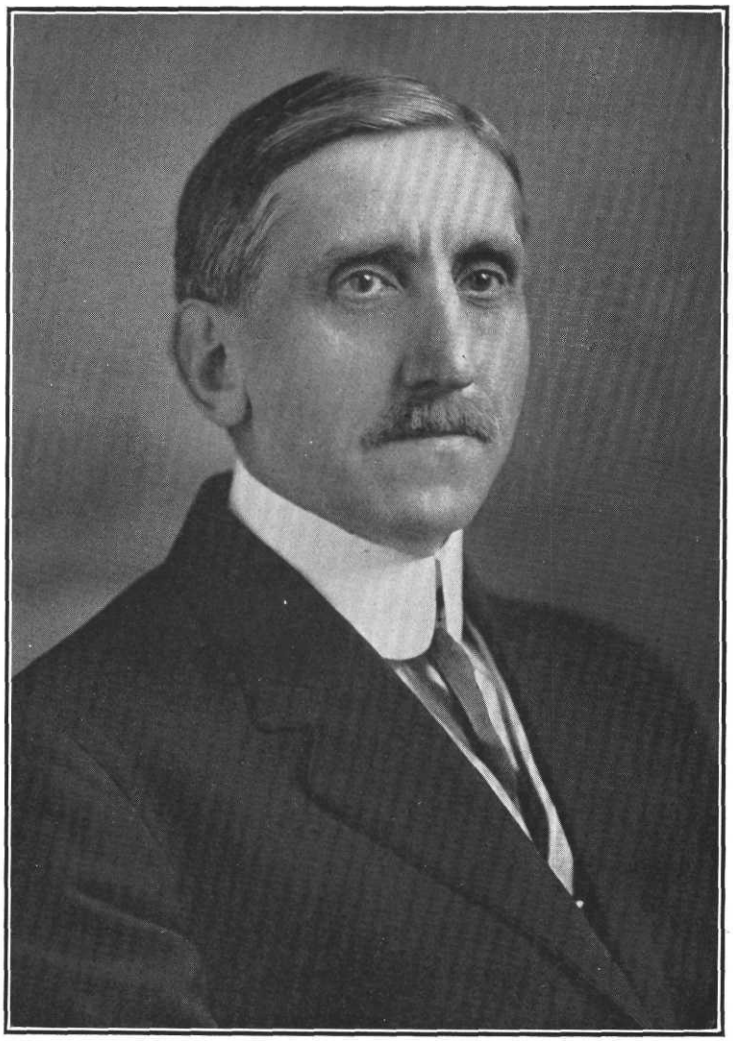
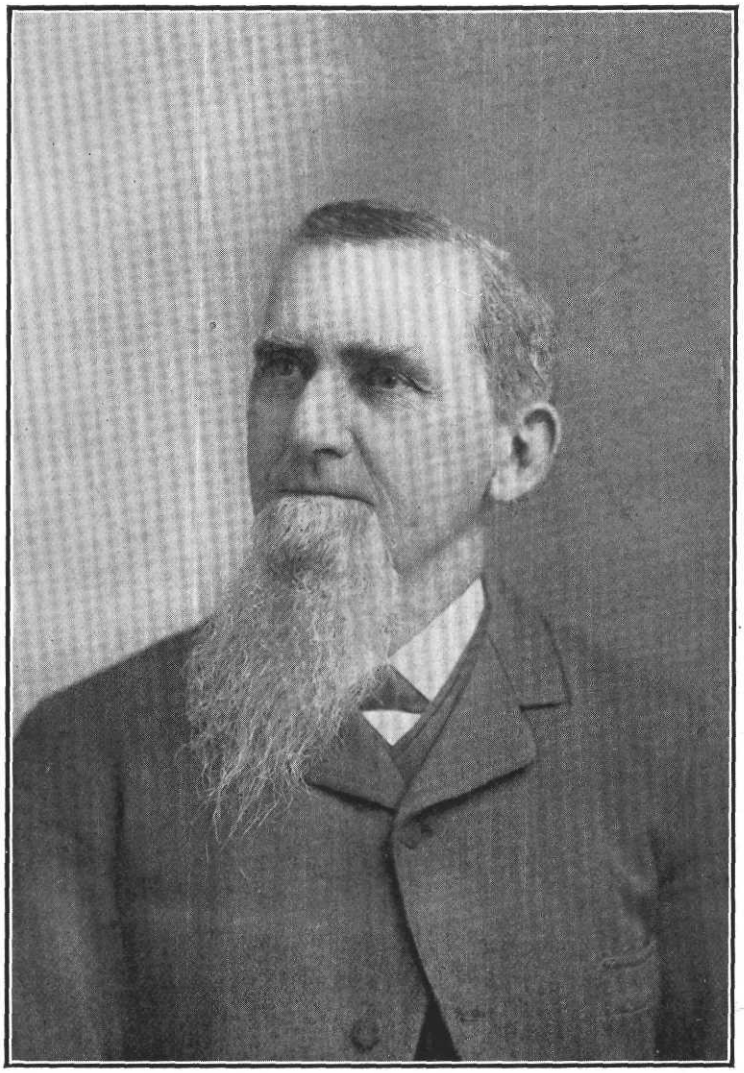
WILLIAM L. BOTELER, farmer and dealer in live stock, in Buckeystown, Frederick County, Md., son of Benjamin A. and Ellen (Thomas) Boteler, both deceased, was born in Urbana District, Frederick County, September 23, 1859.

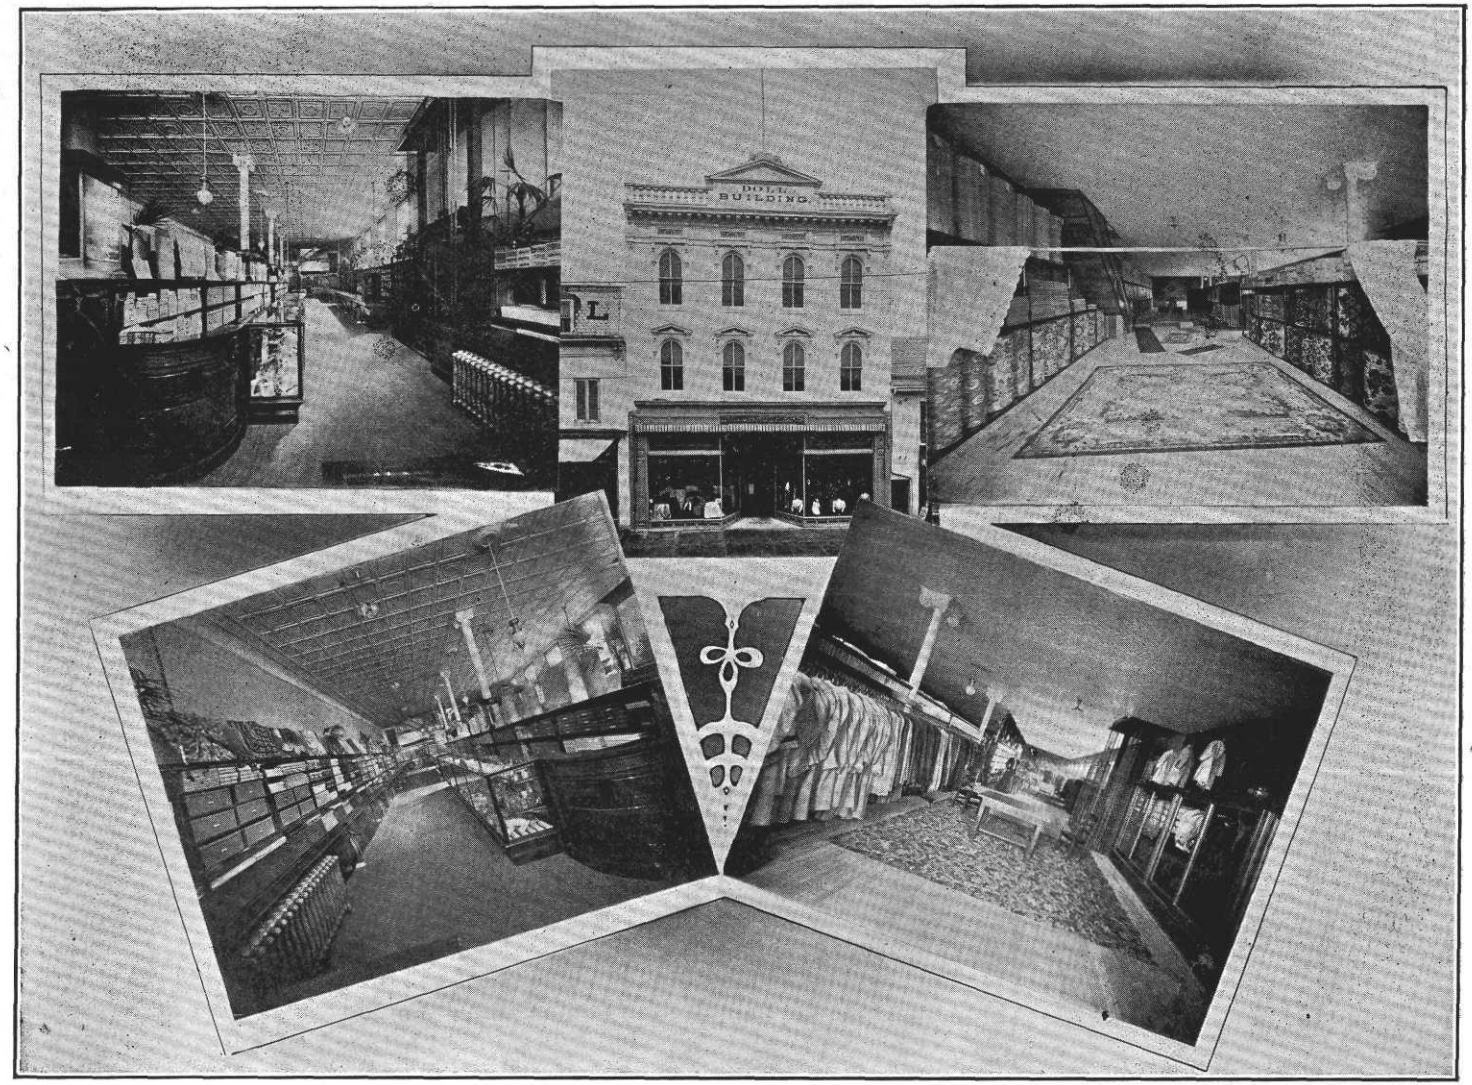
Harry Boteler, grandfather of William L. Boteler, was born in Washington County, Md., where his youth and early manhood were spent. He afterwards removed to Frederick County,



Chas. L. Dall



G. J. Doll



Doll Brothers' Department Store, North Market Street, Frederick, Md.

and opened a tavern in Jefferson, Md., where he spent the remainder of his life. He was one of the old residents and one of the first tavern keepers of that section of Maryland. He owned his tavern and also a number of slaves, and was a prominent man in his generation. Harry Boteler was married, and among his children was a son named Benjamin. Mr. Boteler and his wife died in Jefferson and are buried there.

The late Benjamin Boteler, eldest son of Harry and Elizabeth Boteler, and father of William L. Boteler, was born in Washington County, Md., in 1823. He was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained with his parents until he married. He had learned milling and, after his marriage, he removed to Urbana District, Frederick County, and engaged in milling at Park Mills, where he carried on the business successfully for fifteen years. Mr. Boteler next took charge of the Old Delaplaine Mill, near Buckeystown, Md., where he remained for fifteen years. He then retired from milling, bought a property at Park Mills, and engaged in butchering. He had a large and remunerative custom, and at the end of ten years, his son, William L., succeeded him in the business. Mr. Boteler was an honest man and a highly respected citizen of Frederick County. Benjamin Boteler was married to Ellen Thomas. Four of their five children reached adult age: 1, Sarah (Mrs. John Shilling); 2, Elizabeth, deceased, married to the late John Lewis, of Montgomery County, Md.; 3, Ida (Mrs. Granville Michael), of Frederick, Md.; 4, William L. Mr. Boteler and his wife were members of the Methodist Church. He died in Buckeystown; his wife at Park Mills.

William L. Boteler received his education in the public schools of Frederick County, and, at the age of twenty, succeeded his father in the meat market in Park Mills, where he remained for four years. He then removed to Adamstown, Md., where he carried on business successfully for eight years. Mr. Boteler then bought a beautiful home in the southern end of Buckeystown where he carried on his business successfully for twelve years. He now gave up butchering and began dealing in live stock. He is a good judge of cattle, and is one of the largest dealers in the county, buying and selling by the car load. In February, 1907, Mr. Boteler bought his present home, a farm of 315 acres of farm and timber land, the property of Daniel Baker & Sons, known as the old Crawford farm. It is beautifully situated on the east side of the Monocacy river, in Urbana District two and a-half miles southeast of Buckeystown. He has devoted the greater part of his time and energy to improving this property, and has made it one of the best farms in Urbana District. Mr. Boteler is one of the prominent men of the district. He started without money as capital, and attributes his success to hard work and close attention to business. He is a Republican, actively interested in political affairs.

William L. Boteler was married to Lillie S., daughter of James and Jane (Drummond) Stewart. Her parents were of Scotch-Irish descent, and her father was a well-known weaver. Their children are: 1, Robert S.; 2, Edwina T.; 3, Mary S.; 4, William J., all at home. Mr. Boteler and his wife are members of the Methodist Protestant Church in Buckeystown. He gives generously to the support of the church.

DAVID M. WARNER, farmer and salesman, son of Emanuel and Margaret Warner, was born in Woodsboro District, Frederick County, Md., August 24, 1848.

Emanuel Warner, father of David Warner, a well-known farmer of Woodsboro District, spent his life in farming. He was a Republican, interested in county affairs. He was married, and had these children: 1, Addison M., of Baltimore, Md.; deceased; 2, George B., of Creagerstown, Md.; 3, Upton E., deceased; 4 and 5, David and Carrie, twins; Carrie was married to George Shaw, of Hanover, Pa. Mr. Warner and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church in Creagerstown, Md.

David M. Warner was educated in the public schools of the district, and remained on the home farm, working with his father until he attained his majority. He learned milling with Mr. Crouse but after milling for a number of years, Mr. Warner abandoned the business, and assumed the management of a farm belonging to his father-in-law, George D. Martz. Some years after this, he purchased a farm in Creagerstown District which he cultivated successfully for nine years. He then sold his farm to his father-in-law and removed to Frederick City, having secured a position with the Deering Harvesting Company, with whom he remained until the time of his death.

David M. Warner was married to Jane E., daughter of the late George D. and Mary (Ott) Martz. Of their six children, four reached maturity: 1, George C., a painter, resides in Creagerstown, Md.; 2, Leslie T., blacksmith, resides in Creagerstown; 3, Elmer C., salesman, of Frederick City; 4, M. G., painter, at home.

Mr. Warner and his wife are members of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church, in Creagerstown. Mrs. Warner is an active worker in the church. Mr. Warner died at his home in Woodsboro District, September 23, 1898, and is buried in the cemetery at Woodsboro, Md. After the death of her husband, Mrs. Warner returned to Creagerstown, where she now resides.

The ancestors of the Martz family were Germans who emigrated to America in 1700. Daniel Martz, grandfather of Mrs. Jane E. (Martz) Warner, was prominent as a farmer and merchant in Woodsboro and Johnsville where he lived to a good old age. He was married to Elizabeth Curfman. They had three children: 1, George D., father of Mrs. Warner; 2, William H., of Ladiesburg, Md., deceased; 3, Joanna (Mrs. Francis Renner). Mr. and Mrs. Martz are dead. His wife died June 8, 1880. Both are buried in the cemetery at Woodsboro, Md.

The late George D. Martz, son of Daniel and Elizabeth (Curfman) Martz, father of Mrs. Warner, was born June 28, 1825. He received his education in the public schools of the district, and remained on the homestead working with his father until he began farming for himself. Mr. Martz purchased, from his father, a fertile farm of 161 acres in Woodsboro District, Frederick County, Md., which he cultivated so successfully that he was able to buy a second property, situated in Woodsboro District. To this place he removed and spent the remainder of his life in improving it. He was a stockholder in the Creagerstown and Woodsboro Turnpike Company, and was highly esteemed by his fellow citizens. George D. Martz was married to Mary Ott. Of their four children only one, Jane E., widow of Daniel M. Warner, survives. Mr. Martz was a member of the Lutheran Church in Woodsboro. He died August 30, 1906, and rests in the cemetery in Woodsboro. At her father's death, Mrs. Warner came into possession of both farms which are now rented.

THOMAS WILLIAM FOGLE, one of the old and highly respected citizens of Woodsboro District, was born near New Midway, Frederick County, December 20, 1839. He is a son of William Fogle and his first wife, Margaret Strine.

Henry Fogle, the great-grandfather of Thomas W. Fogle, came to Frederick County, Md., from Pennsylvania. He was wealthy and purchased a farm for each of his five children. These tracts were in Woodsboro District. He could have bought land around Frederick City but it was full of malaria and it was not so thickly settled in the neighborhood he chose. He is buried at Rocky Hill. Mr. Fogle was the father of five children: William, who died near Liberty, married a Miss Anders; John; Mathias, who died on his farm in Woodsboro District, was married, but the name of his wife has not been ascertained; Nancy, married Balser Fox, and died in Creagerstown District; and Susan or Annie, married George Locke and died near Woodsboro.

John Fogle, son of Henry Fogle, was born, lived and died in Woodsboro District, Frederick County. He grew up a farm boy. He bought books and studied veterinary surgery. He afterwards engaged in that work, and went by the old fashioned name of "witch doctor." He also studied medicine, and conducted sort of an apothecary shop on his farm. He was the owner of a fine farm in the vicinity of New Midway. He was drafted and served in the second war with Great Britain, 1812-15. Mr. Fogle was married to Catharine Eyler, daughter of John Eyler. They had issue, as follows: Frederick, who died in Woodsboro District, married Margaret Fogle, daughter of Mathias Fogle; Susan, married Jacob Eyler and died in Frederick District; Mary, became the wife of Andrew Miller and died at Frederick City; William; John, who resides at York, Pa., was twice married, first to Eliza Eyler, and secondly to the widow of Adam Fogle; Eliza, married John Fogle and died at Frederick City; Catharine, became the wife of Wesley Keeney and they settled and died near Winchester, Va.; Isaac, a retired farmer near New Midway, married Barbara Fogle; and Margaret, married Jacob Kieffer and died in Woodsboro District.

William Fogle, son of John and Catharine (Eyler) Fogle, was born and reared on his father's farm near New Midway, Frederick County, now owned by John Bastian, December 31, 1814. He received a limited education, and lived home until he was married. His first work was day laboring, after which he began farming near New Midway and later rented farms in Frederick and Buckeystown Districts. He died in Frederick District, December 31, 1900. He was an independent voter, and in his religious views was a Lutheran. Mr. Fogle was married twice. His first wife was Margaret Strine, who died in Woodsboro District. By this marriage were the following children: Catharine, married David Culp and died in Frederick District; Thomas William, whose name heads this sketch; Margaret, married William Welty, and lived in Woodsboro District, but died in Frederick district; John Henry, died aged five years; Ephraim, located at York, Pa., and married Harriet Albaugh; Lewis, who lives in Virginia, has never married; Isaac, died in Woodsboro District without marrying; Annie, married William Pittinger, of Woodsboro District; Mary Ellen, the widow of Henry Myers, lives at York, Pa.; and Sarah Alice, married a Mr. McClelland, and lives at York. Mr. Fogle was married secondly to a Miss Staley, of Ohio, by whom he had one child: John, now a resident of Frederick District.

Thomas William Fogle, son of William and Margaret (Strine) Fogle, attended the old fashioned subscription and the later public schools until he was fifteen years old. He was reared in the usual manner of farmers' sons, and early began work. At the age of twenty-two he began burning lime. He had previously learned this occupation with a man in York, Pa., serving eighteen months. He followed this vocation in Frederick County for ten years. He then purchased his present farm of 100 acres and this tract he cultivated until his retirement about 1899. He has since then rented the farm to his son. He erected all new buildings on the place after securing possession of it, and in 1869, the year he located there, built his home. In 1879 he put up the barn and a grain shed was constructed in 1885. Mr. Fogle is a man of high character and is highly thought of in the community in which he makes his home.

In politics, Mr. Fogle lends his influence and support to the Democratic party. He is a member of Solomon's Evangelical Lutheran Church of Woodsboro, and was formerly an elder.

Mr. Fogle was married January 2, 1867, to Lydia Ann Fox, of Woodsboro. She is a daughter of Balser and Lydia Ann (Stitely) Fox. She was born in Johnsville District, Frederick County, May 13, 1835. She is a Lutheran in religion. To Mr. and Mrs. Fogle have been born one son: Abner Eugene, who was born August 22, 1868, married Emily Fox, daughter of Hezekiah and Mary Matilda (Smith) Fox, by whom he has five children, Ruby Estella, Lula May, Calvin Earle, Oscar Arthur, and Chester Lynn.

Balser Fox, Mrs. Fogle's father, was born in Johnsville District, Frederick County. He was a farmer, and died in his native district at the age of eighty-seven. His wife, Lydia Ann Stitely, lived to be eighty years old. They were Lutherans, and had these children: Lydia Ann, (Mrs. Fogle); Jacob, of Mount Pleasant District, married Emily Lugenbeel; Catharine, the wife of John Wesley Strasburg, of Frederick City; Mary Ann, who is deceased; Lena Elizabeth, married John W. Engler, and lives in Washington, D. C.; Rachel Sophia, widow of Peter Perry; Emily Jane, deceased, was the wife of Jacob Slonecker; Sarah Susan, became the wife of John Fox; and Margaret Ellen, married Alexander Phillips. Balser Fox was a son of Jacob and Elizabeth Fox, both of whom died in Frederick County.

ANDREW D. ARNOLD, of the "Wanderer's Return Farm," who is the second son of David Arnold, was born on his father's farm, near Burkittsville, September 25, 1866. (See sketch of David Arnold.)

During his early youth Mr. Arnold's time was divided between attendance at the schools of Burkittsville, and such work as he was able to do upon his father's farm. As he and his elder brother used to feed the cattle during the winter, school engagements often had to give way to home duties. He thus became practically acquainted, early in life, with the details of farming; and three years before his marriage, he took possession of the farm he now occupies, which he purchased from his father in 1895. The "Wanderer's Return" is a tract of 315 acres, lying along the road between Petersville and Catoctin Station. In 1892, Mr. David Arnold had built a fine new house upon this farm; the barn, also, was built by him. It is said that this farm, in the early days of the Republic, was once visited by Gen. Washington, its proprietor at that time being Thomas Hawkins, a government surveyor.

Andrew D. Arnold was married, April 17, 1894, to Miss Amanda Catherine Young, daughter of Jacob and Charlotte Elizabeth Young. Their children are: 1, David Jacob, born July 27, 1896; 2, Mary Elizabeth, born April 24, 1899; 3, John Thomas, born July 15, 1901; 4, Amanda Catherine, born April 23, 1905; 5, Andrew Daniel, born September 8, 1907; 6, Maurice Lenord, born August 30, 1909.

Mr. Arnold is an adherent, in politics, of the Democratic party.

CHESTER M. HAUVER, Deputy Sheriff of Frederick County, Md., son of Melancthon and Rebecca (Buhrman) Hauver, was born on the old Hauver homestead, in Hauver's District, Frederick County, Md., December 2, 1868.

Peter Hauver, great-grandfather of Chester M. Hauver, was born in Germany, March 1, 1754. In early manhood he emigrated to America, and settled in what is now Hauver's District, Frederick County, Md., where he took up a large tract of land. He was one of the early settlers of that part of Maryland, and from him the district received its name. He cut timber, cleared a part of the land on which he built a substantial dwelling, a barn, and all necessary outbuildings, and spent his life in the home which he had won from the forest. Peter Hauver was married, and among their children was a son named Christian.

Christian Hauver, grandfather of Chester M. Hauver, was born on the old Hauver homestead, November 12, 1801. He was educated in the public schools of his native district, and remained on the home farm. After his father's death, Mr. Hauver purchased the homestead, and spent the rest of his life in cultivating and improving it. He cleared a large part of the original tract, built on it a two-story dwelling, all the necessary buildings, and converted the wild land into a fertile farm. This land was situated one mile south of Foxville, on the road to the Catoctin Furnace. Mr. Hauver was a Democrat, and was honored in the district as a successful farmer and as a reliable citizen. Christian Hauver was married to Mary, daughter of William Brown, who was well-known among the older farmers of Hauver's District. Their children are: 1, Peter, deceased, a farmer of Hauver's District; 2, Elizabeth, deceased, married to the late George H. Fox, a farmer of Hauver's District; 3, Hannah, deceased, married to the late John Stottlemyer, of Catoctin District, Frederick County; 4, William, deceased, a farmer of Catoctin District; 5, John C., a retired farmer of Shelby County, Ohio; 6, Melancthon, a farmer; 7, Ephraim D., a farmer of Hauver's District. Mr. Hauver and his wife were members of Mount Moriah Lutheran Church in Foxville, Md. Mr. Hauver was a liberal contributor, and was very active in the building of the church edifice in Foxville. He served the congregation as deacon, as elder, and as superintendent of the Sunday School. He died, June 17, 1869, and was buried in the cemetery of the Lutheran Church in Foxville, Md.

Mr. Hauver's father, Melancthon Hauver, was born on the old homestead, where his boyhood and youth were spent. He received his education in the public schools of the district, and remained with his father until his marriage, when he began farming for himself on a part of the original homestead which had been sold off and which was bought back again by him. He has added to it until he has 90 acres of fine farm, fruit and timber land. He has made many improvements, putting up a two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn, and all the necessary buildings. His farm is numbered among the desirable properties of the district. He is also extensively engaged in fruit raising. Mr. Hauver is a prosperous farmer and attributes his success to hard work and patient supervision of his land. He is a Republican, interested in all that concerns the progress of the community. Melancthon Hauver was married to Rebecca, daughter of George and Elizabeth Buhrman, whose father was prominent among the older residents of the county, and was for many years, a magistrate of Hauver's District. Melancthon and Mrs. Hauver have five children; only two reached adult age: 1, Ella, died unmarried; 2, Chester M. Mr. Hauver and his wife are members of Mount Moriah Lutheran Church in Foxville. He is a liberal contributor, and has served the congregation as deacon and as elder.

Chester M. Hauver was educated in the public schools of Hauver's District, and remained at home with his father until he married, when he purchased his present home and began farming for himself. His place, a fine fruit farm of 22 acres, situated near Foxville, was the property of his grandfather and was known as the old Buhrman homestead. It is beautifully situated on the road from Thurmont to Smithsburg. He has extensive orchards and is one of the successful fruit raisers in this part of Frederick County. His place is well-improved and is equipped with good buildings, all in excellent repair. Mr. Hauver ascribes his financial success to industry and close attention to business. He is one of the leading Republicans of his district and is highly esteemed as a citizen. In the autumn of 1909, he was appointed riding deputy sheriff of Frederick County under Sheriff Grimes, and has filled the position acceptably. He is a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, of Thurmont, and of the K. of P., of Frederick City.

Chester M. Hauver was married to Effie, daughter of Allen and Amanda (Schroyer) Eccard, of Catoctin District. They have three children: 1, Clyde L.; 2, Masie N.; 3, Ruth M., all at home. Mr. Hauver and his wife are active members of Mount Moriah Lutheran Church in Foxville, Md.

NATHAN ADDISON ENGLAR, deceased, was one of the prominent and highly respected citizens of Frederick County at the time of his death. He was vice-president of the Union Bridge Trust Company and a director. He was identified with that enterprise from its inception. His personal traits won for him the friendship and co-operation of his associates in the directorate, and his business ability, activity and foresight contributed largely to the present measure of success of the Union Bridge Banking and Trust Company. His usefulness was not limited to one institution, but he contributed to the success of public undertakings and private enterprises that made for the best interests of the town of Union Bridge. His death deprived that town of one of its most valuable citizens, who had thoroughly entered into the welfare and life of the community.

Mr. Englar was born on the Englar homestead, situated between Johnsville and Union Bridge, October 11, 1849. Here he lived until about 1889, when he removed to the homestead of his wife in the village of Johnsville. He received his early learning in the public schools and finished his education at an Episcopal institution at West River, Md. He was engaged in farming until his retirement to Johnsville. In financial circles of Frederick County, he was well known and played a prominent part. Among the private enterprises in which he was interested was the Liberty and Pipe Creek Turnpike Company, in which he served as a director.

Politically, Mr. Englar was a life long adherent of the Democracy. He was at one time the choice of his party as a member of the State Legislature, but was defeated by a very small number of votes. He stood at the head of his ticket. Mr. Englar was a man of pleasing manners and genial disposition. He possessed many friends all over the state. The late L. Victor Baughman was one of his bosom friends. The death of Mr. Englar caused much regret throughout Frederick County. He is laid to rest at Mountain View Cemetery, Union Bridge.

Mr. Englar was married at Johnsville, November 13, 1879, to Leanna Wolfe, daughter of William Nicholas and Ann Elizabeth (Lugenbeel) Wolfe. They were the parents of one daughter: Edith Grace, who died in infancy.

William Nicholas Wolfe, the father of Mrs. Englar, was born near Johnsville, Frederick County, September 17, 1824, and died aged thirty-six years. He was a farmer. Although he died while a young man, he was well-known and had served as a member of the Maryland Legislature. While serving in that body he made an excellent record. Mr. Wolfe was married to Ann Elizabeth Lugenbeel, of Unionville, Md. She was born November 11, 1824, and died in her seventy-sixth year. They were the parents of four children: Helena, deceased; Margaret Rebecca, deceased; John Hamilton, deceased; and Leanna (Mrs. Englar). The grandfather of Mrs. Englar was John Wolfe, who married Mary Holtz.

Mr. Englar was a son of Nathan Englar, and born in Carroll County, Md. His wife, Margaret Kinzer, was born in Lancaster County, Pa. They lived at the Englar homestead for a number of years. Then removed to Union Bridge, Md., where they died. They were farmers and were the parents of five children: Josiah, lives at New Windsor, Md.; Ann Elizabeth, died without marrying; Lydia, also died unmarried; John D., deceased; and Nathan Addison, our subject.

MILLARD FILMORE CULLER, a retired farmer, residing in Jefferson, Md., son of Daniel and Ann Maria (Hargett) Culler, was born on the farm, then the property of his father, situated a mile and a-half northeast of Jefferson, Frederick County, Md., December 27, 1855.

Three brothers by the name of Culler, came from Germany to America, at an early date. One of the brothers settled in Virginia, one in Pennsylvania, and Michael Culler, great-grandfather of Millard F. Culler, in Maryland.

Michael Culler, the founder of the Maryland branch of the family, fixed his homestead between Creagerstown and Lewistown. He allied himself with the Colonists, and his property was confiscated by the British. Mr. Culler then crossed the mountain and settled a mile and a-half northeast of Jefferson where he spent the remainder of his life in cultivating and improving his property. Michael Culler was married to Miss Rhinehart. They had eight children: 1, Jacob; 2, Philip; 3, John; 4, Michael; 5, Henry; 6, Elizabeth, married Philip Coblentz; 7, Susan, married George Willard; 8, a son who married Miss Remsburg.

Mr. Culler's grandfather, Captain Henry Culler, was an officer in the War of 1812. He owned large tracts of land in Frederick Valley and in the vicinity of Jefferson. He failed in business once, but saved enough from the wreck to begin again and finally accumulated sufficient property to leave a farm to each of his children. Besides his farming, Mr. Culler owned and operated stores in different parts of the county. He was a truly remarkable man in every way, and would never remain defeated. He served several terms in the legislature of Maryland. Captain Henry Culler was married to Annie, daughter of Jacob and Catherine Feaster, who lived near Jefferson. Their children are: 1, Daniel; 2, Philip, married Annie Dixon, died in Frederick Valley; 3, David, married Margaret Slifer, died in Jefferson; 4, Colonel Henry, married first to Eliza Warfield, and after her death to Mrs. Sowers, died in Jefferson; 5, Michael, married Elizabeth Toms, who lived near Middletown, died in Jefferson; 6, Dr. John J., studied medicine under Dr. Willard, of Jefferson, graduated in Baltimore and practiced in Jefferson most of his life, married Sarah Routzhan, and died in Jefferson; 7, William L., ex-member of the Legislature, resides in Jefferson, married Minerva Hawker, who died in 1886. Captain Culler died at the farm of his grandson, Samuel Culler, near Jefferson.

Daniel Culler, father of Millard F. Culler, was born on a farm near Jefferson, March 9, 1810. He grew up on this farm and made it his home until 1866, when he retired from active life and removed to Jefferson, where he resided until his death, March 4, 1894. He was well-known and highly esteemd in the community. He was a Republican, interested in local affairs, but not an office seeker. Daniel Culler was married to Ann Maria, daughter of John and Barbara Hargett, of Carroll's Manor. Mrs. Culler was born on Carroll's Manor, August 19, 1815. Their children are: 1, John Henry, a retired farmer, resides in Jefferson, married Amanda Derr; 2, Martin Luther, a minister of the Lutheran Church stationed at Bedford, Pa., married to Jennie Floyd; 3, Mary C., married to George W. Stagle, both deceased; 4, Ellen R., married to William Howard, both deceased; 5, Virginia, deceased, married to D. Edward Keefhauver; 6, America A. C. (Mrs. C. R. Horine), of Jefferson; 7, Daniel Milton, deceased, married to Catherine Horine; 8, Maria E. (Mrs. M. G. Reece), of Jefferson; 9, Milliard Filmore. Mr. Culler was a lifelong member of the Lutheran Church. He was an elder in the church for many years, and was several times a delegate to the General Synod.

Millard F. Culler was ten years old when his father removed to Jefferson. He attended the schools of Jefferson until he was twenty. In summer he worked for his brother, John Henry, who was a tenant on his father's farm. When he was twenty-five, Mr. Culler married Annie Remsburg and began farming for himself on the farm which he now owns, then the property of his father. After renting for three years he bought the place which consists of 186 1-2 acres of excellent land. He was successful in farming and, in 1893, retired to his home in Jefferson. Since that time he has not been actively engaged in business. Mr. Culler is a Republican and member of the Lutheran Church.

JOHN W. O. AHALT, one of the leading farmers of Middletown District, who resides on his well-improved farm of 150 acres, situated three miles southwest of Middletown, was born on the place he now owns, October 14, 1852. He is a son of Jacob and Mary (Smith) Ahalt.

Henry Ahalt, the grandfather of John W. O. Ahalt, spent his life following the occupation of a farmer. He gave his support in politics to the Whig party. In religion, he was connected with the Reformed Church. He was the possessor of the farm over a century and a quarter ago that is now owned by J. W. O. Ahalt. He was the father of two sons and six daughters: Daniel, deceased; Betsy, deceased, was the wife of John Zecher; Mary, deceased, was married to Ephraim Long; Jacob; Barbara, died unmarried; Lydia, also died unmarried; Sarah, deceased; and one daughter, name not recorded.

Jacob Ahalt, son of Henry Ahalt, was born May 13, 1806, and died September 3, 1863. He followed farming as an occupation. He was a Lutheran in church matters and voted the Republican ticket. He was married to Mary Smith. They were the parents of fifteen children: Lewis, died aged sixty-seven years; Annie, deceased, was the wife of Jacob Huffer, also dead; Malinda, deceased, was married to John Huffer; Violetta, deceased, married Henry Beachley; Mary, died unmarried; Luretta, died young; Lucinda, the wife of Frederick Phlegar, of Middletown; Carlton, a farmer of Loudoun County, Va.; Cordelia, died unmarried; Ellen, the wife of Malon Arnold; Jacob deceased; Susan, the wife of John Kepler, of Boonsboro, Washington County, Md.; Olivia, died unmarried; John W. O.; and Samuel, deceased.

John W. O. Ahalt, son of Jacob and Mary (Smith) Ahalt, was reared on the old homestead, and was educated in the public schools. Arriving at man's estate, he chose agricultural pursuits, at which he has always remained. He is the present owner of the farm upon which his grandfather, Henry Ahalt, resided, which is located near the foot of the South Mountain. He has met with much success at farming, and is held in high esteem in the community in which he makes his home.

In politics, Mr. Ahalt is an adherent of the Republican party, but has never desired public office, although he has been a trustee of the district schools for the past several years. In religion, he is a leading spirit, and an active member in Zion's Lutheran Church of Middletown, in which he has filled the offices of deacon and elder.

Mr. Ahalt was married to Jennie McDuell, daughter of James and Mary (Sheppard) McDuell. Mr. and Mrs. Ahalt have no children.

James McDuell, the father of Mrs. Ahalt, was a son of Henry and Magdalena (Smith) McDuell, of an old family of Petersville District, Frederick County, of Scotch-Irish origin. James McDuell married Mary Sheppard, by whom he had three children: Charles W., of Santiago, Col.; Mary Magdalena, the wife of Edward E. Wright, of Santiago, Col.; and Jennie, married John W. O. Ahalt.

NICHOLAS O. CLINE, a prominent citizen of Frederick City, Md., where he lived retired, was a native of that place, born July 7, 1834, and died May 19, 1910. He was a son of Casper and Catharine (Evans) Cline.

The Cline family is of ancient and honorable lineage and is of Scotch-Irish origin. The American ancestor was Alexander Cline, the grandfather of Nicholas O. Cline. He was a native of Ireland, being born at Waterford. At an early day he emigrated to this country, and settled first in Chester county, Pa., where he bought a farm. Later he removed to York county, Pa., where he purchased a homestead, and there spent the remainder of his life. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Casper Cline, son of Alexander Cline, was a native of York county, Pa. He was born at Abbottstown, near Hanover, in 1795, and died at his home near Frederick City, Md., April 18, 1871. He was reared in his native county, where he remained until he was twenty-one years of age. He then went to Baltimore City, where he spent several years, and became familiar with the details of carriage manufacturing. In 1822, he located in Frederick, and established a carriage manufactory there. He soon succeeded in building up a large and remunerative trade that increased in proportions from year to year, until it was one of the most extensive and profitable industries in Frederick. At the height of his prosperity he was obliged to keep eight forges in full blast, and employed a large number of men in the several departments of his factory. The carriages, coaches, wagons and other vehicles manufactured at his place were sold over a wide expanse of territory, and commanded the highest prices in the trade, as the workmanship was known to be of the best and most reliable kind. Mr. Cline did all the coach work for Stockton & Stockes, proprietors of the stage lines which carried the United States mails from Baltimore to Wheeling, on the National pike, through Frederick. The establishment afterwards passed into the hands of Brengle & Swalm, by whom it was conducted for a long time, but finally sold. Mr. Cline owned a number of valuable farms in the vicinity of Frederick, and these he managed until his death, which occurred at his homestead, Locust Level, situated about a mile and a-half from the city. He served during the war of 1812, and participated in the defense of Baltimore in 1814. As long as any of the "old defenders" were left, he marched with them every twelfth of September. For over thirty years he was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Frederick, and much of his time and means were given to religious work. He was kindly and generous, always willing to lend a helping hand to those less fortunate than himself, yet his charities although without number, were unostentatiously bestowed. Mr. Cline was twice married. He was first married to Catharine Evans of New Market district, Frederick County, a daughter of Robert Evans. His second wife was Corilla Evans, a sister of his first wife. Mr. Cline was the father of the following children: Harriet, married Stephen B. Crum, who owned a farm three miles from Frederick; William, served in the Confederate army, and died at Norfolk, Va.; John, resided in Frederick for thirty years, and married a Scotch lady, a Miss Nevans, at Melbourne, Australia, died in Los Angeles, Cal., in July, 1896; Mary Louisa, married William Yeakle, deceased, of Frederick; Nicholas O., whose name heads this sketch; and George T., a sketch of whom follows:

Nicholas O. Cline, son of Casper and Catherine (Evans) Cline, was reared in his native county. He was educated in the public schools of Frederick County, and at St. John's College, Md. Most of his active life was passed in agricultural pursuits when he retired to private life in Frederick City. He was one of the well-known and highly esteemed citizens of the city, and commanded the respect of all with whom he came into contact. At farming he met with much success, which came to him through the good qualities possessed by him. He was industrious, persevering and straightforward in all of his dealings with his fellowmen. Politically, he was one of the most loyal adherents and supporters of the prohibition party in Frederick County, and he had the best interests of that organization at heart. In religion, he was a consistent and official member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Frederick. Mr. Cline was married to Anna A. Michael, daughter of Ezra Michael, a native of Frederick County. They were the parents of three children: Margaret, the wife of Rev. W. J. Cozens, of Boston, Mass., by whom she has four children: William J., Bessie B., Anna Winifred, and Albert Owen Casper; Bessie S., the wife of Rev. Charles Noble, of Boston, Mass., and they have four children, Charles Casper, Anna Catharine, Bessie Cline and Nicholas Dwight.

CASPER E. CLINE, son of Nicholas O. and Anna A. (Michael) Cline, was born in Frederick district, July 31, 1872. He grew to manhood on his father's farm, and while a young man attended private schools and Frederick College. At the age of fourteen years, he came to Frederick City, and entered the employ of Charles E. Thomas, who conducted a carpet store, as a clerk. Here he remained for two years. He then, at the age of sixteen, bought the business, Mr. Thomas having died. The store was located at No. 11, North Market street, and here Mr. Cline stayed for about nine years. He then removed to No. 12, North Market street, where he added furniture to the carpet business. At this location he remained for seven years, and then took his present stand, corner of Market and Patrick streets, which he purchased in 1905 from John E. Price. Mr. Cline greatly improved this property by adding two additional stories, it now being four stories in height, and filled with a large and select stock of all kinds of furniture, carpets, wall paper and undertakers' goods. From the very outset, Mr. Cline met with success, and from time to time he was forced by increased trade to employ more help. It was the ever enlarging sales that compelled him to secure better facilities for the conduct of his enterprise. In the management of his house, Mr. Cline has shown much executive ability and rare mercantile acumen. He is a director in the Citizens' National Bank of Frederick; the Mutual Insurance Company; the Y. M. C. A., and President of the Credit Men's Association; member of Royal Arcanum, Maccabees, Modern Brotherhood, and is one of the most prominent young business men of the city. Mr. Cline is independent in politics, and in religion he is an active member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he is recording steward. Mr. Cline was married September 5, 1893, to Minerva J. Frost, daughter of Eli and Fannie (Koontz) Frost, of Frederick. This marriage has six children: Elinor Frost, Anna Grace, Ruby M., Virginia N., Ruth M. and Casper E., Jr.

GEORGE T. CLINE, son of Casper Cline, and a brother of Nicholas O. Cline, was born on his father's farm near Frederick, March 4, 1825, and died in Chicago, Ill., June 24, 1903.

He attended St. John's College, Md. Upon the completion of his education he lived upon his father's farm on the Harper's Ferry road until the spring of 1858, when he went to visit his cousin, D. G. Evans, in Ohio, where he spent a year. Then he proceeded to Cincinnati, and thence to Chicago. In this city he made his home for many years. In 1859 he embarked in the real estate business. He laid out numerous additions to Chicago, and owned extensive tracts in and near the city, particularly in the manufacturing districts. In 1883, having acquired a fortune, he returned to his native city, and purchased the fine mansion built by the late Benjamin Rutherford and known as Lawndale. This place, situated near the fair grounds consisted of sixty acres, upon which was a very handsome solid brick residence of twenty rooms, built in 1835, then being one of the most substantial structures and one of the finest private homes in that portion of the country. Mr. Cline won the title of colonel while a member of the Chicago Home Guards during the Civil War. He served for the Union in 1863, being in the division commanded by General Shirley during the time when Camp Douglas contained some ten thousand Confederate prisoners. Besides being the possessor of much property in Chicago, he was also the owner of several fine farms near Frederick, and was one of the wealthiest men of the county. He died in Chicago, without issue, and left an estate worth $2,000,000. The most of his property he made by successful investments in real estate in Chicago during the thirty years of his business dealings there. He met with one severe loss, losing $40,000 in unpaid insurance in the great fire of 1871. Politically, Colonel Cline always favored the Democracy, but voted the opposition ticket a few times on municipal affairs in Chicago, when he considered that it was best. Although often solicited to accept public offices, he steadily declined. Though he was brought up under the influence of parents who were deeply religious and ardent church members, he never identified himself with any denomination, but was a contributor to various worthy church and benevolent enterprpises.

THE EVANS FAMILY, of which the two wives of Casper Cline were members, is of ancient origin and was located in Wales, England. From that place the American progenitor, Job Evans, came to Baltimore county, Md., locating near Owings Mills, where he engaged in farming. Of the children of Job Evans, John married Miranda Owings, daughter of Edward Owings, of Fountain Rock, Frederick County, and became a permanent resident of Chillicothe, O., in 1815; and Robert was the father of Catharine and Corilla Evans.

Robert Evans was a native of Wales, and was brought to this country by his father. He became concerned in speculations in land, and owned large tracts in Baltimore county. A portion of this property, known as Howard's woods, a tract of one thousand acres, was near what is now Druid Hill Park, in Baltimore City, and is now well settled. He was a relative of the Stansbury, Wilson, Perregoy, Stevenson, Owings, Govens, Dye, Gillingham, Baxter, Gorsuch, Tenent, Dorsey and other early families of Baltimore county.

REV. JAMES WILLIS, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church, of Myersville, Frederick County, is a native of Floyd County, Va., where he was born on a farm in January, 1848. He is a son of Jonathan and Arabella (Phlegar) Willis.

The Willis family is of English descent, and its members have been among the prominent and influential citizens of Virginia for a hundred and fifty years. Bennett Willis, the grandfather of Rev. James Willis, served in the War of 1812, and died at Norfolk, Va., while in service. He was the father of five children: Hugh, Jonathan, David, John and Rebecca.

Jonathan Willis, son of Bennett Willis, was born in 1807, and died in 1889. He spent his entire life following agricultural pursuits. In politics, he was an old line Whig until the Civil War, when he became a member of the Democratic party. Religiously, he was his whole life a consistent and devout member of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Willis was married to Arabella Phlegar. They were the parents of ten sons and four daughters: Margaret A., married George Williamson; David, a farmer of Floyd county, Va.; Hamilton, deceased; Bennett, deceased, was a soldier in the Confederate Army, serving in the 24th Virginia Infantry; Lavinia, married Lieutenant Harman, of Virginia; Thomas, engaged in farming in Texas; Samuel, killed while serving in "Stonewall" Jackson's brigade at Cedar Creek, Va.; Simon Peter, a merchant of Floyd County, Va.; James; Martha and Mary, twins, are deceased; John, residing on the old homestead in Floyd County, Va.; George A., a live stock dealer; and William Henry, a farmer in Floyd County, Va.

James Willis, son of Jonathan and Arabella (Phlegar) Willis, was reared on his father's farm in Floyd county, Va. He received his education in private schools and was graduated from Roanoke College, Va., in 1874, with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Having decided to enter the ministry, he became a student at the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, Pa., from which institution he was graduated in 1877. Mr. Willis entered upon his active work in the ministry at Strasburg, Va., where he remained for five years. He was then chosen president of the Staunton Female Seminary, in which capacity he remained for a period of fifteen years. In 1897, he located in Washington, D. C., and lived retired from the active work of the ministry until 1906. In that year he accepted a call to St. Paul's Lutheran Church, at Myersville. Here, Rev. Willis has since been located. His pastorate in Myersville has been a successful one, and he has made many friends since coming there. He is held in high esteem, not only by members of his own congregation, but by all who have come in contact with him. Politically, Rev. Willis adheres to the Democratic party.

Mr. Willis was married June 29, 1880, to Jane Ione C. Miller, daughter of Dr. T. W. Miller, of Strasburg, Va. Mrs. Willis died August 27, 1901. There are five children by this marriage: Thomas C., an attorney-at-law at Washington, D. C.; J. Houston, of Lynchburg, Va.; Sidney; and Bennett, the two last at home, and Russell, married to F. H. Grimes, of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Willis was a granddaughter of Christian Miller, who was the first citizen in the Valley of Virginia to pay taxes on silverware. Mrs. Willis' mother was Susan Russell.

RUFUS R. ZIMMERMAN, a prominent farmer of Frederick County, Md., residing on his farm, one miles west of Lime Kiln, in Buckeystown District, Frederick County, Md., son of Elias and Annie M. (Greenwald) Zimmerman, both deceased, was born on the old Zimmerman homestead, now owned by George H. Davis, Ballinger District, Frederick County, April 22, 1846.

The Zimmerman family is of German descent. Mr. Zimmerman's great-grandfather, who was one of the first settlers of Frederick County, purchased, from the Carrolls a large tract of land in the western part of Buckeystown District, where he spent the remainder of his life, clearing and improving his holding. He married, and among his children was a son name George.

George Zimmerman, grandfather of Rufus R. Zimmerman, who was a prominent man among the older farmers of Buckeystown District, was born on his father's farm in Ballinger District, and at his father's death, inherited the homestead, now the property of George H. Davis. After cultivating the homestead for some time, Mr. Zimmerman sold it and bought a farm near Feagaville, now the property of John E. Hargett, where he spent the remainder of his life. He was a successful farmer, and was highly esteemed in the county. George Zimmerman was married to Miss Young. Their children are: 1, Mary, married to Henry Fraley, both deceased; 2, Samuel, deceased, a farmer of Frederick District, Frederick County; 3, Joshua, deceased, a farmer of Buckeystown District; 4, Elias; 5, Josephus, deceased, farmer; 6, Caroline, married to the late Daniel J. Shellman, who was a farmer residing near Point of Rocks, Md.; 7, died in infancy. Mr. Zimmerman and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church.

Mr. Zimmerman's father, Elias Zimmerman, who was a farmer and dealer in grain, was born in 1818. He grew up on his father's farm, and was educated in the public schools of Frederick County. After his marriage, Mr. Zimmerman began farming for himself on one of his father's farms. After cultivating this land successfully for some years, he purchased the farm now owned by John E. Hargett, near Feagaville, Md. This place he greatly improved, putting up a two-story frame dwelling, a bank barn, and all necessary farm buildings. Mr. Zimmerman afterwards rented his farm and removed to Frederick City, where he dealt successfully in grain for seventeen years, and became one of the leading business men of his day. Mr. Zimmerman finally sold his business in Frederick, and returned to the farm where he spent the remainder of his life. He was a Democrat, and was one of the prominent citizens of Frederick County. Elias Zimmerman was married to Annie M. Greenwald, of Ballinger District. Their children are: 1, Levina, married to Henry Culler, a farmer of Ballinger District; 2, Charles E., a farmer of Ballinger District; 3, Rufus R.; 4, Zachariah T., a farmer of Ballinger District; 5, Benjamin F., a farmer of Ballinger District. Mr. Zimmerman and his wife were members of the Lutheran Church. He died at his home in Frederick County, in July, 1903, and was buried in the cemetery at Mt. Olivet. His wife, who died on November 9, 1902, rests by his side.

Rufus R. Zimmerman received his education in the public schools of his native District, and remained at home, assisting his father, until he married, when he began farming for himself on land owned by his father, near Feagaville, Md., which he cultivated successfully for seventeen years. In 1890, Mr. Zimmerman bought the farm on which he now resides, consisting of 150 acres of excellent land, beautifully situated about one mile west of Lime Kiln, and four miles south of Frederick, on the New Design Road. He has greatly improved his property, putting up a comfortable, two-story brick dwelling, a bank barn, and convenient outbuildings. It is a fine dairy farm, and Mr. Zimmerman has a large trade. His place, which is in a high state of cultivation, is numbered among the most desirable properties in the district. He also owns another well-improved farm of 70 acres, west of Feagaville. He attributes his financial success to hard work and close application to business. Mr. Zimmerman is a Republican, interested in all that pertains to the best interests of the county, and is highly esteemed by his contemporaries. He is a stockholder in the Washington, Frederick and Gettysburg railroad.

Rufus R. Zimmerman was married to Annie M., daughter of Neri and Mary (Thomas) Blessing, whose father was a prominent farmer of Frederick County. Their children are: 1, and 2, George W. and Franklin, both at home, engaged in farming and raising poultry; 3, Bertha M., married to Raymond Putman, a farmer of Ballinger District. Mr. Zimmerman and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church in Feagaville. He contributed liberally to the building of the new church edifice, and was a member of the building committee. Mrs. Zimmerman died April 9, 1899, and was buried in the cemetery at Mount Olivet.

LUTHER ADOLPHUS HORINE, deceased, was a prominent farmer of Jefferson District. He was born June 1, 1857, son of Joel and Catherine (Koontz) Horine.

His youth was spent in attending the schools of the village of Jefferson, and learning the business of agriculture in a practical way, on his father's farm. On March 9, 1882, he married Miss Anna V., daughter of John Harmon and Lucinda C. (Kefauver) Culler. After their marriage, they resided for five years in Jefferson, Mr. Horine being engaged in farming for different people of that vicinity. He at length bought a farm of 74 1-2 acres, lying very near Jefferson, on the Frederick turnpike. On this place he died, March 26, 1895; his burial place is in the Jefferson Cemetery. Mr. Horine was a member of the Lutheran Church, and served his congregation as deacon. Politically, he was a Republican, but never an office-holder. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Luther A. Horine are: Norma (Mrs. Henry Pennell), residing near Jefferson; and Millard H., at home.

Mrs. Horine's father, Mr. John Harmon Culler, was born in 1837, on the old Culler homestead in Jefferson District. He received the usual education of a farmer's son, in the public schools and on the farm. In March, 1861, he married Lucinda, daughter of Jacob and Lena (Coblentz) Kefauver. They made their home on the farm which was Mr. Culler's birthplace, and which he bought after his father's death. He died on this farm, October 7, 1898. He was a Lutheran, and served his church as elder. He was a Republican in politics. His widow now resides with Miss Annie Horine. Their children are: 1, Anna V. (Mrs. Luther A. Horine); 2, George, residing on the homestead, married Miss Rose Lewis; 3, John W., who lives near Church Hill, Frederick County, married Miss Sally Zimmerman; 4, Ella (Mrs. Henry Stockman), of Jefferson; 5, Jacob, farmer, of Jefferson District, married Miss Grace Keller; 6, Silas Harmon, who was educated for the ministry at Gettysburg, Pa., and ordained at Martinsburg, W. Va. He still officiates at his first and only charge, at Reisterstown, Baltimore Co., Md.; 7, Dorsey Spangler, farmer, of Jefferson District, who married Miss Jane Ramsberger. One child, Mary E., died in her third year.

John Culler, the father of John Harmon Culler, was for many years engaged in mercantile business at Middletown, Md. He married Ann Maria Smith; both are now deceased. They had three children, as follows: 1, Anna, who died at the age of eighteen; 2, Charlotte (Mrs. John W. Long), deceased; 3, John Harmon.

DAVID MICHAEL BARRACK, a man who has risen from very poor circumstances to an enviable position in the world by his own efforts entirely, lives on a 50-acre tract, part of the Fountain Rock farm, situated a-half mile south of Walkersville, on the Frederick turnpike. He was born near the Glade Cemetery, on the old Barrack mansion farm, near Walkersville, November 5, 1841. His parents were Jacob and Catharine (Smith) Barrack.

Peter Barrack, the grandfather of David M. Barrack, followed rural pursuits on the old Barrack homestead, now owned by the Fultons. The house on that property was erected by him. He was twice married, his wives being sisters. He raised children by both. By the first marriage he was the father of nine children. (See sketch of William Rinehart in this volume). By the second wife he had two children, Mrs. Rebecca Rinehart, and Jacob.

Jacob Barrack, son of Frederick Barrack, was born on the parental estate, and grew to manhood there. He spent most of his life following the occupation of a farmer. He was well known and an influential citizen. He was a member and pillar of the Reformed Church, and he gave his support to the candidates of the Republican ticket. Mr. Barrack was married to Catharine Smith.

David Michael Barrack, son of Jacob and Catharine (Smith) Barrack, acquired his learning at the old Glade school under Henry R. Harris, David Rupp, Aaron Davis and George P. Rinehart. He later went to the Ceresville school for a time under George Dinterman. At the age of twelve he was thrown on his own resources. He began work at $2.50 per month, and was thus engaged until he was twenty-one years old. April 1, 1861, he went to learn the blacksmith trade with William H. Rinehart. He served an apprenticeship of three years and then bought the business. This establishment he managed for twenty-four years. The old shop still stands opposite the residence of Dr. Nicodemus. It was built over a hundred years ago by Mr. Snook, who sold it to William H. Rinehart, who learned his trade there also. About 1888, Mr. Barrack disposed of the business and turned his attention to farming, going to live on his present place. His home was built about 1858 by Noah E. Cramer. He is also the possessor of a farm of 166 acres, situated below Mount Pleasant. Mr. Barrack is strictly a self made man. Thrown on his own efforts at the early age of twelve years, he had saved $150 by the time he attained his majority. He took good care of his money and there is not a man in the neighborhood who has risen to a more comfortable position by their labors. When he went to learn his trade he weighed ninety-eight pounds. Besides his two farms, he has considerable money. He conducted his shop in a business-like manner and has shown himself to have much ability in a business way. He still works every day, is vigorous and in good health. His wife has been a great aid to him in his struggle for success. Mr. Barrack had but a little time each year to attend school, and is consequently largely self-educated. He possesses a good mind, and this, combined with a natural taste for reading, has made him familiar with many subjects. He keeps abreast of the times and is always informed on general news.

Politically, Mr. Barrack is stanch in his allegiance to the Republican party. He is affiliated with the Glade Reformed Church, in which he has held office for a quarter of a century, being kept almost continuously in official capacities. He has acted as deacon, elder, and is now treasurer. He takes a deep interest in religious affairs and is highly thought of in his community.

Mr. Barrack was married in February, 1865, to Lillie Mayne, of Creagerstown, Frederick Couny. She is a daughter of Daniel and Alice (Zimmerman) Mayne. Mr. and Mrs. Barrack are the parents of six children: Alice, the wife of Howard Flickinger; Katie, married Grant Ogle, who is deceased; Hattie and Harry, who were twins, are both deceased; Wendel Michael, also dead; and William D., twin brother of Wendel Michael, is living at home and married Mayne Hoke, by whom he has two children, Kathleen and Lillie.

RICHARD S. HARGETT, one of the leading young agriculturists of Frederick County, who is farming on the old John E. Hargett homestead, two and ahalf miles east of Frederick City, on the Baltimore pike, was born February 21, 1881, and is a son of John E. and Ellen (Zimmerman) Hargett.

John E. Hargett spent his active life as a farmer, but is now living in retirement at Feagaville, Frederick County. He is a prominent citizen and possesses the esteem of the community in which he makes his home. He is the owner of three fine farms, one of 225 acres, one of 80 acres, and one of 108 acres, all well improved, and contain some of the best limestone land in the county. Mr. Hargett was married to Ellen Zimmerman. They were the parents of these children: William S., a farmer near Feagaville, Frederick County; Eleanor, the wife of William C. Howard, of Feagaville, Md., a farmer; Effie S., who married William H. Thomas, of Harmony Grove, Frederick District, (see sketch); Richard S.; and Claude who resides with his father. In politics, John E. Hargett votes for the candidates of the Republican party, and religiously, he holds membership in the Reformed Church. (For history of the old family see sketch of D. H. Hargett, deceased, of Frederick City, in this volume).

Richard S. Hargett, son of John E. and Ellen (Zimmerman) Hargett, was born and reared on the farm where he now resides on the Baltimore pike. While a boy he attended the public schools, and was employed in various duties of his father's farm. He later had the advantage of studying at the Frederick City College.

Mr. Hargett cultivates 240 acres of excellent farm land, situated along the banks of the Monocacy. JOHN T. NORWOOD, farmer of Woodville District, Frederick County, Md., son of Lorenzo B. and Jennis (Flemming) Norwood, was born on a farm near Prospect Church, Woodville District, Frederick County, December 16, 1872.

Mr. Norwood's grandparents were natives of Frederick County. His father, Lorenzo B. Norwood, was born near Kemptown, Frederick County, in 1851. His life from the time that he was nine years old, was spent on the farm, most of the time in Woodville District. He grew up on his father's farm and, like other lads in the neighborhood, received education in the schools of his native district. After his marriage, Mr. Norwood began farming for himself on the Samuel Grove, now the Hood place, near Prospect Church. In 1880, Mr. Norwood purchased the home now owned by his son, John T. Norwood, where he spent seventeen years cultivating and improving his property. This place, consisting of 115 acres of fertile land, is situated in Woodville District, Frederick County. In 1897, Mr. Norwood removed to Mount Airy, Md., and opened a store which was connected with a hotel and livery stand. After his property was destroyed by fire, he removed to Baltimore, Md., and bought a property, No. 2140, West Baltimore St., where he opened a grocery, in which he does a thriving business. Lorenzo B. Norwood was married to Jennie Flemming. Their children are: 1, John T.; 2, Edward, of Hyattstown, Md.; 3, Nettie (Mrs. Vinton Baker).
